(Extract from the acts of the Vilna Archaeographic Commission, Vol. XXVIII). The Jews, having found favorable soil for themselves in the state of Lithuania, soon began to take root here, expand and acquire strength and influence in the course of public life. Avoiding merging with the mass of the Christian population and making every effort concern for the formation of their own unified national society "state within a state", the Jews at the same time took advantage of all means to turn the general laws of the state in their favor and secure patronage of its strong and wealthy representatives. From the very beginning by the Jews the matter was arranged in such a way that the general laws of the state, binding on everything of its other population, for them were softened or completely abolished; about this with distant Jewish foresight was included in the received numerous royal privileges. Having settled in towns and cities, the Jews, as common "subjects" of either private owners - landowners, or temporary owners of royal estates - elders, etc., acquired common broad rights and protection and protection from all difficult circumstances his life, especially when colliding with the "subjects" of another similar owner. The power of Jewish influence grew, expanded and strengthened due to the fact that the most important article of state life and profitability, namely trade and industry, thanks to the strange law on the dignity and honor of a nobleman of the Lithuanian state, which stated that "it is low and shameful for the gentry to engage in this kind of affairs", in all major cases where a lot of money was required, moved to Jewish hands. It is not surprising after this that the Jews not only ceased to be afraid and shy in front of the native Christian population of the state, but felt themselves as gentlemen, no worse than the arrogant, but quite often hungry, "gentry gentlemen". That is why, in major personal clashes not only with persons of the lower classes - bourgeois and peasants - but also with gentlemen-gentry, the Jews very often and fearlessly resorted to force and violence. Moreover, in the case of these violence, it manifests itself special cruelty, from which the victims or closest witnesses are convinced that this is an innate, evil hatred of Christians and a thirst for their blood.

We present here the contents of some of the most characteristic documents: 1560, February 2 days. Complaint of Novodvorsky priest Vukol Afanasyevich against the Jew Kozchik for inflicting life-threatening wounds on him.

In 1605, Jewish tenants of the Zhirovishchi estate in Slonim district on April 16 attacked the village of the same estate Rusakova and here they captured Slonimsky's wife, polite noblewoman, an elderly woman Polonia Khodorovna, because of some personal quarrels they cruelly and mercilessly beat her with sticks, then, tying her up with ropes, legs and arms, set her on fire several times with lighted candles, and finally They put her in a cruel prison, where she died. At the same time, the torturers took all of her movable property that was in the mentioned village, bread, livestock, clothing, money and precious items (list)...

1605, May 27 days. Volkovich's complaint against the Chomsky Jews, who, having made attack on his father's manor, severely beat his mother and subjected him to the conclusion in which she died...

1605, May 8 days. Volkovich's complaint about the Jews who came to his father's court and seized various property belonging to him...

1606, May 10th day. Complaint of Shukhtinsky, servant of Jan Rey of Naglowice, against the Jew Slonimsky David Kivich, who inflicted severe beatings on him...

1606, March 10th day. Voznoy's statement about the attack of the Rozhan Jews on accompanying the murderer of the Jew Ilya Shmuilovich, about beating him and freeing the killer. 1605, March 24 days. Ivan Soltan's complaint about the Slonim Jews who brought pestilence on his estate Zhirovitsy and the villages belonging to him...

1608, May 2 days. Complaint from the estate manager Sofia Zavishina against the Jews, tenants of neighboring estates, for their attack on the Palace yard and causing complaining of severe beatings and robbery of property on the estate...

In 1644, July 20, Lyubachevsky Russian priest and clerk of Brest Chapter John Trotsevich, being on his business in Brest, saw the beaten man and a bloody man, who was being led by a crowd of Jews, supposedly an escapee from prison, and with the remark of some Christians that the Jews mock Christians in this way, with on his part he added, “It’s a pity for a man to beat and torture him like that without investigation of the case by law." At these innocent words, not addressed to the Jews, a Jew, the furrier Shikhma, jumped up to the priest from the crowd and cursed him with the most with humiliating and insulting words for his rank for interfering in this matter. When the priest, leaving his cart, wanted to go to the Brest governor with complaint, the same Jew Shikhma, having caught up with him in the alley, attacked him again, “hitting him once in the face with his hand, and the second time he struck him in the chest and pushed him foot, while he shouted to his accomplices: “Beat, kill this bastard boor, even if we had to weigh him by the pounds, we’ll pay!” And the Jew’s accomplices cruelly beat and wounded this Christian shepherd. 1644, March 10th day. Complaint from the Brest Jesuit College against Brest Jews severely beat college student Netsetsky...

1646, July 28 days. Voznoy's statement about the complaints of the peasants of the Pnevo estate about Jewish tenants who killed one peasant, charged them illegal extortions and burdened them with unnecessary work. 1646,

June 6 days. Court ruling on the case brought by Ivan Kropivnitsky, about the murder of the peasant Shestilevich by the Jew David Ioselevich. 1646, April 19 days.

Statement by the priest of the Pogost Church Jacob Martinovich about the brutal beatings and robbery of his son and servants by a Jewish tenant of the estate Churchyard...

1646, January 30 days. Complaint of Luka Olkovsky against the Pinsk Jew David, who killed the peasant Shestelevich.

1646, February 23 days. Statement of beatings inflicted on a peasant a Jewish tenant, from whom the named peasant died... The carrier’s statement about inspection of the body of a peasant of the Pogost estate, killed by a Jewish tenant of this estate... 1652, August 13th day. Complaint from the priest of the Motol Church Nicholas Baranovich against Motolsky Jewish tenant Leiba Girshovich and his son-in-law about he was wounded and beaten. Next is a statement from Voznoy about his examination of the priest Motolskaya Church of Nikolai Baranovich, who was wounded and beaten by Motolsky tenant Leiba Girshovich and his son-in-law and other Jews. In 1610, July 8 days.

Gelena Tishkevicheva’s complaint against the Slonim Jews for beating and robbing her servant. In 1610, October 30 days. Yuri Sutka's complaint against the Jew Nathan Ekushevich for inflicting severe beatings on them.

In 1615, March 18th. Gintovich's complaint against the Jew Misanovich for injuring him severe beatings.

Machine Translated by Google

In 1619, May 26 days. Complaint against the Jew Borukh Shimanovich for inflicting beating the peasant Mikhail Ventskovich. In 1619, June 16th. Statement about the attack of the Jews of the Palace town on landowner Stefan Tomkevich, beating him and taking various things from him.

In 1629, May 15th. Tribunal decree overturning Oshmyansky's sentence city court, which sentenced the Jews Khaimovich and Yakubovich to death for attack on Yankovsky. In 1629,

March 4 days. According to the testimony of the carriers about the threats of the Brest Jews for the life of Nikolai Shavlovsky.

In 1645, March 8 days. Esman Novitsky's complaint against the Jew Lazar Simchich, who attempted the life of his son and took away his horse, ox and harness.

In 1646, May 25th Complaint about the looting and damage by the Pinsk Jews brutal beatings to the peasant Nikolai Fedorovich. In 1646, June 1st day. Statement by the priest of the Pogost Church Jacob Martinovich about the beating and robbery of his son and servants by a Jewish tenant estate Pogost.

In 1646, August 6 days. Statement of the servant of Innocent Gizel, abbot Dyatlovsky Monastery, Ivan Dashkevich about the infliction of the Jewish woman Dvera, her son Jacob and Pinsk Jew Daniil beat and robbed monastic peasants a lot

In 1653, October 11 days. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews Mogilevsky, Zhushman Isaakovich and Leibu Zhushmanovich to death for the beatings inflicted on Fyodor Khatskovsky and his servant and for taking money and documents from him. In 1654, January 19th day. Tribunal decree awarding several Jews of the Brest Synagogue to death for beatings inflicted on Medeksha and Vikenty Klimashevsky, and for taking money, things and documents from them.

In 1658, July 20 days. Priest Kurtsilovich's complaint against Jewish tenants Stavetsky mill for beating his brother, who demanded on the grounds Prince Yaroslav's foundational idea of issuing tithes from milling at the designated mill in favor of the priest. In 1658, July has 22 days. The carrier's statement about the examination of wounds, inflicted on the brother of Stavetsky priest Lev Kurtsilovich by Jewish tenants mills on the Stavok estate.

In 1660, January 17 days. Yelsky's complaint against the Jewish tenants of the estate Lyubashov, who attacked Yelsky's passing wife and plundered her property and beat her servant. In 1662, June 3 days. Tribunal decree awarding the Jew Mark Levkovich to be burned for various robberies and forgery of documents.

In 1663, June 30 days. Statement by priest Andrei Thornitsky about the application severe beatings to his relative and servants by the Jews Leizer Zubatsky and Itsk Khortyuk. In 1663, July 1st day. Statement by two carriers about the investigation of the case of the killing of a Christian child by the Jews of the city of Voina. In 1663,

September 20 days. Complaint of priest Andrei Thornitsky against the Jew Itsk Khortyuk for inflicting severe beatings and wounds on his relative Pukhalsky and the act inspection of the victim's wounds by carers.

In 1666, April 5 days. Complaint from the abbot of the Pinsk Brotherhood Monastery about black slander raised against him and the brethren of the monastery by the Pinsk Jews.

In 1667, November 4 days. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews Novogorodka to expulsion and payment of a fine to Fyodor Azarevich for beatings and taking money and things.

All ancient acts in Lithuania began to be written in Russian, then continued in Polish with an admixture of Russian words. For curiosity's sake, we will cite at least would be the beginning of one act from the complaint of the priest of the Motol Church Nikolai Baranovich against the Jew Motolsky tenant Leiba and his son-in-law for beating him.

"One thousand six hundred fifty-second month from the birth of the Son of God August thirteenth day. On Vrada

Kgorsk in the Gospodar Pinsk castle, in front of me is Yuri Nelyubovich Tukalsky, military and under-old Pinsky, od clearly Osventsonovo the principality of His Grace Albricht Stanislav Radziwill, the principality of Olytsa and Nesvezha, Chancellor of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, headman of Pinsk, Kgnevsky and Tucholsky established, in Bose Velebny Father Mikolai Baranovich, priest Motolsky, his message in a letter to the prose master Andrei Vasilis of the ener-la povet Pinsky, who wrote down the words before the books of the Kgrodsky Pinskys:

Ladies and Gentlemen, the Town of Pinski will officiate! I am Mikolay Baranovich, the city's svischenko Motolya founded the Orthodox Church of the Transfiguration of the Lord and Our Savior, a clearly enlightened district. d.

Chapter 13

Zionist attack on Christians in Gomel

The "Government Bulletin" printed: "According to additional information received According to information, during the cessation of the riots in the city of Gomel on September 1, local Jewish residents, armed with knives, daggers, flails and revolvers, resisted the troops who did not allow them to get together with Christians, and they shot at lower ranks from houses and from behind fences. Sergeant Major of the 6th Company Abkhazian infantry regiment was wounded in the neck with a knife by a Jew at a time when he wanted to detain the Jewish woman who shot him at point-blank range and managed to escape. Total during landfill, as well as during the suppression of unrest by troops, 4 Christians and 4 Jews were killed, 7 Christians and 8 Jews were wounded, of whom one died. Currently the number The reported number of destroyed houses and stampedes reaches 200. 68 people who took part in the riot were arrested. There were no cases of property robbery. Peace in the city is guarded by troops. According to reviews of military commanders and persons judicial department, the actions of the police in suppressing the riots seemed impeccable, and only thanks to the management of the police chief the riots limited to a relatively small area and did not spread throughout the entire city. The reason for the unrest, according to the general belief of the well-meaning part of the population, is an extremely hostile and defiant attitude towards Christians on the part of the locals Jews. A Warsaw Diary correspondent reports the following as an eyewitness: details of the pogrom in Gomel: "This is how it started. On August 29, on the occasion of the holiday, trade began late, people coming there were a decent number of peasants; about 5 o'clock day at the market, a peasant forester from the estate of Prince. Paskevich bought herrings; having bought two pieces, paid and started reviewing the rest are in a barrel of herring, wanting to buy more; the Jewish woman selling herrings said to him: "What are you looking at there, you can't buy it!", to which the forester replied: "I want it, that's all." I'll buy it," and, having bargained with the Jewish woman for herrings and paid the money, he wanted to take it barrel; the Jews present here found that the herrings were sold cheaply, and they began to take the barrel away from him, and the Jewish woman spat in his face; the forester gave it to her slap in the face, the trader's husband hit the forester, and the forester responded with a blow. Located nearby, a policeman wanted to arrest a forester and a Jew and take him to the station for drawing up a protocol, which the Jews opposed and began to beat the forester, while others Jews also took an active part in this; the Russians who saw all this interceded for the forester, and a fight began; Following this, the Jews locked their shops and, armed with what Anything: with sticks, stones, various iron materials, such as: bolts, crowbars, weights, flails, they began to beat the Russians, a formal pogrom of the Russians began Jews. The brutal crowd of Jews beat up all the Russians who came across eyes; The Jews began to beat the peasants standing in the square with carts, so that they, throwing their purchases and other things, went home, saving their lives; while one of artisans, sent by the owner to the bazaar, were stabbed in the neck with a dagger near spinal column, and when he was taken to the hospital, he died immediately. A lot of there were seriously and lightly wounded, but of these only 7 people were in the hospital at dressing and immediately went home, and even more, without going to the hospital for help, she went back home, just to save her life. It all started at 5 o'clock. evenings; half an hour later all the Jews locked their shops. When the police chief arrived to the site of a dump with policemen, the Jews rushed through the streets like a hurricane in groups of 50 or more people with stones and weapons, and also bombarded the fire brigade, where the Russians had fled. Having dispersed the crowd of Jews from the market, the assistant bailiff again returned to the market, where they again began to gather, the police chief and others police officers were stationed on the nearby streets, as they were increasingly gathered more: many of the Jewish merchants and clerks incited the crowd to massacre, that “this is not Chisinau, and they will show what it is.” Near the market again a crowd of 300 or more people gathered, armed themselves, and began to advance on the assistant bailiff and policemen, showering them with stones, as well as from the courtyards of houses; at In this case, they even fired shots from revolvers at the police officers, after which the policemen fired upwards into the air, as a result of which the crowd retreated; Finally, the soldiers were called and everything calmed down. Throwing stones from yards were arrested. Saturday, i.e. August 30, passed quietly. Jews walked with self-satisfied faces, ironic smiles and said that “this is not Chisinau, there are more of them here, they are all armed and they will show themselves."

On Sunday after 12 o'clock. day a rumor spread that on the outskirts workers gather to organize a pogrom. Jews began to petition for the appointment of patrols and the strengthening of police surveillance of their security. All measures were taken, but after 12 o'clock. day on Monday, i.e. August 31, when it was lunch time for the working workshops of Libavo-Romenskaya and Polesskikh w. etc., then the Jews somewhere on the outskirts beat the Russians; Having learned about this, the workers there but, that is, on the outskirts, several houses were destroyed; after that, the Jews, having learned about this, began to flock there, arming themselves with whatever they could, and on the way they almost destroyed the armory store - a Jewish one - demanding the issuance of weapons and ammunition, but were detained in time by the police. All the Jews were armed with something, so arrest them had to with the help of soldiers.

After that from 6 o'clock. evening, the defeat began on the outskirts, as the soldiers were concentrated in the city center. 140 Jewish houses were destroyed, not counting property. In the bazaars there are several small shops and sheds with watermelons, and Also at night there is a visiting house on the pier of the shop. Jews who were detained were found to have everyone has some kind of weapon, up to and including revolvers. They left on Tuesday whole families; On September 3, the governor arrived in Gomel.”

From this correspondence, undoubtedly true and written impartially, - especially since, as readers can see, its author kept silent about the wound inflicted a Jew in the neck of a sergeant of the Abkhaz regiment, and about shooting at soldiers, as mentioned in government report - it is clear that the Jews themselves carried out the pogrom and They beat up Christians, and then the Christians responded with a pogrom.

The army in Gomel, according to Voskhod, did not protect the Jews, but only interfered, i.e. where they did not interfere, the Jews dispersed the thugs.

Jews who wanted to defend themselves were arrested, but Christians were safe ran away. These are the events as presented by Voskhod, which refutes the government message. On September 3, the Mogilev governor arrived in Gomel. Calling some Jews to Duma, he gave them a wonderful and impressive speech, which should have been All Jews should think about it. We quote this speech from Voskhod.

“I came solely for you. I feel very sorry for the unfortunate victims - the innocent ones, since it was the innocent and the poor who suffered. Where could it have come from? such bitterness of one group of the population against another professing another religion? In Russia, religious tolerance is complete. The Jews themselves, professing the Jewish faith, know this best of all. The reasons for these latest events must be sought deeper. I have known the Mogilev province for 25 years. Then the Jews were trustworthy, not participated in any political movements, and then there was no mention of pogroms. The pogroms that took place in the 80s were of a completely different nature; they were the result Jewish oppression under which the Christian population was; but now completely other. Now the Jews have become leaders, instigators in all anti-government movements. This whole Bund and social democracy are all Jews. True, there are also persons of other religions among them, but they are like instigated, the instigators are the Jews. In the gymnasium, Jews corrupt young people, Jews gather at universities. In general, Jews are now impudent, rebellious, and have lost all respect for authority. Look, gentlemen, the lower police rank has no meaning now, it is not recognized. Jews always and everywhere express complete disrespect and intolerance towards Christians. Yes, here you go: the other day on the street on my My wife was hit by a cyclist - who? - Jew. A high school student walks towards me on the street with with a cigarette in his mouth and doesn’t bow - who is he? - again a Jew. The high school student, undressing, touched my wife with her sleeve, and when my wife asked why she didn’t apologize, she answered: “I don’t noticed." Again, who? Jewish. Here, gentlemen, are the reasons. It's your own fault everything that happened. The government is impartial and I am impartial. And while remaining impartial, I must tell you: it is your own fault, you do not educate your children properly, you do not know how to influence them. But you can discover them by pointing the government on them. You don't do this, you hide them. And here are the fruits of your Behaviors. You are promoting disobedience and fight against the government among the uncivilized population, but the Russian masses do not want this and turn against you themselves. This is what you've come to. For mercy, when was it heard that the Jews armed themselves, shot at the troops who defended you? After all, it’s not for us you, but for us I have to defend myself from you. I'm sorry, I feel sorry for the victims, the innocent victims. But, gentlemen, you yourself are to blame and you bear the moral responsibility to your fellow believers for everything that happened.”

"Vilna Herald", according to data from a reliable source, reports new and important details regarding the provocative behavior of Jews. Riots like It is known that they arose due to a minor quarrel between a Jewish merchant and a forester. ')that one is empty the occasion provoked a vivid display of Jewish unity and arrogance.

The forester was instantly surrounded by a dozen Jews and severely beaten; All Christians present at the bazaar numbered 80-90 people. came to the rescue of the forester, but the crowd of Jews grew in hundreds, and various weapons were used - daggers, stilettos, knives (kosher) and even revolvers; the dump is over extremely unfavorable for Christians; behaved especially vilely teenagers dispersed, with weapons in their hands, one of whom pierced the stiletto of an old beggar who sold feather dusters.

Among the public who persuaded both sides to stop the fight was an assistant the head of the railway workshops, engineer K., who, among others Christians were terribly beaten. Due to the fact that there were insignificant Russians in the square number, victorious for the Jews, the massacre ended relatively quickly, and The police arrived in time and stopped the fight. August 30 and 31 were holidays: on September 1, the workers learned about the misfortune with their beloved engineer K. and decided to go to the city to take revenge on the Jews.

With the 12 o'clock whistle they set off (through the Libau road), from the very first steps began the destruction of Jewish apartments; shouted that Christians should exhibit windows icons; They did not carry out any violence against Jews or robbery at all, but they destroyed various items of property, broke windows and mirrors; the defeat was achieved to commit in several outlying streets.

Immediately aware of what was happening, huge crowds of armed the Jews went to meet the workers, deciding not to be offended; from the weapons subsequently taken from the Jews turned out to be many of the latest designs of revolvers (Nagant), striking at 400 steps, and, by the way, 80 examples of flails; a lead ball is attached to an elastic spiral spring (several pounds), with the other end, using a belt loop, a flail is put on the hand and thus, during action, it strikes as if after, causing luck fatal blows; The factory of these flails was opened in Gomel.

The Jews would have prevailed here too, but on August 31, quite by accident the Abkhazian infantry regiment returned from maneuvers to the city according to the changed schedule; this was a great happiness for the inhabitants, otherwise the disaster would have been enormous sizes. The Jews showed unprecedented courage. Soldiers who appeared at the scene of the pogrom They were met with stones and shooting from revolvers; the railway workers also became furious workers, whom the 6th company of the regiment quickly isolated from the Jews who were eager to fight. In vain did the police and officers persuade both sides to stop the outrages and diverge. A bullet buzzed above the company commander's ear; from the nearest balcony gunfire was heard at home. Suddenly they say that one officer has been killed; embittered workers - both at the Jews and at the soldiers interfering with them, even more agitated Jews began to press on the company. There was no outcome: they fired a volley at the feet of the Jews and in the other direction under a crowd of Russians. The rioters began to quickly disperse, and in the narrow streets participants began to be taken into custody. A man was sent to the house from the balcony of which they were shooting. a patrol of three soldiers and a non-commissioned officer; met the latter with a revolver in his hands the lady who shot twice but missed. The non-commissioned officer hit her with the butt, but he himself fell under two blows to the neck with some kind of cutting instrument: behind the door there was a Jew on the side; the soldiers took him away... We have already briefly reported the verdict in this case, which was tried in Pinsk. We now quote it from the words of a correspondent for St. Petersburg Vedomosti. “On September 25 and 26, with the special presence of the Vilna Court Chamber here a case was considered on charges of 11 Jews under Articles 271 and 315. Lay down o punishment, i.e. o resisting authorities and obstructing the arrest of criminals. Case even before its emergence, it created a lot of noise, and its essence was transmitted to various variations. The case was heard behind closed doors: representatives of the administration and relatives of the accused were allowed into the courtroom. Defended defendants: St. Petersburg attorneys - attorney at law Pereverzev and assistant. sworn attorney Ginzberg, Moscow sworn attorney Staal, Kyiv - Shishko, Sheinman and Slutsky and Minsk assistant juror attorney Entys.

According to the indictment and the data known to us, the case is as follows: on the night of April 5 this year, the Pinsk bailiff conducted a search at four local Jews on suspicion of political unreliability and, having detained them, sent them to the police station. The next day a huge crowd of Jews surrounded the police station, where 4 people arrested by the bailiff were kept, and carried out destruction. There were two policemen in the police station at the time, and the crowd, rushing to station, released the arrested persons, and two managed to escape. Policemen set off in pursuit of them, but they had to fight the frenzied Jewish by a crowd that pelted them with stones, sticks and iron. From the side of the crowd at the address There were even shots fired from the policemen. A dump occurred, during which both Several shots followed from both sides, and Sheindla, who was in the crowd Korzh was wounded by two bullets. Meanwhile, the criminals held at the station fled. The crowd fled, and the police did not arrest anyone. Arose investigation into the destruction of a police station and the obstruction of the police from arresting criminals. 23 people were arrested in this case. Collect and It was possible to establish solid evidence only in relation to 11 persons, who were transferred to court on charges under Articles 271 and 315. Lay down about the punishment, and the rest were handed over to the gendarmerie authorities.

After a two-day trial, the court issued the following resolution: burghers Movsha Sherman, Sender Kushner and Sheindlya Korzh - deprive of all rights and advantages and imprison the first two in correctional prison departments for two years, and the last - to prison for one year. Aron Gukhman, Ovsey Pegun and Yankel Goldberg - to eight months in prison, the remaining five - David Unterman, Sheina-Khaya Voskoboinik, Itska Elyanov and Itska Vorontsevitzky were acquitted.

Chapter 14

Urgent measure of state protection

(Opinion of Mr. Znamya editor Krushevan1) 1 P.

A. Krushevan was subjected to attempted murder several times by Jewish circles, and was once even seriously wounded from around the corner.

Additional reporting on unrest in Gomel sheds light on clash between Christians and Jews and indicates the need for the most decisive measures that would eliminate the possibility of such phenomena. As in Czestochowa and Zhitomir last year, so in Chisinau this year year, the clash began over trifles, because of a quarrel between a Jew and Christian. Nevertheless, this trifling reason was enough to cause a general massacre. The bitterness of the Jews against the Russians is so great that the Jewish masses, without realizing it, without thinking about everything they risk, give give free rein to the feeling of elemental hatred that has been simmering for centuries. This bitterness in Gomel reached the point that the Jews used stones and weapons against the very police who tried to restore order and save Jews from the pogrom.

Machine Translated by Google

One Russian was mortally wounded by a Jew who stabbed him in the neck, 7 people were bruised by stones. Thus ended the riots on the evening of August 29. But already on September 1, when workers began to destroy Jewish shops to protect Jews troops were called. And what? The same Jews who so recently abandoned impudent reproaches to the Russian government for the fact that there were no troops in Chisinau, as if They were called to protect them, here they themselves fired at Russian troops. Moreover: “Armed with knives, flails and revolvers, they resisted without troops who allowed them to clash with Christians, and they shot at the soldiers from their houses and from behind fences. A sergeant major of the 3rd company of the Abkhazian regiment was wounded in the neck by a Jew with a knife. just at the time when he wanted to detain the Jewish woman who shot him point-blank.”

Thinking about all these facts, comparing them with the Kishinev pogrom, when Christians became embittered only after the Jews began to shoot at them and kill them boy, remembering that in Lodz this summer the Jews used the same knives and revolvers, just as vilely sneaking up from behind and wounding a police officer with knives, recalling the attempt by the Jewish woman Sarah Frumkina in Kyiv on the life of a lieutenant general Novitsky and the attempted murder of Pinkhus Dashevsky with the same knife, remembering the Gomel Jewish woman who shot at a Russian soldier with a revolver, it is impossible first of all, do not pay attention to the fact that all these facts, like constant participation Jews in revolutionary propaganda are convinced of one thing only: that their aggressive movement contrary to the popular and state interests of the country is not ordinary a violation of state order, but downright a war against the Russian people. The latter is especially clearly confirmed by the fact that among the Jews a general weapons. The fact of this weapon was established even in what was published this spring. government message in which Jews were forbidden to bear arms and organize “self-defense units.” As it turns out now, the Jews did not obey this demand: in Gomel almost the entire crowd of Jews who took part in fight, was armed with daggers and revolvers. Thanks to this, the Russians the troops had to deal not with an ordinary crowd, but with thousands of armed opponents, and who knows, if it had not been possible to immediately stop the fight, it would be very perhaps the Jews would have shot hundreds of Russian soldiers.

Without speaking about the very significance of this fact, one can imagine how it would lead to terrible and irreparable consequences for the Jews everywhere in Russia.

The Jews are obviously not trying to reconcile and create some kind of modus vivendi in their relations with the Russian people, but on the contrary, they continue, as can be seen from government message, “extremely hostile and defiant attitude towards Christians." That such a situation poses a danger in the state attitude that it cannot be tolerated in any case, there is nothing to spread, especially if we take into account that Czestochowa, Chisinau or Gomel are no exception, that there are hundreds of the same and larger cities within the Jewish borders settlement, where distraught Jews either tried to cause or are going to cause state disorder...

And therefore, since there is all the data confirming that these collisions are not accidental that, in addition, the Jews are systematically arming themselves, that their movement is an organized uprising both against the government and against Russia, they, while they are called Russian subjects, must be treated not only as political criminals, but also as traitors, applying the law under military time. The prosperity and tranquility of the one hundred and forty million Russian people is more valuable and above any fears that we will be accused of “inhumanity” in relation to these degenerate fanatics who insult national honor and undermine dignity Russian people.

Machine Translated by Google

No matter what they say about us, we will always be able to answer our enemies, as we answered and until now, as long as the children of the Russian people, our hero-soldiers, realize that we we love them, value their lives and protect their honor, that they are called to to give your life for the Tsar and Motherland on the battlefield not in peacetime, and not in order to fall at the hands of the Jews. This is not why the Russian people give their children to be protected Homeland, this is not why he gives most of his income to support defenders of the country, so that the Jews would shoot at them in peacetime.

Chapter 15

Jewish hostile desire

The Jewish question is not only a question of the internal life of Russia, it is a global one. the question is a question of life for all of Christianity, this is a war declared by the Jews against Christianity, its ethics, its ideals and worldview. How could this happen, how an insignificant, powerless people scattered throughout the world, or rather, not a people, but union, could grow into such a terrible and formidable force for the entire Christian world - I I won't talk yet. But this is a fact, an irrefutable fact, not subject to doubt, no matter how incredible it may seem, that for five hundred and thirty million Fifteen million Jews could pose any danger to Christians. AND this danger lies not only in the fact that these fifteen million, entering into having become all peoples, they at the same time represent one whole alien-eating plant, digging their tenacious branches into the body of each people, living outside the conditions the lives of these organisms, which grew above them, and what they contribute to Christian the world is decomposed by its denial of ethics, its skepticism, its immorality. This union, with fifteen million members, is more than more united than the Jesuit order. And at the same time, this is a union that does not distinguish between any means to achieve a goal, stopping at nothing, capable of anything - and, most importantly, a union whose members have both morality and the entire mental world degenerated, in whom many of the feelings characteristic of Christians have atrophied. Not we will waste time on the now useless clarification of the question of who is to blame for this: maybe Christians, maybe Jews, maybe both of them together, but maybe no one. This will not make it any easier for us. Let's reckon with ourselves fact. And these facts say this: for two thousand years Jews have lived among other peoples life isolated from them, with already prepared hereditarily predisposition to such isolation, which was especially pronounced during their slavery in Egypt. And during these two thousand years they were placed in such conditions when, deprived of the rights of the indigenous population, in order to live, they inevitably had to, without considering means, without thinking about morality, break laws, illegally achieve the right to life. Two thousand years!.. This means that at least forty generations were continuously under such a hammer degeneration! The father told his son: do not trust the peoples around you - they are yours. worst enemies. Be afraid of them and do not waste your time in fighting them. Break their laws, steal, cheat, deceive, because otherwise you will not be able to exist, believe only in money, since with it you can buy everything in the world, starting with your slavery gentlemen...The son repeated the same thing to his children, and so it went from generation to generation... We know what heredity is, what its fatal law is, equally immutable for both the physical and mental world of man, equally inexorable. We know that people have hereditary atrophy

Machine Translated by Google

some organs, we know, for example, that in hereditary sailors the legs become shorter and arch outward, we know that both alcoholism and mental diseases are also transmitted hereditarily, sometimes already in the second or third generations have a fatal impact. And here there are as many as forty generations, and, moreover, isolated ones, not renewed by the blood of other peoples. What bitterness towards the peoples around them, along with the denial of their laws, should have boiled over Jews, what hatred and contempt - and at the same time such incredible moral perversion and degeneration. In such a situation, in a family of other peoples, for two Thousands of years later this isolated union grew into fifteen million people.

And one terrible day, when he realized his strength, when he felt that a union consisting of fifteen million united Jews, having taken into their own hands the two main levers of life, capital and the press, maybe, without sorting out the means, turning them over Christian world, to triumph over the hated Christian peoples, their religion, ethics and ideals, to force them to believe only in their crudely utilitarian ideals of the golden calf, undermine his faith in life with his skepticism, he declared war on Christianity. And he leads her inexorably, in every way, mocking the truth, mocking everything. saints that Christians have, above the national feelings of the people, above their beliefs; he wages war not with fire and sword, but with the denial of life and decay morality; he demoralizes with gold and introduces moral decay with the seal, mocking the truth, shaking faith in it. Lately this terrible union went even further; he no longer stops before violence, he tries to produce revolution and unrest with revolutionary propaganda both here and in Europe, he strives to weaken peoples through internal upheavals and discord...

This is the point from which “Znamya” looks at the Jewish question, this is what Judaism is, against which it is trying to fight. This is not a protest against the Jewish nation, it is a protest against that lie, that mockery of the truth and ideals of Christianity, against the decay and destruction with which Judaism threatens everything Christian the world, and most of all - Russia. There seems to be no need to explain why Russia is the most important country: while for 400 million Christians in other countries there are eight million Jews, among the one hundred and forty million population of Russia - seven million Jews.

Chapter 16

The Jewish provocation continues

The resolution was published in the Bessarabskie Provincial Gazette Bessarabian governor, which involuntarily makes you think. Defiant behavior of Jews in relation to representatives of the Russian army, and in addition - that Chisinau itself, where life not long ago taught the Jews such a cruel lesson, points once again to the need to immediately take the most destructive measures against them, primarily in order to avoid new pogroms. Provocative The behavior of the Jews - we have said this more than once - always serves as a dangerous spark that causes explosions. The unpleasant situation in which Russian officers found themselves Kishinev, when they were surrounded by a Jewish crowd, does not amount to anything at all exceptional in the relations of Jews to the Russian army in general. Who doubts this, one might ask the military men living in dozens of cities within the Jewish borders settlement - and they will all confirm that in other cases the impudence of the Jews becomes It’s just that the impatient military people don’t go out for a walk on Saturdays in the city gardens and on the boulevards, as well as the entire Christian public, since on this day they are swarming with Jews behaving in a downright impossible manner. This is exactly what seven or eight years ago caused by the late Vilna Governor-General Orzhevsky, a man, we must give him justice, energetic, persistent, able to honestly defend the dignity of Russia and force all parasites to respect it - a number of measures that are very quickly calmed down the Jews and stopped all sorts of abominations that they allowed themselves in relation to the Christian public: during the festivities, ladies' dresses were poured sulfuric acid or spat on, deliberately in the presence of an intelligent public they said all sorts of obscene things, pushed the Russians, especially the military ones...

In cities, especially where the Jewish population predominates, the direct calculation of the Jews is to make life unbearable for the Russian population. And if they are not decisively calmed down, they will go even further. It is necessary to at least somewhat protect the Russian population - and it also seems to have at least a small right to this.

Decree of the Bessarabian governor

September 1903 23 days. Having examined the report of the Chisinau police chief dated September 23 with the protocol of the investigation carried out by the bailiff of the 1st precinct of the city of Chisinau about the riots that took place on the evening of September 20 along Aleksandrovskaya Street, and. found the Bessarabian governor: the testimony of two officers of the Chisinau troops garrison, according to my personal information, it was established that on September 20 at 9 pm part the public walking in large numbers along Aleksandrovskaya Street gathered at insignificant reason near these officers, preventing their free passage, and on the offer to give them way was answered with shouts and whistles, which attracted unauthorized persons, which resulted in the accumulation of a crowd of several hundred on the street Human. According to the same officers, as well as other witnesses, the testimony which are included in the police report, it was found that the main violators order in the present gathering, those arrested by the police appeared: merchant sons Pinkhos Nukhimov Perper, Faylik Nukhimov Perper and the townspeople: Mordko Borukhov Etlis, El Leizerov Onitskansky, El Moishev-Munashev Vaksman and Shmul Borukhov Fak, and the first three behaved especially defiantly, inciting the crowd with shouts and resisting the police officers who immediately appeared for restoring order. Recognizing, in view of the above, the named 6 persons guilty of violating mandatory regulations issued on May 8 of this year on the basis of Articles 15 and 16. provisions on measures to protect state order and public tranquility (Appendix 1 to Art. I of the Constitution on the Pred. and Pres. Preet, vol. XVI St. Order of 1890) and guided by Art. 15 of the above provision, decided: to arrest when Chisinau city police department of the merchant sons of Pinchos Nuhimov Perpera, Failik Nuhimov Perpera and Chisinau tradesman Mordko Borukhova Et-lisa for two months, and the townspeople: El Leizerova Onitskansky, El Moishev-Munashev Vaksman and Shmul Borukhova Fak for one month each.

In all Judaizing cities, Jewish Zionists behave boldly against government authorities. From the day the Zionists were allowed to hold their congresses, they began to behave insolently towards Christians. Herzl, the new Jewish Messiah stirred up Judaism throughout Europe, which openly began a war against Christian. In the city of Suwalki there was a case where Jews attacked a Cossack soldier on Malomeshchanskaya Street. An officer of a rifle regiment was walking and saw that a crowd of Jews had dragged soldier into the yard of a Jew. The officer entered the yard and wanted to free the soldier from beatings, he himself found himself in a crowd of Jews who locked the gate from the street in order to beat the officer too; it happened that the officer had a revolver in his pocket, he became take aim - the Jews scattered in all directions, and thus freed the soldier and he went out into the street unharmed.

Machine Translated by Google

It is curious that the very newspapers that hurled thunder and lightning about events in Chisinau, pass over in silence the attack of a Jew on the editor-publisher "Znamya" or, as the "St. Petersburg Vedomosti" does today, mentioning about this attack in passing and as if reluctantly, they rush to draw a “parallel between the inquisitorial inspiration of Torquemada and the journalistic malice of Krushevan.” It’s amazing that we came up with such a parallel at the right time! This attitude of Jewish and Jewish newspapers to the outrageous violence of a Jew against a Russian journalist gives the real price of their denunciations of the violence of the Chisinau crowd. It would seem that if deserve to expose the violence of the dark Kishinev crowd, then they deserve it the violence of the intelligent Pinkhus Srulev Dashevsky, for violence always, under all circumstances, in the name of whatever and wherever - in Chisinau, Belgrade or St. Petersburg - it is committed, remains violence, i.e. a gross violation of the moral and legal order. Finally, what, one wonders, can the Jews gain from the self-proclaimed revenge for them Dashevsky? The immediate consequence of this vengeance was so far statements of sympathy for his victim.

The misfortune of Russian Jews has so far consisted mainly in their intolerance and isolation. Therefore, for example, F. M. Dostoevsky in his letter dated February 28, 1878 to N. S. Gritsenko wrote that “a Jew and his kahal are the same as a conspiracy against the Russians! Dostoevsky wrote to Gritsenko about Russian literature of that time, and What he wrote 25 years ago, alas, is quite applicable to the present time. "Here you are you complain about the Jews in the Chernigov province,” wrote Dostoevsky, “but here in our literature, many publications, newspapers and magazines are already published with Jewish money Jews (of whom more and more are arriving in literature) and only editors hired by Jews sign a newspaper or magazine with Russian names - that’s all in them Russian. I think that this is just the beginning, but that the Jews will take over much more a larger range of actions in literature; and even before life, before current phenomena I’m not touching on reality: the Jew is spreading with terrifying speed. But The Jew and his kahal are the same as a conspiracy against the Russians!”

It seems to me that it is in the interests of the Jews themselves to destroy in their own way actions the very concept of that conspiracy. For this first of all and whoever they are were listed as Talmudists or Zionists, stockbrokers and bankers or proletarians and radicals, they should try not to separate themselves, but to limiting merging with the Russian people. If such a merger took place, and early or it must happen later, pogroms like the Kishinev one, on the one hand, and the knife massacre of a Jew against the editor of a Russian newspaper, on the other hand, would always have happened impossible. The case of Pinkhus Dashevsky was dealt with behind closed doors. But that's it However, some details leaked into the press, not of the trial itself, but of the scene that accompanied the announcement of the verdict. Attorney Mironov defended with tears in his eyes and voice. Hearing the guilty verdict, he felt felt so bad that he asked for water, and after the verdict was pronounced, the defense attorney and his convicted client hugged. “Svet” notes a characteristic feature in the report "News" about this case. “News” in its report calls the defendant “Pin-hus (aka Peter) Izrailev Dashevsky.” Why "Peter"? Perhaps this is what is stated in the indictment act, if Dashevsky called himself “Peter”, but “Novosti”, a purely Jewish newspaper, why did it need this detail. "Pinchos" is never equivalent to "Peter". We understand that the Frenchman “Pierre” can be called “Peter” in Russian, the Jews “Moisha” is called “Moses” in Russian, “Itska” - “Isaac”, “Shelmu” - “Solomon”, “Shaulya” - “Saul”, “Srulya” - “Israel”, “Shmulya” - “Samuel”, but we don’t understand at all why the Jew “Wolf” comes out in Russian as “Vladimir”,

Machine Translated by Google

“Berko” - “Boris”, “Kalman” - “Konstantin” and “Pinkhos” - “Peter”. First translations are true. There is a difference in the Jewish and our pronunciation of biblical names, the latter the transfers are explained by the desire of Jews to disguise their nationality. If simply wanted to translate the biblical name “Pinkhos” into our pronunciation, then I should have said “Phineas” and not “Peter”. So much for Zionism! Mr. Notovich's organ sympathizes with the Zionists in everything, and in For some reason he prefers Russification when it comes to Jewish names.

In Kiev, Zionist midwife Frumkina shot her boss with a revolver Kyiv Gendarmerie Directorate of General Novitsky; fortunately God saved general from the evil enemy's hand, and Frumkina was sentenced to hard labor.

SECTION 3. POLITICAL

TREATISE I ON JEWISH FREEMASONRY AND THE ZIONISTS

Chapter 1 Jewish Mysteries

At the end of the 19th century. Jewish Freemasonry has a strong center in Hungary. ABOUT annual meeting of members of the Masonic lodge was notified in a telegram “Warsaw Diary” 1899 March 28 the following:

"Budapest. - Recently the annual meeting of members of the main Hungarian Freemasonic lodge. The report revealed that last year in Hungary there were 51 lodges with 3029 members under the auspices of the main lodge. The property of the lodges was worth 150,000 guilders, the main lodge - 203,000 guilders, and the charitable fund - 434,000 guilders. Great master The lodge has elected state secretary Ioannovich for the coming three years.”

In Germany, Jews and their allies worked to unite the peoples into one empire so that later it would be easier to change this form of government and form a common republic. In political and historical notes (1872, Munich) the complaints of a Berlin freemason about Abban's brochure were published Stolz about Freemasonry, read, as they say, by the late King William. The author, although a Protestant, points to the power that the Jews have already managed to achieve through Freemasonry and which is the greatest danger to governments and religion. Here are the following words from his book: “In Germany there is a secret society, apparently Masonic, but in essence Zionists, subordinate to unknown leaders; the members of this society are mostly Jews; rituals and their degrees, although borrowed from the symbols and rituals of Christianity, but serve only as a laughing stock or a veil hiding the intentions and intrigues of these members."

Here we are no longer talking about ridiculous slander, which some fools mistake for the truth. No, the guilty are no longer hiding: they are showing themselves, calling themselves ours. brothers, boast of the patronage of the German sovereigns and alliance with them. Recently Even Jews were excluded from some lodges, but now they are accepted everywhere.

In Berlin, with the death of the pious King Frederick William IV, they managed to get into all the boxes from the back. Since then all lodges have been open to them, and now they consist exclusively of Jews, and except for them no one goes there accepted. In London, where, as is known, the main center of revolutions is located, under Palmerston's presidency there are two Jewish lodges, the threshold of which is not not a single Christian crossed. Here is the beginning of all revolutionary elements hiding under the guise of Christian lodges.

In Italy, members of the Supreme Venta were known, and then under fictitious names names dedicated to a few to convey their orders. One of them, comrade the famous Nubius, called the little Tiger (Piccolo Tigro), was cruel and a dangerous devotee of Freemasonry; in the instructions given by the main figure Piedmontese Venta, we find the following words: “First of all, it is necessary to separate a person from his family, make him forget her... He I like other conversations in restaurants, time spent idly in theaters. Attract him, draw him in, give him importance in his own eyes; gradually teach him to find his daily activities boring and intolerable, and in this way and in a way, showing how difficult it is to carry out any task, inspire him desire for another life. Man is born rebellious. Kindle that penchant for rebellion, but do not let it develop into a fire. This is preparation for the great work that awaits you. When disgust for family and religion creeps into the heart, then say a few words that would inspire him with a desire to join the nearest I'm lying down. The vainglorious joy of joining a Masonic lodge is a trait so common and well-known among city dwellers that it constantly surprises me before human stupidity! It amazes me how humanity hasn't bowed down yet even before the elders, asking them to be given the honor of being chosen as workers in the restoration of Solomon's temple." Chapter 2 London and American B'nai B'rith Lodge Another lodge, similar to the one we indicated in London, i.e., consisting exclusively from the Jews and uniting in itself the threads of all events conceived in Christian lodges, exists in Rome, where it is called the supreme tribunal of revolutions! The management of all other lodges is concentrated here, and this management is so It is mysterious that most of the Christian adherents of the revolution actually turn out to be blind puppets secretly set in motion by the Jews.

At first, Jews entered Masonic lodges under anonymous names, and It was quite difficult for them to act in favor of their interests. In France, access to Masonic lodges opened only at a later time. One of the French Freemasons told what he himself saw while attending a Masonic congress taking place in Berlin around 1870, how some of the Venerables moved from one place to another, to avoid proximity to Jews. But at the end of the 19th century, Jews reached the point where they were transplanted from Christians with contempt; besides, there are not many such lodges where Christians are involved, for the most part the Jews managed to conquer them, so there is no one Christian. Therefore, they have a free field of action - politically respect.

Masonic lodge "B'nai B'rith" - "Sons of the Union" - arose in America, and then spreading everywhere. This order consists entirely of Jews and strives for the same the same political goal as the Alliance Israelite, i.e. the main thing is to protect and maintaining Jewish interests. From America the B'nai B'rith order penetrated into Europe and to the east and founded new lodges in Germany, Austria, Romania and Syria. Regarding the Masonic spirit in all Masonic lodges, it can be said affirmatively that they are guided by the instillation of the Jewish spirit. In a word, all these Jewish lodges turned into "Kagals", but the Kagals are very dangerous for Christian governments, and all these lodges obey strictly the secret spirit Alliance Israelite. This chief kagal has cast his nets not only over the whole of Europe, but also over the whole the world and acts with complete calculation according to the intended principle. In Leipzig, where On the occasion of the fair, Jewish and Christian merchants from all over Europe gather in the Jewish secret lodge has permanent meetings every time, and not a single one the Christian was never present in them.

Machine Translated by Google

Jewish lodges in Hamburg and Frankfurt have the right to enter alone. sent. The name of the last of them - “Absalon of the three nettles” - indicates her burning political character. The Almighty alone can soften the test that prepares Freemasonry for humanity, moving people to revolution in favor of Judaism. A revolutionary movement inspired and supported by Israel, which this enterprising people is obliged to win their civil rights, constantly has in the Jews the most faithful agents, brave and dexterous propagandists. Become in Christian country equal to a Christian, although already a lot for a Jew, however does not satisfy the insatiable ambition of the amazing attacker; he knows that he owes his incredible success to secret societies, and will not rest on the first success.

These are the words of the speaker before they repeated the declaration with such impudence cathedral 1869:

“The Jew would be very ungrateful if he did not acknowledge all that he owes an internal movement that three centuries ago, i.e., since the time of Luther, “lost”, and 80 years ago, i.e., during the proclamation of the theories of 1789, “overthrew” the ancient organization of society. Severe persecution no longer forces us huddle together; we can move alone without fear of attacks against our personality and our faith. We studied the direction of modern society, thought seriously about consequences that they could have for our religion, which is inextricably linked with the interests of our nationality, and not only did they not find anything that would prove the need to relax social bonds, but, on the contrary, they were convinced of the need to support and strengthen them[1].

However, one of the surest means of strengthening is reproduction and a connection of parallel auxiliary communities grafted onto European ones societies, just as parallel logs are placed and strengthened to support the main beam.

The conqueror will not stop in view of the imminent triumph and will not immediately refuse his advantages and from the means he uses successfully. It is therefore clear that Jews are now, more than ever before, trying to strengthen the bond that binds together members of their community in all corners of the globe; they all tighten the knots of the secret societies working for their benefit more and more tightly, and they are treated like obedient children. America was also not forgotten by the Jews, as can be seen from the following words of one of favorite organs of Jews:

“Many times it was said about the Israeli order “B’nai B’rith”, i.e. “Sons of Union", established in the United States. In view of the constantly increasing importance of this order and at the same time its little-known, we think it is necessary to consider according to American sources the last message of the Grand Master of the Order, Mr. Peixolto...

“The B’nai B’rith Order sent to Jews who suffered from cholera in the East, about 5000 dollars. The Grandmaster, whenever possible, often visited his subordinate lodges. He traveled to eleven significant cities. At the same time, he opened conferences and made speeches about the responsibilities of members and the need to contribute to achieving the goals pursued by the order, namely: mental or moral prosperity of the Israeli family and perfect harmony between its members. This the task is all the more important since the Jewish population of America was made up of the most heterogeneous elements that gave rise to disagreement and antipathy in him, which needs to be smoothed out."

---

[1] “Israel: the world”, III, p. 129.

Chapter 3

Secret goals of Masonic lodges

So, Masonic lodges, cursed by the Christian Church, are made for Judaism are necessary additions to the synagogue and operate even in the most free republics, pursuing common goals under cover of secrecy.

Jews, whose courage, cunning and resourcefulness have become proverbial, have over the natives of Christian states have many and important advantages, which are used to increase their already significant influence on humanity. Firstly, they constantly and zealously patronize each other; secondly, they diverse, open societies help; thirdly, secret societies, where they occupy the main place and enjoy all-consuming power. So they're in at the same time are citizens of both their nation and the people who adopted them, and this way they find protection on both sides, while Christians use protection only of their laws. One scientist and educated writer of Jewish origin quite rightly noted, apparently not understanding the reasons for the facts he cited: “Jews occupy,” he says, “in proportion to others, more positions than Catholics and Protestants. Disastrous their influence is felt in everything related to the well-being of the people. No public loan, which they would not take possession of; there is no disaster that would not prepared and not used. Jews have no right to complain about the burden of labor, because all the advantages and all the benefits fall to their share.” In a word: strong by the protection of laws, strong among nations the natural organization of their community, the strong help of secret societies and connections acquired as needed, Jews, as Kluber notes, form among Christian states its own separate state. From this it is clear that if Christian society wants to remain worthy of its name and preserve its rights, then antagonism between the state and Judaism is inevitable.

In “New Time” - in an editorial - it was placed: “Always The Parisian "Agency Havas", obeying the government's suggestions, reports that the annual "convention" of the Freemasons spoke only in favor of the course of action Brison in the Dreyfus affair and pledged to support the ministry...” Over forty-odd years of our magazine career, we are encountering such news from an official telegraph agency about the “Masonic resolution” for the first time. According to the charter of the Order of the Free masons”, nothing that happens at the meetings of this order is subject to publicity, and it is unlikely that the “Gavas Agency” received what it reported to them from the “dignitaries” of the convention. such hasty news. The point was obviously to inform the public that the French Freemasons, who were more than half Jewish, had enormous influence on the affairs of the country, they want a revision of the Dreyfus process and are ready lend your support to Brison's ministry. Masonic lodges in England and Germany and France, are busy with Jews everywhere and are trying to jointly advance European policy. In relation to Freemasonry, here is a short excerpt from the French magazine "Revue du monde catholique" under the title "Jews in Freemasonry".

“There is no doubt that it was Jewish sectarians, imbued with the Jewish spirit, who laid the foundation for Freemasonry, a vile organization whose goal is to avert the world from Christianity and replace the cult of good with the cult of evil. The movement of which is like this is beginning to become clear only recently - in the most powerful way contributed to the success of the ideas of the great revolution: freedom, equality and fraternity. At

Machine Translated by Google

Napoleonic Jews rewarded themselves for the loss of political influence by gave Freemasonry an increasingly diabolical character."

“In the era of restoration, Jews, well aware that social upheavals for them can only be useful, increasing their power, took on a revolutionary image actions that they abandoned during the Napoleonic era, along with Freemasons they provided strong assistance to the revolution of 1830 and then the revolution 1848; then in 1860, a golden age began for the Jews of France: the "Alliance Israelite Universelle". Most of its members were also members Masonic lodges, and the alliance became a special kind of Freemasonic Senate. Currently Since 1870, Jews have ruled everything in France. Everything is in their hands Masonic organization with over 500,000 members worldwide and receiving an annual income of more than 2 million francs; here it is, the Dreyfusard syndicate. They took control of parliament and the press, passed a law on secular training, they restored divorce, they emancipated Algerian Jews, they persecute clergymen, they do it out of hatred for Christianity to Alsace-Lorraine remained with Germany and at the present time, they and the Freemasons openly enter into relations with our worst enemies, trample the French banner in the mud and involve the country in a civil and international war with the only criminal The goal is to snatch a pathetic traitor from the hands of justice just because he is a Jew. When will the Christians who make up the majority finally unite in turn? in order to eradicate the damned sect, which manages to impose its imprint, plunders the property of nations and disgraces their honor?

Not only for France, Jewish-Masonic capital poured into defense Dreyfus, no less money went from the same Masonic coffers to the devil’s cause socialists in the crime of regicide in St. Petersburg in 1881.

As a result of what has been said, Jewish brotherhoods seem dangerous to us a phenomenon for those cities and areas of the empire where the Jewish population was especially much. Even St. Petersburg, with all the diversity of its inhabitants nationalities, must be extremely careful not to be exposed the common fate of our modern cities.

It would be unnecessary to prove that Judaism in Russia has an extremely harmful effect on the mass of the Russian population, especially in areas of permanent Jewish settlement. As for the Western European states, in this respect they are not for us can serve as an example. Between us and the Western European peoples there is a considerable the difference in the degree of development and national stability, and most importantly - in quantitative attitude of the Jewish population to Christianity.

Despite this, Jews enjoy much greater privileges in Russia than in the rest of Europe. Our Jews form a corporation, very strong and its unanimity and economic prosperity.

Among the privileges that Jews enjoy in Russia is the most complete freedom of religion and public education, so in this regard The Jews of our western provinces are in incomparably happier conditions than the local Catholics and even the Orthodox. Statistics indicate that Christians in Western Russian provinces, Orthodox and Catholics, account for about 1000 parishioners per church, and in many places the church in the parish reaches up to 10,000 parishioners. Meanwhile, the Jews, who are considered to number over 6 million souls in the empire, have, according to the official count, 816 synagogues and up to 5,500 houses of worship, i.e., one prayer building for 468 souls and one clergyman for 280 people. IN in particular, in the Kovno province, according to statistical data for 1863, there are 411 souls per house of worship or synagogue. Christian churches may be located more or less distant from the mass of villages parishioners who are often unable to enjoy worship services; the Jews, being mainly residents of cities and towns, have all the ways to attend the synagogue or house of worship weekly or even more often. Among the Jews, the prayer house constitutes a school in the full sense of the word, and at the same time, their national strength, to unfortunately, manifested in the form of religious fanaticism, the most irreconcilable to everything that bears the stamp of Christianity. Thanks to the abundance of synagogues, houses of worship or schools, the Talmud permeates the entire system, both family and social life of the Jew, and Jewry, despite all the efforts of the government to smooth it out fanatical Old Testament aspirations still live their full life and often attacks even the dominant religion in the empire.

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 4

Haman, the Persian patriot who died due to the intrigue of the Jews

Haman, the minister of King Artaxerxes, went to the king and addressed him with complaint, pointing out to him the spread of a certain people who keep to themselves and do not communicate with other residents country, has a different worship of God from others and uses different laws. “This is a tribe,” said Haman, “both in their views and in their way of life hostile to your people, and to all people. If you want to help your true benefit to his subjects, then order to destroy this tribe from the roots, so that no trace of him remained, either as slaves or prisoners of war.” And in order to the king did not lose the money he received from the Jews in the form of taxes, Haman promised to pay at his request, forty thousand talents of silver from his own funds. This money, Haman added, he is willing to pay, just to rid the kingdom of these scoundrels.

In response to this proposal from Haman, the king refused his money and provided him with to deal with the Jews at his personal discretion. Then Haman, having achieved his goal, immediately sent out an order, supposedly on behalf of the king, to all the peoples of the kingdom with the following content: “The great king Artaxerxes, who rules the lands from the borders of India to the borders Ethiopia, commands the satraps of his one hundred and twenty-seven satrapies as follows: Having become ruler of many nations and taking possession of the land according to my desire, and I by no means abused his power to embarrass or offend my subjects, but always expressed himself as a gentle and accessible sovereign, taking care that peace and law reigned among my subjects, I always tried to find ways to to secure forever the specified benefits for these subjects. But since Haman goodwill and justice occupy the first place in my heart and who, thanks to his loyalty to me and constant goodwill towards me, is the second person in the country after me, in his thoughtfulness pointed out to me that Everywhere in the country, among the rest of the population, lives a malicious and submissive It is only their own laws that the people who do not obey the kings do not accept our customs, hates autocracy and is generally extremely hostile to to all our undertakings, then I hereby command all these indicated to me by the second father by my Haman, kill the people with their wives and children without any mercy, so that no one, driven by compassion, dares to disobey this written decree of mine. I I wish that the said extermination (of the Jews) would take place on the fourteenth day the twelfth month of the current year and that we, having subjected everywhere on one day complete extermination of our enemies, we could henceforth live peacefully and calmly.”

When this decree arrived in all the cities of the country, everyone (the Persians) was very happy the upcoming execution of the Jews. Meanwhile, the king and Haman indulged in merry drinking bouts, and the city population was in extreme excitement.

With what cunning the Jews were able to turn everything around! King Artaxerxes had a wife - a secret Jew, Esther. Esther invited King Artaxerxes and Haman to a feast, and when Everyone was pretty tipsy, Esther, pretending to be sick, retired to her room. Aman stopped by as a courtesy to inquire about her health. Then Esther, clasping Haman's neck with her hands, screamed; King Artaxerxes entered her cry, and Esther declared that the scoundrel Haman wanted to encroach on her honor. Enraged, Artaxerxes ordered Haman to be hanged. This news is lightning fast spread throughout all Jewish communities that were prepared for the pogrom Persians; the Jews rushed at the Persians, and in one night they killed 70,000. Only those were saved Persians from death, who feignedly accepted the Jewish faith. All this with the great vanity is described in the Talmuds. Jews with a sense of patriotism for so many centuries they solemnly celebrate their barbaric feat and play "Purim Shpil". And in memory drinking bouts in Esther, all Jews on the Feast of Haman must be drunk to the point of they would not be able to count the fingers of their hand.

TREATATE II ON THE ZIONISTS

Chapter 1 Congress of Jewish Zionists in Minsk

Opening of the Zionist Congress in Minsk

"Novosti" is telegraphed from Minsk on August 22, 1901: "Today The grand opening of the Zionist Congress took place with a speech by the authorized Minsk district of Dr. Brook. The convention is extremely crowded. There are about 500 delegates. Prominent figures of Zionism were greeted with applause." The editors of the Polskaya

Gazeta sent one of their own to the Zionist congress in Minsk. correspondent Mr. Orenstein, who is hated by Warsaw Jews because Orenstein translates from Jewish newspapers some information that Jews do not want Christians to know. On August 22, Polskaya Gazeta received from his correspondent received telegraphic news that upon his arrival in Minsk he was attacked a crowd of Jews knocked him down and began beating him, so that the police had difficulty pulling him out Mr. Orenstein from the hands of the crowd and escort him to the hotel. Mr. Orenstein hurried leave for Warsaw, fearing a secondary attack. Telegram from the Polskaya Gazeta: "Minsk September 4 (new style).

Yesterday, upon receiving an entrance ticket to the Zionist Congress, I was attacked by a crowd, consisting of several hundred Jews. She threw me to the ground and started beating her. All around shouts of insult to me were heard. The chairman of the congress will not soon calmed the crowd. Under police protection I went to the hotel. Afraid of the secondary attacks, I return to Warsaw. Orenstein."

Regarding this telegram, the Polish Newspaper reports: "We received such a dispatch this morning. What does it mean? Our readers already know that we sent our special correspondent and instructed him to give us a report on the first congress in the empire Zionists.

The choice fell on Mr. E. Orenstein as a publicist who knew the Hebrew language. Mr. Orenstein has no friends among Jews. Why? We don't know... Maybe because it informs readers in a negative tone about the Zionist movements. Orenstein before leaving for Minsk he told us that he was afraid about “reception” from the outside Zionists, but we dissuaded him of this. It happened differently.

An unheard of fact happened. Correspondent, even on the very opening day congress, the participants beat and insulted him.

Further settlements with this gang do not depend on us...” And just think that such intolerance, such fanaticism and conservatism, such hatred of the freedom of other people’s opinions and the printed word are shown by those same Jews who accuse Russians of intolerance and misanthropy, who became the head of Russian pseudo-liberalism and, captivating our Russian noble and trusting youth, they push them into the fire, promising to save Russia, calling about freedom, equality and brotherhood... The Warsaw Diary reports that at the second meeting of Zionists, in which over 500 people took part, was to be report on the last Zionist congress in Vienna (15 and 16 September), at which it was decided open a Jewish university in Palestine. Those gathered greeted this news with enthusiastic shouts: “Haidot!” We don't know what that means, but it must be something approving. And besides Jews will anyone be admitted to the Palestine University if there is one will it really be born? The order of the Vilna Governor-General was published in Vilna newspapers in the case of the former February 16 this year. riots in the Bialystok theater "Harmony". By consideration of the inquiry submitted by the Grodno governor about the persons responsible in violation of a mandatory decree issued on January 19, 1902 for the mountains. Bialystok, Vilna Governor-General, on the basis of the provisions on strengthened protection and guided by the degree of guilt of each of those involved in responsibility of persons, proposed to the governor to subject the townspeople: Mendel Gershtein, Basha Zak, Rokhlya Alpern and Sora Dublyanskaya to arrest for three months each. Philistines:

Abram Gakhman, Tovel Krugman, Bendet Salman, Mendel Odels, Zelman Taman, Khaya Kozelchik, Hana Lipskaya, Movsha Rotovetsky, Lipa Chernes, Vigdor Kirzhner, Israel Pechman, Shepshel Aizenshtat, Morthe-l Mendelevich, Kalman Ferdman, Borukh Kagan, Mordku-Yankel Vinnyk, Meer Erukhomovich, Ruvin Erukhomovich, David Kozak, Isaac Kamenetsky and Leibu Mogilevsky was arrested for two months each.

Bourgeois Rokhlya Ab, son of the merchant Hirsh Wolfson, bourgeois: Feivel Trashansky, Mordka Kamyansky, Chaim Raynes and Meer Rabinovich to arrest for one month each.

Chapter 2

Zionists in the city of Lubny

The Jews noisily announce not only the world Zionist “congresses”, but also for example, in Basel and London, but also about any small congress. In such cases the Jewish press blows the trumpets of Jericho, newspaper reports about conventions Zionists are distinguished by an elevated, pathetic tone.

Here, for example, is a message about the Zionist congress in Lubny. This famous convention took place in the premises of a local club (?!) and lasted from January 7 to 10, 1902, daily from 11 am until late at night. The local Jewish correspondent, of course, did his best to so that the message about the Lubny Zionist Congress would be known to the whole world. In Poltavsky Vestnik" one of the zealous Zionists published a description of the congress:

Machine Translated by Google

“Since January 7, meetings of the sub-district were opened in the premises of the local club Congress of Zionists of Poltava circles. 34 delegates from counties arrived at the congress, including including two women. An authorized representative was elected as the Chairman of the Congress Elisavetgrad district engineer-technologist V. U. Temkin, his comrades - Lubensky Rabbi, Dr. A. Varshavsky and Lev Rubinov from Poltava. The minutes were kept by three secretaries. The large club hall could barely accommodate the mass of the public, most which, of course, were Zionists..."

“The supreme board (?!) of the union, as can be seen from the report, is the European the Zionist Congress, which meets every two years. Permanent The collegial body of the congress is a small committee, to which the district commissioners are subordinate. Territory of permanent Jewish settlement in Russia is divided into 12 regions: each of them has a special commissioner representative..." The funds of the union are represented by the national fund and the shekel tax. The National Fund is formed from donations sent to the London Jewish colonial bank, and the name of everyone who contributed at least 10l. erased (95 rubles), entered into the golden book (?!).”

This is the lofty style in which the Zionist Lubny describes this significant event. event. One cannot help but smile when reading about 34 delegates and two women, three secretaries, about the supreme government, authorized representatives, etc. Yurkiy a correspondent of a Poltava newspaper writes that at this congress it was decided “to impute to everyone circle is obliged to take care of the self-development and self-education of its members in national spirit and find ways to promote the idea of Zionism, for which circles take care of the improvement and distribution of schools, publish legal works for the people, textbooks and anthologies for school and home teaching, open printing houses on a joint-stock basis...

The Jewish correspondent does not leave without encouragement the speakers who spoke congress. The chairman's speech, for example, represented "a particularly high example eloquence”, interrupted from time to time by thunderous applause “at every word speaker praising the children of Israel."

A representative of the “black office” existing in Kovno visited Minsk for fight against Zionism - a certain Lifshits. The latter was delivered in local synagogues several speeches against Zionism, in which he called Zionism a harmful trend that undermines the Jewish faith, and called Zionists heretics. Based on the provisions The speaker of the Talmud argued that such a movement was prohibited by the theses of faith and is extremely reprehensible. However, the opponent of Zionism did not find himself in Condolences to Minsk. This is explained by the fact that almost the entire Jewish population of the city passionate about this idea. At the conclusion of his speeches, Mr. Lifshits said that at present Currently, negotiations are underway on organizing a “black cabinet” in Minsk. This a curious institution is supported by a special society "Mekhziki Gadas", founded by several Odessa capitalists with the aim of fighting against Zionism. In the service of this society and its branch “black offices” there is a whole series of preachers traveling around the cities and counties of the Pale of Settlement for the sole purpose of fighting against Zionism. Until now these speakers had their center of Kovno, but now they have apparently decided to move it to Minsk.

Chapter

3 Opinion of the noble Zionist Chernikhov

The Odessa scientist and well-intentioned Jew Chernikhov writes the following: “First of all, if the assimilation of Christian science by Jews, if their stay in

Machine Translated by Google

Russian gymnasiums and universities only leads to the fact that, having lost all Jewish virtues, they protect only Jewish predation and turn into “rotten and decomposition", then why do Jews grumble about the restriction of their admission to Russian secondary and higher schools with a certain percentage? They should desire perfect closing these schools for them. Then they will be protected from corruption." And here's how Jews are grateful to us for admission to gymnasiums and universities, which are maintained with the sweat money of the Russian peasant! “Take care of yourself, they are assimilated,” they say even about those who have been to at least 2 classes of the gymnasium. Then they show us devout Jewry. There are “saints” among him, writes the Zionist, but their holiness only benefits the Jews themselves, and their study of the Talmud is essentially the study of trifles, not for anyone necessary, except for the Jews. So, there is no benefit to the people among whom the Jews live, their saints and scholars do not bring. Let every Jew only be a predator in the morning, and in the evening an idealist and spends the seventh day in heaven.” From this idealism and being in heaven Gentiles are neither warm nor cold. They obviously deal only with a predator. Moreover, it turns out that the mass of Jewry consists of poor predators, but still predators. Every morning the beggar predator of mass Jewry obtains only as much as he needs for daily food, and sometimes less, but still he took this food not as a useful worker, but as a predator - his victory caused irritation, and his methods are disgusting. What of this, that “on Saturday with a Jew is there a complete metamorphosis? He forgets everything earthly and lives in God in a state ecstasy. The sky seems great to him, the earth is insignificant, this plain with its stupidity, its anger and little souls crawling on it. But on this “plain” he left fruits of its predation. He took a penny, it’s true, but it was someone else’s; he took it from an equally poor man, a Russian peasant. And he doesn’t feel gratitude. From the heights of the Sabbath table scolds this poor man, whom he has somehow bullied - “a crawling little soul.” Bialystok, which until now was famous for the bad cloth of Jewish products, is about to become famous for a completely new and also Jewish institution - the Zionist institute. There is not much information about this original educational institution yet. information, but from it one can judge what kind of fruit was born in Russian Jewry and from must necessarily become the subject of attention of the Russian press. If you believe the Jewish newspapers, which, however, must be done with considerable caution, the Zionists even have already implemented their project for setting up a special institute for preparing "propaganda speakers" It was not possible to open an institute in Warsaw, as originally planned. Therefore, the Zionists, according to the Warsaw Diary, chose to Institute Bialystok and compiled the following “curriculum”: The institute is expected to accept persons of both sexes who have passed the “examination to certify their degree preparedness for campaigning." What kind of exam is this? Will it be enough for him, for example, the title of assistant sworn attorney? According to the result tests, candidates enter one of the four classes of the institute, where they study history of Zionism, the essence of its teachings, declamatory techniques, writing trial articles about Zionism, make speeches, etc. To the institute, as reported by the same "Warsaw Diary", many Jewish youth from Warsaw and others went Jewish centers of the Vistula region.

The first natural question here, of course, is whether this propaganda campaign is secret or obvious. recitation institute, and who are its melameds? But this is, in fact, a matter of training. authorities, and perhaps even the police, when the Zionists' recitation exercises disrupt public peace and tranquility in Bialystok. We can take an interest rather and more in the question: for what exact purpose do the Zionists need cadres of propaganda reciters who have gone through a special institute?

Machine Translated by Google

Zionism is still a vague phenomenon, hardly understood equally by the Jews. How the idea itself caused a split in Russian Jewry, reaching such a point that some of the rabbis are even given a formal curse, so the Zionists are splitting into two or three, and maybe much more, rumors, so that a remake of the old one has already appeared sayings about Poles - where there are two Zionists, there are three opinions. And again this is their business, but for Russian society had only one thing that was important: Palestine, the goal and dream of Zionism, or the creation of a new Zion in Russian Jewry, which is already considered by many state within a state? If the Bialystok recitation and magazine courses are based in order to organize strong agitation for eviction to Palestine, we cannot do anything to be against, intending to generally improve the conditions of emigration from Russia. But the point is the situation will be completely different if preachers of a new, so to speak, inspired by the traditions of Zion, isolation of Russian Jews from Russian law, society and people proliferate from Bialystok. Until Zionism itself honestly and frankly reveals its our own aspirations, plans and intentions, we must inevitably look under double angle of view. And it would be better if they made only bad cloth in Bialystok than bad, crafty Zionism.

Chapter 4

Socialists and Zionists

Modern Judas, like the biblical one, is everywhere, in whatever environment he appeared - whether in the intelligentsia or in the people, brings with it feelings of deep misanthropy, envy and malice. And wherever he appears, already His mere presence is like a plague, capable of infecting the people around him with all qualities of his low and vile soul.

As you know, all these socialist “leaders”, both Germans and others peoples, come from local Jews, starting with the notorious Karl (Mordoch) Marx and ending with Boruch Yollas, the Berlin correspondent of the Russian Vedomosti".

The Kazbek newspaper reports in a timely manner: “We introduced readers to the emperor’s magnificent speech to the Silesian the workers were told shortly after the death of the factory owner Arthur Krupp. This speech was is dedicated to German social democracy and its relationship to the working people. The activities of this party, consisting mainly of Jews, the emperor called entirely negative. Socialists present themselves as defenders of the working class, but in fact they are the greatest enemies of the working people. Inciting the workers, sowing discord between classes, undermining respect for religion and authority, these malicious and dishonest agitators everywhere and everywhere pursue only their own interests, making “work question” a profitable profession for oneself. No matter what banner they try Jews disguise their machinations, every experienced person will certainly see under at least the tip of a lapserdak. One can only regret that while the insightful people see the lining of all Jewish “ideals”, the gullible and naive come across on their bait."

The Zionists, according to some newspapers, opened a statistical office in Warsaw. bureau, which will collect information not only about the development among Jews of famous crafts and professions, but also about material well-being and mental development Jewish masses, etc. The same bureau will be opened in Odessa, and abroad - in Lvov, Vienna and Bern.

Something completely new: in general, statistical information has the right to collect only government or zemstvo institutions.

Machine Translated by Google

And the Jews managed to get a privilege here too. The Zionists continue to organize their army. According to “Kievlyanin”, the territory of permanent Jewish settlement in Russia is divided into 12 districts; every of them has a special authorized representative. The responsibilities of the district commissioner are to organize Zionist circles, management and control of their activities. It's alright The internal organization and management of the circles are completely independent, the program and the order of circle activities is developed at sub-district congresses. This is was the task of the Lubno congress, which consisted of representatives from circles several districts of the province. The set of comrades who make up the circle is not determined, but from every hundred of its members the circle has the right to send your delegate. Mugs can be exclusively for women. Union means represent the national fund and the shekel tax. The National Fund is formed from donations sent to the London Jewish Bank, and the name of everyone who contributed at least 10 pounds sterling (95 rubles) is included in the Golden Book, which has the meaning of an “eternal historical document.” Thus formed the fund is intended exclusively for the redemption of Palestine and remains inviolable until it increases to the level necessary for this operation amounts.

Although the shekel tax is still small, it would be at least naive to treat careless towards the Zionist movement itself only because material resources the Zionist army are insignificant. We need to be afraid of something else: that close-knit organization Jews, for which Zionist congresses provide full scope. The enemies of the Russian people, the Zionists, are not asleep, they continue to scatter revolutionary proclamations, trying to agitate the dark people falling on them fishing rod And dark people become victims of Zionist agitators, often not aware of the crime they are committing against the entire people. These are conclusions from the exact words of an honest Odessa Jew.

Chapter 5

About Kharkov Zionists

The Zionist activity of Kharkov Jews is developing successfully, gradually acquiring a larger circle of followers, strong foundations and correct organization. Meetings of Zionists of all parties and persuasions take place weekly in synagogue on Saturdays, in the evening from 7 o'clock, where access is free. Ramifications Zionist teachings, which I have already listed, and their representatives united in two factions: the “organizers of Zion” and the “Orthodox.” Both are unanimous cry out for the need for money and money, although even in the main views on the device of the future of the Jewish state differ. Desires to accumulate gold are carried out successfully - the very influx of funds is subject to the correct organizations. Azov-Don Bank, its numerous branches and agencies They are commission agents for accepting the shekel, selling the national fund, subscribing in installments for these shares, as well as accepting various donations for transferring all incoming amounts to the London Colonial Bank. The Azov-Don Bank and its agencies are, of course, run by Jews. According to the latest information, Kharkov Zionists turn out to be the owners of shares worth 20 thousand rubles. So Thus, in a short time, Kharkov Jews showed sufficient energy in the matter collection for the implementation of his kingdom on the mountains of Zion. But their new prophet Theodore Herzl and the leaders around him find their activities unsuccessful in materially and deviating from the main foundations of Zionism. "Orthodox" joined the latter view, which resulted in a business trip to Kharkov, special preachers from Vilna, Bialystok and even from Paris. These people in in their appeals to Jews they strive to eliminate partisanship, create unanimity, on the basis of which, in their opinion, it is possible to accumulate capital. The Orthodox party, which is divided into two groups: "Hasigdem" and "Mesnagdem"; leads intensified fighting against the possibilities of assimilation, ignoring some of the teachings of the Talmud, defending the possibility of restoring the “Gebrean language” and the integrity of all the rules and customs of ancient Jewish life. The fanaticism of this party is undoubtedly the best engine to increase the number of followers. Even a question like the translation of the “Gebrean” spelling rules into “jargon” did not receive satisfactory permission, despite the convincing arguments of the “organizers” party Zion." Many of the Jews, sympathetic to the Zionist cause, evade payment “shekel”, certifying at meetings that his contribution of the subject tax was supposedly produced. To eliminate this misunderstanding, the local Zionist government, inspired also by Basel insistence, decided to carry out a census of all Jews on specially prepared printed forms. They include, in addition to data ordinary census material, information about affiliation with Zionism, that or another party, control over payment of fees, under what receipt, as well as whether the registrant holds shares in a colonial bank and in what amount. All this the material will be compiled, developed and will be the subject of a special report at the upcoming Zionist Congress in London. Persons conducting the census do not hide that the Jews' evasion of this registration is as numerous as during one-day census 1897; although the scribes are by chance, but from the Jew you can't hide anything. Jews expect a lot from this census. The other day, according to Polish newspapers, a congress of Zionists took place in Lida, meeting for three days in a row. Jewish newspapers are full of descriptions of this congress, at which included representatives of all the “Eastern” Zionist unions.

The congress decided: to publish brochures with the signatures of hundreds of rabbis, persuasive donate money to the benefit of the people's capital, and the day of the destruction of Jerusalem the temple is always commemorated by collecting donations to increase public capital. In addition, it was decided to start a special book in each city, where they will Donors sign up.

It’s strange why Jews enjoy the privilege of organizing congresses for their “national” goals, while no other nation has this right doesn't have it?

Chapter 6

Jewish revolutionary propaganda between workers in Russia

Twenty years ago a secret revolutionary Jewish movement was founded in Germany. society to indignate the workers. It has now connected with society socialists who work together to resent the working classes.

To clarify Jewish revolutionary propaganda in Russia, we provide a catalog brochures printed in Jewish jargon in Jewish printing houses in Russia. At the freedom that exists today for the Jews in printing, having tens of thousands of type-lithographs, they conduct their business almost uncontrollably in all the dark corners of the cities and small town.

The Zionist Revolutionary Society sends out these brochures to its Jewish workers and agents employed in Russia by various factory firms. In brochures

Machine Translated by Google

these are instructing Jewish workers and their agents on how to act and influence the masses Christian workers. Jewish printing houses are engaged in producing proclamations of outrageous content both in Russian and in Jewish jargon. In demonstrations held in theaters, Zionists threw proclamations from the gallery (district) down to public. In the same year, i.e. last 1902, in the month of May, they were thrown in the theater in Minsk, Gomel and Grodno, as eyewitnesses from these areas told us about it. In Vilna, on New Year's Day 1903, young Jews covered the entire city with proclamations: they pasted them on doors, even put them in the pockets of passers-by. In the month of May it was still more proclamations threatening that on May 1st they would make a general uprising. Police all night was on guard - proclamations written in red ink in Hebrew slang, were scattered throughout the city, etc. and so on.

Permission for Jews to open printing houses and conduct book trade, and even printing newspapers in the Hebrew language and jargon is detrimental to the Russian government. If native Russians, like Little Russians, are prohibited from printing books in the Little Russian dialect; Lithuanians are forbidden to even use Latin font for printing prayer books, then why not prohibit the Jews from using their Hebrew script for printing books and newspapers in slang. After all, in Russian letters, that is, in font, without the slightest difficulty you can express not only a slang language, but even, perhaps, freely convey the Hebrew language. It would make it easier reading not only to Russian people and censors, but even to the Jews themselves, who kill their children for several years until they learn only one thing reading, so hellishly difficult in Hebrew. Jewish writings are barbaric complicated by the invention of a special italic font equal. Rashi, where it is written completely without vowels; the reader must guess where and what the vowel is relies. This invention of the Rashi script also had its own political purpose, so that make it extremely difficult to read Jewish books and thereby block access to knowledge Jewish literature for Christians. From then on they began to publish in the Talmuds and comments the most poisonous, evil and murderously barbaric teachings against Christian. All this malice initially began to be revealed by the baptized themselves Jewish rabbis, as a result of which the Jews were forced into the new Talmuds to state these evil metas in an abbreviated, ambiguous manner, or to cross them out completely, leaving only their signs, empty spaces - guess, that is, they began to force to teach your young men these passages by heart, that is, to interpret the malice against Christians secretly.

The Jews themselves strive to publish the Talmud in Russian, albeit with deceptive purpose, choosing places that are generally good and instructive, moral, and evil released. So why don't they prohibit the printing of Talmuds in Hebrew, when the Talmud now published in Pereferkovich's translation can be ordered to introduced into their Jewish cheders to relieve their children, who are tortured and exhausted in the study of the Talmud in Hebrew, Consequently, Hebrew the language can be used to study only prayers, since, according to the teachings of the Jews, God He only seems to understand the Hebrew language. Catholics have everything church the service is performed in Latin, does the Pope require that everyone Catholics could speak Latin? The clergy serves in Latin, and Catholics pray in in your native language. Why not force the Jewish gentlemen to pray and read their Talmud in the local state language, then they would be forced to leave all curses on Christians in their prayers. Christian censorship does not understand the Hebrew language and puts censorship in the hands of the Jews themselves. All ancient prayers cursing Christians are used by Jews, even in cheders melameds teach children on this terrible hatred, anger against Christian. On this basis the name arose: “state within a state.” Jews dream of the enslavement of Christians and see sure success in their World Jewish union. The Jewish question has taken such an acute form in our country that from one or the other the future of Russia depends on its decision...

Machine Translated by Google

We should not be afraid of any other issues next to this - neither Finnish, not Polish, not Oriental, not Baltic or German.

Each of these issues, in extreme cases, threatens Russia with gangrene of one kind or another. the other end; such gangrene is still not death: at most it will have to amputate an arm or leg, but the entire body will remain alive. The Jewish question is a completely different matter: this is decomposition, this is the infection of everything body with cadaveric poison...

To keep silent about it and not to take measures to combat this evil means to commit a crime both in relation to one’s homeland and in relation to ideals Christianity.

Yes, the Jewish question has imperceptibly, subtly grown into a national misfortune that threatens decomposition of the people's body. .. Millions of Jews are not concentrated somewhere in a separate area, are not isolated from the rest of the country's population, they spread like corpse poison throughout the entire body of the Russian people, they are everywhere. These are tenacious branches of the landoctopus, squeezing Russia and sucking out all the vitality from it... Capital, banks, trade are in their hands, the press, the rudder of public opinion are in their power, all the cities in Western Russia are in their disposal.

This is what people who are really familiar with the Jewish question will tell you... This is not enough. They will tell you something else: that these millions of Russian subjects, being constantly hostile and alien to the indigenous population of the country element, tried to carry out a violent coup in Russia.

Two years ago this attempt manifested itself quite clearly in a number of Jewish demonstrations, which spoke of the strict organization of the entire movement. Jews were the main agitators in these demonstrations, the Jews captivated the Russian students, Jews took the main part in all the riots, starting university ones. Remember the period of demonstrations in St. Petersburg, Moscow, Kyiv, Kharkov, Odessa, Chisinau; Jews were agitators everywhere, they prevailed everywhere; Now revolutionary proclamations are scattered everywhere.

Ask who kept the entire province constantly in alarm, sowing confusion in the minds, who continuously spread false rumors about unrest in different cities of Russia, in in the hope of causing unrest and new demonstrations, attracting new victims, strengthening general discontent. And they will answer you:

Jews. Ask who set up the secret printing houses in which the appeals were printed, calling for a violent coup. And they will answer you: Jews. Ask who, having settled in our zemstvos as statisticians and agronomists, tried to cause unrest among peasants not only in Kharkov and Poltava, and in other provinces. And they will answer you again: Jews

But this is not enough: do not think that the agitation of the Jews was limited only to demonstrations known to you from official data...

It penetrated into the very depths of the provinces, into the most remote corners. It got to the point that in some district town of Rogachev or Gomel, and even in Jewish towns a crowd of Jews calling themselves “Social Democrats” unfurled a red banner and was going to overthrow the existing system of Russian life, to remake life Russian people in their own way...

Machine Translated by Google

Can you imagine all the splendor of this picture, this Jewish revolution in Russia? And do you imagine the terrible disasters with which she threatened the Russian people? Imagine for a moment that it would have been a success... It’s even creepy think about what this would lead to, what horror it would turn our lives into, what disaster would have entailed, how many millions of victims would have been absorbed... After all, it was worth If only our enemies could sense our internal discord, they would rain down on Russia blows from all sides, and no one would spare her, and unimaginable chaos would reign, in which it would be impossible to understand, and in which, however, the masters of the situation and Jews would undoubtedly be dictators: capital and the press are in their hands, their solidarity would give them complete dominance and the opportunity to take control the state lever of the entire country, if it had not split, of course, into dozens parts... To the great happiness of Russia, over the past year, internal politics countries received a different direction, allowing us to hope that the subversive the activities of the Jews, who decided to turn the life of the Russian people upside down and remake it in their own way, will not soon resume... And so, precisely at such an exceptionally important historical time significance in the life of Russia is the moment when the Russian people are still simple-minded and defenseless before Jewish intrigues, when he can easily be confused and enslaved and not so conquerors adapted to the struggle for existence and indifferent to means, like the Jews, when millions of Jews tirelessly wage war, undermining and under Autocracy, and under Orthodoxy, trying to confuse revolutionary propaganda Russian people and plunge them into the abyss of innumerable disasters when these Jews print and distribute proclamations preaching complete anarchy when exclusively these Jews join the ranks of anarchists who organize here and there demonstrations, then they do not even stop at political murders, then they even establish in Russia “societies to fight Orthodoxy” - Russian people appear who not only speak out in their defense, but, with with amazing swagger they try to elevate them to an ideal and set them as an example to our Christians. And, worst of all, such people appear even among Russians. clergy

Chapter 7

Sixth World Zionist Congress in Basel

(Jewish correspondence) A lot of people came this time, much more than in previous ones congresses. The number of delegates is very significant. There are about a thousand guests people, not counting local residents, who are strongly interested in the Congress. This time the Congress should last not two or three days, as in previous ones. years, but for a whole week, and already before the start of the congress, numerous congresses: congress of Russian delegates, congress of German Zionists, congress of Jewish gymnasts, meetings of individual factions of the Zionist Assembly and a mass preliminary conferences. The meetings usually lasted from morning to evening, even until late at night, and an outside observer, not bound by a mandate and not obliged be in one specific place to take part in the work of your group or factions, could move from hall to hall, from one building to another and observe the prevailing businesslike, serious mood everywhere, listen to the debates and to catch the most interesting moments, to take a closer look at the curious currents that stand out and have already been defined in Zionism, to get acquainted with interesting personalities and types.

Finally, one of the members of the presidium gives a sign with a hammer: he hits three times, and The hall is as quiet as possible in a gathering of several thousand people. Dr. Herzl comes out first, followed by all the other members of the executive committee and authorized Zionists from various countries. The appearance of Dr. Herzl is greeted with long-lasting applause, although the enthusiasm is not as great as in past years. There is silence, and Dr. Herzl can begin to read his opening speech, which is always the most important moment of the congress, at least in political terms. But Dr. Herzl's present speech turns out to be politically more important than all his previous speeches at the past five congresses.

The most essential part of Dr. Herzl's speech boils down to this: since time At the fifth congress he had the opportunity to be received by the Turkish Sultan twice, in the spring and autumn of last year. On both occasions the Sultan received him very graciously; the attention and favor shown to him by the highest Turkish officials exceeded his expectations. Dr. Herzl made proposals to the Sultan and his government regarding the founding of autonomous colonies in Palestine. To the great regret of Dr. Herzl, the Turkish government did not want to agree to the colonization plan that was proposed to it by the leader of Zionism. The Turkish government agreed only to allow the establishment of small colonies throughout the entire Turkish Empire, which, in turn, Dr. Herzl could not agree to, since this would not correspond to the ideal of Zionism: to establish a Jewish state in Palestine, in the land of ancestors and forefathers. Realizing that further negotiations with the Turkish government could not yet yield significant results for the implementation of the Zionist ideal, Dr. Herzl decided to try to enter into negotiations with the British government on the settlement of Jews in the Sinai Peninsula. The British government, represented by its ministers and the highest officials of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, treated Dr. Herzl's proposal with the greatest attention and with great goodwill, but told him that the solution of the issue depended on the Egyptian government, and gave him excellent recommendations to the Egyptian Khedive and to his ambassador in Cairo. Dr. Herzl was unable to go directly to Cairo and assigned one of his trusted persons to do so. This person was not slow in entering into negotiations with the Egyptian government, which, agreeing in principle to the proposals of Dr. Herzl, stated that it could give permission to settle the Sinai Peninsula only on the condition that a social expedition finds this area suitable for settlement . The commission was staffed by scientists and engineers, and while it was working, a modus operandi for the future settlement of the Sinai Peninsula was worked out with the Egyptian government. By the time the commission's work was completed, Dr. Herzl himself hurried to Cairo and met there with the most favorable reception; but, to his great regret, the commission's report was unfavorable: the land could not be made fertile due to the complete lack of water. Obviously, we have to decisively abandon the settlement of the Sinai Peninsula. Dr. Herzl then hurried to England again to once again enter into negotiations with the British government. The latter, on his own initiative, for which the Zionists should be especially grateful to him, made a proposal of extreme importance. Namely, the English government proposes that the Jews establish an independent state (or rather, extensive colonies) with municipal and state self-government, with a supreme representative from its environment, but under the supreme protectorate of England, all this, however, in the Eastern Africa.

Machine Translated by Google

Without touching upon the substance of the matter, Dr. Herzl stated in response to the British government that he accepts his offer with the greatest gratitude and does not will hesitate to propose the question of establishing colonies in East Africa at the discretion of Congress, without which he, Dr. Herzl, has no right to decide anything. Dr. Herzl, conveying this to the Congress at the present moment, does not add anything of his own. words. He only points out that, on the one hand, East Africa does not correspond national ideal of the Jewish people, on the other hand, the English the government guarantees complete freedom of national development. From Congress It depends whether or not to accept this proposal of the British government. Dr. Herzl believes that documents related to this issue cannot be announced in the great hall of the Congress. Congress must choose from among itself a special commission of persons enjoying his trust, to whom it will be shown and everything related to this issue has been told. In any case, no matter how Congress reacted to the proposal, the British government can be sure that all Zionists, the entire Congress, have the most ardent feelings of gratitude towards him. (Long applause; delegates rise from their seats; Screams are heard from all sides honor of England.) But this is not limited to, Dr. Herzl continues, the successes Zionist movement.

Such are the successes achieved by Dr. Herzl, and he adds that the Sultan continues to speak out in relation to the Jewish people and the Zionist the movement has the most friendly feelings. Dr. Herzl hopes that the Turkish government also perfectly understands what benefits it would acquire for its country if made it possible for the Jewish people to realize their national ideal.

Regarding the political successes of Zionism and the successes of its diplomatic negotiations, Dr. Herzl can still declare that he is among the friends of Zionism also Emperor Wilhelm, who received Dr. Herzl on a deputation, being in Palestine, in Jerusalem, and then gave him the most flattering and promising character.

Dr. Herzl does not hide from himself that promises alone do not have the proper practical meaning, but, on the other hand, the old saying goes: words emperors should not be subject to analysis and skeptical interpretation.

This is the most important, essentially political part of Dr. Herzl's speech, which he opened the meeting of Congress.

All this action of the Jews is disguised in order to organize their state in Russia. The Turkish Sultan will not allow Jews into Palestine for money, and the Jews themselves will not they will go there without a messiah, because they need to work there differently than in Russia.

The life organ of Russian Jewish Zionists "Future" continues to differ the invention of more and more new "projects" aimed at gradual establishment of Jewish domination in Russia. It must be admitted that "Future" leads its line with unflagging energy.

For example, in the article "New Perspectives" they preach without any hesitation such things (we are talking about the Far East) that if the indigenous population does not strive for resettlement to areas bordering China, then under such conditions, it would seem most natural to recognize it as desirable to attract Jewish people to the new region element that overflowed that part of indigenous Rus', which is called the Jewish Pale of Settlement. For them, distant cities would not be superfluous, and they themselves are not

Machine Translated by Google

would be redundant in new empty lands in need of energetic industrial population.

With modest pride, the newspaper continues to prove its point: That Jews are truly desirable and useful, as energetic from time immemorial trading element, proof of this is the role of Jews in the Siberian industry, where in many places they are active intermediaries in exporting local products abroad.

Now more than ever it would be appropriate to discuss the general question of the presence of Jews in Siberia in connection with the prospects for the revitalization of a distant region, to which Jewish forces could be extremely useful.

Chapter 8

The militant fantasy of the Zionists

Mr. Notovich's newspaper, the more serious and solemn the tone of its articles, the more fun sets up its reader. Here, for example, is the conversation between her Basel correspondent and Dr. Herzl. The boundless self-praise of the leader of Zionism and the remarks that the newspaper correspondent helpfully gave him were also funny. Dr. Herzl imagines himself demagogue and temporary dictator of the Jewish people. "A huge crowd of my supporters and admirers cannot understand me or do not want to understand me," said Herzl, but if he still makes the Jews happy, then "he will resign all powers" and retire "into solitude," that is, from the crown of the future Jewish kingdom, Herzl modestly refuses. "You talked about this yesterday," I noted, "and in both cases I cannot agree with you.

- Why? - Herzl asked and directed his deep, black, magnetizing eyes. - I'll tell you this. Many compare you to Moses... Dr. Herzl did negative hand movement. - I find this comparison tasteless and, moreover, already hackneyed. I personally I compare you only with Napoleon...

- Ooo! - Dr. Herzl protested. - Yes, because your will is similar to the will of Napoleon. But Napoleon didn't stopped halfway and led his French wherever he wanted. you with your mighty you must lead the Jewish people with your will, and wherever you lead them, they are you you know - he will follow you everywhere. "I doubt," objected Dr. Herzl, "you do not take into account the psychology of the masses." I gave them territory in East Africa and you see how much hostility and resentment I called it against myself. "When will I bring Palestine as a gift," finished Dr. Herzl with bitter irony, - they will probably shoot me. "Or they'll be dealt with by lynching," I noted, "that's more modern." But did you know, Mr. Doctor, what conclusion, logical conclusion can be drawn from your last words? The one that you still hope to bring them Palestine as a gift soon.

Dr. Herzl flashed his eyes, smiled his charming smile and remained silent."

"I gave them territory in East Africa"... "I will bring them a gift Palestine"... Well, is it really possible to take such tirades of Jewish "Napoleon"? Suppose the correspondent naively believed that you can't spoil porridge with butter, but is it really that the Novosti editors are not aware of the full comedy of this dialogue?

If anything inspires horror and disgust in Christians, it is not only capitalism Jewish, but also Jewish poverty. The latter, like leprosy, scares more than one Russia, but also England and America. Next to the fat and - forgive the rude word - insolent Jewish millionaire stands an equally dangerous Jewish beggar, unhappy, but hungry, with bared teeth. Both are parasites, both are terrible, one by force, the other - extreme powerlessness. Both are waging destruction against Christian society. work. The living Christian element unconsciously tries to digest both of them or throw it out of yourself.

Jewry is noisy and wandering, it is becoming militant and political. Somewhere it goes from defense to attack.

But this feels like a disease crisis. The Christian world is too vast to can't cope with this inflammation. A little more and Jews like Jessica will understand that they are perishing, that Judaism is a whirlwind for them, that salvation is on the Christian shore. Hebrews the same type of Shylock, vengeful and irreconcilable, will have to either flee to the desert Africa, or die in despair. This, it seems to me, is an artistic prophecy Shakespeare about the final fate of the Jew.

Jewish "dad"

At the last meeting of the international congress of rabbis in Krakow, Tarnowski Rabbi Shir proposed, on behalf of the rabbis in Galicia, the organization of an international union of rabbis so that the head of this union would be elected by the rabbis of all countries "head", who would be the representative of the union and its main leader. This proposal, after some debate, was accepted, but the actual election of the person who should take the rank of “Rabbi of the Jews of the whole world” did not take place. Future rabbi should occupy approximately the same position in Jewry as the Roman occupies pope among Catholics.

Perhaps, if one of the Rothschild bankers is elected to the post of Jewish pope, he will answer the same thing he once said when he was offered to be the king of the Jews: - I prefer, instead of being the king of the Jews, to remain a Jew kings.

From different places there is news about what is happening among the local Jewish ferment, which is expressed in the Zionist movement and in various kinds daring antics on the part of the Jews. This fermentation is especially strong in Lodz. In such moment is most opportunely the fact that the authorities have turned attention to one of the important aspects of the Jewish question, namely: the formulation primary education among Jews. The trustee of the Warsaw educational district, A. N. Schwartz, in view of the improvement in the organization of primary education in the local region, convened March of this year, the congress of heads of educational directorates and inspectors of people's schools This congress developed a number of issues covering the formulation primary educational affairs in the local region in the entire scope of this matter, and in particular the question of revising the 1888 rules on cheders, establishing tests for teachers (melameds) Jewish religious schools (cheders) and minimum educational requirements that must be presented to malameds. Local the edge is covered with a dense network of obvious and hidden headers. In Warsaw alone there are over 800 obvious headers. At a time when state-owned primary Jewish schools are empty, cheders jam-packed with boys ranging from 4-year-olds to 15- and even 17-year-olds. Due to the fact that, according to the rules of 1888, any Jew who has received certificate for this title from a rabbi, and what these rules allow except teaching in cheders the Jewish “law”, Russian and Jewish languages, studying "other" subjects, cheders became secondary Jewish educational institutions, in which Hasidic fanatics give the younger Jewish generation a specifically Jewish education in the spirit of extreme intolerance towards “goyim” - Christians. So Thus, the Heders deviated from their original type of religious or prayer schools and turned to a special kind of Jewish educational institutions, the teaching in which is conducted outside the control of the Russian educational authorities, since occurs in jargon that is incomprehensible to them. Usually, when a representative of the educational authorities appears near the cheder, the Jewish telegraph lets the melamed know, and the latter disperses most of his students, leaving a small a group that somehow knows how to read and write in Russian, but if the auditor finds everyone students at a lesson, then due to ignorance of the jargon he cannot check what and how taught. There is nothing to say about maintaining school hygiene in cheders, although Jewry spends a lot of money on cheders: the Warsaw Jewish community and rich Hasidim like the well-known long-haired millionaires Przepyurki and Jamaicans provide financial assistance to the Heders, and some Zionist Jewish ladies, taking on the role of trustees of the cheders, collect for their students and donations.

Machine Translated by Google

Sad about the fate of Russian Jews, “Voskhod”, as if in reproach to Russia, constantly paints a rosy picture of the situation of Jews in America. New York brother Voskhod, the Forward newspaper mercilessly and selflessly refutes these fabrications.

“The United States,” declares the Forward, cannot serve as a country for mass immigration of Jews. Even now they look very askance at Jews emigrants arriving here annually numbering 60,000 people. If emigration will increase noticeably, then very soon laws will be created to limit access to the United States for poor Jews. The torment that comes with to test Jews from street urchins will grow into an anti-Semitic movement. It is a great sin to hide these facts from the Russian-Jewish masses.”

Jews in England

"New Time" cites in an extract an article by Hamilton Fife on Jewish emigration to England, published in Nineteenth Century. The question of Jewish emigration obviously worries the British greatly, although There are fewer Jews in England than in any of the great powers of Europe. Fife disputes admissibility of Jewish emigration.

He points out three types of inconvenience from emigration: firstly, in the sense competition in labor with native workers; secondly, in the sense of cramped conditions; and thirdly - crime. However, he does not pay serious attention to the latter, despite to the fact that the crime rate among Jews is higher than among the natives. He sees the danger in new working hands, taking jobs away from local workers or driving down prices from them, and most importantly, the author does not want to cede the territory of England. Jews are increasingly more exciting places in London. There are neighborhoods in which there is an English element is almost absent, partly because homeowners, “who have lost all concept of decency or patriotism,” found it more profitable to expel the British and settle Jews, and partly because the British themselves did not want to live next to their neighbors, “in their habits not much different from pigs.” Liberal newspapers in England protest against the emigration of Chinese to the South Africa and advocate for the emigration of Jews to England. But who is more dangerous: the Chinese in Africa or a Jew in England? What to do with Jewry? The author does not answer this. He doesn't wants in England, and that’s it.

There is no anti-Semitism in England, but it can arise. "We were chasing Catholics, when they were Catholics first and British second, and were are right," even if the Jews show that they can be, firstly, English, and secondly, Jews, and they will be accepted with open arms.

But this is probably an impossible task for Jews.

Chapter 9

The program for the conquest of the world by the Jews[1]

Protocol I

(Translation from French)

"Discarding unnecessary phrases, let us try to formulate our system, looking at the facts from our and the goyim's side. It should be noted that people with bad instincts are more numerous than good ones; therefore, greater results can be achieved through violence and intimidation than through reasonable and convincing reasoning: after all, every person strives for power and few I wouldn't become a dictator if I could, but it's rare that people aren't ready to sacrifice benefits everyone for the sake of achieving their own benefits. What restrained and controlled these predatory animals called people? At the beginning of the social system they submitted to brute and blind force, then law, which is also force, but disguised. I conclude that according to the law of nature is right in force.

Political freedom is an idea, not a fact: one must be able to apply it when is a necessary ideological bait to attract popular forces to your party if one of them planned to break the other one in power. This task is easier if and the enemy himself became infected with the idea of freedom (liberalism) and sacrificed for the sake of this idea its power, in which the triumph of our theory will be manifested. After all, according to the law of existence the loose reins of government are immediately picked up and picked up by a new hand, because the blind strength of the people cannot last one day without a leader, therefore, only a new one takes the place of one weakened by its own liberalism authorities.

At this time, the substitute for the power of (liberal) rulers was the power gold, that is, ours.

The idea of freedom is impracticable because no one knows how to use it in moderation. All you have to do is leave the people to self-government for a while, and turns into promiscuity. From this moment civil strife is born, soon turning into social battles in which states burn, their significance turns to ashes. Is the state exhausted in its own convulsions, or internal strife puts it at the mercy of external enemies, in any case it can be considered irretrievably lost: it is in our power. The despotism of our capital hands him a straw that he has to hold on to, or otherwise case, roll into the abyss. The one who will tell me that my reasoning immoral, I will ask: if the state has for the enemy and if in relation to the external enemy is allowed to use all sorts of strategic measures of struggle, such as, for example, not informing the enemy of plans of attack or defense, attacking him at night or not by an equal number of people, then why can such measures be called immoral in relation to the worst enemy, the violator of our prosperity, our competitor for power. Can a sound logical mind hope constantly? guide with reasonable exhortations or persuasion whenever possible, even if meaningless, a contradiction that may seem superficial to the people

---

[1] Excerpts from the Masonic-Zionist protocols "Jewish secrets".

Machine Translated by Google

understanding, more just, for, guided exclusively by petty passions, beliefs, customs, traditions and sentimental theories, people in the crowd succumb to party splits, which prevent any agreement even on the basis of reasonable exhortation. Every decision of the crowd depends on an accidental or rigged majority, which, in ignorance of political secrets, pronounces an absurd decision, laying the germ for the anarchic period of government. From all that has been said, it turns out that politics has nothing to do with morality. The ruler who leads it is not political, and therefore is not secure on his throne. Whoever wants to rule must skillfully resort to cunning and hypocrisy: the great national qualities, frankness and honesty, are vices in politics, they overthrow the strongest enemy from the thrones better and more accurately. These qualities should be attributes of goyim kingdoms; we should not be guided by them. Our right stands. The word “right” is an abstract, unproven thought, which means, as it were: “Give me what I want, thereby proving to me that I am stronger than you.” Where does law begin, where does it end, what does it consist of? In states in which there is a poor organization of public power, the powerlessness of laws and the ruler, depersonalized by liberalism and its imaginary rights, I see our right to rush with the right of the strong and destroy all existing orders and institutions, lay hands on the laws, rebuild all institutions and become the rulers of those who gave us their power, voluntarily giving it up. Our power is more invincible than others, because it is invisible, and will remain so until it becomes so strong that no cunning or force can undermine it. From the temporary evil that we are forced to commit will come the good of unshakable rule, which will restore the correct course of the mechanism of national existence, disturbed by liberalism, the result will justify the means. Let us pay attention not so much to the good and moral, but to the necessary and useful. We have a plan in front of us; it strategically indicates a line from which we cannot retreat without the risk of seeing the destruction of centuries-old work. In order to develop expedient actions, one must take into account the meanness, instability, inconstancy of the crowd, the inability to understand it and respect the conditions of one’s own life, one’s own well-being; one must understand that the power of the crowd is blind, unreasoning, serving left and right. A blind man cannot without bringing them to the abyss; therefore, members of the crowd - upstarts from the people, even brilliantly smart, but not understanding politics, cannot act as leaders of the crowd without destroying their flock. Only those trained from childhood can know words composed in political letters. The people, left to themselves, that is, to upstarts from their own midst, are self-destructing by party discord, excited by the pursuit of power and honors and the resulting unrest. Is it possible for the masses of the people to calmly, without competition, judge and manage the affairs of the country, which cannot be mixed with personal interests with impunity; competition makes it difficult to defend against external enemies and even surprise them. A plan, divided into several parts, into several heads in the crowd, loses its integrity, and therefore becomes incomprehensible and impracticable due to different understandings of it. Only one person’s plans can be developed clearly, in an order that distributes everything in the mechanism of the state machine, from which it must be concluded that management that is appropriate for the benefit of the country should be concentrated in the hands of one responsible person. Without its own despotism, civilization cannot exist, carried out not by the masses, but by their leaders, no matter who they are. The crowd is a barbarian, manifesting itself as such on every occasion. As soon as the crowd seizes freedom (the idea of freedom), it immediately turns it into anarchy, which is the highest of barbarities. Look at those intoxicated, lively, intoxicated with wine, the right to immeasurable consumption which was given with the freedom of the goyim (ours do not freely use, memorable heremy)... Do not allow during our open, and therefore responsible board something like that. The goyim peoples are stupefied by alcoholic drinks, and their young people have become stupefied by classicism and early debauchery, which our agents-tutors, lackeys, clerks, etc., in the rich classes our women, including of whom there are many of their followers in debauchery and luxury. So our password is strength and hypocrisy, only force wins in political affairs, especially if it is hidden in talents needed by government people. Violence must be the principle, cunning and hypocrisy the rule for a government that does not want to lay down its power at the feet of some new power... This evil helps to reach the goal good, therefore we should not hesitate to bribe, deceive, betrayal when they should serve to achieve our goal: in politics one must be able to take other people's goods without hesitation in order to achieve obedience and power; our government, following the peaceful path of conquest, has the right to replace the horrors wars by less noticeable, but more expedient intrigues with which we We support terror, which disposes the goyim to blind obedience or inaction. Fair, but also inexorable severity is the greatest factor of government strength; not only for the sake of profit, but also for the sake of the duty of victory, we need to hold on programs of violence and hypocrisy. The doctrine of calculation is as strong as the means it uses, therefore, not so much by severity itself as by doctrine We will triumph over it and subjugate all governments to our super-government. It is enough for them to know that we are inexorable so that disobedience stops.

Machine Translated by Google

During the greatness of Greece, we first shouted the word "freedom", so many repeated since then by unconscious parrots who flocked to this bait, with with which they took away the welfare of the world, the true freedom of the individual, which is in protecting her from crowd pressure. Allegedly, smart, intelligent goyim did not understand abstractness of spoken words, did not notice that there is no freedom in nature, cannot there should be equality, for nature itself has established inequality of minds, characters and abilities, as well as its subjection to the laws of relations; didn't realize that ours politics knocked them out of the rut of life onto the path leading to our rule. Familiar with politics, although a fool, he can rule, but not familiar with with it, even if he were a genius, he would get confused in the paths we have indicated. Therefore it was established dynastic rule of Jewish kings, so that the son learns knowledge from the father political law, so that no one knows the latter. The goyim have lost this the meaning of dynastic rule, which contributed to the success of our business..

In all parts of the world the words “freedom”, “equality”, “brotherhood” were put in our ranks through our blind agents, whole legions who carried the banners with delight. Meanwhile, these words were worms that undermined the welfare of the goyim, destroyed peace, tranquility, solidarity with the law everywhere, destroying all the foundations of their states. You will see later that this contributed to the triumph of our system conquering the world peacefully. This gave us the opportunity to achieve destruction privileges, the very essence of the goyim aristocracy, which was the natural defense peoples and countries against our actions. On these ruins we placed an aristocracy of upstarts, we have established a qualification for it in science and wealth. Our celebration made easier by the fact that in relations with the people we needed, we always acted on the most sensitive sides of the human mind, on calculation and greed, on material needs of people, and each of the listed human weaknesses separately is already capable of killing personal initiative, putting the will of people at the disposal of buyer of their activities. The abstraction of freedom made it possible to convince the crowds that their rulers are nothing more than managers of the owners of the country - the peoples, and that these governments can be replaced like worn gloves. Changeability administrators put them at our disposal and, as it were, for our purpose1 ." 1 The full text of the program for the conquest of the world by the Jews - the Protocols of Zion - is given in the book: O. Platonov. The mystery of the Zion Protocols. M., 1999. They are also given there and comments on this document.

BOOK THREE

SECTION 1. THEORETICAL

TREATISE I THE NEIGHBOR BY THE JEW

Chapter 1

Whom a Jew Should Consider as His Neighbor

Is there a person who could say: "I have no neighbor!" Yes, if the fanatical laws of the Talmud rule the conscience of the sons of Jacob, if these laws are considered valid, then such a person exists. With the exception of Talmudists, what, according to their concepts, is the rest of humanity? Here is the answer in the Talmud: "Descendants of Abraham! The Lord calls you through the mouth of the prophet Ezekiel, "you are my flock," i.e. that is, you are people, while other peoples of the world are not people, they are brutes."[1]

This is how Talmudic Jews think not only about their dialect, but also about themselves; They sing on the Sabbath day: "Ato-ehod veshimho ehod" - "You are one, Lord, and Israel is one, and there is no one like it in the whole world."[2]

1 «Talmud, traite Babbi Mebline», fol. 144, recto edit. Amsterdam. 645. 2 Book. Cider, p. 75

The Holy Scripture says: "Do not offend the stranger (and do not oppress him): you know the soul of the stranger, therefore that they themselves were strangers in the land of Egypt." (Ex. XIII, 9).

"When a stranger settles in your land, do not oppress him. The stranger who settles with you shall be to you the same as your native; love him as you love yourself: for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." (Lev. XIX, 33, 34.)

"Do not oppress the widow or the orphan. If you oppress them, then when they they cry to Me, I will hear their cry, and My anger will burn, and I will kill you with the sword, and Your wives will be widows and your children orphans." (Ex. XII, 22, 23, 24).

Especially in the fifth book of the Bible, widows and orphans, strangers and Levites are always mentioned together, and mercy is encouraged towards them. The son of Israel must not enjoy what God has blessed him with, or rejoice in the presence of the Lord without in order not to make the unfortunate participants in your joy and well-being. The law constantly requires that during all celebrations hospitality and generosity. But besides this, he cares about the poor and needy:

"When you reap the harvest of your land, do not reap to the edge of your field, and you shall not gather what is left of your harvest. And do not strip your vineyard clean, and Do not pick up the fallen berries in the vineyard: leave it to the poor and the stranger." (A lion. XIX, 9, 10). And elsewhere:

"When you reap in your field and forget the sheaf in the field, do not return take him; let it remain for the stranger, the orphan and the widow, so that the Lord your God blessed you in all the works of your hands. When you trim your olive tree, you will not review the branches behind you; let it remain for the stranger, the orphan and the widow. When When you gather the fruit of your vineyard, do not glean what is left behind you; let it stay given to the stranger, the orphan and the widow. Remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt: therefore I command you to do this." (Deut. XXIV, 19-22.)

Every third year the law requires the so-called tithe for the poor: "After three years, you shall set aside a full tithe of your produce that year and put it at your gates; and let the Levite come, for he has no honor or inheritance with you, and the stranger, and the orphan, and the widow who are within your gates, and let them eat and be satisfied, that the Lord your God may bless you in all the work of your hands" (Deut. XIV: 28, 29). Finally, every 7th year, the entire harvest should be the common property: "For six years you shall sow your land and gather its produce; and leave it at the seventh of it in peace, so that the poor of your people may eat, and with the leftovers after them they may eat beasts of the field. So shall you do to your vineyard and your olive tree" (Exod. XXIII, 10, 11). At any time, a hungry person could take for himself as much as he needed for satisfying hunger: "When you enter your neighbor's vineyard, you may eat as full as your soul desires, but do not put it in your vessel. When you come to the harvest pluck the ears of your neighbor with your hands, but do not bring a sickle into the harvest your neighbor." (Deut. XXIII, 24, 25). All these are legal provisions much more humane than ours. modern: given the existing relations, their fulfillment would be subject to category of poaching and theft and would be punished...

A further ruling in the spirit of purest humanity is the rule about remuneration of a day laborer: "The wages of a hired hand should not remain with you until the morning." (Lev. xix. 13).

Contrary to the Bible, the Talmud teaches: "You Jews are people, but other peoples are not," says the Talmud1 . Therefore, the Talmud allows the Jew all offense, violence and theft in relation to a foreigner. "Take nothing from your neighbor, as the commandment says; but your neighbor is a Jew, and not other nations of the world" [2]

1 Book. Bova Metzia, sec. 9. 2

Talmud, book. Sanhedrin, sec. 7, sheet 59. In this direction the Talmud interprets the entire Old Testament from beginning to end, and makes this division everywhere, calling only the Jew man and neighbor, but by no means not a Gentile. No one else is recognized as a person except a Jew, for only Jews originated from the first man, and all other nations are from the unclean spirit and should, naturally, be called beasts1 . The Talmud teaches that only the skin and body constitute a person's clothing, and the name A person can only be given to him by his soul. "Akims" cannot claim this name because their soul comes from an unclean spirit, but the souls of the Jews come from the Holy Spirit.

The quality of people is determined by their origin: good people come from from Abel, and the evil ones from Cain. Jews descend in a direct line from Adam, Abel, Abraham and Moses, and other peoples, especially Nuhrim (Christians) - from the devil, with through Cain, Esau and Yeshu-Hanotsri" (Jesus Christ) [2]

"On this basis, Jews in comparison with non-Jews are the same as the children of kings, because it is said: "All Israel are the children of kings." 3 Those who insult a Jew insult God himself4 and are subject to the death penalty, just like for insulting the majesty of God5 .

Machine Translated by Google

“According to the pride that a dog shows towards others animals, and the rooster belongs to the birds, and Jews have the right to be proud,” says the Talmud6 . 1 Tract.
"Yalkut Rubeni" l. 10, 2; tract. "Broheis" etc. 2 See "Rub. ichen" par. 4. 3 Tract.
"Ibamot." l. 67.1. 4 Tr. "Ibamot"
128, 1. 5 Tr. "Sanhedrin", l. 58, 2. 6
Ibid.

People who are wicked and forgetful of God will not be resurrected (Ps. IX. 18); under this the name must also mean “kutims” (Christians)[1] . Any evil prohibited by law Israeli against brother, against neighbor and comrade, it is only prohibited regarding the Jews, for non-Jews are not their brothers or neighbors2 . In the book "Lev." XIX, 13, it is said: “Do not offend your neighbor and do not rob him.” This passage in some editions of the Talmud, published without censorship, is explained as follows: “It says here: your neighbor, but this does not mean anyone; goy - no your neighbor." Goyim can be robbed, robbed and deceived; all this will agree with the dignity of an honest man. And when asked about this interpretation one rabbi, is it consistent with the dignity of an honest person to deceive? - the questioned answered: “Without a doubt, for David says: with the innocent, be innocent, but with the wicked, be unjust . ”3

A Jew can steal from a Christian, for it is said: “You will not offend your neighbor and you will not you will take away from him” (Lev. XIX, 13), - his neighbor, not the goyim, and all other nations for the Jew are not neighbors4 . “If anyone robs an akim (Christian) by taking something from his property or from his shrine, he pays only the capital, that is, the value of the stolen, for it is said: “He pays his neighbor twice, and precisely to his neighbor, but not to the goy” (stranger)”5 .

“If someone swore a false oath before the akim, then he only pays capital, but is not obliged in addition, pay a fifth part, for it is said: “I will forbid myself before my neighbor”6 .

In the treatise "Avoide-Zura", page 26, it is said that a Jewish woman should never feed a Christian child with her breast, for in this case she will feed the son to the idol.

1 Tr. "Broheis." L. 25, 2. 2 Tr.
"Sanhedrin" 105.1. 3 Tr. "Bova Metzia", l. 3, 2. 4 Tr. "Bova-Batra",
l. 123, 1. 5 Talmud “Bova Metzia”,
l. 111, 2. 6 “Gilchot Sanhedrin”, fol. 2, 1;
"Gilhot Geneva", 1, 7.

If a goy touched wine (grape wine) with even one finger, he would not It is already suitable for a Jew to keep it, because the wine is defiled. Just as a corpse makes the people in the house unclean, so the cross defiles of people. A Jew should not and cannot take wine and a cross from a Christian. Rabbi Rashi says that if one drop of wine entered a barrel, and this barrel was mixed with thousand barrels, then it’s not good to drink them all, although one painted cross mixed with a thousand painted paintings, they’re all no good. Chapter 2 About

Jews unenlightened by Talmudic wisdom

However, no matter how regrettable the phenomenon of fanatical hatred fostered Talmudic instructions to Jews regarding Christians, it is at least explicable and understandable, since it was formed historically and developed under the influence a set of diverse political, ethnographic, religious and everyday circumstances and relationships. But what is much stranger and more incomprehensible, why one cannot help but be surprised - is that the senseless teachings of fanatical hatred and contempt are attributed by the Talmud not only to Christians, the original and supposedly sworn enemies of Jewry - but even those from fellow Jews who are not enlightened by the light of Talmudic wisdom. These lesser brothers in Judaism, who have no commonality with the elect, in the Talmud are put firmly on the same level as the pagans, are not recognized as neighbors, and they assigned the contemptuous name “Amgaaret” in the Jewish teacher’s book, which literally means: “plebeian”, “laborer”, “simple”. Since the time of Christ, strict caste distinctions have been established among Jews. religious life. At the end of the Mishnah there is a treatise called Horaioth, where the priests are given priority over the serving Levites, these over the other legal Israelites; last - before the illegitimate “mamzer.” Illegitimate Israelite given preference over slaves "nebinim"; for a slave - “ger” before a foreigner, and for a foreigner before a freedman. But if the mamzer, says the Mishnah, is the son of a rabbi, and the high priest is from Amgaaret, that is, ordinary villagers, laborers, then such a mamzer has an advantage over high priest. Hillel says that a lowly person is not saved from sin and none of the Amgaareans can be pious; An Amgaarean is considered to be one who does not repeat the morning prayer (krisha) every day, or does not wear tefillim or tzitzis, or does not serve a learned person. The pettiness of the learned Jew reached the point that he saw in his compatriots who did not know the law people who were under a curse. Every Jew, considering himself a member of the royal generation and the chosen one people, looks at the goyim and everyone who does not belong to his tribe with the greatest contempt established by thousand-year-old customs; Jewish purist and now little distinguishes his poor, offended and downtrodden brothers from the goyim.

Chapter 3

The attitude of learned Jews towards the Amgaareans (laborers)

The relationship of aristocrats and enlightened Jews to the numerous class unfortunate "Amgaaretz" are defined in the Talmud by the following instructions:

“Six points,” says the Talmud, “must be observed regarding "Amgaaret": I. No one can serve as a witness for him. 2. He is not fit to be a witness. to others. 3. An Amgaarean (plebeian) is not initiated into any secret. 4. It should not be prescribed guardian of the orphan's property. 5. He cannot be a guardian charitable institutions and 6. You can’t go on the road with him.” Some argue, the Talmud adds, that a loss that happened to a plebeian is not must be made public, i.e. a thing lost by a plebeian belongs to the one who found it ee1 .

Rabbi Eliazar says: It is permissible to slaughter an Amhaarean on the Day of Judgment2. at least the latter coincided with Saturday3 . A Jew can never marry the daughter of an Amgaarean, for they themselves are reptiles, their wives are reptiles; and regarding their daughters it is said: “Cursed is everyone who lies with cattle,” i.e. blood ties with an Amgaarean were considered bestiality4 . An Amgaarean cannot be appointed as a witness; the Amgaarean is considered a villain5 .

Rabbi Eliazar said: “An Hamhaaretz (unlearned Jew) can have his nostrils torn out. even then, if the day of reconciliation or cleansing coincides with the Sabbath day”; But when the disciples asked him: “Rabbi, tell me better that he can be slaughtered,” he answered to them: “This will require a blessing, and therefore there is no need to cut it”6 . Further It is said: “An unlearned person can be gutted like a fish . ”7 1 Talmud, tract. "Pesachim." l. 98.2 The Day of Judgment is called the holiday Yom Kippur. 3 "Pesachim". 4 Ibid., l. 49. 5 “Hoshen Mishnot”,

Machine Translated by Google

mouth. oh date

steam. 34, p. 7. 6 Trakt. "Pesachim." l. 49, 2. 7 Ibid.

Defenders of the Talmud may claim that all this is an allegory, these expressions have Certainly another meaning is also inaccessible to the ignorant “goyim”. In fact after reading this, anyone may become confused and wonder what happened here a mistake or said as a joke, although it is obvious that such jokes are inappropriate, especially in the mouths of those pretending to be teachers. The baptized Jew Kirasevsky says in his analysis of the Talmud, that all such assumptions disappear when we find these places in the collections of Jewish laws - in the Shulchan Aruch, in Gilchot Peria Verivia", where they are expressed by all rabbinic authorities. All these passages, as well as the previous ones, must be taken literally. It says above what is allowed to kill an unlearned person without any rules that are observed when cutting animals; when the disciples asked the reason for this, Rabbi Eliazar replied that observance rules when cutting animals requires a blessing. By this it is understood that such a method of murder would be too great an honor for a non-scientist who Nor does he deserve to be treated like an animal. So, in the given In sayings it is in no way possible to see allegories. Rabbi Samuel on behalf of Rabbi Jochanan says that an unlearned person can be torn or gutted like a fish; A it is known that the rules known for fish are not followed cutting of animals, called "bedika". In any case, the rabbis consider their brethren ignorant of the Talmud are no better than animals, for they say that Their daughters are vile, and their wives are like insects. Therefore, if people can be so proud and heartless, respecting their fellow believers to such an extent, then from here one can safely and naturally believe that they allow themselves to kill these insects, these animals.

Chapter 4

The senseless intolerance of the Talmud

The Talmud says: “Dead
male and female slaves do not have the same meaning as dead free; when the first die, no blessings are given, no words are spoken consolation to those mourning the dead, but only, as if at the death of an ox or donkey, the mourner is addressed with the words: “May the Lord reward you for your loss.” [1]

1 “Joreh Deah” 5, 377.

Such callousness is all the more convincing since it speaks of Jewish slaves, that is, converts to the Jewish faith, for the Talmudic law positively puts in an indispensable condition is that every slave must accept the Jewish religion. The Talmud, without hesitation, slaves of their fellow believers even after their death, in remembrance of rest, puts on the same level as animals, in other words, positively refuses them in the immortality of the soul. According to the spirit of the Talmudic religion, with a slave during his lifetime he should treat like an animal; he receives exactly the same treatment after of death.

Machine Translated by Google

In relation to Christian women, Rabbi Shila attacks a person who allows himself frequent visits by non-Jewish women. The beaten man brings a complaint to his superiors; on this The rabbi replies: “This scoundrel is in relations with a donkey; is that woman who is not from blood of Abraham - not cattle? So, what should one do with one who, forgetting with her, descends himself to the level of cattle?'

The famous Rabbi Menagem insists in many places in his works on that the title of man belongs only to the Jew.

One of the learned Jewish books claims that all non-Jews are pigs2 . According to the Talmud, after the angels, Jews are the most pleasing to God creatures. On this basis, whoever inflicts any offense on a Jew, for example, a blow to face, he will commit the same crime as if he had hit God Himself . Some the rabbis claim that a Jew is nothing more than a material particle Deities, just as a son receives from his father a piece of his material creatures. And therefore, a goy who beats a Jew, according to the Talmud, is worthy of the death penalty4 ; if there would be no Jews, there would be no grace on earth5 . there would be neither sun nor rain6 . 1

Talm. "Berakhot." l. 88, recto Laurenti ibid. Tom 11, par. 375. "Church and synagogue", pp. 26 to 50. Paris, 1859. 2 Tract.

"Ialkut." l. 3, 3 Laurenti ibid t. II, p. 374. 3 Tract. "Sanhedrin." l. 58,

2. 4 Ibid. 5 Tract. "Job.", l. 63.1. 6 “Behai”
to the

Pentateuch, 34, l. 153, 3.

Because of this, no people could exist on earth without Jews1 . Distinction, the Talmud further teaches, is the natural and most important law of all creatures: plants and animals cannot do without human protection over them; like just as man stands high above the beasts, so do the Jews above all the nations of the world . A person of alien non-Jewish origin is like an animal. I'm sure Rabbi Kroner, everyone who is uncircumcised is considered an alien; therefore expressions “alien” and “pagan” are unambiguous where goy and nukhri have the same meaning3 . Further, the Talmud teaches that the tombs of goyim (Christians) should not desecrate Israel (Jewish coffins), since Jews are people, and other peoples have the properties of animals4 . Elsewhere the Talmud refutes this desecration. Saying it's desecration when meeting a corpse only happens when the deceased was a Jew, leads the following reason: the goy was unclean and desecrated those who approached him; but on By death, his body loses impurity, and therefore does not make anyone unclean. An Israelite, for example, during Jewish life evaporated from his body the fragrance of purity, which even sanctified those who approached it, etc.; with By the death of a Jew, the soul and the Holy Spirit leave the body, and it becomes worn out and only capable of contaminating the air and making others unclean5 .

1 Tract. “Zeroim.” l. 107, 2. 2 Ibid. l.

101, 2. Tract. "Iebamoth", l. 94, part 2, vol. 3. 3 Tract. "Berakhot", l.

47, 2; tract. "Gittin", l. 70, 1; tract. "Avoide-Zura", l. 26, 2, t. 3. 4 Trakt. "Bova Metzia". l. 114, 2.5 loh Nicoli Sepulchris, liber 3 cap. 3.

Chapter 5 The Talmud Calls Gentiles Dogs

Machine Translated by Google

The Talmud calls non-Jews dogs, saying about Jewish holidays that they established for Jews, and not for strangers, not for dogs1 . Rabbi Moze, at Nachman's, repeats this: “Holidays are for you, not for the goyim, for you, not for dogs.” [2] . Just so Rabbi Rashi also says the same in a copy of the Venetian Talmud; however, in comments by Rashi, published in Amsterdam, the addition “not for dogs” was released. “Gentiles are like dogs and donkeys.” 3 Rabbi Abarbanel says: "The chosen people worthy of eternal bliss, and other nations are insignificant.” [4] ; “The houses of the goyim are the dwellings of cattle”5 . Ben-Syrah answers Nebuchadnezzar when he wanted to give his daughter to him as a wife: “I am the son of man, and not of bestial”6 . "Jews are revered by people idolaters, to whom Christians also join, since they honor “idols” come from an unclean spirit and are called pigs”7 . "Alien bride, no belonging to the daughters of Israel, a beast." Rabbi Abarbanel teaches this8 : “Who not a Jew, or, moreover, an apostate from the Jewish faith, as, according to the tradition of the Talmud, Jesus was, who turned to idolatry and seduced many - such beware of confessing to your neighbor9 . Not respected in relation to animals the law of love for one's neighbor. A pagan who does not convert to Jewry and a Christian who remains faithful to Christ are opponents of God and enemies of the Jews. Therefore, he says Talmud: “The words of the Bible: God has no wrath10 - refer only to Jews; the words: God is angry11 refer to other peoples of the world” 12. 1 Tract. "Megilla". l. 7, 2. 2 Ibid. l. 5, 4; l. 60, 5 books.

Moses. 3 Tract. "Berakhot." l. 25, 2. 4 “Do Noz.”, 4, l. 230, 4.

5 "Leb. Fol.”, 46, 1. 6
“Siral”, 8, 2. 7 Tract.
"Ialkut", rub. l. 10, 2.
8 "Math. h. inp. Tawo." 9
Tract. "Avoide-Zura", l. 26, 2 10 Ref.
27, 4. 11 Ex. 1, 2. 12 Tract.
"Avoyde-Zura." l. 4.1.

The name of the historical Mount Sinai, according to the teachings of the Talmud, mysteriously means that God's wrath fell on all the nations of the world, except the Jews, and therefore these nations were not must do no mercy2 . Elsewhere in the Talmud it is said: “It is forbidden show mercy to an insane person"3 ; Similarly, Rabbi Garson4 teaches : “Do not it is fitting for the just to show mercy to the wicked"; and Abarbanel says: “It’s indecent show mercy"5 . Jews, as friends and relatives of God, are allowed, according to the teachings of the Talmud, to deceive the godless, since it is said: “Be pure in in relation to the pure, and perverted in relation to the perverse . "6 Rabbi Eli-azar on this says: “Just as the Arab is distinguished from all creation by his appearance, so Israel is distinguished from all nations by its good deeds . ”7 The Talmud prohibits Jews8 to congratulate the godless; however, taking into account the rule: “Be prudent in fear of God"9 you can congratulate a stranger for the sake of your own peace of mind, in avoiding trouble10. Therefore, according to Behai11, even fornication is permitted, so that a person, that is, a Jew, could seem to be a sinner in the eyes of the godless (that is, a non-Jew); All the more, external expressions of respect for love for the goyim are allowed, if required the interests of a person, that is, a Jew, if for some reason he is afraid of the goyim (otherwise case, all this is sinful), for, according to the teachings of the Talmud12, Jews in general are allowed fraud against the atheists.

Machine Translated by Google

1 Tract. "Shabbes." l. 89.1. 2
Tract. "Iebam." l. 123.1 squeaks. v. 23. 3 Tract.
"Sanhedrin." l. 92.1. 4 K1 Kings 18.14.
5 ""Mark. Pram", l. 77, 4. 6
Tract. "Bova-batra", l. 123.1; tract. "Megillah", l. 17.1. 7 Tract. "Pirke", l.
53. 8 Tract. L. 62.1. 9 Tract.
L. 17.1.

11 Kad hak l. 30.1. 12
Tract. "Honeycomb." l. 41, 2.

And all the peoples of the world, all non-Jews, are atheists; and all their good deeds, the alms that they give, all the benefits that they provide, are considered sin for them1 ; And They do all this just to show off. All the uncircumcised, according to legend, are nothing other than pagans, atheists, criminals2 , and circumcision of the Turks is considered incorrect3 . For this reason, a Jew can do good to the ungodly. Something like this: visiting their sick and being at their funerals just for the sake of your peace of mind, out of calculations, in order to avoid troubles and to gain their favor with the Jews4 .

Thus, thanks to the teachings of the Talmud and the explanations of the rabbis, that every the good that the law of Moses commands, and all the evil that it forbids to do - “neighbor, brother, comrade” - should be understood only in relation to the Jews, for non-Jews are not their neighbors, not brothers and not comrades. 1 Tract. "Bova-batra." l. 10,
2. 2 Tract. “We don’t give away”, l. 31, 2, pes. l.
92, 1. 3 Tract. "Avoyde-Zura." l. 27.1, tos. 4
Tract. "Gitin." l. 61.1.

Chapter 6

Conclusion from Talmudic teaching

The Jews could not merge with other nations; they stood outside the general ones everywhere interests and aspirations. Many events that had an impact on the destinies of peoples flashed over their heads, but everywhere they remained faithful servants only of their own. personal interest; without adhering to any of the warring sides, they served both. True, ill-treatment and widespread contempt for them could not to arouse in them affection towards the tribes and peoples around them; but progress and civilization, which has changed relations in many ways since the last century, and time should, it seems, erase the sad impressions of the past; nevertheless, however, the inexorable Talmud, with its authority, maintains the former in the Jews ill will. So, for example, the Talmud forbids a Jew to leave his animal in the goy's stable; a Jewish woman cannot remain alone among the goyim, because it is impossible to rely on them, and they are capable of murder1 . Jews shouldn't perform the duties of midwives for the wives of the goyim, because the child taken a Jewish midwife, will grow up in paganism; but goyim women can perform the duties of midwives for Jewish women: it is only necessary that Jewish wives observed such grandmothers. A Jewish woman should not breastfeed breastfeed the child of a goyim, but a goyim woman can do this in relation to a Jewish child, with the only condition that the feeding takes place in front of the Jews2 . It is forbidden invite a goy doctor to assist a person; especially not to be trusted medicines compiled by goyim[3] . A Jew can drink wine prepared by a goyim if a Jewish overseer supervised the operation . If a Jew hires a goy to carry his wine and does not stay away all the time, then the wine will not become unclean only if the hirer, when leaving, does not announce how long he will be absent for, because the goy, constantly expecting the return of the Jew, will not dare to defile the wine . Otherwise, the wine will become unclean[5] .

Machine Translated by Google

1 Tract. "Avoide-Zura", l. 26, 1 2
Tract. "Avoyde-Zura." l. 2.1. 3 Ibid.,
l. 27.1 4 Ibid., l.
61.1. 5 Ibid., l. 69.1.

During the era of Roman dominion over the world and general indifference to the fate of slaves, whom both religious and political laws left to the mercy of their masters, Jews were freely engaged in the slave trade. The book of Exodus (XXI, 2) says: “If you buy a Jewish slave, let him serve for six years, and in the seventh year set him free.” According to commentators on the Mishnah, this law applies exclusively to Jews and does not apply to non-believers. Although in the books of Exodus and Deuteronomy there are lenient rules in relation to the slave, his daughter and wife, Moses says this: “If someone hits his slave with a stick, he will not be punished for this, if the slave lives another day after that.” because he is his property." 1 Ref. XXI, 212. Applying this law to Gentiles with all severity, the Jews did not consider it a crime to mistreat slaves, and traded in them as one of the branches of trade. Jewish merchants went to Syria, Egypt, Numidia to purchase slaves, sometimes traveling through Gaul and Germany, and Rome was filled with crowds of these poor slaves every day. Under the whips of Jewish merchants, they were subjected to such merciless training that horses were not subjected to, and this was done to lure Roman libertines, who passionately loved slaves, to their goods. Sometimes Jews, by cunning or force, captivated women, children and girls and took them around the Roman markets, as if recommending them to the voluptuousness of the patricians. These merchants gathered near the temple of Mercury with the purpose that buyers could examine the living goods and determine whether there were any physical defects in it. Persia makes an allusion to this custom. Jewish merchants sold slaves without being responsible for their health: a label tied to the hair of the “goods” indicated the main condition of the bargain. If you believe modern evidence, the Jews treated their slaves, especially Christians, in the most cruel way, and even tried to seduce them into their faith with threats and beatings. When the teaching of Christ marked its strength by victory over paganism, its first enemies, the Pharisees, irritated by its success, spread various absurdities with the intention of arousing hostile feelings towards the Crucified on Calvary; Moreover, they combined these fictions with genuine words with which Christ denounced them. Christians, in the eyes of the Pharisees, were only apostates and worshipers of the “deceiver.” They declared that justice and high piety required the oppression of Christians to the end, and this new teaching was applied with special diligence in practice. The Apostle Paul, before his miraculous conversion, represents one of the fiery weapons of such teaching. The synagogue was not slow in introducing the custom of cursing Christians during worship, and the worshiper earnestly asked God for the extermination of all infidels. Later, many such rulings appeared in the Gemara, which teach that justice, charity, mercy and other virtues are not only should never be applied to a Christian, but in the latter case change their meaning and become criminal.

Chapter 7

The Talmud is the divine book of all Jews

The idea that the Talmud has not retained its former power to this day and does not enjoy a greater influence on the hearts of the Jews and an exceptional respected by the majority of them, will be completely unfounded. All these fanatics commandments coming from the ignorant darkness of medieval eras remain in the same strength for the Jews of the 20th century. True, some say that educated Jews they revere the Talmud as a historical work, and not as their own “alkoran”; what influence The Talmud decreases as education spreads among Jews, etc. But these opinions are completely unfair. Jews are divided, as is known, into two religious persuasions: Talmudists - with their ramifications - and Karaites. Some admit Talmud and then the Holy Scriptures of the Old Testament, - taking the first as a book of guidance containing all their law. Others admit alone Old Testament writings, completely ignoring and rejecting the Talmud as later, unimportant and perverted fabrications. Thus, a Jew who recognizes Talmud, called a Talmudist; who does not recognize the Talmud and professes only The Mosaic Law is Karaite. Now the question arises: if a Jew does not identify himself Karaite and at the same time does not adhere to the Talmud, then what in this case does he believe and what is he himself? Why does he teach his children according to the Talmud, if not in its entirety, then at least in brief extracts with constant reverence? Why not solemnly will he renounce the Talmud or will he not set out his new confession in accordance with it? Many Jewish high school students manage to study both the Talmud and they flaunt this among their fellow believers. Therefore, thanks to this devotion to the Talmud in any degree whatsoever, the above assumption regarding the opinion of the Talmud by the educated or civilized Jews will be unfoundedly and equivalently refuted by the opposite assumptions; and the Jews themselves of this “training” directly say that if they do good to Christians, then only out of hypocrisy and consciousness of one’s powerlessness in the state, and with this good they buy the favor of the strongest majority. Others explain that they do good according to the inclination of the heart to the extreme, indifferent to everyone kindness, although they realize that this is contrary to their law; but how, on the other hand, the law allows them to be hypocrites towards the goyim, then they can allow themselves do this kindness. However, these others add, if we ourselves dominated in the state, then they would make it an indispensable condition for the provision of good, so that those who used it converted to Judaism, otherwise they would have persecuted those the very ones who are now being helped. Finally, forcing everyone to convert to Judaism craftily wise Jewish authoritative Talmudic teachers raise concern for the universal salvation of humanity to a high ideal. Only the Jew has access to salvation - and this view of things completely agrees with the teaching of the Talmud.' 1 “Yad Chazaka”, § 4, ch. 8, no. 10.

With the above reasoning, we are not calling for persecution of Jews, but We only want to point out the complete immaturity and unwillingness of the Jews to use general rules of citizenship, especially in a Christian state.

These rights can become the property of the Jews only when they persistently succeed in education, enlightenment and humanity, that they themselves recognize the need popularly abandon Talmudic teachings and return to pure teaching Moses.

But the very purity of the teaching of the Law of Moses was influenced by the heartless self-conceit, selfish beliefs, deceit and depravity of the nature of the Talmudic Jews did not remain undamaged.

Humanity is possible only as a product of religion, therefore true humanity we can search only on the basis of true religion. But the word “humanity” is of Latin origin and thus originally belonged to a people to whom Revelation was alien. The Latin word humanitas means something completely different from what we are accustomed to understand by the expression "humanity". The Latin concept humanitas means the property or ability to lead always behaves like a gentleman: a subtly polite person who avoids rude actions and quarrels with anyone, treating, on the contrary, everyone with courtesy and helpful, amiable interlocutor, able to talk pleasantly and witty to chat - that's who has humanity in the Latin sense of the word; does it feed a deeper feeling for people, whether he loves each person exactly as a person, whether he respects his personal dignity and treats him accordingly look - which, according to our concept, constitutes the very essence of humanity - before all this no matter the Latin humanitas. But that other, true humanity does not depend on oneself man, and it is not he who creates her: she is the daughter of heaven, given to him from above. What relation does the Law of Moses have to this true humanity? On On the very first page we are struck by the words: and God created man in the image He created him for himself, in the image of God. This saying would be enough to prove the divine origin of the Pentateuch of Moses. Exploring the circle of actions of an ordinary person, we everywhere and always find the opposite: rather, a person creates God in his own image and likeness. Warlike and rude Assur, voluptuous and bloodthirsty Istar are types of Assyrian properties; in Zeus we have an ideal Hellenic husband; in Apollo and Ares - a prototype of the Hellenic youth in the sense mental and physical strength; in ancient Latin Jupiter we can easily recognize autocratic Roman pater familias; in Mars - a Roman soldier winning light; Wodan and Donar are purely Germanic heroes; Frika is a German mistress. This the phenomenon is so common and so based on human nature that one of the deepest ancient Greek thinkers could correctly say: if bulls and lions have a religion, they imagine God in the form of a bull or a lion. Only ancient Israel goes the opposite way, that is, it comes from God, defining the essence man, and thus lays an unshakable foundation of humanity: how could a man it is not enough to value or even despise your neighbor, once you have honored him with your like God?

Let us turn our attention to another place in the first book of the Pentateuch, which is read by the majority without any attention, namely chapter 10, so called the genealogy of peoples. Here all humanity is produced from three Noah's sons - Shem, Ham and Japheth. The superficial observer sees here only a dry and boring list of seventy tribes, which does not contain anything instructive. Meanwhile, in all non-Israeli literature there is nothing that can be could be put on a par with this dry and boring list of 70 tribes, if only we we will be able to make out its hieroglyphs. We come across lists of tribes and not only in Bibles, but what are they? These are boastful lists of robbed and ruined, enslaved and crushed nationalities, compiled by the victors for the glory of to oneself, to the reproach of those renamed, proof of hatred and contempt, the product of inhumanity in the most disgusting sense of the word. And in what spirit is our Israeli table infiltrated? There is no selfish calculation here, there are no base motives - this is a look of love, embracing the whole world, seeing in to all humanity, the great family of the children of God, who, as sons of one Heavenly Father, brothers among themselves. Therefore, the spirit of true and highest humanity, this daughter of heaven, raised on religious grounds, finds practical application here and is a necessary consequence of the doctrine that God created man according to to His image. Anyone to whom this deep meaning of the list of peoples has been revealed will put under the dry enumeration of seventy tribes are the same words as are inscribed on both stone tablets of Moses: “Love God and your neighbor as yourself.”

Machine Translated by Google

Only the best and most enlightened rabbis stood on the side of truth, believing that the most important of the commandments, containing the source of all others, was one that obliged us to love the one, true God. One of the scribes, who studied the Torah (law), as is known, decided to test the depth of Christ’s teaching and His wisdom. He asked a question that at first glance exposed his false and apparent non-spiritual view: “Teacher! What is the greatest commandment in the law?” Jesus answered that the greatest commandment is: “Hear, O Israel, our Lord is one Lord there is, and a second one similar to this: love your neighbor as yourself.” And really Indeed, the scribe was so sensible that he noticed this; and so conscience that recognized the answer of Jesus Christ as wise and high. “Well, Teacher,” he exclaimed, “You have spoken the truth.” Love for God with its inevitable consequence of love for man, our brother, as a result of love for our common Father, are the most important commandments: “On these In two commandments all the law and the prophets are established.” The scribe should have seen that Christ, answering the question, did not express readiness for an empty dispute in the spirit the quarrelsome logomachy in which the scribes and Pharisees became rigid. The commandments that He pointed out how the greatest were not special, but general - not selected from many, but containing all the others.

Chapter 8

Behavior of the Jews in Egypt

Even in Egypt, before the exodus, the Jews confused the local government with their strength. government. The king of Egypt, realizing the strength of the Jews, turns to his people with with the following words: “It is necessary to take measures against the Jews, because in case of war they will come to our enemies"[1]

The courtier of the Persian king Artaxerxes, in his report about the Jews, says: “And they do not listen to the laws of their country more than all languages and the king’s law.”[2] . Cicero says about the Jews: “Every people has its own religious rites, like us; but religion Jews are so repugnant to the greatness of the empire, the glory of our time and the laws of the republic that it inspires disgust in us . ”3 But the Jewish picture is even more gloomy. life in the proclamations of Sts. prophets, in the soul-shattering reproaches of the Savior himself and St. apostles, in the words of Ambrose, Augustine, John Chrysostom, Cyril of Alexandria, in the decrees of the Council of Nicaea, in the bitter reproaches of Basil Macedonian, in the view of the Jews of Horace, Tacitus, Herodotus, in the Code of Justinian, in the opinions of Theodosius, Henry III, Edward I, Honorius, Louis IX, in the decree of Napoleon I dated March 17, 1800, etc. In short: in testimonies of Jewish life each and every historical figure, no matter what nation and rank she belongs to belonged, no matter what era she lived in, a picture is drawn that is completely similar to above and quite familiar to everyone among whom Jews live. IN Germany looked at the Jewish question as a question of operational chemistry. 1 Exodus, pl. 10 tbsp. 2 Esther.

3 "Cicere for Flaccus" § 28.

Machine Translated by Google

Previously, anti-Semitism was used there, now a new way of combating Jewishness - asemitism. Asemitism consists in, without depriving the Jews of their complete civil rights, stay away from them, do not let them into the Christian environment societies and fight in every possible way against their penetration into the everyday life of the people. Anti-Semites say: deprive Jews of their rights. Asemitism says: let the Jews have all rights, but we do not want to communicate with them; we are on our own, they are on their own.

From the point of view of Zionist teaching, this new trend among Christians is very Nice. Zionists strive for the nationalization and isolation of the Jewish masses and fight against the assimilation of Jewry; Asemites from the opposite side go to the same goal. That is why the anger with which the Jews were met is completely incomprehensible. Asemites in Germany. And the anger is fierce. A weekly Jewish newspaper is published in Berlin. organ "General-Anzeiger fur die gesammten Interessen des Judenthums", and in this newspaper a sharp article against asemitism was published. “This is a new teaching,” it says, “still more dangerous than anti-Semitism.” Why is it more dangerous? Because "actual shutdown Jews from a Christian society is tantamount to the latter’s rejection of advanced ideas”; because “this teaching is an atavism, a hereditary absurdity left over from the average centuries”, etc., etc.

Asemitic teaching has already won many adherents. This is clear from the fact that Jewish newspaper reproaches even the most liberal political parties. Previously, these parties elected deputies without paying attention to whether they were Jews or not. Now in the German Reichstag there is not a single free thinker Jewish deputy, and in the Prussian Landtag there are only three of them. Even among the Social Democrats asemitism is making progress. There are only five Jewish socialists sitting in the Reichstag, but they are considered renegades and their popularity is falling from year to year.

It would be interesting to compare the growth of asemitism with the growth of Zionism. To me it seems that despite the apparent opposition of these two parties, they are moving hand in hand with each other and helping each other. Zionists want to separate Jews from other peoples, and Asemites want to separate Christians from Jews. Therefore, Jews should sincerely rejoice at the existence and prosperity of asemitism.

Chapter 9

Modern Jewish Moral Dogmatics

As long as a Jew remains a Talmudic Jew, he cannot be a friend a Christian, cannot feel either love or respect for him for one reason alone the above-mentioned religious reasons, repelling him from the follower Christian teaching; in addition, the Jew, following literally the law of Moses, which prescribes loving one’s neighbor and hating the enemy, considers it a legitimate matter hate everyone who does not profess Judaism. Consider the latter as enemies like us seen above, the Talmud instructs, which teaches: “Kolisruel aheem,” i.e., “all the Israelites are brothers." 1 Book. "Sider" dept. "Perek", page 214. Based on these Talmudic exhortations, the Jew, quite naturally, only loves the Jew, his only he calls “oh” - brother and friend - but he calls all non-believers “goyim” and in practice he proves his alienation towards everyone. Looking at the sick person and even dying of his familiar Christian neighbor, the Jew will not regret at all silently, but calmly say: “Loser-pegern,” that is, “let him die.”

Jews despise and reduce to the level of unclean animals all those who do not keeps the Law of Moses, does not profess Judaism, does not have the covenant of circumcision in himself, and, finally, who does not descend from Abraham. All such people are called “acer” orushe" - the wicked tribe of Esau, degenerates

Machine Translated by Google

Idumea. If

the Jews hear the intelligent speech of a Christian concerning Christian religion, then they usually say: “Di klipe izbaim,” i.e., “an evil spirit is in him,” therefore he speaks so smartly. The Jews are convinced that the goyim are not smart enough to do this It’s smart to reason like them. It happened more than once that the Jews dismantled some a book they liked. Due to the fact that the author was a Christian, it was highly valued low. If it had been compiled by a “yiddishe kop,” that is, a Jewish head, then the book would, of course, be good, but as its author is a goy whose head is “forshtopt,” that is, closed, then it is worth nothing . To a Jew a Christian seems so insignificant that he He thanks God every day for the fact that he was created not as a “goyim”, but as a Jew. How Jewish They place themselves highly in relation to their intelligence, as can be seen from the book “Sider Gagodo”, which they read on Easter evening. “We,” they say, “must pass on from generation to generation what the Lord did for us after we were brought out of Egypt, despite the fact that we are all “hahomim,” that is, wise and wise, and “non-warlords.” - knowledgeable in everything, and especially in the law of God, with which Jehovah adorned us like a crown, and so on. Signs alienation are based on the strength of their religious dogma, the belief that exists in in the world there is only one human person - a Jew, yet others must be considered as if non-existent. “Come out from among the nations and form your own individual, and know that from now on you one with God; Destroy the rest, or turn them into slaves, or exploit them. Believe in victory over the whole world; believe that everything will submit to you. Strictly disdain everyone, and with no one in everyday life don't tell yours. And even when you lose your land, its political significance individuals, when you are scattered over the face of all the earth among all nations - all equals: believe everything that is promised to you once and for all; believe that everything will come true, but for now live, abhor, unite, exploit - and wait, wait!” This is the whole essence of the idea of Jewish moral dogma, and then there are internal and mysterious laws according to legend. The newspaper “Novoe Vremya” once published correspondence from Starodub Chernigov province. The correspondence reported that the landowners almost all of their the forests were sold to Jews, who, in order to force them to buy material for construction houses are burned down in villages and cities, bribing boys and others to do this landless and homeless poor people who have nothing now. Sometimes, in order to achieve their plans, Jews use vodka: they will give some poor soul a drink and they will persuade you to set it on fire. Duty-free trade in vodka was terribly developed here: a rare innkeeper had a patent, and yet an indispensable resident of every village a Jew appears, and sometimes more than one; the occupation of these individuals is the sale of vodka and reception to pledge various things; the purpose of the settlement among the peasants is to fleece and swindle to the world. The villagers do not report all this, fearing justice and eventual ruin. It’s hard to believe if we say that some of the former rich landowners of Starodub now need a piece of bread and take it baked, at the expense of the future, from Jews. The given example, one of the weak ones, does not serve as an embodiment of the idea of the teaching about exploitation? What people, other than the Jews, are capable of such unwavering following in the footsteps of his teaching. Do not the Jews have the right to say: “We are the first among people,” seeing themselves ruling everywhere, cutting hair with impunity, while Strigomae suffer and do nothing to save themselves. How not to be surprised the genius of Peter I, who foresaw disasters from the Jews and treated them with disgust and righteous indignation.

Chapter 10

Crimes of Jews against Christians

(Extract from the register book of the Vilna Archaeological Commission, volume XXIX)

“1680, March 30. Voznoy’s statement about the confiscation of church belongings from Pinsk Jews items stolen from the Pinsk Prechistenskaya Church...

1680, April 30. Statement by Pinsk archpriest Pyotr Kurtsilovich about theft church things by the bell ringer of the Prechistensky Church and about the confiscation of some of them from Pinsk Jews, at whose instigation the bell ringer stole...

1680, May 8. Complaint from the priest of the Grodzinsky church, Yakov Yasinsky, about beating of him and his students by the Semitic Jew Leizer Yuzefovich... 1680, June 5. Trial for sacrilege and theft church things committed in the Musnitsa Church by Jews... 1680, June 28.

Tribunal decree awarding elders of the Jewish Brest synagogue, as well as the Jew Misan with his wife and son, to death and payment 200 kopecks of Lithuanian groschen for the kidnapping and killing of a convert to Christianity the faith of the Jewish Mariana, daughter of Misan...

1680, August 17. Complaint of Damian of Pikar against the Brest Jews who inflicted a serious wound on his servant with a firearm... 1680, September 10.

Complaint of priest Afanasy Kankovsky against a Jew Shmoyla Vigdorovich and his sons, who inflicted on his son, daughter-in-law and their children severe beatings and some property was stolen... 1680,

December 4. Complaint from students of the Jesuit Brest Collegium about grievances and beatings inflicted on them by the Brest Jews... 1681,

November 1. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews to Iekitsa the slaughterer, Leib Izrailevich and Shmoil Zlotnyk to be burned and paid twelve thousand eight hundred and four zlotys and twenty Polish groschen for the theft of church items, utensils and jewelry from the Tsimkovsky church and for their blasphemy...

1684, January 10. Statement from the carriers on the recognition of Grishka Pavlovich, minister Franciscan Monastery of Pinsk for stealing a silver wreath from an icon of God Mother and selling it to the Jew Nahman Novakhovich, who persuaded him to new thefts of church things... 1684, February 14. Statement from the carrier about the capture of the Jew Solomon Aronovich, who robbed a church in the village of Odryzhin...

1684, July 2. Complaint from the priest of the Stavetsky Church Peter Kurtsilovits about Jew Shestakovich for the latter's withholding of the tithes going to the church from the mill he rented, for destroying grain and meadows and inflicting severe beatings the priest's servants and threats to kill him to death... 1685,

February 5. Report from carriers about the investigation of the case regarding the participation of the Vilkomirsky Jew Lazar the Reznik in the theft of things and documents in Sheshol - the estate of Vilna bishop...

1686, May 8. Complaint of Rodzevich against the Vilna Jews Amor Aronovich and Aron Ersherovich and other Jews about taking money through robbery and beatings...

1696, May 30. Tribunal decree for the detention and seduction of Christian servants at home to pay a fine and eternal exile... 1698, April 10.

Decision on the complaint of Markian Zyabkin against the Jews: Yudka, Iovzya and Leiba Mevshovichov for inflicting serious beatings on him and robbing him of things...

1698, September 13. Complaint of Aristotle Tour Zubitsky about the insults and robberies caused by Mosha Polyak and others... 1700, June 19. Tribunal decree condemning several Jews to burning for the theft of church vessels they committed in the Komai Church and precious jewelry from icons and money...

1700, July 19. Tribunal decree awarding the Jews Zelman, Chaim, Judas and Ilya Abramovich to be burned and pay rental costs for conversion chapels in the Kozhangorodok estate to the Jewish chapel... 1700,

August 9. Remission decree of the main Lithuanian tribunal on the complaint Polotsk Jesuits against Polotsk Jews and their killing of a Christian woman... 1701, March 7. Tribunal decree awarding the elders of the Brest synagogues and all affected Jews of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania to the secondary information and the death penalty, as well as the payment of arrears to Andrey Rimsha collection for the maintenance of troops and rewards for inflicting serious injuries on him and his man beatings...

1712, September 18. Tribunal decree awarding all Brest Jews involved in the case, to be quartered and paid to the Polesie archpriest Nestor Volkovich two thousand nine hundred thirty-five gold Polish for murder priest of the Brest St. Michael's Cathedral Church Vlasiy Filipovich, inflicting severe beatings on the archpriest himself... 1719, May 6. Tribunal decree awarding the Brest Jews Fulfa Evnovich and his son Israel to in-surname, death penalty and payment of 6200 gold Polish for robbing the coffin of the deceased Potseyeva, buried in the Brest monastery Bernardines... etc.

Volume XXIX presents the work of the Vilna Commission for the analysis of ancient acts, according to the old but ever-living question about the Jews in North-Western Rus'. In the present The new volume includes 245 acts of the most varied content. Getting started examination of documents, appears with the irresistible force and clarity of that Gordian knot of the Jewish question. This conclusion is that the first Polish kings and grand dukes of Lithuania when installing new settlers from southwestern Europe - the Jews - were allowed a fatal, historical an irreparable mistake!..

When they first appeared before them, bowed, exhausted by the historical fate, oppressed and poverty-stricken Jewish settlers, they accepted them very favorably as their fellow brothers, made them the subject of their special care and, as their personal fruit and gift, settled in their state, widely surrounding them with their privileges and protecting the inviolability of their inner household, religious and social order. Under such conditions in ancient The first Jews appeared in Lithuania.

Under such conditions of patronage from the authorities, the Jews immediately recognized himself before the local native population of Lithuania and Poland as privileged class and looked contemptuously at the indigenous population. Hence all the antagonism, everything unnatural, so sad in state life, cold, alien friendliness between strangers and natives. This sad hostile trait runs through the entire centuries-old Jewish history. This feature becomes visible and shines through in all acts of volumes 28 and 29 of the Vilna Archaeological Commission. The Jews, fully aware of the exceptional position they had acquired in Lithuania and looking at ourselves as a privileged class of Talmudic scholars, future world rulers are just waiting for the appearance of the messiah. They looked and looked at Christians as a labor force and their future slaves.

The natural, native, dominant population of Lithuania looked at the new and proud settlers - Jews, as exploiters of the benefits and gifts of his land, were treated distrustful, unfriendly and in many cases downright hostile towards them, giving at times they feel the strength and heaviness of their master's hand.

Royal privileges and lists are given in volume 29 of the acts in detail No. 32. The Jews received the most important and significant privileges from the first Polish kings and grand dukes of Lithuania. These letters of grant became the basis for grants coming on behalf of all subsequent supreme rulers of Lithuania. IN In the above-mentioned royal documents, there is a special royal concern for the arrangement of the position of this artificially planted fruit - the Jewish settlers: either new privileges are given to them, or old ones are confirmed; That they are given new reliefs; then their internal troubles are settled, and mainly, they are provided with protection and protection from imaginary oppression from Christian side. Their own natural people are embarrassed and narrowed These rights were due to intrigues and false denunciations of the Jews, slander before the authorities. When the crime of the Jews occurred, in the cases filed and clear evidence of the killing of Christian infants was issued by royal decrees to stop cases were initiated without investigation and trial, and it was strictly forbidden to initiate cases of this kind. Then the Jewish fanatics were happy to try to continue their blasphemous sorcery. This is, for example, a requirement in the privileges of royal was regarding the presentation of witnesses to prove this crime three Jews and four Christians, and in case of their failure to present the award accuser to death penalty. From the above group of royal documents, in the first one the king Vladislav IV in 1647 prohibited the povet diets from establishing new taxes on Jews, in the second, Jan Casimir in 1650 orders not to force those Jews who converted to Christianity during the Cossacks to remain in Christianity wars. The third royal decree of 1664 allowed Jews to pay their debts bills instead of cash, etc.

TREATISE II ON ALIENS

Chapter 1

Legislation of the ancient peoples and Moses regarding aliens

A thousand years before Christ, all ancient peoples had such state law on aliens that all aliens, wanting to get civil equality with the indigenous population, were obliged to accept religion natives, which is confirmed by the legislation of Moses: “And if a stranger lives among you, or whoever was among you during the generations yours, and offers a sacrifice for a pleasing aroma to the Lord, then he must do as you do. For you, the congregation of the Lord, and for the stranger who sojourns among you, there is a statute one, a statute forever throughout your generations; as you are, so shall the stranger be before the Lord. Law Let there be one and the same rights for you and for the stranger who lives with you” (Num. XV, 14-16).

“The stranger who settles among you shall be to you the same as your native; love him as himself” (Lev. XIX, 34).

“If your brother becomes poor and declines among you, then support him, whether he is a stranger he or a settler” (Lev. XXV, 35).

Involuntary alien killers could enjoy the right of asylum on a par with the sons of Israel (Num. XXV, 15).

“Judge justly both brother and brother, and his stranger” (Deut. 1:16). But by equating aliens with natives regarding rights, the law Moses equalizes them regarding duties, civil and religious. In other words, the aliens had to accept and practice religion indigenous inhabitants. Violation of laws is established according to the rights of Moses without exceptions: equal responsibility for natives and aliens.

The legislation of Moses continues: "But you shall keep My statutes and My laws, and do not do all abominations, neither the native nor the stranger who dwells among us" (Lev. XVIII, 25).

"Whether a stranger or a native blasphemes the name of the Lord, he will be put to death. You shall have one judgment, both for the stranger and for the native" (Lev. XXIV, 16-22).

"All holidays - Passover, Tabernacles, etc., aliens must celebrate along with natives" (Deut. XVI, 11-17). "In sacrifices and purifications, strangers must observe the same decrees like the sons of Israel" (Lev. XVII; Num. XV, 14-16).

"Newcomers, like the natives, must listen to and learn the Law God" (Deut. XXXXI, 12; Joshua VII, 33-35).

Chapter 2

The Jews everywhere stubbornly avoided the application of the Mosaic Law

In all ancient states there was a law of aliens, similar to the law Moses: in Egypt, Alexandria, Antioch, Caesarea, etc., the Jews everywhere observed strictly separatism and despised native religions, the natives were looked upon with contempt as atheists. The Jews everywhere refused to honor the locals religions and therefore incurred malice, contempt, hatred and persecution from native peoples. From Alexandria, the main hotbed of Judeophobia, hatred was transferred to other centers of Hellenism and finally passed to the Romans, accustomed to demanding from everyone blind obedience and resigned submission; they met a people among the Jews stubborn and cunning. The oppression of the Roman government made itself felt strongly to the Jews. The struggle turned out to be too unequal and led the Jews to death and suffering. The Jews became the laughing stock of one and all, they were openly insulted everywhere, and literature and on stage were ridiculed. The poets chose the Jews as targets for their caustic satire and their wit and ridiculed everything that was dear and sacred to them (Juvenal, Martial). However, the Jews remained what they had been for thousands of years, and nothing changed them - no torture, no execution, no ridicule.

Apion, a pagan writer and philosopher, distinguished himself most of all; he did Judeophobia is almost his craft, and he owes mainly to it the fame that he acquired in history. Apion argued that the Jews placed in their temple donkey's head, they honored it and honored it with the most solemn worship services. At the same time, he assured that that head disappeared during the looting of the temple. Antiochus Epiphanes, because they found that it was made of gold and was worth a lot of money. It is interesting that such a historical message arises. For the first time it expressed by Poseidonius, and after him repeated by Apollonius, Molon, Justin, Apion, Plutarch, Diodorus Siculus, Tacitus (Hist. V, 3, 4) and a certain Democritus (from Svida). Muller (1 p. 258-259) gives an excellent explanation of this the donkey cult attributed to the Jews, indicating the connection of this legend with identification by Manetho and subsequently Poseidonius (Jews and Hyksos). Connection with the Hyksos Jews, the god Typhon and the donkey found a vivid illustration in the reported Plutarch (de Iside et Osir. 31, cf. Tacit. Hist. V, 4). Apion was the first to transfer Judeophobia from the realm of theory to practical soil, openly preaching hatred of Jews through his systematic agitation, creating

Alexandria, the “Jewish question,” which, thanks to his efforts, soon found its decision in the merciless bloody massacre of Jewish victims, excited them people's revenge. In terms of his personal qualities and activities, Apion is completely sense of the word can be considered the prototype of heroes who after him during for a long series of centuries they labored, exposed to dangers for the benefit of mankind. Apion, as a talented writer, put everything that he put forward against the Jews into such a piquant and mocking form that it could not fail to produce an effect. But Apion went even further. It was not enough for him to humiliate his Jewish nation, he wanted especially to take out his anger on the Alexandrian Jews, who stood out in numbers, wealth and seized a selfish and prominent position in the first and most famous city of Egypt, and for this purpose he tried to use intensified his art. Aren't the Jews in our times the same as in Alexandria, in all of us? In Jewish cities on Saturdays no one has access on the sidewalks: everything is noisy and shiny from the dandy attire of the Jews. The thousandth continuous mass is moving, it is important swaying, dressed in the first Parisian fashion: velvet, silk, gold and diamonds, all from honest labor; a poor, powerless and oppressed nation that cries, groans and sobs in anticipation of the Messiah, who would lead her out of slavery in Palestine. Now, if the Messiah had appeared and called the Jews with him to Palestine, then, probably, the Jewish aristocracy and dandies would have wept more than on the terrible night “enkipur”, it would be a pity for them to leave Russian slavery.

In all these phenomena, in the oppression and oppression of our indigenous population by aliens - in its economic dependence and exploitation; in flight from him conscription to Asia and America - it’s hard not to see us advancing God's punishments predicted in ancient times for violating His commands: “The stranger who is among you will rise above you higher and higher, and you you will sink lower and lower. He will be the head, and you will be the tail" (Deut. XXVIII, 43-52).

Chapter 3

The revolt of the Talmudists against Christians

Talmudic Jews campaigned with all their might for a war between Japan and Russia, about this say both Russian and foreign observers. The Paris Presse, for example, categorically expressed that “Japan is not alone in waging war on Russia: it has the all-powerful ally is Jewry,” and that it is precisely the Kishinev agitation that follows explain the "blindness of the United States taking Japan's side." In two weeks before the Russo-Japanese War, P. Tverskoy reported from the USA: “Ever since of the Kishinev pogrom, a well-known, very significant part of the American press, controlled by our Jewry, systematically and with great persistence stirred up our public opinion against Russia, influencing at the same time government, and on its foreign policy. The Russian reader would never even think the possibility of spreading such ugly absurdities may come, such malicious slander with which this press persistently showered the Russian people all the time! It was this insistence that caused the unpleasant political incident of the past summer, when President Roosevelt, who had at first twice unconditionally refused, finally yielded to the pressure of united European and American Jewry and sent St. Petersburg has its famous performance. The agitation, however, did not stop there and still continued, even gradually intensifying, and now that the Russian-Japanese the conflict, apparently, began to take an acute form, suddenly grew to sizes previously unheard of even in America. December 15 (28) appeared in print a sensational telegram, allegedly from Chisinau, that a new pogrom is being organized on January 6, that printed notices about it have already been posted throughout the city, apparently with the knowledge of the authorities." This telegram was picked up by all the "yellow journalism" of the country, especially by Hearst's newspapers, the most sensational publications in the whole North America, publishing in the cities of New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles and controlling very widespread publications in other large centers His (Hearst's) newspapers instantly organized a real crusade against Russia, basing it on the above-mentioned telegram, and being disseminated precisely in the most troubled areas of our population and controlling almost everyone professional agitators in all fields, foaming at the mouth and unprecedented They began to strive for further intervention of our government in Russian affairs. In recent days, the entire front pages of these newspapers have been occupied exclusively with the most outrageous attacks on Russia, as you can yourself see from the attached samples. It is clear how this tactic influences our public opinion. Just two or three years ago, thanks firmly traditions established since the internecine war of 1861-65, sympathy these would have been entirely on the Russian side - now, unfortunately, these traditions, apparently, have completely lost their strength and the persistent, ferocious Jewish agitation with Every day it turns Americans more and more against the Russians the people, etc.».

Chapter 4

The Militant Spirit of Judaism

The attitude of overseas Jews is too obvious, but also Russian Jews are no more peaceful. This is confirmed by an interesting letter from Kishinev artisan head A.I. Stepanov, published in Znamya.

"Elected representative from the Chisinau craft society for participation in the third congress on technical and vocational education, I arrived at the opening of the congress and participated in the debates on December 27, 28 and 29 last in the 7th section on the issue of trade apprenticeship. During this debate I have repeatedly was stopped by persons not belonging to the craft society, and some of them, apparently of Jewish origin, were inflicted on me insults, which I then asked the chairman of the section, Mr. Isakov, to include all this in protocol. Finding this attitude towards me from the Jewish public at the congress inappropriate and offensive, I stopped attending the convention. They stopped visiting with me Congress foreman of St. Petersburg - Zagrebin, Moscow - Alexandrov, Kursk - Sushkov, Kazan and other representatives of the craft class, and only on January 4 I again came to the office located in the university building to receive the diaries and to record your address for sending me the printed proceedings of the congress.

When leaving the bureau room into the corridor, I was stopped by several Jews, who approached me with the question: am I a Chisinau craft leader? Did Stepanov and I testify at the trial in the case of the Kishinev pogrom? I answered them affirmatively. After that they started shouting: "You are a scoundrel, a scoundrel, a thug, you are a murderer, you shed blood... It's a shame for the congress that you are participating here... Get out." Stepanova..." At this cry, a crowd of several hundred people, men, ran out into the corridor and women, mainly Jews and Jewish women, and began shouting: "Down with Stepanova, beat Stepanov, death to Stepanov!" Fortunately, the student administrators who were at the bureau took me under protection and invited me to go into the next room. and locked me up. I heard the tramp of a crowd running up to the door and shouting: "Give us a killer, we'll deal with him...", and the crowd was pressing against the door, knocked and apparently tried to break it. The student stewards prevented her, and thanks only to them and the secretary of the congress, Mr. Almedingen, I was saved from the terrible revenge of the angry crowd of Jews, who had positively reached the point of complete madness. At this time, someone shouted: “Gentlemen, stop the noise, don’t disgrace the university, give me your word of honor that you will not lay hands on Stepanov, then I will take him out of the university building.” To this the crowd responded with a cry: “Gentlemen, we will limit ourselves only to his shameful expulsion and will not defile our hands with this shameful murderer.” And others shouted: “We’ll tear him to pieces...” Then the secretary of the congress, Mr. Almedingen, opened the door and asked me to go out, accompanied by him. And I was forced to go through the gauntlet of a huge crowd, which accompanied me with abuse and bullying until I went out into the street, where I went out without a hat, galoshes and a fur coat, which a few minutes later one of the student stewards brought to me. Experiencing mental anguish under the weight of shame and insults inflicted on me by the crowd, misled by dozens of Jews who took part in the congress, to which the St. Petersburg Imperial University did the honor of hospitably opening its doors for cultural work, and not for such a shameful scandal, I I consider it my duty to state this to refute all the false rumors spread about me by Jews who claim that students also took part in the scandal. On the contrary, it was only thanks to the resourcefulness and noble intercession of the university students that I escaped the vile revenge of the Jews and the mob incited by them. As for the motives that prompted this attempt by the Jews to settle accounts with me here, they can be explained very simply: my opinion on the causes of the Jewish pogrom was published in No. 124 of the Znamya newspaper for 1903. And from then on, Jews began to persecute me in Chisinau. They, however, were not satisfied with the persecution at every step that continued continuously in Chisinau. And so they did not hesitate to settle their score even here, in the capital, within the walls of the university. If for some reason the Jews found that the opinion I expressed in the press about the causes of the Jewish pogrom, as well as my testimony at the trial and investigation, was incorrect, they had every opportunity to refute me in the press or even bring me to justice. Only Jews can dare to resort to such a method of retribution, and most importantly - in such a situation.” In the Russian capital, among the million Russian population, in the hall of the university

The Russian craftsman was almost torn to pieces by a bunch of Jews! Tell me honestly, is this similar to the “oppression” of Jews by the Russians, which was shouted about all over the world? Is it possible to allow a bunch of Germans, Poles, and Finns to allow themselves such insolence in St. Petersburg? But the Jews allowed it, and nothing is heard of bringing them to trial. Is it possible for even one second to imagine a similar scene in London or New York, that is, at a university in broad daylight

Jews threatened to tear to pieces an Englishman or an American for their unpleasant testimony in court? But here it turns out that this is possible; this happened on January 4, three weeks before the war. Similar violence occurred here and there in other cities, for example, in Kharkov, where the Jews took possession of the Russian library and beat Mr. Bushinsky, shouting: “Beat him, you Russian pig! We are the bosses here!” etc. If in our main centers the Jews are already making such a challenge to all of Russia, then what can we say about their attitude towards us abroad? The joy of Viennese Jews over the death of “Petropavlovsk” Vienna, April 3 (17). The death of "Petropavlovsk" caused wild delight among local Japanophiles. According to an eyewitness, in the Zeit shop on Gärtnerstrasse, after a telegram was posted with the news of the death of the Russian battleship, Japanophiles threw themselves into each other's arms and kissed, filling the main street of Vienna with exclamations in honor of Japan. The Jewish Morgen-Zeitung published an editorial under with the characteristic title “Buddha defeated Christ.” In articles of other newspapers only They sincerely regret Vereshchagin. The military observer of the Neue Freie Presse thinks that the Japanese, having captured Korea, will not go to Manchuria and will limit themselves to landing on peninsula in order to restore Shimonoseki's article by taking Port Arthur agreement.

In Dvinsk, January 29, at 11 pm, to the 7th company of the 97th infantry A police official appeared from the Livonia Regiment and addressed the time. p.d. sergeant-major, long-term senior non-commissioned officer Konokhov with a request to provide immediate assistance in detaining intruders during their gathering in private house, opposite the barracks. Non-commissioned officer Konokhov, realizing that the request the established procedure for resolution will require so much time that the meeting will have time disperse, without delaying a minute, he brought out the 6 lower ranks of his company as directed official to the gathering place, where, together with the policemen, he detained 12 Jews from material evidence convicting them of political unreliability bodies.

Chapter 5

The beginning of the history of Lithuanian Jews

When Jewish settlers appeared in the Russian-Lithuanian state, here had its ancient, natural population, consisting of the Russian people and a small Lithuanian tribe; this population had its own common Russian language, its own general laws of the court, their morals and customs; this population alone belonged the right to dominate and dispose of one's own land. All new settlers on this land according to an irresistible, natural order things had to become in organic connection with this natural dominant population, to submit to its laws, to accept its language, to become familiar with its rights and customs and expect from him as many personal benefits, rights and liberties as he, weighing his own benefits and interests, finds possible and pleases give them those. For only in this order of things will the life of the new settlers The new Russian-Lithuanian country could have a completely natural, calm, peaceful and, as far as possible, happy course and development.

The great, powerful organism of the Russian-Lithuanian state would be absorbed and assimilated a handful of the first newly arrived Jewish settlers and nothing would disturb the inner peace of the earth. But about all this, to great sorrow history, the first Polish kings and the Grand Dukes of Lithuania forgot, they forgot who came and bowed before them, asking for their great mercy of new present the Jewish settlers to their Russian-Lithuanian ruling people, place them under their laws, at their complete disposal and dependence; these new settlers, unable to cope with the will and desire of their people, they, as a gift and fruit of their single care and mercy, transplanted onto the soil of their state, without any living, organic connection with the natural, dominant population; Thus, from the very beginning they formed, as it were, two independent friend of the camp, as if two independent currents, excluding each other. Not subject to dispute - it was in their sovereign power to show great mercy to the Jewish strangers, but this mercy should not have ended with the fact that the native people, the indigenous, dominant population of the state are offered favorably accept into your environment, under your general laws and to your fullest order of these foreign strangers, to take care of them so that they enjoyed life and well-being entirely with them.

The first kings and grand dukes of Lithuania, and after them all their successors about this forgotten and overlooked; and this is their fatal irreparable mistake!.. Hence all the antagonism, everything unnatural, so sad in state life, the cold, alien attitude between the newcomers and the native population of ancient Lithuania. The Jewish newcomers, having received the privileges of freedom, immediately became proud of the native population and looked at them as slaves subordinate to them; the Jews leased all state estates and lands, excise taxes, and all state monetary fees - customs, in a word, the entire state treasury was in Jewish hands, they had power over the working people; They were punished with rods and whips and so on. All this embittered the native population against the Jews, and therefore popular uprisings against the Jews very often occurred. The Lithuanian Jews did not want to know anyone else except their supreme benefactors, and those through whom they could approach their new favors; they cared only about strengthening and expanding their isolated position, about their personal interests. With the transition of Lithuania to the rule of the Russian Empire, all the royal privileges given to the Jews by the Polish kings fell, and they were subordinated to the general laws of the Russian state, but the spirit and general structure of life they adopted from these privileges, their “kahal”, remained intact to this day, why and now in Russia they represent a “state within a state.”

Chapter 6

Privileges of the Polish kings to the Lithuanian Jews Of the 31 royal privileges given to the Lithuanian Jews, 7 are significant and apply to all Jews of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania. Of these, in the first, King Vladislav IV in 1647 forbade the povet sejmiks to establish new taxes for the Jews; in the second, Jan Casimir in 1650 orders not to force those Jews who converted to Christianity during the Cossack wars to remain in Christianity; in the third, the same king in 1664 allows the Jews to pay debts with bills instead of cash; in the fourth, the same king in 1681 assigns the four main kahals of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania a period until the end of their disputes on the issue of mutual subordination (the Polish king accepted the role of the Jewish pope); in the fifth, the same king in 1682 imposes a ban on the Jews so that they do not start lawsuits and persecution of each other for 12 weeks; in the sixth King Yang

III in 1682 grants the right of free trade to the four main kagals - Brest, Grodno, Pinsk and Vilna; in the seventh, King Sigismund Augustus in 1564, as a result of a petition that the royal “enemies” (officials) judged, punished, even condemned them to the death, ruined them, clearly contrary to their rights received by them from his predecessors, Polish kings, orders all royal enemies, princes, lords, elders, voits, mayors and all others, both spiritual and secular, so that in the event of an accusation of killing Christian children and desecration of the Holy Mysteries, no one dares to judge the suspected Jew with his own court, would not have sent him to the royal court, presenting in this case four most reliable witnesses from Christians and three Jews; an accuser who fails to prove this crime “may be punished by punishment.” What freedom the Jews had in everything. Is it possible for the Jews, and three more, to testify against their own, even if anyone would want to do this, because he knows that he himself is in danger of death, and religion so strictly forbids testifying against one’s own? Finally, in the eighth document, the same king in 1566, regarding the case in the city of Wielsk in Podlasie and a new such case, ordered the charter to be published everywhere.

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 7

Tribunal decrees on Jewish robberies and murders

On the occasion of royal privileges, Jews in Lithuania began to openly beat Orthodox clergy and rob churches. In 1668,

October 7 days. Statement of beatings by a Jew Mosha peasant Efimy Vitetsky. In 1669,

August 1st day. Complaint of the Pinsk magistrate against the Pinsk Jews who contrary to the privileges of the city of Pinsk, they seized into their own hands the entire grain trade and hot drinks, set up many distilleries and houses and thus deprived the city legal income and brought the Christian inhabitants of the city to extreme poverty and squalor. In 1671, March 20th day. Statement of several witnesses about the commission of Jews the murder of an unknown person - a Christian. In 1673, April

30 days. Tribunal decree awarding elders of the Jews synagogues of Mogilev, Orsha and Gorets to death by quartering and payment of four thousand three hundred kopecks of Lithuanian groschen for the death of Andrei Ivanitsky and inflicting severe beatings on Zakhary Prasolovich. In 1689,

July 18th. Tribunal decree awarding the elders of the Vilna synagogue to expulsion for harboring bandits and for threatening to kill a creditor who demanded payment of forty-seven thousand one hundred and eighty-five Polish gold debt and penalty to Daniil Puzyna.

In 1689, August 20th day. Tribunal decree awarding the Vilna Jew Doctor Polyak and some Vilna Jews for expulsion and payment to Yuri Sapega twenty-three thousand one hundred and twenty gold Polish for assistance in escaping arrested Jew Heliash.

In 1712, September 18, a Tribunal decree awarding all Brest Jews to be quartered and paid two thousand to the Polish archpriest Nestor Volkovich nine hundred thirty-five gold Polish for the murder of the priest of Brest St. Michael's Cathedral Church of Vlasiy Filipovich, serious battery to the archpriest himself, occupation of church land for a Jewish cemetery and non-payment money and food supplies for the clergy going to the church...

Chapter 8

Criminal convictions Jews in the 18th century

In 1701, January 8 days. Tribunal decree awarding Minsk petty officers synagogue and all Minsk Jews to infamilia and payment to Minsk Petopavlovsky debt and penalties to the monastery. In 1701, February 11 days. Tribunal decree awarding chiefs of kagals Brest, Grodno, Pinsk and Vilna to death penalty and payment to brothers Bulgakov debt and penalties.

In 1701, March 5 days. Tribunal decree awarding synagogue elders Minsk Voivodeship to death penalty and payment of debt to Eva Rashomska Vinkova and pennies.

In 1702, April 18th. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews Belarusian kagals to infamia and death penalty for non-payment of 25,000 tax fee for the maintenance of the army.

Machine Translated by Google

In 1702, May 6 days. Tribunal decree awarding the Jews different cities of the Minsk Voivodeship to information and payment of a fine for failure to pay postal duties during the Swedish war.

In 1702, December 16 days. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews Ivan Volku owes the infamy and payment of Starobinsky Kagala.

In 1702, December 22 days. Tribunal decree condemning the Jews Keidan synagogue to death penalty and payment to Konstantin Yaskold of his dues amounts...

In 1703, March 3 days. Tribunal decree awarding Minsk petty officers kagala to death and payment of debt to Nikolai Dovoina. In 1703, September 7 days. Tribunal decree awarding petty officers Vilna Kahal to death penalty and payment of the debt of Sofia Skolskaya.

In 1703, November 7 days. Tribunal decree condemning all Jews principality of Zhmud to infamilia, death penalty and payment to Konstantin Volsky long and penny.

In 1704, October has 24 days. Tribunal decree awarding Stolpetsky Jews Joachim and Ovzer to infamiliy and payment to Ivan Kabetsky fifteen thousand five hundred and forty-nine Polish gold for salt and freight of vitamins sent to Korolevets.

In 1705, July 17th. Tribunal decree condemning all Jews Vilna synagogue to eternal exile and infamiliarity and payment to priest Mikhail Puzyna long and penny.

In 1705, November 27 days. Commissioner's decision on the complaint of the Russian merchant Ilya Tufanov from Toropets against the Vilna Jews who plundered his goods on the Jurburg customs.

In 1708, September 26 days. Tribunal decree awarding petty officers Vilna synagogue to death penalty, for preventing Regina Mirskaya from collecting from them the duty that followed her.

In 1708, October 25th day. Tribunal decree awarding the Jews the Great of the Principality of Lithuania to exile and infamiliarity, as well as payment of thirty-five thousand two hundred and thirty gold Polish coins, which were sent from them to support the infantry main Lithuanian tribunal. In 1709, April 20th. Tribunal decree awarding petty officers Vilna synagogue to expulsion, infamiliarity and payment of debt and penalties to Mikhail Mickiewicz. In

1709, May 15th. Tribunal decree awarding Lida foreman synagogue to the infamiliarity and death penalty, as well as to the payment of debt and penalties to

Thomas Iovtsy. Similar sentences in the XXIX volume of the Vilna Commission awarded to There are about 200 acts of exile and death penalty. If all these decisions were carried out, then there would not be a single Jew left in Lithuania, but it is clear from everything that there were no Jews There is no other way to obtain debt payment than under threat of expulsion, burning, quartering and hanging. All acts are filled with death sentences, but none one act the sentence was not carried out. After the death sentence was passed, the Jew tried to pay the debt and penalties, i.e. a fine, and the death sentence was not imposed fulfillment, only for the future the Jew had to be careful and avoid deal with the court.

Chapter 9

Jewish attack on soldiers and Christians in the town of Shklov

The present case began with a hearing in 1899 on October 25 in Mogilev, in a special presence of the Kyiv Court Chamber with the participation of class representatives. By The indictment presents the case in this form.

In July 1899, the lower ranks of the Alexandropol and Khaltsikovsky infantry regiments were at field work in the vicinity of Shklov, Mogilev district. On July 25, some of them were released by their superiors to this place; here they are We split into groups of 2-3 people and walked in such groups around Shklov; some They drank from them.

Shortly after noon, fighting began between the soldiers and local Jews. isolated collisions. Three drunken soldiers were chased by a crowd of Jewish boys, scolding them and throwing stones and sticks at them. When abandoned by a Jew the stone hit one of the soldiers in the back, the latter chased the Jew and ran up to Abraham Epstein's shop, suggesting that a Jew had hidden there and thrown at him stone. Epstein did not allow the soldier into the shop; because of this there was an incident between them quarrel, during which Epstein pushed the soldier in the chest, he hit him with a stick, and Epstein responded in kind; then a crowd of Jews ran up and did not let the soldier into shop. In another place, a soldier traded a pack of tobacco from a Jewish woman and, not agreeing on the price, returned the pack to her; The Jewish woman said to the soldier: “Why are you, pig, throwing away my tobacco,” and he answered her that there are no pigs in military service. Then the arguers were surrounded by a crowd Jews, one of whom pushed the soldier. However, at this point the quarrel did not take large in size, because the guard came up and dispersed the crowd. In third place there was a quarrel between the soldiers and the Jewish woman Alta Shoub, who called the soldier pig, and he knocked over her table with seltzer water and gingerbread. Jewish screamed; At her cry, a crowd of Jews gathered and surrounded the soldier, who began beat the soldier. Desyatsky Kalachev arrested a soldier to take him to the station apartment, but other soldiers ran up and took the arrested man away from the foreman. Immediately a crowd of Jews surrounded the soldiers, began beating them and drove them across the square to the fire shed.

On this day, at 6 o'clock in the afternoon, a gathering of Shklov hunters was scheduled fire society for exercise; therefore, by the time of this collision, near fire shed, hunters gathered, almost all Jews who joined crowd and began to chase unarmed soldiers; Some of these firefighters, such as the Jew Mendel Ginsburg, on horseback caught up with the fleeing soldiers, detained and beat them. At the same time, the Jew Tsetlin, on the orders of his fireman, the elders climbed the church bell tower and sounded the alarm, although by order The police prohibited the ringing of bells to convene the Jewish fire brigade. At the ringing of the bells, Jews from all over poured into the square where the robbery took place. shtetl, as well as a few soldiers and peasants who were in the borough of Shklov at that time. Knowing nothing about violence against unarmed soldiers, assuming that in there was a fire in the town, soldiers and peasants fled to the noise, but while they went out into the square, Jews armed with sticks, stones and axes attacked them in crowds and beat those who did not have time to escape. Jewish massacre of Christians started around 6 o'clock. afternoon and continued until almost 8 p.m., but even after During this time there were isolated cases of attacks by Jews on Christians: for example, when Corporal Fyodor Serov, after the cessation of the rampage, left the teahouse on the square, to One of the group of Jews came running to him and hit him forcefully in the chest with a stick, causing Serov ran away; in the same way, after the cessation of the disorder, the Jews Feivel and Nochim Moskvors beat peasant Ivan Kozhemyakov with broom sticks. As revealed by the preliminary investigation, the unrest became so widespread size due to the hostility of Jews towards Christians: the population of Shklov, almost entirely consisting of Jews, treats visitors to the shtetl with contempt peasants, in conversation Jews call them "pigs and pigs," and when they protest against such treatment and beat them; disrespect for the individual Christians are accompanied by complete disrespect for their property: among peasants forcibly take away the goods they bring and then pay in their own way at will, and sometimes they don't pay at all; if the peasant decides to go to court, then and here he cannot achieve the exercise of his rights, because the Jews in their Justification is provided by their Jewish false witnesses. This attitude towards the Christian population has caused clashes before. The identities of the Jews who carried out the July 25 attack on soldiers and peasants, in most could not be established by the investigation; only relatively few information was obtained that served as the basis for bringing them in as accused only twenty-three Jews or, more correctly, Jews, were held accountable. As a result of this and on the basis of Article 201 of the statute of the criminal court, the named persons were committed court of the Kyiv Military Chamber with the participation of class representatives. This is about the beating of soldiers and Christians was investigated on October 26 in Mogilev by the branch of the Kyiv judicial chamber. A total of up to a hundred witnesses were called, approximately 50 per the prosecution and defense, confirming most of the data in the indictment about violence and beatings. Church elder Pustopalov, an old resident of Shklov, assured that the massacre arose mainly due to the religious hostility of the Jews towards Christians, as all the parishioners of Shklov showed. The court had to deal with these contradictions. The first official reports about the Shklov massacre, read at the trial, make a strange impression. In the absence of a local Stanovoy police scribe Kontsevich telegraphed to Mogilev that the soldiers were beating city of Jews. This telegram, it turns out, was dictated to him by one of the horse handlers of the massacre. Golman. Police officer Rodionov, upon arriving the next day of the massacre in Shklov, telegraphed the following to the governor: "The lower ranks of both regiments started a fight with Jewish shopkeepers; the cab drivers, the famous brawlers (Jews), intervened and caused the soldiers were beaten and the alarm sounded; The fire brigade continued to beat the soldiers; the soldiers wounded the tenth man in the head with a stone and wounded four Jews. U eight soldiers suffered bruises."

The building of the district court, where the chamber sat, was stormed by the public, and the police barely had time to contain the crowd of curious people. Before the meeting had to almost forcefully clear the hall of the spectators who had captured it, mainly from Jews. After a six-hour meeting, on October 27, the special presence of the Kyiv The trial chamber issued a verdict in which 15 Jews were found guilty and sentenced to imprisonment or confinement for a period of one year and three months to one year.

DEPARTMENT 2. JUDICIAL

TREATISE I ON THE JEWISH OATH IN GENERAL

Chapter 1

How many categories is the Jewish oath divided into?

According to the Talmud, the Jewish oath is divided into three categories, namely: "Shebua-deeraita" - the oath prescribed according to the law of Moses; "Shebua Geset" - oath according to the law Talmud, and "Setam herem" - a general interrogation of the defendant under oath, i.e. herem[1] .

---

[1] "Hoshen-hamishpot-enaim", ch. 75, art. 6, and "Teshubot garashbam", § 229.

Machine Translated by Google

It is customary for Jews to take an oath on business with their co-religionist in no other way than in the synagogue, candles are lit, the Law of Moses (Torah) is taken out of the ark, the person taking the oath puts on a mortal white long shirt and picks up a black one candle. The rabbi reads all the terrible oaths and threats for the swearer. Concerning rituals with which this great act for the Jews is performed, then according to the commandment of Maimonides they should be as follows: "If you want to subject someone to the oath, then take out a Torah scroll and, having pointed out to the swearer the curses set forth in this law, bring a stretcher on which the dead are carried out, cover them with a blanket used to cover corpses; bring the horns that will be blown on New Day of the year; bring young children from school; bring blown bubbles, throw them in front of the stretcher, and Besdin must tell the swearer that tomorrow he will be in the same way they will be thrown like these bubbles; bring roosters, light candles, bring earth and place swearing oath to this land; blow the horns and announce to him publicly, with the words: "Listen, N., if you take a false oath, then all curses will befall you, set forth in the law."

After this, the entire formula of the herem is read to him and, when the horn is blown, everyone those present and the small children answer: "Amen." 1 Shere

Tzedek, part 11, ch. 4, p. 14; "Teshubot-Gagaonim", ch. 10, and "Teshubot-Narambam" (Maimonides), fol. 14, 2.

The Jewish oath is considered the most important and sacred thing, and therefore when a Jew is called to take the oath - he is frightened in advance, turns pale and becomes feverish state. In order not to bring things to this terrible outcome, in most cases the Jew tries to end the matter peacefully, by mutual agreement, and often accepts all terms proposed by the opposing party, no matter how they may be painful and unprofitable. However, such fear and compliance occur only in those cases if the matter is between Jews alone. But if a Jew deals with Christian and is called upon by him, then the oath no longer confuses him at all: with a smile on his face he will read and repeat after the official the form of the oath in the conviction that, according to the teachings of the Talmud, such an oath in a dispute with a non-religious person has no meaning, as an empty formality, and will in no way bind the conscience of a true believer Jew.

The Talmud, on which all Jewish life is based, does not recognize for Jews the binding nature of laws and decrees of courts of other faiths. Based on this, to oaths awarded by local authorities and laws, Jews apply not only carelessly and frivolously, but even contemptuously and mockingly. The same should be noted about the oaths taken by Jews in the presence of state rabbi, in cases dealt with in courts on the basis of general civil laws, not the Talmud. These oaths are taken with such frivolity that they can only be considered an empty formality. French writer Mosso says: "The Jew proclaims from the pulpit: "The Christian law, having its source with his Crucified on the cross, gives us complete freedom of conscience before the court of the goyim; until this law is destroyed, we have no reason to be ashamed of the oath." In other words, the Jews demand the destruction of the image of the Crucifixion in courts and public places. The scientist

Pfefferkorn, considering the commandments of the synagogue, in the depths of which he himself born, without hesitation, says: "If there is a quarrel between a Christian and a Jew due to borrowing money or any other important reason and in the absence evidence that a Jew is sworn in, then, seeing him swear, know that he swears falsely, without at all fearing God, the Avenger of oathbreakers, because the Talmud has freed his conscience, and he lies under the cover of his religion."

Machine Translated by Google

All the newest baptized Jews agree on this, who unanimously affirm this in their writings, published by them after converting to Christianity; they seem to fully repent of their past errors. Similar essays on Russian language can be counted in dozens; they all repeat word for word both about a false oath and about other illegal acts committed Jews out of fanaticism based on the teachings of the Talmud.

Chapter 2

The Edification of Rabbi Yochanan

The most important authority on Talmudic legislation, Rabbi Yochanan, showed an edifying example for his followers. Once, according to the story of the Talmud, he asked he is with a pagan woman so that she will reveal some secret to him; pagan agreed, but under the condition of an oath that he would not reveal this secret to anyone. The rabbi, when he swore by the God of Israel that he would not tell or convey to anyone the secret he had learned, did not, however, mean that his people were here, for he could not hide anything . This the act is in complete agreement with the Talmud according to the commandments; a Jew can violate without sin oaths given to a non-Christian can deceive him, oppress him, etc.[2]

1 "Avoyde-Zura", l. 28,1.

2 Moses Mendelson, Jerusalem, or the Power of Religions and Judaism. Ofen, 1819, 5,128.

On the one hand, in order to deceive those who monitor the pronouncement of the oath, and on the other hand, to give the latter an ambiguous character that does not oblige to observe it, Jews, according to the instructions of the Talmudists, must refrain from pronouncing only the word “God”, replacing it with other words corresponding to him according to its meaning; for example, instead of the word “Jehovah,” say: adishem, elohim, adinoi, i.e., the highest, dominant, etc., or: “so that I may be healthy,” etc. Such oaths, according to the beliefs of the Jews, do not bind them, and swearing such in a false form, the person taking the oath may internally, to himself, swear to something completely different and even the opposite of what he outwardly pronounces following the example of Rabbi Jochanan.

Chapter

3 Permissive prayer “Kol Nidre”

To cleanse the conscience of a Jew, the Talmudists have a prayer called “Kol Nidre”, which frees them from all oaths and false vows; this prayer of permission somewhat reminiscent of papal indulgences; it frees the Jews in advance from frivolous obligations given without considering whether they can be to perform, and very often not at all feasible. Because of this, Jews are allowed to make any promises they want, even the most difficult to fulfill, and not keep them. them, since through this they commit no sin at all.

The Talmud says: three Jews, after saying a prayer, chosen from among people on the day of atonement, release everyone from the oaths and promises given and unfulfilled, and have the same power as the judgment of Moses, and even more. So Thus, according to the Talmud, it turns out that the court of Moses, established by God for restoration of violated power and rights does not matter before the court of “three”, so how the latter can violate the very right. Violating his obligations, the conscience of a Jew remains completely calm and free from remorse, because, from the Jewish point of view, she is still remains completely clean. And now, before the judgment seat of three Jews, they are allowed the most important matters, divorces are given, etc. And three of some ignoramuses, chosen one Jew, have full power to dissolve all oaths, destroy all promises and obligations both past and future. In order to calm the conscience of the Jew as completely as possible, to protect its sensitivity from attacks by the spirit of the tempter, - the ritual of canceling vows, oaths and promises is performed for every Jew at least once a year, on days of repentance, from the eve of the holiday cleansing. Before the cantor sings the first hymn of this holiday in the synagogue, three Jews, elected to the court and placed at the head of the assembly, with full authority fulfill all vows, oaths, oaths and obligations of everyone present in meeting for both the past and present year. This is called "Kol-Nidre". Some rabbis wanted to rule that such an abolition be valid only for the future; but such a resolution would not make sense, since the ritual this is repeated annually, and moreover they have been victoriously refuted by others rabbis who proved that the existing custom is equally convenient as regarding the past and the future. Listening to the meaning of "Kol-Nidre", everyone it will become clear that in such a solemn atmosphere and religious mood it is not a prayer that is being performed, but an act of nationwide renunciation of vows, false oaths, promises, oaths, not only given by each of those present in the past year, but also expected in the future. With such a public renunciation, it really collapses every moral basis of social life. This fact is so outrageous that The most authoritative persons even from the Talmudic world rebelled against him. But how No matter how strong these authorities were, the power of custom, however, prevailed: the act of renunciation - "Kol Nidre" - still occupies an honorable place among Jewish rites. The Jew, feeling his conscience too burdened with oaths, oaths, promises, chooses three of his brothers, who immediately make up judgment seat Standing before this court, the repentant Jew imagines that he repents and renounces all oath-crimes he has ever committed. They (oath-breakings) are so numerous, he says after his statement, that I do not I can list them. May they appear before you as if I had identified them everything in detail. The court announces without further ceremony all these oaths and oaths are invalid; permitted, in turn, permits those who they removed his bonds if they asked him to do so. With the prayer "Omnia vota, pacta juramenta," read on the day of atonement, Jews recognize that all vows and false oaths or contracts that were violated or not fulfilled at all in the previous year were canceled, not counted as sin and released with deliverance from all retribution for those who can harm follow. Because of this belief, instead of looking at oneself like an oathbreaker, the Jew, on the contrary, is convinced of his sincerity and rightness.

Chapter 4

Rite "Gatarat-Nedorim"

In addition to Kol Nidre, Jews also have other similar rituals: Gatarat Nedorim and Mesirat Medoa, which, when sworn and certified, like Kol Nidre, give the Jew's conscience the opportunity to find loopholes in litigation with non-believers. open the way for him to victory. In the most critical circumstances, when conscience a Christian no longer knows any outcome or salvation except repentance, the conscience of a Jew calms down by performing the above rituals. In addition to these conveniences, the Jews have figures of speech and special formulas, accompanied by various external actions that deprive the oath of its legality and reality. A Christian who does not know these details believes oath, while the Jew swore unscrupulously in a matter contrary to conscience and truth. Maimonides, the foremost religious authority of Judaism, and Rabbi Kozzen recommend many such subterfuges and subtle tricks to free their fellow believers from the obligation to fulfill their oaths. When, for example, those who wish to free themselves from the oath, enter the synagogue at night, on the eve of the Feast of Purification, they It is enough, holding the book of the law in your hand, to say only the following words: “I, Isaac, or Srul, declare before God and before you that all the oaths that I will give to anyone during the next year and promise to keep will be invalid, void of all power and are insane in sin, unless I fulfill them.” This one is simple the formula destroys the most flagrant false oaths and untethers the Jew from their execution.

With some experience and familiarity with the moral teachings of the Jews, it is easy understand what an oath and oath given to a non-religious person means in their eyes, and even more so a Christian, who in the eyes of a Jew is not a person at all, not a neighbor, but simply a brute in the literal sense of the word. It is known what importance Jews attach to each letter, every point of Holy Scripture. Each synagogue tries to have only a copy of the completely correctly written Bible (kosher), but also instances containing errors (fusher) are also stored there. If a Jew swears on the Bible, then he can lie as much as he likes, as long as the copy on which he swears on differs by at least one point from the canonical one. If he slurs the words of the oath or extinguishes the candle earlier, or omission of some minor formality in this case, then the oath is also not binds him to his conscience.

However, in some states that are no strangers to Jewish everyday life and all the mysteries of their religious fanatical teaching, sought and from Jews sometimes keeping oaths and true oaths; but this requires there were special formulas and rituals for their implementation. The following form of oath, extracted from the verdict of the court in Colmar on February 10, 1809, in view of government regulations on this subject of the emperors Sigismund and Charles V, August 12, 1530, and also with the decisions of the courts of appeal Bruneville and Luneville, the imperial court in Lower Austria, Frankfurt administration of December 7, 1705 and other states of Germany, can be considered the most shy and obligatory for Jews. The person taking the oath must, accompanied by 10 Jews no younger than 30 years of age, come to the synagogue with a covering head, with “niphelim” on the forehead and a hand entwined with established sacred belts. In this form, dressed in his prayer "tales", he stands before oreon, a square stage, in the middle of the synagogue. When will the main Book of the Law be taken out and solemnly placed before him, from it the passage concerning oaths; then the book is placed on the hand of the swearer, who, holding out his right hand to the Book of the Law, called the Torah, which says: “You did not accept the name of the Lord God yours in vain,” listens to the rabbi’s explanation of the oath and the curse for violating it and repeats the following formula: “Adina (Lord God), Creator of heaven, earth and everything, as well as mine and all those who are here, I call You in Your holy name in this the moment when the truth must be told, I swear that... etc. I ask you, Adina, to help me and confirm this truth. But if I use some kind of deception, hiding the truth, then may I be forever cursed, destroyed and destroyed by fire, from whom Sodom and Gomorrah perished, and was showered with all the curses written in Tore. The Eternal One, who created leaves, grass and everything, will never come to me help in any matter. If I tell the truth and do what's right, yeah Adina will be my assistant.”

Chapter 5

Machine Translated by Google

Another sample oath formula

Here is another example of the oath formula that was supposed to be pronounced in Poland during times of the Piasts and Jagiellons, a Jew accused by a Christian of any crime and not confessing: “Be the God of heaven and earth, air and dew, mountains and valleys, flowers and grass, that I do not owe what this one requires of me Christian; and if I must, then let leprosy and the poison from which he healed strike me Elijah Naaman the Syrian; let the fire of heaven burn me; let him attack me severe illness and bleeding; let my body, my soul and my studies perish; let I will suffer the fate of Lot's wife, who turned into a pillar of salt; don't let me get caught into Abraham's bosom; may the Lord himself reject me and may the devil carry me away eternal destruction. Amen". The oath in the first formula is believed to be the most reliable, shy and obligatory for Jews; but one cannot guarantee that the Talmudists, so unceremonious in casuistry, they did not find any specific remedy against such an oath, such as an extra licensing ceremony regarding the past and future. Among the Jewish Talmudists this law never had a special moral religious significance; When it comes to Christians, Jews have always been able to get around everything its interpretation, so that the law of the oath was erased by itself over time. Reasoning on the basis of the Talmud, everyone can be convinced that in the system of rabbinism there is no oath at all against non-Jews; what significance can an oath against animals, which Jews, according to the teachings of the Talmud, consider Christians to be? In this case an oath is pure absurdity, for a correct, holy oath is aimed at ending disputes only between people. As a result of this, the Talmudist, being forced to take an oath in favor or to the detriment of a Christian, forces himself to take an act that he would never have committed on his own, he is forced to pronounce words that the Talmud authorizes to consider as an empty formula, a crying voice that has nothing to do with his conscience. If material goods and the whole world The Talmud declares that the property of a Jew is the property of a Jew, so what kind of dispute can arise between a non-Jew and a Jew regarding the difference between “mine” and “yours”? A Jew, based on the Talmud, has the right to take whatever he wants, since everything in the world is his property. A Jew has no need to swear an oath or say: “Your money is mine,” when he is convinced of his right to it. When someone forced him to give such a statement or oath, then, convinced of his rightness, he will say in his soul: “I would rather die than commit this absurdity.” If he takes the oath out of weakness or out of fear of loss, he will still say in his soul: “The money is mine, I will take it again when and where it turns out to be possible.” In the Talmud we find there are many examples that are of obligatory significance for Talmudists. Akiba He took the oath, but in his heart he did not recognize any importance behind it.

Rabbi Yohanan took a similar oath, but in his heart he reasoned differently. Regarding the violation of the oath in the aforesaid way, the rabbis teach in their thoughts that this violation is permitted if the oath is taken under duress.' 1 Tract. "Shulchan-Aruch", l. 232,12,14. If the authorities in a Christian court call a Jew to oath, then the latter, based on the above teachings of the Talmud, considers this the oath is forced and considers himself to be non-sworn. In the mentioned book states: “If the king orders to swear allegiance and make a statement about other Jews, has he sinned with a goyim, with the aim of exposing the Jew in the event of a crime punishment, then such an oath must be recognized as compulsory and should be violate." "Scheel uteschivoth", l. 26:2 Another rabbi teaches this: “If the prince commands If a Jew swears that he will not leave the country, then the Jew must reason in his mind: “Today I will not want to leave the country.” If the prince demands clearly that never leave the country, then the Jew must say to himself in his mind: “Under such and such such and such condition."

Chapter 6

Herem spoken by a rabbi to a young man Jew for his freethinking against the Talmud

A fanatical rabbi in a synagogue entered the pulpit in front of a crowded meeting, which They were loud and noisy, arguing among themselves. The rabbi hit three times with a huge a book on the table, the whole crowd fell silent. The rabbi began in a loud, tearful voice: “In the name of the God of our fathers.”

A suppressed roar or a trembling ran through the ranks of those present, and instantly froze in deep silence. The rabbi began slowly, clearly minting every word:

- By holy power and authority, in the name of our holy law and 613 decrees, contained in it, the herem with which Joshua cursed the city of Jericho, the curse with which Elisha cursed the youths who pursued him, the sham-shaya, which was imposed by the great Sanhedrin and our councils, all sorts of herems, curses, excommunications and humiliations imposed from the time of Moses to present day, in the name of the eternal God, the Lord of light, the Creator of his glory, in the name of Matatron, the guardian angel and guardian of Israel, in the name of the angel Sandalphon, who weaves crowns from human prayers for the throne of God, in the name of the archangel Michael, the invincible leader of the heavenly forces, in the name of the angels of fire, whirlwind and lightning, by the power of the names of all the angels who guide the stars and ride in heavenly chariots, in the name of all the archangels who spread their wings over the throne of the Almighty, the name that appeared to Moses in the burning bush, the name with which Moses divided water in two, in the name of the hand that inscribed the tables of the holy law, we betray humiliation, excommunication, disgrace, disgrace and cursing the strong with insolence and rebellious Meir Ezofovich, son of Benjamin!.. May he be cursed by God Israel! May he be cursed by the powerful and formidable God, whose name is people will hear with fear on the day of judgment. May he be cursed by heaven and earth! Yes it will be he is cursed by Metatron, Sandalphon, Michael, archangels, angels and everyone heavenly inhabitants! May he be cursed by all pure and holy servants God's! May he be cursed by every great power on earth and in heaven!.. God our Creator! Defeat and destroy him forever! Great God! Pin him down! Let it erupt thy wrath, O God, is above his head! May the devils come to meet him! Slander and moaning May they accompany him wherever he goes! May he strike with his own sword his chest and may all his arrows be crushed, and may the angels of God cease not to persecute him from place to place, so that his feet do not rest anywhere. May his ways be full dangers, may thick darkness cover them, and may one great one be his companion despair! May he be tormented by sorrows and misfortunes, may he see with his own eyes the blows striking him and may he be satisfied with the fire of God’s wrath! May the Lord not forgive him! May the wrath and punishment of God fall on this man, may they break into him and pierce him to the core! May he be covered like a robe with this curse so that he can disappear from his face light, and so that his name may be smoothed out in the universe. The rabbi paused for a minute while typing air into the chest. His face was burning, and his arms were swinging more and more frantically above his head.

“From that moment,” the rabbi began again, “when this curse fell on his head, yes he will not dare to approach any Israelite house in the entire universe closer than four cubits of distance! Under pain of curse and excommunication from the bosom of Israel Let no Israelite approach him within four cubits of distance, and let him not dare to open the door of his house to him, to give him bread, water and fire, even if he saw him exhausted, falling and groaning from wandering, hunger, illness and poverty! On the contrary, let everyone who meets him spit with the saliva of their mouths in his face, and let them throw stones under his feet so that he stumbles and falls! May he be deprived any property! Everything that by inheritance rights belongs to him after his father and mother, and everything that he acquired with his own hands will be transferred to order of the khala so that this lawless estate could be turned into consolation and support for the weak! Let all Israel be made aware of this vengeance and the curse that has afflicted him. All of you, who have heard our verdict with your own ears, announce it loudly.

Machine Translated by Google

every place where you set foot, and we will send a notice about this to all to the cities and communities where our brothers live, from end to end of the world.

Let it be so! All of you who have remained faithful to our Lord and His law, live in peace!"

The rabbi finished. At that same moment, numerous candles burning at seven huge candlesticks, reduced their light through a skillful mechanism, and from The four corners of the hall thundered loudly and trumpets howled. This gloomy and prolonged hum of instruments was joined by a chorus of sobs, groans and screams. The loudest a scream was heard at the entrance and was all the more astonishing because it came from a strong male breasts The mayor disappeared from the threshold of the temple. And closer to the altar, between the pews, some They tore their clothes and fell face down on the ground.

Chapter 7

Evasion of Jews from military service

During the Russo-Japanese War, throughout Russia, rabbis diligently collected money to send young Jews to London and America to save them from war services. In addition, they order everyone to pray for the success of Japanese weapons, for complete victory over Russia, in which they see the success of their policy. Meanwhile, we see how England is worried and afraid of the influx of young Jews, as seen in telegrams newspaper reports the following: "The Jews do not give the English government peace. While the extreme ones threaten cabinet fall, the moderates sent a deputation to him headed by Rothschild, demanding the abolition of the law against unwanted emigrants, as aimed specifically against Jews. The delegation assures that Jews never harm any country and that England should be grateful to them for the love and favors which Jewish emigrants provide it."

The influx of Jews in England finally frightened the English government. The London correspondent of New Time telegraphs: "The influx of Jews from Eastern Europe prompted the British government to introduce Undesirable Aliens Bill to Parliament. The opposition named the bill anti-Semitic, and the ministers apologized in every possible way, trying to cover up the principle law. The bill, however, was voted on. The ministers gave assurances that political immigrants will continue to be accepted, and that the bill is directed only against poor and a burden to the natural inhabitants of England.

Balfour appears to have been frightened by Dreyfus's threats. He typed the letter in who assures that he does not even think of acting against the Jews and believes The emergence of anti-Semitism in England was a great national misfortune. Expects, that this statement of his would calm the Jews.

In America, Jews are not welcomed with open arms either.

“The first question,” says Ms. McGahan, “that the American will ask you, if you recommend to him a hotel near New York on the good side, the next one: “What, they let Jews into that hotel?” And if you say that they will let you in, then An American will have no luck with his family in that hotel. Even hoteliers in newspapers announcements and advertisements sent by mail often announce that them “Hebrews not admitted” - “Jews are not allowed into the house...”

Mrs. McGahan asked hotel owners why they didn’t let Jews come to them are they allowed in? After all, Jews pay carefully? Does it matter who you get money from? On she was invariably answered: “No, it doesn’t matter, Jewish money somehow they won't do it for future use. The Jew will pay, it’s true, a good price, but not by washing, but by riding He will charge you the same amount of expenses. Since he himself and his family cannot eat more than will fit into them, he will drive your price down by allowing his guys to kick expensive springs or jumping on fragile cane furniture... they will push you three times they'll do shit... Jews break into those hotels where Americans go: let them into such a hotel, they They will just turn off the good American public with their noisiness, familiarity and reprehensible table manners. Americans soon they stop going to the hotel where Jews are accepted. When will Americans stop go to the hotel, - and the Jews no longer look there, - and the owner suffers bankruptcy". “It happens,” continues McGahan, “that they arise in some dacha area rumors that in one of the good or hitherto “exclusive hotels” began to appear Jews - and immediately among holiday summer residents on the terraces of houses and hotels gossip ensues that such and such a hotel owner is standing on the edge bankruptcy: “They started letting Jews in!..” Once such a rumor gets established, you won’t be able to lure the ordinary American public into such a hotel with a roll - as long as it’s false the rumor will not be denied.” In dacha colonies, so-called “parks”, arranged by the rich Americans in the mountains or on the sea coast, Jews not only land they don’t sell plots, but summer residents do not have the right to have their own dacha for any of the Jews rent out. Jews in such dacha places are not allowed into clubs or fields golf, tennis or any other places of games and competitions. Ms. McGahan gives the example of Dr. C., who is popular among Americans, he decided to enroll as a member of The Mountain Golf Club, but he was not accepted and even a guest, never allowed on the golf course. “Why do the Jews should I show you the way? - said McGahan: “You will let one person in - the most wonderful person, necessary for everyone, and he, look, will bring his wife with him or children, and then friends of fellow tribesmen - and before we know it, we have a Jewish hangout here it will turn out."

In some places it even goes so far as to prevent Jews from entering some of the parks. For example, in “Twilight Park” and “Onteona” there are signs at the entrance guard booths in which guards sit all day, charged with the duty not to allow “vagrants, peddlers, Jews, or leaders” into the park bears and no other undesirable people", stopping each of unwanted visitors with the question: “Do they have a written letter from the director park permission to enter?

With this question the guard blocks the entrance to the park even to the most elegant visitors in the most beautiful carriages of their own - if it seems to him that they have Jewish type or are they from the neighboring summer village "Tannersville", which is known among summer residents as the “New Jerusalem”, as Jews flock to it in the summer we see-we don't see.

"Let's ask the Americans," says Ms. McGahan, "why do you shy away from Jews so much? They will undoubtedly answer: "Well, I don't argue: it is very likely that among the Jews there are decent people - but it's still better without them. Who knows." If you let one in, there are hundreds of them. if they get in here, they will drive us out of our homes. No, it's better like this don't go into experiments: you feel better among your own people..."

Jews are increasingly arousing antagonism against themselves in the American population also because they take a significant part in politics. IN municipal affairs they established their political influence with a strong footing, and Now the authorities demand that a certain percentage of all positions and local teachers in public schools were replaced by people of their own race.

Last fall, dissatisfied with the small number of Jews exposed Democrats at the beginning of the designation of candidates from this party for elections in the city positions, Jewish political leaders appealed to the New York committee Democratic Party with a threat: "If you, Democrats, don't include candidates from their party such and such Jews, a list of whose names is included attached, then we, the leaders of city Jewry, guarantee you that in the elections on November 4, the entire mass of Jewish voters will cast their votes for the candidates Republican Party." Although this threat had no effect on the Democrats, it was nevertheless characteristic in that it indicates too much political impudence these newcomers to America...

How strong the Jews are in elections can be seen even from the fact that with their leaders Secretary of State Gay was to be considered. Ms McGahan elaborates on the diplomatic note with which the Washington Foreign Secretary, Secretary of State Gay, addressed in the summer of 1901 to the great powers who signed Berlin treaty, which created the new Romanian kingdom in 1878.

"What is the Jewish Question?" asks Arnold White in National Review, and before answering, he says that for this it is necessary to consider the situation of the Jews in Russia, the United States (?) and Great Britain (?). Why only these three countries? Unknown. Austria, where there are more Jews than Russia, France, in which they play such a prominent role, although there are only about a hundred thousand souls there, Germany, which has five times more of them than in England, is excluded.

Having considered the history of the issue, the author comes to the conviction that nothing else it cannot be resolved except by convening an international conference. Wherein he recommends that Russia, the United States and England take up this matter again. But in England, as he himself, however, claims, there is no Jewish question, and the United States It's too early for the states with the Negro question, with lynching and other atrocities, according to in our opinion, to interfere in the humanitarian issues of Europe. So, a conference on the Jewish question! There were conferences about the enemies of all anarchist governments. Why not talk about this tribe, which in its own is there a danger of the disintegration of entire nations? The same thought, masking A. White conducts several of them. According to him, granting a Jew full rights in Russia is tantamount to a sacrifice by the Russian people due to some dubious and ephemeral moral principles and completely abstract justice. And in in Mr. White's article one can only hear the praise of this "tribe, physically weak," but having every chance to triumph according to its high intellectual data over the "stupid power of the majority." Jewish rule can now be compared with the "great Roman Empire of the Caesars." Therefore it is necessary rush to resolve this issue, otherwise the Jewish issue will be resolved on its own, and this decision could be very dangerous for the powers. Next, the author threatens a new the Jewish power, the United States (of the 600,000 Jews in New York there are already 125,000 voters, and so many of them have accumulated very recently), the Jewish money, the Jewish seal and other bogeymen, and such things burst out from him a flattering expression for English pride: “Lord Rothschild and the English government are almost identical words...”

But, despite this closeness of the English government to the Jews, England, in of which there are only about 150 thousand souls, which promised a lot to the Jews at the first steps the ministries of Salisbury and Chamberlain, did very little for them. And now it is unknown why she and America face the great task of solving the Jewish question. At the same time, the author warns that powers should not offend the national Russia's pride and did not offer her the role of the accused. We need to do something delicately whisper to Russia to take the initiative. What a nice man Mr. A. White! He spares our pride. The conference planned by him should gather “on the banks of the Neva” and, first, to find out that Russia’s “behavior” has important reasons behind it that justify it; secondly, it is necessary to recognize that events such as the Kishinev one are not a matter of domestic politics, but rather concern the world, since the civilized world cannot allow the periodic repetition of Jewish pogroms. So far the Jewish question was seen as exclusively concerning each power separately, it was impossible to come to any satisfactory solution.

The Jewish question can be resolved by expanding the Pale of Settlement, concession Jews of the land in Russia, the establishment of agricultural colonies, etc. Argentine dreams must be given up, and the resettlement of Jews in the United States should stop so that something similar to the Chisinau incident does not happen again there soon stories. No money will be required from Russia to accommodate the Jews. They will be given by the Jews themselves, in addition, if there is not enough money, the press, “which is almost entirely in the hands of the Jews,” according to Mr. White, will always be able to raise large sums of money through campaigning... We humbly thank you. Russia needs to arrange a special Jewish state. What is better and what is more frank! Since “almost all printing is in the hands of Jews,” then The persecution that continues to this day against Russia is completely understandable. So Since no one wants Jews, neither in Europe nor in America, then they must be handed over to Russia. A Jewish state in Russia will be beneficial to the Jews, England, America, maybe the whole world, but it will not be at all beneficial to Russia, with its “stupid majority”, which Jews will subjugate. All countries must be liberated, especially the United States. States and England, where “Lord Rothschild and the government are synonymous,” from the Hebrew element and make Russia the new promised land...

Verdict in the case of a gang of Jewish self-mutilators

On September 29, 1905, at a meeting of the Odessa military district court in the case of self-mutilation, the debate between the parties continued. At the end of the debate there followed objection of the assistant military prosecutor Colonel Rovzhin. He is completely supported the prosecution against all the defendants and proved that those brought to trial the lower ranks were exempted from military service thanks only to artificial inoculation of diseases. This was facilitated by Janos, Krik, Davidovich, Melnichavsky and Kabatnikov, who created the right gang for this purpose, and for each of them was given a special responsibility. The defenders in their foreign speeches tried prove the absence of a gang and did not find the defendants guilty of the alleged them crimes.

Machine Translated by Google

At 10 o'clock in the evening the court passed a resolution, which found the defendants Krik, Davidovich, Melnichansky guilty of forming a gang with the aim of releasing lower ranks who were in military service, by inoculating them with diseases and monetary reward, and Krik was at the head of the gang, and Davidovich and Melnichansky entered into it by education and with knowledge of its purpose, sentenced them to the deprivation of all special rights personally and according to the status of the assigned rights and property, to be sent to correctional prison departments: Krik for 2.5 years, and Davidovich and Melnichansky for 2 years each. Defendant Kabatnikov is recognized guilty of failure to report a criminal group formed for dismissal lower ranks by self-mutilation, and sentenced to imprisonment for 6 months without restriction of rights. Privates Markovich, Zeel and Chechelnitsky was found guilty of intentional causing by means of other persons serious damage to their health in order to free themselves from military service and sentenced: Markovich and Seel to deprivation of certain rights and benefits for transfer to a disciplinary battalion for a period of 1 year each, and Chechelnitsky to imprisonment for 1 year and 6 months.

Chapter 8

Jews in Public Libraries

Even in public libraries the Jews do not hesitate to wage war against Russians, removing them from libraries.

The newspaper "Southern Russia", which would be much more correctly called “Jewish Russia” reports that 48 Jews told the Nikolaevskaya directorate a public library demanding that it stop issuing a magazine "Observer":

“It’s time for the management to know,” the statement says, “that visitors to the reading room in the vast majority of Jews who will be forced to refuse to visit their favorite reading room, where, along with the luminaries of Russian literature, they lie paid masterpieces of the Pyatkovskys - unless the management agrees to removal from the Observer reading room. And the Jews make a similar demand to Russian public library. “New Time” notes about this:

“One might think that the library in Nikolaev really owes its existence for Jews. In fact, the library was founded in 1881 on the initiative of several local citizens. The city allocated land and gives a thousand rubles annually benefits, and the building itself was built mainly thanks to donations retired Colonel A.V. Nazhnov in 9000 rubles. And such is the impudence of the Jews: they were given opportunity to use the library, and they, instead of gratitude, already declare a daring claim to rule over it.”

Meanwhile, there is no doubt that if they are refused, they will go to war against the librarian, they will do all sorts of nasty things, they will try their best ways to survive it. By coincidence, just when the above excerpt from “Southern Russia” appeared in Novoye Vremya, Znamya received Feodosia correspondence, which provides a similar fact. This is the correspondence. “In view of the large number of Jewish readers, in view of the fact that what is received in in the library the newspaper "Voskhod" is read in great demand, we, the undersigned, ask library committee make an order to extract at least 2 Jewish newspapers: one in the ancient Hebrew language "Gazmon", and one in the jargon "Der Freund". We hope that the committee will be sympathetic to the need and desire

Machine Translated by Google

a large number of library visitors." 2—VIII. There should be 38 signatures (some made by the same hand). This entry appears in the visitor statement book. Feodosia free library and reading room. So, specifically to the host of Jewish newspapers subscribed to by the library, two more pearls will be added or at least one, since the committee, undoubtedly, following the example of past years "with will respond with due sympathy to the needs and desires of a large number of library visitors. The Feodosia Free Library subscribes to 12 newspapers: “Southern Courier” (2 copies), “Crimean Bulletin”, “Southern Review”, “Odessa News”, “Courier”, “Voskhod”, “Birzhevye Vedomosti”, “Petersburg Gazette”, “Russian Gazette” (2 copies), “Tavrichesky Provincial Gazette”, “Kharkovskie Gazette” Vedomosti" and "New Time". This entire collection was dictated by the Jews, of course, for with the exception of the survivor, probably due to a misunderstanding of “New Time”. The fact is that on the eve of the publication of newspapers and magazines for 1902, a company of Jews, consisting of various contractors, tinsel, etc. advanced businessmen, made a lengthy statement, or, more correctly, dictated to the committee which newspapers should subscribe, since the newspapers “Novoye Vremya”, “Southern Region” (details follow listing undesirable newspapers and magazines) are engaged in “bullying” nationalities" and are distinguished by "cowardice of thought", and "Smugglers" were published in the "Historical Bulletin". And what? The committee treated with due compassion for the needs and desires of the large number of library patrons.” True, there were also recordings made by the Russians, but there was only one answer to them: no money, no money No! Russians have long stopped going to the library, because what should they do there?! Not everyone enjoys sitting at a table cluttered with Gasmon, Freund and "At sunrise." It is possible that the time is not far off when, going to the library, we will see her sign is either slang or Hebrew. Isn't it time to check library: it’s Russian after all.”

We have no doubt that there is hardly a Russian person who will read this message without shudder or indignation.

It is simply amazing how relentlessly the Jews carry out their program: not only did they seize the press, the main lever of Russian self-awareness society - no, they also want people in Russian libraries to read only Jewish newspapers, in order to isolate them there too from the influence of a few organs Russian press.

Let the readers not think that the above facts are accidental, that they were place only in Nikolaev and Feodosia. In all public libraries within The same phenomenon is observed in the Jewish Pale. Jews displaced the Russians reading public and, in addition, turned libraries into some kind of dens for meetings. And librarians will confirm that if in the summer there is a place for Jewish meetings are public gardens, then in winter they are disposed of for this purpose public libraries. Gathering en masse under the pretext of reading something, the Jews In cases of extremely important meetings, all available seats are taken up, so a Christian has nowhere to sit and can’t breathe. But even if there was a place, it would be he wouldn’t have been able to read anyway, since the Jews around him were talking in low voices, they couldn’t sit still for a minute, and every now and then they winked and exchanged certain things. mysterious tickets.

In the interests of Russian society and the education of the younger generation the beginnings of Russian national and religious foundations, it is certainly necessary that all public libraries in the country were required to check out exclusively Russian magazines and absolutely not subscribe to Jewish newspapers, continuously waging war against everything holy and dear to the Russian people and undermining the foundations of Russian life.

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 9 Another twist in the oath

The Talmud of the Venice edition of 191 speaks of the Jewish oath (in the treatise “Sanhedrin”, l. 29). A Jew taking oath in a case with a Christian who is wearing a cagal must say: know that you are not swearing an oath to your own thought, but to our thought and to the thought of the Jewish judges. Further (l. 39, section 8). The Jew who takes the oath is told: know that you do not you swear to your own thought, and to the thought of God Himself, and to the thought of the Jewish judges. There same (l. 39). If you were summoned to court for a debt of two pieces of silver, and he only admitted one shilling, then you can give him (the goy) only one shilling, because if you wanted, he wouldn’t have admitted it either... Ibid., l. 41. When you lend something to a goy in front of witnesses, you must repay it with witnesses, says Rabbi Shmol, and when the witnesses went overseas, then A goy debtor is not obliged to pay debts.

Further, the rabbis teach even more clearly: “This kind of oath can only be accepted until until the goy finds out about it, but if there is reason to think that the goy will find out, then It is forbidden to break the oath, because in this case the name of God will be humiliated. Zedekiah was punished for this because he violated the oath given to Nebuchadnezzar, despite the fact that she was forced to. If another Jew is embarrassed in relation to whether to fulfill the oath given upon entering military service, then in this case it must be borne in mind that a goy about violating this oath can to know". In general, the rabbis note that it is possible to sin secretly, you just have to avoid detection of sins, so that through this the Jewish true religion will not be humiliated1 (Tract. “Shagiga” 16, “Kiddush” 40, “Maimonides Yad Chazaka”, 4, 11, l. 31, 1; “Oze Mick. sef. Ms. bastard." l. 132 etc.; Tract. "Bova-kama" 113) . Jews have many books, which require that a Jew strongly believe in the forgiveness of all sins upon repentance in Day of Judgment, i.e. on the holiday of Yom Kippur, which occurs annually in the fall. In that holiday, he will be forgiven all at least the most serious sins, including oathbreaking. The whole point is that only during the aforementioned holiday to repent for all your actions.

Many Christian bosses judge condescendingly the conscience of a Jewish Talmudist and even demand that the ordinary oath be taken in the synagogue with terrible oaths, believing that this can deter from perjury impressionable person. Anyone who knows the Jewish fanatical evil nature, and at the same time the teachings of the Talmud and rabbinism, I am firmly convinced that a Jew in spite of everything, I am obliged by the duty of my religion to break every oath, unless it refers to a Christian or Christianity. For example, who has the right to demand from the Jew's oath that his house is not his property? According to the teachings of the Talmud, everything that exists in the world belongs to the Jews, and they should try by all means to wrest all property from the hands of the goyim. If a Jew took a sincere oath to this, then would anger God; as a Talmudist, guided by the example of Akiba, this second Moses, can always have his own thoughts and thoughts in his soul during the oath precautions. If he takes the required oath, but while taking it will think about something completely different, then this oath will also not hamper his conscience Jew. For example, if it were a question of life, then he, as a follower of the Talmud, being summoned by the authorities to be a witness under oath, giving his testimony regarding murder of a goy by a Jew - he would swear out loud that that Jew did not kill a person (goy), but in soul at the same time would mentally say: “He killed the cattle,” since the Talmud He honors Christians with cattle and pigs and other ridiculous names. For For a Talmudist, guided by the power of fanatical prejudice, it makes no difference whether he takes the oath in a synagogue, in a public place, or in a private home: The adored Talmud is always in his sight, and he constantly hears its instructive The text, however, does not pay attention to anything else. On the contrary, the oath for a Jew is very important and terrible in practice only Jewish, as we said at the beginning of this chapter. Oath for every Jew very strictly obligatory due to its formidable oath and the danger of all kinds punishments for perjury. In the same way in relation to their Jewish judicial orders or authorities, as well as his brother, the Talmudic Jew “nasi”, i.e. the prince of Jerusalem, the oath was always observed, and even more strictly than in others religions.

Jews are capable of commenting on the general oath and in short phrases on different frets - each in his own favor, and Jewish judicial Talmudic legislation invented detailed, special oath formulas relating to each act or process exclusively between Jews.

Chapter 10

Oath forms for cattle slaughterers

And form

"In the name of God, kagala, besdina and nasi, the land of Israel, (that is, to the prince or patriarch. - I. L), I swear an oath without any cunning or ulterior motive, without thinking about what retreat or relaxation, with unanimity on the lips and in the heart, that I must engage in shechita and bedika (cutting and inspection) with precise fidelity; that he is obliged to fulfill these positions according to the charter drawn up by the kahal and members elected from the general meeting, as stated in the act recorded in the book, without evading not one iota from him; I equally undertake not to act when discharging my positions in harm to any owner or butcher in everything relating to cutting and inspection, but must always go about his business with infallible fidelity. Also I must not, for three years from now, ask for any favor from any khal or general meeting, as well as salary supplements, but is obliged engage in cutting and inspection during the stated time, counting from the present day, for the salary that is now given to me by the representatives of the Kahal. Even by after these three years, if I am still a slaughterer, then even then I will retreat from I will not comply with the said decrees, but always observe them sacredly. Nor should I all the time I was cutting, hide or hide at least half a piece from the collection kagala, be it from large or small livestock and birds here or outside the city, but must entrust everything in full to the attorneys.

Likewise, I do not dare enter into strikes with my fellow slaughterers against Kahal or Reznikov neither by oath nor by handshake. As I truly swear, so May God help me - praise be to Him - in all my undertakings. According to this form, I swore an oath on such and such a day, month, year, and in witness of which I will subscribe NN"

Chapter 11

Form II

“In the name of God, Kahal, Besdin and the Nasi of Jerusalem, I now take the oath without any tricks or second thoughts, without thinking about any relaxation, with unanimity on my lips and in my heart, that I will be engaged in slaughtering livestock and three entrails with complete fidelity and I will follow all the regulations deputies of the large assembly and the Kahal, set out in this act book, without retreating not one iota from them. I must especially try to be faithful to the other two butchers working with me, and under no circumstances allow myself to act like them. in defiance or try to drop them by cunning. If any of them does any error regarding cutting or inspection, then I must indicate not upsetting and without disclosing it. If there is any disagreement between us regarding the cutting or inspection process, we must turn to the rabbi - the gaon - with a request to resolve our misunderstanding. Nor should I cause causing trouble to both customers and butchers, as well as not flattering them.

Likewise, during the entire continuation of the three-year service, one should not ask the kahal any favor or increase in salary, or to hide from my comrades even half a ruble from all income, both from cutting large and small livestock and birds. And how am I I truly swear that the Lord will help me, praise be to Him, in all my undertakings. I took the oath according to this form, according to the law, on Tuesday the 16th of Menachem Ava 5563 (1802) in Minsk, in confirmation of which I sign Joseph, the son of the deceased Jacob

According to the same form, etc. Simsop, p. R.

Shloms. According to the same form, etc. Bezalel,

p. Isaac. According to the same form, etc.

Yakov, p. Borukha. According to the same form, etc.

Shaloma-Shakhno, p. R. G. I, the undersigned, was present when the named took the oath butchers, held on the above-mentioned day in Minsk, in confirmation of which I sign: Borukh, son of Tsevi-Hirsh, shamesh veneman (attorney and notary) of the city Minsk".

Chapter 12

III form of oath for bird cutters

“Here I take the oath in the name of God, besdin and kagala, without any cunning and second thought, with unanimity on the lips and in the heart, without thinking about any relaxation or retreat, in that he must perform the duties of a slaughterer and overseer, entrusted to me by the charter, with fidelity and zeal without the slightest weakening. From income from the killing of birds or small cats, from other taxes falling on our city, I don’t have to hide a dime. I must also do everything points that have been established until now regarding the Shokhets. And while I will as a butcher, I should not have the slightest benefit or personal benefit from either householders or butchers to the detriment of the katal tax; also must not provide any service to the owner or butcher to the detriment of the tax; in a word, I must not allow myself the slightest violation. Nor shall I, for three years from the present day, ask or solicit additional salary. Nor should I enter into a conspiracy against kahal - through a handshake, kinien (bribe) or subscription, - with butchers, who during the continuation and even after the expiration of the said three years will consist in the service of society. And as I truly swear, so help me the Lord - praise To him - in all my enterprises.

I swore an oath according to this form, on such and such a date, month, year, in the city of N., in as proof of which I sign NN.”

Chapter 13

IV form of oath for Hasidic slaughterers

Machine Translated by Google

"Here I take the oath in the name of God, Besdin, Kagal and Nasi (prince) of Palestine, without any cunning or ulterior motives, without thinking about any relaxation, but with unanimity on my lips and in my heart, that I will get down to business slaughtering livestock and inspecting it conscientiously and do everything that is imposed on me assigned; I also undertake not to contradict the owners or butchers in any way nor was there any leniency regarding the mentioned positions no master or butcher in the business of cutting, and for now I will serve in the local slaughterhouse, must perform his duties with fidelity and complete good faith. Likewise, during my cutting sessions I will not hide or I'll hide at least half a ruble from the city tax, both from the income from cutting large and small livestock and poultry, as well as from other taxes, both inside and outside the city, and everything must be fully delivered by me to the Kagal attorney. I must not please any master or butcher to the detriment of the said tax and allow myself the slightest violation of the above rules. I should slaughter birds in no other way than in that companies where attorneys are located; outside this room I can do cutting livestock when I have permission approved by the attorneys, or if they will have already collected box money from the cattle to be slaughtered, or in emergency cases for the patient or women in labor and, finally, on the eve of Saturdays and holidays; in all these cases I can cut even in places not intended for attorneys, but taxes (for cattle or poultry I have slaughtered) must be delivered attorney. And as truly I swear, so may the Lord help me, praise be to Him, in all my businesses. According to this form, I swore allegiance to the NN of such and such a year - in the city of N."

Chapter 14

V form of oath for supervisors

"Here I take the oath in the name of God and the Kahal, without any cunning or ulterior motive, without thinking about any relaxation, but with complete unanimity on the lips and in the heart, that I must carry out my duty with fidelity, without any evasion, so that to the extent possible, protect the tax from abuse, so that no the slightest regulation regarding this tax was not violated. From the income of the ka-gala, I should not hide or conceal a single half, nor should I please anyone. to the owner or butcher to the detriment of the kagal tax. Everything entrusted to me must to be sacredly observed and fulfilled by me; and as long as I remain in this position, I am subject to the completely binding force of this oath, and as I truly take the oath, so may the Lord help me, praise be to Him, in all my undertakings.

According to this form, he swore an oath, on such and such a day, a day, a month, a year, as a certificate Why will I sign?

Chapter 15

Forms of the oath of the clerk of the box collection

"Here I take the oath in the name of God and the Kahala, without any cunning or ulterior motive, without thinking about any relaxation, but with unanimity on my lips and in my heart that I should not I hide or withhold from Kagal taxes, like from a three-penny duty and payment for cutting, and from the income from the tax on entrails, not a single half-ruble, and not allow yourself the slightest retreat. With no less fidelity and complete conscientiousness, I am obliged to always carry out my position as a clerk. when collected in boxes; in a word, out of all the money belonging to the city tax that will come into my hands in any way, not half a I will not hide and I will not please or show leniency to any master or a butcher to the detriment of said tax. And as I swear sincerely, may it help The Lord God is to me - praise be to Him - in all my undertakings.

I took the oath according to this form, on such and such a day, month, year, and in such and such a city, in as proof of which I sign NN."

Chapter 16

The oath formula for the leaders of the city of Minsk, approved by the general Jewish meeting

"I pledge myself by oath and oath in the name of God without cunning or deception at all times of my service to perform my duties on public affairs in favor of the city; Yes The Lord God will help me in all my affairs, as I sincerely take upon myself everything, what I said."

Chapter 17

Twists of the Jews in the oath of allegiance

After the end of the rebellion, the head of the Northwestern Territory, gr. Muravyov ordered to take an oath of allegiance to all residents of the Western Territory. The form of the oath was ordinary, which stated that "we swear allegiance Russian government and, if necessary, we will defend it to the last drops of blood." Jews, while taking the oath, protested against the words: "until last drop of blood," saying, "It is better to say that we Jews will obey the Russian government is enough; and this blood is not needed at all." (From the lecture Professor Koyalovich). Warsaw Jews taking the oath of allegiance the Russian government protested against the words in the form of an oath: "sacrifice your entire fortune"; they said that this was impossible, because "this means giving away all the money."

Around 1723, after the repeal of the naturalization law, the entire history of the Jews in England revolves around one question, about the oath. There was a law according to which a British Jewish subject could omit the words "according to the true faith" in the oath Christian," and that the taking of such an oath should have been permitted in exactly this way the same as it is allowed for witnesses taking an oath in court. English jurisprudence and law were as follows: all unbelievers - infideles - from the point of view of law, should be considered as eternal enemies - perpetui inimici, for between Christians and them, just as between Christians and devils, subjects of which the unbelievers consist, there is eternal enmity and there can be no peace. The law that existed in England was actually founded on the basis Talmudic Jewish laws, which still exists among Talmudic scholars in relation to Christians. All European nations have relaxed their law according to towards Jews, and Jews towards Christians even more strengthened fulfillment of Talmudic injunctions. These general rights for Jews not only weakened their hatred of Christians, but, on the contrary, strengthened them even more. Before although they had fear, but now they are given equal rights - they demand that Christians were afraid of them, which they had already partially achieved.

Chapter 18

Form of oath from the text of the charter King Casimir of Poland

1. "What kind of testimony does a Christian prove his claim against the Jew.

First, we decree that if any Christian has any objection to a Jew's claim on any subject, seeking movable or immovable property property, or in a criminal case that concerns property or a person Jews, such a Christian is allowed to take the oath only with two co-sworn

Machine Translated by Google

Christians and two Jews; these sworn mates must be men of good repute and not noticed anything suspicious. When such witnesses come to testimony is allowed, then Christians must take the following oath on the holy cross: May God and the holy cross help us, etc., as is the custom of Christians; Jews they will swear on the scroll of the Ten Commandments, according to the custom of the Jews themselves, according to claims for an amount of 50 marks of cast silver and more; according to the claim for an amount less than 50 marks of silver, Jews must take an oath on a ring hanging next to stairs on the doors of the synagogue, according to Jewish custom, i.e. as follows: May God, who illuminates and darkens, and books help us Moses, etc. In this way, and not otherwise, the Jewish oath must be performed on all matters both large and small, holding on to the ring. And the jury formula must hand over to a bailiff (ministerialis) or a schoolboy who will This is why he was sent."

What the ring means in the oath ceremony is unclear. In Jewish rituals In relation to the oath formulas, there is no hint of a ring anywhere. Eat government rite indicating and frightening with the threat of torture, becoming rearing, a custom that still exists in Krakow. In the police hut, where policemen are on duty, there is a wide board against the wall and a ring and iron screw are screwed into the top chain. The guilty police soldier is brought to this board, put on the back the hands are handcuffed, the legs too, and the chain threaded into the ring at the top begins to be pulled, then the arms and legs rise up, and the person hangs face down in the air. Torture ancient Polish, was used in the Inquisition, remained in use in Krakow, serving as a disciplinary punishment for the military.

One can guess that in the Jewish oath there is a ritual ring, for which the swearer was obliged to hold on, served as a reminder of the torture - in the event for the false oath of a Jew, he was subjected to this kind of punishment. Most likely at the door synagogue there was a large ring worn around the neck of a Jewish sinner, whom all Those entering the synagogue struck him with their fists and spat in his face.

XII point. About a Christian beating a Jew and tearing out his hair (beards and sidelocks). "If a Christian beats a Jew, or pulls out the hair from his head (says the Polish decree) - in this case we give the following decree. Jew, wounded in the manner mentioned, must take the oath, according to their custom, on the bolt, or ring, at the door of the Jewish synagogue. In this case, a Christian who is recognized guilty on the basis of the oath taken by a Jew, will have to pay for each slap on each finger costs 5 hryvnia; for each wound - half of yours estate, movable and immovable, the offender pays the Jew, the other half we preserve it for us and our heirs, and for the voivode of the voivodeship on whose territory the offense was committed. As for payment for the hair torn out by a Christian from a Jew, the Christian will be obliged to pay the Jew for it, according to the decree of the dignitaries (dominorum) present at the trial. IN cases of claim were addressed to the Kahal court. Jews under King Casimir in Poland were more secure than under their king Solomon in their kingdom Palestine. But King Casimir was nicknamed Mordecai by Polish poets, and Poland is Jewish Palestine. Chapter 19 Formula of the Jewish oath of the 15th century, placed in the statute Lyaskogo, in cases of ritual murder of Christian infants

Machine Translated by Google

This oath, according to the Lyasky statute, a Jew had to take while standing on a small bench with three legs, which was supposed to be placed on the pork skin. And if a Jew, while taking an oath, slipped his foot from a shaky stool placed on sliding pig bristles, then the Jew’s oath was considered false, and he himself guilty. Because the guilty person always trembles with excitement and fear.

The custom of using this type of oath was subsequently introduced into the general use, especially in controversial matters with Christians. Was even used oath on pigskin and in the city of Warsaw. Folk legend often speaks about this, recalling with irony that they tease Jews by showing the corner of their sex, as if depicting a pig's ear. Egyptians,

Persians, Greeks, Romans, all of Western Europe have always protested tried against Jewish oppression and with all permitted and prohibited measures protect yourself from this sect. Already the “Jewish quarters” - ghettos - which were allocated in all world centers for the “chosen people”, which were disdained by all citizens as an unclean place, eloquently testify to the attitude of the whole world towards Talmudic Judaism. Talmudism does not represent religion in the generally accepted sense of the word, but secular religious and political teaching, surrounded by criminal penalties. Not representing religions, Talmudism in its decrees has all the characteristics anti-state and anti-social sectarianism (in the words of our State Council of Russia, Jews are a “religious-political sect”), aimed at the predominance of Jewish nationality throughout the world and the denial of all other nationalities, religions and states. Having achieved by deception the “civilian equality" (due to ignorance of the Talmud in the era of the first French Revolution), the Talmudists undoubtedly proved their political and civil malignity. To get a civilian license with dignity equality, Jews must renounce or renounce the entire Talmud, as they did Karaites, who have enjoyed equal rights with us since the time of Catherine II, or, according to at least from its most barbaric legalizations. But are the Talmudists left? faithful to the Old Testament prophets and teachers? Here are a few examples: “If a Jew owes the akim (Christian) and died, then the Jew is not obliged to pay his debt heirs, assuming, of course, that not a single akim knows about this debt. If If you know this, then the Jew must pay money to the heirs in order the heirs did not say: “The prayer “simul” (which the Jews say after every eating food and the end of which is a blessing to the owner of the house) should not be pronounced in the house of any akim, so that he does not receive blessings." On the evening before Passover, every Jew must read prayer, the text of which is as follows: “Stretch out your wrath on the nations who have not known you, and on kingdoms that do not call on your name... Pursue them in your wrath and destroy them under heavens of the Lord." “A Jew cannot serve as a witness for the akim against a Jew.” “You must not deceive your brothers, and the Nazirites are not our brothers; on the contrary, they worse than dogs." Well, did the Old Testament give the Jews such rules of “virtue”? Here's one comparison: the prophet Moses (Ex. XXI, 35) commanded: “When a bull strikes a man the horns of the neighbor's bull, and (the bull) dies, let them sell the ox alive and divide its price and let the ox of the deceased be divided.” Talmudists supplemented this commandment: “But akim,” they say they are not my neighbor” (hence?). “When, on the contrary, the Nazirite bull strikes a Jewish bull with its horns, then it is necessary that the akim reward the Jew, because he is the akim.” This is what the Shulchan Aruch teaches, which is "code of laws" of the entire Talmud, obligatory for all Jews according to the testimony of themselves and Jewish writers. The author of the "Jewish Catechism", Segal, confirms that this collection is of greatest importance to Jews; Khvolson calls him “Jewish code of laws,” and the Jewish newspaper Voskhod admits that “all Orthodox (orthodox) Jews are firmly convinced of the complete infallibility of the Shulchan Aruch, that they swear by the Shulchan Aruch and swear on it.”

Machine Translated by Google

TREATATE II INSTRUCTIONS OF THE TALMUD ON BRIBERY OF AUTHORITIES

Chapter 1

The doctrine of bribery of authorities

According to the teachings of the Talmud, all bribery, unjust bribes and hypocrisy are permitted to the Israelites regarding Christians, for it is said: “Gifts blind the eyes of those who see and words of the righteous destroy"[1] . The most important commentator Rashi says: “Based on the biblical legend, the Jew is obliged to initially act bribery to seduce his enemy, otherwise he must use all kinds of tricks, like Jacob, who, returning to his father from Laban with wealth and fearing the revenge of his brother Esau, sent him gifts that softened him anger". Also: “Do not have mercy on them”[2] . what does it mean: don’t give anything to non-Jews for free3 . One of the highest Talmudists Rashi speaks about bribery of judges and authorities the following: “Question. -Is a craftsman who spends his annual money for gifts to officials on matters relating to crafts, to participate in such consumption from the side of the stool? Answer. - If the kagal gives awards to the judge, so that it is his protector and patron in every case when it is necessary in during our stay in exile, then the artisan cannot refuse to participate in this expense, if the kagal gives gifts to the judge for court cases to which this the artisan is inviolable, then he is free from participation in expenses"[4] .

1 Ref. XXIII, 8. 2

Deut. VII, 2. 3

Note. Rabbi Behai to the Pentateuch. 4

“Teshubat Harosh”, § 10.

"Mishna", tract. "Berakhot" IV. The text reads like this: “Who takes a bribe for sending justice, those decisions have no force; who takes a bribe for cooking purifying water and for sprinkling it, his water is the same as water from a grave cave, and his ash is the same as ash from a hearth, that is, invalid.” But this applies only to his fellow believers. This saying applies to the courts that were in Palestine, but not to the goyim.

The Talmud mentions disputes between Talmudists and “menaia” and “philosophers” who have some connection with Christianity, since they heal in the name of Jesus and know the Gospel, but these are Jews, although they approve of the teachings of Christ, Jews who entirely stand on the basis of the Mosaic Law and at the same time recognize Jesus Christ the Messiah, and in the Gospel a divinely inspired book. A very interesting story has been preserved about one such Jewish “philosopher” in Babylonian Talmud (Tract. “Shab-bes”, l. 116, p. 1). Imma Shalom, the wife of Rabbi Eliezer, was the sister of Rabbi Gamaliel. Next door to them lived a philosopher who undeservedly enjoyed fame incorruptible judge. Rabbi Gamaliel and his sister came up with an idea to make fun of him. Imma-Shalom brought a golden lamp to the philosopher as a gift and said: “I am seeking a share in the father's inheritance."

The philosopher replied: “Yes, you have the right to half the inheritance.”

Rabbi Gamaliel: “Our law says: when there is a son, the daughter does not receive inheritance."

Philosopher: “Since you were expelled from your land, the Torah has been abolished and given The Gospel, which says: son and daughter are equal in inheritance.” The next day, Rabbi Gamaliel brought a Libyan philosopher as a gift. donkey Then the philosopher said: “I read the book to the end and found this verse: “I do not came to take something away from the law of Moses, to add something lower to it,” and in the law Moses says: if there is a son, the daughter has no right of inheritance.” Imma-Shalom (to the judge meaningfully): “May you shine like a lamp!”

Rabbi Gamaliel: “A donkey came and knocked over the lamp!” The historical significance of the above episode is small. Already the first commentators of the Talmud did not hide the fact that brother and sister are too They pay dearly for the pleasure of being convinced of the dishonesty of a philosopher.

The theme of this story is the well-known halakhah about the participation of women in the division inherited property. This halakha once aroused great controversy among Talmudists and did not receive a final solution as early as the 4th century. The history of this The halakhah regarding inheritance is as follows.

According to number 27, 8, in the absence of sons, the inheritance goes to the daughters. From This is why the Pharisees made a rule that if there are sons, daughters are deprived of all rights to paternal property. But with this interpretation it turns out that if one of brothers, having only daughters, dies during the life of the father, then the right to part of the property passes to him, according to the law, to his daughters, and these latter, so Thus, they find themselves co-heirs with their uncles, the brothers of their deceased father. The Sadducees1 objected to this conclusion: “If, they said, the daughter of my son may ever appear along with other sons as my heiress, then no more Is it logical for my own daughter to have the right to inheritance?” Thus the Sadducees, perhaps under the influence of Roman jurists (“pagan sages”, according to in the expression of the Jerusalem Talmud), women were recognized as equal to men have the right to inheritance.

The Babylonian Talmud2 conveys this dispute in great detail, starting the story with such an apodectic saying: “You should not listen to a person who equalizes the rights of inheritance between a daughter and a grandson, even if he himself is a “nasi” (prince) of Israel.” Obviously we are talking about the legal capacity of women, and the tone of the saying indicates the severity of the dispute. But despite the existence of such a saying (it preserved in the name of Rab), one scholar of the 4th century, Rabbi Pana3 defends the rights women in the sense of the Sadducees.

The point that interests us most in the litigation of Rabbi Gamaliel is the look "philosopher" on the New Testament. On the one hand, the very appearance of the Gospel in connection with the expulsion of Jews from Palestine, i.e., the final deprivation of political independence, abolishes the law of Moses, and on the other hand, the true words of the Founder Christian religion: “I did not come to change the law of Moses” - restored in rights this law. 1 Tract.

“Bova-Batra” (beg.) l 16, p. 1 at the top or “Boetusei (Tozefa Yadaim 11, 683 ed. Zuckermandp). 2

“Bova-Batra”, 115-2. 3 Ibid., l.

110-1 below.

It is clear that we have here a Talmudic echo of the great debate about the obligatory nature of the Mosaic Law after the destruction of the Jewish state, a dispute that for a long time worried jurists of different societies. The history of this story is easy to reconstruct. Two unknown disputes in the Talmudic world: about women's rights and about The obligations of the Mosaic Law are brought together with the help of an anecdote about a bribe-taking judge. The fact that the era of destruction is chosen as the time of the story Jerusalem, very typical. Since our author, about whose history evidenced by the skillful combination of various moments to make a story plausible, it was necessary to choose this era, when litigation was still possible a pious Jew from a judge who was not entirely sure of the binding nature of the Mosaic Law and yet enjoyed a good reputation, he had inevitably stop at the era of the destruction of Jerusalem, for only then did the Jews stand in such close relationship with Christians. The nature of these relationships is well defined the general movement of the story.

Chapter 2

Kagal acts 29 documents

We borrow from the book “Kagal”, interesting things about this subject documentation. Here they are: 1) “On the remuneration of quarterly overseers,” Saturday, Hoax department 5555 (1794). “Representatives of the Kahal decided: to issue three police officers with quarterly for the entire period up to the present day, the guards received eight zlotys (1 ruble 20 kopecks). This money should be given to them by the controllers of the box collection cash desk, kept by the agent of this collection.”

2) “On the hiring of an observer for Jewish affairs in the police.” - Monday department of the Pentateuch, Vaieira, 5555 (1794).

“Representatives of the kahal have decided: to instruct the city representative, Rabbi Judah-Leib, son of Rabbi Jacob, to visit in the police and monitor Jewish affairs there, both kahal, that is, public, and private, with the only condition that he himself should not have to pay for public affairs the right to promise gifts to anyone without the prior consent of the parnes hodesh", i.e. the monthly head and one of the other representatives of the city. For that he is given a salary from the Kagal treasury of two rubles a week.”

3) “On congratulating your superiors on the holiday.” Tuesday 2nd Ira, 5555 (1795) of the year.

Representatives of the Kahal decided to allow the rich man Isaac from Lyakhovka (outskirts of Minsk) make a loan for the amount necessary for volochnye (costs of congratulatory gifts to superiors). Chosen for such congratulations the rich man Reb Zevi, son of Sh. and the aforementioned rich man Isaac, and they are joined by more four public rashim (heads), and all of them together will walk among the authorities with dragging".

4) “On congratulating your superiors on the holiday.” Thursday, Division of the Pentateuch, Vaieira, 5598 (1797). “The leaders of the city established: to go with congratulations on Vasily’s day Great, i.e. on the 1st day of the new year 1798, to the chiefs in whose services the kahal needs, and use the amount necessary for this item at the discretion of those leaders who will take on such an assignment."

5) “On congratulating your superiors on the holiday.” - Saturday, the last day of Easter, 5559 (1799). “The leaders of the city decreed: to go with volition to everyone

Machine Translated by Google

bosses and officials, and take money from the Kagal treasury for all necessary there are costs for this subject." 6)

"On collecting money to congratulate the authorities on the holiday." - Saturday the 14th Teves, 5562 (1801). Minsk.

"In case of extreme need for money to cover the huge expenses for congratulations from the authorities on the Christmas holiday, according to our custom, by the members Kagal administration and large assembly decided: to use all kinds of funds for collecting interest tax arrears. Money that will be collected, apply to the current year's travel expenses." 7) "On the costs of congratulating the authorities." - Thursday, 4th of Shevat, 5563 (1802). "Due to the need for a large amount of money for gifts during congratulations to the authorities on the New Year, which can be achieved, as expected, in this year up to 80 rubles, and perhaps more, by representatives of the Kahal and the general the meeting decided: to collect from the killing of birds," etc. 8)

"Account for the money spent on congratulating officials on the new year. - The value of four heads of refined sugar is 82 pounds and 18 lots are two hundred thirty-three Polish zlotys and eighteen groschen. We, the undersigned, are controllers appointed by the general meeting to verify the accounts representatives of the Kahal on expenses for congratulating officials, on this date with all carefully calculated how much each of them, according to the number below, spent from his money in favor of the kagal, namely: r. Isaac, son of R. Isaac, follows one hundred and eight rubles; Moses, son of Jacob, twelve rubles; R. Joseph, son of Isaac Segolgo, thirty rubles, etc. In total there should be one hundred ninety-one ruble ninety-three s half a kopeck, in confirmation of which we signed with our own hands. Eve Friday the 5th of Shevat, 5563 (1802), Minsk." "Thursday, 4th

Shevat 5563 (1802). Due to the need for large amount of money for gifts when congratulating your boss on the New Year, which can to reach, as expected, up to 80 rubles this year, and maybe even more, representatives of the Kahal and the general meeting decided: so that from now on There is no time to farm out the carvings of the birds except under the following conditions: the farmer is obliged to pay the full annual salary immediately upon taking the farm-out; Start contract is counted from the month of Elul

5563 (1802) years. In all synagogues it must be announced that those who wish participate in the auction for the transfer of the said tax to the farm, are required to appear in the chamber kahal meeting until next Sunday, and the one for whom the ransom remains must fulfill the above conditions, etc. All this was decided by common consent in Kagal hut on the basis of laws and customs."

10) "On collecting money to congratulate the authorities on the holiday." - Saturday, 21 Teves, 5563 (1802), Minsk. In case of extreme need for money to cover huge expense for congratulating the authorities on Christmas, in our opinion According to custom, the members of the Kahal administration and the large assembly decided to use all possible means, persecution and violence through a secret representative to collect arrears of interest tax. The money that will be collected will be used for carol expenses for the current year."

11) "About a loan made by the kahal for the purchase of gifts for his superiors on the occasion Easter holiday." - Sunday, the last day of Easter, 5562 (1801) years.

"Regarding the volochebnaya, representatives of the Kahal decided and decreed: so that all the leaders lent 10 silver rubles each to the Kagal. Paying this debt guaranteed by all income of the kagal, etc."

12) "On congratulating the authorities on Easter." -Sunday, 23rd Nissan, 5562 (1802).

"Representatives of the Kahal decided that the attorneys of the box collection with meat was sold out of a box amount of 800 Polish zlotys (120 rubles gray) for congratulations to the officials on the holiday."

13) "On the issuance of 100 zlotys (15 rubles) from the amount of the box fee for expenses go away".

1 We cited all these extracts, as well as subsequent ones, from Mr. Brafman's book because that they quite vividly depict the internal order of Kahal life, and the book itself "Kahal", as a result of the zealous efforts of the Jews to exterminate it, has become time bibliographic rarity.

"Today, on the eve of Thursday, the 19th of Nissan, 5562 (1801), it was decided: to order Peretz, the attorney for the carving of livestock, to pay out of the amount of the boxed collecting 100 zlotys (15 rubles), to pay for coffee and sugar, given as a gift to the authorities before Easter."

14) "On the litigation between the Kahal and the Christian clergy in the magistrate." Saturday, department Pentateuch, Hukat, 5555 (1795).

"The representatives of the Kahal decided: to elect Rabbi David, the son of Rabbi Eliazar, as an assistant to the monthly head of the Kahal, who is entrusted with vigilant monitor in the magistrate the progress of the case initiated as a result of the request of the Christian clergy about collection from the kahal on a bill in the hands of the priests. The said members are given the right to use the necessary measures in this matter.

costs of the ticket office." 15) "On rewarding the gubernatorial secretary for service." Thursday, department Pentateuch, Hoax, 5558 (1797).

"Representatives of the Kahal decided: to use one hundred rubles from the tax amount for the purchase of rye for a known purpose, and give fifty rubles from the same cash register Secretary to the Governor, for services rendered." 16) "On the litigation of Jewish artisans in the magistrate." "Wednesday, department of the Pentateuch, Vayets, 5558 (1797). The leaders of the city decided that the attorney of the Kahal representatives gave out from the cagal cash desk the money needed to set up snacks in the town hall and drinks for judges dealing with a famous court case concerning Jewish artisans."

17) "On the ransom of Jewish prisoners." - Tuesday, section of the Pentateuch, Terumah 5558 (1798). "Since voluntary donations are not enough to cover the enormous costs necessary to ransom Jewish prisoners, then to find permanent sources on this subject, at a meeting of our experienced elders, it was decided: 1) to collect 18 groschen from the father of each newborn male child at circumcision and the same amount of pennies from each wedding. Shamoshim not must approve the list of guests whom the organizer of the feast intends to invite to to himself, until he makes the required contribution for the benefit of the prisoners; 2) at wedding feasts and circumcision place a plate for voluntary donations by invited guests; and 3) on the day of each full moon, go from house to house with a mug."

18) "About prisoners." - Monday, Department of the Pentateuch, Tezaveh, 5558 (1798). "The leaders of the city decreed that the kahal attorney should issue from cagal cash desk 50 rub. ser. for the ransom of Jewish prisoners who are now in severe imprisonment."

19) "About prisoners." - Saturday, section of the Pentateuch, Vaiak-gol, 5558 (1798).

"The leaders of the city decided: to hand over from the Kagal treasury for ransom Jewish prisoners of the 22nd Reichsthaler mentioned in the previous issue."

20) "On the ransom of Jewish prisoners." - Saturday, department of Arche, 5559 (1799).

"The leaders of the city decided: to elect four senior managers for the collection for the ransom of Jewish prisoners, known as pidion shevuim, namely: the eminent Rabbi Zev-Wolf... and so on. Two of them are also appointed as an attorney for the said collection. They must contribute everything money for this fee and they, at their discretion, undertake to produce everything expenses for this item."

21) "On gifts to members of the magistrate." - Saturday, Berag department, 5559 (1799). "The Kagal authorities have decided: to produce from the Kahal cash desk, to gifts to members of the magistrate the following costs: twenty rubles. banknotes for Artsimovich's remuneration for losses incurred during the proceedings David, son of I; give five rubles in banknotes to Yankushka, and other members the magistrate to reward at the discretion of the rich man Isaac, son of Akiba."

22) "On the assignment of an annual gift to the mayor." - Saturday, by department of Shemin, 20th Nisan.

"Representatives of the Kahal decided: to choose three heads from among themselves and send them to the mayor to persuade him in the future in favor of the Jews, for which promise a certain amount, which will be given to him in thirds of the year. The amount that will be necessary to reach an agreement with him, to take from the public treasury, from income box collection from the killings of large and small livestock." 23)

"Resolutions on the occasion of (some) audit." - Monday 24th Teves, 5562 (1801). "Since our society now needs a huge amount of money on occasion audit carried out by local authorities, then by representatives of the Kahal and the general The meeting decided: to take money for the costs of this case from the three-penny beef tax, from the amount that the attorney for this has long accumulated collection From this money, as much as is needed should be taken for expenses on the said subject, etc. Everything that has been said was decided by representatives of the Kahal, the general meetings and chaos in the kahal hut on the basis of laws and regulations."

24) "About the Zemstvo

post office." "Wednesday, department of the Pentateuch, Waihi, 5558 (1797), a) Leaders of the city decided: to submit a petition to the local Duma for it to collect from the Jews the salary for zemstvo mail and about the exemption of the kahal from such occupation. To succeed in this matter it was decided to use a few rubles from the cash register, b) At the same meeting it was decided: to buy fish for a famous person and use it from the kahal cash registers up to ten rubles, c) It was also decided: to file an appeal in the case with the tailors and use twenty Polish zlotys for this from the Kagal treasury coin".

25) "Resolutions on the occasion of some kind of audit." "Monday, the 24th of Teves, 5562 (1801). Because

Our society now needs a large sum of money on the occasion of the audit, now carried out by the local authorities, then by representatives of the Kahal and the general The meeting decided: to take money in the required amount for the costs of this business from the three-penny tax on beef, from the amount that had long accumulated attorney for this collection. All this was decided with the consent of all members of the Kahal and the local Besdin. Representatives of the Kahal, the general meeting and Besdin under terrible herem is decreed once and for all, so as not to spend a single penny from the tax money for any other urban needs, but exclusively to use them for the above matter. All of the above was decided by common consent in the kahal hut on based on laws and regulations."

Machine Translated by Google

26) "On the issue concerning the Jews of the entire region, about the meeting of members of the districts, for discussions about the percentage fee required to eliminate some the government's proposed measures regarding the Jews."

"Saturday, 1st of Teves, 5562, week according to the department of Mikotz. In emergency meeting, in the presence of the leaders of the city and the entire cavalry staff decided: due to unfavorable news from the capital, St. Petersburg, that the fate of all Jews is now transferred to the hands of five dignitaries, who are given full power dispose of it at our own discretion, we are forced to go to St. Petersburg with The goal is to ask the Emperor not to make any innovations. And so Since this matter requires extraordinary expenses, it was decided by general agreement: to establish a temporary interest fee, which must be levied in the following order: 1) everyone must pay V2% on capital capital, goods and secured debts ; 2) from real estate V4%; 3) from the annual income from houses and shops, owners are required to pay 10%; 4) young couples living on the support of their parents - 1% of their entire wealth, whether the capital is in their own hands or in circulation with others. Everyone living in our city is obliged to swear on oath that the payment of interest will produce them correctly. If someone agrees to contribute 50 chervonets (150 rubles) for this item, he will then be released from the oath, etc."

27) "On the percentage fee required to eliminate certain measures, supposed by the government regarding the Jews of the entire region"[1]

1 These 27th and 28th documents deserve special attention; they are Jewish the meeting discusses the commission on the Jewish question in St. Petersburg under the emperor Alexander I, and about finding means to counteract this commission. Coinciding with time and content of Derzhavin's report on the outcome of the cases of the Jewish Commission, with of which he was a member, these documents are mutually confirmed - given in the same chapter by Derzhavin's history and the letter presented Little Russian landowner Gurko.

"Saturday, in the department of Vaigash, 7th Teves, 5563 (1802). Kagalny the authorities and the emergency meeting decided the following: who to on the coming Tuesday will not pay the interest fee indicated in the previous acts, he will be announced as a person who has separated from society. In addition, six the attorneys named in the former acts are given the power to subject such person with various fines and pursue him as much as possible Israeli people. Resolved and decided by common consent: not to enter into the transaction with no one regarding release from the imposed oath. The oath, on the contrary, remains mandatory for everyone, with the exception of only those persons whom this will release the contribution of 50 chervonets; at the same time, with general consent, he was confirmed in office The cashier for this collection was the rich Rabbi Wolf, son of Hirsch, who was elected to this position the previous general meeting.

"Deputies from the entire region were present at the meeting of the general meeting."

"Tuesday, 10 Teves, 5562 (1803). By order of the six commissioners the matter of interest collection, the following was published in all synagogues: imposed three-day fast on the occasion of unfavorable rumors from St. Petersburg, namely in Monday, 23rd Tevez; These fasts must be strictly observed by everyone residents of our city, men and women, along with the fast of Esther. In these For three days of fasting, residents of the city are prohibited from gathering anywhere; for prayer everyone obliged to appear without fail in the big synagogue for general unity and strengthening prayers to God, and be sure to bring with you the amount announced with fiero interest fee. Who, in the days of growth, does not pay the debt accruing to him? interest fee to the last penny, that, in addition to other fines, which will be subjected to, will still be declared excommunicated from his people."

Machine Translated by Google

29) "On the formation of a commission to petition the governor."

"Tuesday, 10th Teves, 5562, Minsk. Due to necessity petition the city governor on certain matters concerning the common good Jews of our province, with the general consent of public administration and members It is necessary for a large meeting to elect the following persons for this task: a rich rabbi Isaac, son of Akiba, rich Rabbi Wolf, p. Hirsch, and a representative of the society, Rabbi Leib, son of Yakov. These individuals are joined by two more members from the current composition Kagal management, and all of them together should be engaged at the present time petition from the Governor for Jewish Affairs of our entire province."

All these extracts confirm the certainty of bribery of officials by Jews in former time. But that the tactics of the Jews never changed in this respect is is also beyond doubt. From Jewish tax farmers, customs officials, etc. bribes in the form salaries of officials were constantly recorded in tax books under the heading "extraordinary expense." Every official was called by a number and under it was on the lists. Thus, under strict investigations, when the authorities revealed taxation books in the name of the law, officials and tax farmers avoided evidence of extortion. G. Bogrov in his notes says that he knew the father and son of large officials who were on the salary of the farmer and at the same time were under unlimited the influence of one beautiful coquette, who, as a result, also enjoyed a significant salary from her farmstead. This worthy triumvirate was numbered in lists in fraction 1/23. She was the number one, and under her, at her feet, so to speak, the number 2 denoted her young admirer, and the number 3 - the old red tape. And one a major official who feared ransom, even after losing his position, continued receive a salary; According to the lists, he was simply listed as a zero.

The latest extracts from the kahal acts prove that Jews are not hesitate to penetrate into the highest administrative spheres when it comes to their own interests. In the matter concerning the Jews of all region, about which there is no need to cajole and bribe the local administration - block wardens, mayors, governor's secretaries, etc. official trifles - they, along with fasting and prayer, appoint a special extraordinary tax necessary to bribe government people, in the hands of whose fate is currently being determined.

Chapter

3 Derzhavin's story about bribery

The history of the famous Derzhavin brilliantly confirms the undoubted the reality of the intrigues used by Jews in such cases and their success to a certain extent. G. R. Derzhavin, as is known, was a member of the commission established under Emperor Alexander I to discuss the Jewish question, and this is what he reports he in his notes about his personal validity as a member of the commission and about results achieved by the commission itself: "It is clear that Derzhavin's opinion about the Jews, composed by him during his sending to Poland and given under Emperor Paul, on consideration of the government Senate, it was ordered to consider almost from from the very beginning of Derzhavin's ministry to the established council-committee of the prince Chertorizhsky, Count Pototsky, Count Valerian Zubov and Derzhavin, who was considered throughout his entire ministry, but due to various intrigues during

Machine Translated by Google

there was no ending to it. Deputies and rabbis were summoned from all the provinces, their congress continued for a year, appearances and their presentations continued throughout the winter, then various intrigues on the part of the Jews. The Belarusian landowner Gurko delivered to Derzhavin a letter he intercepted from the Jews to another Jew, their attorney in St. Petersburg, in which says that they imposed a heyrim on Derzhavin, as a persecutor, across all the kahals in the world, that is, a curse, that they collected 1,000,000 rubles for gifts in this matter. ser. And they sent him to St. Petersburg and asked him to make every effort to change Prosecutor General Derzhavin, and if this is not possible, then at least encroach on his life, for which they impose a sentence of up to three years, and meanwhile they convince him that as long as possible to continue the matter, because under Derzhavin they do not hope that it will end in their favor. Their benefit was that they would not be prohibited from going to taverns in the villages sell vodka, from which all the evil came, that they get drunk and lead to complete ruin of the peasants. A Jew came to Derzhavin and began to convince him that from all his other comrades did not lag behind, and suggested that he agree to accept one hundred thousand, if not enough, then two hundred thousand rubles, just to be in agreement with its other members. Derzhavin reported sovereign and reinforced the truth with this letter from Gurkin, in which it is clear that he has collected significant amount. Derzhavin assumed that the presented letter was a weighty the proof will completely turn the entire commission upside down. Meanwhile, through connection and friendship with Count Valerian Zubov, the sovereign recounted everything candidly happened, not knowing that he was in extreme connection with Mr. Speransky, who was then director of the office of the internal ministry of the city of Kochubey, whom he led nose; Speransky was completely devoted to the Jews through the famous tax farmer Peretz, whom he openly considered a friend and lived in his house.

So, instead of the sovereign coming out as strict against the Jews order, at the first meeting of the commission the opinion of all members was revealed so that to leave wine sales in the districts and towns as before to the Jews; but how Derzhavin did not agree to this, and Count Zubov was not present, then this is a matter remained undecided. Meanwhile, the Emperor grew colder towards Derzhavin hour by hour. and no letter to Gurkin according to the above, not only orders, below did not provide verbal feedback[1].

Derzhavin, having learned from Baranov, who is now chief prosecutor in the Senate, about the decision Thus, the Jewish cause, jokingly said: “Judas sold Christ for 30 pieces of silver, and How much are you for Russia?” He also answered with a laugh: “30,000 chervonets per brother, except for me, because the project I wrote was handed over by Speransky.”[2]

---

[1] “Notes of Derzhavin”, Moscow 1860, pp. 794-6. [2] “Russian Archive”, 6th volume, p. 800.

Also remarkable is the later incident that happened to Count D.N. Bludov and even having a somewhat comical connotation, but nevertheless outlining the courage and audacity that representatives can dare to Jewish factoring at the request of common Jewish interests.

This is the incident. In the morning on the very day when in the meeting The State Council was expected to make a final decision on one of the issues internal politics, which was of great interest to the Jews, the count, who shaved his toilet, they reported that a gentleman, apparently a Jew, urgently wanted to see him. The count refused to accept him. The petitioner did not calm down, begging valet to request an audience with the count, explaining his request not urgent need and promising that he would have to bother the Count no more than three words. The count smiled and ordered the annoying one to be let in petitioner, but under the indispensable condition that he utter no more than three words: in Otherwise, he will be shamefully kicked out of the house with a stick. The Jew rushed headlong into the restroom, put a sealed package on the table and, saying: "Take it and be silent," disappeared. At a meeting of the State Council, the count, telling his fellow members what happened a funny incident happened to him, he showed a package left by the Jew, in which, upon opening It turned out to be 200,000 rubles in cash. ser. Without a doubt, with this amount the Jews wanted to buy the count's vote, but, fortunately, they were mistaken in their calculations regarding the incorruptible honesty of an unforgettable administrator.

Machine Translated by Google

The Jews, through intrigue and bribery, following the instructions of the Talmud, in all states succeed in their dark deeds. Famous scientist in Germany Professor Eisenmenger devoted himself to 20 years of work on the study of Jewish literature, where he revealed the harmfulness of the Talmud in relation to Christianity. The Jews, having learned about the dangers of this book for them, tried to bribe them to persuade them in their favor. minister, who informed the king that the book written by prof. Eisenmenger very much harmful as directed against the Catholic religion and government. On this On this basis, without any investigation or trial, the book was banned to console the Jews. But at the request of Professor Eisenmenger, with the assistance of also noble court officials, this book was then presented to the Prussian king Frederick I, who appointed commissions of learned Orientalists in Hesse, Heidelberg and Moguntia to a detailed analysis of this essay. The rabbis who were called were very confused and did not find anything that they could protest about when comparing Talmudic quotations in this work with the original Talmud. In addition to all the Jewish intrigues and bribes essay by prof. Eisenmenger was approved and the review of the aforementioned case is now in royal chamber office in Berlin.

Chapter 4

About the bribery of officials by Jews

Let us return, however, again to the facts about bribery by Jews of various kinds officials in Russia. This material is inexhaustible. Jewish talent, by nature capable of winning over the most honest official to his side, first marking his weaknesses, in an imperceptible and slow way acts on his heart and mind, plunges the bribed into such an abyss, putting him on an illegal path that the unfortunate person subsequently has no way to cope. Every official, once falling into Jewish bondage, must inevitably continue his villainous path into hoping "maybe" he will take you out. In most cases, the bribed person will fall into the abyss and perishes with his whole family, for the law strictly punishes its apostates, no matter how their number is insignificant.

For example, let us cite at least one fact: on June 5, 1858, by the decision of the Moscow The Senate was deprived of all rights of the state and the Saratov local was exiled to Siberia bailiff Vandyshev for extortion and illegal relations with Jews. Leading the words of the true decision of the Moscow Senate, we take from many indictments points in the case of the killing of two Christian boys by Jews in Saratov only the following: "p. 10) On charges of bribery: a) bourgeois Olympia Gorokhova testified during the investigation of court councilor Durnovo that she heard from Yankel's wife Dushkevich Ita, that during the wedding of their daughter in early January 1853, therefore, before the disappearance of the second boy, Vandyshev took this Jew to task about boys 30,000 rub. ser. b) son-in-law of Yankel Yushkevicher, Mordukh Guglin, before adoption of St. baptism showed that his father-in-law Yankel, having been released from arrest on the 3rd parts (hidden by Vandyshev), bought a silver inkwell and took it to Vandyshev." At the conclusion of the Senate decision, after counting many indictments points exposing private bailiff Vandyshev in his illegal actions and the strike with the Jews, it says: “25) Former private bailiff, titular councilor Vandyshev, 56 years old, deprived of all rights to his fortune, demoted to private without seniority; V in case of his inability for any type of military service, applying to Art. 78. Code, also after deprivation of all rights of the estate, exile to Siberia for settlement, in not so remote places of Siberia, leaving him later under suspicion of deliberately reporting to the authorities about taking the body of the boy Maslov to the unit, about delivering it to the authorities false information" (Extract from the decision of the Moscow Senate). Vandyshev was sent to Siberia and poisoned himself on the way. To acquire patrons for dark deeds, the Jews do not spare any sums, sacrifices and even labors, just to find out that the person being fawned over is powerful, can patronize them in illegal enterprises and does not refuse offerings. Then they try to find out the character, inclinations and passions of that person. The Jews hasten to please him with their victims, selected according to his inclination and spoiled nature, in full confidence that what was spent will be squeezed out a hundredfold local Christian population. And in order to enjoy this position longer, they will try to protect their patron, they will begin to extol the imaginary to the skies. selflessness and justice. On the contrary, whoever refuses a bribe becomes a victim of their malice. They proclaim him a notorious bribe-taker, torturer, tyrant, they seek all possible means to overthrow him, and for this purpose the highest government authorities are bombarded with sneaky denunciations against him, and They try to discredit his good name in society through slander and slander. Not finding patronage of their fraudulent actions in the upper classes of society, Jews find protection in the lower classes, and the easier it is because it costs them less. Jews They have innate dexterity and art to win over anyone to their side, and to shake, apparently, the most disinterested justice. If they couldn't to gain someone's patronage with monetary offerings, they acquire him in other ways, having found out, for example, through the servant of that person, appeased in advance the person they want to attract to their side, what inclinations and passions he has, what his wife likes - they immediately try to please them and win them over of your business. If the person being ingratiated has, for example, a predilection for good horses, - the Jews will not hesitate to deliver and, for the sake of appearance, they will sell it to him, almost for nothing, such horses as their lover never dreamed of owning. If the spouse the person being fawned over has a predilection for outfits - the Jews will bring her the rarest fabrics, expensive lace, etc., and all this, however, under the guise of sale. In a word, for their selfish views, in order to achieve the desired goal, Jews will not give up anything no matter what sacrifices, they will not spare even their own benefits. Constantly, stubbornly, persistently, always, if not in one way, then in another way, sooner or later they achieve after all, their goals. Especially if the person they are fawning over is single and has a weakness for the fair sex, and moreover, they recognize the woman he adores, then through her they take such a master into their clutches and even become his masters. Similar In this way, the Jews are trying to get closer to the commissariat.

Chapter 5

Actions of Jews during the Russian-Turkish War

From Chisinau they wrote in Moskovskie Vedomosti that it took place at the local sale of “unusable things” in the commissariat. The competitors at the auction were only only three people - for hay and platforms, and two Jews - for sacks; generally on such auctions are made with little announcement and publicity, as if only for purification conscience. One random competitor, a Jew, handed over a package at random (including a deposit

Machine Translated by Google

10 percent of the proposed amount). Without this, the first buyer would have taken almost without bidding He probably thought so, judging by the small price he offered, and hoping for the favor of fate. The highest price for 22,800 bags was 300 rubles. People who know the business assure that if these bags were sold as rags, then it would be possible take 30 kopecks. per pood, and counting 7 pounds in a bag, it will be up to 4000 poods. This precisely those bags in which rotten crackers were handed over to the army.

At the auction, the Moscow commissariat handed over a large consignment of sewing, which Despite all the cheapness, the price for the work was generally a large figure for 26 s over a thousand rubles in silver. Crafts not supply: no deposit required. A lot of people came to the auction Russians who enlisted the requests of village women to give them homework - sewing soldier's underwear But even more Jews came to these auctions, and they succeeded. win the "cause", albeit with great losses. The bidding was hot; the Jewish party, apparently not wanting to let the matter fall into the "strange" hands, took the execution of 26-thousandth sewing for 13,000 rubles. You wonder: how can the far-sighted Israelis, who don't like to bother at all without any prospect of earning money, and especially with the prospect of obvious losses, could you reduce the price for sewing? Having no female workers in their Jewish community, they will inevitably have to sew with the same hands of our village women. How, how and who will compensate them for obvious losses? Someone must compensate them without fail. The Jew does not like to pound water. The hundred-year-old rumor explains this "incident". It wouldn't be a sin accept Messrs. Reception quartermasters should take note of this rumor. As noted which often take place at different auctions in the commissariat, the goods supplied by one large-caliber chief gesheftmakher certainly go to sewing to the same non-commissioned officer, a relative of a large one. Otherwise, they say, it cannot happen. Large a relative protects the non-commissioned officer, his relative. Out of gratitude for the protection, a small relative does not betray a large one, and no matter how bad no piece of canvas came across in the batch supplied by the chief gesheftmakher, everything will go to matter, everything will change. Not only that: the best pieces of canvas goods, getting into sewing, are simply exchanged for the worst ones and end up in new batches for painting over; in other words, the best pieces turn into an irredeemable ruble: the chief gesheftmakher supplies them; the non-commissioned officer, who receives these pieces in sewing, returns them again cartridge for a new supply, and so on. From this a whole system was formed, which in "exchange" is the best pieces of canvas coming from all sewing supplies; But since everything in sewing always goes through Jewish hands, no matter how cheap it is taken, there are still large indirect profits left.

Chapter 6

About the "patriotism" of the Jews in relation to Russia

The Jews call themselves devoted citizens of the Russian government and for the sake of this only apparent quality is constantly, persistently achieved in full equality with the original purebred Russians; Moreover, they claim to position of Russian finance ministers. Nevertheless, the "patriotism" of Russian Jews appeared in full glory during the last war. Instead of any monetary and material fees to assist the government for military needs or for sanitary the notorious sons of Israel ordered help only to their subordinate editors trumpet in the newspapers that "these are the richest Jews in Odessa" they send their daughters to hospitals to study the sanitary department." Really, really a great help - instead of money, a promise to study the sanitary part, in particular when this empty promise remains only on paper, in newspapers, and is not cited in execution.

Machine Translated by Google

Moscow Jews, also out of commitment to the government, distinguished themselves more: instead of monetary donations for sanitary needs, they limited printing in Moskovskie Vedomosti a rabbinical speech filled with as if would have extraordinary patriotic feelings. We, for our part, dare note that in this rabbinical speech, as in other speeches of the same broadcaster, which take place on the first pages of the same “Moskovskiye Vedomosti”, not only we find a sparkle of eloquence and sublime thoughts, but, on the contrary, we do not even see signs of the simplest logic. For example, a speech on the occasion of the Supreme Manifesto regarding the declaration of war on Turkey is completely imbued with the second thoughts of Jewry, and in many places there are ambiguities from the Talmudic theory dogmatists. The speaker in his speech constantly cites the August name of our The Monarch and His holy feat of liberation of peoples... peoples and peoples... But which specifically peoples? - this cannot be known, since throughout the entire exercise speaking gymnastics, the rabbi never dared to say that. The Talmud is strict prohibits sympathizing and pitying Christians, and therefore the preacher could not by his listeners, fans of the Talmud in the synagogue (where they constantly curse in prayers of Christians, for whose liberation from under the Turkish yoke our The All-Merciful Sovereign drew his sword), to express himself sympathetically and publicly pronounce the name of the followers of Christ and, in view of this, limited himself to the general phrase - “liberation of nations.” Thanks to this unique Judaism resourcefulness, a speech was prepared that was in keeping with the spirit of the times, and was observed in accuracy of the teachings of the Talmud. To an impartial observer-listener it was noticeable one thing is that it was not said about Christians. They are completely different patriots Jews when it comes to their own Jewish goods. Moscow Jews, for example, made large collections among themselves: for example, we repeatedly I had to hear from the Jews themselves about ten Jewish meetings in which Eight million rubles were collected. ser. to carry out the grandiose plan - purchases of the Chizhovsky farmstead on Nikolskaya Street. Here, under the guise of humane the Jews intended to organize charity under the guise of the discovery school and home chapel, its own Jewish exchange with the Kahal and with all the underground dens.

Chapter 7

Russian-Jewish press

Researcher of the Jewish question A.P. Pyatkovsky wrote: “Back in 1848, the famous Jewish patriot, - colloquially Moshka Blumberg, and then half Italianized, half-anglicized in “Sir Vozes Montefiore,” left the following prophetic covenant to his fellow tribesmen: “It is in vain that you monopolize capital, trade and industry, arrange government loans and... bankruptcies. Until we take possession of the periodical press and have in our in the hands of the newspapers of the whole world... until then our dreams of dominion will remain empty chimera ."

And for half a century now, making its way step by step, unnoticed and gradually, in the field of newspaper, magazine and book business, the Jews achieved own: almost all organs of so-called “public opinion” in Europe have obviously turned into instruments of all kinds of blackmail - political, stock exchange, financial, theatrical, etc. - into breeding grounds for lies, slander and hard to imagine falsification. The European press, having lost only two letters in its name, can now safely call itself Jewish. It is both shorter and fairer... The notorious The “Panamanian story” in France showed firsthand what systematic falsification of public opinion in a nominally free country by false parliamentarism and the press captured by the Jews. Lies piling up on lie; a phantom that replaces reality; a fairy tale passed off as true; a fact suppressed by “silence”; white day turned into darkness; gun and sword truths, forged into a knife and stiletto of a hired "brave" - these are the characteristic signs of Jewish “dominion” in supposedly representative government and in false free press! It is clear that the Jews and the printed organs they “support” are so love parliamentarism, so they strive to introduce it under all geographical degrees of latitude and longitude: he, this very parliamentarism, at least in in its current perverted form - helped them carry under the flag of “freedom, equality, brotherhood” the most hated medieval load in the world - despotism, lawlessness, deception, exploitation and brutal disregard for the human person, as long as it is not covered by the shield of the “World Jewish Union”.

But if the passion of the Jews for modern parliamentarism, which has given they have such a terrible weapon in their hands as falsification of public opinion and usurpation people's government, then, on the other hand, it is quite understandable that the open rebellion against Jewish oppression, which arose throughout the countries of the "Jewish equality" and is called "anti-Semitism", although it would be more accurate to call it “anti-Talmudism”, because it does not persecute belonging to the Semitic race (Arabs and Karaites are also Semites, but no one fights with them), namely the Talmudic fanaticism and misanthropy towards all non-Jews, which elevated to political and religious law by the Jewish codes. Development anti-Talmudism accompanies the Jew at all points of contact with humane Christian civilization: and in France, where Jews number about 200-300 thousand souls and where they have already occupied a third of parliamentary and prefect seats, capturing concomitantly and the French state bank; and in Russia, where there are up to seven of them millions (!!) and where they are limited in the form of the “Pale of Settlement”; and in Prussia, where even the court pastor Stecker stood at the head of the anti-Talmudists; and in Austria, where now the most popular man in Vienna is the thrice elected burgomaster "anti-Semite" Dr. Luger.

Chapter 8

Opinion on Judaism of the Austrian Doctor Luger

Also interesting for us Russians is a conversation that recently took place at the doctor’s Luger with a correspondent from a reputable French newspaper who “observed” him “Temps”:

“Why did you become an anti-Semite, Mr. Luger? -

Because the Jews took everything into their own hands and there is no end to them anywhere. Jews flock here (to Vienna) from Galicia, from Hungary, from Romania. Not only is it impossible undertake some trading business, but you cannot even buy meat or a pair of boots without paying the Jews a significant tribute. Having conquered Vienna, they began to arrogantly display show off your power. The Jew is greedy and at the same time vain to the extreme. Once his greed was satisfied, he began to appear everywhere and everywhere excel. Just two years ago it was difficult for a Christian to find a place for himself in cafes, restaurants, theaters, and there’s no need to talk about resorts - everything was crowded there Jews. Now, I dare to assure you, all this has changed. But we not only have to crush the pride of Jewish rule, we intend to take away from them the most the fact of some kind of domination.

Machine Translated by Google

- However, there is no need for anti-Semitism for this. In the fight of the free Isn't the strength that comes from knowledge and labor enough for competitors?

- Alas, between Jews and Christians the question of success is by no means resolved. intelligence and hard work. I repeat, the chances are far from equal, because The Jews have a completely different morality than ours. They are always confident that they will defeat us, and therefore defeat us, if we do not take appropriate measures in advance precautions. - What can you do? - First of all, we will continue our propaganda, the results of which you You can already see for yourself. At the same time, you cannot deny that we act systematically and moving forward with confidence. We started by expelling the Jews from the capital Duma, and now they have achieved that the anti-Semitic majority has taken the place Jewish-liberal and in the local regional diet. And in other areas of Austria anti-Semitism is growing by leaps and bounds. It remains to go through the third ordeal, or, better said, we have to take the third fortress - to gain a foothold in the Reichsrat. The task may be much more difficult, but we are doing everything that needs to be done, and our success is beyond any doubt. Then we will take decisive measures towards emancipation Christianity from the Jews.

- And where, in your campaign plan, will you put the Jews? - Oh, I'm completely calm about this. When the Jews see that they cannot "to chop sugar on our heads", they themselves will leave us (isn't it to Russia, where they complain about an allegedly "oppressed" situation? - I. L). In the meantime, both in the city duma and In the regional Sejm we have considerable means of struggle. We are going to also to establish a bank free from all Jewish influence."

At the conclusion of this conversation, Dr. Luger expressed the hope that parliamentary government, willy-nilly subordinate to the Jews due to their connections with "financial rulers" - stock exchanges and banks - begins to little by little emancipate from this dependence and in his soul already takes the side of the anti-Semites. "We, to the best of our ability," Dr. Luger concluded his conversation, "are trying to clear the way to liberation of peoples and governments" (!!). On parliamentary soil in Austria, an energetic protest against Jewish hegemony, and its favorable outcome can already be considered quite likely. In any case, Dr. Luger, his friends and associates work tirelessly for the benefit of the "emancipation of Christian society" and count on to victory, despite the fact that the parliamentary regime in their country has already legitimized the "equal rights" of the Shulchan Aruch with the Gospel, law with lawlessness, philanthropy with misanthropy, freedom with slavery, perjury with loyalty to one's word and qualified deception - with honest execution of one's responsibilities.

By all accounts, Dr. Luger is extremely popular not only in middle society, but also in the lower classes of the population (a lesson to our pseudo-populists, who are ready to sacrifice the people to the widespread Jewish invasion!).

But what contributes to the development of newspaper and magazine Judaphilia, what gives him not only the means of nutrition, but also aplomb and influence on Russian society? We We will not be mistaken if we say that the main reason for the rapidly developing Judaophilia is served by the zealous support provided by Jewish capitalists press organs that grovel before them, and a complete lack of credit for independent periodicals wishing to serve not the Jewish kahal, but to the Russian state and people. At the same time, as the organs of the Jewish spirit and temper enjoy abundant material resources both through direct subsidies and through compulsory subscription in Jewish spheres, - lonely Russian publications that do not accommodate Jewish claims are deprived of any proper credit only from state-owned, but also from private banks, and, in addition, are subject to systematic persecution and slander by Jewish forces.

Machine Translated by Google

SECTION 3. DOGMATIC

TREATISE I ON THE JEWS' WAITING FOR THE MESSIAH

Chapter 1

Constantly Waiting for the Messiah

Despite the fact that the Jews are divided into many sects: Karaites, Talmudists, Kabbalists, Reformists, the dogma of the coming of the Messiah is equally recognized by all sects; Therefore, consideration of modern concepts about this dogma is interesting in that relationship, which indicates the degree of strength of the connection between the Jews and reveals the direction that the future fate of this tribe may take over time. Despite its dispersion, notes one traveler, in India, just like and in Europe, the Jews have the same ideas about the Messiah, the same animated hope of victory over other nations, to return to Jerusalem and to form a Jewish kingdoms.

Without a king, without a fatherland, the Jews constantly talk among themselves about their nation. Neither The remoteness of times and places cannot alleviate their misfortunes. Having lost his fatherland, the Jew retained love; Having lost his capital, he dreams of its restoration. Here's what associated with the belief in the coming of the Messiah. The Jew believes blindly. Living conditions, political events in his eyes take on the greatest significance when they seem to have relation to his religious expectations. The rabbis support and strengthen him faith, directing his teachings primarily in this direction.

The wise teachers of the synagogues, says one of the converted rabbis, in our time They usually end their speeches in meetings with a thought about the future ruler. They arouse in their fellow believers strict prudence in the law by the fact that support them in the constant hope of seeing the coming of the Messiah and enjoying all the benefits promised to Israel. The unification of the Jewish people, victory over others and the formation of an eternal Jewish state that will dominate over all other kingdoms and peoples - these are fascinating topics over which The rabbis work willingly. They usually back up their words with prophecies. like, for example, Daniel's prophecy about the stone being cut off from the top of the mountain so that with his fall to break the statue seen by Nebuchadnezzar. The stone here is given the importance of the people of Israel, which among other nations currently has insignificant value, but which in time will be able to overturn everything kingdoms in order to build their eternal empire on their ruins. Every Saturday Jews pray for the coming of the Messiah. In the synagogue, during worship, everyone stands up and stand facing the east and read: “Tzir Yisruel”, etc. “Creator of Israel! Arise for the salvation of Israel, redeem Judah and Israel according to your promise.” Here there is silence and 18 prayers are calmly read, many of them relate exclusively to the promised messiah. With sorrow and sighs they exclaim: “Musai tymleikh boitsyen?” that is, when will You, Lord, begin to reign in Zion? And etc. Es tsemach duvid a vdeho, i.e. “prosper immediately the color of your servant David, yes its root will ascend for our salvation, which we await from day to day. The Messiah will appear not until the world is free of wealth.” (Sanhedrin, l. 97.)

Chapter 2

All nations will accept Judaism “Rebbe Yoisi said that in the last days all nations will come together and accept Judaism” Talmud, tract. "Ioivumes", l. 24. Others assert that at the coming of the Messiah all nations will certainly be their vassals and that the world's wealth of all nations will belong to them; that there will be a terrible war, that all nations will come together to fight the Jews, who, of course, will remain victorious.

The combatants will meet at a wide river, through which the opponents will have to pass, but there will be two bridges on this terrible river, one made of paper, the other of cast iron. All nations will walk on the cast iron bridge and fail, but the Jews will safely cross the paper bridge, under which angels will stand instead of piles. The Jews live and breathe that sweet hope that the Messiah is hastening to them, that he will come and give all the wealth into their hands, having taken it from other nations; with this sweet hope they fall asleep and get up. Melameds teach in cheders about the messiah that there must be two Moshiach (messiahs). One of them is called Moshiach ben Joseph; this one will appear six years earlier than the one we have all been waiting for so long. The first Moshiach comes from the tribe of Ephraim, and the other is a descendant of King David. And this is what will happen before the coming of the Messiah. Then there will be people whom everyone will consider pious, but secretly these people will deny the existence of God. Such people will be everywhere, both among Jews and among other nations. And truthful, honest people will be forced to wander through the deserts and live in caves (a teaching similar to that of our schismatics about the Antichrist). And this time will be the kingdom of the hypocrites (Pharisees). It will be difficult for Jews to live in this difficult time, for how can Jews live without rabbis, without yeshivot, without synagogues? And this will not happen at that difficult time. Every day more and more new stories will be published, there will be no sources of food, there will be no pornography. Human life will be short, and the one who is now considered a young man by age will then seem like an old man. It will be in one part of the world. And in another part of the world a new generation will be born, too healthy, ugly, wonderful. Instead of one head, each person will have two, instead of two eyes - seven. Their legs will be unusually long. These people will conquer the whole world without weapons, because what do they need weapons when the mere sight of them will bring fear and horror to everyone. And then, by the will of Jehovah, such heat will come that can be compared to hellfire. There will be many diseases then, many people will die then; In the holy place, undertakers will continually dig graves. Then God will rain blood on the earth. To sinners this blood will seem like water, and when someone drinks this water, he will die instantly, and this rain will continue for three days. Many will think that the end of the world is already coming. In despair, everyone will wring their hands, repent of their sins and wait for death. Then God will send another healing rain to the earth, death will quickly stop, and the sick will all be healed. Then darkness will come, such darkness as in Egypt, with the only difference that in Egypt the darkness lasted three days, and then, before the appearance of the Messiah, the light of God will not be visible for a whole month. And all those who previously doubted His existence will see in this the finger of God, and will believe in Him. And when the sun begins to illuminate the earth again, the following will happen: Gog and Magog will conquer all countries and become world rulers. In total they will reign for nine months, but for us this will be the most terrible time. The Jews will be robbed and killed without trial, for sins; every day there will be more and more gzeirs; will begin to separate children from their parents. Every day there will be fewer and fewer Jews, and then Gog and Magog will think that they have completely disappeared. But at this time, when these “reshaim” will abuse us and blaspheme the name of Jehovah, - at this very time, the first messiah will appear - Moshiach ben Joseph - whose name in the world will be Nehemiah ben Hutiel. With a s

After this war, God's chosen one will triumphantly enter the gates of Jerusalem. The Egyptian king will make an alliance with him. And fear will embrace all the people inhabiting the universe when they find out about it.

There is one such city in the world called Rome. "Titus Gorosho" who destroyed the second temple was a native of this city.

So, in this Rome there is somewhere a marble statue depicting woman. This statue will suddenly turn into a living person, and everyone will see the amazing a man. His height will reach 12 arshins; it will have the same volume and width. Eyes his orbits will be deep, and between one eye and the other there will be a distance of four inches. His name will be Armilus. This Armilus will declare himself a deity! There will be people who will believe in him, and there will be many, many such people. He will say to all nations: "Show me the law that you received from me." And they will show him all their laws. And he will say then: "Yes, yes. This is what I told you." But Armilus will not be satisfied with this; He will also send envoys to Moshiach ben Joseph to bring him the Torah. And he will collect Jehemiah ben Hutiel, the 30,000th army of the tribe of Ephraim, will take the scroll with them torahs, and they will read before Armilus to prove to him that he is not God at all. Armilus will lose two hundred thousand people, and he himself will flee. And he will collect a huge army and will again fight with Nehemiah. Again the enemy will be defeated, but in this war, the Jews will lose the most precious thing: Nehemiah ben Hutiel will be killed.

After the death of Nehemiah ben Hutiel, the angels of God will come and take his body so that bury him in the cemetery where the ashes of our forefathers rest. About what happened the misfortune of Rosho Armilus will not know the Jews, otherwise there would not be a single Jew left alive. From now on, Archangel Michael will begin to cleanse the house of Israel: everything sinners will die; only righteous, honest people who forty years will remain alive They will live in the desert of Judea for five days and eat only bread and vegetables. Armilus at this time will fight with the ally of ben Khutiel, with the king Egyptian, and will defeat him, and after his victory over Mizraim he will approach Jerusalem. And again a difficult time will come for the Jews; those who do not have strong faith in the Almighty, in despair they will think that the end is already coming, that the Jews have nowhere to expect salvation. But Jehovah promised to deliver the Jews from "golus" and bring them to the promised land - and will fulfill his promise. It will appear on the Judean mountains Archangel Michael will blow the ram's horn (shefer) three times. And when it is heard the first sound of the trumpet, Moshiach ben David, together with the prophet Elijah, will appear in the desert Jewish to console and encourage the surviving righteous. Hearing the sound of the trumpet, the Jews will understand that "geuleh" (deliverance) is beginning. And will go the Messiah together with the righteous towards Israel.

When Armilus (implying Jesus Christ) finds out about this, he is terrified will get angry. He will say: "How long will these Jews live? They should be completely destroy." And he will go out with a huge army to war with the righteous Messiah. A The Lord will say to the Messiah: "My chosen one, do not worry, do not be afraid of the formidable power of the enemy, for I will fight with the enemies of My people. Just look at the greatness of God." And the Lord will send down a rain of fire on the earth, and all the enemies of God will be killed. At the second sound of the trumpet, all the graves in Jerusalem will be opened and resurrected the righteous buried in them. When the Archangel Michael blows the trumpet for the third time, all the Jews who are beyond the Sambation River, living in Lachmat, Haber, Gozen, Media and Persia, all the lost ten tribes of the Israelite left will gather together and will head to the Promised Land, and just as during the exodus of the Jews from Mizraim they will protected by pillars of fire and cloud. Along the way, if anyone feels thirsty, life-giving springs will open before him; deserts will turn into the most fertile countries, the roads will be paved with pretzels, and there will be ready-made silk Saturday kaftans. And travelers will not feel any fatigue: no they will be neither hot nor cold, there will be no sick or infirm among them. And everyone will understand The peoples will then know what a Jew is, and they will feel respect for them. Then it will come that happy time about which the prophets spoke - Isaiah, Micah, Amos and others: enmity will disappear, wars will stop and people will live together like brothers: everyone will reforge nations their swords into plowshares, their spears into pruning hooks: then the strong will no longer be oppress the weak.

Chapter

3 Thirteen Articles of Faith

Maimonides' interpretations also included the 13 creeds, a confession pronounced almost every Jew daily after morning prayers. The twelfth character of this confession refers to the coming of the Messiah and consists in the following words: "I fully believe that the Messiah will still come, and even if his coming is delayed, I I will wait for him every day." Every devout Jew is sure that if death catches him doubting any of these dogmas, then he will not receive eternal bliss.

Maimonides, as the recognized eagle of the synagogue and authority for blind fanatics and embittered opponents of Christ, set his main task to establish all actual proselytes of the Talmud in such false beliefs. With all his might tried to prove that the story of Christ does not at all fulfill the Old Testament prophecies messianism. His anger against Christians is so great that he, forgetting the seven commandments Noah, declares that Christians should not be distinguished from pagans.

The prayer of the Jews on the feast of Pentecost Shevues is as follows: "You, Jehovah, have chosen us from all nations and exalted us above all; do not forget us now, just as you first, return us quickly to Jerusalem and deign to restore the house of the sanctuary Yours. We pray to You: send us the long-awaited Messiah." Not a single one passes worship services, so that the Jews would not ask God for the appearance of the Messiah, which they had long awaited; the mere thought of his appearance encourages and comforts them.

Chapter 4

Jewish press organs about the Messiah

The Jewish press pays the main attention, partly in the form of support faith, partly from their own calculations, on the conditions whose appearance, in their opinion, serves opinion, facilitating the coming of the Messiah and at the same time predicting his imminent advent. The main of these conditions are considered to be: frequent political storms and public opinion, which, when the Messiah appears, will of necessity to be directed towards the strongest influences, which, of course, the messiah must produce, and, in addition to political storms, the growing political the strength of the Jewish tribe in the form of the strength of bankers, statesmen, etc. Over These main conditions are not forgotten and the secondary ones.

Recognition of national rights, resolution of international issues through congresses, the bringing together of peoples through steam and electricity, and even the proximity Suez Canal to the future Jewish capital Jerusalem - get in the eyes Jewish special meaning. If, they reason, the development of nations leads to disputes and litigation various states or nations begin to be submitted to judges from of all states involved and not involved in the dispute, then isn't it right assume that such a direction will lead to the fact that all international disputes

Machine Translated by Google

will be offered to judges from a people alien to any statehood, the most ancient according to their national history and the most gifted by nature, that is, the Jews.

Considering themselves God's chosen people, the Jews place themselves above all nations in world. They are not embarrassed by the fact that they play a secondary role everywhere; on the contrary, in this they see proof of their superiority. “The only miracle in the world,” writes one Jewish minister, is the existence of a people scattered throughout the world for 1800 years. all parts of the world and has not mixed or united anywhere with the peoples among whom he lives. Such a phenomenon clearly proves that the grace of God lives among us, the eldest sons of humanity, and that the future will unite us and will give us dominion over all other nations."

Thus, historical life among other nations took away from the ancient faith people is its most essential feature; - the nature of active anticipation of preparations to a meeting of individuals, not events. As a result, the personality of the messiah does not represent They have as much affection as, for example, their eternally desired capital Jerusalem. This is what one statesman from this writes about the significance of Jerusalem people:

“For us, Jerusalem is not an empty word. Without thinking about it must follow the immediate fall of our faith, our traditions, the reasons for our existence. All The Jewish religion is based on national thought. There is not a single truly Jewish heart, not a single sigh that does not rise to the Fatherland. Getting up, lying down, sitting down at the table, we call on our God to speed up our return to Jerusalem without delay in our time. And is it possible to think that was the idea of a messiah impossible and unacceptable? I firmly believe that the messiah must come, and despite the length of the wait, I still expect it.

We are all expecting it, and with unflagging hope and faith we repeat loudly our great national expectation: “Next year in Jerusalem!”

Chapter 5

The Idea of the Personality of the Messiah

The idea of the personality of the Messiah among most learned rabbis boils down to that this personality will have these kinds of properties: “This messiah,” says one rabbi - descended from the blood of David. He will be born in the usual way, without special miracles. He will be gifted with prophetic intelligence and, moreover, such sharp senses that will be able to distinguish all kinds of things. Even though he doesn't will reach the perfection of Moses, he will marry many wives, and his children will be the line of his successors after he himself finishes his glorious career. The subject of his purpose will be only the liberation of dispersed Judaism from the captivity in which all nations languish him, and his escort back to the Holy Land. The people themselves will restore Jerusalem and its temple. The Messiah will only restore and will strengthen the temporary kingdom, the duration of which will be equal to peace. Then all nations will be submissive to the Jews, and these latter will have both the faces and the property of all other nations." How intense the political expectations of Jews are is evident from the words of another Rabbi: “The Jews,” he says, “are impatiently awaiting the sound of weapons of war, the devastation of countries and the fall of kingdoms. Their hopes are equal to the desire to see a repetition of the victory of Moses over the Canaanites, since this would be a sign of their return to Jerusalem to restore this city to its ancient grandeur! It is this kind of dream that constitutes the soul of rabbinic interpretations of the prophets.

These dreams are transmitted and instilled in the people by tradition, and the Jews, for so many centuries Those who prepared for this event are preparing for them now.

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 6

The Teaching of the Talmud about the Messiah as a King

The teaching of the Talmud about the Messiah as a king and about his kingdom is accepted by all Jews heart as an immutable truth. Faith in this political dogma is carried out in symbol of faith, in prayer, etc. In Gurevich's prayer book (Vilno, 1870) twelfth member of the creed reads as follows: "I sincerely believe in the coming of the Messiah, and although he delays, I still wait for Him every day" (p. 125).

Every Jew must turn to the Messiah three times a day, wherever he is. prayer: "Blow the great horn for our freedom and raise the banner to gather our exiles, and gather us all from the four corners of the earth." [1] Praying. Gurevich, pp. 71 .

Both Jews saturated with the Talmud and Jews who have received education. Only the first believe that the restoration of their kingdom will happen suddenly, by some miracle, without the participation of the Jews themselves; the latter teach that restoration the kingdom of the messiah will happen gradually and naturally, which the Jews must prepare for to this through education, which produces good generals, engineers, rulers necessary to restore the continued existence of the state of the messiah.

The Jews consider themselves "exiles, waiting for the voice of the horn to blow upon them." liberation and restoration of their kingdom." This also makes it clear why our "Jerusalem nobles" have their own court, their own government, so to speak, temporary, in waiting for the eternal kingdom of Jerusalem. Jewish mystics argue among themselves about reasons for the non-appearance of the Messiah. "Why doesn't the Messiah come?" ask the enthusiastic fanatics. Because, the sages answer, there are two opposites in the afterlife. camps—infidels and righteous: one stubbornly defending the coming, the other denying it; hitherto the preponderance is on the side of the unbelievers. The way must be prepared for him, others say. Follow all strict orders for at least one day Sabbath, wait for the predicted alignment of roads, and he will certainly appear. By according to one venerable writer, the Jews, the Belarusian Hasidim, offered enormous money to one pharmacist so that he can justly decide whether it remains fermentation in a distillery vessel, which contains specially prepared kosher vodka, since any omission of the law slows down the coming messiah.

In their morning and evening prayers, Jews pray daily: "Gather us from all four winds together," and also: "Separate us from the goyim," that is, from Christians.

Chapter 7

Constantly Waiting for the Messiah

Due to the constant expectation of the Messiah, the Jew, saying this prayer, looks out the window and bows, as if welcoming the one who is coming to gather the Jews together.

As the reader sees, Jews are not very inclined to believe that the messiah they passionately expect that he will come to establish not an earthly kingdom, but a spiritual one, and that he will keep in mind the good of all mankind, and not just the Jews, at whose feet there will be all other nations grovel. No matter how clear the words of the Bible are that the Messiah in his own way upon his coming, he will endow the peoples chosen by him with benefits, without needing any artificial collection of them in one exclusive place from all directions of the world, and that therefore, it makes absolutely no difference where his chosen ones, but the Jews stubbornly ignore thanks to their fanatical narrow views all sorts of activities that can make them settled and help them relate to tolerance towards other nationalities.

Machine Translated by Google

Count Moritz of Saxony thought to found a Jewish kingdom and the title of king "the people of God" to calm their ambition; Napoleon I wanted from political views to renew in Paris the "Great Synagogue" ("Sanhedrin"), which was the legislator and the focus of the entire Jewish nation; in 1825 one New York the Jew started to found an independent state in America from his co-religionists, but all these assumptions did not find any echo between the Jewish world namely because they were deprived of the religious spirit. On the contrary, the appearance of some a charlatan who knew how to pass himself off as a messiah was able to unite the scattered members of Jewry. Only one hope is the coming of the promised redeemer supported the Jews amid the most terrible tortures to which they were subjected at all times times: this people only lived by it, wandering around the globe and not finding anywhere fatherland, submitting everywhere to the influence and self-will of the ruling people, but not mingling with him, and only to her does he owe the amazing preservation of his nationality. And time has not weakened this hope: all religious celebrations sealed with lamentation over sins, for which Jehovah struck down his people with wrath, and the hope that he will have mercy on those faithful to his covenant.

For two thousand years, they have been singing every Easter: "Almighty Lord, build, now build, quickly build Your house!.. Hurry, hurry!.. And to ours days, quickly build Your house!.." On the New Year's holiday, prayers for the sending of the Messiah end with the words: "In the coming year, O Lord, bring us to Jerusalem!.." Waiting for the Messiah, no matter how in vain it is, however, it represents the only belief of the Jews, which remained unchanged since the time of Moses. Is it surprising that with such In their prayers and beliefs, Jews have ready ground for the emergence of false messiahs. History shows that the appearance of these latter was not uncommon. The false messiah, Dosetheos appeared in Samaria at a time when, after the conversation of Jesus Christ with the Samaritan woman at the well of Shechem, the people came to the conviction that Christ there really is a true messiah. Dositheus, for his part, knew how to deceive people, which, in contrast to the first popular belief, according to which Christ was the Messiah, another party was formed here, which all the prophecies of Moses about the messiah was attributed to Dositheus, and, therefore, recognized him as the messiah sent from heaven. Dosifei had a zealous student, Simon the Magus, who contributed a lot to raising the glory of his teacher.

Chapter 8

Various ideas of Jews about the personality of the Messiah

Jews have the most vague ideas about the Messiah. If you ask any believing Jew, what is the Jewish Messiah you are waiting for, what lies its essence and what are its attributes - you are in vain to answer these questions would have expected some clear and precise answer. From one you will know that the messiah will come on a white donkey, smash Gog and Magog to smithereens and lead the Jews into Palestine; but where he will come from and how he will perform his miracles is unknown to anyone. Another you will be told about the coming of the Messiah, about his origin and tasks the most vague and contradictory concepts. Do not look for the exact formula of Jewish messianism in rabbinical literature or in everyday prayers: you don't have anything definite there you will find the 12th article of faith, recited by every Jewish believer daily in at the end of the morning prayer, reads: "I fully believe in the coming of the Messiah, and although he delays, I still await his coming every day." This is the official the formula of one of the most important dogmas of the Jewish faith, and since this formula does not give any indication as to the nature and task of the Messiah, then it is left to the imagination of each

Machine Translated by Google

there seems to be a wide scope - to imagine any fantasies in this area unknown. As is known, the idea of messionism is not the main dogma the original Jewish faith; neither the Mosaic Law nor the Mishnah mention something similar, even in the later Homer one authoritative Amorite dares to assert that “Israel has no messiah” (tract. “Sanhedrin”, l. 99, p. 1).

The initial ideas about the Messiah were purely political and arose for the first time during the Macedonian yoke - but the main phase of their development coincides with the time of the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus.

The main political messiah was 60 years after the capture of Jerusalem Beitar hero Bar Kochba, who for his failure was called a false messiah. Since then since the messianic idea, dictated by a sense of national self-preservation, everything developed more, intensified and reached particular intensity in severe years of oppression and persecution to which the Jewish nation. To put the suffering people to sleep in the cradle like a crying child feelings, the messianic idea was dogmatized by the very course of things, as the feeling that gave birth to it entered the flesh and blood of the people. Hope that was once Jewish the nation, having atoned for its sins in exile, will again acquire its political independence in the promised land is the initial and permanent sanction Jewish messianism. Popular fantasy has clothed this expensive idea in the most various forms. In different eras and under different influences they were created different ideas about the messiah. This kind of political fantasy kept Jewry in its false rigidity remains firm in its unfundamental religion. If not for this deceptive fantasy of theirs, Jewry would long ago submitted and joined Christianity, the true Messiah who appeared in time for the prediction of the prophets. Is the only reason for the appearance of such many false messiahs among Jews who have lost patience and hope in anticipation of the coming messiah. Therefore, the smartest and most enlightened Jews declare that their Messiah now exists the golden calf cast in the desert, the most important and only dogma of salvation remained with the Jews, which they believe in, worship and faithfully succeed in everywhere.

TREATATE II

STATISTICS OF JUDIAN FALSE MESSIAHS

Chapter 1

The first false messiah Dositheos

Dosifei directly declared himself before the people to be the messiah sent from heaven, as Origen testifies (2.2, against Celsus). To mislead the people and strengthen the faith believing himself to be a true messiah, he became a hermit and hid in one cave, where he indulged in an extreme but hypocritical fast, and in such a state, according to lack of bread and water, he arbitrarily killed himself by starvation, hoping by a hidden death to make his followers believe that he was taken alive into heaven, like Elijah and Enoch. On this occasion they say that when the body of Dositheos After several days it was found that it emitted a foul odor, worms were crawling along it, and a cloud of flies hovered over it.

Followers of Dositheus were found in Egypt even in the 4th century. They never consumed animate animals, feeding exclusively on fruits of plants. Many of them refrained from remarrying, and after death The first wives remained widowers until the end of their lives. Others retained their virginity throughout life.

They all performed the rite of circumcision and so strictly observed the celebration Saturday, that for 24 hours they did not even move from the place where they were found this day. Any touching of a person was considered a vile act by them. They spent their days in constant fasting, recognizing only the Pentateuch of Moses and guided by him.

Chapter 2

False Messiah 2nd Simon the Magus

The second false messiah, who also posed as a heavenly messenger, was famous Simon the Magus. Kalmet is rightly surprised how such a man like Simon the Magus, the head of a numerous sect, honored in honor of himself even a statue, a husband whom the Roman Emperor Nero himself and his Senate honored divine dignity, which by its deeds caused recognition of the same dignity from entire nations - how does such a man turn out to be either a completely unknown pagan writer, or even if known to some of them, then still neglected, so that they did not even consider it worthy to remember him in his written monuments. However, this lack of information among the pagans writers about Simon the Magus are supplemented by Christian writers, describing his deeds, teachings and even the very manner of death. Kalmet says that Simon the Magus was and was active in Samaria at the time when the Apostle Philip came there. Some scholars, this interpreter of scripture continues, consider this Simon the Magus to be the same person as that Simon of Cyprus, about whom Josephus writes. It is Josephus who says that when Felix, the ruler of Judea, decided to take Drusilla, a certain married woman, as his wife, he sent Simon of Cyprus, a sorcerer famous for his sorceries, to her, so that he would convince this woman to leave her husband Aziz. However, Josephus nowhere mentions that this Simon came from the city of Gitta, or Gitoov, in Samaria. Some Father Simon the Magus They call him Anthony, and his mother is called Rachel. This impostor told everyone about himself that he was eternal, that he passed through the body of his mother as through a channel in order to come to people2 .

Simon the Magus received his education in Alexandria. Even in youth for solid assimilation of knowledge and for greater development, he traveled a lot around East, he studied with the false messiah Dositheus who had preceded him, and, as is noticeable, did not satisfied with the stock of information acquired from him, he looked for greater and higher knowledge3 . He was the father and ancestor of all heretics, says Baronius4 , who, like himself, were at enmity against the Church of Christ. It took a lot of work the apostles to protect Christian believers from Simon and his disciples, who seduced them their heretical beliefs. Simon the Magus to spread his teachings and the glory of his name passed through many countries, dispersing errors everywhere. He deceived people with false miracles and convinced them to honor him as Christ as the messiah. According to the testimony of Blessed Jerome, Simon the Magus wrote various books. To his His disciples also added their own works to the writings. 1 Ancient 1, 20, ch. 5, p. 693. 2 See Kalend. Discourses on Simon the Magus, p. 845. 3 See words. Blagov, vol. 3, p. 105. 4 Part 1, p. 85.

Simon and another certain Cleobus wrote very harmful books for believers in Jesus Christ and gave them out under the name of the apostles.

Machine Translated by Google

The preface to the canons of the Council of Nicaea in Arabic speaks of some Gospel, compiled by Simon's disciples, which is written for everyone countries of the world and is divided into four parts. Dionysius the Areopagite says1 , What Simon the Magus wrote many works against the faith of Christ. Antiquity betrayed everything these works fell into oblivion, so that at present not one of them exists. Wishing to attract attention more than usual, Simon the Magus is a lot told false miracles about himself. He said that while he was flying through the air he had to repeatedly throw himself into the fire so that his whole body burned, but remained whole, spontaneous and healthy.

Marble statues were endowed with soul and movement. He, according to him, turned stones into bread; he became visible and invisible, depending on his will, penetrated into the middle of the mountains and galloped, meeting no resistance; fell from steep mountains, not at all afraid of misfortunes from falling; freed himself from the shackles with which he was tightly bound; instantly imparted plant power to trees; subjected himself to transformations, thus changing the appearance of his mouth that no one couldn't recognize him. He said that, having once been sent by his mother Rachel mowing bread in the field, he took the scythe and ordered her to do this work alone. The scythe obeyed him and mowed as much bread as ten could mow. workers2 . 1

Book. On the names of God, ch. 6.

3cm. Kalend, reasoning. About Simon, page 848.

Chapter

3 Pseudo-Markell on Simone-volkhve

Pseudo-Marcellus in the Acts of the Apostles Peter and Paul, talks about Simon the following incident: Nero once suggested to Simon that he allow him to cut off head and promised to return himself to life again in three. Nero himself fulfilled this deed, that is, cut off Simon's head. Only Simon the Magus is invisible to In the emperor's image, instead of his own, he substituted a ram's head for him to cut off.

Three days later, Simon introduced himself to Nero, showing the appearance that he was like would bring himself back to life again.

The book of apostolic decrees and pseudo-Obadiah say that in Caesarea Simon entered into a dispute with the Apostle Peter in Palestine, and returned from this country to Tripolis, to Phenicia, and finally to Rome, where the Apostle Peter met him again. During his stay in Rome, Simon the Magus took as his companion one a woman of depraved behavior named Elena, whom he called others names, for example, Selena, or Lena, Minerva, the Holy Spirit, Varvilo or daughter of Baal. Simon also called this same Elena the first wisdom, which after the creation of angels and after various supernatural migrations from some bodies entered others, and finally entered the body of this woman. In fact, Elena was a prostitute, although Simon pretended that he had not entered into any relations with her relations, nevertheless, secretly he was in touch with Elena. Moreover, he called her the mother of all things. This Elena, according to Simon, was the same ancient Helen, because of whom the Greeks and Trojans fought a cruel war. However, this is still nothing: Simon assured, perhaps, that the existence of her even preceded the creation of the world. We have just seen that this woman was called the first wisdom, and since The High Father, according to Simon the Magus, determined to create angels through her, then the latter owe their origin to it. Thus it turns out that Helen produced the angels, but did not tell them any information about her father. From these spirits came then the created world and people. But since the angels were afraid lest their origin from a woman was discovered, then this very Wisdom was detained from herself in captivity, slowing down in every possible way her return to her father. Seeing this, her father finally sent her into the bodies of various women, and then, by the way, she also visited the body beautiful Helen, wife of Menelaus. Finally this Wisdom restored herself in that to the woman Simon was leading with him. This is the ugly teaching of Simon and his disciples, full of all kinds of extravagance. This Simon called himself by the great power of God and presented himself as the Messiah who came down from heaven to liberate and the restoration of the fallen Helen. According to him, when he went through various heavenly places, descending to earth, he always took on the appearance and form of those beings who were in these heavenly places, so that, recognized by anyone, he would not be detained on his way; finally reached the ground and took on only the appearance of a man, but not the body.

He became glorified when He revealed Himself to the Samaritans as Father, to the Jews as Son, and then to all peoples - like the Holy Spirit. Blessed Jerome quotes from the books of Simon the Magus his following words about himself: "I am the word of God, I am the comforter, I am the way of God." Simon ordered himself to erect statues in the image of Jupiter; Elena - in the form Minevra. He demanded divine reward not only for himself, but also for this woman. honors.

He called his Helen, as we said, either the mother of all things or the holy spirit. This, he said, is the lost sheep, to restore which he came with sky. Having fallen from heaven, she took on the form of a man, but could do nothing more. do as soon as you accept this form. Simon, who came to restore her, is true messiah. This is how he presented himself and with this name he attracted many people to himself. followers whom he honored with the name Christians. Finally, often repeating the name of Christ, he convinced many followers of that he was the Messiah, although he did not admit that he had taken upon himself the face of Jesus Christ.

Chapter 4

Simon the Magus Opposed Jesus Christ

Simon the Magus persecuted I. Christ with hatred, trying to counteract miracles with your own false miracles in order to gain glory from people the same as the name of our Savior. He talked about himself as if he had come down from heaven not to save only Helen, this lost sheep, but for the restoration of the entire economy, overthrown by the ambition of the angels, as well as for the salvation of people who are perishing due to their own guilt, because they did not recognize him and were kept in slavery by angels.

With all his ugly false thinking, Simon also preached that for there will be neither salvation nor resurrection of the body of people, for all this relates to only one soul. None of the people, he taught, should rely on their own good deeds; hope for liberation from the yoke of angels should be entrusted by people to Simon alone and to his depraved companion. Simon's disciples became strongly attached to this teaching and spread it. Simon commanded that angels be revered as beings equal to people, not to receive from them any help, but so that they do not oppose the intentions of people in this life and did not increase their suffering after death. His disciples also praised him some respect for the angels, from whom their mother Helen suffered much harm, if she did not snatch herself out of their hands by cunning.

Chapter 5

School of Simon Volhva

The school of Simon, in all likelihood convinced by himself, revered angels as cruel enemies of God. His followers taught him that the world was created by angels, that they inspired the prophets of the Old Testament. By their power all the Old things were created for people Testament, so that one angel wrote one book, another another, a third a third, and This is how the entire Old Testament is written. Simon and his disciples argued that all the threats and the predictions of the prophets of the Old Testament are to be despised. Instruction The Old Testament, according to their convictions, not only should not be obeyed, but observance exposes them to death and condemnation.

The Romans erected a statue of this charlatan with the inscription: “To Simon, god to the saint." Justin the Martyr, in a conversation with Tryphon, reports that the followers Simon gave him the first place among the deities of that time. This statue was placed between two sources of the Tiber River, or on an island of this river, like means Justin the Martyr. The story of the statue of Simon is told by many by writers who are trustworthy; some of them were eyewitnesses of this events.

Blessed Augustine testifies that the statue was erected not only to Simon, but also to his wife Helen. Blessed Theodoret confirms that the statue of Simon the Magus was cast from copper1 . In 1574, a marble pillar with a Latin inscription was dug on an island in the Tiber River in Rome at the place designated by Justin the Martyr2. 1 See Fables of the Heretic, book. 1, ch. 1. 2 Appologist. 2, pp. 69 and 91.

Chapter 6

Theudas the false messiah

The third false messiah was Theudas. He appeared about 35 years after Nativity of Christ and divulged about himself that he had the ability to predict future; Called himself a great prophet, capable of performing extraordinary miracles. He managed to acquire about four hundred followers, but was soon killed, and that was all his followers scattered. He is the same Theudas mentioned in Acts Apostolic (chapter 5, art. 36).

During the reign of Judea by Cuspius Fadas, under the Roman Emperor Claudius, in 45 year A.D., another impostor became known under the name of Theudas: this Theudas II also pretended to be a messiah sent from heaven to earth. He convinced many Jews follow him. To prove his heavenly messengership, he promised with one word, establish a dry path through the Jordan River, dividing the waters of this rivers, just as in ancient times Joshua did the same when crossing Jews across the same river to the promised land. Cuspius Fad, during whose reign this happened, he sent several troops against Theudas and his followers, who many of them were killed, many were taken captive, the rest were scattered. Fevda himself was captured, the soldiers cut off his head and brought it to Jerusalem in triumph.

Chapter 7

Galilean False Messiah

The fourth false messiah was Judas the Galilean, originally from a Galilean city Gamans. Although he did not publicly call himself the messiah, the sectarians proclaimed him sent from God and a liberator - the messiah. He stirred up the people during the census, as noted in the book of Acts Apostolic. This census is the same one that Luke mentions (chapter 2, v. 1) and which was carried out by the ruler Quirinius in the last year of Augustus’s life, in the tenth year after the death of Herod, when Archelaus was sent into exile.

However, Kalmet himself further notes that the first census, during the reign Quirinius, the evangelist Luke distinguishes from another census, during which it happened revolt of Judas the Galilean. This Judas the Galilean, says Baronius (Part 1, p. I), agreed with Farineas Zadok to deviate the people from paying tribute to the Roman Caesar Augustus, who ordered for this purpose a census of everything under his control. empires. The tax demanded by the Roman Caesars and exacted by Quirinius, said Judas the Galilean is a clear sign of slavery. Whoever is a true Israelite is not must spare lives to defend his freedom, and the people of God must not suffer enslavement. God alone should be given tithes and He alone should be named Lord, but not Caesar and not Herod. These beliefs of Judas outraged many of the Jews and attracted a lot of people to him. Since many of his followers wore themselves weapons, this circumstance helped them carry out a violent riot in Judea. The Romans sent an army against them and, in the battle that took place with the rebels, Judas The Galilean was killed and his followers scattered. The supporters of this false messiah were called Galileans even after his death. Joseph Josephus' mentions that they valued freedom and liberty above all else. Only one The Lord God was recognized by them as the ruler, and they rather preferred to endure all sorts of torment and even death itself, rather than recognize them as their lords and masters Caesars and their rulers, who were mere mortals. This heresy, according to Josephus, was not exterminated even with the destruction of Jerusalem or the destruction of the temple.

The Evangelist Luke also devotes a few words to the followers of Judas, saying, that Pilate put the Galileans to death, and their blood was mixed with the victims because, of course, they themselves were convinced and convinced others not to make sacrifices and not to pray for pagan emperors. Baronius thinks that when the Pharisees and Herodians proposed question to I. Christ: should taxes be paid to Caesar? - that was the reason for this suspicion whether He forbids His disciples to pay tribute to the rulers, since The disciples of I. Christ also came from Galilee. The Galilean heresy was especially strong in Egypt, in the country of Cyrene. Her the followers never dared to call Caesar Lord. Emperor Vespasian ordered to beat them all and take away the temple, built by the high priest Onias, where they made sacrifices. 1 Book.

about a warrior. 7, ch. 29.

Chapter 8

Kotzibah or Bar Kochba the False Messiah

Under Emperor Hadrian, a fifth false messiah, Kotzibah, or Bar Kochba, appeared. Tradition prescribes him royal origin. However, rabbis generally love the splendor of the birth and merits of famous people among the Jews; sometimes they have a name king means a position in the synagogue or in the Sanhedrin. Kotsiba presented himself as a messiah, for the same Messiah who, according to the Jews, was destined to conquer everything peoples. He took the name Bar Kokhba, meaning Son of the Star, to show that he was the the very star that Balaam prophesied about. He recognized criminals by smell - an ability attributed by the Talmud to those who strive for high rank messiah. One of the most important rabbis, the leaders of the Sanhedrin, Akiba, seeing Bar Kokhba when he appeared in Judea, cried out in an enthusiastic voice: “Behold the star that should shine from Jacob.” These words, retold by his disciples to the Jews, revived the hope of Israel, and the people took up arms under the leadership of the conquering messiah.

Belief in the coming time of the appearance of the messiah and hope for restoration independent state inspired all Jews to revolt, to which

We've been preparing for twelve whole years. At the head of the rebellion was a very active and enterprising Simon Bar Kochba (son of a star), whom the people recognized as the real messiah (132), since the beloved Rabbi Akiba applied the prophecy to him Balaam "A star rose from Jacob." Subsequently, when the uprising had an unfortunate the outcome, Bar Kochba was named Bara Koziba (son of lies). Confidence in him grew with every day, and in a short time more than 200 thousand brave men came to him warriors Bar Kochba, having learned about the abandonment of Egypt by Hadrian, immediately went with the legion moved towards Jerusalem and put the Roman soldiers to flight. Roman Emperor appointed the commander of the North, who, having arrived at the place of the uprising, actually did not entered into open battle, and began to carefully overpower the rebels. He attacked parts of the rebels, intercepted their carts, little by little took away fortified places and cleared his way to Jerusalem. Bar Kokhba saw the impossibility of holding on to capital and, fearing treason, retreated with the main forces to the fortified city of Betar, also named after Bar Kochba Tur Simon, or Tur Malka, under Sepriphoris. The city, besieged for more than a year, after stubborn resistance and treason by the Samaritans, was taken by the Romans on Aba 9 (135), on the day Titus burned the temple (70). The terrible massacre carried out by the victors defies description. In addition to those who died from hunger and More than 500,000 Jews were killed in fires. There were so many prisoners that they were sold to slavery for the most insignificant price, and those who could not find buyers were sent to Egypt on an old ship that sank at sea with all the captives. To to lure the Jews who had taken refuge there from caves, forests and other shelters, Adrian promised pardon there who come voluntarily; but nevertheless executed everyone who trusted his word. At the end of the war, Hadrian rebuilt Jerusalem and named it Elia Capitolina, populated it with Greek and Syrian immigrants, in place of the temple erected statues of Hadrian and Jupiter, and forbade Jews under pain of death to enter the land of such a sacred city for them.

According to the Talmud, two hundred thousand warriors flocked to his banners, and their bodily strength was so great that anyone on horseback could snatch a Lebanese cedar. The rebels established themselves in Bethhoron, a fortified city near Jerusalem. Tradition tells that this city was given as a dowry to the pharaoh's daughter. her marriage to Solomon, and that subsequently this sovereign gave it Levitam. It was here that the false messiah was anointed as king; various coins knocked from his image, indicate his acceptance of supreme power. Until Bar Kochba limited his ambition to the synagogues and did not reveal mad intention to conquer the whole world, Emperor Hadrian with an ironic treated his ridiculous claims with contempt; but when news reached Rome that a strong rebellion had broken out in Judea and was spreading stronger every day, Hadrian immediately ordered his troops to move against the rebels and exterminate the entire rebellious Jewish people.

Chapter 9

The Death of the False Messiah Bar Kochba

This war ended with the capture of Bethhoron and the death of the Jewish messiah Bar Kochba. Talmudists say that Hadrian, who wanted to see the features of this rabbi, ordered the soldiers to bring his corpse, but the soldiers found it wrapped around his head. snake, and this made them say that Bar Kochba had supernatural powers power, and that God alone could overthrow the cedar of Lebanon.

Talmudists mourn the death of many scholars who studied law. According to the Mishnah, Akiba, the main instigator of the rebellion, was torn apart with an iron comb that extinguished this lamp of the law. He was so strict performer of religious rites, which, while in prison, used for ablution water, which was given to him to quench his thirst. According to the Talmud, in this more Jews died in the messianic war than came out of Egypt captivity, namely over 500,000, not counting, according to Dion, those who fell victims hunger and fire. Streams of blood carried four-pound stones to the sea, and the earth, thick with corpses, without any cultivation for seven years, yielded bountiful harvest. The Jews retained the memory of this unfortunate rebellion in one a vengeful anthem written on the occasion of the capture of the city of Veforan and the death of many famous teachers in it. In it the Jewish people compare Hadrian with the Nivean king Nebuchadnezzar, the greatest persecutor of the house of Jacob, and prays to God to punish this cruel emperor for the destruction of 480 synagogues in Judea alone. In memory of this disaster, Jews observe strict fasting to this day.

Machine Translated by Google

Bar Kokhba is known for the inhuman and treacherous massacre he carried out under Roman Emperor Hadrian in the cities of Cyrene, Cyprus and Egypt. This Jewish false messiah and his followers, under the guise of friendship, treacherously used evil the trust of local residents and exterminated up to 500,000 people. Modern historians Dion, Cassius and Geronim claim that the fury of the bloodthirsty disciples of Bar Kochba in this treacherous uprising was so disgustingly cruel that they many of their victims were sawed in half with a saw, in the wild ecstasy of success They devoured the flesh of the unfortunates, licked their blood and girded themselves with their entrails.

It seems that world history does not know a single similar uprising, such brutal cruelty, such damned treachery. Happened in the lives of peoples bloody revolutions, various St. Bartholomew's nights, there were cruel civil strife, there were grandiose human massacres, but humanity does not know a massacre like Bar Kochb's. Think: 500,000 people, half a million people, deceived and lulled by friendship, beaten and, moreover, in such disgusting ways! Neither one people, other than the Jewish, does not have its own Bar Kochba. He is the only one in his kind, this degenerate of the human race. The immeasurable vileness of this man-beast, revered by the Jews as the greatest national hero on a par with David, Solomon, Judith and Esther, is almost idolized by the Jewish masses, and he himself, who shed rivers of innocent blood, is exalted in his heroism to the heights unattainable. Justice, however, requires saying that it can hardly be found in In the sublunary world, natural cruelty, malice and betrayal are equal to those discovered by the Jews, led by Bar Kochba. This is how all non-Jews look at it, and this is how they looked at the greatness of Bar Kokhba's feat Emperor Hadrian, who expelled the Jews from Palestine forever and betrayed preliminary execution of up to 500,000 Jewish heroes, led by Bar Kochba himself. Death for death, eye for eye, tooth for tooth. Jews cannot have a complaint against Adrian, who resorted to their own Jewish recipe. Jews, however, consider Bar Kochba great fighter for Jewish independence and even made a play where he acts this one, if I may say so, is a hero. Whatever the content of this play, there is one thing the very fact that it is entitled with the name of Bar Kokhba draws out the views and the feelings of modern Jews who promote such "humane" national heroes whose heroism has been condemned by impartial history and contemporaries are not belonging to the tribe of Judah.

According to the legend of the rabbis, the Israelites were appointed 480 years after the dispersion to reign in the Roman Empire and sell its inhabitants to the Sabaeans, and for Jerusalem to shine new splendor and rise above all cities through the Messiah-deliverer, who will conquer all kingdoms and subjugate all rulers to the Jews. These hopes that ignited the superstitious minds of the Jews were further strengthened by the promises of Julian the Apostate, who decided to restore the Jerusalem temple, awakened and encouraged the peoples Israel. Seeing this, the synagogue began to triumph, believing that the time had come when God would finally avenge his people and free the enslaved Zion. The Jews have already begun indulge in noisy expressions of joy and in their religious delight desecrated Christian churches. Flocking in crowds to many Syrian cities, they destroyed churches in Gaza and Ascalon. More than fifty years later, St. Ambrose still expressed his condolences about the devastation caused by the Jews in the churches of Damascus in a short time apostate[1] .

[1] Saint Ambrose book 5, epistle 29

Chapter 10

False Messiah Moses

Around the middle of the 5th century we see in Candia the sixth false messiah named Moses, who, calling himself the Messiah, acquired such power over the synagogue that involved her in his reckless enterprises. "I am the one," he said, "who saved Israel from Egyptian captivity and led him through the sea and desert to the promised land." Jehovah heeded the pleas of his people; he returns this blessed land to him again, in in which sources of milk and honey will always satisfy the hunger of people and animals." Not years have passed since this deceiver managed to convince the synagogue of the truth of his miraculous promises, and the Jews of the island of Candia gave up all their real estate in order to follow him and listen to his ravings. At the appointed time, they rushed in crowds to the shores of the Mediterranean Sea, which must submit to the voice of the new Messiah. Then a terrible raged there was a storm, and the foaming waves crashed noisily against the coastal rocks. This is terrible a spectacle capable of stopping the most gullible person could not cool the enthusiasm of Jews confident in their Messiah. Some of them, having become with their wives and children onto a steep cliff and threw themselves into the sea; many wanted to follow them example, but they soon saw the deception: the angry sea threw their corpses ashore brothers, and they, burning with anger, began to look for their messiah, who had already disappeared[1] .

[1] History Socrates, book. VI, ch. 38, p. 383.

Chapter 11

Abulafia the False Messiah

In subsequent times, the Jews had a lot of similar messiahs, who involved the Jewish people in deception and unfortunately ended their messianic mission. field. There were also such messiahs who, in a child of enthusiasm, considered it necessary for the future success of his enterprise, first of all, to convert the Pope to Judaism. One of he had already set off for this purpose in 1288 to Rome, but his bold plan was not was crowned with success, and the self-confident messiah barely managed to escape save from the fire. He was a rabbi in Toledo and was called Abraham ben Samuel - Abulafia. From an early age, Abulafia diligently studied Kabbalism based on the books of Bagir and Jezirah. The Kabbalistic teachings are systematized in his book, which bears the title: Zohar or Zoir. It is clear from everything that he was an abstract mystic, subject to visions, which gave reason to recognize his knowledge of the future. Same the circumstance probably led him to the conviction that he was the messiah, so that in 1285 in Sicily he already declared himself a prophet and messiah. His relationship to rabbinism were very unfriendly; He directly called the Mishnah and the entire Talmud the tomb of the ancient of the law.

Chapter 12

Almusar and Lemlein of the false messiah

The place where the eighth messiah appeared in the 13th century was Persia. His name is David Almusar; for a long time he was engaged in abstract thoughts and, distinguished piety and piety, gained great respect and confidence from the fanatical ignorant Jewry, which helped him proclaim himself a redeemer and messiah. This makeshift messiah caused many disasters to those who believed in to his blind followers. But fortunately, the government authorities were on time took up the messiah and his followers and stopped the unrest of the Jews.

The Austrian Rabbi Lemlein proclaimed himself the ninth Messiah in 1500, who also excited Jewry. Many enthusiastically began to throw everything their property and hastily turn their fortune into gold in order to prepare for the fight with the infidels and go to Palestine, but alas! - instead of Palestine they were expected prison...

Chapter 13

Mordecai Zvi and Luria the False Messiah

The tenth false messiah appeared in the 16th century in Palestine, in the city of Safed - the famous Kabbalist Luria, having gathered thousands of disciples around him, produced terrible unrest among fanatical Jews.

The eleventh false messiah appeared in 1641 in Smyrna, in the house of Mordecai Zvi, where three learned men from the category of so-called prophets were dining. Having become acquainted with the owners and noticing that Zvi's wife was pregnant, they predicted her birth the redeemer, i.e. the messiah.

The boy born, named Sabbat Zevi at circumcision, as noted those around him smiled at everyone and was very cheerful; this was attributed to the execution prophecies. When he was seven years old, this boy had a dream that all the animals were bowing down before him, the angels taught him the science of medicine and the composition of talismans. This dream led to the fact that the most famous teachers began to teach the boy in reality. WITH Over time, he began to study Talmudic and higher sciences, and in 1665 he was already initiated by the great Kabbalist of that time, Isaac, into the mystery of Kabbalah. WITH From now on, Sabbatai Zvi begins to gain adherents, declaring himself a prophet, and then directly a messiah. The twenty-year-old Messiah settled in Jerusalem, from there his followers began to spread through manuscripts and sermons news of his coming. The rumor about the Messiah thus reached Alexandria. One one of the famous and wealthy Jews of this city named Raphael Joseph expressed to Zvi desire to donate all my fortune in his favor, if only he would come to Alexandria. Zvi agreed, and when he arrived in this city, Jews from all sides They rushed to him, hoping to see the Messiah and bring him gifts. To make it even more to strengthen his influence, the messiah who appeared ordered to change some prayers. Raphael, wanting to be completely sure of his authenticity as the Messiah, asked Zvi, had Is he in communication with God and is he really sent by Him? But Zvi revealed to him that he acquired confidence in his messengership not through direct divine revelation, but as a result of a seven-year spell by Kabbalistics, which gave him the ability to acquire power over all spirits, setting in motion which he hopes to achieve a goal common to all Jews. Raphael, after this explanation, brought an oath of allegiance and readiness to die for him.

Chapter 14

Zvi chose 50 apostles

Machine Translated by Google

In Alexandria, Zvi chose 50 apostles from among learned Jewish youths and sent them to the surrounding countries to preach about their coming. He's in Alexandria married a girl especially destined for the messiah. This girl was born in Smyrna, also in 1641, like Zvi. After the death of his parents, during the uprising 1648, she fled with others to Amsterdam and here, in the 13th year of her life, she saw a dream that everyone worships her as the wife of the messiah; and when a rumor came from Palestine that The Messiah had already been born, she began to expect the fulfillment of her dreams. Offer Zvi found her in Livorno. The whole of Livorno was excited about this event. Bride the messiahs blessed, gave and escorted to the ship with extraordinary animation. Up to 20,000 Jews attended her wedding in Alexandria.

In 1662, the political activity of the new messiah began. From Thessaloniki, Constantinople, Persia and Barbary received promises of annual assistance with money, and the deepest devotion was declared. The number of people surrounding the Messiah began to increase rapidly and soon reached seventy-five thousands of people.

In 1665, on the first day of Passover, one of Zevi’s adherents, the prophet Nathan, six other brothers, in white robes and with crowns on their heads solemnly walked around Alexandria and preached that the kingdom of the Messiah would begin in 14 months, and the construction of the temple of Jerusalem in the next year. This is news spread in all directions. After this, the Messiah went in triumph to Jerusalem. The Turks were reassured by saying that the purpose of this journey was worship of holy places. From Jerusalem, the prophet Nathan wrote everywhere demands for repentance, ordering Jews to immerse themselves in cold water in winter, fasting, scourging and etc. These instructions, if not by all, then by many, were carried out unquestioningly. They hoped that Zvi would soon remove the crown from the Sultan, place it on himself and begin to work miracles. Therefore, instead of prayer for the native sovereign, prayers were introduced for the sending good luck to the Messiah-king. Many of the rich Jews, in a fit of enthusiasm, tried turn your property into money in order to have the means to go on a long journey to Palestine in time. From Jerusalem Zvi soon went to his hometown of Smyrna, and sent Nathan, as his chief minister, to Africa with the purpose of exciting all the Jews of that part of the world. In Smyrna, Zvi was received with the royal honors. Joy and delight took possession of the Jews of this city. They fled Zvi towards him, knelt down, kissed his feet and listened to his speeches. Zvi's walks took place in the most solemn manner. He himself went with with a scepter, in rich clothes; he was surrounded by elders, 39 future rulers, then prophets and prophetesses, scientists and, finally, the mass of the people.

Donations poured in like a river; from Constantinople and other European deputies came to him from cities, and in such numbers that Zvi ordered to be admitted to daily no more than 50 of them. In the synagogue they sang psalms about the Messiah; believers were inspired, delighted and prophesied in every way. Meanwhile, rumors brought from the north began to circulate in the public Scotland, about the appearance at sea of some extraordinary ship with silk sails and silk ropes. The sailors of this ship, as they assured, spoke among themselves in the sacred Hebrew language, and above its deck a flag was flying with the inscription: “The Twelve Tribes of Israel.” These sensational rumors were also accompanied by lively talk about mass movement a countless crowd of people who appeared from nowhere and were heading, apparently, to the remote Arabian deserts. Incited by skeptics, believers bet with them significant sums, predicting that no further than in two years Sabbatai Zvi will be installed in Jerusalem as the anointed one and king Jewish nation, and the mortgages were sealed and deposited in Needletridlestreet before the expiration of the appointed time.

Machine Translated by Google

Sabbatai, however, was already a real Jewish king. Hot it out followers and admirers flocked to him in droves from all countries of their exile from expressions of their reverent devotion and loyal feelings. Between they could see Turkish Jews in red fezzes, or yellow-saffron turbans, and Jerusalemites in striped robes made of paper cloth and soft felt hats, and Poles in caps made of fox skins and long-brimmed caftans, and pale-faced Germans, and Russian giants, and arrogant Spaniards. Many of them were accompanied by their wives and daughters, representing a very typical congregation Jewish women all over the world: those from Jerusalem - in blue capes and with veils on their heads; Egyptian - in wide ceremonial robes and black head shawls; Jews from Ashdod and from Gaza - with white veils bordered with gold coins on faces; Polish Jewish women - in glossy wigs; Syrian beauties - with such black eyelashes, as if they were painted with charcoal; fleshy Tunisian matrons who carried boxes with rattling gold and silver in them.

Sabbatai Zvi, surrounded by his courtiers, received daily deputations, embassies and conferred with his confidants and men of the council. Boys and young girls approached him with statements that they were ready to give him all his life, devoting himself entirely to serving him, and the rich without hesitation threw their capital at his feet, seeking only one favor - inclusion in to his bodyguard staff. Abstract deity of the Old Testament, just as formidable in its love, as well as in its anger, and having neither form nor human appearance, was finally replaced by the visible, tangible and therefore accessible to love man, and all the thoughts, all the cherished feelings of these simple-minded people in connection with the thirst that tormented them for so long to turn their need to reverent admiration for a visible object - a need that prompted them to look at both shrine not only for every word, but for every syllable and every letter of the Bible and Talmud - focused entirely on their embodied representative. Yes, a vow made in times of extreme antiquity, was finally fulfilled, the divine appeared to them the messenger is their holy king, messiah, primeval, most perfect, bisexual man, who will establish spiritual unity in the universe and restore the wondrous harmony that should reign in it. Sin and grief will evaporate like stinking and suffocating smoke before the radiant light of his loving and gentle eyes, the dried up source of grace will flow again in a life-giving stream, as in the old days.

"I, the Lord your God, Sabbatai Tzva"[1]

1 Zvi, Zevi is the same thing, only some pronounce it this way, and others differently.

This is how Samuel Primo signed all messianic decrees and manifestos. With the approach of the month of Aba, the birthday of the Messiah also approached, which, as is already known, coincided with the day of the great fast of Aba, established on the occasion destruction of temples. But since the beautiful Meliselda is in the most decisive and expressed its protest in convincing terms against this the solemn day was dedicated to gloomy despondency - then in all communities captured Israeli hordes, a circular was immediately sent, reading the following:

“The only true prophet and anointed of God, Sabbatai Zevi, messiah and the redeemer of the Israeli people, sends a word of peace and greetings to all the children of Israel. Because you have been found worthy by the Lord to live until the great day of fulfillment

Machine Translated by Google

His words, proclaimed by Him through the prophets, then from now on your inconsolable sorrow is a heartfelt joy, and a sad, penitential fast is a cheerful feast. The times of mourning and crying are over for you. Delight your ears with the sounds of drums, organs and other musical instruments. May every day be for you - day new moons, like all the days that were previously days of grief for you, may from now on turn into days of rejoicing and solemn anniversaries, in commemoration of my coming to you. Enjoy all the joys of life and do not confuse your hearts with feelings cowardly fear, for you will be given dominion not only over all nations, but also over all the creatures that live in the depths of the sea.”

But this gracious manifesto was far from achieving its good purpose, having served the reason for the emergence of new unrest and disagreements in Jewish ghettos and mellahs. True, he made the most favorable impression on the majority of believers, expressed in bursts of enthusiastic and stormy joy. “So, these painful twenty-four hours of absolute fasting and almost continuous prayer will now turn into hours of pleasure and national festivities. Yes, this is truly a wise, just and blessed manifesto! After all, the Jewish state will be restored in a very short time “Why mourn his past fall?”

This is not how the strict guardians of Jewish piety, the former the most ardent followers of Sabbatai. "How! - they exclaimed indignantly. - Are these really fervent prayers of repentance? ascended for eighteen centuries to the throne of the Most High should we shut up now? Should the holy yoke of the Torah really be overthrown? No, true religion should not remove, but impose new burdens on the shoulders of people. Yes and How, finally, can the era of the redemption of the world mark itself, if not by publishing new, especially grave laws, if it is possible to invent such? True, God He himself remains between them - they have no doubt about this. But how can infringe upon the inviolability of laws borrowed from the holy book and complemented on the one hand by the diligent labors of entire generations of the righteous rabbis, and on the other hand, the instructions of the Shulchan Aruch, compiled by the pious Karo (may his memory be blessed forever!) and representing such a grandiose and intricate string of ceremonies and rituals that were honored by them ancestors so sacredly that they were often paid even with their lives if they were observed. Is it possible to destroy and trample all this without blasphemous violation of the shrine? Thus, small parties were formed in all Jewish communities, with blindly stubbornly defending their favorite statutes and institutions that served supposedly the main basis and defense for Jewry. True, what they prayed for so long and so earnestly has already been revealed to them. The comforting hope they drew from the Zohar and based on the divine the promise that their sorrow would turn into joy, and the law into a dead letter - this great hope, which did not leave them day or night, was finally realized; to them the incarnate messiah he promised actually appeared, and therefore the longed-for moment for the restoration of the kingdom of Judah is not far off. But deep down their hearts still harbor some vague fear for the bright present, and they timidly clinging to their dark and bleak past.

The day of the former fast has arrived, replaced by a solemn holiday, according to order of the Messiah, who in the afternoon appeared on the streets of the Jewish quarter in Smyrna, surrounded by a scattered and noisy crowd, carefreely dancing and sang to the accompaniment of flutes, tambourines, harps and horns. Melissalda too enthusiastically sang psalms of praise. But suddenly the music and singing stopped at once, and in the crowd

Machine Translated by Google

an ominous commotion arose, the reason for which was the instantly flying around her rumor that in the Smyrna community there were unbelieving heretics who they fast and pray tearfully in the synagogue, despite the highly solemn holiday. The noisy crowd rushed to the synagogue, the doors of which were locked, but Because of them, mournful groans and cries were indeed heard. -

Break open the door! - Isaac Silvera commanded in a thunderous voice. - How dare these daring heretics profane the day of the great holiday!

Several young men emerged from the crowd and, armed with stones, turned out of the pavement, they began to diligently bombard the locked door. Finally, the broken door was opened wide, and the crowd besieging it I was indignant to see that the floor of the synagogue was covered with prostrate bodies the worshipers who, with muffled groans, rolled on it in prayerful ecstasy.

Among the worshipers was also Rabbi Aaron, demoted by Sabbatai. de la Papa, a man with a very respectable and impressive appearance, majestically rising to his feet like a menacing ghost, wrapped in a white shroud, from which only his deathly pale face, exhausted by prolonged post.

- Atheists! - he shouted sternly. - How dare you desecrate with your presence of the house of God! - Obstinate heretics! - Silvera responded passionately. - How aren't you afraid? anger the Lord God by begging him for what He has already given us in His own way unspeakable mercy? Are you mocking Him or something?

- Just as my grandfathers and fathers fasted in the old days, so I will sacredly honor everything established posts," added gloomily the gray-haired old man, Solomon Algazi.

In response to this statement, a gun was fired over the head of the devout elder. him with a stone, which, fortunately, only slightly injured him. "And I advise you to dry your repentant tears and move from sorrow to jubilation, if you do not want to be stoned," Ilya said in a decisive tone Zevi, one of Sabbatai's brothers. -Have you forgotten that the Lord put an end to our ordeals and wanderings around the world. Stop praying or your blood will fall on your own head.

In the end, it was decided to expel Alghazi and de la Papa from the city, and all heretics, known under the common name of cofrims, should be excommunicated. So Thus, the timid and small voices of the Protestants, willy-nilly, had to to fall silent before the energetic onslaught of the overwhelming majority of believers.

At the same time, in all corners and shelters of universal Israel - as in Morocco, so in Sardinia, both in London and in Lithuania, both in Brazil and in India - triumphant exclamations were unanimously and unanimously repeated: Leshanahhabbaa b lerushalayim. - Leshanahhabbaa Beni Cheirin. - Next year we will settle in Jerusalem! Next year we will become sons of freedom!"

There were only a few days left before the onset of 1666, after which the dawn of a great new era was about to rise over the world. Jews quickly They put their affairs in order and burned as if on fire from an internal fever that gripped almost all of them. Exchange rates, commercial turnover and other evils day - all this moved into the background. Brief trade news has been replaced now with the most extensive correspondence about wondrous signs and wonders. In these correspondences it was reported, among other things, that the prophet Elijah, clothed in his ancient mantle, was simultaneously present everywhere, draining to the bottom the cups of wine prepared for him, which, as a sign of his goodwill, he sometimes replaced with oil. In Smyrna he was seen at one festival, and those present even addressed him with welcoming speeches and expressions feelings of the most reverent gratitude for his visit. He's in Jerusalem too met a Jew on the street and, taking advantage of the opportunity, mercifully scolded him both because he does not decorate his clothes with fringes and because he shaves himself hair. In view of this, all the Jews of the Ottoman Empire hastened to trim their clothes fringe and also decided not to follow the more ungodly custom of shaving head, existing among the Turks and in the East in general, as a result of which their physiognomies they were soon covered with dense vegetation, and the sidelocks were also not forgotten, the absence of which was considered an undoubted sign of a free-thinking kofar.

Machine Translated by Google

Meanwhile, Sabbatai Zevi, inspired on the one hand by the bliss of the first love, and on the other - the worship surrounding him, soared to heaven, not in the least doubting that the miracle which was to crown him in a worthy manner a legendarily wonderful career will be completed in a timely manner.

Before leaving for Constantinople, where he was to truly commit the wonderful feat of removing the crown from the head of the Sultan at the sound of music - he a farewell meeting was held, to which he invited only the most devoted of his admirers, deciding to generously reward them for their faithful service, and without losing time, to begin dividing the universe that almost already belonged to him between two twenty six governors.

Everyone was granted to him the titles of kings and princes, starting with his brothers, Ilya and Joseph Tsevi, who were elevated: the first to the highest rank of king of kings, and the second - to the title of king of the kings of Judah.

“Into you, Isaac Silvera,” continued the great ruler of the world, “has moved the soul of the Israeli King David, so you too should be called King David and dominate Persia; to you, Chaim Inenya as the reborn Jeroboam throughout justice must belong to Arabia; you, Daniel Pinto, in whom the spirit lives Chilkias, you will reign in Italy; to you, Manasiah Ashkenazi, in whom I recognize ancient Azu, I represent Barbary; and you, Mokia Ga-spar, are like a worthy vessel the spirit of the great Zedekiah will reign in England.

Other countries of the globe were divided in the same manner between happy viceroys of the divine messiah, and Ilya Azar was appointed viceroy, or vizier, of Ilya Zevi, and Joseph Inernukh - vizier of Joseph Zevi. - Why did you offend me? - Abraham Rubio, a beggar from Moray.

“ I have not forgotten you either, my faithful servant,” Sabbatai said graciously. - You, after all, seems to be a reborn Josiah.

“Oh, yes... I forgot about it,” muttered the beggar. - Well, then I will put Turkey at your disposal, and your capital will be Smyrna.

- May your generous hand be blessed forever and ever! - cried out enthusiastically King Josiah. - Now I will rest under my own fig tree.

Portugal fell to the share of one doctor from the generation of Maranos, who had just emigrated from there, escaping by some miracle from the clutches of the Inquisition. Even Chaim Penia, Sabbatai's former enemy, received extensive awards possessions.

- To you, my generous and devoted servant Joseph Shelebi, under the blessed roof of which my beloved Meliselda became mine royal friend, - I favor the Egyptian kingdom with the title of King Joash.

Here the almighty ruler of the world rose majestically from the throne, and the obedient his vassals fell on their faces before him.

“Get ready for the journey, my faithful servants,” he added benevolently Majesty, - on New Year's morning we will set out from Smyrna.

But as soon as he disappeared behind the door, a lively conversation arose in the meeting hall and disputes. Ambitious capitalists, who had not received any kingdoms as a gift, began tempt new rulers with various offers, persuading them to make concessions them their areas through amicable deals. Especially large sums offered for concession to the Ottoman Empire. - Get out, moneybags! “You will not be able to blind me with the shine of your gold,” Abraham Rubio shouted menacingly, accompanying his words with a majestic wave. hands. - Know that as soon as Smyrna becomes our capital city, your capital will immediately be confiscated and go to our state Treasury Department. Yes, the great Josiah will reign here autocratically, - with a comical he added with importance, sitting down on Sabbatai’s throne. - What are you waiting for? March Get out of here if you don't want to be beaten with sticks or slashed with whips!

Chapter 15

Sabbatai Zvi goes to Constantinople

According to the premeditated plan, the Turkish messiah at dawn thousand year old left Smyrna, accompanied by his royal girlfriend and a whole retinue of kings subject to him and went straight to Constantinople for the overthrow of the formidable ruler of the Muslims and the thief of Palestine. Myself the messiah sailed on a two-masted Levantine cod, and most of his retinue had to arrive at its destination by land. Although the journey undertaken, which constituted the strictest diplomatic secret, was carried out incognito, - the eloquent messages of Samuel Primo were timely announced it to the right people. The day of the tall traveler's arrival in Constantinople had been assigned in advance, and the local Jews were simply languishing from languid and impatient waiting. Meanwhile, by virtue of a secret order given by the Grand Vizier, a detachment of Turkish Chios was sent to the pier to capture of a daring rebel. The false messiah Sabbatai was arrested by order Sultan and converted to Islam to save his life.

Chapter 16

Sabbatai Zevi's Conversion to Islam

Just at the time when Sabbatai began to study the dogmas Muslim religion, a large Jewish synod gathered in Amsterdam, consisting of rabbis, chairmen of various colleges and other scientists who, surrendering entirely to the mighty waves of enthusiastic faith that swept them, came together to compose a collective message to their great messiah. And on the other hand, at the same time, as a formidable ruler true believers, deciding approximately, or rather, unprecedentedly, to punish the Jews for their rebellious plans, made grandiose plans - firstly, all of them extermination throughout the Ottoman Empire, and secondly, forced conversion their orphaned children into Islam - the world's Jews, committing, as they thought, last time his penitential prayer on the Day of Atonement, as usual frantically cried and rolled on the floor in their white shrouds, and during this endlessly long day, the worshipers unanimously and repeatedly invoked the blessing Gentlemen to the head of the Israeli messiah Sabbatai Zevi. When Zvi became a renegade, then most of the followers left the deceiver; but he knew how to deftly find himself: he assured that he was predestined from above to extract from this religion everything that is in it saint, and, applying to himself the word of the psalm: “And be counted with the wicked,” he forced many of his students to follow his example, that is, to become Muslims. But Sabbatai himself and the converts professed Mohammedanism only according to appearance; and at home they continued to observe the previous religious rituals and tried spread your teachings.

No matter how bitterly the Jews were deceived in the divine appointment of Zvi, but blind, unconscious faith in the words of the Talmud, depriving them of any critical ability, still contributes to the emergence of followers of this clever, but ill-fated charlatan. Thus, in Poland there are still adherents of a certain Joseph Frank, who lived in the 18th century and was a direct and zealous follower of Zvi. However, this sect, having split into separate branches, buries its ends so skillfully that it is very difficult to follow the action. It would be interesting, however, to know with with the help of what sophisms, Kabbalistic philosophies or touching naive illusions (from which, perhaps, even the divinely naive angels tears would come to their eyes) his ill-fated followers explained to themselves cowardly betrayal of his great hero, not wanting to part with the rosy hope that illuminated a dark and truly tragic fate with a life-giving ray of light Jewishness. And how many sects and counter-sects his apostasy gave birth to! How many prophets thanks to him, both a dandy guitarist from Madrid and Pignerol tobacco merchant, and Copenhagen missionary, purebred Christian. And these new miracle workers also awakened this great pathetic hope many years after Sabbatai Zevi, who had turned back into exile, probably under the influence of a second paroxysm that took possession of him self-delusion or desire to restore one's former glory and reputation righteous, or due to an ascetic desire for voluntary martyrdom.

Chapter 17

Abraham and Lucato False Messiahs

In 1673, the twelfth false messiah appeared. When the story of Zvi was already ended and forgotten by many, a somewhat similar unrest of Jews occurred in Poland. At the expense of the collections and donations of local Jews, a caravan of 120 people was formed, which traveled with the new messiah Abraham through Germany to Holland, proclaiming everywhere the kingdom of the Messiah is near. The rabbis participating in it tried to collect as as many people as possible to travel to the Holy Land, and from the designated assembly point, Nikolsburg in Moravia, they set off for Jerusalem. But here the local Jews accepted they felt very bad, noticing that the guests were counting on donations. Moreover, the leader The arriving caravan soon died, many of the members began to convert to Islam, while the rest decided to return to Europe. However, the most learned of this party, due to bitter disappointment, went into Christianity.

The thirteenth false messiah, Moses Luzzato, was of Italian origin a Jew, richly gifted by nature; inclined towards philosophy and theology, he is in the 20th year of his life, he declared himself the messiah and became an active disseminator of Kabbalah. The Jews of Austria and Poland, excited by his teaching, took him to heart and excited others by preaching that the time had come and the banner of Israel would subdue all nations, and the Jews will triumph over their enemies. But even here the Jews remained cruelly deceived and, having lost faith in their liberator, turned their displeasure and vengeance on the Messiah Lucato, expelling him from Italy. In 1747 he died of a pestilence.

Machine Translated by Google

Since, according to Jewish concepts, the Messiah must come from the tribe of David, then Among Jews, the so-called messianic families enjoy special honor.

Chapter 18

Izrolka Rabish - the ancestor of the messiah

One of the famous families lived in the town of Soda Gora in Bukovina. Despite the fact that this town is quite dirty and inhabited by Jews of the lowest rank, the richest Jew, Izrolka Rebish, lived in it, who both himself and his family served as an object of religious worship, close to fetishism, for Jews of all neighboring Slavic lands.

This Izrolka lived first in Russia, where, possessing significant wealth and enjoying respect, he surrounded himself with many servants. One day, Emperor Nikolai, while in Kyiv, noticed that this Jew was leaving with a convoy from 20 Cossacks kept at his expense, and immediately forbade such a ceremonial journey. But when Izrolka neglected the Highest command, he ended up in Kyiv prison, from where he fled to Soda Mountain and here, despite the demands of the Russian government to extradite him remained due to the fact that the local residents testified before the Austrian government that this Izrolka born in Soda Mountain. Here he was revered as a saint, and some members of his family as miracle workers. He lived in a magnificent palace surrounded by a park with greenhouses. His sons and daughters with sons-in-law live here, in special palaces, obliged by family conditions to constantly be in Soda Mountain. Izrolka himself was an old and frail old man, whose occupation consisted only in taking visitors who wanted to look at the head of the messianic family, and received from them present.

The number of visitors was sometimes very significant, and therefore the value of the gift was determined by the house charter to be no less than 20 florins. Visitors were only allowed to examine Rebish, who usually He looked at them blankly, for the most part without saying a word.

When he left the palace, he was usually greeted by a crowd of people, eager to look at him even from afar. Izrolka died during the Crimean War, but his heirs enjoy the same respect as future ancestors Messiahs, and Jewish fanatics revere them as St. family and worship them.

Chapter 19

Haham - the new false messiah

Inside southern Arabia, in Yemen, in the province of San, where a few years ago were beaten, with the exception of the Jews who had lived there since ancient times, all the non-Muslim inhabitants - a man appeared who aroused divine veneration for himself not only fellow Jews, but even Arabians. He was the Messiah there a continuation of several years already, but information about it reached Europe only recently, thanks to Baron Heinrich Maltzak, who, although he himself did not penetrate inside Yemen and did not have the opportunity to see the new messiah, but heard a lot about him both from traveler Joseph Halevy, who visited, despite all the persecution and danger, southern Arabia, and also from one of the apostles of the Messiah, a certain Shloms (Solomon).

The real name of the divine prophet is unknown; we only know that from a young age for years he bore the nickname Khakham (sage) - a nickname given only by one scientist to the elders. Indeed, he fully assimilated all the wisdom of the Bible and the Talmud, but the main reason that directed his brilliant abilities onto the path of humanized religiosity, there was another book - it was the Kabbalistic work "Zohar", the gospel of the Kabbalists, who consider what is written in it to be a revelation above all mysteries knowledge. Such a revelation, they believe, came down in the first century of our chronology in Palestine to the holy hermit Simon ben Jochei, who put it in writing. In reality, however, this book was not composed in first, and in the 13th century by one Spaniard de Leon. For what purpose did the author write it: was it the fruit of his fantastic ideas in which he believed, or it was simply written for the sake of mystification - all this remains not entirely known; some historians, however, directly call de Leon a hoaxer and a deceiver. The teachings of the Kabbalists have more than once turned the heads of Jewish scribes; it dangerous for every Jew who is not familiar with European philosophy and has not come from blind belief in the miraculous. Their doctrine of the Messiah is closely related to their belief in reincarnation. All human souls, they believe, have already been created preliminary and await their incarnation in the next world; those of them who, despite their mixing with the earthly element, have retained heavenly purity within themselves, go back to the world of spirits; others who failed to stay clean again transmigrate into mortal bodies, repeating their transmigration until they will not be cleansed at all. The consequence of this relocation is that many of pre-created souls that have not yet descended to earth cannot be accepted for some time yourself flesh. The soul of the Messiah will be the last to descend to earth, but it will not descend until everything pre-created souls will not incarnate. Moreover, the Kabbalists who existed even before appearance of de Leon's book, they already believed that the soul of the Messiah to the last coming has already taken on human form many times in order to gradually prepare people for his final coming. They taught that the soul The messiah already lived on earth in some patriarchs, prophets and kings. Others from Kabblists considered even Jesus Christ and Mohammed to be special phases of the appearance the souls of the Messiah from the tribe of David, also believed in the forerunner of the Messiah, who should be from the tribe of Joseph.

According to eyewitnesses, the new Khakham Messiah is quite beautiful in appearance; his facial features, the outline of his head, as well as all the members of the camp - antique correct; the shine of his eyes is so radiant and powerful that no mortal can postpone; under his gaze flowers bloom and wild animals are tamed. Not a less wonderful rumor also circulates about the strength of his muscles, which is likened Herkulesova; he can remain without food or drink for a long time; at the same time, changes in temperature do not affect it at all. Khakham is young, and, judging by the description, his appearance it can be likened to the images of the Italian school of the Apostle John.

How did the idolization of Hakham arise? Here, as many times before in business religion, the initial initiative came from the shepherds. Arabian nomads grazed their herds in a deserted rocky area, the weather was sultry, and all the springs have run out. Then one morning, at dawn, they saw Haham for the first time, praying at cliff. He was completely bathed in the sun and seemed radiant. This phenomenon was amazing shepherds Soon the rain began to droop, all nature revived, and the herds quenched their I'm thirsty. The appearance of a figure on a cliff and the rain made the nomads think - and so the reason for the miraculous was already complicated by circumstances. Another time at night, when a lion's roar was loudly heard in the desert, when the herds, gathered in a heap, trembled, and the shepherds prayed to Allah for help, they again saw Khakham wandering in radiance of the month. But night came, the herds and people remained unharmed; this prompted me again nomads see something miraculous and divine in the appearance of a radiant person. His fame quickly spread throughout the San province. Moreover, as luck would have it, the time of Khakham’s appearance was a particularly favorable time for the nomads:

the herb harvest was plentiful, the cattle were well-fed, the offspring were excellent, there was a lot of milk; V more boys were born in the family than girls (among the Mohammedans a sign of the special grace of Allah). All this was attributed to the divine influence of Hakham. Nomads brought him sacrifices consisting of jugs of camel's milk, which they placed in the desert between rocks; Khakham ate this milk. Rumor of the Divine the hermit, of course, instantly reached the Jews living in southern Arabia; They They began to envy the nomads and all the benefits that the holy hermit poured out on them. Then the Jews began to lure him to their side, begging him to leave desert and settle between them. The Jews considered him the messenger of God, the messiah and firmly hoped that he would show them immeasurably greater benefits than he had already provided to fellow Muslims. While this was happening between those and others displeasure because of the benefits of the Messiah, who continued his desert life and ascetic life, an unexpected incident happened: the water sources again dried up, a contagious pestilence attacked the livestock, female camels were denied milk, more girls than boys began to be born in Muslim families. IN With such signs, the Arabians saw the holy man's anger at them, and he also came up and the period of the fast imposed on himself by Hakham - and he returned to his Jewish village from deserts. The Jews acquired a messiah for themselves. Now he lives among them and is surrounded reverent veneration, in luxurious surroundings; The gifts he receives are endless. As much as the Jews idolize him, the nomadic Arabians now fear his wrath. Until now, however, it has not been heard that the Chakham Messiah has done anything. It is extraordinary that he is preparing to lead the Jews to Palestine. He sings beautiful psalms in a sonorous voice, completely immersed in the realm of his own fantasy and expects from above a miracle, a divine influx, with the help of which it would be given into his hands a sword to protect his fellow believers from oppression.

The present Hakham Messiah is not the first of the Messiahs and probably not the last; their The Jews already had many, of which the best known were those who appeared in recent centuries. Here in what form the modern concept of the Messiah is presented among the vast mass of Jews. Jerusalem is rarely left without two or three such originals. Now in In Jerusalem there is one of this kind - a young, gentleman-like Jew, recently arrived in Jerusalem, who directly declared himself the messiah. In Jerusalem A huge building is now being built at the expense of a German society; it appointed for the refuge of the elect who, by their way of life, are worthy to deserve the title of children of God; it will be something like a monastery.

Several years ago a rumor spread in Yemen that in Jerusalem The passionately awaited Messiah, the son of David, has finally appeared and is calling all the children to him Israel. The Yemenis, of course, did not have to wait long; taking their wives and children, they set off through Aden. But since they had almost no funds, then they could not charter steamships that would take them to Alexandria; they had to be content with the Arab "sambucas" - bad sailing ships, on which they dragged themselves to Suez for several weeks; from there, exhausted by hunger and In the heat, they somehow made it to Alexandria. One can imagine their despair when they learned for certain here that there is no Messiah, and it is unknown when there will be. Behind the first batch of Yemenis was followed by the second, then the third, etc. Alexandria the Jewish community, with all its desire to help them, was not able to cope with such difficult task. After much effort, it was finally possible to stop further emigration from Yemen, and those who have already reached Alexandria should be settled here to different activities. Self-proclaimed American Jewish prophet Dovi, calling himself Elijah No. 2 and organized a number of rallies in the United States in favor of Zionism, accompanied by scandals, which, however, did not stop Dovi from saving and taken to Australia, where he has now fled, as they say - about 35 million dollars. From this essay it is clear that this dogma contains the concept of domination over others, and about the acquisition of dominant political significance by Jews. To think that this antiquity, once defeated, can rise again and defeat its own descendants, is possible only on the assumption that new peoples, due to destructive principles existing among them will weaken so much that they will reach powerlessness even greater than the powerlessness of the ancients.

Chapter 20

New Messiah Rosenthal

Rosenthal, who posed as a messiah in 1875, comes from Bucharest; years he was about 50, widowed, he had three children, he was not tall, his clothes were according to the latest European fashion1 Analesdela mission. No. 9, 1882 . About what he Messiah, he first of all declared in Jerusalem to the famous and wealthy Jew Rattsbon, in whom Rosenthal did not find support for himself. The new messiah told himself that the first time he arrived in Jerusalem was in 1867, and that it was only on his part the result of the instillation of an inner sacred voice in his heart. After his death wife, Rosenthal says, God appeared to him twice and declared that he was his beloved the son of the messiah, awaited by the entire human race. Rosenthal said, I will be anointed to the position of king of Zion, and all people will submit to my throne; God also announced to me that the end of the world is already near and the period of a new creation is beginning peace; There are already many signs of the coming new creation of light. IN In the new world, God told me, there will be only one religion, one language, one king (Rosenthal), and the capital of the new world will be Jerusalem. In addition, Rosenthal many other secrets were discovered that he could not reveal to anyone. God also told him, as the messiah, that if he wants to become worthy of the royal crown, he must endure various trials and suffering. “I agreed to these difficult conditions proposed by God,” said the new messiah. Rosenthal king-messiah first of all, he went to Egypt, so that the words of the prophet would be fulfilled: “from Egypt I called my Son." But in Egypt they did not want to recognize him as the messiah and rejected him, finally imprisoning him. Having received his freedom, he arrived in Jerusalem, and from there to Bethlehem, where he spent several days; then he returned to Jerusalem again, so that the prophecy about Bethlehem came true on it. Beginning his mission in Jerusalem, Rosenthal declared himself the son of God, but few Jews listened to his teaching; in the majority they mocked him. When they demanded a miracle from him as proof of his divine mission, he pointed to only one thing, namely: opening his eyes and peering into the sun, Rosenthal convinced that he saw a reflection in the sun of your face. As proof of his divine wisdom, he also pointed out that he recognized various ancient famous men who were now living again. Abraham he found in the features of some old Arab; Moses and Aaron - containing the inn at the gates of the city; in one Jewish doctor (doctor) he recognized David, etc. By this Almost no one believed the statements of the new messiah, and everyone just scoffed. Insulted by such an unmerciful attitude towards him, Rosenthal plunged into silence, since the prophets said about the Messiah: “Like a sheep led to the slaughter, and like The lamb is straight when it is sheared, but it does not open its mouth.” But Rosenthal, the new messiah, does not always did this: when Jewish children bored him with their ridicule, then he did not spare his staff. According to his teachings, God's punishment will befall everyone who does not listen to him and will come on the day of his accession to the royal throne - and this day is already near. Bye that Rosenthal left Jerusalem - an ungrateful city, a blind city, and returns to Romania to his children. Here his whole mission ended with a small handful adherents - Jewish fanatics. Here is the last Messiah of the Jews and the last hope waiting. Now the rituals and prayers for the Messiah must end.

We heartily advise both educated and uneducated Jews more often focus on the significant prophecy about the Jews of the lawgiver Moses: “The Lord your God,” says Moses about the Messiah, “will raise up for you from among the brethren your prophet, as well as me: - listen to him in everything that he tells you; any the soul that does not obey that prophet will be cut off from among the people... And if not If you listen to the voice of the Lord our God, you will be taken away from the land of your inheritance, and The Lord will scatter you into all languages, from the ends of the earth even to the ends of it; but not between languages He will calm you down; your feet will stand lower; for there the Lord will give you a heart sad and fading eyes and a tormenting soul. And your life will be hanging before with your eyes, and you will fear day and night and will not have faith in your life, morning you will say: how will the evening be? And in the evening: what will the morning be like? - for the sake of fear, which Your heart will also be filled to see what your eyes will see.”

Chapter 21

The Political Dream of the Jews

The Jews do not enter into disputes for their dogmas, but they shun those who deny them. The very prediction of the coming of the Messiah is prohibited among them; but this is prohibited constantly violated due to the consciousness of its powerlessness before other peoples and which at times suggests the possibility of shaking off the heavy addiction. Many of them, carried away by tempting dreams about the future of the people, believe that the fulfillment of Jewish expectations is possible.

Modern Jews even say in their journalism: “If the prophecies must actually be fulfilled and if the people of Israel actually someday rule over the whole world, then this will be fulfilled not at all by force of arms, but by the application of the principle of interest. Why should we have our own dominance, fortresses and troops, when one enemy invasion can destroy all this and make us slaves of the victors.

Our wealth and our power should not be concentrated in one place. They must be everywhere and nowhere so as not to fall into the hands of our enemies. IN In our exile, no country, no state should belong to us, but we must try to seize the wealth of all countries and all states. Scattered around earth, we cannot have a permanent residence, but must strive wherever there is profit. Only in this way can we achieve fulfillment prophecies that foretell the conquest of the world by the children of Israel."

Here is proof how much the Jews think day and night about Jerusalem and kingdom of the messiah. One ascetic melamed during the Simkhes Toire holiday, when for all Jews must be drunk that day, this melamed felt such gigantic forces that addressed the feasting comrades with a speech: “Work! We have been waiting for the Messiah for 2000 years now, but he still does not come. It will already be waiting for us! Let's girdle strengthen your loins with courage and faith, and let us go into the land of Israel. The God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob will not abandon us. He never once put those who trusted in him to shame. How are you Do you think he's a worker? Since the drunken sea is knee-deep, it is not surprising that The workers, that is, the interlocutors who had been having fun, thought for a moment and agreed. In one minute they packed up and left the city. They walked one mile, two and three, singing psalms and other synagogue songs - they walked 7 miles without feeling tired, but at the 8th mile it began to rain - the travelers turned into the nearest the forest to wait out the rain and rest, but while resting, they fell asleep; When woke up, it was already noon after the night - they, without saying anything, went quietly home, without psalms and chants, but who with toothache, gumboil and headache. They reached their apartments by a roundabout route, so as not to meet their acquaintances. The consequence of which the leader hero Melamed Meer was given the name “Land of Israel,” which remained with him for the rest of his life.

Chapter 22

Kalisher the Jew and his work

Representative of the world Jewish Talmudic intelligentsia Jew Zevi Hirsh Kalisher in his essay “Derimont Zion” says: “Let the Jews not think that the Lord will suddenly descend from heaven and with a great trumpet will instantly gather together those who are scattered throughout to the whole world of Israel in Jerusalem, and will surround it with a wall of fire, or that God the temple will fall from on high according to the promise of God through his prophets - no, not like that, enlightened reader! Without a doubt, the words of the prophets will be justified later; though One should not think that all this will happen instantly. No, liberation of Israel will be accomplished slowly, the horn of our salvation will gradually flourish.”

“You see, educated reader, by now our morning has already risen. It became clear in the faces of those from Israel who live in the capital of the first power. AND Napoleon I and Holland gave the Jews freedom. Then the light that shone upon Israel was still small; later, when freedom spread to the Jews in other lands, and they became live close to sovereigns, such as the house of Rothschild, Montefiore, etc., then the light increased and gave hope to Israel; it would soon become like the moon, and there, with God’s with help, the big day will come.”

“So, we must use all our means and strength in order to be able undertake our own liberation. If we do everything in our power to do to restore the sacred ruins, and if at least part of it comes true our desire, then it is good for us. If, God forbid, we don’t make it in time, then in our hearts at least there will be a pleasant memory and the knowledge that we did our best depending on us. But we cannot help but have a firm hope that the Lord will favor to our aspiration and that He will send us His help from above. For a Jew who has the soul is pure - all earthly aspirations are insignificant in comparison with the hopes that we We rely on God for the salvation of Israel and the restoration of Zion. Amen".

“More than all the peoples of the earth, we are obliged to sacrifice for the salvation of our fatherland. For all peoples, their personal honor is associated with the fatherland, and with ours the fatherland, after all, in addition to the honor of our ancestors, is also associated with the honor of God, who chose Zion is His seat. Therefore, we will try together... But we will not enter by force, but a golden scepter that is in our hands...” After everything we have given in this chapter, it seems there is no doubt that political hopes and faith in the future are exactly the same as completely the ignorant Jew, and the civilized representative of the modern house Israel.

Chapter 23

General expectation of the Messiah

Everyone is waiting for the Messiah equally, both the most ignorant, the lowest Jew, and the highest scientist of them, a philosopher and a rabbi-kabbalist, that they believe everything - that the messiah will gather them again in Jerusalem and will bring down all nations with his sword foot; that because Jews, at least in the vast majority, prefer only one profession - gold trading, and that's all for the purpose that when the Messiah will appear, then not to have a new fatherland, not to be attached to the land of foreigners, while possessing it, but to have everything with him only in gold and jewelry, in order to carry them away more conveniently, following the example of the exit from Egyptian slavery, from where a lot of gold and silver were taken . Guided by this example, they want now to be hourly ready as soon as the sword of the appeared savior of the Messiah shines and sounds: but in order to follow him, to achieve this, it is necessary to maintain the strictest status in statu, which is observed to the fullest extent. If, in fact, there is such a special, internal, strict knot of unius unitalis among the Jews, connecting them into something integral and isolated from others, then, really, one can think hard about the question: is it possible to completely equalize their rights with the rights of those peoples among who do they live in? Of course, the state cannot deprive them of what humanity, justice and the rules of the Christian faith require: all this must be observed in relation to them.

Machine Translated by Google

The upper, educated class of Jewish society has lost faith in the dogma of the coming of the Messiah and is turning the desire of Jewry to realize by all means the political-religious ideal of the messianic kingdom. For example, consider the following message published in a Jewish newspaper:

"Hamid" in an article entitled "Letters from London." There has long been a rumor in England that the Turkish government, burdened with debts and borrowed securities, the majority of which are concentrated in the hands of English Jews, intends to cede “Palestine” to its Jewish creditors. It was published in the Constantinople newspapers that Sir Gamond in London, together with the Jew Guedallay, established on this occasion between the rich Jews of England, France and Austria, which managed to collect eight million pounds sterling to buy all of Palestine from the Turkish government. On this occasion, Guedalla published a letter in which he said that “although the rumors spread by the Constantinople newspapers on this matter seem to be of no importance, for the reason that without the consent of the great European powers the Turkish government cannot carry out the said sale, however, this matter has a basis, and there is hope that it can come true.” Guedalla, together with many high-ranking officials of England, really paid serious attention to this matter, and they had long ago sent out an appeal to rich Jewish representatives on all sides of the world for a general conference on this subject, since Turkey would be delighted if, in its present confused situation, it found the means to pay debts Guedalla is going to go to Constantinople to take care of this matter.

According to Guedalla, “this project will not meet with opposition from the European powers, and he hopes that the idea of reviving the Israeli state will come true.”

Jew Gordon writes: “Our reformer brothers (a Jewish sect that arose in Germany, which does not recognize the dogma of the messiah) can turn to him in one minute, saying: “We have sinned, but now we are your servants.” And he will accept them and find them capable and useful people for all his purposes. But what will he find between you and how can you help him? Will he find useful people among you when he comes to resume our lives as before? From among you will he take the minister of finance, the military - scientists, statesmen capable of being representatives at the courts of foreign sovereigns, engineers, land surveyors, etc. people necessary for his kingdom? (“Gashahar” for 1871, p. 151).

As for the Jewish organs and publications supported by the Society, they first of all revive and unite the Jews scattered throughout the world into one whole, incite Jewish hatred towards the Russian government and people. For example, at least such things as the writings of Smolenkin, the editor subsidized by society "Gashahara", a publication entitled "Gatoe-bedarke-gakhalam" ("The Lost One", see "Gashahar" 1872), representing an outrageous libel in which the Russians depicted in the most disgusting form.

In addition, the society supports and publishes books and periodicals on Russian language (“Dawn”, “Russian Jew” and others). These publications are not silent demands for the emancipation of Jews, about existing supposedly between Russians medieval prejudices against Jews, about Christian fanaticism and at the same time same time about great Jewish talents, etc. On the pages of each of these Russian-Jewish organs, everything is Russian the government amazes with its coarseness, stupidity, angularity, etc. Here the rubbish was collected not in order to clean the hut, but in order to throw it in their faces to the owner. While the entire 7 million-strong mass of Russian Jews, thanks to exclusively to the characteristics and strength of their religious and social institutions to such an extent lives at the expense of the productive labor of the Christian population, representatives of the Jewish press allow themselves even the most rude and unforgivable mockery of Russian society. Each essay in Russian has its own direct purpose of distributing perverted but profitable things between Russians for Jews there are no concepts about it, but it is disguised with the good purpose of serving the cause Russification of Jews through their adoption of the Russian language, which they, according to the statement Jewish educators, as if they still do not know, are alienated, afraid, meanwhile as it is known that Jews have long known and used the Russian language no less, if not more, than many other heterodox elements of the empire.

It goes without saying that the activities of the Society for the Propagation of Education in the spirit of separation of the Jewish nationality, in the spirit of stirring up political the hopes of the Jews, preventing them from merging with the Russian population and pointing them towards the current powerful political center of Israel, lying outside of Russia, making representations to kings and states for the “World Jewish Union” - such activities, I say, should be stopped by closing the harmful political interests of our state "Society for the Propagation of Education between Jews in Russia." Will anyone write a florid ode to the restoration... of the Jews? kingdom?—This is the question that arises by itself when you think that all the former The eastern war seemed to benefit only the Jews. Practical son Israel will never miss a happy moment for a successful gesheft. In the environment English aristocracy was born and developed the idea of buying from Turkey on the capital stock of Palestine, the Old Testament kingdom of Judah, about which there is so much centuries, all Jewish historians and lyricists, starting with modern ones, sighed and sang in vain Jewish-Russian publicists Gordon and Levanda, and now the new Moses Herzl drove all the Jews crazy with the founding of the Kingdom of Judah. Jews of the Old Testament, who have not tasted the fruits of enlightenment, on the question of Palestine have always been the opinion that the restoration of the kingdom of Judah must take place earlier or later, by miracle, without any external artificial assistance, they believed that an invisible but omnipotent force would sooner or later bring them to the promised land and will entrust them with the rod of statehood.

Chapter 24

False Messiah Herzl

Machine Translated by Google

The most important and last Jewish messiah, with no hope of leading the Jews out from Russia to Palestine, since all the Jewish merchants opposed, Herzl from died of despair.

Mournful leaflet "Memorial service for Dr. Herzl"

Yesterday, June 25, the capital's Jewish synagogue was overcrowded with people gathered to honor the memory of the suddenly deceased leader of all Zionists - the Viennese publicist and editor of the Neue Freie Presse, Dr. Theodor Herzl. After the requiem service served while the choir sang, state rabbi Drabkin said speech in which he sketched the image of the deceased. Warsaw, (Manifestation). The Warsaw Diary reports the following: details about the Jewish demonstration on June 24. Due to information that Jews want to ostentatiously honor the death of the Zionist, Dr. Herzl, by demanding and coercing traders to close their shops in Nalevki, the bailiffs of the 2nd and 4th precincts hurried to the site of the beginning of the concentration of Jews on the corner of Nalewok and St. George. Some of the shops on this street displayed photographs of Herzl in crepe frames, with the explanation that the shop was closed on the occasion of his death. Measures Police removed frames and portraits from display cases and shops were unlocked. By 12 o'clock day the crowd, strengthened by Jews walking in a dense mass along Gusinaya Street from the side Wild, revealed a clear intention to demonstrate. Accepted energetic measures, the crowd was dispersed, and by 1 o'clock in the afternoon order was completely restored. Jerusalem vs Uganda

The case of Chaim Zelig Luban, who attempted the life of Max Nordau, was transferred Viennese court to the investigating judge.

Chaim Zelig Luban, who attempted the life of Max Nordau, was arrested and imprisoned to jail. He stubbornly and contrary to reality refuses to recognize himself as Russian subjects. "I'm not Russian, I'm Jewish!" - he shouted in response to questions from the court investigator. It has been established, however, that he comes from Alekseevka Ekaterinoslavskaya province, attended lectures at the University of Friborg. He is almost completely can speak French. During a search of his apartment, Russians and Polish books.

CONTENT

PREFACE... ....5 BOOK ONE ....8 SECTION 1.
BIBLIOGRAPHIC... ....8 Treatise I On the origin of the Talmud...... ....8 Chapter 1 The beginning of the Talmudic era........... ....8 Chapter 2 Division of the Talmud................................ ....15 Chapter 3 Sections and treatises................. ....18 Chapter 4 Abridgement of the Talmuds............ ....21 Chapter 5 The most famous Talmudists................. ....23 Chapter 6 Review of Jewish Literature................................... .25 Chapter 7 The main figure is Rabbi Maimonides.................30 Chapter 8 Halakha and Haggadah........ ....36 Chapter 9 Kabbalah and the meaning of the Talmud.. ....39 Chapter 10 The importance of "gemara" and "mishnah"...... ....46 Chapter I of the Talmud in Russian................................ ....52 Chapter 12 About another Talmud in Russian....................60 Chapter 13 Combined Hebrew and Greek alphabet... 63

DEPARTMENT 2. THEOLOGICAL... 66
Treatise I On the mutual contradictions of the Talmudic teachers... 66
Chapter 1 Discrepancies in the Talmud..
66 Chapter 2 Rabbi Yochanan's School.................................... 70 Chapter 3 Halacha and Haggadah, two kinds of instructive works.. ....71 Chapter 4 Contradictions of Maimonides.................... ....75 Chapter 5 Gamaliel the Rabbi teacher of St. Paul..................77 Chapter 6 Rabbi Rashi interpreter..................................80 Chapter 7 Characteristics of the Talmudic schools of Hillel and Shammai... ....84 Chapter
8 Rabbis Abarbanel and Hans......... ....91 Chapter 9 Reformer Mendelssohn................. ....94 Chapter 10 About the commandments of Noah................................ ....96 Chapter 11
Rabbi Trenel and Rabbi Ashi................. ....99 Chapter 12 Jew traveler Stemfet......................100 SECTION 3.
HISTORICAL..... ....104 Treatise I On Persecution and the destruction of the Talmud......104
Chapter 1 Persecution of the Talmud by the Popes.....................104
Chapter 2 Pfefferkorn - a baptized Jew.............. ....106 Chapter 3 Neophyte monk, former rabbi.........................108 Chapter 4 Preface by Maimonides.. ....109 Chapter 5 Esterka, the favorite of the Polish king Casimir... 111
Chapter 6 District message of Polish Jews................. ....113 Chapter 7 Dispersion of the Jews across the face of the earth.....................114
Chapter 8 Jewish influence...... ....116 Chapter 9 About the brilliant insight of the Jewish mind .... 117 Treatise II On Jewish sects.. ....119 Chapter 1 Perversion of the Mosaic Law................................119 Chapter 2 Jewish sects in the East. “Samaritans”......123 Chapter 3
Sadducees.................................. ....124 Chapter 4
Magarians (cave dwellers) and Carians............... ...125 Chapter 5
Isavians, Yudganites and Ananites......................126 Chapter 6 Benjamin an. Negavendi, Maliki sect and Meshviites... 128
Chapter 7 Sadducees and Pharisees... .130
Chapter 8 Polish Hasidim and Kabbalists............................. 131 Chapter 9 Tzadik - head of the Hasidim........ ....143 Chapter 10 The miracle of the tzaddik......... ....148 Chapter 11 Denunciations against tzaddik........... ....153 Chapter 12 Tzadik drives out cholera........ ....155 Chapter 13 About the arrest of the tzaddik and about cholera in Puÿtusk....... ....159 Chapter 14 Teaching of the Tzaddikim.................................. ....164 Chapter 15 Karaite sect.................................. ....168 Chapter 16 Rituals of the Karaites.................................. ....171 Chapter 17 List of settlement of Karaites.................... .....177 Chapter 18 Karaite literature................................... ...178 Chapter 19 About Zionism.. 182

Chapter 20 The Sect of Therapists... 185
Chapter 21 About the Sabbatean sect in Thessaloniki ....186 Treatise III About Jewish Freemasonry............ ....190 Chapter 1 Secret Jewish Societies............................ ....190 Chapter 2 Political speech of the rabbi..................................192 Chapter 3 Jewish Synod in Leipzig...................................199 Chapter 4 Jewish Secret Union......... ....202 Chapter 5 Masonic Jewish Societies................. ....204 Chapter 6 Efforts of the Jewish Union for Enlightenment
Jews... 206
SECTION 4. DOGMATIC... 209 Treatise I The teachings of the Kabbalists about Jehovah............................. 209 Chapter 1 The names of Jehovah and the names of the parts of his body..... 209
Chapter 2 The Size of All Jehovah's Members......213 Chapter 3 Distance angels from Jehovah.........................215 Chapter 4 Jehovah's Activities................. ....216 Chapter 5 Jehovah's Lament for the Jews.. ....220 Chapter 6 Jehovah's Sadness and Irritation... ....223 Chapter 7 Jehovah's Roar in the Forest of Eli........................... ....224 Chapter 8 Jehovah asks to be released from the oath..................225 Chapter 9 About the beating of Jewish infants in Egypt.......228 Chapter 10 Roman writer Tacitus................................ 229
Treatise II Teaching of the Talmud about Jesus Christ, the Mother of God and the Apostles... ....231 Chapter 1 Talmudic story about Yeshu Ganotsri........... .231 Chapter 2 Yehuda Ishkariot................................... ......234 Chapter 3 The stoning of Yeshu..................................234 Chapter 4 Book “Toldet” Yeshu... 237 Chapter 5 Rabbi Yeshua ben Parahia................................. 238 Chapter 6 Death of Yeshu Ganotzri... ....240 Chapter 7 Origin of Yeshu Ganotsri..... ....243 Chapter 8 About the death of St. Matthew and Thaddeus........................247 Chapter 9 Blasphemy of Jewish doctors in public place... ....248 Chapter 10 Opinion of Tacitus, Josephus and Talmudic teaching... ....251 Chapter 11 Conversion of Rabbi Eliezer to Christianity... 253 Chapter 12 Prophecies about the divinity of Jesus Christ... ....254 Chapter 13 Moses' prophecy about the dispersion of the Jews......... 255 Chapter 14 Fulfillment of Mosaic prophecies after the death of Jesus Christ... 257

BOOK TWO... 261
SECTION 1. THEORETICAL... ...261 Treatise 1 Hatred of Christians and curses on them, commanded by the Talmud... ....261 Chapter 1 About hatred of Christians................................. ..261 Chapter 2 Evil prayers.. ......263 Chapter 3 The Edomites are Christians................................264 Chapter 4 By Man only a Jew is considered......268

Chapter 5 Khvolson in defense of Judaism.................................271 Chapter 6 Father Dean of Benderovsky......... ....271 Chapter 7 Fanatical action of the Jews ....276 Chapter 8 About oath in court .... 277 Chapter 9 Desecration of the Holy Gifts of the Church of Christ .... 280 Chapter 10 Personally fact of blasphemy known to the author......285 Chapter 11 Bytl, corruption of holiness............................... ....287 Chapter 12 Rashi's Opinion about Christians.................................291 Chapter 13.. ....293 Chapter 14.................. .... 295 Chapter 15

Jews rent Orthodox churches at Polish King Sigismund..297 Chapter 16 Canon law of the Roman Catholic Church of past centuries in relation to the Jews.... 301 Tractate II

Talmudic teaching on murder and extermination of Christians.. ....302 Chapter 1 God's commandment - do not kill................................... ..302 Chapter 2 Oral teaching.. ....307 Chapter 3 Historian Josephus.................................. ....310 Chapter 4 Maimonides teaches the extermination of Christians..................312 Chapter 5 On the murder of Christians......... ....316 Chapter 6 They teach to kill the righteous even.......... ....318 Chapter 7 Mistrust of Christians................................. ....320 Chapter 8 Only Jews will be resurrected....................322 Chapter 9 Inhuman Hatred..................................324 Chapter 10 About the beating of infants by Herod... ....325 Chapter 11 The murder of his brother Chaim................................. .....327 Chapter 12 Notes of the Jew Bogrov on the killing father of son... ....330 Chapter 13 The case of Shapira, sentenced to hard labor work for the killing of a baptized Jew.......................... 331 Chapter 14 On the murder of a baptized Jewish woman............ ....332 Chapter 15 The murder of two baptized Jewish women....................334 Chapter 16 History of the Tatar yoke and barbarism Jews... ....340 Chapter 17 About the crucifixion by the Jews on the cross St. Eustratia.. ....342 Chapter 18 About Jewish barbarism in the Russian-Turkish war... 343

SECTION 2. DOGMATIC.. 347 Treatise I On Heaven and Angels... ....347 Chapter 1 Two paradises - earthly and heavenly..................................347 Chapter 2 Treating the righteous in Paradise with fish meat Leviathan ....349 Chapter 3 About angels and their origin...... ....359 Chapter 4 About the ten types of angels and their names.....360 Chapter 5 About the purpose of creating angels.................. ....362 Chapter 6 The Angel of Death Gamoves............................ ....363 Chapter 7 About the conjuration of angels................................... ....365 Chapter 8 Methotron, an angel independent of God himself..371

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 9 The visible world is divided into 7 heavens................373 Chapter 10 Elijah the prophet constantly appears to the Jews......374 Treatise II On hell and demons.... .... .376 Chapter 1 Description of hell and its branches.............................376 Chapter 2 The suffering of sinners in Gehenna.... ....378 Chapter 3 Different types and branches of Gehenna.................. ....382 Chapter 4 Rapid reproduction of demons and fiery Gehenna for sinners.. ....385 Chapter 5
Adam gave birth to demons ....387 Chapter 6 Souls turn into demons................... ....388 Chapter 7 Four Mothers of Evil Spirits ....389 Chapter 8 Adam's second wife - Eve...................................390 Chapter 9 Ketev's midday demon ....391 Chapter 10 Shelter for demons. ....393 Chapter 11 Demons need food..................................394 Chapter 12 About biblical demons...... ....396 Chapter 13 About the demon Asmodeus........... ....397 Treatise III The Teaching of the Talmud on the Soul...... ....399 Chapter 1 The Jewish soul and its superiority over Goimskaya.. ....399 Chapter 2 Gentile souls come from the devil......400 Chapter 3 God's conversation with dead souls........................401 Chapter 4 A limited number of Jewish souls......403 Chapter 5 About the souls of baptized Jews..................................405 Part 6 About the additional soul on Saturday... ....406 Chapter 7 Every Jew has three souls within himself .... 408 Chapter 8 On the origin of the souls of peoples................................. 410 Chapter 9 The doctrine of the transmigration of souls and calling them upon death.. ....411 Chapter 10 About the transition of male souls into women's bodies... ....413 Chapter 11 They pass into unclean animals criminal souls.. ....414 Chapter 12

The transition of souls into small insects...................416 Chapter 13 The transition of souls into the water..417 Chapter 14 The transition of the soul into the wind..................................418 Chapter 15 On the expulsion of a settled spirit from one women.. 419
Treatise IV On the killing of Christians by the Jews......423 Chapter 1 The barbaric murder of the Christian Franciszka Mniszek.. ....423 Chapter 2
About the killing of Christians by the Jews girls Maria Drich... ....426 Chapter 3 About the murder of the baptized Jewish woman Domna ....436 Chapter 4
About the attempted murder of a baptized Jew Franz Platkowski... ....438 Chapter 5 The murder of the baptized Jew Andrei Harun.....440 Chapter 6 About the murder of the baptized Jew Yulia her relatives... ....451 Chapter 7
The murder of a Jewish woman who wanted to be baptized

Esther Kylie by her family.. ...455 Chapter 8 Biblical rite (eglya arufa).........................460 Chapter 9 Ancient statistics about killing baptized Jews by their relatives..461 Chapter 10 On the killing of a baptized Jewish woman Marianna, daughter of Misan... .462 Chapter 11 The case of the beating of the patrol and Christians in general Jews in Minsk in 1898 ....464 Chapter 12 The barbaric action of the Jews in Ancient Lithuania... ....474 Chapter 13 Zionist attack on Christians in Gomel.... 480 Chapter 14 An urgent measure of state protection.....488 Chapter 15 Jewish hostile desire..................491 Chapter 16 Jewish provocation continues......494 SECTION 3.
POLITICAL.. ....500 Treatise IO Jewish Freemasonry and Zionists................500 Chapter 1 Jewish secrets................,......... 500
Chapter 2 London and American Lodge

B'nai B'rith... ....502 Chapter 3
Secret goals of Masonic lodges.................. ....505 Chapter 4 Haman, Persian patriot, dead according to the intrigue of the Jews.. 510
Tract II About the Zionists.................................. ....512 Chapter 1 Congress of Jewish Zionists in Minsk........... ....512 Chapter 2 Zionists in Lubny.................................. ....514 Chapter 3 Opinion of the noble Zionist
Chernikhov......517 Chapter 4 Socialists and Zionists............. 519
Chapter 5 About the Kharkov Zionists................................... 522 Chapter 6 Jewish revolutionary propaganda between workers in Russia... ....524 Chapter 7 Sixth World Zionist Congress in Basel.. ....529 Chapter 8

The militant fantasy of the Zionists........... ....534 Chapter 9 The program for the conquest of the world by the Jews.................539 BOOK THREE ....546 DEPARTMENT 1.
THEORETICAL..546 Treatise I The Jew's Neighbor... .....546 Chapter 1 Whom should a Jew consider his neighbor.....546 Chapter 2 About the unenlightened Talmudic wisdom of the Jews... ....551 Chapter 3

The attitude of Jewish scientists towards the Amgaareans (laborers).. ....552 Chapter 4 The senseless intolerance of the Talmud................554 Chapter 5 The Talmud calls non-Jews dogs.. ....556 Chapter 6 Conclusion from Talmudic teaching................................... ...559 Chapter 7 The Talmud is the divine book of all Jews......562 Chapter 8 The behavior of the Jews in Egypt..................... ....567 Chapter 9 Modern Jewish Moral dogmatics.. ....569 Chapter 10 Crimes of the Jews against

Machine Translated by Google

Christian... 571
Treatise II On Aliens.................. ....576 Chapter 1 Legislation of the ancient peoples and Moses about aliens... 576
Chapter 2 The Jews everywhere stubbornly avoided using Mosaic Law... ....577 Chapter 3 The revolt of the Talmudists against Christians......580 Chapter 4 The militant spirit of Judaism......... ....581 Chapter 5 The beginning of the history of Lithuanian Jews..................585 Chapter 6 Privileges of Polish kings to Lithuanians
Jews.. 587
Chapter 7 Tribunal decrees on Jewish robberies and murders... 588
Chapter 8 Judicial verdicts on crimes
Jews in the 18th century.. 590
Chapter 9 Attack of Jews on Soldiers and Christians in the town of Shklov... 592
DEPARTMENT 2. JUDICIAL.. 596
Treatise I On the Jewish oath in general................................. 596
Chapter 1 How many categories is the Jewish oath... ....596 Chapter
2 The edification of Rabbi Johanan............ ....598 Chapter
3 Permissive prayer “Kol-Nidre” ....599 Chapter 4 Ritual “Gatarat” “We won’t agree” ....601 Chapter 5 Another example of the oath formula...... ....604 Chapter 6 Herem pronounced by the rabbi on the young a Jew for his freethinking against the Talmud 606
Chapter 7 Evasion of Jews from military service 608
Chapter 8 Jews in public libraries ....616 Chapter 9
Another twist in the oath.................................. 619
Chapter 10 Forms of oath for large-scale slaughterers livestock form I... 621
Chapter 11 II form................... ....622 Chapter 12 III form oath for poultry cutters...................623 Chapter 13 IV form of oath for Hasidic butchers......624 Chapter 14 V form of oath for overseers ....625 Chapter 15 Forms of the scribe's oath

box collection... ....626 Chapter 16 Oath formula for city leaders
Minsk, approved by the general Jewish assembly.....626 Chapter 17
The twists of the Jews in the oath to allegiance.. ....627 Chapter 18
Form of oath from the text of the king’s charter
Polish Casimir... ....628 Chapter
19 Formula of the Jewish oath of the 15th century, placed in the statute Lyaskogo, in cases of ritual murder of Christian infants... ..630
Treatise II Instruction of the Talmud on bribery of authorities.....632
Chapter 1 Doctrine of bribery of authorities.................................. 632
Chapter 2 Kagal acts 29 documents...........................636

Machine Translated by Google

Chapter 3 Derzhavin’s story about bribery................................646 Chapter 4
About the bribery of officials by Jews......... ....649 Chapter 5 Actions of the Jews during the Russian-Turkish wars.. ....652 Chapter 6
About the “patriotism” of the Jews in relation to Russia... ....654 Chapter 7
Russian-Jewish press......... ....656 Chapter 8 Opinion about Judaism of an Austrian doctor
Luger.. 657

SECTION 3. DOGMATIC.. 661 Treatise I On the Jews' Waiting for the Messiah.............................. 661 Chapter 1 Constant Expectations for the Messiah......... ....661 Chapter 2 All nations will accept Judaism................................ ....663 Chapter 3 Thirteen Articles of Faith.................................667 Chapter 4 Organs Jewish press about the Messiah..................668 Chapter 5 The idea of the personality of the Messiah................... ..669 Chapter 6 Teaching of the Talmud about the Messiah as a king..................670 Chapter 7 Constant expectation of the Messiah.............. ....672 Chapter 8 Various ideas of the Jews

about the personality of the messiah... 673
Treatise And Statistics of the Jewish False Messiahs................675 Chapter 1
The First False Messiah Dositheus.. ....675 Chapter 2 False Messiah 2nd Simon the Magus......... ....676 Chapter 3 Pseudo-Marcellus about Simon the Magus................... ....678 Chapter 4 Simon the Magus resisted
Jesus Christ... ....681 Chapter 5 School of Simon the Magus................................. ....681 Chapter 6 Theudas the false messiah........................... ....682 Chapter 7 Galilean false messiah................. ....683 Chapter 8 Kotzibah or Bar Kochba the false messiah................. ...685 Chapter 9 The Death of the False Messiah Bar Kochba...........................687 Chapter 10 The False Messiah Moses... ....690 Chapter 11 Abulafia the false messiah.. ....690 Chapter 12 Almusar and Lemlein false messiahs.. ....691 Chapter 13 Mordecai Zevi and Luria of the false messiah................692 Chapter 14 Zevi chose 50 apostles...................................693 Chapter 15 Sabbatai Zevi goes to Constantinople.. ....703 Chapter 16

Sabbatai Zevi's Conversion to Islam...........................704 Chapter 17 Abraham and Luzato of the false messiah................................705 Chapter 18 Izrolka Rabish - the ancestor messiah.. ....706 Chapter 19 Haham - the new false messiah........ ....707 Chapter 20 New Messiah Rosenthal................... ....712 Chapter 21 The political dream of the Jews................................... ......714 Chapter 22 Kalischer the Jew and his work......................716 Chapter 23 General expectation of the Messiah...... ....717 Chapter 24 False Messiah
Herzl............ 721

IPPOLIT LYUTOSTANSKII

TALMUD AND THE JEWS

MOSCOW
Orthodox publishing house
Encyclopedia of Russian Civilization

2009

The Orthodox publishing house "Encyclopedia of Russian Civilization" considers its duty to publish the famous work of the famous Orthodox theologian, member Imperial Palestine Society I. Lyutostansky (1835-1915) "Talmud and Jews", in which he explored the influence of Talmudic ideology on the fate of the Jewish people. Brilliant theological education received at the Moscow Theological academy, knowledge of seven languages (including Hebrew and Latin) allowed Lyutostansky created one of the most outstanding works in world science on history and ideology of Judaism. With the approval of the Censorship Committee, the first edition
The book was published in 1879, the last one in 1902-1907, and since then the book has not been reprinted, becoming a great rarity. Under the Bolsheviks, reading and keeping this book were punishable by death.

BOOK THREE

DEPARTMENT 4. POLITICAL

TREATISE I SOCIALISTS, ZIONISTS AND FREEMASONRY

Chapter 1

Speech by Dr. Marx Nordau at the Basel

Zionist Congress

“Honorable assembly!

It fell to me again to present a complete overview of the general situation Jewish people. A thankless task, condemning me in advance to repetition. I I don't find anything new that I could add to last year's report; nowhere is our
The situation has not improved, and in many places it has become worse."

Touching upon the situation of the Jews in the East, the speaker moved on to Romania: “In The Romanian government closed access of Jews to state educational institutions; their deprived not only of physical but also spiritual food. The Romanian people lived alone with his heart and mind in one with his government and set fire to and robbed houses and shops Jews in Bucharest and Galati. I say "people" and not "rabble", since a significant some of the participants in the pogroms were students of higher educational institutions and educated city dwellers who attacked the Jew as a foreigner, out of a sense of noble competition and love for the homeland under the fatherly and watchful gaze sympathizers of the authorities, proud of the inspired and ardent youth native country.

In Galicia, the explosion of passions necessitated armed intervention and declaration of a state of siege. In many places, the lives of our brothers were in danger; dozens of them were wounded, hundreds lost their property and turned into homeless vagabonds. The same scenes of violence, only in
On a more modest scale, they were repeated in Bohemia.

They'll tell us - Romania, Galicia - the East. Yes, these are the classic countries of the Jewish passion-bearers. It is quite natural that our brothers are subjected to them persecution and harassment if they are oppressed and insulted. There is no need to recall this; it is boring to dwell on details. Before us the backward East, over which the sun of a blessed civilization has not yet risen. But Look further. The progressive West presents exactly the same spectacle.
countries with unlimited freedom and culture, where humane philosophical Tolerance replaced religious fanaticism and the banner of brotherhood was raised on the ruins tribal prejudices, the cry rang out just as joyfully: "Death to the Jews!"
France, France of the Great Revolution, the Declaration of Rights, the country that first taught Europe has an example of the equality of Jews before the law, this France is now going in at the forefront of anti-Semitism. We hasten to clarify: France is not governmental, not in their official acts and speeches; justice requires us to make such a reservation, but our words nevertheless remain true. Slow, confident and irresistible a practice that prevents Jews from gaining access to positions of honor and high positions, the practice, which, by the way, has produced wonderful results in Germany, is in full swing flourishing; creation of a separate position for the Jews; revival of the invisible, but especially the formidable walls of the ghetto for those cast out from the common family - all this propaganda is being waged with rare passion and force. This is the situation in the continental France. In Algeria, the persecution went much further. There, anti-Semitism did not want to limit ourselves to street riots and insults directed at individual Jews shouting: "Death to the Jews!"; he did not want to be content with the broken windows of the shops, as in Paris, Nancy, Nantes, etc. There they thoroughly burned and robbed and killed a little. All demands for the repeal of the Crémieux decree, which granted rights to Algerian Jews French citizenship, and the misanthropic press reported and gave away the tearing apart by the anti-Semitic rabble of anyone who did not refuse work to Jews or bought in Jewish shops; she posted their addresses and names, and as a result, thousands proletarians, hundreds of small Jewish owners lost their daily earnings and shelter. You all know what caused the explosion of anti-Semitism in France: this impetus is a matter Dreyfus.

Our congress, which represents the entire Jewish people, has no basis to engage in a high-profile trial. This is the business of the French nation, not the Jewish one (noisy applause). Jewish interests are affected in it purely secondary circumstances, and I would like to dwell on these latter, with your permission.

French anti-Semites have put into circulation a senseless tale about called the Jewish syndicate. The syndicate has millions of dollars in funds and forged a diabolical plot against France. The stupidity of the accusation does not serve, Unfortunately, there is no guarantee that slander will find gullible listeners. Most
The French people absolutely believe in the existence of the syndicate. That's why far
It would not be superfluous to loudly call the fairy tale what it is - a stupid and malicious lie.
This is a worthy appendage to the terrible legend about our consumption of blood.
We will not engage in polemics with anti-Semitic liars (loud applause and signs approval). Physically they are stronger than us and under certain conditions they can kill us; but they will never surpass our deep contempt for them (long and noisy applause and signs of approval).

To the honest, gullible and confused French we say: be
We are confident that no Jew has any reason to wish you harm or to do you harm.

Jews all over the world have feelings of love and gratitude towards you {noisy hands-splashes and signs of approval). Even German Jews, not forgetting that you are obviously hostile to their homeland, loyal sons and devoted citizens which they remain, even German Jews do not deny that in the great eras of their throughout your historical life you were the beacons of humanity, the leaders of progress, and sincerely wish you victories and prosperity (Dreyfus also wished well on behalf of all Jewry) France), at least as long as you live in peace with their homeland (loud applause and signs of approval). If you ask the French who believed in the fairy tale about the Jewish syndicate, how they explain it to themselves, why, in fact, the Jews are put up a syndicate in the name of Dreyfus, they will answer you: everyone knows what Solidarity binds the members of Jewry; they will not let a hair fall from their heads the smallest of them.

It wouldn't hurt to say a few words about this celebrated Jewish solidarity. Where and when anyone saw the Jews, as a nation, that the majority of the Jews rose up and rose up in defense of one of her criminal sons? On the contrary, no one has ever been so harsh executes Jewish sins, like Jews (noisy and prolonged applause).
The Jewish flock of black sheep is spitting out with cruel mercilessness. We will never
We forgive the offense of our neighbor. We are only outraged by the system of our treacherous enemies who blame the sin of every Jew on all Jews without exception (loud applause and signs of approval).

In the Dreyfus affair, it also never occurred to any of the Jews to raise a voice in defense of a man convicted of the most shameful of crimes, simply because he is a Jew.
(The Jewish impudent lie is always of the same nature, the Jews did not sleep at night and fussed, By collecting money from all over the world, the kahals got back on their feet. - I. L.).

Jewry began to listen to the distant noise only when it noticed, that the case presents certain peculiarities, compared with others, to Unfortunately, treason trials are not at all that rare.
the press, which was the first to make public some details about
In fact, they were organs of rabid anti-Semitism. And before the verdict was passed, this
The press rushed to draw its conclusions and generalizations. It said that France suffered the punishment it deserved, being betrayed by a Jewish officer, for it is known, that the Jew is a traitor by his very nature. It was therefore up to the French keep Jews out of the corporation where he could practice his vile deeds with great gusto instincts. The anti-Semites thus revealed their firm the intention to forge weapons from the case for the war against Jewry in general, taking advantage of them to cleanse the officer corps of French Jews in particular. The last the circumstance should have suggested to those who were threatened with a blow what their civil debt. Since danger was looming over Jewry as a whole, Jewry as a whole, had to close ranks for self-defense; since the French Jews were being robbed the honorable right happily won, they all had to stand up as one man under the banner of trampled rights. In reality, we have never seen anything like it. I I say this with embarrassment, sorrow, shame and indignation; Jewry is calm heard that all Jews are traitors by nature, and did not find in its heart any the sound of protest. French Jewry was told to their faces that treason had occurred. thanks to the access of Jews to the army, and his lips were sealed in silence. Jewry saw that it was not Dreyfus who was put in the dock, but the whole people, and his lips were not opened up to demand the basic right to justify oneself. Moreover, when it became clear that the fundamental principles of justice had been violated in the Dreyfus affair, that the accused was convicted and they didn't tell him why, and then we didn't hear anything one indignant Jewish protest, outraged by the violence against the law and demanding the triumph of the law. Only Christians found themselves in the breach; Christians have the enviable lot of defending the offended right, while the Jews are burdened with the shameful stain that they washed their hands of it and stood idly by and watched others sacrificed their property in the name of the most sacred human good and safety (prolonged applause).

I have too much faith in my people and I have no doubt that fiery anger would flare up in tens of thousands, in hundreds of thousands of Jewish hearts, what they would say, write, voted, acted, would have brought all their blood and gold to the altar if Instead of Dreyfus, some gypsy was convicted (signs of approval). But since misfortune happened to the Jew, we could content ourselves with sighs and shaking our heads, giving Voltaire's laurels to Christians (noisy signs of approval). Anti-Semites have an indisputably better opinion of us; they cannot admit the thought that we we remain truly indifferent spectators of the struggle for the right, and, meeting in the ranks two or three Jewish fighters, at most, decided without further ado that the Jews were carrying their forces into battle only secretly and the stronger and more destructive, the more fatal their influence will be felt. This is how I explain to myself why there are so many conscientious Christians not only in France but also outside the Third Rerepublics are firmly convinced of the existence of the syndicate. This fairy tale, cleverly launched into appeal to anti-Semitic slanderers, came to meet the spiritual need

Christian to believe in Jewish inspiration, in Jewish strength and intelligence, in Jewish a sense of solidarity. The slander of our enemies clearly shows what was expected of us. But we have far from justified the fears of those who hate and despise us most; such thus the tragic Dreyfus affair became a measure of our weakness, cowardice, stupidity and confusion.

After all I have said, I hope no one will repeat the absurd the lie that the explosion of anti-Semitism in France was a consequence of the intercession of Jews for Dreyfus. The truth is that the Jews did not dare to take Dreyfus's side, what did the Christians do, what did the Jews do, with the exception of two or three pure in heart, finger didn't lift a finger, even in physical self-defense. Meanwhile, the case turned into a deadly weapon against their honor and safety. French Anti-Semitism is not a product of the Dreyfus affair. No, on the contrary, it caused the affair. If the monstrous process was not created by anti-Semitism, if anti-Semitism had not chosen its a victim of Dreyfus, then the accusation heaped on him would never have turned into the inherent sin of Judaism, and attempts at revision would not have caused such furious irritation of passions. The Dreyfus affair only tore off the mask, exposed the secrets the people's soul; it appeared as a warning and instruction for the Jews, still believing that they have been accepted into the family of advanced European nations. This is what gives it has exceptional significance in the history of Judaism; the significance of the formidable warnings and enlightenment; the meaning of punishment for the incurable Jewish optimism that makes us, even after all the thorns of the Dreyfus trial, exclaim: Sat zi I i, everything is for the best! (loud applause).

Chapter 2

Continuation of the speech in a heightened patriotic spirit

"France is not the only country of freedom and progress where the old ghost hatred of the Jew arose in the middle of the bright day under the rays of civilization. In England, so the government managed to carry out the work I praised so enthusiastically last year the House of Lords a bill banning foreigners from entering the kingdom, not having means. "Foreigners without means" is just a fig leaf instead of the word "Jew" (laughter and signs of approval); English statesmen in as highly educated and conscientious sons of the 19th century, they find a frank tone too offensive to their modesty (lively laughter and signs of approval).

England, which has created a cult of national pride from the fact that it is the homeland persecuted and deprived of their homeland by their homeland; England, which sheltered in its depths, in past centuries, the Huguenots, under George - French emigrants, during the days of the Holy Union - Mazzini, after 1848 - emigrants of all countries, and in our days giving a haven for the despised and hated anarchists, England, a sacred refuge humanity, decides to close its doors to only one group of people, the Jews.
Of course, they try to cover up such a gross renunciation of centuries-old traditions.
various motives. Foreign Jews are a burden on the English charity; Jews are taking away the bread of English workers. Two not only pro-contradictory, but also mutually exclusive theses. If the Jews are poor, so they cannot encroach on the earnings of the English worker; if they succeed they are encroaching on his bread, which means they are not beggars, therefore, they are not a burden charity fund (laughter and signs of approval). However, now, in fact, Both theses have been proven to be empty excuses. Jews moving to England do not poor, but hardworking and conscientious workers, capable of supporting themselves and often providing themselves with an unknown future. If some of them temporarily when they are in need, they enjoy the support of their fellow tribesmen, and in no in any case, they do not burden the budget of English Christians, although they would have the right to do so, making their contribution in the form of a tax for the benefit of the poor. They also do not snatch a piece of bread from English worker, but they create new branches of labor that had not previously been grafted on England, thus increasing the country's wealth. The Law against the Deprived foreign funds is only a new symptom of the disguised Judeophobia.

The disease of the century did not spare even the United States. Law and public
The system does not yet recognize the persecution of Jews. But hatred feeds society with its juices, and the number of educational institutions that tightly close their doors to Jews is very large and shows a tendency towards progressive growth.

This is the state of affairs. In the East, in the countries that have just parted with Jews who are either barbaric or abandoning it are simply hounded and hated without embellishment,

In the West, which stands at the pinnacle of civilization, they are persecuted and hated under various with plausible pretexts. But both in the East and in the West we are equally not tolerated and oppress. True, we do not want to incur the reproach of ingratitude. That is why We will name a few countries where a Jew has no right to complain about his fate. Here he: Holland, Belgium, Italy, Scandinavia and free Switzerland (turbulent and long-lasting signs of approval), the healing air of which our chest breathes and whose courageous sons, as our President Dr. Herzl, greeted us and honored us with fraternal greetings on the third day, touched us to the depths of our souls. Here a Jew is looked upon as a human being, as a full-fledged citizen, and only one cry from the lips of a teenager, from the lips of a street The boys reminded us that even among the best the dull instinct has not died out. All these powers, all these happy oases of peace in the ocean of anti-Semitic hell do not count and 200,000 Jews; and I am tormented by an evil presentiment that their impartial feeling towards Jews would be put to a severe test if they had to give shelter to everyone persecuted under other skies (noisy signs of approval). Having this before my eyes a reflection of the global position of Judaism, Jewish enemies of Zionism will not deny that it only accurately reproduces the picture of reality. But they make soothing gestures with their heads and hands and whisper touchingly: random severe phenomena should not be generalized; anti-Semitism is disgusting a creature of the day, and soon destined to disappear.

What! You see that the vile ulcer of Judeophobia is being transferred from old hotbeds to new territories, that it proudly lit its torch where for decades and centuries it was considered long extinguished, or where, as in North America, never It didn't happen before, and you're talking about a coincidence? You dare to predict the death of anti-Semitism at a time when the whole course of Jewish history, when the voice seventy generations, groaning and complaining, crying out before the face of heaven that you are lying. Your prophecy is nothing more than a new kind of malicious bankruptcy (stormy thunder applause and signs of approval). You don't want to pay off your obligations now, and you issue fictitious bills for the future. It costs you nothing, since you you know perfectly well that you will never take them into account (loud signs of approval).

Be honest; confess courageously the hardness of your heart; say frankly to the Jewish people: “We live tolerably well, it is a sin for us to complain, and We don't want changes, and you, the persecuted, the humiliated, you, the martyrs, we don't care about you no business! If you were sincere and revealed the true motives of your course of action, we would be ready, perhaps, to forgive you. The Jewish people simply he would have deleted you from the lists and his calculations would have become clearer thanks to this, more precisely, more accurately. You would not confuse those who are in the dark, and not would give ready-made formulas to cowards who refuse to fulfill their duty. The people would know, who really works, if not on the impression, then on facilitating it thousand years of suffering; you are so-called doctors who have forgotten the oath; you are content by giving the patient sleeping drops to stop the heartbreaking the groans did not disturb your sleep (loud applause and signs of approval).

This type of treatment can only be justified at the bedside of a dying person, where human help is powerless and where they want only one thing - to ease the pain of death agony: but for Jewry such therapy is unacceptable (noisy applause and signs approval); we fervently believe that we will see him again flourishing and healthy (stormy applause and signs of approval). At the bedside of such a patient, resort to euthanization pain, invisibly accelerating the denouement, is a crime (noisy and prolonged applause and signs of approval).

Not limiting ourselves to indicating how other peoples treat those living among them, our brothers, we would risk giving too one-sided coloring of the painting. In my deep conviction, it is just as important, even much more more importantly, to determine the mood of Jewry itself, the current of social thought, feelings and hopes that were clearly expressed in our tribe.

The first impression will be dismal and may take away from faint-hearted faith in the future.

The impact of the rays of Zionism on the Jewish people causes in my mind an idea of one phenomenon that probably has not escaped our attention. We
We know that the winter landscape has its own charm, its own icy armor waters, and a melancholic blanket of snow, a look of grave silence, sad mourning, and the breath of death is over everything. The spring landscape pleases the eye with a completely different beauty. Water murmurs and shimmers, the fields are in bloom, the meadows are full of fragrance and everywhere and everywhere, life begins."

Chapter 3

The last part of the speech is convincing and passionate.

"But let's take the transitional moment from one season to another. The first ray of sunshine melts the surface of the winter landscape and breaks through between the two stripes of disgusting between; and this view would pour poison into the soul if we did not know what it would bring with it Queen Spring. The snow-white cover is broken and turned into a gray, disgusting mass; the smooth as a mirror valley melts, turning into an impassable swamp. All of nature appears to be one giant puddle until she puts on her wedding green outfit and will not decorate himself with flowers.

We are currently experiencing something similar in Judaism (thunderous applause and signs of approval).

The Jewish people still resembled a winter landscape; pale, cold, a frozen image. But its motionless forms were striking in their colossal size, and on everything there was an imprint of greatness, the greatness of death (stormy signs of approval). And there were Jews, but There were even more Christians who admired the romantic image, deeply who felt his poetry. For them it seemed sacrilege to encroach on the motionless the originality of the statue, and they mourned when the silvery distance of the clearing was desecrated black glades. A Zionist appeared and began to melt the stiff muscles like the sun. (loud cheers), and in happier corners where the sun shone brighter and stronger, the first grass appeared, the first bells; everything else, as far as the gaze can encompass, the entire horizon is one continuous monstrous swamp (signs of approval and applause) In this mud we wander, falling, plunging knee, waist-deep. How heavy! How disgusting! Everything low, vile, everything that has long been lived in Judaism, but what was hidden under the dead tissue is noisily coming out (loud signs of approval and applause).

But it’s worth taking a look at the calendar to cheer up and lift your spirits, because we all know that spring (noisy, all the renewing signs of approval and applause); that spring always begins with the spoiling of the beauty of the landscape, but that it will pass A little time and the mud will turn into golden fields.

Zionism has awakened Jewry to a new life. This is my conviction, and he acts morally, refreshing the people's ideals, materially educating a physically strong generation, reviving the long-forgotten Jewry of muscles. At the same time At the time, Zionism drew a sharp line between those called to life and those condemned to death (loud and unanimous signs of approval). Only now can we give ourselves a clear account of the terrible devastation that 18 centuries of oppression have wrought among us.

for the first time, after the desperate struggle of the great Bar Kokhba, which may not be appreciated only by despicable demagogues seeking the popularity of the rabble, for the first time a cry was heard among the Jewish people calling them to work, inviting you to prove to yourself and the world how much strength, creative power and thirst for life you have it has preserved in the depths of its soul. And we can see how much that seemed alive until proof of viability was demanded from him, it became, in essence, corpse. Millions of Jews formally renounced Judaism. The process of falling away did not has not ceased for a minute since the destruction of the Second Temple and has taken place in the West especially large sizes in recent decades, in recent years.

But an incomparably greater number of Jews were unable to clarify before their conscience, that they are, in essence, the same outcasts, that in fact they are long-ago fallen leaves from the tree. They consider themselves Jews, others consider them Jews; but they are Jews only by force of habit, clumsiness, and spiritual flabbiness. Judaism made them victims of persecution and, without losing their sense of honor, they are ready to suffer, on the one hand, rony; on the other hand, they were pleased with the prospect of being victims, a state of mind that was not alien to its share of pleasantness (laughter). In moments of sweet dreams they began to believe in the poetry of Disraeli, George Eliot and Alexandre Dumas fils, who gave fantastic images of Judaism, its mission, power and future; they bathed in fog fantasy, beautiful and plausible, like a dream. Their Jewishness did not require it from them practical steps. They loudly exclaimed over the 613 prohibitions and prescriptions of the Shulchan Aruch laughed; taxes for the benefit of the community did not weigh heavily on them, but They remembered the road to the synagogue on the day of repentance for sins, and yet they were convinced that they are excellent Jews because they love Heine (loud laughter and signs approval), admire Deronda's sermon and do not compromise on the glory of the kugel.

And then suddenly Zionism appears and says to them: “Get up! Get some courage! courage! Do something! Find a place under the sky for yourself and your people! Don't do not rest; do not rest until those who are indifferent and even hostile to you will not be convinced that you are not deprived of the right to live like others and to be happy as a nation!"

The hour of death struck completely unexpectedly for all these “also-Jews” and “woe-Jews!" (laughter and signs of approval). That's why they all turned against us with such indignation, and that's why their attacks have a somewhat humorous effect on us.
(noisy approval). "Yes, if the aroma of kugel is not serious enough for you a sign of Jewish patriotism, then we want nothing to do with you,"
- they say with indignation and proclaim you as impious heralds civil war. There, the rabbis cross out the lost in prayer books them the meaning of hope and promise phrase: "Next year in Jerusalem", here voices of protest are being raised against Zionism as a movement contrary to the spirit of religion.
gies (noisy signs of approval and applause). One person I deeply respect a Jewish scholar who took on the task of compiling a yearbook of Jewish life, finished the collection for 1897, without mentioning a word about what took place in Basel the first Zionist Congress. Another one had the coarseness to say about us that in Last year at the congress we cowardly cried out for salvation, that we want shamefully flee from his pursuers, while he, the hero, courageously exposes his cheeks under the rain of slaps and selflessly bends his back under the heel anti-Semitic governments and peoples. (Laughter and loud applause.)

These phenomena make our hearts clench with sorrow, but they are natural, and They shouldn't bother us. We are too old a nation, and what haven't we experienced in our thousands-year-old past? Truly, there can be nothing new for us.
When Moses came to free his people from Egyptian slavery, the first
The Jews rebelled against him and threatened to hand him over to the authorities (loud laughter). When Ezra and Nehemiah returned to Zion, rich Jews, educated Jews, Jews, people the Heine of those centuries (general laughter), remained in Babylon and with contempt, to be perhaps, not without a sigh of relief, they looked at the madmen and fanatics who wanted rise again as a people.

The same thing will happen now; it has already happened. The army of Ezra and Nehemiah was an insignificant minority in Jewry. But we are all children of this minority. (Noisy, prolonged, constantly renewed applause and signs of approval).
The majority, on the contrary, disappeared without a trace and dissolved into the ocean of Asian nationalities. It may well be that Zionists are also a minority. But thanks to them, Jewry will gain youthful strength; thanks to them, it will live; thanks to it will be saved in the distant future (stormy, constantly repeating applause and signs of approval). Our numbers do not change the situation one bit. of things. The seed of the branched linden is insignificant in appearance. But this seed is the extract of the tree, the source of its strength, the purpose of its organic life. The linden tree lives in the seed, not in its trunk or in the bark. Everything that is vital in Judaism, everything that preserves the covenants Jewry, everything that is full of strength and burns with a trembling desire for prosperity, gathered under the banner of Zionism; yet, everything that feels good in the shackles of slavery, that does not suffers under the pressure of shame, everything that awaits the natural death of Jewry stands in side or sharpens the sword against us. Zionists can cite a famous verse Austrian poet Grillparzer and say: "In our camp is Israel; but you, the rest, "insignificant and pitiful (stormy applause)".

Chapter 4

Zionism and separatism

Among the fashionable topics of Russian life, Zionism occupies a prominent place, attention to which has been increasingly increasing in recent years among Jews, and among Russians as well. Zionism, as the idea of the exodus of Jews from Russia, is of particular interest Russian society, which has long been aware of the abnormality of the Jewish situation question. Russians can even be considered more Zionist than the Jews themselves. And this is completely It's not a paradox. The entire history of the Jewish question in Russia, the entire way of life of this people, isolated, closed, irreconcilably hostile to Christianity, nothing producing, but only using the labor of others' hands - all this is enough explains why the exodus of the Jews to Palestine would be desirable for us. Jews don't want to compromise, they don't give in to assimilation at all, they want remain Jews. Jews say: "We are the natural aristocrats among all peoples peace." They are proud of this and therefore probably avoid hard work while doing easy and profitable scams.

Most likely there is a dislike for this tribe, a worldwide dislike, in all countries Old and New Worlds, is explained by the instinct of disgust that man feeds on any parasite that has climbed onto his body. A German, a Russian, a Frenchman sees, that his fellow citizens participate in the common creative work, sharing the common labor in proportion to their talents, social status, inclinations and physito the Czech forces. But they also see that the Jews choose for themselves only the easy and profitable professions, leaving the hardest work to the non-Jews.

A Jew is not a creator by nature, but a destroyer. Usually Jews and their Defenders say that the entire history of this tribe has made them skilled traders, people of the golden calf. But this is not entirely true. Are the existing restrictions for they, at least in Russia, are prevented from being carpenters, blacksmiths, paver builders, miners, sewage workers, etc.? However, these are hard and poorly paid professions are always avoided by Jews, and they prefer to be tailors, watchmakers, factors, commission agents, pimps, etc. They leave the most thankless and hard work for others, since they are, after all, natural-born aristocrats, the chosen people. Is it fair? Our people bear the yoke of hard labor, exhausting and often fatal. He digs ditches for water pipes, suffocates without clean air and ruins health, and often life, in deep mines; builds at home, laying brick after brick for months and being in severe physical conditions all the time conditions, in the sun and in the rain; he beats stones for years and repairs streets, literally spending half his life on the pavement; serving in sewage trucks, inhaling disgusting miasmas... All this is done by Russian common people, but not by Jews. They They shout everywhere and everywhere that they are smarter and more talented than the Russian peasant and therefore they choose more intelligent, more noble-looking work.

But the point is not in Jewish talent and the intellectual superiority of Jews over Russians. This is a very controversial issue; the Jewish rabble has neither Koltsov nor Kulibin, nor Lomonosov and many others, but the Russian common people gave Russia these Glorious names. It's not a matter of Jewish talent, but of Jewish parasitism.

A Jew is a parasite, not a working man. You, an illiterate and simple man, can make pavements for themselves, and I, a simple and illiterate Jew, will be a tinsel hotel; you, a man, lay brick upon brick and mix mortar all your life, and I, a Jew, I will give money to your fellow believers in interest; you carry the fragrant barrels for yourself, and I I'll run a boarding school for noble girls without ancient languages. And all that jazz. Now take the intelligent Jews, those who are affected by the restrictions comparatively few and for whom higher education gives the right to live and work everywhere. And here we see the desire of Jews to take advantageous positions and to exist through all sorts of business ventures in addition to their profession as a doctor, lawyer, or engineer.

Chapter 5

Zionist revolutionaries

What is Zionism and what caused it? It seems to us that the idea of in their own homeland has always flashed in the minds of the Jews since they dispersed across the universe. But in our days, that push, that alarm bell that woke up the Jews of the whole world and made them think seriously about their future destiny, was undoubtedly the Dreyfus trial. This case aroused in them a feeling of solidarity, united them, helped them organize for self-defense. World unification there were no Jews, caused by the desire to save a Jewish officer at any cost awakening of Jewish self-awareness, but solely by the desire to remove from the Jewish-a new shame for the tribe, which fell on their overly talented heads. Not Dreyfus it was necessary to whitewash in the eyes of the whole world, and Judaism, because with condemnation Dreyfus would have brought a new grave charge against the Jewish people, and the actions it would have fallen even lower.

In order to save the reputation of their tribe, which had been tarnished for centuries, the Jews began to secretly to collect colossal sums for the rehabilitation of their fellow believer, they raised the whole the seal to protect the captured traitor, began to vigorously and passionately agitate in in favor of restoring the honor of the Jewish captain and in the end almost achieved rehabilitation of an obvious traitor. Every Jew, from the poor to the rich, understood that The successful outcome of the Dreyfus affair depends on saving a long-tarnished reputation Jewish people, and vice versa - when Dreyfus was convicted, attacks against Jews could begin new persecutions and state repressions.

This passionate Jewish struggle, the main nerve of which was in Paris, in the person of The World Jewish Union united the French Jew with the Russian Jew, German, Austrian, American, etc. All Jews sensed danger, for everyone it became obvious that a great moment had arrived in their historical life, which could be fatal for the entire Jewish nationality. The rise of the spirit in Jewry in the era
The turbulent days of the Dreyfusiad were enormous. Then the pulse of Jewry beat faster, then in the heads of the Jews the results of their unproductive parasitic existence among the peoples and, of course, the Jews then realized that they had nothing to do with it to thank the peoples who sheltered them that they, the Jews, have a chronic disease that peoples have suffered for centuries, and that this disease has again become aggravated and requires immediate operations.

Thus the idea of Zionism was born in Jewry, and with the condemnation of Dreyfus it must was to develop and take on a real form. A new shameful stain fell on Jewry. The millions collected were wasted. Instead of justification and reconciliation - the growth of anti-Semitism. From here the only way out is Zionism. On us, the Jews thought that the peoples continue to look upon them as a dangerous element of the state, We are not trusted, we will always be suspected of being ready to sell out and betray. We are not patriots of the state in which we live; we are prevented from being patriots by a narrow the religious and everyday way of life of ours, which we will never change, because to change it means to renounce Judaism, our faith, and we will never, ever we won't do it.

That this is exactly how Jews all over the world reasoned after the condemnation of Dreyfus is in this There can be no doubt. They made these conclusions, of course, not publicly and not frankly in their newspapers that they recognize themselves as superfluous among those who have taken in their peoples - the Jews are too smart to make such confessions publicly - but deep down they thought exactly like that. They knew perfectly well that Dreyfus a traitor, but he should not have remained one in the eyes of the whole world.

If much earlier the Jews had the idea of uniting into one whole, one independent Jewish kingdom, this idea did not find a lively response in the hearts of the Jewish people, scattered throughout all the countries of the world. And only the process Dreyfus gave life and meaning to this idea; and to him, Dreyfus, Jewry owes the revival of modern Zionism.

In a few years, Zionism grew and acquired a definite expression. It arose in West, and then this teaching passed to us. It is worth noting that Zionism was born not in Russia, but in the West, where there are relatively few Jews, since Russia is home to a third of the Jews in the entire universe. This confirms the hypothesis of a causal relationship Dreyfus process with Zionism.

The propaganda of Zionism was carried out in all countries tirelessly, persistently, and energetically.
To increase the number of supporters of the idea of exodus, foreign leaders of Zionism published brochures, reports were read, campaigning was carried out in newspapers and magazines, meetings were convened congresses, "shekels" were collected - a collection for the formation of a national fund; finally a Jewish colonial bank was established in London, the shares of which penetrated into Russia and at first they went very well, but then some things happened with these shares. there was a misunderstanding, and they were banned from circulation here.

Russian Jews did not remain deaf to the call of Western Zionists. And here, as well as abroad, border, the Jewish press began to advocate for Zionism, and in several cities Congresses were held periodically - secret and open. To further awaken in Russian Jews desire for Zionism and constantly remind them of Palestine, the leaders of Zionism began to directly advertise it: they issued stamps in favor of National Fund, steel pens with the coat of arms of King David, open letters with the corresponding with corresponding Jewish inscriptions, "Zion" cigarettes, Zionist tokens with image of Dr. Herzl, etc., etc.

In our country, Zionism met with resistance from wealthy Jewry, who looked this movement as a pure utopia. Russian Zionists are hot-blooded youth, the majority are rather semi-intelligent than intelligent, and the mass of orthodoxical dark Jewry. Heralds and ardent preachers of Zionism is Jewish youth, spiritual rabbis, melameds. Their supporters are all Jewish poverty. The opponents of shaking Russian dust from Jewish feet are all the wealthy Jews, all the capitalists who are well settled in our Fatherland and have no reason to want to leave Russia. Of all seven million Russian Jews who do not share the unrealistic passions of preachers Zionism, there is probably a good half.

The rich Jews, although they sacrifice under the influence of tribal solidarity, are pitiful crumbs, but they refuse to show their sympathy with large contributions Zionism. Baron Hirsch, who gave millions to Argentine emigrants, was the only Jewish major capitalist who expressed his sympathies settlers, he had no imitators. Rich Jews, if they donate trifles, then they do it, so to speak, out of duty, out of understandable fear of bringing it upon themselves nicknamed himself an apostate of Judaism, out of fear of the Jewish initial boycott, the terrible

"herema", but not at all from a clear awareness of the usefulness and necessity of such donations. And, of course, the aces of Judaism, donating little more than they donate The ardent naked Zionists contribute little to the material growth of Zionism. All that remains is poor Jewry, but what can it give to the cause, the implementation which will require many tens of billions?

Little, very little. Their contributions are a drop in the ocean.

And even if the idea of Zionism does not cool in the hearts of the Jewish people and the sermon national and state revival will also captivate the poor the Jewish masses, as they are captivating them now, then perhaps in 200-300 years the Zionists will get closer to their cherished goal. By that time, they will have collected - as the proverb goes "a little from the world, a shirt for the naked" - a colossal capital, which, probably, the Turkish sultan, some Hamid 25th, whose finances will be so bad that he would be ready to sell to the Jews not only Palestine, but the whole the brilliant Porto... And not even sell it, but give it directly to the strongest enemy. But this may not happen soon, very soon. And who knows what will happen in the universe by the time Russian Jews accumulate so many chervonets that they It will be possible to cover the whole of Russia, from St. Petersburg to Port Arthur. Political complications, the ever-increasing influence of Jewry, their pernicious cosmopolitanism and many other reasons can completely change the map of the globe and mutual relations between peoples. Chronically ill Türkiye may go bankrupt completely, and Instead of Constantinople there will be Constantinople, and Palestine will turn into Palestinian Governor-General. It may also happen that the Jews, having gradually taken over the entire the press into their own hands, having taken possession of all the capital, they will achieve equal rights and political equality, and then they will have no reason to go to Palestine if it At that time it will still belong to Turkey.

The future is dark, and it's certainly difficult to guess about it. We need to talk and think about in the present and try to solve the question: what is the nearest result that can be obtained from Zionism developing in breadth and depth?

It seems to us that the immediate result of preaching Zionism will be further aggravation of the Jewish question on the basis of national separatism. Until now For now, at least, we do not see the real fruits of the preaching of Zionism - the question of acquisition of land in Palestine and Africa remains in the same position, despite millions collected by the Jews. Neither the Turks nor the British are inclined to cede lands in Palestine and Uganda. But the preaching of Zionism nevertheless continues and has an impact an undoubted influence on the rise of national consciousness among the Jews, which they have manifests itself in a rather ugly form.

Chapter 6

The unsuccessful policy of the Zionists

Increased emigration of Jews to Palestine immediately after the pogroms 80s, and a relatively weak outflow of Jewish masses into the same Palestine under the influence of the preaching of Zionism indicates that Jews are more materialists than idealists, more subject to the impulse of fear for their interests than to considerations idealistic, more concerned with their present than thinking about uniting on on the basis of their nationality and their state structure.

It is hard to believe that the idea of Zionism is strong and has a future. Zionism is not the result of the consciousness of necessity that has accumulated in the Jewish people. national revival and territorial isolation, but is simple practical conclusion: it's hard for us to live among other peoples, and therefore we need to go somewhere. These were the narrow, everyday considerations that guided the pioneers. Zionism, and not at all the longing for the distant homeland of the forefathers, which has not awakened in the masses Jewish self-awareness and striving for national and state revival. Rich Jews and even simply well-off representatives of this The idea of Zionism speaks little to the tribe, touches them little, and does not call them to generous contributions to formation of a national fund. They were well off financially and although They realize that their rights are somewhat curtailed, but they are not much bothered by this, feeling the power of their money. A Jew with means lives well everywhere. Most wealthy Jews In Russia, their entire trading class, all the bankers and manufacturers, are all anti-Zionists. Why should they abandon their established fortunes and trade connections here and change their well-fed and a free life for the risky unknown, for the fantasy of those who are carried away youths, fanatical melameds and spiritual rabbis.

It would be a different matter if Zionism was generated by the ideal alone. the desire to unite, in the name of the past, for the purposes of national revival and establishment of an independent state, then every single Jew, imbued with the powerful impulse of a high ideal, they would join both spiritually and materially to the idea of the people, and the solution to this issue would be a matter of several years.

But, not being an ideological movement in its purest form, Zionism is stillborn child. Due to its false starting point (we're not doing well here - let's leave here) Zionism is doomed to die soon.

However, Zionism, while not giving the Jews Palestine, gave them something else, namely, raised the Jewish spirit awakened self-awareness in them, made them overly arrogant and strong. These are the results of Zionism's preaching that no one will deny.

It is remarkable that the intensified preaching of Zionism over the last three or four years was marked by unprecedented manifestations of Jewish activity in Russia. From the tribe anecdotally cautious Jews turned into bold rebels before our very eyes, bringing senseless protest and political propaganda everywhere. Jews They are politicking, Jews are leading demonstrations, organizing them in St. Petersburg and There are scandals all over Russia about the production of "Smugglers", Jews are being beaten patrols, police, shoot at governors, attempt to kill journalists, and Jewish women, seduced by the role of Judith, rush with a knife at prominent people representatives of the authorities. In a word, the Jews now raised their heads, which had been bowed for centuries, and want to prove to the world that they mean something... A pathetic and ridiculous attempt at violence restore your reputation!

Zionism as Zionism, as the idea of resettlement to Palestine is absurd, utopian, a beautiful idyll. Zionism as a means of awakening national consciousness - a fact, the reality of which we were convinced of at every step, starting with individual cases of Jews displaying enormous arrogance and undisguised hostility towards to the Christian population and government officials, and ending with stories like Gomel and many facts of Jewish rebellion, incitement and leadership in street demonstrations and underground agitation. If in this If the awakening of Jewish self-awareness is what it is, then it is better not to awakens.

In Galicia, where the preaching of Zionism among Jews has reached a peak in recent years of unprecedented proportions, the Poles were initially quite sympathetic to this movement, assuming that Zionism had as its ultimate goal the departure of Jews from Galicia and the formation of an independent Jewish kingdom in Palestine. But in

At present, the Poles have seen that the character of Zionism in Galicia is radically changed, since all the work of Zionist agitators is aimed at to awaken in the Jews national consciousness and national independence in the countries where they live. Recently, the mood of the Jews has changed dramatically, and This is evident from the fact that in many places in Galicia the Zionists are concluding electoral compromises with the socialists. In Galicia, there are rumors that the Russian-Ukrainian the party intends to form an alliance with the Zionists against the Poles. "This is where the "dog," as the Germans say. In view of this, the Polish Galician press raised the alarm and calls on the whole Polish society to vigorously fight against the new “political "Zionism."

Apparently, Zionists of all factions are pursuing the same goal - to awaken in Jews national consciousness and cause even greater isolation, otherwise in other words, to create a "state within a state." And from this point of view, Zionism is not so an innocent and harmless thing, as it may seem at first glance.

Less than a year ago, in the city of Lida in the Vilnius province, there was a congress of “Eastern” Zionists who formed a special faction that rejected all cultural aspirations in the European spirit and recognizing the propaganda of Zionism only within the limits Talmud. The task of this faction of "Eastern" Zionists is to counter Jewish culture and the widest dissemination of Talmudic teachings. How It turns out that the "Eastern" Zionists have many supporters among Russians Jews and are a serious obstacle to the work of the Zionists of other factions. And this the "Eastern" faction, based on the exclusive preaching of the Talmud, appears to be the most dangerous in the national sense, since its purpose is national, religious and political separatism.

Chapter 7

The Zionists' Revenge and the Thunder of War

Let us quote the words of the famous writer Mr. Menshikov: “The Jewish revenge of Russia means something: it means, first of all, the decline of our sovereign tribe, Great Russians, who, after a hundred years of possessing Jewry, were unable to render it harmless, to put into work that is useful for Russia. The fact that many indigenous Russian people caught up in everyday turmoil and serving it - even sadder proof of decline of our tribe. Like the ancient Novgorodians, instead of strengthening their statehood and culture, flirted with Poland, then with the Swedes, our Russians "Liberals" are flirting with foreigners, with Jews, with Finns, believing that they will be their salvation Russia. But betrayal of one's nationality, even feigned, does not lead to anything good. And as in The corrupt and cowardly Novgorod was replaced by a faithful and courageous one Moscow, so we must wait for Russian society to put forward a firm, loyal the people a party that will support the true interests of the Russian land. War - a great misfortune, but it may be the thunder that will wake up one of them tribes that created Russia and to whom Russia belongs. Our current political parties have become decrepit. Freedom of spirit - the secret of creativity - has abandoned them, their energy is wasted in friction rather than in useful work. Both conservatives and liberals are pulling in radicalism, into naked violence, and naked violence is cultural bankruptcy, impotence spirit. We really need a new public, but not of decay, but of the state Union. We need both liberals and conservatives, but they must be sedate and honest, respecting their people. Loudmouths of both parties, like Messrs. Gringmuth or Amphitheatrov, equally non-national, their role - provoking extreme elements - is equally is harmful to Russia. The emergence of a strong Great Russian party, it seems to me, would be a benefit for the foreigners themselves, for example, for the same Jews. Now both conservatives and Liberals only know how to irritate this impressionable tribe. Some don't allow no hopes, others are too unrealistic. Jews, like foreigners in general, need a practical device, in a strictly defined relationship to to the state. Now foreigners don't know what is actually required of them. They if extermination is decided, then complete independence. If the state had come forward Great Russian party, it would, first of all, raise the weight of the Russian name and the attraction to him. The powerful would have attracted the weak without dispute. Now there is a struggle gravitational forces, the disturbance of national orbits, fruitless and exhausting for everyone.

Why do Jews have less success in England, Germany, America? Because, that the main nationality there is high. Neither English, nor German, nor Americans do not doubt for a second their exclusive right to dominion on his own land. That is why the Englishman gives broad rights to the conquered relatives that he is not afraid of them; the moment he begins to fear them, he instantly deprives them of these rights and does so without hesitation. Therefore, foreigners in England The Jews shouted to the whole world about our barbarism, but they should remember the total expulsion of Jews from the same England, and for three and a half centuries not a single Jew had the right entry into England. How the English treated the Jews shows that the same The word "]e" means "Jew" and "rogue." The decisive expulsion of Jews in previous centuries freed England and other countries from the Jewish question. The whole burden of the latter passed to Poland, whose incompetent government brought all this upon itself infection. We inherited this issue from Poland, with almost the same inability solve it. Will the current war not move us from this dead point?

The good thing about war is that it puts lazy people to a severe test. Does the people guard the tabernacle of their spirit—courage? Is their soul healthy, is it clear? Are the people aware of their sovereign dignity, are they capable of defending themselves under the sun? There is Someone who is awake, guarding life. The world would stink of sores, the peoples would have rotted to the core, if the axe of the Eternal had not been in constant action, a shovel that winnows good from evil, life from death. War is a great test.

and for Russia, perhaps, it is necessary. We have accumulated too many elements decomposition, our state tribe has become too dissolute in its guard. Truly it is time, even under the threat of God's wrath, to come to a sober consciousness. In Russian a kingdom under a network of provinces and regions, surrounded by conquered, but still alien tribes, there is something forgotten, almost invisible, the Russian nation, a huge master people, only that awakening from the oblivion of serfdom. There is "great Russia", "holy Rus'" - not not only by name, but also in essence. Believe me, there is both greatness and holiness in this desecrated temple, it is not for nothing that such exalted nicknames have been preserved. The tribe, having created such plans in its mind, it cannot be small. It is tired in historical work, but fatigue is not death. Strength will return, they may, have already returned, and the “great” Russia will rise again as in its creative centuries, again will undertake a state feat, for the realization of his racial ideal. This the ideal is by no means hostile to the happiness of the peoples who have taken refuge under our roof.

Our people do not destroy anyone’s national rights, and do not trample nations, like the Anglo-Saxons.
Russia offers peace to foreigners, but not a feigned peace. Be one with us, Unite, be like us! But if we are needed only for internal enslavement, to seize our property and power, if you want your own kingdom to push inside ours, as it was with the fallen Poland, we must rise up against this with all the energy they can muster. Only Russia's enemies can to claim that Judaism, as it is, is not dangerous for our state. "From the Jews “Russia will perish,” said Dostoevsky, and it probably wasn’t easy for him to say this.
terrible prophecy.

I am not at all an enemy of the Jews, no matter how much the Amfiteatrovs slander me.
I have loved and love many Jews and deeply respect those Jews who, like Rubinstein, Antokolsky, Kuindzhi, Levitan and others trustingly gave their love and genius to Russia.
I would wish the same for all Jews as for all peoples, but not at the expense of Russia.
Never
I did not allow myself even a shadow of mockery and ridicule of the Jews, as, for example, Mr.
Amphiteatrov and his current comrades. Not hatred of Jews, but fear for Russia.
makes me say loudly what I say and it takes a lot of courage with our rights. The Jewish question is a huge historical fact for Russia as well.
terrible. The Jewish question - to put it briefly - is a painful liquidation one of the two invasions that Eastern Europe suffered 600 years ago.
The Tatars came to Russia from the East, and the Jews came to Poland from the West. The Asians settled on the main branches of the Slavs, but Russia coped with the military invasion, while Poland couldn't cope with the peaceful. The Tatars sat on our people, and they overthrew them.
The Jews penetrated into the Polish people, into its organic tissues, and it could not get rid of them.
get rid of. From time immemorial, torn from the land, from time immemorial crafts and trade, Judaism took over those functions that give economic power in the country. The Jews suppressed whether there was a national "third estate" in Poland, they wedged themselves between the aristocracy and the people and broke the moral union: hence the deep slavery of the “cattle”, ruled by Jews, and anarchy among the lords. Having destroyed the internal cohesion
The Jews destroyed Poland by weakening its vitality. We stand with Poland.
inherited her yoke. The Jews toiled over Poland for 400 years, and they are still toiling over Russia.
a hundred. But even in these hundred years, what an unheard-of predominance of them in trade, in industries, intelligent professions - everywhere where no line was laid for them. "Three hundred will pass years, and Russia, perhaps, will remind the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth on the eve of its partition." Here, to me

It seems that Dostoevsky wanted to say with the phrase quoted above. If in fact
If this is a prophecy, then we really need thunder to wake us up."

Chapter 8

Talmudic chemists and falsifiers

The Jews prove that the universal wisdom and all the discoveries of the new science, all This is an outpouring from one source of wisdom - the Talmud. The most important ancient science - Talmudic medicine serves all of humanity, since by God's providence all the Jewish nation is precisely spread everywhere among the rude humanity, so that to enlighten and heal the weak in spirit and body. Jews are all chemists, starting from pharmacists - to fasts for the extermination of (the enemies of God) goyim. In relation to so-Warsaw is the center of Talmudic scientific art, as called "New Palestine." According to Dr. N. M. Lavyagin, who summarized the results of the commission's work, especially the concentration of wine contributes to this trade in the hands of Jews, who - over the past decades - have been attracted to the wine the opportunity to obtain significant benefits with little capital investment.

The commission's investigation into the wine trade has uncovered a number of operations common in the cellar business of most Warsaw wine merchants and tending to directly deceive buyers and harm their health, of course, goyim, for Jews are forbidden to drink grape wine of common preparation. Besides blending wines that differ in origin and production method and Warsaw wine merchants sell Russian wines under the name of foreign wines.
Jewish "chemists" mix grape wine with raisin wine and sweeten it wines with potato molasses, sugar solutions, and underdried wine berries.
It is known that sweetening wine with molasses causes harmful substances to form in it.
compounds. These various antidotes free wine from excess acid.
mixing with chalk - they make artificial wines from cheap Bessarabian wines with the help of tincture of bitter almonds, sweet pods, bitter nuts, porcini mushrooms, calamus root, the fruit of the calamus plant, is used to color white wines with caramel, red ones - with blueberry juice, and to protect wines from spoilage they use salicylic acid acid. The Jews, rubbing their hands, happily treat the goyim to all sorts of harmful things, worthless and rotten and they force you to pay whatever price they want. The authorities Administrative authorities are powerless against Jews. Therefore, to all the complaints of Christians the authorities always remain eloquently silent when they are offended, and the Jews even more so continue their work with bitterness. In a word, Jews are always for the Christian local population as a scourge of God, and all such chemists proudly walk the streets in rich coats made of ferret fur, a fur beloved by all Jews. What saves the Jewish proletarian from starvation and extreme disappointment in his idle and depraved life among such conditions, from which, Apparently, one can go completely crazy? Firstly, his Talmudic law Saturdays, the conviction of one's own chosenness and a disdainful attitude towards Christians, among which Judaism considers itself the only holy people and its future ruler.

Holiness consists in the fulfillment of the smallest rules of Talmudic casuistry and gives support for the spirit of the Jewish proletarian. - “You know,” the Jew said to one of his goy satellites, - how much mutual evidence have we given of the location and goodwill during our long journey, where we treated each other friend as brothers. Know that whatever the outward signs of my friendship to to you, the hatred that I harbored in the depths of my heart did not diminish in the least.
However, in gratitude for your services, I want to warn you. Do not trust anyone.
to one Jew, whatever the love with which he will lull you, - here
"This is my advice to you."

1 See Mipeg, di R. RiIShre, and $. Tγiij, P.” IG syar. See Ogasy., [, EzP5 oў 1a 5i.

Chapter 9

A Jew about Jews

For the instruction and guidance of Jewish friends, Jewish writers often described their fellow tribesmen with the utmost objectivity. In "Omatapie Epsusloreie" (XXI p.
273) in the article “Li” the Jew Theodore Reinach gives the following characterization of the Jewish people.

“The soul of a Jew,” writes Reinach, “is the layers of his history and gives sharp evolutions in different countries of the world, thus proving the truth of the saying Metternich, that every country has the Jews it deserves. Qualities
The character and spirit of modern Jews are determined by: 1) the Bible (Torah and Prophets);
2) Talmudic education; 3) long-term oppression; 4) the exclusion of Jews from different positions and occupations over several centuries; 5) often sharply the transition from oppression to complete freedom, from poverty to wealth, from ignorance to spiritual freedom. There is not a single quality, not a single vice that could not be explain by these reasons, without taking into account racial characteristics." So writes Reinach, wishing to excuse the vices of the Jews by their historical upbringing, i.e., in other words, attributing these characteristic features not to themselves, but presenting them as the result of external causes. Historical documents, especially the Bible, prove, however, that the Jews have always been what they are and now that their features are based precisely on racial characteristics.

Let us follow further how the Jew Reinach outlines these features.

He attributes family to the first point of the Bible cited above. the virtues of the Jews, their charity, sobriety, respect for the laws (!), restraint from criminal violence (!!). In his Talmudic upbringing, according to him In my opinion, mnemonic and dialectical qualities are based on rare the ability to abstract and combine and the application of all these qualities not only in in a positive but also in a negative sense.

In the hijacked school of Talmudic casuistry, Reinach sees a source the intelligence of the Jews, their lively receptivity, their siii 4 - features, expressed in conversation, witticisms, anecdotes and characteristic style.

Persecution gave birth to in the Jews, on the one hand, that cosmopolitanism which is so successfully adapts to various living conditions, on the other hand - servility, going hand in hand with a lack of courage and honor, and cunning, weapons of the weak. But the slavish subordination of the Jews is perfectly compatible with greater a share of arrogance and pride. The removal of Jews from various positions and crafts spoiled their taste and destroyed their desire for such activities that require physical labor, such as farming and shipping. This led to The phenomenon that the Jews, who have produced so many writers over the last century, also arises. musicians and high-ranking government officials (???), cannot claim any credit for themselves one merit in the military field, in sculpture or art. But a long occupation Jews in money matters, their specialty, explains their hereditary the ability and inclination to business dealing and the desire to think that everything in the world corrupt.

Finally, Reinach admits, Jews often have those vices and funny and qualities that are characteristic of upstarts; they are characterized, for example, by vulgar behavior, putting oneself in the foreground, conceit, snobbery. In different In cities, Jewish society is divided into castes, revered according to their monetary value.

wealth; each of them looks with disdain on the poorer classes fellow tribesmen, without taking into account the real class difference, by all seeks high connections by force and tries to shine everywhere. Religious and intellectual emancipation was the cause of the shift in the center of gravity. Breaking the connection that connects the Jew with traditional Judaism, the Jew no longer finds in his conscience of the moral factor that restrains and guides him, he is quite gives himself over to his imagination and logic and is willful in his thoughts and actions. The End the last century has repeatedly testified to the consequences of such radicalism, or rather moral nihilism.

The picture that Reinach paints is approximately correct reality, excluding, however, the light in which non-Jews are the reason that the Jews became what they are known to the whole world. All the qualities that characterize the modern Jew are the peculiarities of his race and not are determined by external causes. Every Jew who has retained a stronger national feeling than Reinach admits to this.

Chapter 10

Jews in Poland

The woman played an outstanding and, unfortunately, sad role. "We (i.e. men) rule the world, and women rule us," it says. a Polish proverb that is quite true in relation to the past, and perhaps also the present Poles. Both in Russian-Polish and in Polish-Jewish relations, which have Poles of primary importance, women played a decisive role. Russian-The Polish dispute was aggravated by Queen Jadwiga, who married under the influence of the Catholic clergy on behalf of the Lithuanian prince Jacob (Jagaila), the consequence of which was the annexation of the western Russian regions to Poland, the introduction of them "with fire and sword" of the union and their centuries-long Polonization.

And in Polish-Jewish relations the decisive role belongs to the woman - Esterka (Esther), the favorite of the Polish King Casimir I; under her influence he discovered the doors of Poland and the lands that belonged to it at that time were thrown wide open to the Jews, and they poured in a thick wave into the borders of the then Polish state. Having met in the face Poles are a weak-willed and gullible people, the Jews have taken a liking to Poland and have created for themselves strong nests in it. Poland became the main refuge of Judaism in Europe. The Jews became intermediaries between the lords and the serfs and with all their might inflated the tension between they are different, following the rule: "Where two quarrel, the third will always earn." They strengthened the oppression of Russian and Polish serfs in the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth and, together with The Jesuits introduced moral decay into the Polish environment. Undermined by the Jews and Jesuit Poland decomposed and collapsed, leaving behind most of its Jews of Russia.

If many Polish writers have the courage to name one of the two the main culprits of the fall of Poland - the Jesuits, then such Polish writers who had the courage to point to another main culprit who played a role in the fall Poland played no less, if not a greater role than the Jesuits, namely the Jews,
I don't think so.

And Polish publicists and historians from the Jews, such as the now fashionable Polish professor of Lviv University Ashkenazi, "nod at Peter", i.e.
They attribute the fall of Poland to the “intrigues and treachery” of Russia: in Poland, they say, there lives
The serfs are not as bad off as some claim, the Polish upper class is at the end the independent existence of Poland, they say, was not at all as demoralized as they are describing it now, it’s just a pity that the Jews were “oppressed” in Poland, but with the spread With the spread of enlightenment under the Polish nobility, the position of the Jews was unconditional would have soon been improved, and Poland would then have prospered, but, alas, the Muscovites appeared and They carried out a rout - this is the template according to which Polish-Jewish historians write.

In the 19th century, especially in the last fifty years, Jews had a huge influence on Russian-Polish relations, and if these relations are still not what they used to be If there should be relations between two fraternal peoples, then the blame for this is to a greater extent falls on the Jews. They try in every way to preserve the unwanted remnants the isolation of Privislinya, nourish the unhealthy screaming Polish ψsi-Patriotism pushes Poles against Russians.

For a long time now, there has been an opinion in our society that the last Polish
The uprising was caused and supported by the Catholic clergy and gentry.
that they took the most prominent part in organizing this uprising

Jews, no one speaks. M. N. Katkov, who came forward with his articles on the uprising 1863 and, generally speaking, gave a true overview of the events of the time of the uprising, only in passing mentions in these articles the participation of Jews in the uprising, and explains this participation by the pressure of Polish terror. The "stiff-necked" one is not like that.
the Jewish people so that Polish terror could act on them: in 1863, as well as Now, it was not the Jews who acted on Polish orders, but the Poles on Jewish orders.
there were cases where the dispersed, often drunk, rebels mocked the “little Jews” and They even hanged some of them. The point is not in these cases that were presented for show by Jewish leaders when they needed to convince the Russians of their non-involvement in the uprising and the forced nature of their financial donations for the uprising, and in relation to the uprising of the Warsaw leaders Jewry.

Books from 1860-1864 of the Warsaw banking houses of Kroneberg, Epstein and others have not been published, as well as the correspondence of these houses of that time; meetings of the owners of these houses with each other and with the then chief rabbi Maisels did not make it onto the pages of history; access to the archives of the named bankers closed. However, it is safe to say that in Warsaw the rebel unrest began with Jewish money, which was one of the first impetuses
The Warsaw Jews gave birth to the uprising.

Jewish duplicity and Jewish dexterity are great: the Jew Shmul, by name one of the suburbs of Warsaw is named Shmulewizna, is considered by the Poles
"a great Polish patriot." There are many stories of his bravery, when Suvorov stormed Prague, but recently it turned out that this Shmul was not only "a Polish patriot," but also a spy for Suvorov. Of course, he tried to deceive both the other side. Of course, the Polish-Jewish figures of the last uprising
They also acted in two ways, and the uprising brought losses to both the Russians and the Poles, and the Jews...
After the uprising, they bought up the estates of landowners ruined by the uprising at a low price, opened banks, caused a "trade-industrial relationship" and thus strengthened the former took over the Poles. And in later times the Polish-Jewish Patriots continued to play a double game: as, for example, in the mid-80s all the "great Polish patriots" from among the Jews submitted their petitions to the commission that was in force at that time a note that was published at the time and which stated that the Poles an unreliable element in political terms, and that the cultural-creative force Privislinya are the Jews who created the cultural and economic prosperity of the region and teaching the Polish population, lazy and careless, to productive work.
At present, Warsaw bankers and shareholders also tell the Poles one thing, and Russians have a different idea: in Warsaw they shout about the development of Polish industry, about economic independence of the region, which constitutes a step towards political independence, and in St. Petersburg, when they ask for support, changes in tariffs, orders, They recommend themselves as representatives of Russian capital and Russian industry: Isn't Warsaw in Russia?

Chapter 11

Royal Charter

1589, June 7. Royal charter granted to the Jew Shaul Yudich for the title the king's servant (chamberlain) with the rights granted to this rank.

Zykgimont III, by the grace of God King of Poland, Grand Duke Lithuanian. We will inform with this leaflet of who needs it: and we Lord, having found out in our services the special zeal and dignity of the subject our Shaul Yudich, we accepted him for our hearing, and with this letter of ours they will accept, but if he knew our master's affection, then his person, like everyone else his goods and property from all sorts of zemstvo, castle and local, and other Vsheklya-of our subjects, as if they were a ringleader and were subject to the law, from their authority and judgment we took out and freed him, and with this leaf of ours we will take out and free him to his belly, so, and in front of which there would be a person, and in which there would be a person of land and district, to which Kolvek court and what kind of Kolvek speech, both great and small, bloody obotezh other everyone was called, - then he refused to settle there and did not deserve the right he has, and the lack of his speech is for that reason hamanov, and for his handshake and his lack of speech davana, and he himself will not suffer until luck comes; and for his not being in front of by such a court and law, or for failure to fulfill the instructions there is no guilt on him it must be laid down not to languish, and no one can go against it; even if it were who will I become a kolvek from our subjects and visiting people, who will I become, in what which was the case, then each of us should call him before the master, and he in all respects, everyone is responsible for the right to us, the ruler, and justice it will be. And about that, to the prince, lord, governors, castellans, marshals, elders, the ruler, the tivun, the zemstvo and city council officer and the courtier, and their deputy, and I will be a different local police officer, who will become it was necessary, we command, that the exchange merchant Shaul Yudich, our servant, should to everyone, the vodlug of this leaf of ours, to his belly of course they hid, otherwise it would not now, under our ruler's caress. And for this they gave him this message to that Shaul To Yudich, our servant, sit down with our sheet, with the signature of our ruler's hand and with our sealed. Written at Brest, in the year of God's birth, 589, This day of the month of June. - Matey Voina, clerk.

From the Lithuanian metrics (Volyn. Record book [GKHUP, l. 23), stored at Governing Senate, St. Petersburg. The title of the act states: Sheet to Shaul To Yudich, the Jew of the place of Brest, for that, and his royal mercy for his servant to
.

TREATISE P THE JEW KING OF POLAND

Chapter 1

Shaul Yudich Weil from Brest Lithuanian, successor of Stefan Batory

Joachim Lelewel in his work "Medieval Poland" says the following: "Once upon a time, in ancient times, the gentry, who were unable to come to an agreement regarding the choice of one of the contenders for the throne, unanimously agreed to take as a temporary king the traveler who would be the first to appear on road. Saul decided to go out on his road in a carriage in the morning and was invited to become temporarily king. This is where the Shoel-Boel, remembered by Jews everywhere, came from.
And the grandmother of our fellow countryman, the lawyer Lubliner, from the family of this Shaul, constantly she kept telling her grandson that in Semiatichsky there was a document written in gold letters and confirming beyond any doubt the royal title of their ancestor."

"The scholar Iolovich read in the manuscripts of the Oxford Library that once upon a time in In Italy, in Padua, there lived Rabbi Samuel-Juda, whose son, Saul, studied Paduan science, went to Poland; here, having married in Brest, Lithuania, he achieved enormous wealth thanks to extraordinary enterprise. It happened, that one of the Radziwills, while traveling in Italy, was suddenly left without money in Padua. In his difficulty he turned to Samuel Jude, who delivered to the prince a significant sum of money. In gratitude for this favor, Radziwill promised do a lot of good for the Jews, especially paying attention to Saul.

Returning to Poland, Radziwill actually invited Saul to his place and joined with him in a permanent relationship; and when during the interregnum after the death of Sigismund Augustus' magnates could not come to an agreement on the choice of a king, then
At Radziwill's suggestion, they chose his beloved Saul as president of the electoral meetings and "interrex", as if by the adoptive king, 1sish , on one night and handed him the crown acts, in which Saul included preferential terms for the Jews decrees, among other things, that the murder of a Jew should be punishable by death.
Because of this event, Saul and his descendants received the nickname [Mah], meaning "choice", "election". And Saul Val in Jewish books is titled magnate, prince,
"the king, the legislator of the people."

"England, which boasts of being a refuge for kings deprived of throne, has in London Denis Moses Samuel, Esq., a descendant of Saul Val and, of course, the firstborn, because he holds the crown in his hands. He knows that Saul Val accompanied Sigismund III to Krakow in 1587. Saul, his own magnate chain, bequeathed to the poor."

“Saul Val was undoubtedly very rich, since he built two churches in Brest large synagogues, two baths, several buildings for schools, a slaughterhouse and an orphanage house. Recently, during the destruction of the synagogue, its royal coat of arms was discovered, carved on marble, with the image of a lion putting on a crown, next to which an eagle sits. It is also known that the surname Val, which comes from Saul, had previously subsequently used the nickname Katzenellenbogen. Carmoli also claims that he knows the entire genealogy of the Valyas and the time of their appearance in Poland; he also claims that This surname is not Italian, but German, coming from Germany and that the whole legend about Saule owes her nickname to Saulya "Mah".

In the Lviv magazine “Izraeltyanyn”, in the article “Ka Šaš eg Kopio”, Gel'dbaum tries to shed light on the legend about Saul's personality from a historical point of view.
Valya.

“Comparing the various reports relating to this tradition, and most importantly image of the memoirs of Krzysztof Mikołaj Radziwiłł, known under the title
" hisйiḱ", Goldbaum comes to the conclusion that in the legendary
The story of Saul Vale has a reliable historical core. If the historical criticism, says the author, as far as she has turned her attention to this subject, denied any historical accuracy to the story of Saul's crown, she did so only because it seemed to her like a mockery of history

the fact that the poor little Jew managed to replace his caftan with a short one for at least one night Lev's porphyry. But what now seems ridiculous and implausible to us, could have been natural and possible at one time. The author then moves on to analysis of the details of the legend, proving the full possibility of Radziwill's acquaintance during his stay in Padua with Saul's father, the famous Rabbi Yehuda, the rabbi Paduansky, who provided serious assistance to Radziwill during his difficult financial circumstances. He also knew and appreciated this Rabbi Yehuda

Chancellor Jan Zamoyski, who also lived in Padua for a long time and even during his
The work "On the Roman Senate" was chosen as the rector of the local university.

The son of this Rabbi Yehuda, Saul, later lived in Poland and as a courtier
The Jew of Prince Radziwill inherited, on the one hand, the magnate's disposition towards his father, on the other hand, due to the peculiarities of his character, he himself gained attention and respect magnates. The hostile parties, excited and with weapons in hand, did not would have tolerated a native Pole on the throne for even a moment. In another country and at another time the appearance of a Jew on the throne would have been impossible. The Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth was distinguished at this time by such tolerance as we have never encountered anywhere even at the beginning of the current century. The Statute of Casimir the Great, according to which the murder of a Jew was first punishable by death, was still in force, and the diplomatic services of the Jews Kings Henry of Valois and Stephen Báthory took advantage of this upon their accession to the throne. One of a representative of the Poznan community named Simon Ginzburg sat in the royal Senate, and Queen Bona willingly had wise Jews at her court. Papal Legate Commendoni, surprised and indignant, describes the flourishing situation of Polish Jews, who freely engage in their primary activities in Poland, etc."

Goldbaum says that as election day drew to a close, the bitter the parties could not achieve a majority either in favor of the Swede or in favor of the Austrian, Prince Radziwill sent the wise Saul to try to persuade him to agree. to the most stubborn of opponents. And when Saul's calm figure appeared in the midst of a drunken and heated crowd, suddenly an idea flashed through her mind put the Radziwill factor at the head while the hostile mood will subside and the real king will be elected. Of course, Radziwill and Zamoyski, very those who were close to Saul's family had nothing against the project: the Zborovsky brothers

They could get angry and object, but what could they do against the majority.

So Saul of Brest, Lithuania, the son of a rabbi from Padua, became king for one night, the painted king, the king of shabzgas, as Stefan once put it Batory at the Sejm about his predecessors. On the evening of August 18, 1587, it began reign, and on the morning of the 19th it ended, to pass on the same day to the Swedish Prince Sigismund III. Meanwhile, the greatest surprise reigned in Israel.
and quiet joy, because the wanderings had already continued for one and a half thousand years and oppression. The crown of science was acquired by many of Ahasuerus' descendants, but now For the first time, the crown of Polish power rested on the head of one of them.

The happy descendants of Rabbi Saul carried away a living memory for centuries about his crowned ancestor. If these were sons, grandsons, great-grandsons, then thousands fathers hurried for miles to offer them the richest woman in Israel in marriage maiden. In many houses in England, Poland and Germany it is still preserved reverent memory of King Rabbi Saul. On this basis, the Jews have full the right to be considered Polish citizens and Poland as their homeland.

The official news about Saul Yudich is found in the third year of his reign.
Stefan Batory. In a universal addressed to all officials and to all to the people of Lithuania, May 17, 1578, King Stephen announces that he, having in mind benefits for the state treasury, as well as for its Lithuanian subjects, re-establishes salt production in the Grand Duchy of Lithuania and entrusts this matter to Saul Yudich, a Brest Jew. It was very important for Saul that the fact that, thanks to his role as administrator, one of the sources state revenues, he became known at court and at the same time confiscated in all cases under the jurisdiction of any local courts: he and all those in his service were in charge of the salt works for the entire period of their management subject to the judgment of the king alone.

At the same time, Saul was given the supervision of the innkeeper who was trading in imported salt.
the right to arrest it and in the event that the smuggled salt was confiscated in favor of treasury, half of which went to Saul.

For a short time Saul kept company with the Brest Jews and took charge of collecting old and new tolls (customs duties), levies, washed (smuggled) and other customs belongings, taken on farm by the voivode

By the Minsk lord Nikolai Sapieha throughout the Grand Duchy of Lithuania.

Saul and his company were in charge of customs duties for one and a half years.
years and contributed 28,000 kopecks of groszy to the state treasury, i.e., in our terms
If we give the cop 30 rubles in cash, we'll get 840,000 rubles.

Saul's company thus collected annually about a tenth of the state revenues, since, judging by the reports of the Lithuanian State Treasury for 1561-65, average annual revenue was equal to approximately 20,000 kopecks groszy.

Saul Val, entering into an agreement with Sapieha, together with his comrades accepted responsibility for losses, as well as the right to benefits in the third part customs revenues, therefore, already in 1587 Saul had capital of extremes of 100,000 rubles in our money, counting in Christian, but Jewish could be multiplied by 10. Because there were no control chambers then, such as, as in our time, the governors even had a poor understanding of mathematics, they were content with what they that the Jewish tax farmer presented. Otherwise, he presented it to his factor - also The Jew checked the amount and was content with that. What happy times those were.
Jews. Saul Yudich obtained various kinds of privileges and decrees in favor of the Jews.
Reev, - the entire trade guild was exclusively in Jewish hands, Jews were everywhere had the advantage and primacy in all monetary deals of the government and private.

The further content of the charter of King Sigismund III also convinces us of that Saul Yudich is just beginning his broader activities.

"To further encourage the usefulness of the State Treasury the activities of Saul Judic" the king leases him some income for 10 years, belonging to the Brest castle, i.e. the bridge tax with all the income to it,
"rowing fee" (i.e. for passage on the dam) and Kobilyansky bridge, flour mills, malt house (a facility for preparing malt) and crushing sale of vodka.

This “encouragement,” however, was not some kind of reward from the king for Saulya: he was obliged to contribute 1000 zlotys of rent annually to the treasury, i.e. about 15,000 rubles in today's currency. A much more important reward for services, granted by Saul Judic to King Sigismund III, was a grant to him in the following year, 1589, a charter for the title of royal servant. The motive for this the awards were the merits of Saul not as a tax farmer of state revenues, but some others?.. “We, the Sovereign, are convinced of the special zeal and abilities our subject Saul Yudich, accepted him into the number of our servants in order to he was convinced of Our Monarchic mercy towards him. Therefore, we excommunicate him for life.

himself and his real estate and movable property from being subject to the judgment of any none of the zemstvo, castle, city (town) courts, or any other court in general our subjects, of whatever rank and title. So, if he were summoned to court before any judge, in any district or the same land, in any court, for any case, big or small minor, criminal or any other, then he is not obliged to answer at his place sedentary life; his movable property cannot be seized, and he himself and his movable property cannot be forced to provide sureties, and he himself cannot may be arrested and imprisoned. Likewise, his failure to appear in court or failure to provide sureties cannot be grounds for imposing a penalty on him any kind of fine and has no legal force.

In the event of any complaint or claim being brought against him, Our subjects and foreigners of any rank and for any reason must appeal to Us ourselves, the Sovereign, and Saul will be obliged to appear before Us and answer at Our court and make the appropriate satisfaction according to the court.

By granting the said rights to Saul, the king hereby notifies:
princes, lords, voivodes, castellans, marshals, elders, tenants, tiuns, all officials of the zemstvo, city and court and their governors, all city officials and, in general, all persons of every class, all those who are supposed to know." Charter issued to Saul with the royal signature and the royal seal.

Saul Yudich, equipped with such a charter, quickly expands his operations and ranks first among the members of the oldest Jewish community of the Great Duchy of Lithuania. In 1592, he no longer limited himself to renting out the income of Brest-castle, but receives the right to collect duties at the Brest customs office for 5 years from by paying 600 kopecks groszy annually.

In 1593 he received the right to open a wax slaughterhouse in his own house.
The wax trade in Lithuania was for a long time part of the Grand Ducal regalia, which sometimes they only ceded to cities when they were granted Magdeburg rights, reserving, in any case, the right to levy a high export duty; thus,
For example, at the beginning of the 16th century, 10 groschen, or about, were collected for every 30 pounds of wax 10 rubles in our money. And from Polotsk alone, at the beginning of the 16th century, annually up to 11,000 poods of wax.

In the same year of 1593, Saul Yudich rendered a very important service to his community. Taking advantage of his title as a royal servant, he could, of course, find the most convenient time to properly present your petition. This time
It turned out to be a meeting of the General Sejm in Warsaw. The motive for the petition
At first glance, it seemed like a violation of the financial interests of Brest Jews:
The Brest elders, contrary to the inspectors' decree, took money from the Jews sohachki (the right to trade from tables) not for 50 zlotys, but much more, in addition to this, these the elders collected taxes from the Jews annually, not for the king, but for their own benefit court fees (retrial) more than 200 zlotys. Meanwhile, in the privileges of kings and the Grand Dukes of Lithuania Alexander and Sigismund I clearly defined, “what if any Jew considers himself wronged in any way by another a Jew, then the offended party must demand the culprit, in accordance with Jewish law custom, to the court of their community and seek their rights before this court."

This is how Saul Yudich presented the old position in a somewhat free presentation.
Vitov's charter to the Brest Jews from 1389. King Sigismund III completely leans towards this understanding of Vitovt's privilege. Therefore, by abolishing the incorrect-the collection of duties by elders for the right to trade from tables, he prohibits at the same time it's time for elders to collect any kind of "gossip" from the Jews on the basis that “having examined the privileges of the Jews and finding the appeal against them to be entirely appropriate, pursuing the goals and taking care of Our Monarchic duty, so that the rights and benefits whatever may have been granted from ancient times, were not violated... we order the governors and to the elders of Brest and we provide Our disposal with this charter, so that neither they themselves nor their governors interfere in any way in all those affairs that concern the Jews themselves; no matter what kind these matters may be."

In confirmation of this, the king ordered that “Saul Yudich, a Jew, be given places our Brest and all the Jews of that place Brest leaf, our privilege, with with the signature of Our Lord's hand, to which is also the seal of Our Grand Principality We ordered the Lithuanian to be brought in."

With this privilege the Jewish Brest community was given equal rights over their own co-religionists with Polish Jewish communities, where already on the basis of charters Sigismund Augustus prohibited appeals from a Jewish court to a non-Jewish one.
Of course. Since the Jews of all the big cities were exclusively royal subjects, and the highest court for them was different from the noble one, then the definitions of the kind just mentioned had full force without any further definition from the Sejm.

Thus, Saul Yudich was able to fully put forward his Jewish society and to rise above the privileged Christian society. He managed to carry out such the government's view on the competence of the Jewish court, which, according to the requirements in the Polish times of that time, it was possible and easy to carry out, which, to tell the truth, In our times, the Yudich Jews always succeed in their affairs. They jokingly say: “Through "The law is not to be crossed or trampled upon! Out of respect, one must go around it." So That's what they do: they always go around any law that's not in favor of the Jews. Saul Yudich made the Jews in Poland completely independent, which remained the case for the Jews in inheritance in Poland to the present day. Jews in the Vistula region can to be considered even happier than under Judic Saul - the Jews in Poland are now magnates, landowners, they travel in the same conditions as Polish voivodes did in the old days. Jews In the Suwalki province alone, they bought up to 250 estates, but they didn’t buy as many as usually bought, at a certain price and cost, they bought everything with public auction, without competition, with the participation of the kahal "meropia and khazak". These The public auction itself was prepared in a manner that was unnoticeable to the owner of the estate. A Jew kept a pact on his estate, for example, and lent money to the landowner little by little, and then he calculated the interest on the capital, and finally put it up for sale - then after him The estate remained. The Jew cut down the forest, sold it, and floated it to Prussia, earning his money, and the estate remained in vain. However, the Jews have hundreds of ways in which almost estates are transferred into Jewish hands for free. A small part of the estates still remains in The Vistula region is in the hands of landowners, they show off only under anonymity, in essence Jews can be considered the owners. All these estates are ruined, because the Jews are not at all they don't do any farming, they rent out the land to the peasants, and they themselves live, - engaged in various business ventures, they travel with liveried coachmen and footmen, calling themselves "Miiғ 4271471". Meanwhile, according to previous statistics, it was considered peasants who left the working youth for America, 200,000 people from landlessness, and the estates fall into Jewish hands, the land is mostly empty, which could be provided to the peasants for redemption in deferments and produce from these disappearing estates colonies for the local and Russian population.

Chapter 2

Zionists and their behavior

And Russia is still dear to us. It's in vain that the Jews and their henchmen have been years they have been disseminating their knowledge among the people, in the ranks of the troops, within the walls of educational institutions anti-state, cosmopolitan teachings. In peacetime, idle, insufficiently prepared minds could listen to these corrupting exercises. But thunder struck. The horizon was stained with the red glow of war. The Motherland calls their sons on the battlefield, on the field of honor. And all hearts, more sensitive to the truth than the weak human mind responded in unison; all strata, all ages of Russian the people forgot their theoretical differences, united and continue to unite, no longer accessible to base impulses, nor to the corrupting teachings instilled by enemies Fatherland. Yes, it is clear that the Russian people still cherish the Great, Holy Rus', and not to shake this union between the People and its State of the yellow race, warmed up as snake, on the chest of the Heroic People, under the shadow of the Great Power. Listening to the voice of the People, responding from the noisy capitals to the most remote outskirts of the menacing call of war, one involuntarily recalls the wonderful poem of Count Alexei Tolstoy:

A heavy bomb crashed into the bell, which was peacefully dozing.
fragments of it flew around her; He shuddered, and thick, powerful sounds came to the people
They flowed into the distance, indignant, humming and calling for battle.

Zionism presented the Jews with the dream of their own land, their own state, and thus indescribably raised the national consciousness of the Jews. Another ten or fifteen years there was no Jewish nation back then, now it exists, it exists because it feels like it does and declares it openly. There is absolutely nothing reprehensible in this, of course: a Jew has the same right to be a Jew as a Russian has to be a Russian. The trouble is that, like any Jewish nationalism is, first and foremost, hostility towards one's neighbors. A sharply placed "I" there is an enemy "not me." And since four-fifths of Jewry are immersed in the body of the Russian states, then their “I” becomes destructive for Russia. Our people, who politically lives a more real life than the intelligentsia, I have long felt Jewish danger. Being helpless, no longer facing any kind of support from the state legitimate defense, the people fight against Jewry with the same terrible means as with some other troubles, horse theft, for example. Jewish pogroms are Our Russian lynching, mob justice, is just as vile here as in America. The "pogroms" naturally attracted the government's attention to Jewry. Jewish nationalism was met with a stronger defense of the Pale of Settlement, this an old dam, through the cracks of which whole streams of the Jewish tribe flow. How Russian society is not inert, it has begun to take a closer look at the newcomers, taking into their own hands trade, industry, land, and the liberal professions. It was necessary to limit the influx of Jews into educational institutions, into the judicial and medical fields. naya, zemstvo, etc. The rights of Jews to settle in villages were limited. Propaganda of Zionism, collection of money for the national fund, etc. is prohibited. With the greatest notes regarding the rights of American and German Jews were energetically rejected to come to Russia, just like the famous petition last summer. All this irritated Jewish nationalists to an incredible degree and caused revolutionary unrest in the Western Region. Of those arrested for political unrest in this region, 90% Jews. The Kishinev pogrom was the straw that broke the camel's back in the Jewish wrath. According to the official report, the pogrom itself was caused by a general rise of Jewish irritation in recent years. As it turned out from the Gomel anti-pogrom, from the speech local governor and testimony from other authorities, the Jews have long been on the defensive they went on the offensive, they armed themselves with revolvers, brass knuckles, etc., they held themselves so provocative that they seem to be asking for repression. If you If you read foreign publications, you know to what extent the Jews went crazy in their curses on Russia for the Kishinev pogrom. Is it any wonder that the most extreme, the most impressionable part of Jewry is the Jewish journalists, in whose hands almost the entire Western press, is it any wonder that they declared war on Russian statehood? to life, and to death? Honest Jews don't hide it at all. They openly proclaim that the current order of things in Russia is intolerable for Jewry and must be destroyed, either by revolution or military defeat. What is here? surprising, and on the contrary, isn't it quite natural? Is there really anything beyond conceal the truth from Russian readers, say “no” when you should say “yes”?

Why should Jewish nationalists love Russia? Of course, there's no reason for it. For some unfortunate Mr. Syrkin, the publisher of Voskhod, still has to renounce his hostility towards Russia makes sense, but isn't it shameless on the part of a Russian publicist like Mr. Amfiteatrov?

Since the outbreak of hostilities in the Far East in Vilnius, according to According to the Vilenskie Vedomosti newspaper, there is an increased exodus of Jews abroad who are members of army reserve. On average, 10 to 15 or more passports are issued daily; so 3 and 4
On February 17 foreign passports were issued, on the 5th - 16. Meanwhile, before the beginning
During the war, the number of foreign passports issued to army reserve officers fluctuated monthly, ranging from 5 to 10.

And just recently one of the capital's newspapers with such aplomb pointed out the "complete readiness to serve the Fatherland."

Which Fatherland was not mentioned. Now the question is resolved, and the sympathies of the "friends" Russia" are already so clear, as the investigation into the issue gave little reason for doubt another patriotic feat of the "friends" - in terms of supplying the Japanese army horses and attempts to cause alarm among depositors of state treasuries.

Chapter 3

Freemasons and Zionists

"Glte Rago]e", February 24, 1904

“It took Mr. Proshu a year of effort and patience to get the discussion going chamber of his request for Freemasonry, but thanks to current events the appointed
It seems that the discussion of this issue will be postponed until Friday.

However, whatever the talent and energy of the handsome Parisian deputy, there is no doubt that he will only be able to lightly touch on the issue mentioned.
Is it possible to expect a serious discussion of Freemasonry under a ministry that is member-which are nothing more than delegates of the lodge "Stapa Opep!", who are in power, and in the chamber, chaired by Brisson, where half of the deputies belong to the same organizations?

Fortunately, what cannot be done in Parliament can be implemented in front of the country.

Among the enlightened people there are still individuals accessible to the noble impulses. Mr. Copen-Albanselli belongs to them. Thanks to him, the question of Freemasonry
placed on the proper ground. Enough for us with the fables about Paladism, about triangles, tragicomic scenes with the appearance of a horned devil, accompanied a crude hoax by which honest Catholics naively allowed themselves to be deceived.

From now on the public knows that Freemasonry is nothing but artificial Judaism.

Jules Lemaître, with the courage of a truly enlightened man, discovered the disease place in the article placed in "h is".

He writes about the Jewish origin of Freemasonry and the fact that it is fast its spread on the European continent dates back to the beginning of the eighteenth century century, must be attributed to the numerous Jewish colonies scattered throughout Europe and those who prepared the ground for it.

But there is no doubt that the Masonic calendar, the content of the Masonic liturgies (history of Hiram), the completely earthly internationalism and messianism of Freemasonry
- purely Jewish, and that it is almost openly in complete subordination to the Jewish race and its power.

From this point of view, one could write entire volumes about Freemasonry, but also a few lines will be enough to prove his Jewishness origin.

This Jewish origin is obvious; it is striking, and in this case
Jews cannot be accused of excessive hypocrisy and secrecy.

Indeed, never has a more obvious goal been covered by a more transparent one.
allegory. It would have taken all the naivety of the Aryans not to understand that by calling them to unite for the destruction of the old order and the restoration of the Temple of Solomon, their
They only called for assistance in ensuring the triumph of Israel.

Open any Masonic ritual and you will see that everything in it speaks of Judea.
"sh", one of the highest degrees, means "holy" in Hebrew. Seven-pointed a candelabra, a union tree, a table made of acacia wood - everything is here for the symbolic restoration of the temple. The Masonic year corresponds approximately to the Jewish year, and The Masonic calendar is obviously a copy of the Jewish calendar.

Masonic months are the same as Jewish months: Adog, Weadog, №iss, J, 17, Taptotsi, AB, Elosh, T1zsvi, Keseshuap, Ki51eu, You, Shebaï.

It is enough to open "_Appųalge 4ez doaige obeyiepses Napsa1$ez aués erhetegeyes" sis"  -, s *** ,
"Tetrs", born in the month "Tebe" (January 1834); E Cazeau, senator, born 11 number of the month "Sh"; E Jules Clarety, director of " 1" was born on the 3rd th, month "Kl$eu".

The famous phrase, ridiculed by Andrie, which the initiated exchange among themselves - "Acacia is known to me" - also refers to the most distant Jewish traditions. For Freemasons, acacia represents a symbolic golden branch.
modern initiation into the secret, the penetration of which is inseparable from belonging to Freemasonry.

According to the Holy Scriptures, this tree is often referred to by the name
"" (in the plural "Shiï") was considered sacred by the ancient Jews:
At the command of Moses, the tabernacle, the ark and other religious utensils were made from this tree. The Prophet Isaiah, in turn, advised the Jews upon their return from captivity, to plant cedars and acacias in the desert (EV yt, sittim).

Look at the engravings depicting the ancient ritual of the highest degrees: "Ges richs sis sŕs 4ez Val otade$ e I Mazoppepe 4, ots [e uga1 Kose-Oto!x"; you you will see all the symbols of the Old Testament. There you will find Moses and Elijah coming out of a fiery cloud, and the caption: "Return freedom to the prisoners." The slogans are the words "Judah" and "Benjamin." Here you will also find Adonai, and the Pool of Siloam, and Zerubbabel, also asking that freedom be returned to the captives and that they
It was allowed to go and rebuild the Temple of Solomon.

Take a look at the ceremony of admission to the order and you will feel like you are found ourselves in Jerusalem. There was only talk about Solomon's temple, about the king Tyre, about the famous Hiram or Adomiram, descended from Cain, about the journey of the Queen of Sheba, called Balkis (Ba[K1$) by the Freemasons, and about her favor to Hiram, which was the reason for the murder of the latter, which is still mourned by all lodges. However, even without this collective symbolism
It is not difficult to guess that Freemasonry is nothing other than the second synagogue, or, as I already
He said that it is one of the forms of existence of Judaism.

There was a time when this could still be doubted, as Jules notes
Lemaitre in his article:

“Our glorious grandfathers, who were Freemasons under Charles X and under Louis-Philippe, served this sect only as convenient screens to cover its secret plans. These trusting and honest people were even allowed to preserve them traditional beliefs. They were only concerned with maintaining something among them.

something like an innocent liberalism that contributed, at least, to the development external principles of Freemasonry."

In those distant times that Jules Lemaitre speaks of, the Freemasons became out of love for freedom, out of a desire to participate in a conversation, to prepare the fall of tyrants and the establishment of a republic which, no one doubted, was supposed to revive the golden age on earth.

The Freemason, meanwhile, was filled with magnanimous illusions. He believed in progress, justice, brotherhood of nations; his mind was filled with fantasies, expressed in sonorous and high-flown phrases; he was a deep idealist, sometimes religious, always a patriot.

Maurice Donnet, in his "Queue des Gégazettes," gives us a rather successful image this revived type in the person of Michel Obier, the old "4etos-50s", who erected barricades, ready to take it up again if necessary, but naively admit-that the sight of a flag fluttering at the head of a passing regiment always evokes there is excitement in him.

Nowadays, this worthy elder would be called a fossil rarity.

Nowadays the flag is greeted with whistles, jeers and sounds
"Internationale"; they say it's time to destroy it and bury it in the sewage barracks. This subordination of Freemasonry to Judaism is expressed daily, at every step, in all political acts.

The union with Russia could have been concluded ten years ago if Freemasonry in conjunction with the Jews stubbornly did not oppose this.

Although popular feeling prevailed in this case, nevertheless the lodges continued their secret struggle. Rapprochement with England and Italy, the government's behavior, majority of the parliament, the press of the Bloc (i]) regarding Russia, the upcoming Loubet's journey to Rome - everything indicates that the lodges succeeded in achieving desired result.

The war is a pretext to renounce the alliance with Russia; Germany, in turn, turn, will take advantage of this, and it is very likely that, having E Andre at the head of the army, and at the head of the fleet of E Pelletan, we risk being subjected to secondary dismemberment, perhaps more sensitive than in 1970.

What a disaster! This is only the path to the founding of the United States of Europe, or a world republic that will be the modern embodiment of the ancient Jewish messianism. In this world republic, where nations and fatherland will be abolished, the Jew, the only creature in the world that can live without a fatherland, will be naturally a master by virtue of his cosmopolitanism. Then he will show himself to be kind and generous towards his faithful slave, the Freemason.

Without a doubt, it will be something beautiful, this spacious world, this radiance nations that constitute only one great human republic under the supreme leadership of Israel. Only in these times, predicted by the Judeo-Masonic prophecies, France will no longer exist; and we are backward people, people
"Old school, we still have the weakness to value France."

DEPARTMENT 5. HISTORICAL

TREATISE I RITUAL-SECTANTIC

Chapter 1

Privilege of King Stefan Batory

We borrow all these extracts from the authoritative Jewish magazine “Voskhod” for 1899 under the title "Ancient Remedy" and we cite all the cases verbatim, except Jewish philosophical commentaries.

In 1605, on July 20, we meet with the royal decision on the accusation Jews in ritual murder. Just as the Tribunal ignored the papal bulls and royal privileges, as well as the king himself and his advisers seem to forget not only about the papal bulls, but also about their own privileges granted or confirmed by him to the Jews.

It is known that Stefan Batory on July 5, 1576, issued a decree regarding the accusation
The Gostyn Jews were given the following privilege in the murder of a Christian baby:
“In view of the fact,” says the king, “that extraordinary strange rumors about the murder of Christian babies by Jews, and in view of now the kidnapping and murder of a certain child by Jews that took place in the Gostyń land nobleman Studzynski, and not only the opinions expressed against the Jews were suspicion, but we are directly charged with committing this crime, - we considered it necessary to carefully consider the present case, especially since accusations against Jews of stealing and killing Christian babies and of acquiring The Holy Mysteries for their blasphemous desecration have been around for a long time and, as we have been informed by some persons, accusations of this kind, moving among the mob, have been the cause of many unfortunate events (1gaze az). Therefore, when the above-mentioned nobles came forward with an accusation against the Jews of murder and presented the corpse of the murdered baby itself, then we carried out a thorough examination of all this affairs. So, when we, together with the members of our court of justice and in the presence of the accused Jews reviewed the documents presented by the parties and were heard testimony of witnesses, it turned out that the Jews were not only not guilty of committing this crime, but there is not even any solid evidence against them suspicions. In view of this, even the nobles themselves, convinced that they were mistaken and that There is not the slightest evidence against the Jews that they committed this crime, left without waiting for our royal decision! (They left because they were convinced of bribery of all members and witnesses by the Jews. The Jews, having fully proven their innocence in the crime brought against them, they most earnestly asked us in view of the fact that that rumors are spread about them, that they allegedly consume Christian blood, kidnap and They kill Christian babies and are very persistent in finding cases, to acquire the Holy Gifts, and, having bought them from Christians, they extract from the Gifts human blood, and this kind of slander causes Jews not only various difficulties, but many Jews were tortured and even died because of these rumors a shameful death (games top), contrary to judicial decisions and privileges our predecessors, presenting these privileges, the Jews asked us to find some-or a means to put an end to this kind of slander and the insults and troubles they cause the Jews. Inclined to ask bam and wanting to stop the possibility of spreading this kind of slander, leading very often to the dismay and loss of life of Jews, we give the decree with the knowledge and the consent of our senators, so that no one within the borders of our state will henceforth dared, contrary to the laws, to accuse Jews before any judge or trial for the kidnapping and murder of Christian babies and the purchase of the Holy Gifts, or spread such rumors about Jews, since both are alien to Jews, and they have sufficiently proven that these charges against them are false, and that they, Jews do not consume blood and do not receive the Holy Gifts. Therefore, if anyone decided to violate this command of ours and thereby cause confusion, he, all the same, to whatever rank he may hold, he will be severely punished, namely: whoever will spreading the above-mentioned rumors about Jews, he will be punished as a slanderer; whoever will come forward against the Jews with an accusation before the Starostin court (and the accusations will not be proves), he will be subject to punishment according to the principle of talion, i.e. will be subjected "death penalty".

1 Lithuanian Metrica, Book of Public Affairs No. 120, p. 132.

On April 11, 1588, in Krakow, Sigismund III confirmed all privileges Polish Jews granted by his predecessors. These privileges included were above the older ones, i.e. Casimir, Sigismund-Augustus, and just now the privilege of Stefan Batory given; but King Sigismund III subtly distinguished general confirmation of rights from a special one, so he considered it possible for himself treat the accusations against Jews in a completely different way than his predecessors.
In 1605, when an accusation arose in Sandomierz against Jews for the murder of a Christian baby, then this matter was given the most energetic movement.

Chapter 2

The murder of infant Martin Kuchka

“Recently,” says King Sigismund III, “it happened in our city of Sandomierz the most terrible crime. A certain Martin Kuček, a boy of about ten years old, a poor student, living on alms, died suddenly in a miserable way. Due to the fact that he, having entered in the evening to the house of one of the Jews, he never left this house again and has not been found to this day, we entrusted the noble Jerome Gastovsky from Letnitsa, the governor of Poznan, who is the mayor of the city of Sandomierz, to arrest the Jews Lazar and Moses, who were suspected of murdering the said infant, and keep them until a preliminary investigation has been carried out. Having received information about the crime, we sent investigators known to us to the city of Sandomierz and instructed them that, having studied all the circumstances of the case and having heard the witnesses, would present us with the documents of the investigative proceedings. Having made sure that the additional consequence is completely identical to the one initially produced, We have ordered, without wishing to act too hastily, that this matter be re-investigated the case of the same governor of Poznan together with the governor of Sandomierz, a nobleman Georgy Mnishek from Bolshaya Kunchitsa and the Sandomierz magistrate.

Our authorized representatives, having once again carried out a thorough investigation this case, presented it to us for resolution. Meanwhile, the brother of the missing the boy in question drowned in an unknown manner; the principal of the school where the boy studied was severely beaten, and some of Jews fled. Taking into account therefore that this matter loses its private character and becomes public, in which the prosecution of the guilty belongs to one alone state power, we ordered that those arrested be tortured, without regard attention to the absence of a private prosecution in this case, so that such the crimes did not go unpunished, and they ordered further action the trial against the arrested Jews. In view of the fact that the witnesses The evidence established that the missing boy entered the house of the Jew Lazarus and never returned from there again, also in view of the fact that there is testimony from people, who heard from the said house such cries of the missing boy, which only a person who is about to be deprived of life makes such a sound (ŕi $ ï 1 sss), in addition, in view of the fact that the missing person is still alive the child was not found and there was no news of him, and the Jews were offered to search for the child in all the places they can, in view of, finally, that there are witnesses who saw a murdered man in the yard at the same time the aforementioned house, which was immediately announced to everyone, and when this news the noise and riot (ќӌiќ) reached the attention of the magistrate, the family of the murdered, excited by the shouts of the neighbors, I wanted to enter this house and conduct a search in it, but not was allowed to search by the Jews. And since the Jews recklessly reject the data, obtained by the last investigation, and also in view of the fact that they refused to open the room that aroused suspicions (which could most likely justify them), and since two of the arrested Jews, one a servant and the other a member of the kahal (s), against who had previously been charged with the same crime, fled and by their flight they proved that they were to blame for what was revealed from the last investigations, - in view of all the above, we, the king, have come to the conclusion that there are sufficiently well-founded suspicions to proceed to more thorough investigation of the truth by means of torture. In view of this, returning everything the matter is returned to the authorities, i.e. the governor's office, the elder's office and Magdeburg presence of the city of Sandomierz, we command to annex it to the existing commission of our secretaries: the Honorable Achaius GroKhovsky and noble Kaspar Mydalowski, and we determine that the above-mentioned presences, together with our deputies, made every effort efforts and tried by all ordinary means to discover the truth; if they do not if this can be achieved by ordinary procedural means, then they are allowed to subject accused Jews to torture, according to the provisions of the law, provided, however, that torture does not cause any injury or significant harm to the Jews bodily harm. And if the said commission, on the basis of torture testimony finds the accused Jews guilty of committing murder, in such a In this case, she must assign them a fitting punishment, according to the provisions of the law. If the commission does not find sufficient evidence to find the Jews guilty, in that case, she must again submit this whole matter to us for consideration, not releasing Jews from prison, until our decision on this matter." In that In the same year, a decision was made in the Lublin Tribunal, the Jews confessed and were "sentenced to death."

Chapter 3

The trial of the desecration of the host

On November 24, 1605, the following court decision of the king took place in Krakow Sigismund III in the case of the desecration of the host, stolen and sold to Bochnia to the Jew Jacob by the Poles Matvey Mazur and Matvey Dudka:

“In view of the fact that the elders of the Bochnia community did not submit to the appointed they gave a term to both the accused Jacob and his accomplices: Franček and Itzka Vranka, and in the presence of representatives from the city of Bochnia, the attorney of the Bochnia Jewish community stated that the accused Jews had fled to Turkey, and the person sent after them a man was killed in Wallachia, which was confirmed by private letters from Wallachians customs tax collectors, the king sentences all Bochno Jews living as in the city itself, as well as in its environs, to expulsion. Those expelled are ordered to within 12 weeks, move out of Bochnia and choose a new place of residence, where they wish, under the fear that in case of disobedience the confiscation of all their property. At the same time, it is prohibited for future times both for the Jews themselves and and their servants are also allowed not only to acquire real estate in Bohnia, but also live both in the city itself and in the estates of the royal, princely, etc. distance of 2 miles from Bochnia, under penalty of confiscation of property and penalties at the discretion of the king." Upon the accession of the new king, Vladislav GU, the Jews took care of the immediate receipt of the general at the coronation sejm of 1633 confirmation of all the privileges of the previous kings, including in this confirmation of a whole series of special privileges and, among other things, privileges in protecting Jews from the accusation of murdering Christian babies and desecrating Eucharist.

1 Acts of the Vilnius Archaeographic Commission. Vol. G. No. 512, p. 220.

2 That is, the Holy Gifts.

Chapter 4

King Vladislav TU confirms the privilege for Jews

On March 16, 1633, in Krakow, at the coronation Sejm, King Vladislav GU granted all Polish Jews a general confirmation of all their privileges predecessors, placing the privilege among other special privileges of the following content: “We determine that the magistrates, in the event of accusations against Jews, a serious criminal offense or inflicting torture on the Holy Gifts (Jews, Having obtained the Holy Gifts, they committed blasphemy and flogged them with rods), or in the kidnapping of infants and the shedding of Christian blood, or any other crime not would dare to assume the right to judge the accused on these matters, but they would hand the criminal over to the local elder, and in his absence to the city elder presence for detention; the local headman, or his deputy, is obliged to order in exactly the same manner the arrest of the accused Jew and then, not wasting time, together with the voivode's presence, as well as our commissioner or the secretary, who will be specially appointed for this purpose, will be obliged to consider the case and impose this or that punishment on both the Christian and the Jew, according to their crimes. If the crime is committed within the magistrate's district, in which case the arrest of the Accused, both Christians and Jews, must the magistrate will take care of it and then immediately present the arrested persons to the local elder or the city presence, without allowing oneself to make judgments accusations against Jews. The accused are granted the right to bring a petition from the elder's court appeals to our own royal court. In all civil cases, and also for minor offenses Jews are subject, according to their privileges, the ancient customary court of governors and their governors.

By making this known to everyone, the king warns that not those who obey this order will not only lose the royal favor, but also, in addition, they will be punished for disobedience with fines as established orders of the king's predecessors, as well as new ones, the size of which is the king will determine at its own discretion."

1 Crown Metrics, Stationery Book No. 27, p. 227, the following is cited
In the text, the privilege is taken from the confirmation letter of King Stanislav Augustus to the Krakow Jews, June 14, 1765.

Without limiting ourselves, therefore, to confirming the ancient position that, that Jews have the right of appeal to the Court Assessor's Court in all important matters the court, which, under the chairmanship of the king, alone has the right to decide on in all these matters finally, King Vladislav [further decrees that for warnings of pogroms, which Jews are often subjected to in cities and royal towns, and the Jews themselves suffer beatings and violence, their synagogues and homes are destroyed, movable property is plundered, this privilege is prescribed to the magistrates, as well as to each citizen individually, whenever the Jews turn to them with a request for help, or they themselves will hear the cries of the Jews for help, appear under fear of the punishments and fines specified in the privileges for Jews previous kings, to the scene of the incident and to protect the Jews, and the culprits disorderly persons shall be arrested and presented to the elder for punishment, in accordance with the extent of their guilt.

Taking into account, further, that Jews often have to deal with various public places, and there is a need for representation Jewish privileges, however, the originals of these privileges may not always be received in a timely manner, when they are precisely needed for the matter, the king decrees, that official copies of these privileges received by Jews from any presence place, have both before the court of the king himself, and in every other in the presence place, the same force and significance as genuine charters."

Sleskovsky says the following about this: “Shameless Jews, defending themselves against charges of murdering a child, they presented a false bull to the court, which they called papal, and thereby inflicted a cruel insult on the holy father, because there has never been a pope who could give a certificate to thieves in that they do not steal, and for murderers - that they do not kill. Regarding the meaning bulla presented to the Jews, and we can say the same thing that we would have said in that case, when some famous robber, caught in the act of committing a crime, would present the royal privilege as proof of his innocence or a papal bull, which would say that the robber who presents this privilege, it is allowed to steal and rob anyone he wants, it is allowed he also has the right to kill and torture anyone he wants, so no one has right to seize this robber and punish him. In view of the fact that the Jews, representing such a privilege, they raise vile slander against the Pope, they must be punished according to extremes, as they punish those who prepare to deceive their neighbors and damage to the state false privileges, documents and bulls, etc. And false the bull must be immediately taken from them and burned along with all those who it was kept in safekeeping; since if the Jews possess such documents, it is only because they fabricated them with the help of their well-wishers, patrons and intercessors, officials from among the Judeo-Christians. Is it possible for this to happen?

It would be surprising if they shoved in entire statutes from the Talmud and filed them away in some unknown way.
"a trick in the Crown Statute."

Chapter 5

The case of the forcible release of blood to the monk Paul in Lublin by Jews

A little over three years have passed since King Vladislav granted the GU confirmation letter to all Polish Jews, and again in 1636, on August 7, the prosecutor of the Crown Tribunal, sitting in Lublin, delivers the indictment against the Jews "Judas, Jeremiah and Samuel, the butchers of the Lublin community; Victor Moshkovich, Levek Solomonovich, Isaak, Avraham Isaakovich and Sloma; rabbis: Levek Iozvovich, Lazar Kalinovich, Samuil, Mendel, Moshki Izrailev, Kopefor Samsonovich, Alexander Materialist, Levek Markovich, Samson Aleksandrovich, Iovel Zlotnik, Irsh Moizeshovich, Iozue the doctor, Isaac Kontorki, Jakub Jankosz, Abraham Moshka, Yushka Kulyavy, Joachim Nochan, Meer Shmukler; elders: Abraham Isaac and Borukh, bedells, or, simply, schoolchildren, and against the entire community of Lublin Jews, against everyone in general and against each one in the characteristics of the Lublin Jew as the real mental culprits and conniver: the Jew Mark, a surgeon (who performs circumcision on newborns), and John Smith, a German, a Lutheran, a physician, as he himself, at least, claims, not having a settled place, but wandering from one city to another, and against the two Jews: Leveca, the servant of the Jew Mark, and Moshka, the servant of this Lutheran, in the commission

"a terrible crime."

What was this “sinister, tragic, unheard of”, as it is expressed Decree, crime?

"Jewish doctors, rabbis, elders and schoolchildren as sworn enemies Christians, and especially monks, who were freed only a few weeks ago by means of an oath of absolution from the charge of murdering a Christian baby and not content with having extracted all the blood from him, they began to look for some a monk who is immaculate in soul and body, to open his veins and receive so much blood, as much as necessary to satisfy their cruelty and godless superstitions.
They chose one pious simple monk, perfect for years, but a little boy, innocent in his life and morals, named Paul, a novice in the monastery-
The Carmelite Fathers (Ii). These fathers sent Paul usually collected alms, so he was well known as both Christians and Jews. Believing that the simplicity of this monk would be convenient for the purpose he had in mind, the Jews commissioned the surgeon Mark to carry out the plausible
He lured Paul to himself with a pretext and drained his blood from his body for the common good of his own a religion worthy of damnation. Mark accepts this offer, follows the monk, He persuades the supposed medic Smith to help with this massacre with money. And this Pavel the elders send for alms to certain benefactors living in several miles from Lublin. On Sunday, July 27, at midday, when some of the residents were busy with lunch, while others were indulging in an afternoon rest, sent from The monastery novice heads to the Jewish quarter. As soon as the surgeon Mark saw the pre-doomed victim, then ran to meet him immediately, spoke with
He spoke to him kindly and asked him to come into his house, as he had something secret to tell him.
something important. A cunning hypocrite easily convinces a straightforward and simple person, who does not suspect anything bad; he willingly enters the house and gets ready listen to what they are about to tell him in secret. But Mark declares that this he can tell him the secret only in the most secluded place, and therefore he leads him to the third floor, into some vaulted room located inside house, from which only one small window looks out onto the synagogue, and asks him to sit.

Then Levek, Mark's servant, comes up and, hiding his inner rage, begins to lead friendly speeches; finally the Lutheran appears with his Jewish servant Moshka. Then these cruel executioners are not people, but predatory wolves, appointed as leaders to the isto carry out an ungodly deed, they lay their sacrilegious hands on a tame sheep, the most simple-minded person who, with a trembling voice, begs for preservation life. And so, first of all, they take off his belt, tear off the old, torn
The monk's robe and the half-dead man are dumped onto a bed prepared for him in advance.
Then Levek sits on his chest and grabs his arms, Moshko holds his legs, and he John Smith opens the lower part of the abdomen near the reproductive organs with a razor, with an iron probe he lifts the veins passing there and, having then captured them with an iron instrument, pulls out one pound from the body and, cutting them a little with a scalpel, cuts off a significant part of the reproductive organs, and at this time the Jew Mark collects the blood flowing in a stream into two copper basins, purring at the same time with his with his defiled mouth some song known only to him. Having committed this bloody cruelty, inhuman torture of an innocent person, they force him, who was between life and death, to give a solemn oath that he he won't tell anyone about the torture they caused him, and then they put him on a cart, on which he had to go for alms. Considering himself, in his simplicity, bound with the oath extracted from him, Paul suppresses his grave sins in a speech of several days suffering, completing the path of obedience prescribed to him. Defeated, however, fear of death, he first sets out in a letter in the form of a will, to to the monastery authorities, and then, at their suggestion, repeats the same thing before the Tribunal in the presence of the main culprits and accomplices in these crimes, as well as members of the Lublin Magistrate. He then made his statement twice confirms by oath.

In view of all the above, the prosecutor demanded an exemplary punishment the culprits. Based on this indictment, the court ordered the execution of investigation. The result of the gaps in this investigation was the court's decision to commit the Jew Mark was tortured. Naturally, the Jew revealed everything during the torture, and since The victim Pavel, “a monk of devout simplicity,” repeated his words in the presence of the court testimony and then took the affirmative oath, then the Tribunal, “having weighed the cruelthe bone of this almost unheard of crime, the thought of which makes the mind tremble,

“The laws become numb, and holy justice demands the most severe retribution,” he determined the "infidel" Jew Mark, convicted of a crime, was to be cut alive into pieces, his head impale him on a stake at a crossroads outside the city, and burn his body so that no trace remains this wicked man."

It should be noted, however, that despite the accusation of members of the Lublin kahal that they were the intellectual culprits of this crime, that for them and at their instigation, Mark committed the crime attributed to him, the court did not finds it possible to bring members of the kahal to justice, as well as exempts physical accomplices in the commission of a crime from liability. How can such leniency be explained? It can be explained by the fact that causing the death of one person, only one of them had to pay with his life We cannot find accomplices, as was the case in Lithuania, because, firstly, there were no accomplices murdered: the monk from whom the blood was extracted was alive at the time of the decree sentence, i.e. two weeks after the operation, secondly, from the previous and In subsequent trials on the same charges, the court does not hesitate to sentence the death of all persons accused of the ritual murder of one infant.

Thus, the members of the Lublin Kahal were acquitted.

Chapter 6

The Lenczycki case of murder by Jews infant son Matvey Mikhalevsky

In 1639, on April 20, the Wednesday before Easter, a child disappeared in the village of Kamashiće, one and a half years old, left in front of the house by a peasant - Matvey Mikhalevsky, who went with his wife to the corvee after dinner. The child This one was found in an open area in the forest adjacent to the village of Kamashiće, and the body he was covered with wounds, some of which penetrated to the bone, others were made like would be with thin instruments.

Suspicion of the child's abduction fell on the beggar and vagabond Thomas Mendik. After thinking for a long time, the accused stated that he had indeed kidnapped the child and sold it to the Lenczyca Jews. Remorseful conscience forced this man to inform on himself and the Jews. Moreover, he showed that he had previously sold them two more babies.

Mendak testified and confirmed under oath and during double torture by fire, as well as on on the frontal place before the death penalty, at the admonition of the confessor, he repented with tears and he kept repeating the same thing.

Knowing well from recent decisions what awaits those accused in this kind of the crime, the discredited Jews fled, but were detained in the city of Orlov and brought to trial by the Lenčica city court.

The chairman of this court, the elder Lenchitsky, relying, obviously, on royal privileges, allowed Jews to appeal after the investigation to the king, to the Court of Assessors.

When the Tribunal learned of this, it found the actions of the headman to be "reckless and careless", committed contrary to the constitutions, since, according to the old statutes and the latest constitutions, Jews accused together with the townspeople and peasants in the commission of criminal offenses and in particular in murder, are subject to the city court, and the final decision on these cases belongs to the Tribunalu.

In view of this, the Tribunal imposed a fine of one hundred zlotys on the mayor, and on the Jews for wrong appeal five hundred zlotys, ordering the presentation of the guilty and all preliminary proceedings for its consideration.

Before the Tribunal, the accused beggar testified that he had stolen at noon the child and sold him in the evening to the Jews Mayer and Lazarus for one and a half zlotys, and on the other that evening, having received from the Jews the child already dead, he took him by order of the Jews into the forest and placed the body under the bushes.

Thomas confirmed this testimony under torture before the court, in the presence of Jews, and then before the execution in the square.

In view of this, the court decided to torture the Jews Lazar and Mayer only for in order to ascertain for what purpose exactly the treacherous Jewish people needs Christian blood. And since these Jews are incriminated not only by testimony executed beggar, but also countless wounds - more than a hundred - found on the body child, wounds produced in the direction of the veins by some thin tools, as well as the time of the sale of the child (during the Jewish Passover?), the location of the murdered and unburied child - all these circumstances, completely similar to those that emerged in similar accusations against Jews in many previous decisions of the Tribunal. In view of, finally, the acts of the investigative production and the affirmative oath, which he expressed a desire to take and The father actually brought the child along with six peasants, the court sentenced Jews to death by quartering.

As for the rest of the Lenczyca Jews accused of being the intellectual culprits of this crime, that is, Lazar Przemyslski, son-in-law of Moses Rusnak, the elder of the Jews, called the zemstvo, Moses RusNaka, Mark, son of Mayer, a schoolboy, Anselm, son-in-law of Mayer, Lazar Poznanchik, Samuil Kagman, Daniil, Kagman's son-in-law, Mark Davidovich, foreman of Lenchitsa Jewish community, as well as Isaac Rabin, the supreme judge and reader of the Jews of Lenczyca, then the court ordered them to take the oath of purification, in accordance with the crown statute 1505.

Chapter 7

The Case of the Murder of the Infant Albert by the Jews

"The judicial ruling of the next General Court of the Crown Tribunal in Lublin; on Saturday before the feast of St. Margaret the Virgin (July 11), 1598, the claim of the peasant Matvey Petenya from Svinarovo, a serf in Anna The Kiszczanki, the spouses of V. Stefan Peta Giroszewski, against the infidel Jews: Gromka, Mark Sakhovich, father of Gromko, tenant of the Voznitsky taverns and mills, then Gaichik and Joachim, Jews from the city of Medzyrzec, the province of Leon Sapieha, Chancellor Grand Duchy of Lithuania, imprisoned and represented in the Melnitsky city court by the above-mentioned plaintiff and Blessed Abraham Skovsky, manager of the estates of the carriage drivers and others, on the following charge: the above-mentioned Gromek on the Thursday after the last holiday of Holy Easter, passing through the village of Svinarovo, kidnapped the son of the said plaintiff, a four-year-old boy, named Albert, who was running along the street. And then he took him to his father's house, tavern keeper Mark Sakhovich, to the village of Vozniki. Then Gromek, along with other Jews and in a hidden room in the same coachman's tavern where his father lived, he drew blood from the plaintiff's living son using specially prepared equipment instruments, cutting his veins; and, forgetting the fear of God and despising the existing laws, he killed the boy in a cruel and inhumane manner. Wanting to leave unpunished for the crime they had committed, the Jews threw the boy's body into a dirty, swampy place near the village of Vozniki. This body is by God's grace found by some people and presented to the Melnitsky city court, which, seeing ten small wounds on the hands of the dead child near the wrists of both hands, and on neck clearly expressed blueness, which is all described in more detail in the inspection report carried out at the request of the father of the murdered child and Abram Skovetsky on behalf of the owner of the estate.

However, after the preliminary investigation carried out by the plaintiff! 'According to Polish law of the 19th-20th centuries, preliminary investigation (sïïi) took place with the participation of the accused and the court, in compliance with certain conditions, (by the person who has suffered from the crime and at his own expense) in this case and on hearing the challenges to jurisdiction presented by Jews, the Grodno court referred the entire case to the Crown Tribunal for decision. After the father of the murdered man infant Matthew Petenya and the above-mentioned Abraham Skovetsky appeared in person before the Tribunal court with their attorneys and handed the preliminary act to the court of the investigation presented by them to the town mill court, they asked for conducting a trial of the accused.

The Jews, brought to court in custody, petitioned both personally and through attorneys: Moisey Doctorovich and Solomon, doctor of medicine, and another Solomon, the authorized representative of their synagogue, called simply the schoolboy, the elders Lyublinsky, on the appointment of defense attorneys for the accused, which the court complied with.
The injured party, making accusations against the Jews, asked with tears the trial; in response to which the accused presented the originals through their lawyers their rights, privileges and privileged letters (iiḱŕs), proving on on the basis of these documents, that the present case is not subject to the jurisdiction of the Tribunal. The Court, Having heard and duly weighed the explanations of the parties and taking into account, that the documents provided by the Jews cannot serve as their protection in such a situation a terrible crime, admitted that the present case was transferred absolutely correctly Melnitsky city court for the resolution of the Tribunal, as the supreme court ( zirgete la 11). When the Jews then, denying their guilt in the crime, petitioned this court to allow them, in turn, to carry out a new investigation into this case in order to prove his innocence, then the court in view of the fact that from the very appearance of the wounds on the body of the murdered boy, presented to the town mill court, as well as from the investigation carried out the injured party before the same court and weighed properly by the current court, it is obvious that the said Jews are guilty of the charges brought against them crime, rejected the aforementioned petition of the Jews; in view of the fact that it was very One often hears accusations against Jews of this kind of crime, the court defined: in terms of disclosing for what specific purposes, religious or for the purpose of preparing poisons, or for something similar, the Jews need

Christian blood, hand over the defendants to the proper court for torture.
The above-mentioned Jews, according to this definition, were subjected to questioning and torture, in the place designated for that purpose in front of the Voitov Lublin presence, i.e. in front of the mayor and the Lublin officials, and the protocols of torture testimony are kept in the voivodeship files of the city of Lublin. After the Jews in the designated torture site were searched and were hanged three times and three times subjected to burning with candles, the aforementioned Jew Joachim was brought to court, who voluntarily (!) testified before the court in the following words:
"There is a custom among the Jews, according to which poor Jews are sent out to be fed to the rich, so I was sent to Mark in Vozniki; enjoying food there, I had Mark gave me permission to go into the pantry and take what I needed. On Thursday
Before the Jewish Passover I went into the pantry to get some bread for myself, and I saw in a storage room under the bed on which Jewish children slept, a new red pot, covered with a new white bag; thinking that it was honey, I wanted to take it for my bread, but When I took what was in the pot on my finger, I saw that it was not honey, but something another, red. Then, having left the storeroom for the hut and found only one in it the owner, Mark's wife, asked her what was in that new pot that was standing there under the bed? She answered me that it was the blood of a Christian baby, but you didn't tell anyone Don't talk about it. Then I never saw that pot again and I don't know where it went from there.
disappeared. When we were arrested and put in prison, Mark asked us all, that we have God in our hearts and do not confess anything, even if we are put to torture;
He repeated the same thing to us here in Lublin when he was taken to be tortured." He confessed Joachim and that Nastaska, who has her own hut not far from the house
Catherine, with whom Mark lives, told him that when she was before the Jewish Passover
I took beer from the Jewish cellar for sale, and I saw it under the barrels tortured child. Joachim also confessed what he had heard from other Jews, that Jews use Christian blood at Easter, but why do they do this?
he doesn't know."

“Then it was reported to the court that the Jew Aaron, named above Gromek, wishes "to reveal to the court the whole truth in this case."

“Brought to court, Gromek voluntarily confessed to the following: “Before Jewish Passover Zelman, a Medzyretsky Jew, asked me persistently that he too got a Christian baby. When I then, having taken the malt to Lositsy, was returning home with Isaac (who is named Gaichik above), I met a child sitting by the road. Then Isaac said to me: "Do you remember what Zelman asked you about? And ordered me to take this child on the cart, which I did. Having brought this child together with Isaac in Vozniki to my father Mark, we hid this child there for several weeks in the cellar, and then this child Isaac with Zalman, who was
It was reported to Medzyrechye that the child had been brought in, they stabbed him, and hired Nastaska so that she would take away this child." Moreover, Gromek testified that he heard from other Jews that those of them who can get Christian blood drink it along with wine, but why they do this, he does not know."

“Gromek then declared all this voluntarily, in the presence and to the faces of the infidels to the Jews of Lublin: Moses Doctorovich, Solomon, authorized representative of Lublin synagogue, called simply a schoolboy, and Solomon, a doctor of medicine, to the elders of Lublin, adding: “I know that Isaac was there when "They cut this child." Then the unfaithful Isaac Gaichik, presented to the court, showed on his own initiative the following: "Aaron Gromek kidnapped this child and put him in cellar." He also admitted that Moshko and Zelman from Medzyrechye arrived after after the child was kidnapped. Nastaska came to the cellar in order to entertain the child when he started to get bored. Then Moshko and Zelman took the child and brought him into the courtyard in front of the storeroom; together with him, Isaac, they took out knife with which they cut cattle, and they slaughtered the child in the following manner: Moses cut or, better to say, he stabbed near the chest, and he, Isaac, together with Zelman cut his hand, and then The child's blood was released into a pot. They took most of this blood with them in Medzyrechye, and a small amount was left to Isaac, according to whom, his wife poured this blood into unleavened dough. Bread baked from this dough is called "Efikomen", which means: "May the Lord God help you." Christian blood is also poured into wine, who has a lot of this blood at his disposal; he only had enough for a kalach.

Zelman had already consumed Christian blood before, because he did the same to me.
taught, and besides, Moses from Medzyrechye, who was with him, told me about this." When

The court also asked Gaichik why the Jews themselves never bury the corpses of those babies that they killed, he replied: “It is indecent for us Jews to show "Mercy to the pagans, it would be a sin for us if we buried such a body, etc."

"Nastaska, whom Joachim and Mark mentioned at the torture, and Aaron - on her own initiative, testified before the court that she had been tortured before, voluntarily, that when she carried the body of that murdered child to throw it into the swamp, then went with her and a Jewish woman who said to her: “If we Jews had buried the body of this child ourselves, then we would all have died." When Nastaska asked the Jewish woman what it was for Jews Christian blood, then the Jewish woman answered: “If we didn’t have Christian blood at Easter your Christian blood, then for us it would not be Easter, but Lent." Nastaska later confirmed her testimony under torture."

“In view of this, the Lublin Tribunal, having carefully examined and weighed everything the above-mentioned circumstances, determined: since from the investigative proceedings before the Melnitsky City Court, which was read before the Tribunal and by them discussed, as well as from the testimony of the Jews themselves, both given under torture and before the court in the presence of the above-mentioned elders of the Lublin Jews, not there is not the slightest doubt that the Jews are guilty of the crime brought against them crime, i.e., the murder of the aforementioned infant, then the crown The Tribunal of Criminal Jews: Mark, Isaac and Aaron, as Perpetrators and Accomplices in the said terrible crime - the murder of an innocent baby, is sentenced to death penalty, for the execution of which he refers to the appropriate attendant place."

Chapter 8

The case of Margarita Mrochkovichova, who sold his daughter to the Jew Borka to obtain blood

The famous Sandomierz case was initiated on the initiative of Father Stefan Zhukhovsky and was carried out with the energetic support of the highest spiritual authorities.

“In 1698, in the month of March, when the Jewish Passover was approaching, the Jew Alexander

Berek, who, according to the Jews, was descended from the line of Aaron (probably exactly the same tenant, like himself), the elder of the Sandomierz synagogue, who was related through his wife with the Opatov tenant Joseph and himself becoming rich from the rent income from the Sandomierz castle and from trade, was in a long-standing acquaintance with a certain Katerina, married Mrochkova, who, on the basis of its customs and other absurd reasons, was called "stegana" (h). From her The Jew achieved that she surrendered her daughter to him for cruel torture Margaret, baptized on June 23, 1697 in St. Peter's Chapel.

And although she was initially tortured both in the town hall and in the city court, hoping, that she would get out of this, she showed that she did it on Tuesday, after White Week, and that brought the child to the Jews dead, but then, on May 14, announced the truth there, in in the city court, with the same words, which she then repeated three times in Tribunal.

Having committed the crime, she did not bury the dead body in parish church, but kept it in her own place, in a storeroom or in the attic, so that she could have the ability to blame the presence of wounds on cats and rats, and then blame the parish priests that they did not want to bury the baby.

In refutation of this accusation, the priests took the oath on Friday, June 23 Sandomierz consistory, that not only did she not ask them for burial, but even did not inform them about the child's death.

Wanting, however, to be freed from the presence of the corpse, the accused on Thursday On Easter (i.e. April 3) she carried the corpse to the collegiate tomb of St. Mary and, throwing the corpse out the window, she didn't pay attention to the fact that from this tomb several bones fell out. When that very evening the guard at the tomb ordered another guard to pick up these bones, and among the bones they found a girl dressed in a shroud. This was immediately reported to the castle authorities, where the dead body was examined, and immediately voices were heard that this is the work of Jewish hands (which in the further course of events the Jews are especially keen on they insist, proving that the inspection in the castle was fake and in the Tribunal They claim that there were no wounds or injuries on the child’s body when he was examined in the castle).

The body was then taken to the collegiate church, where they immediately recognized whose it was.

the child, and the burgomaster ordered the arrest of the mother. First of all, on Friday, April 4th, the body was brought from the church to the barbers so that they could examine the body according to their conscience and descriptions of the wounds, and then the child's mother was called to account, who stated that she
I am ready to prove that the child died a natural death.

The city, having enough of its own affairs and not wanting to offend the Jews, who would not have liked this way of acting on the part of the city, having heard only verbal report on questioning of family members (who, especially students, - obviously living in this house, - then it did not even occur to me to investigate why the child died for some reason; the householders, although they may have known, thought only of in his own skin), determined on April 9 the accused mother's offering oath of purification together with eyewitnesses, i.e. her father and mother and other witnesses, that the child fell ill and died from this illness. For the same reason that She did not bring the child to the church for burial, and was sentenced to three days in prison.
in chains.

The enforcement of this decision was prevented by the filing of a lawsuit from the prince to the city with a demand that the magistrate look into the matter more closely, - so whether I'm happy or not, and on April 11 the city court began further proceedings inquiry, obtaining documents and search.

Then the Jews, seeing that they would not have to rest on their laurels, that the matter it will not end in trifles, they understand that the accusation will be directed at them, especially that the mother of the murdered child, subjected to torture, confessed on April 19 that the dead
She handed over the body to Berk on Tuesday of White Week and the mutilated body from him
I received it back in an hour.

She repeated the same thing in front of the court the next day.

When she had to repeat this during a confrontation with a Jew, she stated that
The Jew is innocent, and she herself does not know that she is speaking out of pain.

She refused all of this on April 22, stating that the Jew Alexander had asked me so that I wouldn’t give him away, but it’s all true what I showed during torture; he told me he didn’t give anything, but even scolded me, and I felt sorry for that Jew when he, standing here, at the town hall, he said to my face: "I don't know you, woman," and that's why I stood in front of him the court declared him innocent.

When the Jew began to refer to the fact that at the time he was talking about the accused was not in Sandomierz at all, but went to Opatow, then she said to his face:
"I brought you a deceased child."

To this the Jew Alexander answered her: “Why didn’t you, wicked woman, speak
"Do you want me to do this on Saturday?"

The accused replied: “Why did you bring that old Jewish sorcerer to me, who as soon as he looked at me and started talking, I couldn’t tell him anymore
"I won't say a word in reply. But as I have said now, I will continue to say that this is the truth."

Then the Jew was given a period to find a defender, then to negotiate with him, then to present evidence, so the case dragged on until April 26, until
The city prosecutor did not submit his complaint either.

The Jews, seeing then that there was no time for jokes here, flew to Marshal Nadvorny, to the headman Sandomierz, presenting to him that the city was starting without any reason a lawsuit against his tenant. However, Andrei Bralnitsky, canon and surrogate Sandomierz, having communicated with me as with a shepherd, about how to arrange it so that the townspeople could calmly conduct the trial on this matter, he writes a letter to the bishop Krakowski, so that he could petition the illustrious lords Stefan Bidzinsky, the governor of Sandomierz, and Pan Joseph Lubomirski, the court marshal, patronage of the bourgeoisie.

Confident in this patronage, the townspeople on April 30 order the Jew to present evidence of his innocence, and when he demands that he be An accuser is brought forward, and the magistrate orders the child's body to be brought from the church.

And the strange thing is, blood flows for the second time (the first time it appeared before Dzianoti on the eve in the church) from the wounds of a dead child brought to the town hall and, like the blood of innocent Abel, it cries out to heaven and to the court for vengeance.

The Jew does not want to look at all this or justify himself (as in front of incompetent court) and slanders us that the priests, having conspired with the townspeople poured pigeon blood into the wounds just to drown the Jew.

The Jew then demands that this body be examined by the Krakow doctors, but when this was rejected, then the city agrees not only to the investigation, but also to transfer of a case due to lack of jurisdiction from a magistrate to a city court.

At the Sejmik in Opatów on April 28, the gentry of the Sandomierz Voivodeship, animated by jealousy, decided the following: "The crime committed in in the city of Sandomierz, a brutal murder, the shedding of Christian blood must be permitted by the gentlemen members of the Sandomierz city court, - in an unblemished whose loyalty we have always been convinced of, regardless of any protection of the Jews, and in accordance with holy justice, the Sejmik also imposes this duty on the gentlemen judges, in accordance with the oath they took."

Following this ruling, the judges opened their hearings on May 5.
the appointed time the Jew demanded an investigation to correct him inaccuracies, and the magistrate - to confirm its accuracy. In view of the Jew's involvement in responsibility was determined to imprison him in the prison located under the town hall.

This struck the Jew terribly, and when he, despite the intercession for him, various persons, was unable to obtain release from arrest from Andrei Karvitsky, secretary of the Sandomierz city court, then the Jews began to disband
There are various slanders about him.

But the slanders against this secretary for his participation in this matter brought him so much the same benefit as the Jewish patrons can be harmed by their intercession. This

The Prince Bishop of Krakow himself admitted this by writing a letter to him with a special blessing.

Here we will attach this letter so that future posterity will see that the judges, those who are jealous of the honor of God and of innocent Christian blood, will receive honor from people and blessing from God.

"Dear Sir, Mr. Secretary of the Sandomierz City Court, my lord and brother!

The Lord God has expanded your famous family, gracious sir, beyond many generations. Without diminishing the pious deeds of your ancestor Dunin, having built 70 churches in Poland, I recognize you, dear sir, as worthy his competitor, because you stand so zealously for the holy faith and the Divine honor, demanding vengeance for innocent blood. This should undoubtedly be seen as a guarantee not not only that your descendants will endure forever, but that you yourselves and your kindred will you will receive the greatest blessing of God and the first positions in our fatherland, which I am talking about Together with my entire diocese, I address fervent prayers to God, recognizing you defender of faith and justice. The chronicles will be passed on to distant descendants that our depraved age has found itself up against numerous defenders of the treacherous tribe in you, dear sir, the avenger of the innocently shed Christian blood blood.

In commending this matter to your untiring attention, I remain cordially benevolent brother and servant, Jan Malachowski, Bishop of Krakow, Krakow, June 8 1689".

At another confrontation on Wednesday, the Jew became confused when the accused woman, no longer guarding him, she spoke the following words straight to his eyes: “When I Today I got out of prison, and it occurred to me that I was being interrogated and tortured. I accidentally got confused and showed it incorrectly, as if I had brought a dead child to a Jew, - No, I brought him to the Jew alive. On the Thursday before Bright Week he persuaded me the Jew promised throughout the day, since I washed his and other Jews' clothes I was given a reward, and it happened to me at that time that I seemed to have gone completely crazy."

After hearing these statements, the court ordered the Jew to submit objections on Thursday, but the Jew did not take care of that, but hastened to send his son to the Tribunal as quickly as possible and received an order (without the knowledge of the members of the court) from the marshal of the tribunal to the judge Grodsky, so that this case would be transferred from the Grodsky court to the Tribunal. At this very at that time Krzysztof Dembitsky, Canon of Krakow, Sandomierz and Official arrived, and seeing that there was no other way to help the lost cause than by making it public, he took myself this burden (and I myself, not without fear, had to think about losing the business, since Fighting such a strong opponent was difficult. And losing was even more so.

would have strengthened Jewish insolence), having personally gone to Krakow to insist before the Tribunal, and at the approaching review of the gentry, and then decisively announced that he would also appear in Lublin.

When he made his application to join the case, he pleaded with the judges on behalf of God's, so that they remember firmly about the zeal for the faith of their voivodeship and about their duties and that this matter would not be sent beyond the Vistula, confirming his request a reference to the fact that the Lord Jesus Christ himself, having crossed the Jordan River, lost in the town hall (?) had its own business with the Jews. But all this helped absolutely nothing, since almost at that time at the same time, the Jews handed us summonses to appear before the Tribunal, and what's more, most amazingly (and it is impossible to understand this) are presented on Saturday for entry in the books of the Tribunal of evidence of service of summonses presented on Saturday to the city court; for this reason we asked that in the court In the decision, each act was presented separately.

The next day, a driver hired by the Jews brought the order (received without the knowledge of the members of the court) about the presentation of prisoners to the court, simultaneously with order to the city presence for the immediate implementation of this prescriptions.

This secretly received order to postpone the case failed to materialize destroy, nor postpone for another period, so that we did not even have to produce proper investigation.

In vain did the city solemnly declare its insolvency and put the keys to the town hall before him, in vain we, with our the parties have submitted a demand that we be granted the right to demand in at the time the prisoners were not from the cavalry, which had been waiting for them for a week
Sandomierz, but from the city court itself, the Jews, having received hastily from the marshal
The tribunal issued an order to the Grodz judge and the infantry from Lublin (about which the rest
The members of the Tribunal knew nothing), brought Burke to the Tribunal.

At first the members of the Tribunal took up the matter with great zeal, but before the matter when they reached a decision, this heat died down: True, their zeal was fueled by the bishop's letters Krakow and the Most Serene Chapter of Krakow, addressed to the court of the Tribunal and given to him especially for this purpose by the priest Official, warmed him up an embassy sent through the efforts of the same priest Official from the nobility reviewed by two special ambassadors to the Tribunal with the following instructions:

"Instructions to their master, Mr. Stanislav Popel, the huntsman Podlyashsky and Stefan Reklewski, ambassadors to the Most Serene Crown Lublin Tribunal from the review under In Krapivnica, by virtue of the decree of the Sandomierz Voivodeship: Due to the fact that in in the depths of the Sandomierz Voivodeship, in the city of Sandomierz, committed by Jews The ungodly murder of infants, our voivodeship is inspired by the desire for revenge for the innocent shedding of Christian blood in the ways and order indicated justice. We have entrusted the consideration of this crime to public by the decree of their grace to the lords judges of the city of Sandomierz, our to the gracious sovereigns and brothers. When in response to the publicly presented to them we heard our demand for a report on this case, that this case, despite protests, it was transferred to the Most Serene Crown Court on the basis of a plea of non-jurisdiction Tribunal, then we, knowing that the highest law must also implement the highest justice- We ask our ambassadors to assist in this, while at the same time making a request to to the Most Serene Tribunal, so that it would finally resolve this legally already a prepared deed, so that the gates of hell do not triumph. These are our ambassadors will be obliged to insist together with the deputies sitting in the Tribunal from our Sandomierz voivodeship, so that they would be firm in execution regulations of the voivodeship, and the voivodeship, for its part, feeling deep respect for them respect, will not forget to thank them with brotherly love for their attention. In view of the same that the Most Serene Prince Bishop of Krakow, our shepherd, turned to our to the assembly with a special petition on this matter, we instruct our ambassadors, to our brothers, so that they insist most of all before the Most Serene Crown The tribunal, in the event that the spiritual gentlemen, in support of their claim, will demand a detailed investigation of the crime, so that this investigation is carried out was deno before the Sandomierz city court (415 1), so that the city of spiritual, those who are interested in this matter with the best intentions, do not enter into unnecessary expenses. From Kropivnitsy, June 19, 1698 - Nikolai Mozgava as Colonel Sandomirsky, I sign with my own hand on behalf of the entire knighthood. The seal of the same Mozgav."

The ambassadors, received with honor at the Tribunal, received in response to this instruction the following: a written and oral declaration to the voivodeship that the representations Voivodeships will be taken into account by the Tribunal. For their part, however, the Jews although they used donkeys for the embassy, and not the gentry, but since these donkeys were gold, then at the very first meeting, on Wednesday, the eve of St. John the Baptist, the Jews achieved that not only were they granted a deferment in the investigation, but and we, contrary to the request of the voivodeship, are ordered to present evidence not to Sandomierz, but to Lublin.

When the ambassadors of the voivodeship, who were still at that time, learned about this privately time in Lublin, the Official addressed the court with a passionate speech (as he often did and subsequently, pointing to the crucifix standing before the judges), exclaiming that although The Lord Jesus is naked and cannot give anything, but the judges must still have regard for him. respect - the Tribunal has released us by a special order from paying costs for the conduct of the investigation.

Father Tarlo, canon, was appointed to be present during the investigation. Krakowski, a prelate famous for his origins, talents, and high scholarship, together with the castellan of Sandomierz, who (to tell the truth) did not last long kept his energy, so we agreed not to remove the witnesses and limit ourselves, contrary to the law, to only fourteen, just so as not to enter into him in bickering.

This delay in the investigation was directed against us, although it later turned into our benefit, since at that time deputies worthy of eternal memory arrived in Tribunal: Stanislav Krzes, Judge Wiski, Stanislav Khwalibog, Vice-Regent of KraKowski Voivodeship, Casimir Rostkowski, Castellan of Wiski from Mazovia Voivodeship, Karl Shandyrovsky, swordsman from the Bratslav Voivodeship, Casimir Kovechinsky from the Malbork Voivodeship, and they, together with Mr. Dukhov, assisted in the administration of justice.

The deputies of the Krakow Voivodeship did not want to give us the decree of the day from their turn; moreover, on the eve of St. Magdalene's Day, at the end of the meetings on in the affairs of our voivodeship, we had a great embarrassment when bringing Jewish oath, since the Jews did not bring clothes and other items necessary to perform this ceremony, the supporters of the Jews in the presence of a huge numbers of people pounced on us with the aim of forcing us to bring Jewish clothes. But this was only the beginning of what happened on that very day. investigation. Not to mention that some, under the pretext of divine services did not want to go to the town hall, others strongly objected to the need new investigation, so in view of this we had to retreat from our requirements, despite the fact that it was entered into the register books, but beyond that, not only the gentlemen members of the court themselves did not listen to the minutes of the investigation that had already been carried out, but and interfered with others. Our lawyers were deprived of the right to speak, and one of them was deprived of the president's

The tribunal was embarrassed beyond belief by being told not to do so ahead of time.
showed who he was.

The reading of the preliminary investigation report lasted until the third hour.
midnight.

At the afternoon meeting, Castellan Sandomirsky, on an insignificant occasion (and precisely because the priest, the vice-prosecutor, said to a Jew in the street, to his face, that
The tenants pooled a large amount of money for this matter, and the castellan's servant made up a whole story out of this about the spread of accusations of corruption of judges and reported this to his master), delayed the proceedings, stating that he had not become involved in anything.
no participation until the priest is immediately punished. Gentlemen the judges did not find it possible, however, on the basis of gossip and in the proper court to issue a summary judgment against the priest, as if against a criminal; but the supporters of the Jews became so stubborn that they even touched us by force, and what was already produced the investigation, as if they had thrown away something worthless and raised such a fuss that it was barely (shameful the matter is because of a Jew!) They didn't move from words to sticks.

Finally they wanted to make us wait until our turn came again.
Sandomierz Voivodeship with the aim that those who are jealous of God and favorable to The members of the Tribunal have left for us.

When news of this reached us, Father Official, having consulted with lawyers, decided to quickly drop the whole case and throw all the papers on the court's table, to remain then at the discretion of the Jewish supporters, who are now are already causing all sorts of unrest. In any case, the President of the Tribunal managed postpone the consideration of the case until the next day.

And excellent! In the morning, Father Official managed to calm down yesterday's collisions; then during the session, when the court considers from the seventh to at two o'clock in the afternoon, preliminary investigation data and torture testimony the accused are brought into the courtroom a child, drowned like a puppy in a latrine there, in the city of Lublin, in a corner house. Outraged by this spectacle and having on some counts of the indictment there is undeniable evidence of the defendants' guilt, the judges render a guilty verdict against both the Jew and the women. In order for a Jew to suffer the same punishment as a Catholic woman, and also indicated the reasons for which Jews consume Christian blood, it was decided to torture a Jew.

The Jew, questioned before torture, not only did not admit his guilt the first point, i.e. the murder of the child, but also on the second, whether they took part in Tom Moshko Doctor from Tarnow, Shmer Lichvar, cantor and other neighbors from Sandomierz, -
He replied: “Not only do I know nothing about this crime, but I also don’t know anything about these Jews.
I know, but I don't know their names. It's true that we use them on Easter.
Efikomen, that is, matzah, and we hang it over ourselves, and crumble it into the drink, and drink, but so that in
If there was Christian blood in this bread, then this is not true."

Taken on the rack once, twice and three times, he stubbornly repeated: “I swear to God alive, I am not guilty of anything. I ask You for mercy, Gaidunai, Gaidunai, Moses, Moses. Let all the devils take me, I don’t know anything,” etc., repeating the same thing over and over again.
he sang throughout the torture, as can be seen from the protocol in the Lublin acts Voitovsky court on Thursday, on the eve of the feast of St. James the Apostle.

After the torture, the prosecutor had to take the affirmative oath himself that the accused are guilty of the charges brought against them. Patrons of the Jews began to object to the correctness of this oath, arguing that this point of the decision
It concerns not the prosecutor, but the priests, who are supposed to be seven against each Jew
take an oath.

The Jews also sent respectable persons to the accused woman in order to to persuade her to make a statement about the Jew's innocence; finally, the Jew himself asked, sitting in prison, and promised us 10,000 for the release of at least the most Catholic woman, - of course, so that the Jews would have at least some basis to claim that they innocent of the charges brought against them.

When the Jews had no success here either, they rushed to the most illustrious to the safely reigning monarch, who was then moving with troops from under Warsaw to Lvov, slipped him a paper to sign, written without observing established forms (as the most illustrious sovereign himself later expressed it in his letters addressed from Lvov to the Tribunal, explaining that he did not thought about delaying the execution of sentences with the help of slipped papers to him), and asked the officer to hand over this paper to the tribunal name of the king.

The content of this order is as follows: "Augustus II, King of Poland, etc.
It is presented to us that a certain Jew, Alexander, was imprisoned by our Sentenced to death by the Lublin Tribunal on charges of infanticide, and with him a woman was accused and also sentenced to death. Why are we sending one from our nobles - the noble, loyal and kind Colonel Brausen, so that he announced to the Tribunal our disagreement with the execution of the decision in this case solutions and explained at the same time, and his explanation must be given credence and obedience, as if to ourselves, so that nothing would be done about this matter until then until we ourselves are in Lublin and resolve this matter personally. Given in Riccioli under our signature and seal. July 26, 1698 - Augustus, King."

The Tribunal saw that it was a Jewish thing, but nevertheless appointed him to His Majesty embassy, and at the same time, on the very day when the Jew was to be executed,
The Tribunal interpreted its original definition to mean that the executioner beheading a Jew, he cut his body into four pieces and hung them on crossroads. On the day of the execution, the executioner, having received a bribe, hid himself, that it was only due to the fact that the city was ordered to find him within a certain time, under threat of severe responsibility, the executioner was found and barely
At twelve o'clock in the afternoon the sentence was carried out.

In the square, the woman repeated her accusation to the Jew’s face, but he wished die with a heart of stone.

The Jews again offered a thousand zlotys so that the body of the executed man would not be found.
hanging on the knees, but this proposal was not accepted, since the Jew was also punished lightly.

Regarding the accomplices, especially the wife of the executed Alexander, It is difficult to say anything about the accused, since I don't know who would do it again dared to take such a difficult, unsafe, expensive (the Jews are ready again to lay out another hundred thousand, and we spent several thousand), furnished difficulties, a process which has now barely ended with great fear and untold troubles for the Official.

It is true that on September 16 the Sandomierz Voivodeship at the Sejmik in Opatów decided, and this decision was entered into the Sandomierz town register books on 27 September, so that the wife of the executed Alexander would be brought to trial, but I can only to wish that some zealot would appear to implement this definition, but I won't take it upon myself to guess whether he will show up.

That is why he deserves all the gratitude from his descendants for his zeal. Father Krystof Dembitsky, canon of Krakow, Sandomierz and the Official, who sparing no expense, he bravely avenged the spilled Christian blood.

For this, the Lord God both him and those who, in one way or another, assisted him in this matter, will reward him with longevity here, and in blissful eternity bestows his blessing."

Here is an account of the Sandomierz trial in the words of one of its members the main movers of the priest Stefan Zuchowski, both doctors of law.

Chapter 9
Infant Martyr Jacob of the village of Zdolbitsy 1761

In the magazine "Ancient and New Russia", St. Petersburg, 1879, on page 335 The article "Zdolbitsky Martyr" is published, where A.F. places his correspondence. Khoynatsky.

"Last summer, driving through Volyn, I had to stop by chance at a few extra hours at the Zdolbunovo station of the Kiev-Brest railway. To kill time somehow, I went to the nearest neighboring village of Zdolbitsa to a priest I knew. At that time, peasants from another village were sorting out the iconostasis in the old wooden church, acquired by them on the occasion of the construction in Zdolbitsa new church, to transport it to his village. The church turned out to be old, with spacious choirs, which I went to out of curiosity. Having looked through I noticed several Latin-Uniate books that were kept right there in the choir loft at the painting, or rather at the icon, which hung here on the wall, representing as if a saint or martyr with his upper part cut off, without his body, written in in the middle of a large gilded heart on a silver background. The painting has the appearance square in arshins of length and width, and at one time, apparently, was written with great with diligence, and the face of a young man depicted on it with closed eyes and with one surviving hand, even quite skillfully. One could safely think that this any saint from the victims of the times of persecution of Christians by the pagans... But what is it

I was surprised when I read at the top, above the heart with the image of a young man person, the following inscription in Polish: "\Mukhugapek Ofgaha LaKiba, \ . 1761, 24 ". In addition to this below the heart is added: "Oa O{stumusB go471so\ VogUeeo 515sa]a1 Hopu]ego
! ŕl /4[". Translated into Russian, both of these inscriptions mean next: "Image of Yakub (Jacob), tortured by the Jews in 1761, April 24 Old Style. Son of noble parents, Basil Sikal and his wife Pelagia, landowners of the village of Zdolbitsy." My first thing was (the correspondent says. - I. L) ask the local priest if he or anyone in Zdolbitsa knows a more suitable detailed information on this subject? It turned out that the Sikals were indeed in 17th century owners of the village of Zdolbitsy, and the people remember that their son was tortured by Jews with known purpose, to extract Christian blood. But was this matter betrayed? nobody remembers the trial and its consequences. The priest only reported at the same time, the original feature is that with his arrival at the parish in Zdolbitsa, “he was depicted-
The "Life of Jacob" was in the church along with other icons, and they placed them in front of them.
candles, and the venerable father had to fight with the people for a long time to wean them off not only from lighting candles, but also from serving prayers "to St. Jacob." So popular feeling itself canonized the one who was considered the victim of the unfortunate fanaticism of the Jews. And the man killed was undoubtedly a Uniate, as is evident from the fact that His image directly mentions the old calendar, which the Latins would not have done.
Father Dean N. Metelsky, rector of the Zdolbinsk church, was so He was kind enough to hand me the "Image of Jacob" upon my first request. to deliver it to the church-archaeological museum at the Kyiv Theological academy, where it is now located. For my part, I considered it my duty to remove it from it photograph, a snapshot of which I am forwarding for reproduction in "Ancient and "New Russia". A. F. Khoynatsky."

BOOK FOUR

DEPARTMENT 1. HISTORICAL

TREATISE 1

DARK MEMORIES OF JERUSALEM TEMPLE

Chapter 1

History of the construction of Jerusalem

the temple and its wealth (according to Flavius)

Hiram, the king of Tyre, having learned that his father's throne had passed to Solomon, was very he was delighted (because Hiram was friends with David) and sent an embassy to him with congratulations and wishes for all his well-being. On this occasion, Solomon sent Hiram a reply letter with the following content:

"King Solomon to King Hiram. You know that my father had the intention to build a temple to the Lord God, but he was prevented from putting this intention into practice execution of warfare and constant campaigns. Meanwhile, he calmed down no sooner, than he defeated all his enemies and did not make all of them his tributaries. As for me, then I give thanks to the Eternal for the peace that has now come to me, thanks to the availability of which gives me the opportunity to fulfill my dream and to build a temple to the Lord God in accordance with how it was with regard to me It was already predicted before by the Eternal to my father. In view of all this, I ask you send some of your masters to help my masters on Mount Lebanon, so that there, together with them, to cut down trees, because the Sidonians are involved in cutting down trees turn out to be much more capable than our people, as far as the reward for this "If you give me to the woodcutters, then I will give them whatever you please to appoint."

Having received and read this letter, Hiram, flattered by the king’s commission, replied To Solomon as follows:

"King Hiram to King Solomon. A prayer of thanksgiving should be offered to To the Most High, that He has given you, a man wise in all respects worthy, the parental throne. Rejoicing in this, I will readily fulfill all your orders. Namely, I will order the felling of many large cedars and cypresses, I will order my people to deliver them to the sea and I will order them to immediately then made rafts out of them and drove them to any point in your country where you you wish. Then your people will be able to deliver this building material to Jerusalem. At the same time, I suggest that in exchange for this, you take care of delivering it to us bread, which we need because we live on an island."

And to this day copies of these letters have been preserved not only in (sacred) books, but and in the annals of the inhabitants of Tyre, so that if anyone wants to see this with their own eyes, then he only needs to enter into an agreement with the state custodians on this matter archives in Tire, and he will find that their data is quite consistent with ours. All this we we only serve to convince our readers that we are not saying anything in the story we add to reality, and that we do not try to do so by any flattering or deceptive or amusing episodes to evade the present.

When King Solomon received the reply letter from the Tyrian king, he could not help but to treat cordially the devotion and goodwill shown by the latter, and in The answer to this was to fulfill Hiram's request, namely, to send him twenty annually thousand measures of wheat and the same number of baht of olive oil. A baht contains seventy-two measures. Solomon sent him the same amount of wine. All this led to further strengthening the friendship between Hiram and Solomon, who, moreover, swore eternal fidelity to each other.

Then King Solomon recruited thirty thousand workers from all the people, who he greatly facilitated the work ahead of them by skillfully distributing the latter between them. The fact is that he appointed a party of ten thousand people for one month woodcutters on Mount Lebanon, and then sent this group home for a two-day rest months, during which the remaining twenty thousand workers did their job. When and when the time of their work expired, then the first ones who were like that took their place

Thus, during the fourth month, I had to work off my share. In general, Abraham was appointed as the leader of this entire number of workers. From the pre- the tax-paying class representatives whom David left behind were seventy thousand were appointed as carriers of stones and other building materials, and Eighty thousand were employed in the quarries. Above all of them was three thousand three hundred overseers were appointed. Then Solomon assigned these workers break off huge stones for the foundation of the temple and, after having first hewn and having roughly adjusted them to each other on the spot in the mountains, then deliver them in this way in a finished form to the city. However, this work was not carried out only by native workers, but also some of the craftsmen sent by Hiram.

Solomon began the construction of the temple already in the fourth year of his reign. reign, namely in the second month, which the Macedonians call Artemisia, and Jews of Iara, five hundred and ninety-two years after the exodus of the Israelites from Egypt, one thousand twenty years after the arrival of Abraham from Mesopotamia to Canaan, and a thousand four hundred and forty years after the flood. From the birth of the first man, Adam, until The construction of the temple by Solomon took three thousand one hundred and two years, according to the general falsity. That the year when the construction of this temple began was already the eleventh year Hiram's reign in Tire, and from the founding of Tire to the construction of the temple a period of two hundred and forty years.

So the king began by ordering that a fort be laid at a very considerable depth in the ground for the temple a foundation of very hard stones that could withstand continuation of a long time and, completely merging with the soil, could serve a solid and stable foundation for the construction of the proposed buildings and, thanks to their strength, would be able to withstand without difficulty not only the entire grandiose structure of the temple, but also the weight of all its decorations. The weight the latter should, according to calculations, be no less significant than the main one itself a building in which the king intended to combine beauty with space and height grandeur. The building was made of white stone right up to the roof. The height of this the building reached 60 cubits, as did its length, while its width was only twenty cubits. On this (main) building there rose another floor of the same size, so that the total height of the entire structure reached one hundred and twenty cubits. The building's façade faced east. The temple's entrance was twenty cubits in length, according to the width of the main building, ten cubits in height. In addition, the king ordered the construction of thirty small buildings around the temple, which, by the strength of their construction and their overall mass, were supposed to unite and contain the entire main building. All these buildings were connected to each other. (inside) doors. Each of these separate buildings was five cubits in length, the same in width and twenty in height. Likewise, on top of them were two more floors of the same volume and the same number were built on top, so that the whole the construction reached half of the main building of the entire temple, the upper half which was not surrounded by such outbuildings. On all of this rested a roof made of cedar wood. Each of the mentioned outbuildings had its own, not the roof touched the neighboring ones, yet the building was covered by one common roof, resting on huge beams fitted together, running throughout the entire building beams, with the middle parts of these beams, held in place by wooden rafters, firmly rested against each other and formed a solid foundation. The ceiling under the roof was made of the same material, but completely smooth scraped to accept the proper polishing and gilding. The walls of the temple received a covering of cedar boards and were gilded, so that the whole temple sparkled and dazzled the visitors with the abundance of gold spilled everywhere. The entire exterior decoration the temple was made of amazingly skillfully and precisely cut stones, which were fitted tightly and easily to each other, so that no one could notice a trace hammer or any other tool. Despite all this, the building was distinguished with extreme lightness and proportionality, and the whole harmony seemed rather natural rather than the result of the demands of art. In the inner part of the wall the king ordered to arrange an entrance to the top floor of the building, because this floor did not have an entrance on the east on its side, like the lower floor, the entrance, but it could be entered from sides through tiny doors. At the same time, the entire building, both outside and from the inside, it was lined with cedar planks, held together with strong chains, which served as a strong fence for him and gave him more stability.

Having divided the temple into two parts, the king determined that the rear part would be twenty meters long. cubits, for the Holy of Holies, and the front part, forty cubits long, for Sanctuaries. In the wall that separated the two parts, he ordered an opening to be cut out and place doors made of cedar wood, which were richly painted with gold and covered with carvings. The king ordered colorful curtains to be hung in front of these doors. azure, purple and violet from the most transparent and thin fine linen. In the Holy of Holies, which was twenty cubits wide and the same in length, two figures of cherubim made of chased gold were erected, each five meters high cubits. Each figure had two outstretched wings, each five cubits long. That is why the king placed the aforementioned cherubim almost next to each other, so that they could touch the southern side with their wings on one side and the the northern wall of the Holy of Holies and so that the two other wings of them overshadow the placed between these figures is the Ark of the Covenant. How wonderfully beautiful were these images cherubim, no one can tell or imagine. Also, the floor of the temple was lined with gilded slabs; the king ordered doors to be built at the entrance to the sanctuary in accordance with the height of the wall, and the width of twenty cubits, and also cover them gilded carvings. In general, there was not a single thing either inside or outside the structure, which would not be gilded. In these doors, just as it was done with the inner entrance to the Holy of Holies, curtains were also hung, while the entrance to The vestibule of the temple was not decorated with anything similar.

Chapter 2

Civil strife among the Jews from three parties - and about removal of the unclean from the city of Jerusalem

In Jerusalem, three parties formed among the Jews, who turned their weapons against each other. Their actions marked the beginning of the decline of Jerusalem's independence. Not without justice one can call this state a rebellion within a rebellion, which like a maddened beast, due to hunger, it begins to tear itself apart own body.

The partisans chose the temple as their place of battle, one party occupied the top of the temple, and the other defended itself below. Although in their madness they allowed themselves all sorts of outrages, However, they allowed those who wanted to sacrifice into the temple, limiting themselves to a search only the latter; and the native inhabitants were searched more strictly than the foreigners Jews. Often all the worshipers fell victim to civil strife, for the arrows by the force of machines reached the altar and hit the priests and sacrificers. Many fell before their victims and with their blood moistened the altar, which was highly revered by all the Greeks and barbarians. The bodies of natives and strangers, priests and Levites, lay, mixed with each other, and the blood from these various corpses formed within the sanctuary is a real lake. Have you, most unfortunate of cities, experienced something similar to the Romans, who entered you in order to cleanse you from the vile deeds of your own children? For you have already ceased to be the city of God. to be and could not be more after you became the grave of your own citizens and when you turned the temple into a cemetery for the victims who fell in the civil war war.

On the removal of unclean people from the city of Jerusalem: “And the Lord spoke to Moses, saying:
"Command the children of Israel that they put out of the camp every leper and any purulent and any unclean (from touching) a human corpse.
Whether man or woman, send them out; send them out of the camp, so that they do not defile their camps, in the midst of which I dwell. And the children of Israel did so, and “They sent them out of their camp” (Num. 1:1-4).

The word "stan" is quite consistent with the nomadic environment in which they found themselves.
Jews during their wanderings in the desert. The entire nation was divided into four "camps," arranged in the form of a camp: 3 tribes in the vanguard, 3 in the rearguard and 3 tribes on on each flank. Inside this large camp there was another, smaller one, Levites and priests, and in the center of the latter was located the “abode of the covenant,” i.e. portable collapsible temple.

It is obvious that the purpose of the given command is to protect the people from the possibility infection through close contact with persons considered by law to be carriers of the infection.
That the law did not have an exclusively sacred lining, i.e. to prevent unclean persons to have communication with the temple and with sacred utensils - this follows from that the command was not addressed to the Levites, so that they would not let the unclean pass persons to the "abode of the covenant," and to the Israelites, so that they would send them out from among themselves. And The commandment was fulfilled again not by the Levites, but by the Israelites.

All this applies to the environment of nomadic life. How can this very thing be applied?
law to the environment of a settled life? The Tosefta gives the following parallel:
“Just as there were three ‘camps’ in the desert: the divine camp, the Levitical camp and the camp of Israel, and so it was in Jerusalem: from the gates of the city to the entrance to the Temple
The mountain is the Israeli camp, from the entrance to the Temple Mount to the gate of Nikanor - the camp Levitical, but everything that is within the gate of Nicanor is the divine camp, and corresponds to the space that was surrounded in the mobile temple curtains” (1 Tosefta Kelim 1, 12.).

Jews have lived in Arabia since ancient times, and around the 5th century AD the Jewish faith came to the throne in Yemen. In 522, King Dhu-Nawas, a Jew from ancient of the royal family, spoke out against the Christians and took revenge on them for the persecution of the Jews in Byzantium, but was defeated and killed in the war with the Ethiopian king Ellabaga in 525.
In 622, Judaism had a strong influence on Muhammad and the religion he created, called Islam. The Jews Abdullah ibn Salam, Finhas and others introduced

Muhammad with the Holy Scriptures and the Talmudic Haggadah, and he Arabized Judaism.
Mohammed tried to attract the Jews to his teachings, but the latter did not agreed to recognize him as their prophet. After the death of Muhammad, the most gracious the territories of northern Arabia, Palestine, Syria, Persia and Egypt were conquered Islam. Caliph Omar (638) introduced some restrictions for Jews and excluded them from government positions of Jews who did not want to convert to Islam.

With the spread of Mohammedan rule, mental the activities of the Jews in the Sura and Pumbedita academies, the heads of which were the title of gaon (great). People from all over the world flocked to the gaon, the gaon decided religious questions and sent ambassadors to all countries with orders and notifications, for which received rich gifts. The most remarkable of the Geonim were: Mar-Amram-ben-Sheshna, founder of the liturgical order of prayers (Siddur); Rabbi Saadia ben Joseph from Fiume, author of the philosophical work "Emunot Vedeat" (Religion and Religious views); Rabbi Sherira”, son of the Gaon Hanina (born 897, died 997 in Pumbedita), the author of the book "Megillat Setarim" (the secret scroll); commentator Rabbi Samuel-ben-Hofni HaKogen (960-1034); Rabbi Guy son of Gaon Sherira, author of a dictionary "Sefer Hameasef", and Rabbi Hisdai, executed after two years of activity (1040) in reign of Caliph Al-Mansur. With the death of the gaon Rabbi Guy (1038), the academy in Pumbedita, and two years later in Sura with the death of Hisdai.

1 Recently discovered was the Siddur, an Arabic prayer book by Rabbi Saadia.

2 He was executed in the hundredth year of his life by the Caliph Kedar.

As early as 750, the Geonim chose Hanan ben David in Resh Gelutah, and the elder brother him, the learned Anan-ben-David, passed over in the selection, moved out with his followers to Jerusalem, where he built a synagogue and founded a Karaite community. Anan rejected the oral law and adhered to the letter of the Holy Scripture (hence the name: "Sons of the Scripture" - "Ben Mikra-Karaim"), did not recognize the calendar introduced in the GU century. He determined the beginning of the month by the first appearance of the new moon (moled) and abolished the second days of the holidays. Karaites celebrate Saturday with all strictness, not lighting a fire even on Friday evening, not giving medicine even to the sick on Saturday and not cutting food. They differ significantly from the Rabbanites in their celebration solemn days and in worship; they observe the law of the threads of vision (tscis), but do not recognize phylacteries (tefillin) and Mezuzah. Currently, there are there are also Karaite communities in Crimea, Kherson, Nikolaev, Odessa and Troki (Vilnius provinces). The Karaites created a rich literature in the Hebrew language, which, However, even now it is little known, because some of it has not yet been published. The late Tsar Nicholas Pavlovich granted the Karaites equal rights because they were distinguished by diligence, honesty and strict morality, not like the Jews-Talmudists who go and live contrary to the Holy Scriptures.

Chapter 3

A story in the book "Etz Hachaim"

The book "Etz Hachaim" tells the following story: After the destruction of the first There are still many Jews left in Jerusalem who, although they were eyewitnesses siege of the city, but lived without mourning this unfortunate event. For this, the Lord did that a king (it is unknown which one) appeared and killed many of them. But since they led a life righteous and their only fault was that they did not mourn Jerusalem, then with them the following miracle happened: when they were killed, their bodies did not decay, despite the fact that they had not been buried for more than 20 years. “From this it is evident,” concludes the book "Etz Hachaim" - how it is necessary to mourn the destruction of Jerusalem." And the Jews, following the rabbis' advice, on the day when the destruction of Jerusalem is commemorated (it was July 9), they pray, cry, fast and even instill in children that it is necessary fast. The Talmud forbids smoking tobacco, playing cards, and everything else on that day. pleasure. On this day, Jews tear their clothes, sit on the floor without shoes and They read the book of Lamentations of Jeremiah in a sobbing voice, after which they go to the graves relatives and there they shed many tears. The story in the book "Midrash" about the devastation Jerusalem begins thus: “What does Holy Scripture mean when it inspires us with the following: Blessed is the man who is always careful, but the hard-hearted falls into misfortune? And then continues: “A person who intends to do something, especially bad, must think about the consequences of his actions. Is it easy to say that The destruction of Jerusalem was caused by two people: Kamtso and Barkamtso? In Jerusalem there lived a rich Israelite. He arranged a feast at his place, to which he invited many of his friends, but among his acquaintances there was one missing, named Kamtso. The host of the feast sent for him; but the servant, by mistake, called another person, Barkamtso, instead of Kamtso.

The host of the feast, seeing his enemy Barkamtso, asked him to leave his house.
The uninvited guest begged the host of the feast not to do him such a disgrace: “I, — he said, “I’ll pay you the agreed-upon money for the whole feast, just don’t humiliate me.” before the honored guests." (There were many members of the Sanhedrin at the feast.) The inexorable
The owner insisted on his own: he kicked Barkamtso out. The offended Barkamtso, wanting to take revenge on the host of the feast and others, he went to the king (Roman) and told him:
"Sire! Let it be known to you that the Jewish people do not respect you and always ready to insult your name." "Could this be?" asked the Emperor. "Believe me, this is so, - answered Barkamtso. - To make sure that my words are true, send some of the animals to Jerusalem and command the Jews to bring it to your glory, as a sacrifice to God, and you will see that they will reject your gift." The king, wanting to be convinced of the informer's words, immediately sends with him to Jerusalem one calf with the command to the Jews to bring him as a sacrifice. The Jews wanted to fulfill the king’s command, but the high priests, and especially especially Rabbi Zechariah, refused this, since the animal had a defect, which Barkamtso did with intent, knowing that vicious (with damaged limbs) animals
The law forbade sacrifice. The informer returned to the king with the animal, which convinced him of Israel's disobedience. The angry sovereign sends the first a nobleman with an army to punish the disobedient. On approaching Jerusalem the royal dignitary, wishing to be assured of victory over Jerusalem in advance, decided to try his luck in the following way. He starts shooting at the eastern towards Jerusalem, having planned in advance that if the arrows fall inside Jerusalem, then This will mean that the city will be defeated. At this thought, he takes a shot at east, and the arrows fall inside Jerusalem; then he shoots to the south, to the west, and Every shot also falls in the very center of the city. Although this alone could convince commander in victory, but he still doubted. “I’ll try,” he thinks, “to ask the first person he meets to say something." He comes across a boy who he asks, "Tell me something." The boy replies, "The prophet Jeremiah
It is said: “I will take vengeance on the Edomites” (1 Ezekiel 25:13, from the Hebrew text). This means, that the Lord Himself will one day intercede for Israel and severely punish the Edomites for the destruction of Jerusalem." "If so," thought the commander, "then why should I go to Jerusalem? Why should I take it and then be punished? "With this thought, he lays down his arms and accepts Jewish law. From him, the book says, descended "Midrash", the famous Rabbi Meyer. The king, having learned of this and not wanting to leave Israel, without punishment, sends another commander, Vespasian. He, approaching

Jerusalem, imposes an army on it and causes much harm to Israel.

Chapter 4

The Siege of Jerusalem by Vespasian

Once upon a time, several hundred thousand people gathered in Jerusalem on the occasion of a holiday.
Jews. Vespasian, upon learning of this, cuts off all communication with the city's inhabitants, hinders the delivery of bread, closes all water sources. The Jewish people owe
The women were, of course, going to die, but the Lord, as it says in the book "Midrash", did not suddenly leaves him and sends him patrons. At that time there lived three very honorable and rich Jews. They inspired the people and took on the maintenance of the entire army at their own expense.
the continuation of several years. One took on the task of feeding the people, the other heated all the houses in city, and the third delivered water. The position of the last one, named Nikdemi-Benigerie, Apparently, it was the worst of all, but he takes on this with complete trust in God a difficult matter. Knowing that one non-believing Jerusalem resident had several wells, which were mostly filled with rainwater, he goes to him with with a request to allow the use of water. The owner of the wells decided to provide water. only on the condition that the applicant undertakes to provide the necessary water in the event of a decrease for a large number of people, to pay him a certain amount of gold. The petitioner agrees, being confident that there will be rain and wells within a few months will fill with water. Unfortunately, there has been no rain during all this time; the last day. The owner of the wells sends his servant to the Jew Nikdemi-Benigerie, demanding from of the established money. Nikdemi-Benigerie says that the time has not come, and that He does not lose hope that God will send rain by the evening. The owner of the wells, having received such an answer, he grinned and said: “There was no rain for several months, and now it’s suddenly it will pour out! Besides, it’s a clear day.” Meanwhile, the pious Nikdemi-Benigerie goes to the temple, falls to the ground and says the following words: “Lord, our God! You, the Knower of hearts, know that I did not try to accept it for the sake of my glory. to find water, but for the glory of Your Holy Name, so that the people gathered do not were tormented by thirst, and in order not to deprive the people of the opportunity to preserve the holy

the covenant of our fathers is to be in Jerusalem during the feast days. But now there is no water, and Your family must suffer, and my creditor approaches me. Show mercy to the servant. to your own, as you once showed to our fathers; do not put me to shame, Lord, that they may know you "All." As soon as he finished his prayer, suddenly, as it is said in the book "Midrash", a dark cloud appeared in the sky, and behind it such a heavy rain poured down that all the wells were suddenly filled with water.

To the above story in the book "Midrash" is added another the story of the following miracle. “After that,” it is said, “the rain overflowed wells, the pious Nikdemi-Benigerie, of course, completely calmed down regarding the payment to his creditor; but what was his surprise when The owner of the wells still began to demand payment! “You promised me,” he said, pay on such and such a date before sunset, and now the sun has set; therefore you obliged to pay." Then the pious Nikdemi-Benigerie goes back to the temple and prays to God that He, for the sake of His glory, would show a new miracle and command the sun to shine. The Lord did not abandon this request: suddenly the wind blew, the darkness dispersed, the sun rose. It shone, standing in one place, and shone as on the best clear summer day. With this, of course, the owner of the wells was satisfied." This is what the Israelites were like in Jerusalem! But at the same time with people so pious, according to the story in the book "Midrash," there were many bad, drunk, depraved people in Jerusalem, especially "Prishim" (one of the Jewish sects). They were always especially thirsty for war. Having learned that Vespasian had surrounded the city, they turned to the elders of Jerusalem and demanded to take up arms against the enemies. But since the elders did not agree, they burned the grain stores, after which famine set in and the war became inevitable.

Chapter 5

Project of the Jew Aba-Sakra

At the same time, in Jerusalem there lived a man who was respected, famous and very intelligent. a Jew named Aba-Sakra, who was related to the great teacher Johanan Ben-Zokai. The latter, seeing the calamity of Israel, sends for his relative Aba-Sacra, upon his arrival at the house, says to him: “How long will we suffer, how long will we languishing from hunger? You know how one tender daughter of Israel died the other day from hunger; it is also known that many others are exposed to the same danger, and in the standing, whether anyone can stop the disasters of hunger and resist those misfortunes that “What harm do our enemies do to us?” “What should I do,” says Aba-Sakra, “if I

I began to speak to the people, as if in favor of the enemies, in order to submit to them, then I

"to come to grief." Johanan says: "Give me at least some advice: how to get out of cities; then I would come to the commander myself and ask him to spare Jerusalem.
I am clearly afraid to leave the city: they will take me for a traitor and kill me.”

“Here’s what you should do,” says Aba-Sakra, “pretend to be ill; when you hear about it, your disciples will know, then let them stand at your bedside, as if at a dying person, and to in the evening let them carry you out of the city, and let the guards not interfere and let convince her of the reality of your death, order your piece to be placed in the coffin stinking meat from some carrion, and thus you will leave the city and you will achieve your desired goal." Johanan took advantage of Aba-Sakr's advice. Arriving in enemy camp, he came to Vespasian and exclaimed: “Rejoice, king, rejoice!
Victory awaits you." - "How dare you," cried Vespasian, "call me king! You must be executed for calling me, a subject, king." "You - king, - objected Johanan, - for we have in the Scriptures that Jerusalem and the Holy House God's will be given into the hands of a foreign king, and you have to win over Jerusalem. Therefore you are the king." "But why didn't you come to me?" - "Evil people hindered me," answered Yohanan. "But if you If I saw a barrel of honey and a snake around it, I would probably kill it, get honey without hindrance? That's what you should have done with evil people, to be able to come to me." Johanan, no matter how smart he was, did not know that to answer this, says the book "Mi-drash", and by the will of God he was silent. It came true for him, What is said in the Holy Scripture: “I will turn the wise back and their counsel to shame.” What Indeed, God's Providence prevented Yohanan from objecting in this case,
We will see further. When Johanan continued to talk with Vespasian, he came from Rome the envoy announced that the emperor had died and that the Senate had elected Vespasian to replace him.
Vespasian, delighted, began to dress, but, to his surprise, he could not put it on.
boots. His legs became fuller, and no matter how hard he tried to find out the reason for this, no one those who were present could not explain it. Then Johanan said to him: “Above you, king,
What is said in the Holy Scripture is coming true: “Good news makes the bones fat”!

(Prov. 15), and because you received the good news today, your bones have become
“You are obese, and therefore it is not at all surprising that it is difficult for you to put on your boots.”
In general, Vespasian liked the speeches of Johanan very much, and he said to him: “Ask "Whatever you want from me."

Chapter 6

Yohanan asks for mercy for the city of Yavno

“I ask one thing of you,” said Yohanan, “after we have won the victory over "Jerusalem, spare the city of Yavno, which lies near Jerusalem." Vespasian willingly promised to fulfill his request and even expressed his consent to give him this city. "Not
Is it clear from this, says the book Midrash, that everything that Yohanan said about Whatever he asked for, it was all by God's will? After all, he could have asked for mercy.
Jerusalem, but he does not ask, but intercedes for something insignificant in comparison with Jerusalem city Clearly, and again does this because Jerusalem was doomed by God to destruction." Rabbi Akiba says that Yohanan is not interceded for Jerusalem because he knew the rule: if we ask for much, then they won’t give even a little. “In any case, Yohanan,” it says in the book “Midrash,” did a lot for the Jews. In the city of Yavno (Yamno) he built many schools and even academies, which trained tens of thousands of students, and the city of Yavno later became the new Jerusalem for Israel."

Then the book of Midrash says: “After Vespasian learned that he had been chosen to the king, he went to Rome, and in his place came Titus, who destroyed

Jerusalem. It should be noted that in the narrative in the book of Midrash, on the one hand, there is no mention of many of the deeds that Titus actually performed during sieges of Jerusalem and which are mentioned by historians (Josephus Flavius) - for example, about that the Roman legions quickly crushed almost the impregnable walls of Jerusalem, or how a thousand Roman veterans attacked to the temple and how they were reflected by the people and priests in the very sanctuary of the temple; with
On the other hand, there are stories and interpretations that do not fit in at all with actual events of the siege of Jerusalem. Here it is described in more detail what took place during the siege of the first temple. There is also some hint of hostility the structure that the Roman soldiers felt when looking at the Jews, especially when their performance of religious rites. Examples of such hostility

In this regard, the book "Midrash" presents the following two facts. The city of Tur-Malka, i.e. i.e. the city of kings, was devastated by the hated Romans, and for what? - for a rooster and a hen.

Chapter 7

Titus. The Siege and Destruction of Jerusalem

Before the siege of Jerusalem began, Titus set out with a detachment of cavalry to inspecting the location of the city, but was almost taken prisoner by the Jews who jumped out of northern gate. Titus rode away, leaving behind several killed and wounded. Then a large part of the army approached Jerusalem and settled in the north of the capital. Already at
At the very beginning of the siege, famine broke out in Jerusalem, followed by an epidemic that destroyed up to 500 people a day. Despite these disasters, the Jews decided to win or fall. together with the temple and the city. For sixty days, the Jews made frequent attacks on the Roman camp. Historians say that "the Jews, in their attacks, were more "They look more like enraged tigers than like people." Both the Romans and the Jews alternately they conquered, they were conquered. Finally, the Romans managed to take the suburb of Bezeta, from where access to Fort Antonia opened up. But the closer the danger got, the
The besieged rushed forward more furiously. In vain did Josephus Flavius admonish his fellow believers surrender, promising forgiveness in the name of Titus. But his promises were accepted with mockery, and someone threw a stone at Joseph, so that he fell to the ground.
Then Titus ordered the captives to be crucified, and up to five hundred were crucified before the eyes of the besieged.
Jews per day. Finally, after many futile assaults, on the dark night of 17 Tammuz
The Romans entered Antonia and pushed the Jews back to the temple.

1 In the Bible, the fast of the fourth month.

2 See Jerusalem on the map of Palestine

On this day, sacrifices ceased. Mount Moriah remained with the Jews, on which stood the temple under the protection of John of Niskala and Mount Zion with its upper part cities under the protection of Simon ben Giora. Flavius once again called on John to surrender, but the latter, having cursed him as a traitor, threw a stone at him. Then Titus himself became to admonish John, threatening to burn the temple, but they did not pay attention to his words.

The Romans attempted to storm the temple several times, but all their efforts were in vain. Titus finally ordered fire. The fire quickly destroyed the gallery that connected the Antonia fortress with the temple. Thousands of Jews fell in defense of their shrine in the outer courtyard. 9 Aba! one Roman soldier threw in a lit torch appeared in the window of the temple, the fire quickly engulfed the cedar building, and all efforts Titus's attempts to save the building were in vain. The next day the temple collapsed, and along with it the independence of the Jewish people was also destroyed." From the burnt sanctuary Only part of the western wall survived, to which devout Jews still go pilgrims. Simon and John defended the upper city for about four more weeks, But he (7 Elul) became a victim of robbery, murder and fire. More than a million

Jews perished in the three-year war from the sword, hunger, pestilence and flame, 900,000 Jews were taken captive, of whom many were condemned to death, many were sent to Egypt, Caesarea and Beirut to work and to fight in circuses with gladiators and wild animals animals, and the most beautiful young men were sent to Rome to decorate triumphal procession. Among the latter were also Simon and John, captured.

1 The Bible sings of the fifth month.

2,656 years after the fall of Solomon's Temple.

After the final destruction of Jerusalem, Titus went to Rome. Seven hundred youths, and at their head Simon and John, served as an adornment to Titus' triumph at entering the world capital. The most powerful were carried ahead of them as trophies.
precious vessels and utensils of the temple, a seven-branched golden candlestick, a golden table, scroll of the law, etc., also paintings depicting scenes of war, the siege of Jerusalem, Io-tapaty, temple, fire in the temple, etc. After the rite of triumph, the lictors Simon ben Giora was flogged and then killed; and John of Giscala was sentenced to imprisonment, where he died. On medals minted by the Romans in memory victories, Judea is represented as a weeping woman leaning against a palm tree, and next to her is a warrior; on the other side is depicted Vespasian, decorated with laurels, and around it is the inscription: "Tadea deulsya, Gadea sara" (captive, conquered Judea).

The last fortress of Masada was taken in 72, after the besieged (1000 Sicarii) first killed their wives and children, and then themselves. On the Jews a head tax called the "Jewish tax" was imposed. In 73 AD On the orders of Vespasian, the Temple of Onias in Egypt was also destroyed. In Jewish history a new period begins - the period of diaspora (dispersion) or, as it is usually called called the period of Roman captivity (Golut Edom).

Agrippa lived in Rome, where his sister Bernice ruled the heart for a long time.
young Emperor Titus. Josephus Flavius, enjoying an annual salary, lived on 25 years in Rome, during which time he wrote his historical works in Greek:
"Jewish Antiquities" (20 books), "The Jewish War" (7 books), his autobiography and
"The Defense of the Jews against their enemy Apion" (2 books) and died, as they say, violent death by order of Domitian, Titus' brother, around 95.

After the destruction of the temple, the Jews no longer had a homeland, and the scattered little Little by little the people formed only communities of the same faith. Every Jew begins to consider the country in which he was born, raised, and lives as his homeland. But the diaspora
(the dispersion) of the Jewish people, in fact, has little in common with the destruction Jerusalem and the Temple; there have long been Jewish communities in the countries lying on the banks of the Euphrates, in Asia Minor, in North Africa, in Greece and Italy. For another 100 years Before Titus, the Jewish community in Rome was already significant, and little by little they began to migrate to Judea.
the weak remnants of the unfortunate people began to gather. In the cities and villages it began again life began to awaken. Soon, wealthy Jews appeared who had escaped the general fate, and learned men who tried to save the spiritual heritage of the people. They consoled the unfortunate, strengthened their spirit and tried to unite all the scattered members Jews into one religious community. The spiritual Jerusalem for the Jews became Jamnia (Jabne), where, leaving all political activity, his main
The scientists made the task of studying traditional decrees a task. School in Jamnia replaced the temple; theologians replaced priests; prayer and repentance gained power victims; hardships and suffering in the present were rewarded with sweet hope for a time messianic; civil exploits and heroism in war were replaced by selflessness rabbinical teachers or Talmudic scholars (later) to protect religion. Zealots

These, according to their degree of importance, bear different titles: [. Tanai (second teachers 70-220),
I. Amorai (interpreters 220-400), Sh. Saborai (thinkers 400-640), TU Gaon
(the great 640-1040) and U. Rabbis from 1040 to the present.

The Jews had a custom of carrying a rooster and chicken. It was important that the young people live as peacefully as these people do.
spouses. Once upon a time, a whole regiment of Roman soldiers passed by a similar procession; Having seen this ceremony, they took away the rooster and the hen from the Jews. The Jews, considering themselves offended, they arbitrarily punished the guilty. Because of this, according to the book's story "Midrash," the war broke out. And here's another reason. The Jews had the next custom: when a child was born, the parents planted a tree that It was grown before the wedding and then used for the wedding ceremony "chuppah"
(a canopy under which Jewish weddings are performed). Once, while driving The Tsar's daughter's axle broke; the servant used one of these to fix the axle.
trees, and this also served as a pretext for the war. But the main reason for the destruction Jerusalem was, says the book "Midrash", the lawlessness of Israel. It was this that led to that the Lord, with all his love for Israel, decided to hand Jerusalem over to the hands of foreigners. The impious Titus is chosen as the instrument for this. He appears in Jerusalem and first of all enters the holy temple and says: “Behold, I stand now in inaccessible to all Jews, which is the "holy of holies." Having said this, Titus takes out from the Torah (Pentateuch) shrine, throws it on the ground and tramples it underfoot, saying:
"Let the Jewish God do something for me." Then he plunges the sword into the church curtain, from which blood immediately flowed. The wicked Titus was not horrified by this, and even laughed and said: “Now I have stabbed the Jewish God.” After that, he takes from temple all the sacred vessels and other riches and with them solemnly returns home. During his journey, such a strong wind blew at sea that the ship became to plunge into the waves. Titus, noticing this, said to his followers: “The God of the Jews and He is strong only on water, he drowned the Egyptians in the sea and he wants to do the same with me; but Let him try to compete with me on dry land! ”At these blasphemous words a chorus was heard a voice from heaven: “Do you, wicked man, the son of a wicked man, want to contend with Me?
“The slightest insect of mine will greatly destroy you.” Titus did not pay attention to this either;
His heart was not capable of recognizing the greatness of God: he considered himself above everyone.
The wind immediately calmed down, and Titus reached the shore safely. Having reached the shore, he was already completely cheerful and calm, not fearing God’s punishment at all.

Chapter 8

A midge gnaws at Titus's brain as punishment

God, wanting to humble his pride, sends against him not a strong insect, but a small midge that flies into his nostrils, begins to gnaw at his brain and thus tormented him for seven years in a row. Titus's suffering was unbearable, and only occasionally he received some relief, namely: when he managed to pass by forge, then the sound of the hammer would deafen the midge and stop its activity. This forced Titus to hire people who would constantly knock around him. And the Jews They knocked for him for free. But when the midge got used to the knocking, this measure also ceased to ease his suffering. Then the wicked Titus realized how difficult it is to go against God, and knowing how much he had sinned in his life, and fearing future punishment, after his death he ordered that his body be burned and turned into ashes, and that the ashes be scattered throughout to the whole face of the earth, so that the Jewish God could not find him on the day of judgment. Titus' desire was fulfilled."

1 The book "Midrash" says that upon opening Titus' body it was found that The midge was the size of a pigeon, weighing 2 pounds. The midge's mouth was copper, its legs iron.

But it did not save him from eternal torment, but on the contrary, it intensified it, as can be seen from the following. Titus, it is said in the book "Midrash", had a nephew, who really wanted to know how they were treating his uncle in the next world. And since the nephew was a great sorcerer (spiritualist), so he summoned the shadow of Titus and asked him how he lives in the next world. Titus replied that it was very bad, because it was very cruel punish for sins.

“Every day,” he said, “my body, after being burned, turns into dust, which scattered throughout the seven parts of the universe. In the morning, the next day, I am revived again and They burn in the same order. The nephew asked: “Tell me, uncle, who is on that account? "What faith is most honored by God, and which is most pleasing to Him?" Titus answered: "The people

The Jewish faith is held in higher esteem than all others, and the Jewish faith alone is pleasing to God. It alone can “to bring salvation to man.” “Therefore,” said the nephew, “I must accept the Jewish faith?" - "No," Titus objected, "don't do that, my dear. You are not you will be able to fulfill numerous prescriptions of Jewish law and, therefore, you will not escape punishment anyway. You better torment Israel more, for it is said: the enemy of Israel will become great in the land; and yet it is good if, according to at least you will take revenge on the Jews for me, and most importantly, you will annoy God greatly, for who is the enemy
"The enemy of the Jews is God's enemy." This is how Titus' conversation with his nephew ended.

Then the story in the book "Midrash" turns again to the temple and, as if wishing to move the hearts of the Jews more powerfully and touchingly and to show that the reason for the destruction temple - the actual sins of Israel, begins to talk about the murder of the prophet Zechariah.

Chapter 9

On the murder of the prophet Zechariah

Although this event has nothing to do with the actions of Titus and did not happen under him, as is evident from the subsequent story, it is enough that Zechariah was killed in temple.

This is how it happened: Nebuzarodin, during the conquest of Jerusalem, entered temple and, seeing boiling blood here, asked the Jews: “What kind of blood is this?” The Jews They answered: “This is the blood from the sacrifices.” But Nevuzarodin noticed that this blood not animals, but human. To further expose the Jews, he orders the killing animal to compare its blood with boiling resin; and it turns out that the latter
It doesn't look like animal blood at all. Then the irritated Nevuzarodin said Jews: “If you don’t explain to me whose blood this is, then I’ll be a curry comb
"to flay the skin from your body." The Jews confessed that it was the blood of the prophet Zechariah, whom they killed between the temple and the altar. But since the blood was boiling, as if demanding righteous vengeance, then Nevuzarodin said: “I will make it so that the blood
"He will calm down." Having said these words, he immediately killed several famous members the highest and lowest Sanhedrin and began to water the blood of the prophet Zechariah with their blood. But

The righteous man's blood never ceased to boil. Because of this, Nebuzarodin kills many more young men, maidens and children, repeating this bloody libation; but the blood now, as well as before, does not calm down. Then Nevuzarodin, touched by the sight of so many victims, He cried out, “Zechariah! Because of you, I have destroyed so many sons of Israel, and you still do not calm down; if you are not satisfied with these unfortunate victims, then I I will destroy all Israel." The blood of the righteous man immediately calmed down. Nebuzarodin thought:
“If because of one Israelite God punished only the Jews with death, then why
"What should I expect, having killed so many of them?"

Having said this, he left Jerusalem and became a pious Jew. From him Ger-zedek occurred. But the temple, condemned by God for the lawlessness committed in him, of course, could not escape punishment; especially since after the murder of Zechariah after all the punishments suffered by Israel for shedding the blood of the righteous, the Jews not only did not correct themselves, but continued to sin even more. To show with their own eyes how far the Jews of that era had a lower level of morality, according to the book "Mi-drash"
The following example of their behavior is presented. The Lord, seeing that Abraham had become like would be right, he said: “Let the letters of the law appear here and testify about affairs of Israel!” Immediately all 22 letters of the Hebrew alphabet appeared to testify against Israel.

Chapter 10

22 letters of the law accuse Israel

The first letter to appear was the aleph (a). Abraham addressed it with the following with the words: “You are the first letter of all, and you want to testify against my children, that they have transgressed the law. Remember the day on which God gave the law on Sinai and which he began with you: "Adonai-Anoikhi", that is, "I am the Lord your God," and Israel to this day knows one God and honors this commandment of His sacredly." Then the letter aleph She felt ashamed, stepped aside, and did not testify against Israel. After her the second letter beth (6) came forward, with the same purpose. Abraham says to her:
“You, beth, want testify against Israel? Remember that the first chapter of the book begins with you Genesis: "Bereshit bara elohim", i.e. in the beginning God created heaven and earth, and Israel considers it a sacred duty to read the whole law daily; how can you "Will you dare to accuse him?" This letter is also deleted. A third letter comes after it.

"Gimel" (g) and also wants to testify against Israel. Abraham says to her: "And Do you still want to testify against my children? What nation is like Israel in this matter?
keeping the law given at Sinai? For example, it commands wearing tzitzis (wool threads that Jews wear on the edges of their clothing as a sacred sign, and kiss during worship), and Israel strictly observes this, and the commandment about this it begins with you: "Gedilim-taselokh", i.e. "make tzitzis for yourself." And the letter Gimel was ashamed and went away. Then all the other letters, seeing how the first three were ashamed and convicted of perjury, and did not dare to testify any more on Israel. Having proven that Israel is not as guilty as it is accused, Abraham began to remind God of all that he had done for His sake and for the sake of the future.
his offspring. “Lord, my God, I was a hundred years old when I prayed to You for a son;
I raised him until he was 13 years old and received a command from You to sacrifice him to You:
“Could you not have mercy on my children for this reason?”

Chapter 11

The Intercession of the Patriarchs for Israel

After Abraham, Isaac spoke with the following speech: “The head of all universe! When my father wanted to sacrifice me to You, I unconditionally
I obeyed him; I allowed myself to be tied up and carried the wood on my shoulders to the sacrificial site.
Nika. And couldn't you remember this, consider it a merit, and pardon the children?
yours?

Having said this, he left. Jacob came after him and said: “Lord, my God!
It is known that I served Laban for exactly 20 years for the sake of my children of Israel. When I left from him, then my brother, the wicked Esau, met me and wanted to kill me and my children, but I did not spare myself for their sake. You then blessed me and made a covenant with me:

have mercy on my descendants. Now Israel is given into the hands of enemies who mock "They can do whatever they want with him."

After the speech of the forefathers ended, Moses came up and said: “Ruler of the universe, Wasn't I the zealous shepherd of Israel? I walked before him forty years in the desert, and when the time was approaching to bring them into Jerusalem, then You declared to me that I would not be worthy to enter the holy land, for the inheritance of which he had labored so much and suffered so much from Israel, and indeed I died in the desert. Now that Jerusalem is no more, You sent a prophet for me and called me not to see the holy city and all the blessings with which he was filled shortly before; no, You called me for so that when I see the desolation of Jerusalem, I will weep for it."

Moses was grieved, unable to contemplate the calamities that had befallen Jerusalem and especially Israel, which he always loved so tenderly, he turned to Jeremiah and said: “Let’s go, Prophet, to where the Israelites were taken into captivity; I
I'll see which of the enemies dared to touch Israel with even a hand." - "It is impossible “Go,” answered Jeremiah, “for there are many slain: the whole road is strewn with them.” Moses responded to this said: “It’s okay, let’s go right now.” And they went to the city of Babylon. The captives
The Israelites, seeing Moses, rejoiced and said to one another, “Moses, our
"The great leader has risen from the grave and has come here to lead us out of captivity." But alas!
At the moment when Moses wanted to accomplish the deliverance of Israel, just as committed once during the stay of the Jews in Egypt, a “bass-kol” was heard, i.e. a voice from heaven: “Moses! Moses! Leave your intention: know that by My will Israel taken captive; can you resist My eternal heavenly predestination? Moses, hearing a voice from heaven, said to Israel: “My children! I I can't do anything for you now. I'm not able to get you out of captivity: this is "gzaremin" hashamain" (i.e. God's purpose). Therefore, pray to God and trust in Him mercy." After these words of Moses, the Jews began to weep and wail, as it is said in psalms: “By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down and wept” (Psalm 136). Then Moses goes to the forefathers and says to them: “Oh, what have the enemies done to our children! They alone beaten, tortured others, tied the hands of others and put heavy shackles on their bodies, others lying naked and barefoot in the street, breathing their last; many have already died, and their bodies, deprived of burial, are thrown to be eaten by wild beasts, and the birds peck at them."

Chapter 12

Lamentations of All Saints for the Jews

Then a general lamentation begins among the saints. “Woe to us,” they cry, “that this is so they deal unkindly with our children! O our beloved child, Israel! After of the bliss that we had in Jerusalem, is it easy for us to walk barefoot, naked, "to endure cold, heat and hunger!"

Then Moses, listening to the lamentations of the saints about Israel, turns to the sun and says to him: “Cursed be your light! Why did you not darken on that day and hour when "The enemy has entered the temple of God?"

The sun replies: “Moses, faithful shepherd of God! How could I not to illuminate the day on which the house of God was destroyed, when I was forced to do so 60 blows of fiery rods? I was told: "Go now, shine," - and whether it wanted to or not, it had to shine." Then Moses turns to the temple itself and says: "Alas! Woe to you, house of God! Your fate is most pitiful: your light has faded, You are no longer on earth; your friends will no longer visit you. They are in captivity."

Having said this, he turned to those who had taken them captive and began to intercede for Israel.
“I beg you,” he said to his enemies, “do not kill children in front of their parents, wives in front of presence of husbands, and vice versa; the law says not to kill a son on the same day father. Know that there will be a time when our Lord will remember Israel and have mercy him. Then he will demand an account from you of your lawless deeds." The enemies do not listened to Moses. They began to act contrary to his requests: they killed their sons in the eyes of fathers, parents, in the eyes of children. That's not all: they also gave weapons to parents and forced them to kill children with their own hands. It's worth noting, the book says. "Midrash" on how courageously the Jews endured the tortures to which they were subjected enemies. When they were unable to bear their insults, they did not spare themselves or their Their selflessness often terrified their enemies. Once, as the book tells "Midrash" transported many Jewish captives by sea on a ship; there were up to 400 girls, whose beauty captivated many young men. When the latter began to seduce chaste Jewish virgins, then the eldest of them, seeing her hopeless situation, she said to her friends: “Let’s not destroy our souls; it’s better to rush into the depths the sea, than to sin before God and deprive oneself of the future life. The depths of the sea are not should frighten us; the Holy Scripture says: "I will bring you back from the depths

"sea" (Psalm 67 from the Hebrew text). Having said this, she was the first to throw herself into the water;
All the others followed her example. They, like all the Jewish martyrs, what is said in the Holy Scripture has come true: “But for Your sake everyone will kill us day" (Psalm 43:23). And here is another, says the Midrash, valiant example self-denial of seven Jewish youths.

Chapter 13

Seven youths before the king

During the Jews' captivity, one Jewish captive had 7 sons who, with their devotion to faith, attracted the attention of many, even the king himself. When the Babylonian king learned of them, he ordered them to be presented to him. And they were brought in. The king said to the first of them: "Bow down to our god and serve him."
The young man answered: “The Scripture says: ‘I alone,’ says God, ‘they worship Me, but not others", so I don't want to bow to your god. After these words, he was taken out and executed. They brought in a second one. The king told him the same thing. The young man answered: “The law says:
"You shall have no God but Me," and therefore I will not serve your God and bow down." They dragged him out and killed him. A third one was brought in. The king said: "Bow down this image." The young man replied: "The law forbids worshiping a tree, instead of the true God." And they dragged him out and killed him. They did the same with the fourth, fifth, sixth. When they brought the seventh, the youngest, the king said to him: “Child mine, bow to our god,” pointing to the image standing there.
sha replied: “The Holy Scripture says that there is one God who is present on in heaven, there is no other like it. Your image is not the image of the true God, but that’s why I don’t want to bow to him.” The king said to him: “You see, my child, your brothers there was no one on earth; they had already lived long enough in this world and enjoyed life, therefore It's no wonder they persisted and suffered for their persistence. But you You're just starting to live, you haven't seen anything good, so you shouldn't neglect life. Don't bring yourself to death; obey me as a king, and I I will make you happy."

The young man answered: “King! The Holy Scripture says: ‘The Lord is the king.
eternal, and when he reigns, all the kings of the earth will perish." And what is our life,
"To sacrifice eternity for her? Today I am alive, but tomorrow I may die."

The king said, “It is a pity for me to destroy you; this is what I will do: I will drop my ring, and You will lift it up and show that you are bowing to me." The child says to him: "Alas! You want me to bow to you at least for the sake of people, to spare you shame before my subjects. But how can I not fear God, who is the King of Kings and Creator of all?” Then the king said: “Enough, child, is there still a God in the world?” “You are mad,” the child replies, “if you doubt the existence of God; here is your god, whom you worship is not a god; it is said of him in the Holy Scripture: he has mouth, but cannot speak, has eyes that do not see; but about our God it is impossible “To say this.” “May your God deliver you from my hands,” said the king.

The young man objected to this: “‘Do not test God,’ it says in the Holy Scripture. Neither you, the wicked, nor I, the sinner, are worthy of the sign."

The king ordered him to be killed immediately.

The mother who was standing here approaches her murdered children and says: “My dears Children! Your death is honorable; go to Abraham and tell him that if he brought "If I sacrificed my only son to God, then I sacrificed seven..."

After the story of the torments suffered by the Jews in captivity, the book
The Midrash story says that Rachel wept a lot about the calamity of Israel. She
The last one appeared to God and was consoled by Him more than anyone else. These are the words she said turned to the Creator: “God Almighty! You know well that Your servant Jacob he loved me very much and served my father for 7 years; but when the wedding day came, then the father considered it necessary to give him his eldest daughter Leah in marriage. I, having learned of my father's intention, did not not only did not hinder him, but also conveyed to her sister the words that Jacob informed me on the eve of the wedding regarding our future mutual relationship, and even instead of her sister Leah, she spoke to Jacob on the first night, standing behind screens of their marriage bed. I did all this not because I didn’t love Jacob, but precisely in order not to disgrace my innocent sister and to give her the opportunity her marriage will take place. So, if I, a woman, a weak creature, did not envy my sister, -
How could You, O Almighty God, envy Idumea and prefer those who serve not you, but the tree? You allowed these to mock your people. Remember and how You swore by Your holy name to have mercy on Israel, and now You have betrayed him into "The hands of enemies?" Rachel's words touched God and so appeased Him that He immediately consoled with the following heavenly voice: “Rachel, my daughter, for your sake I will return again the Israelites to Jerusalem, their holy city."

Chapter 14

The Prophecy of Jesus Christ about the Destruction

Jerusalem Temple

Jesus Christ predicted the eternal desolation of the Temple of Jerusalem and the subjugation of Jerusalem to the pagans (Extracted from the magazine "Wanderer" of May 1894.

"From what you see here, not a stone will be left unturned. Everything will be destroyed... And Jerusalem will be trodden down by the Gentiles until the times are fulfilled "Gentiles" (Luke 21:6, 24).

The first of these prophecies is of special interest in one respect.
When investigating other prophecies, it is possible to use only observation, and
This is how experience has been applied over the centuries.

The audacity of Julian the persecutor was not limited to mockery followers of Christ: he decided to laugh at the founder of the religion himself.
The Old Testament Temple of Jerusalem, destroyed, presented a convenient pretext by the soldiers of Titus (70 AD) and razed to the ground by Hadrian (136 AD) in fulfillment of the words Jesus Christ, the above mentioned. Julian decided to resurrect the sanctuary of Zion in former splendor, but only forgot that “God is not mocked.”

In 363, Julian wanted to refute the truth of this prophecy and decided to restore Solomon's Temple to its original beauty. Let's describe this event in Gibbon.

Since all Christians were firmly convinced that the sentence of eternal destruction pronounced over the entire system of Mosaic legislation, then the royal sophist could to turn the success of his enterprise into a plausible argument against faith in prophets and the truth of revelation. The closest friend and Julian's minister, the "virtuous and learned" Alypius. Alypius' zeal found active support in the Palestinian governor. At Julian's call, the Jews began flock to the sacred mountain of their ancestors from all the provinces of the empire, and their daring
The rejoicing alarmed and irritated the Christians living in Jerusalem. The desire to again building the temple has always been the dominant passion of the children of Israel. In this

In a happy moment, men put aside their self-interest, and women their delicacy; silver shovels and spades were brought by vanity rich people, and the trash was carried in silk and purple robes. All wallets were open. were eager for generous donations, everyone wanted to participate in this pious work, and the orders of the great monarch were carried out with the enthusiasm of the entire people. However, the combined efforts of power and enthusiasm proved unsuccessful in this case, and the place designated for the Jewish temple, now occupied by the Mohammedan the mosque, still presented an edifying spectacle of ruin and devastation. (Gibbon 11, 557-559).

Goethe (History of the Church. T. Sh, p. 282) describes this event as follows: They began to works, they started with dismantling the foundations and the remaining parts of the walls, when they wanted to start new foundations, the work became difficult; the land was constantly being destroyed and filled in the holes made with great effort, a strong wind swept away prepared materials, at the same time strong vibrations from the earth were felt tremors. However, the Jews did not lose heart, rebuilding what had been destroyed every day. They settled down at the site of the works themselves; all their tents were overturned by the storm and shelters; many of them were crushed or mutilated. When, after digging, they wanted to lay the last stones of the ancient foundation stones new building, the flames rose from the ditch and burned the workers who did not have time to escape. There was no way to continue the work. Mysterious crosses appeared on clothes of Jews.

Contemporary and respected writers tell stories with various variations such as an earthquake, a whirlwind and a sudden fire destroyed and The new foundation of the temple was scattered around. This event was described by the Milanese Bishop Ambrose in a letter to Emperor Theodosius, which was supposed to to arouse the strongest indignation in the Jews; an eloquent golden-tongued man who could refer to the memories of the old-timers of his Antioch diocese, and Gregory Nazianzus, who published his account of the miracle at the end of the year in which it happened. The last of these writers boldly asserted that this The supernatural event was not denied by unbelievers; and his words, no matter how seemingly They were strange, - is confirmed by the irrefutable testimony of Ammianus Marcelina. (Attap , 1. SitNadie geï Yogiḱ 1$ḱ i iųs, ji rgovipsiae gesiog, tŕŕųepa 21061 Pattagit rgore Gopaatepa sgebgis azz from egstrepḱe Gasege 1osit ekizI$ aPdioNez oregapibis ipassessit, hsssssit, hss to4 @tp desisss gerepḱe, sessagi ipsoerŕit).

Chapter 15

Testimony of Ammoniac Marcellinus

This soldier-philosopher, who appreciated the virtues of his master, but not infected with his prejudices, told in a sensible and written by him conscientious history of its time, what extraordinary obstacles stopped the construction of the Jerusalem Temple. While Alipius, with the help of the governor the province was actively busy with the construction, terrible fireballs began break out near the foundation, frequent explosions repeatedly scorched to death workers and made the place inaccessible. Since the elements themselves were too persistent resistance, then he left the enterprise. Such authority should have to satisfy those who believe and to astonish those who do not believe (P, 560-562). Gibbon does not want to believe this fact. Having written the above, he adds: “But the philosopher will still require the testimony of impartial and intelligent people eyewitnesses. During this important crisis, any unusual natural phenomenon would have been taken for a real miracle" (562-563). He explains the cessation of work the absence and death of the emperor (559), but Julian learned of the failure of the construction before his departure for the Persian campaign. At the same time, he said: “There is nothing eternal in in this world, even if it is impossible to restore worship to Him Who is in Scripture is called Eternal" (Goethe, III, 283). In favor of the certainty of the miracle This is evidenced by the reliable fact that Christian writers, turning to The Jews, witnesses of this incident, are told about miraculous events.

Emperor Julian was greatly concerned with various accidents the upcoming campaign against the Persians and therefore with fiery zeal accelerated the comprehensive preparations for him. Nevertheless, everywhere extending his plans and striving He intended to spend the greatness of his deeds to continue the memory of his reign huge funds for the restoration of the once magnificent Temple of Jerusalem, which, during the Roman siege, was taken with difficulty. Alypius of Antioch, who had previously governed Britain as its chief, the Emperor instructed him to quickly to do this work. Although therefore Alipiy persistently set to work, with the assistance of the governor of the province and with the assistance of the Jews and their capital, but menacing tongues of flame, often and rapidly bursting out from under the foundation, repeatedly burned the workers and made the area inaccessible. Thus The enterprise ceased to exist due to the stubborn resistance of the elements (Amm. Marcelin XXII, 1).

But who doesn't know that there have never been volcanoes in Jerusalem? Moreover, Christian writers narrate that the fire that scorched the workers left on them clothes with signs of the cross (Rufinus I, 37; Socrates III, 17; Theodoret III, 20; Sozomen V, 21).

So, it was not the “stubborn resistance of the elements” that was an insurmountable obstacle, but the will of God, Whose power Julian the Apostate soon experienced: on the campaign he was mortally wounded by an enemy weapon and, falling to the ground in blood, cried out in deathly anguish: “You have won after all, Galilean!”

Michaelis explains naturally the fact stated by Ammianus. But Why then did the same natural causes not prevent it 300 years later?
construction of a Muslim mosque on the same site?

For our purpose it is almost indifferent whether to recognize or not to recognize a miracle in the event described. The prophecy of Jesus Christ under study was fulfilled and continues to be fulfilled to this day. There is no Jewish temple on the site of Solomon's temple.
exists, and for Christians a mosque is the same abomination of desolation as a desert and ruins.

The second prophecy given continues to be fulfilled to this day. Jerusalem is trampled upon by the pagans, although each of the Christian great powers individually could take it away from Turkey.

Chapter 16
The State of Palestine in Relation to the Prophecies

The land of Israel, the Ammonites, Moab, Idumea and other neighboring countries were fruitful and very populous both during the Jewish kingdoms and during Jesus Christ, and under the rule of Rome and Byzantium. They were the same in the beginning.
Arab domination. These countries have retained their natural fertility.

Science, for its part, provides precise evidence that the climate of Palestine has not changed since the time of the prophets. An increase in temperature by one degree caused would give up the cultivation of grapes; with a decrease of one degree of palm would cease to produce edible fruit. Grapes were cultivated in Palestine during the Moses and is cultivated now, the fruits of the palm trees were used as food during the time of Moses, are still used today.

All the countries named were predicted to be devastated and desolate, which in accuracy and was fulfilled during many centuries of Muslim rule. Each The country presents exactly the appearance depicted in the prophecies.

The most complete desolation is predicted for Idumea, and it is “such that when one sees it, one cannot help but wonder how such a vast and deserted space could once have existed or be adorned with cities and inhabited for centuries by powerful and "a rich people" (Keith, p. 305). In the time of Hadrian and later until Heraclius, - jsi Ѓi si s[ḱis - was famous for its wealth and fertility. In it there were 16 cities, but now “there are no longer any inhabited urban settlements here; all the cities “lie in ruins” (Reclus. General Geography. Vol. [X, p. 572).

Citing the evidence of various travelers, where possible and Volney, Kate shows how every smallest detail of the prophecies was fulfilled with complete precision.

“The roads are empty, there are no travelers... The earth laments, dries up: Lebanon shamed, withered; Sharon became like a desert, and Bashan and Carmel...” (Is. 33:8, 9), “Open your gates, Lebanon, and let the fire devour your cedars. Howl, O cypress, for the cedar is fallen; for the mighty ones are laid waste; howl, O oaks. “Bashan, for the impenetrable forest has fallen” (Zech. 11:1, 2). (“The Wanderer”, May, 1894).

Where the Lebanese forest once stood, there is now land for many miles around devastated and naked, as if there had never been a single glorious tree here, which ever adorned this desert... Volney says of Lebanon: “Here, in the midst of the cliffs, insignificant remnants of the notorious cedars... Not a single village in Basan has any orchards or fruit trees, no vegetable gardens for growing greens... From of the vineyards for which Bozra was famous, not the slightest trace remained. The summit and the sides of Carmel are covered with bushes and flowers, but are completely bare of trees."
(Kate, 241, 2, 7, 8).

"The sad earth laments. The grape juice cries, the grapevine aches; they sigh all who were merry in heart. The joy with the timbrels ceased; the noise died down merrymakers; the sounds of the gusli have died down. They no longer drink wine with songs; strong drink is bitter for those who drink it. They weep for wine in the streets; all joy is darkened; gladness is driven out. land." (Is. 24:4, 7, 8, 9). ("The Wanderer", May, 1894).

Keith cites Volney's calculations based on the testimony of the ancients writers that Judea in the time of Titus had four million inhabitants, and the same The population was among the Philistines, the Phoenicians, and the kingdoms of Samaria and Damascus. Now in these countries, with the inclusion of the ruined Moab and Ammonia and completely desolate Idumea, about one and a half million. (Advertisement. Vol. XI, p. 641).

Chapter 17
About Babylon

The prophecies about Babylon are especially numerous. “And Babylon, the beauty of kingdoms, the pride of the Chaldeans will be overthrown by God like Sodom and Gomorrah. It will not be inhabited never, and throughout all generations, will there be no inhabitants in it. The Arab will not pitch his tent, and shepherds with their flocks will not rest there. No wild beasts of the desert will dwell there, and houses will be filled with owls; ostriches will settle there, and shaggy ones will jump there. Jackals they will howl in their palaces, and hyenas in the pleasure houses." (Is. 13:19-22). "Fat the walls of Babylon will be razed to the ground.” (Jer. 51:58) (“The Wanderer,” May, 1894).

Babylon was a populous city before the Parthian emperor was appointed to it. governor of Himerus (130 BC). Himerus, surpassing all in cruelty famous tyrants, according to Diodorus, burned and destroyed a significant part of the city, sold many inhabitants into slavery and deported them to Media. In the first century of the Christian era Babylon was an even larger settlement, a small part of it was inhabited, and an incomparably larger area was cultivated. In the 18th century, its walls served as a fence for predatory animals, and it was a hunting ground for the Persian kings. In the 12th century, during

During the travels of Benjamin Tuleda, twenty thousand Jews had permanent residence within the city walls. (Advertisement. Vol. XI, 390). The walls of Babylon are of incredible height and the thicknesses still existed in the 16th century, but there was no longer a single house within the fence;
Now it is impossible to reliably determine the traces of the walls.

In eastern countries, shepherds usually use broken ones buildings for corralling their flocks, but Babylon is an exception. The Arabs are afraid to stay overnight among the ruins of Babylon. The people of this country claim that It is extremely dangerous to approach these ruins because of the many evil spirits that often visit them. Reclus cites the opinion of the Assyriologist Oppert, that the Arab city of Gilla (15,000 inhabitants), located on the right bank of the Euphrates, lies on the site of the industrial quarter of Babylon. But according to the latest research According to Rossam and Smith, Babylon was located only on the left bank of the Euphrates.

Perhaps that is why Babylon received from above such a definition as the main the place and den of the Talmudic sages who compiled the Talmud there, so disgusting and blasphemous against Christ and Christianity. Based on the teaching Babylonian Talmud, Jews daily pray fervently: "Let the name disappear the wicked, and the memory of them will be blotted out," i.e. Christians. According to Jehovah's definition, Adinai and Shekinah, in this area the name of the Jews disappeared, and their place was erased in forever and ever.

Chapter 18

Chronological list of the destruction of Jerusalem' (We have given only a few prophecies and their fulfillments; those who wish to become acquainted with this issue
You should refer to Keith's book in more detail, and for verification you can use Norov's book "Journey to the Holy Land in 1835"

In the second year of Vespasian's reign, Jerusalem was conquered. Five times he was previously conquered, and was destroyed once. Once it was taken by the king
By the Egyptian Asocheus, then by Antiochus, after Pompey, and after him by Sosius together with Herod house. In all these cases the city was spared each time; but even before them it was conquered by the Babylonian king and destroyed by him 1468 years after its founding.
The first founder of the city was a Canaanite ruler whose name in the native language was language means "Righteous King", which is what he really was. Therefore, he was the first priest of God, to whom he founded a sanctuary, and a city called formerly Solim, it was renamed by him into Jerusalem. Later, the Jewish king David expelled the Canaanites from the city and populated it with his fellow tribesmen. 477 years after him

The city was destroyed by the Babylonians. From King David, the first king of Judah in In Jerusalem, 1177 years passed before the destruction caused by Titus, and from from the original foundation to the last conquest - 2177 years. Neither the antiquity of the city, neither its incredible wealth, nor the fame of its people spread throughout the land, neither the great glory of the divine service performed in it could save him from attacks. This was the end of the siege of Jerusalem.

Chapter 19

Political intrigues of the Jews in Ancient Rome

Historian Manfrin argues that Pompey's Palestinian victories and the resettlement from there to Rome the captives cannot be considered the beginning of the Jewish emigration to Italy. This the event only contributed to the formation of new Jewish layers on the previously the laid foundation. The author also claims that the Jews of the Julian period most of them were not natives of Palestine. In Cicero's speeches on the revelation of the conspiracy of Catiline mentions that they lived in the metropolis earlier 691 AD after the foundation of Rome (63 BC).

In any case, the period of time between Pompey's return from Asia and Cicero's speeches pro E1aco was short, a little more than a year, therefore, It is impossible to allow the Jews brought to Rome as captives to have time to settle in with the political mores of Rome and to establish his community so much that it could become dangerous to the Roman tribunals and to such a powerful orator as he was Cicero. Cicero's very speeches prove that the Roman Jews were incomparably earlier Pompey had already grouped himself into a proper community, for Cicero accuses them of deeds dangerous to Rome, committed together much earlier. It is visible at all times from history, where only the Jews were given freedom out of humanity, this freedom is always became a danger to governments, threatening great political disaster, what the humane republican Rome experienced from the Jews. Most the Jewish population in Rome consisted of freedmen or those who had received freedom captives; meanwhile, Augustus allowed them to live completely freely, in accordance with their customs and laws. Augustus knew that the Jews had schools (synagogues), that in these Public meetings take place in schools on Saturdays. Under Augustus, there were Jews in

There are about 8,000 people in Rome who are willing to support the petition against Archelaus.
(son of Herod). As Dio Cassius testifies, under Claudius the number of Jews was in Rome so significantly that the decree on their expulsion could cause a dangerous situation for the state.
rebellion against the state authorities. This is what freedom given to Jews leads to, they were advancing everywhere the same consequences, for example, in Egypt, under the pharaohs, - the freedom given to the Jews to What did this lead to for the state and the local people? To disasters. That's why hundreds of people are alive examples show us that all states that have this nation, rejected By God, we must keep them captive, tightly tied, then they can cause minimal harm to others.

According to Basnage, the main Jewish quarter occupied the very same part of Rome, which is now covered by the vast buildings and gardens of the papal Vatican.
Manfrin's research, Jewish synagogues with adjacent cemeteries in There were seven in ancient Rome. However, there is no definitive proof that all of them there were earlier destructions of Jerusalem, although there is a lot of archaeological evidence, leading one to believe that they all existed during the Jewish period prosperity, - under the emperors of the Julian house. Undoubtedly, however, the existence of three rich synagogues in Rome during the reign of Herod. In addition,
The Roman Jews had their own synagogue in Jerusalem, founded before the war, which confirms the opinion about the aspirations of the Roman, as well as the Alexandrian community, to the famous independence from Jerusalem.

After Judea was converted into a Roman province and ceased to be to be ruled by their kings, especially under the Emperor Claudius and in the early years During Nero's reign, two almost independent governments: 1) military-civil, administrative city government, headed by a procurator appointed by the Caesars; and 2) management of the temple, the honorary leadership of which was granted to princes from the clan Herods.

The organization, rights and responsibilities of both institutions are largely interrelated.
varied. The Temple and its administration enjoyed considerable privileges. The Levites, priests, etc. were exempted from paying state (Roman) taxes, not not as clergy, but as members of an independent administrative center, which performed a significant function of the previous tsarist government.

The Temple itself had the rights of a separate province, subject to Rome, and, therefore, he was obliged to pay a tax to the latter; this tax was allocated from sums collected specifically for the temple from the Jewish colonies of the entire empire; than this
The more abundant the collection, the more profitable it was for Rome, and in order for the collection to be more abundant, it was necessary it was so that the rulers of the province (in the case of the temple) had hands free. This financial and political consideration was one of the most important reasons for Rome's granting the temple government very broad autonomy, and also exemption from state tax for priests, Levites, etc.
However, their real estate located outside the temple boundaries was subjected to taxed equally with the lands and houses of all other citizens.

The temple government, as is known, had a significant military detachment, under the command of the strategist. According to Josephus and Acts
The Apostles, the entire guard was commanded by only one strategist; the evangelist Luke writes (XXII, 51) that there were several of them. The guardians of this temple government was used not only for the direct protection of the shrine, but also for persecution prosecution, arrest, etc. outside the temple of persons and sects who preached teachings that were dangerous to Judaism. The Temple enjoyed this right throughout the entire period of the Julian dynasty.

As is also known, the Romans granted the Jews the rights of Roman citizenship, and although other vassal peoples also enjoyed this right, but, according to In Manfrin's opinion, the total amount of rights of the Jews was larger in this respect, because it enjoyed, in addition to the rights of a Roman citizen, the privileges acquired them on the basis of religious dogmas, but in essence also civil ones. And this gave they have the opportunity to evade some of the obligations associated with Roman citizenship duties from which representatives of other nations could not be exempted.

According to Manfrin, there is reason to believe that the Jerusalem Jews obtained exemption from paying some state taxes those of their fellow believers who annually visited the Temple of Jerusalem. At least To the extent that this rule, established by the Seleucids, was not abolished by Julius Caesar.
Moreover, it is certain that they had the right of amnesty (on Easter day) for one of criminals sentenced to death for a crime that did not have of a state nature, which was used when sentencing to death Jesus Christ.

TREATISE P
TALMUDIST ABSURDITIES, ACCEPTED AS TRUTH

Chapter 1

The absurdities of Talmudic teachings

The Talmud commands Jews to have unconditional faith in everything contained in it. pages, no matter what oddities, curiosities, improbabilities and even absurdities there are concluded, and if anyone, contrary to this legend, doubts and does not believe literally all the legends of the sacred tablet, then he is subject to excommunication. In one Talmudic treatise! 'Bova-batra', l. 58, p. 1), as already mentioned above, It is said that one day Rabbi Eliazar, after his death, appeared to his disciples, who asked him: what is Abraham doing now in heaven? Eleazar answered that Abraham now he lay down on Sarah's lap, and Sarah was looking for him in her head. When one of the disciples Eliazar dared to suggest an allegory here, then according to the general verdict for this insolence was subjected to excommunication. Under the fear of such a sad fate, rejection from of his religion, a believing Jew is obliged to accept at face value everything possible absurd nonsense, which, one might say, constitute the main essence Talmudic teachings. The Sunimi-Tan woman is convinced of Elisha's righteousness by the fact that that flies do not get into his food.' For example, the Talmud teaches that during the day there are insignificant moments; there is, by the way, such a moment in which God He is so merciful that He fulfills every prayer addressed to Him, no matter what whatever kind they were; but, on the other hand, there is a moment in which God is in anger. This moment repeats itself daily and lasts 1/88 of an hour. This moment is determined by the time when the rooster stands on one leg and the comb it will turn white to the point that no red spots will be visible on it. Curse, “Anything pronounced at this time on anyone cannot be powerless.” Talmud tells that God also prays and prays that His anger does not overcome Him mercy. Rabbi Ishmael once saw the Infinite on the high throne and exalted. “My son, Ishmael,” said the Infinite, “bless me.” - “Yes “Your mercy will overcome your anger towards the children of Israel,” he said. Ishmael. At these words of Rabbi Ishmael the Infinite nodded his head."

1 Tractate "Berakhot", p. 10, p. 2.

2 Ibid., p. 7, p. 1.

3 Ibid.

The Talmud teaches (tractate "Avoyde-Zura", p. 3, 2): "The day consists of 12 hours; during the first 3 hours God sits and studies the law, during the other 3 hours God thinks; the next 3 hours God brings the whole universe to life, and in the last 3 He sits and plays with Leviathan, the king of fishes, at night, adds Rabbi Menachem, God studies the Talmud" (tract. "Avoyde-Zura", p. 3, and "Bova-batra", p. 74, 1-2).

Chapter 2

On Jehovah's studies in Talmudic sciences

Further, developing its dogmatic teaching about Jehovah, the Jerusalem Talmud preaches that God spends three hours a day studying the Talmud, learning it carefully, then plays with the Leviathan fish for the same amount of time."

Rabbi Judah says: The day has 12 hours. For the first three hours, God reads "Toire", the second three hours judges the whole world and, seeing that everyone is worthy of damnation, gets up from the throne of justice and sits on the throne of mercy; the third three hours takes care of all creatures; God plays with Leviathan for a fourth of the day, "Lately he's been walking around and roaring in a thunderous voice."

Rabbi Dishchi bar Humi relates that when God gave the Law to the Jews, he bent Mount Sinai over their heads and said to them: "If you accept my law,
It is good for you; if not, then here will be your destruction."

Rabbi Shimon ben Lokish explains that God created the world under the condition that Jews will accept Toire; only in this case will it exist, if not, then will turn into a desert.

"The Son of David will come only when there is not a single Jewish soul left in "Gif", i.e. in the heavenly repository of human souls, representing a kind of store or a warehouse filled with Jewish souls, which God uses for newborns. To speed up the consumption of souls, "Pirye verivie", then the law of reproduction placed at the forefront of Jewish religious duties. The souls of Jews are not together with the souls of Nukhrim (Christians), but in a special separate "Gif".

1 Talmud Jerusalem

2 “Goy vumes”, p. 24: “Beit sit ӌi is hs Ii ii @5-sepae iƀ i i i i is i Ii, ï iiit $01i-tae iiï Ii, i ssi iï iï topsiғogғŕŕit iii rag ï ïï».

3 Tract. "Shabbes", l. 8.

4 Tract. "Avoyde-Zura", p. 5.

The Talmud asserts that Jews receive an extra soul from above on Saturdays, which does not leave a Jew until the end of the Sabbath.

Bagrov in his “Notes of a Jew” makes fun of this Talmudic doctrine: “These soul-suckers, standing in reserve for a whole week without any "activities, eat up the poor Jew on Saturdays, doubling his appetite."

Chapter 3

40 days before the baby's birth God appoints a bride for him

According to the Talmudists, 40 days before the birth of every Jewish baby God has already appointed a bride for him, and the angels proclaim it daily in heaven, starting 40 days before his birth. This Talmudic legend a short literary story written by the highest predestination is constructed in Hebrew Brand-shteter. The fact is that a certain young man, the son of a village innkeeper, falls in love with the smart and beautiful girl Esther, the daughter of the revered rabbi. The rabbi also has another older daughter, "small and very thin figurine”, with an unmistakable sign of God’s blessing: it has a red nose and large black teeth, which, according to the belief of Polish Jews, promise great success offspring. It is to this future mother in Israel that the rabbi wants to marry a village youth. The youth, being in love with Esther's younger sister, at night runs away from the rabbi's house and enrolls in rabbinical school. From there, he sends a letter to the rabbi; this letter says that every night, around midnight, he is haunted by some kind of shadow; he sees before him a woman growing out of the ground, thin and pale. This is supposedly the ghost of the rabbi's first wife. She said that forty days before Esther's birth, a heavenly voice proclaimed his name in connection with the name Esther. It is clear that the rabbi abandoned his insistence, and the story ends in the most favorable way. The rabbi does not want to go against the will heavenly voice and gives Esther in marriage to a young man who has managed to do so by this time obtain a rabbinical diploma.

The Talmud teaches, among other absurdities, the following: “God created the world “solely in order to apply the law of circumcision to the matter” (Tractate “Nedarim”).

Chapter 4

About the Messiah and the circumstances of his coming

The Talmud mentions stories about the Messiah and the circumstances of his coming, insulting the moral feeling of a Christian, which we for this reason do not we present here” (.   iғ 4, 50)...

If any of the Jews doubted the truthfulness of this story, then the Talmud assures that such a person will be deprived of participation in this solemn feast, which the time of the coming of the Messiah will be given to the Jews and at which the Jews will be served fried a bull currently grazing and daily eating the hay of a thousand mountains, a female of the same size, already salted for this purpose, and besides these, a bull and a cow- you are the Leviathan fish, which in turn requires fish daily to feed itself three miles long. God created two specimens of the Leviathan fish: one male gender, the other female. The Leviathan fish is in a ring-shaped position and holds its tail in its mouth; if it were to take its tail out of its mouth, a flood would occur. on earth. God, fearing the drowning of the human race, during the copulation of Leviathan with female, destroyed the last one" (The Book of Zohar, which has already been salted and assigned the Jews will be given fried food after the coming of the Messiah. Instead of cake, the Jews will be served fried a bird of fabulous size. In its entire life, the bird laid one egg, which felled three hundred cedars and flooded them with yolk and white sixty villages. The wine for this table has already been prepared by Adam and is stored in mountain cellars of paradise. The reign of the Messiah will be preceded by the extermination of all peoples in the civil war of Gog and Magog, who will be defeated by the reigning Messiah. Only some of the pagans will be spared on condition that they accept Noah's commandments and the fulfillment of the duties of slaves in the new kingdom of the Messiah!

The Talmudists claim that somewhere there is a river called Sambatien, the water of which plays six days a week, the flames and stones subside only on Saturdays; beyond this river there is the Jewish kingdom, called "bnei moshe", i.e. children of Moses. Its inhabitants are no more children, beautiful, strong and warlike. The local Jews, being sinful, cannot to this day connect with them. “Rabbi Yossa said that in the last days
“All nations will come together and accept the Jewish faith.”

1 Tract. "Sanhedrin", l. 91, p. 2; l. 105, p. [.

2 Tract. "Iovomeis", p. 24.

According to the Talmud, Jehovah himself is the cause of sins on earth, since he instilled in man's evil nature (tractate "Berakhot", p. 32, 1 and 61, 1). He, by his definition, destined man to sin (tractate "Avoyde-Zura", p. 4, 2) and the Jews on Mount Sinai forced the adoption of the law by force (tract. "Avoyde-Zura", p. 2; "Shabbes", p. 88).

The Talmudists assure that upon the coming of the Messiah all nations will certainly be theirs vassals, and that the wealth of all peoples will belong to the Jews; that there will be a terrible war and all nations will come together to fight the Jews, who, of course, will remain victorious. The enemies will meet at a wide river, across which the enemies will have to cross; there will be two bridges on this terrible river, one paper, the other cast iron. All nations will walk on the cast iron bridge and fail, and the Jews will safely cross the paper bridge, under which instead of piles there will be angels stand, etc.

The Jews live and breathe the sweet hope that the Messiah is hurrying to them, that he will come and destroy all the kingdoms and give all the wealth and all the kings into slavery to the Jews, and its current humiliated position among other peoples, as well as its widespread
The dominion of the wicked is explained as Jehovah's punishment for Israel's lack of faith.

Chapter 5

On the emergence of Rome

The Talmud contains the following story about the origin of Rome: “At that very the moment when Solomon married the daughter of the Egyptian pharaoh and defiled his bed by union with a pagan, the Archangel Gabriel, by the will of the Eternal, descended from sky and stuck a stem into the bottom of the sea, which disturbed and raised up the sea silt;

on this silt the majestic Rome was subsequently built, and on that very day when Jeroboam worshipped two calves, Remus and Romulus built two huts on the shore Tiber, which was destined to humiliate Your temple, O Jehovah."

Superstitious, like all eastern peoples, the Jews clothed their superstition in legal religious form and included in the Talmud, which strictly prescribes to all his followers the utmost reverence for these superstitions. It comes down to it to the point that the Talmud teaches: “If someone crushes an eggshell with his bare feet, wash with hot water, put on a washed shirt that hasn't been lying around for eight days after washing (because insects can come back to life in the laundry before this time), or if anyone
"If someone eats fish and meat together, he will be exposed to a malignant rash."

1 Setag i. Zapzea. S.I. ArgaђBapei t Esjat sar. 35 ABep Esga t pes.

2 Tract. "Ioyre dea", p. 173.

You should also not stand against women at the time when they have left the house, where there is a dead person, because the "melach gamoves", the angel of death, is hovering everywhere at this time and can kill whomever he wants. Likewise, if women follow the dead man, a man should not meet him face to face; if he meets him accidentally, then must jump from the spot four steps and go another way; if there is no other road, and there is a river, then you must cross the river; but if there is neither one nor the other, but there is wall, should stand behind the wall until these women pass. However, if you meet "less than seven women, then the danger is not so great."

When an epidemic is raging in a city, a person should not walk in the middle of the road. or streets, because in the middle of the road there is a "melach gamoves" and it hits everyone oncoming traffic. If the city is quiet, on the contrary, you should not walk on the sidewalk or sides of the road, because at this time the “melach gamoves” does not have much power and "hiding on the sides."

1 Tract. "Brocheis", p. 51.

2 Tract. "Beauvais-camé", l. 60.

If we follow the teachings and narratives of Jewish casuists, we will see, that even the very life of the Talmudic teachers was filled with such extraordinary miracles, especially one of them, that all the amazing adventures of Sinbad-

The sailor, the hero of Arabian tales, will seem like ordinary things to them.
For example, the following once happened to the famous Rabbi Bar-bar-Hannah.
He saw a fish thrown onto the shore by a wave, of such a size that by its fall it crushed sixty cities, and the other sixty ate their fill of its meat, which despite this, there was so much left that another sixty cities had the opportunity prepare and salt a year's supply from it.

Chapter 6
About 60 cities built from the bones of one fish

Returning a year later to the same place, Rabbi Bar-bar-Hanna was so happy to have found sixty oppressed cities built of bones, left after this fish.

Another time, this same famous rabbi landed on a boat and stepped out onto his back.
a similar monster, which was covered with earth and dense vegetation.
Believing that he was on an island, Rabbi Bar-bar-Hanna lit a fire and began to prepare to cook food; the painful sensation caused the monster to shake so much that the wise rabbi barely managed to jump into the boat and thus save himself from the threat that threatened him death.

The same Rabbi Bar-bar-Hanna once saw a frog the size of a tree with sixty huts; this frog was eaten by a snake, which, in turn, was swallowed the raven then perched on a tree to digest its food. Unfortunately, the rabbi did not do anything mentions the size of the tree, but in proportion to the size of the frog, snake and crow it shouldn't be too small.

There is another similar story in the Talmud. A rabbi, wandering in the desert,
I saw three geese pouring out a whole river of fat, which they themselves the next day they drank it all to the bottom. Having been delighted at the sight of such delicious birds, the rabbi called out to them, asking one of them to show him which particle of he will be honored to taste them in paradise. Then one of the birds turned its back to him and She raised her leg. The rabbi was quite pleased.

Also: “Four men entered paradise. One looked and died immediately, the other went crazy, the third destroyed several young plants; only one entered in peace and went out in peace." "The resurrection of the dead can only take place in Palestine, therefore the Lord digs up a pit near the graves of the Jews who died in captivity long caves, through which their corpses will roll like barrels into the holy land, “so that each one may perceive there his own soul” (Talmud Jerusalem, tract. “Kiloim”).

The resurrection of all faithful Israelites will take place in the Valley of Jehoshaphat. Corpses Jews who died outside Palestine will be rolled into Jehoshaphat's grave through underground pipes valley and there they will be resurrected by the angel of death, who, with a blow of a stick, brought them to consciousness, will ask everyone about his name, and will be resurrected for the future life only he who was able to say his name with the text of the Bible; therefore it is necessary to commit your name to memory so as not to forget it. After the general resurrection the restoration of the Temple of Jerusalem, all the sacrifices and rituals and everything in general will follow that which is determined by law. The restored Jerusalem will rise on as much as eight miles (12,000 steps). "The size of Jerusalem will be equal to the size of Palestine during the period of the ancient Hebrew kingdom; Palestine with the accession of the Messiah the whole world will become."

According to the Talmud, whoever wants to drink water must first pour out a little from above, because it is harmful water that could be drunk by “shoydym”, i.e. an evil spirit like "brownie".

“Care should be taken when cleaning dishes so that no flies remain in them, suffocated without air."

“On the night of Saturday and Wednesday one should not drink poda in the dark, even if it was drawn during the day, out of fear of evil spirits. If anyone feels thirsty, he should throw something into the water and then he can drink."

“One should not sleep alone in a room at night. Whoever does not fulfill this commandment, he will fall under the power of the "lolys", i.e. the she-devil: for the same reason one should not
"to spend the night in the cemetery."

1 Tract. "Bova-batra", p. 75, 2.

2 Tract. "Yalkut Sanhedrin", p. 57, 2.

3 Tract. "Choline", l. 105.
4 “Kitzer Shulchan-Aruch”, l. 80.
5 Tractate. "Pesachim", p. 112.

Chapter 7

Do not place food or drinks under the bed to ward off evil spirits.

“You shouldn’t put food or drinks under your bed, even if they were covered with iron lids because an evil spirit can enter them. For the same reason For this reason, you should not eat anything cut or peeled in the evening, such as:
garlic, onion, radish, egg, etc., even if they are wrapped and sealed, because the evil spirit will still touch them. If the top layer remains on garlic, onions, etc.
husk, then the evil spirit will not touch them."

"A man must not pass between two women, two dogs, two pigs, and “two snakes, because there is certainly a third one there, i.e. an evil spirit.”

“You shouldn’t stand under the roof when water is dripping from it, because
“This is where the ‘mazykhila’, i.e. harmful, unclean spirits, are usually found.”

“You should not walk barefoot in the garbage, because unclean things are found there.”
force; you can not be afraid of it only under the following conditions: 1) if it is visible on in a place flooded with slops, 60 traces of human beings, i.e. traces of people who have already passed through this place; 2) if the sun illuminates this place; 3) if you throw a little sand, or finally, 4) spit on it."

“You shouldn’t sleep on a moonlit night in the yard under the wall, in the shade, because evil spirits spirits mostly visit the earth at night and, not liking the moonlight, hide in shadows."

According to the teachings of the Talmud, if a pregnant Jewish woman eats mustard, then will give birth to a gluttonous child; if a fish, then the child will be dear to people.

Here's some advice for those who want to see devils: let him get the queen of a black cat, born first of the same birth from a black cat, born from her mother too first birth; if this uterus is burned into powder and the powder is sprinkled on one's eyes, then you will see the devils.

1 Tractate. "Pesachim", p. 112.

2 Ibid., p. 111.

3 Tract. "Khatubot".

4 Tract. "Berakhot", Jewish sects, Grigorieva, 95.

The Babylonian Talmud relates that Rabbis Hanan and Oshaya on the eve of each Saturdays they sat down to reflect on the "book of Genesis" and gave birth to a three-year-old a heifer, which was then eaten. Rabbi Yeshuba ben Khan converted
With the help of this book, pumpkins and watermelons are used in deer and goats.

Rabbi Ismael Ekima, according to the Talmud, saw angels several times and talked to them.

"A bowl placed upside down on a jug, bread hanging in the air, crumbs bread scattered underfoot - all this leads a person to impoverishment." "Not It is permissible for a naked person to stand before a candle: anyone who violates this rule is subject to "black disease".

To the question: “Is it permissible to walk through a field on the Sabbath?” the Talmud answers: “No, because you can crush a grain with your foot and sow it against your will."

Likewise: can the Sanhedrin accuse the wife of a blind man of adultery?
“No, because, according to the law, an adulterous wife only deserves punishment when when she tries to hide her crime from her husband; and how can she hide it from the eyes of someone who can’t see anything anyway”?

1 Tract. "Choline", l. 105.

2 Tractate. "Pesachim", p. 112.

3 Gemara.

4 Ibid.

Chapter 8

The Talmud commands prayer in Hebrew.

The Talmud commands that prayer must be in Hebrew, because the angels, those who receive prayers do not understand other languages, and therefore cannot offer prayers to God. The only exception is prayers at Pentecost and on the night of Easter, when they are read in Chaldean or Syriac. In the first case, it is this is done so that the angels cannot envy their future bliss, which the Jews ask for themselves at Pentecost and which they hope to receive together with the coming of the Messiah. On the night of Easter, a prayer is said in the Chaldean language for so that the devil would not overhear them and appear to them the next day in the form of their significant When praying, Jews turn towards the land of Canaan.
Rabbi Abi thinks that the greatness of Jehovah is in the west, and therefore in this direction one must address with prayer. During prayer, a Jew must not spit, blow his nose, yawn, etc.; if there was an emergency, he could spit behind yourself or to the left side; but straight ahead or to the right side - it is impossible, because you can splash on angels.

As was said above, the Jews give preference to the moon over the stars and even before the sun, because in its movement, they say, the works of God are more clearly visible and His power. That is why the Jews accept the moon as a visible sign of the divine greatness that appears in every month. As soon as the new moon appears, the first Those who notice this inform others, knock on the shutters, wake up the sleepy ones and run to renew the moon, bow to it, and then perform a welcoming prayer and, jumping up, they say, stretching out their hands to the moon: “How we jump to you and yet we cannot seize you, so let none of our enemies be able to do evil and harm to us. Let fear and trembling fall upon them, let them be motionless as stone, let them be silent, let fear and trembling fall upon them, and upon us and upon all Israel Let it be a favorable omen!'

This prayer must be read very quickly so that the moon does not set during the reading.
behind the cloud, for this signifies misfortune: the Jews consider a lunar eclipse to be very bad.
It is stated in the book Etz Hachaim: during the greeting of the moon, everyone must hold stand up straight, put your feet together and stand straight to the side so that the infidels don’t
"They interfered." In half of this congratulation, the Jews loudly repeat three times: "Yes “There lives David, king of Israel,” then, turning, they congratulate each other.”

[1] See the book "Cider".

[2] Books "Sider", page 236.

The book “Orach Chaim” says the following about the action of the new moon: “Here you are,
Israelis, a story that the famous Rabbi Meer told me and from which It is clear how important it is for every Jew to celebrate the new moon. One devout Jew a robber was caught and attempted to kill him. The Jew did not resist the villain, but only asked him to allow me to pray to the moon first; he agreed, and as soon as the Jew
He said a prayer, and a strong wind suddenly blew and carried the Jew away from the eyes of the villain. How could not to cherish, the rabbi concludes, this prayer and how not to rush towards the new moon, when will she appear?

“Many of the Jewish teachers claim that if someone meets successfully and congratulates the new moon, he can confidently hope that he will not die this month." (See the book "Etz-hachaim".)

Chapter 9

Purim Ceremonies

On the holiday of Purim, every Jew, sitting at the table, greets his wife as a queen Esther, and she, on the contrary, greets her Leiba as a king. Then come the following stories from rabbinic traditions:

1) “God is so attached to the Jewish people that he cannot live without think about him. Before sending down punishment, he first chooses a deliverer or deliverer. The proof is Queen Astina, who did not respond to her husband's call comes to the table for the reason, as Jewish tradition says, that she has a meal during the night by the will of God a lump grew on his forehead, so that at the time when the king wanted it will boast of her beauty before the nobles, could not satisfy this desire, and meanwhile God sends him a Jewish woman, Esther, as a wife, who soon becomes an instrument for the deliverance of the Jews."

2) Haman falls at the queen's feet, asking for mercy for the harm he has done to her family. insult, and the angels of God deliberately push him so that he falls on the queen’s bed, for greater irritation of the king against him. Then Artaxerxes sees that the children of Haman destroy all that is precious in his garden; but these were not the children of Haman, but the angels who accepted their appearance. For all this, Haman, who sought the destruction of the Jews, himself perishes along with them by the will of the king.

with her children. But why did the former queen suffer? Because, the rabbis say,
On Saturday she tormented and mocked the Jewish daughters, gathering them to her the palace and forced the naked to work."

Chapter 10

About Adam and his marriage

In its teaching on the creation of man, the Talmud says: “The Lord did not want to give girlfriend to the father of the human race, until he himself asked him for her on the grounds that would have drawn him into sin, and then Adam would have had the right to grumble against God for his destruction.
Having taken this precaution regarding the one whom he created in his image and according to in his likeness, God showed this king of the earth his creatures. The first act of Hadesma, according to the teachings of the Talmud, was one of those grave insults to nature for which Moses punished mercilessly with death; it was a spiritual crime, for it was inspired by the gods, i.e. evil spirits (Yue eepyit daetosa), whose property to seduce a person and humiliate his dignity. Later this crime became very common and became among the Canaanites, along with other vices from which it should be was to cleanse the land of Israel with weapons. Adam, looking for a mate, falls into amazing delusions, and instead of punishing him, God, taking pity on him,
He created for him from his rib Eve, a woman twenty-one years old.

But did our ancestress show her moral superiority before this?
a miserable husband? According to the general opinion of the rabbis, the mother of the human race was disposed desire for the serpent, and this insidious animal took advantage of it to bring Eve to violation of God's commandments. For this, the monster gave her poison, which she passed it on to her offspring."

Such were, according to the sages of the Talmud, the morals of our first fathers even in within the earthly paradise.

Adam's repentance after the fall, i.e., after tasting the forbidden fruit, was long-term and was expressed in a strict 130-year fast, during which Adam deprived himself of all food and drink and distanced himself from Eve, firmly avoiding all kinds of temptations.

One day Adam saw Lilita, a female devil, and fell in love with her, and
The abandoned Eve, in turn, met seducers who fell in love with her.
Thus was born a fierce, terrible tribe of devilish origin.

As an alternative to the biblical story of the creation of the first man, there is The Talmud has the following legend about the creation of Adam: God collected dust from all over the world, made from it one layer of earth and from it he created a double, i.e. two-faced man, which he then cut into two halves, from which Adam and Eve emerged.

“Adam was so great that his head touched the vault of heaven, and when
When he lay down, his feet would reach the end of the west, and his head would reach the end of the east."

God made a hole in the sky for light to pass through, with the help of which Adam could contemplate the whole world with one glance."

“As soon as Adam sinned, God reduced him to the size that “real people have.”

1 Tract. "Shabbes", p. 147.; tract. "Iovomeis", p. 103; tract. "Avoyde-Zura", l. 22; Drach, harmony, vol. IU, p. 321.

2 Tract. "Sanhedrin", l. 38.1 and 2; "Berakhot", l. 61.1; "Eruvim", l. 18.1.
Tract. "Sanhedrin", p. 38, 2.

Tract. "Hagiga", l. 12.1.
Ibid.

ә

Chapter 11

About King Oga - the great giant

Og, the king of Bashan, mentioned in the Bible, according to the Talmud, received his name for the reason that one day he caught Abraham while the last oven was baking

Passover unleavened bread, in Hebrew "ugga".

“During the Great Flood, Og was saved along with one rhinoceros, holding on to him near Noah's Ark, for the water near the ship was colder, whereas in all in other places it was boiling."

To feed Og daily, 2,000 bulls and the same amount of game were needed, and to quench your thirst 1000 barrels of wine?

When the Jews entered Bashan, Og heard the noise of the Jewish convoy, stretching for three miles in length, and for its protection it tore a wide ridge from the ground mountain and put it on his head. But God sent ants to the top of this mountain, which they gnawed a hole in the middle, and the mountain fell around Og's neck onto his shoulders. His teeth grew into this mountain so that he could no longer stretch out his neck. Immediately Moses He grabbed an axe 10 yards long, jumped 10 yards up, and hit Og higher.
feet and killed him."

Parallel to this story there is another one, according to which #)g got to heaven alive."

Regardless of this, the Talmud goes on to say that Rabbi Yochanan once
I found a leg bone along which I walked for 3 miles and still didn't reach the end of it:
It goes without saying that this bone belonged to Og, the king of Bashan.

1 Tract. "Nidda", l. 54, 2.

2 Tract. Soph., p. 113, 2.

3 Ibid., p. 14, 4.

4 Tractate "Berakhot", p. 54, 2.

5 Tract. "Regesy egeg", p. 20, ch. 3.
b Tract. "Nidda", l. 24, 2.

The Talmud tells us about Abraham that he ate and drank the portion of 74 people.
as a result of this he was as strong as 74 men put together.

Compared to Og, he was a crumb, for when one day Og's tooth fell out,

Abraham made himself a bed with this tooth. However, the rabbis argue among themselves about use, made from a monstrous tooth: others claim that it was
"It was used not for the bed, but for the table."

1 Tract. Soph., p. 14, ch. 4.2.

2 Ibid.

The rabbis who explained the Gemara seriously assert that Adam was tall 6000 cubits. About the size of some animals mentioned in this book, and there is nothing left to say.

Rashi in his commentary discusses the story of Rebecca, that Rebecca's mother and brother
They asked Eleazar to let Rebecca stay at home for a while.
Rashi explains why the Bible doesn't mention a father. It's because there was no father.
He agreed to marry, an angel came and killed him.

Another commentator, Sivse-hahomim (mouth of the sages), says that Rebekah's father put poison in Eleazar's food and asked him to eat quickly, but Eleazar felt it and told his father that he would not eat until he finished his conversation, and Meanwhile an angel came and changed the dishes; Rebecca's father ate from this dish and died.

Chapter 12

About Jacob and his adventures

Rashi the commentator examines the story of Jacob, where it is said in the Bible that Jacob And he left Barsheba and went to Haran. And he came to the place and spent the night there, because the sun set. Rashi finds a miracle in Jacob's journey because he couldn't to cover such a large area in such a short time, as they say, - went out, and came, and found this place. Rashi proves, from the tractate "Chulin", p. 91, that the earth moved of its own accord and carried Jacob from his overnight stay, and the sun too moved suddenly just so that Yakov could spend the night there.

In his dream, Jacob saw angels climbing up and down the ladder from heaven. To this
The commentator Rashi asks the question: why does the Bible say that the angels climbed in, but

Then they got off? Where did the angels come from on earth when they are heavenly inhabitants? Then Rashi answers that these angels who ascended the ladder were the angels who escorted Jacob from the Holy Land, for these angels have no right to cross the border of the Holy Land. What are the angels seen for? - descending down the stairs, this is it was they who were appointed as guides on the further journey outside the Holy Land, from where they themselves live there.

Rashi then explains the words of the Bible: “Jacob took from the stones of that place and put it under his head." Rashi finds that Jacob took not one stone, but several and protected himself from wild animals. At night, these stones began to quarrel among themselves; one says: let the righteous lay his head on me, and the other says: let him lay his head on me lays his head down, and the other says: let him lay his head down on me. Suddenly God united into one stone.

Chapter 13

About the cause of the flood

Rashi sees the reason for the flood in the fact that domestic animals, beasts and birds - all They combined with other races and therefore suffered punishment from God along with people like criminals.

The Talmud speaks of the biblical story of Hagar. Since God performed a miracle and was supposed to open a spring to quench the thirst of the dying Ishmael, then the angels They rebelled against God and said, “Why will you perform a miracle for Ishmael, since the descendants of Ishmael will starve the Jews to death?" God asked the question: "In what What position is he in now, a righteous man or a sinner?” They answered God:
He is so righteous that he does not deserve to die from thirst." "If so, then we must "to judge him truly." The angels walked away in shame.

In this very chapter it is said that the shepherds of Abraham with the shepherds of Abimelech quarreled over the well from which they watered their flocks. Rashi's commentator, based Based on his personal fantasy, he deduces the following miracle. Rashi says that the shepherds of Abraham and Abimelech agreed among themselves that they would approach well: when approaching which the water will rise up from the well, this will be belong to the well. Then, when Abraham's shepherds approached the well, the water rose up, and the well remained behind Abraham. The book "Midrash" is about the same thing.

The well says that the shepherds of Abraham and Abimelech agreed to drive the flocks theirs to the well, and against which the flock of water comes up, then this will be belong to the well. So, when Abraham's flock was driven to the well, the water rose up, and the well remained behind Abraham.

The biblical story says: “And Abraham planted a grove in Beersheba and called upon the name of the Lord there." The Talmud! (Tractate "Soite", p. 10) explains: "Why did he called upon the name of God? Here's why: when three angels dined with him, then after dinner Abraham told them to pray to God to prove that they were not eating him, but God’s goodness, who created the whole world."

The biblical story of Abraham says, “And it came to pass after these things, God tempted Abraham." In the Talmud? (T)ract. "Sanhedrin", p. 89) it is noted that here what happened: the devil came to God and slandered Abraham, that Abraham feasting in honor of the birth of his son Isaac, did he sacrifice for you? even though one ram. But God said to the devil: “Even though Abraham makes a feast in honor of his son, If I told him: kill your son for me - and he will not resist."

One day, the rabbis tell in the Talmud, two travelers saw a bird, standing in the water; and since the water barely reached half of her feet, they, thinking that It's not deep here, so they decided to take a swim. But just when they were getting ready to fulfill his intention, a voice was heard from heaven: “Be careful and know that seven years ago a carpenter dropped his axe here, and this axe is still in use today "didn't reach the bottom."

Chapter 14

Rabbi Rov-Pop and his wife

In the Babylonian Talmud there is a biography of the pious rabbi Rov-Pop. This biography, by the way, says that the mentioned sage was very thick, and in confirmation of this they tell the following: if Rov-Pop became so that with his belly he touched his wife, who was not inferior to her husband in volume, then under the bellies of the pious couple could freely pass the cart drawn by two oxen with a cart of hay.

To prove that both the rabbi and his wife had very long legs,
The authors of the Talmud say that a cavalryman armed with a pike could follow cart, without any fear of touching the bellies of the fat spouses with the tip of his weapon.

But Rov-Pop had children, and this may seem impossible given such thickness of the four? The compilers of the Talmud forestall this question with the position that anyone The bow has the ability to squeeze lovers. As Rov-Pop had an extremely large belly, so another rabbi has a beard, which, used instead of a net, gave his the owner gets 10 measures of fish at a time.

Midrash Raaba, describing Moses' journey to heaven, says that this the divine man needed only 40 days to reach his goal his journey, while ordinary people need 500 years for this.

"Midrash Rabbah" is not yet so abundant with the monstrous fruits of religious fantasies and sometimes allows himself skepticism even about biblical figures, although Along with examples of gross superstition, this seems rather strange. So, for example, he denies the truth of the biblical story of Job and says directly that Job never existed, and that the whole story about him is pure allegory.
According to the teaching of the rabbis, Adam would not have died if he had not sinned. His soul separated from his body, but it happened without pain and suffering: the Lord took life from Adam with a kiss. The Tree the rabbis imagine the life to be extraordinarily enormous; who would want to get around it, he could hardly have completed his 500-year journey. All the waters on earth flow out.
from under its roots.

Chapter 15

About Alexander the Great talking to the Jews

Parallel to the above teachings and instructions, in which one can find anything but common sense, the Talmud is replete with legends in which with the same courage, like common sense in the dogmatics and ifika of the Talmud, is sacrificed historical and chronological truth. The most significant of the Talmudic legends are associated with the name of Alexander the Great, which is memorable for the Jews. Here some of these legends.

“The 25th day of the month of Teves is a holiday on which one cannot fast. On this

On the day of the Khutei, they asked Alexander for permission to destroy the Jerusalem Temple, to which and he agreed. They informed righteous Simeon about this. The latter put on sacred garments and took with him the most famous persons of Jerusalem. With torches in They walked in their arms the whole night and at dawn they met Alexander at Antinaros. “Who are these "People?" asked the hero. "These are the Jews who are disobedient to you," they answered him. Seeing Simeon, Alexander got off the chariot and bowed to him. “A king like you, bows to a Jew?" they asked him. He answered: "When I go to war, an angel, having The striking appearance of this man helps me to achieve victories over my enemies."
Then he asked the Jews why they had come. Explaining the purpose of their journey, the Jews made a request of this kind to the king: “The temple,” they said, “in which we pray to God for to you and to your kingdom, may it never be destroyed. Should the temple be destroyed according to "What are these people's slander?" - "Who are they?" asked Alexander. "These are the khutei standing in front of "You." "They are in our power," said the king.

On the 24th day of the month of Nisan, according to Talmudic legend, the Jews were stripped of their denunciations of their enemies. On this day, the Africans (probably Punics, Carthaginians) declared a lawsuit against the Jews before Alexander the Great. “Palestine,” they said, belongs to us, for it is everywhere in the Bible called the land of Canaan, the son of Ham." Then Geviga ben Pesisa, a Jewish sage whom the Talmud depicts as hunchbacked freak, said to the wise men: “Let me explain myself to them before the king; if they
If they challenge me, then say, "You have won a victory over Israel." Then it will be possible send another, smarter Jew to compete with them. If I win, then say: "The Torah (teaching) of our teacher Moses has prevailed." Having received permission, he appeared before the king, and when the Africans began to state their claims,

He objected: “Since you bring your proofs from the Torah, then I will also prove from it.”
I will show you your wrongness. In the Bible it is said: “And he (Noah) said: Cursed be Canaan, the slave let him be to his brothers." If he acquires property, then to whom does it belong, if not to his master, that is, to us, the descendants of Shem, and, probably, to Tsar Alexander, the descendant Japheth? Besides, how long has it been since you served us? ”Having heard these words, the king turned to the Africans, demanding an answer from them. “King,” they said, “give us three days deadline." These three days passed, but they could not come up with an answer, and then, throwing sown fields and planted vineyards, fled in shame.

1 Talmud Babylonian, tract. "Yoma", p. 69.

2 Gen. 9..

Another time the Egyptians brought a lawsuit against the Jews before Alexander: “Return to us gold, silver and expensive clothes that you took from us when you left our country, as it says in the Bible."

Again Geviga ben Pesisa went to sue them. “You provide evidence from the Torah? - he said. - I will also give proof that we are right. It is said in it, that the Jews sat in Egypt for 430 years? "Answer him," the king said to the Egyptians. They again asked for a three-day period, and when, after this period had passed, they were unable to come up with an answer, then they ran away in exactly the same way, abandoning the sown fields and planted vineyards.

For the third time, the Jews were brought to trial before Alexander against the sons of Ishmael (the Arabs). “Half of Palestine belongs to us,” they said, “for our prophet Ishmael was son of Abraham (to whom God gave Palestine) as well as Isaac (from whom Jews came from). Again, Geviga ben Pesisa went to sue them. “You You base your claims on the words of the Torah; with them I will prove your falsehood. It is said in it: and Abraham gave all his property to Isaac, and to the children of his concubines (to (to whom also belongs Hagar, the mother of Ishmael) Abraham gave gifts and sent them away. If If a father divided his children during his lifetime, can they then have any claims? "Against each other?" "Answer him," the king said to the Arabs. They asked for a three-day period; but three days passed, they did not give an answer and left, abandoning the sown fields and planted vineyards."

1 Exod. 12.

2 Gen. 25.

3 Tract. "Sanhedrin", p. 91.

Chapter 16

Alexander the Great asked the wise men 10 questions.

According to the Talmud, Alexander the Great offered the wise men of the south ten the following questions: 1) What is further: the earth from the sky or the east from the west? - "East from west, they answered, for when the sun is in the east or in the west, we can to look at it means that it is far from us; but when it is above ours heads, we will not be able to look at its shine - it means it is closer to us." 2) "What was created first - heaven or earth? - "Heaven, for it is said in Scripture: "In the beginning God created the heavens, and then the earth." 3) "What was created first - light or darkness?" - "On “There is no answer,” said the wise men. 4) “Who can be called wise?” - "Foresight of the future." 5) "Who can be called a hero?" - "He who holds his passions." 6) "Who can be called rich?" - "Contented with his lot." 7) "What What should a person do to live (i.e. happily)? - “Let him kill himself (i.e.
(refrains from excess)". 8) "What should a person do in order to die?" - "Let him live (luxuriantly and correctly)." 9) "What should a person do for in order to gain the favor of people? - "Let him move away from honor and power." - “And in my opinion, let him seek honor and power in order to do good people." - "On land, for we see that all sailors do not rest until they

"They will come out on dry land." - "Which of you is smarter?" - asked the king of the sages. "We are all equal," - they answered, “You see that we all answered your questions the same way.” “Satan (i.e. the spirit of contradiction, struggle) has prevailed,” the sages answered. “But I command you execute." - "The power is in the hands of the king, but it is not proper for the king to lie (i.e. you promised us security for the answers)." Then the king ordered them to be dressed in purple robes and laid
They had gold chains on them. And the king said to the wise men: "I want to go to the African country." - “But you cannot go there, because on the road there are mountains of Darkness that cannot be crossed.
go over." - "But I must definitely go there, and I ask your advice (how cross these mountains)." - "Take Libyan donkeys (used to walking in the dark) and transport the army to them. At the place where the Mountains of Darkness begin, tie a rope and pull it until you pass the kingdom of darkness, so that by the trail of the rope it was possible to go back."

Chapter 17

About the war of Alexander the Great with the Amazons

Having heard them, Alexander set out and came to a country which was inhabited some women (apparently Amazons), with whom he decided to fight. They said:
"Why do you fight us? If you win, they will say, 'He won.'
women!" (i.e., it will not increase your glory). If we win, then they will say: "Oh,
"A hero defeated by women!" (i.e. you will be ashamed)." - "So bring it to me
"bread (i.e. as a sign of submission)," said the king. They brought him golden loaves, golden tables. "Do people eat golden bread?" asked the king. "And if you want simple bread, then is it not in your country that you have gone so far to look for it?
Leaving their city, Alexander wrote on its gates: "I, Alexander the Great,
I was a fool all my life until I came to the African country, the country of women, and "I learned wisdom from them."

The Khutei said to Alexander: "Beware! The Jews will deceive you and will not let you in." the interior of the temple and into the holy land." When Geviga ben Pesisa learned of this, fearing that the king would insist on being admitted into the holy of holies, that forbidden by the law of Moses, made precious sandals for the king, decorated with more more precious stones. When the king, accompanied by him, examined Jerusalem, approached the holy mountain on which stood the temple of God, Geviga ben Pasisa turned to him and said: "King! Put on these sandals so as not to slip on the smooth stone."
floor (with which the temple was paved)." The king examined the entire temple. When they came to the holy of holies, Geviga-ben Pasisa said to him: "Until now we could lead you, but we can't get any further." The annoyed king answered him: "When I
"I'll get out of here and straighten out your hump." "If you do this," he answered jokingly.
Geviga-ben Pesisa, then you will receive a large payment and will be known as a great "master"! (Tractate "Bereshit Rabbah", p. 61).

Alexander went to a country, to a place called Africa. The inhabitants of this country came out to greet him with golden bread, golden apples and golden pomegranates. "Do you eat gold?" the king asked them. "No," they answered, "but in "Don't they eat it in your country? So why did you come to us?" - "I came to see,
"As you judge," Alexander answered. While they sat and talked like this Thus, two people came to judge before the king of this (land) country. "Sovereign, - one of them began, "I bought a wasteland from this man who came with me."

I started digging the ground and found a treasure in it. I said to him: take your treasure, because I bought himself only land, but not treasure. Am I not right, great sovereign? Order him to take treasure." But as soon as this man finished speaking, another began to speak: “Righteous king,” he said, “I, like this man, am afraid to appropriate someone else’s property.
Good. Order him, sir, to take the treasure for himself, for I sold him the wasteland and everything in it.
located".

After thinking for a while, the king called one of them.

“Do you have a son?” he asked.

“Yes,” he answered.

- Do you have a daughter? - he asked another.

“Yes, great lord,” he replied.

“Well then, marry them to each other, and let the treasure they found be their dowry.”

Thus the litigants left satisfied and happy.

Alexander could not hide his surprise.

“Have I not judged them well?” the king asked him. “How would such people decide?” “What’s going on in your country?” “Here,” Alexander answered, “they would have killed both of them (the heavy (those who are), and the treasure would be taken into the royal treasury."

The king raised his eyes to the sky.

"Great God!" he said. "Does the sun shine in your country?" "It does."
"And is it raining?" - "It is." - "So, you probably have animals for whose sake the sun
It shines and it rains, because people, so sinful and unrighteous, are not worthy of heavenly "grace"! (Talmud Vayikra Rabi, ch. 27).

Chapter 18

Rabbi Jonah's story about Alexander the Great

Rabbi Jonah relates: “When Alexander the Great rose above the earth, then he flew to such a height that the whole earth seemed like a ball to him, and the sea plate. That is why he is depicted with a ball in his hand"? (Talmud Beshidbar-Rabi, ch. 13. The above text of the Talmudic legends about Alexander is borrowed by us from "Collection of articles on Jewish history and literature, 1866 edition").

Continuing on our way through the barren steppes and uncultivated lands, Alexander finally arrived at a small stream, the waters of which were quietly rolling down green fresh banks. The smooth surface of the stream, undisturbed by the slightest with a breath, presented an image of contentment and seemed to say in its silence: "Here is the dwelling of peace and tranquility." Everything was quiet, and only the gentle murmur of the waves seemed whispered in the traveler's ear: "Come and accept your share of the blessings “nature,” and then sadly complained that the invitation had been made in vain. To a contemplative soul such a spectacle would inspire a thousand beautiful reflections. But what charm could it have had for Alexander's soul, sensitive only to the voice ambition and glory of victories, for his eyes, accustomed to robberies and murders, for his hearing, accustomed only to the thunder of weapons and the groans of the dying?

“Alexander went further, but was forced by fatigue and hunger stop. Sitting down on the shore, he took a few sips of water, which It seemed very tasty and refreshing to him, and then he ordered some to be served to him salted fish, which he had in large supply.

He soaked the fish in water to reduce its pungent taste and was very surprised. feeling that she was giving off a wonderful scent.

“There is no doubt,” he said, “that this source, possessing such miraculous properties, originates in some rich and happy country. Let's go into it!

Following upstream, Alexander reached the gates of paradise. The doors were locked; He knocked and, with his usual persistence, demanded to be let in.

“You cannot be accepted here,” a voice answered him from within, “for this door - the door of the Lord."

“I am the Lord, the Lord of the earth,” the impatient Emperor objected, “I am Alexander.” conqueror. Will they not open the door for me?

“No,” they answered him, “of the conquerors we only know those who conquer their passions. Only the righteous can enter here."

In vain did Alexander try to penetrate into the monastery of the blessed; he was not Neither requests nor threats helped. Seeing that all his efforts were in vain, he turned to the guard of paradise and said:

“Do you know that I am a great monarch who has earned the admiration of all peoples? If you don't want to let me inside heaven, at least give me something something that I could use to prove to the astonished world that I had reached places that had been reached before me No mortal has ever reached this point.

“Take this, madman,” answered the guardian of paradise, “here is something for you, capable of heal the ailments of your soul. One look at this thing can teach you such wisdom such as you have never heard from all your teachers. Now continue. "your way."

Alexander took his gift and returned to his tent; but what was his surprise when he saw that it was only a fragment of a dead head!

“So these are the gifts,” he exclaimed, “that are given to kings and heroes! Is this "must be the fruit of so much effort, labor, danger and hardship?"

Deceived in his expectations and angry, he threw it away with contempt an insignificant fragment of a human skeleton.

Chapter 19

Conversation between the sage and Alexander the Great “Great sovereign,” said one sage who was with him at that moment,

- Do not despise this gift! No matter how insignificant it may seem in your eyes, it possesses, however, it has rare properties, and you can be convinced of this if you order it to be hung "he weighed it on the scales along with gold and silver."

Alexander ordered an experiment to be carried out. They brought scales; on one of the pendants there was a piece of bone was placed on another piece of gold, and, to everyone’s surprise, those present, gold turned out to be lighter than bone. They added more metal, and again the bone outweighed; the more gold they put on one pendant, the more it sank "the other side."

“It’s strange,” exclaimed Alexander, “that such an insignificant particle of the mortal
The weight of the substance exceeded the weight of the huge metal ingots! Is it really that there is no such thing there?
no means to bring these two things into proper balance?

“There is,” the sage answered, “and a very simple remedy.” And with this he took a little earth, covered it with a fragment of bone, which then immediately rose up on its suspension.

“Amazing!” Alexander exclaimed and demanded an interpretation of this phenomena.

“Great sovereign,” the sage answered, “this fragment is a receptacle.”
the human eye, which is limited in its space, but not limited in its desires. The more he sees before him, the more he desires. Neither gold nor silver, no earthly treasure can satisfy him until

They will bury him in a grave and not cover him with earth. In it alone lies the limit.
1 his greedy ambition and desires” (Tract. “Ioma”, p. 31).

Chapter 20

About the worm Shamir, a Talmudic story

It is known, says the Talmud, that Solomon fulfilled a holy wish his father, that is, he built a temple to the Lord. When he began the sacred work, he wanted, so that there would be no iron tools involved, so that what was done in the name of the Lord would be completely quietly, without the sound of hammers. But how could this be done? And very simply, according to the Talmud, by means of a shamir, a worm: they passed through it like a diamond, on glass, on stone, one way or another, and the stone received its shape according to the desire worker who handled him” (Tractate “Gitin”, p. 68). Perhaps someone All this may seem incredible, but authority vouches for its validity rabbis who reported this information. One of the sections of the Talmud tells how Solomon managed to acquire a shamir. Solomon, by his wisdom and gift knowledge, he knew that in paradise there was a worm called Shamir, but he also knew that this worm is at the disposal of Asmodeus. To obtain reliable information regarding the location of the worm and to acquire it through a global deal with Solomon could not count on Asmodeus, but he knew that Asmodeus was a daily appears to God and during this performance comes into such a strong fever, which immediately after it descends to the ground in order to cool itself with water from unknown well. Having decided to find out at any cost where this well, he ordered his subjects to make a search, promising a reward for diligence. A certain Ben-Yahu revealed that the well was in the land of Merekishn, since he himself saw Asmodeus, who flew from the sky with extraordinary speed and then instantly fell to the ground the well, which tore off its seal, and after quenching its thirst, sealed it again well and flew away. Ben-Yahu let the water out of the well and filled it with the most strong century-old wine. Asmodeus, who arrived almost unconscious, drank for a long time, not while dismantling the drink until he fell unconscious from intoxication. This incident gave Ben-Yahu the opportunity to put him in chains and present him in this form to Solomon. On the way Asmodeus, at the request of Ben-Yahu, performed several miracles to Jerusalem by force the mysterious name of God (Shen-Mashbie), which was written on his chest. When questioned by Solomon regarding the shamir, Asmodeus declared that the shamir is with the leader of the eagles living in the coastal country. These eagles can be see in the said country every morning; at sunrise they bathe in sea and when they fly, they cover the sun with their wings. To take Shamir from the leader of these eagles, you need to present him with a mirror: seeing your own in the mirror image, he will mistake it for a friend and, out of excitement, drop it from under his wing the shamir stored there. Then one can take it and possess it, making it properly consuming use. Having learned from Asmodeus what was needed regarding the shamir, Solomon entrusted the search to Ben-Yah, and he himself turned to Asmodeus with a request to teach something else. Asmodeus asked Solomon to remove what was on his chest. the name of God was written down; but as soon as it was removed, Asmodeus seized Solomon, swallowed it and threw it far beyond the borders of Jerusalem. Solomon found himself outside of his kingdom, naked and poor; Asmodeus, taking upon himself the image of Solomon, began reign in Israel. In vain did the real Solomon cry out to his people: “I am Solomon; I was king." They thought he was crazy, they laughed at him, and the boys They threw stones at him. Solomon concluded that everything was lost forever and began say: "Vanity of vanities and all is vanity." Sanhedrin (the highest Jewish judgment) could not, however, fail to pay attention to Solomon's constant assurances, that he is the king of Israel, and by virtue of this, on the king reigning in Israel, i.e. Asmodeus. Since nothing special could be found in his appearance, they considered It is necessary to find out how the king behaves in his harem. It is possible to find out about this but it was through Bathsheba, and it turned out that the reigning one was unusually voluptuous and does not pay any attention to this or that state of his wives. Bathsheba asked whether any of the wives had ever seen what the king’s toes were like; The wives replied that the king always wore boots. At Bathsheba's insistence, the wives managed to see that the king's legs were like chicken feet. Asmodeus was thus recognized and, fearing some kind of disaster for himself, left the throne of Solomon, having lived on he's been enjoying all sorts of pleasures for 40 years. A lot of Jews are studying all these absurdities verbally and sacredly believes that everyone knows this, from the youngest to the oldest.

Shamir, who rendered invaluable services in the construction of the temple, was given to the keeping of the Levites, who also took care of him. He lived in the first temple; after the destruction he, along with other Israeli saints, disappeared into thin air (Tractate "Gittin", (p. 68-69).

Chapter 21

Talmudic Tales of King Solomon

According to the Mosaic law (Deut. 17:16-17), the Jewish king is forbidden to have many horses, many wives and accumulate excessive amounts of silver and gold. King Solomon in his old age broke all three of these rules: he kept many horses, had many wives and much wealth, as evidenced by the Book of Kings: 1, 10 and 11 (Midrash to Song of Songs 1:11), which brought down God's wrath.

The Talmud comments on this verse of Ecclesiastes (612): “I, a preacher, was "When King Solomon sat on his royal throne, his heart became overly proud because of his riches, he got many horses and war chariots and horsemen, accumulated for himself an excessive amount of silver and gold and became related to foreign pagan peoples.

And the wrath of God was not slow to flare up against him, and he sent Asmodeus to him. (Lucifer) - the king of the Sheidems, and he drove him from the royal throne, tore it from his hand seal (i.e. a ring with the royal seal, on which the miraculous was carved name of God) and forced him as a punishment to wander and wander homeless across the face land. And he wandered through the cities and villages of the land of Israel, weeping and groaning, repeating:

"I, the preacher, who was formerly called Solomon, was from ancient times king over "Israel in Jerusalem" (Targum Ecclesiastes 1:12).

In another legend about Solomon in Midrash Tanhum, book 2, section sub. "Vooro", 2,
It is proven that the reason for the overthrow of Solomon was excessive pride and his self-confidence, which reached the extreme.

“In relation to what the Holy and Blessed One wrote in his Torah, so as not to “The king of Israel multiplied wives for himself, lest his heart turn away” (Deut. 17:17), Solomon said: “I will multiply and I am confident that my heart will not turn away.”

Rabbi Joshua ben Levi said that the letter "yod" ascended to heaven in order to to bring a complaint, fell down and prayed to Jehovah, saying: “Sovereign of the world, have You written even one letter in the holy Torah in vain?” Another talmid-chochem, Rabbi Simon ben-Yohai proves that the book of Deuteronomy appeared before St. Adinoy with a complaint, saying to Him: “Master of the world, this is what Solomon dared: to destroy the letter iodine from me (jot) from what You wrote in me, "so that he does not multiply wives for himself, so that "I multiplied horses for myself, so that I would not multiply silver and gold for myself excessively," - Solomon
“He acquired many horses, took many wives, and collected a lot of silver and gold!”

Saint Adishem said: “I swear to you by your life that Solomon and hundreds like him will be destroyed, than even one letter of yours will change."

There is a similar legend in the Jerusalem Talmud (Tractate Sanhedrin 2, 6; "Midrash Kohelet" 2, 3; "Tanhumo 3", Shabbat section "Achromot").

Rove and Samuel, the first of them, asserts that the staff constituted the whole property
Solomon, another claims that it's rags. And so Solomon begs from house to house,
He says everywhere about himself that he was the king of Israel. He repeats the same thing before Sanhedrin. What does that mean? The rabbis say: a madman never stays mad.
with the same couples. And they ask Benaiah if the king is calling him to him. No, Benaiah answers. And he orders Solomon's wives to ask if the king is coming to them, and if comes, then let them pay attention to his legs; and it is known that the devil has legs, that rooster. They answer that the king visits them, but always appears with shoes on; that he cohabited with them and was even ready to encroach on his mother, Bathsheba.

Then the rabbis found the beggar Solomon and took the ring for him. and the chain which they secretly stole from Asmodeus, and, putting it on Solomon, brought him into the palace where the demon sat on the throne. As soon as Asmodeus saw him, he flew away.
back home, but Solomon remained in his former kingdom. 110 Solomon did not leave fear. As it is written: "Behold the bed of Solomon: threescore warriors are round about it, the warriors of Israel, all of them holding a sword."

Chapter 22

The Talmudic tale of King David

In the Talmud (Tractate Sanhedrin, p. 95a) the story is as follows: Jehovah said to the king To David: terrible crimes lie on your conscience. You were the cause of the bloody massacre in the priestly city of Nomwe, because of you Doeg the Edomite lost his soul (who reported David to Saul, for which the priests were killed), because of you Saul and his sons went down to the grave prematurely.

Choose for yourself one of two things: that your family line will end, or that you will end up into the hands of his enemy! David cried out: "O Lord of the world! Be kind rather, "that I should fall into the hands of the enemy, than that my family should cease."

It so happened that David went hunting. The devil appeared to him and turned into a deer, which the king chased: he shot several arrows at him, but all didn't hit, but the deer ran on. The king chased the deer for a long time, until it little by little little by little he brought him into the land of the Philistines, to Jesse in Nob (to the brother of King Goliath, killed by David). He recognized him as the murderer of his brother, captured him and threw him pressed down. But a miracle happened here - a depression formed in the ground, and David remained unharmed, that is why it is said (Psalm 18:37): "You widen my steps under by me, so that my feet do not slip."

In captivity at the hands of his sworn enemy, David faced terrible danger and painful death. But, fortunately, his faithful servant, his constant friend Avesay, arrived in time, who, thanks to his courage, physical strength and dexterity, and especially thanks to the miraculous power of the full mysterious name he pronounced God's - "shem hamforosh" - managed to avoid danger and save the king from suffering and death.

Chapter 23

On the return of the Jews from Babylonian captivity to Jerusalem

The leader of the Jews, Zerubbabel, transported the sacred vessels from captivity to Jerusalem, to place in the temple. And the number of these vessels is this: fifty cups gold and five hundred silver, forty gold cups, and five hundred, fifty silver ones gold and five hundred silver tubs, thirty gold and three hundred silver bowls for libations, thirty gold and two thousand silver vials and another thousand others large vessels. The Persian king wrote in a letter: “I allow the Jews to return to to the former customs of their ancestors that they revered; let them receive for the establishment cattle, wine and oil two hundred fifty thousand five hundred drachmas and wheat flour twenty thousand five hundred artabs. I order all these expenses to be attributed to taxes. from Samaria. From this the Jerusalem priests will offer sacrifices in accordance the laws of Moses and at the same time they will pray to the Eternal for the salvation of the king and his family, so that the Persian kingdom would remain indestructible. All who disobey this command or will oppose it, I will command to crucify, and the property "confiscate in favor of the royal treasury."

This was the content of the (royal) letter; and the number of those who returned to Jerusalem There were forty-two thousand three hundred and sixty people taken from captivity.

While (the Jews) were laying the foundation of the temple and were especially diligently engaged in construction the latter, the neighboring tribes, mainly the Khutei, whom the king Assyrian Shalmaneser led them out of Persia and Media and settled them in Samaria when He conquered the people of Israel and began to ask for satraps and other (royal) authorized to prevent the Jews from rebuilding the city and building temple. The commissioners, having been bribed by the Khutei, became to be careless and negligent in the construction of Jewish buildings. Meanwhile, Cyrus there was no time to think about it due to the fact that he was busy with the war; during his He died during the campaign against the Massagetae. When Cambyses, the son of Cyrus, ascended the royal throne, then the inhabitants of Syria, Phoenicia, Antonitis, Moabitis and Samaria sent Cambyses letter of the following content: “Master! Your servants, Rafim the historiographer, Semelius The scribe and members of the Syrian and Phoenician court send you greetings. Know, O king, that (Once) the Jews taken to Babylon have now arrived in our country and are rebuilding their apostate vile city with its squares, they build walls and again are restoring the temple. However, rest assured that if they complete these buildings, they they will neither pay taxes nor be willing to obey, but will rise up against kings and would rather rule than obey. And since they are very energetic and we have diligently set about rebuilding our temple, then we, O king, have decided to write to you and not to miss the opportunity to remind you to review the chronicles of your ancestors. Here you will find indications that the Jews and their city are traitors and enemies. (Persian) kings and that for this very reason their city is now destroyed. Together with Therefore, we considered it necessary to draw your attention to one more thing, which you will undoubtedly also like an unknown subject, namely, that when the city is thus rebuilt and surrounded by walls everywhere, your access to Coele-Syria and Phoenicia will be cut off."

When Cambyses read the letter, he was completely imbued with the said slander and wrote next answer.

"King Cambyses to the historian Rafim, Velsem, the scribe Semelius and all the rest to his subordinates living in Samaria and Phoenicia, he reports the following: having read I ordered the letter you sent me to be consulted in the chronicles of my ancestors and found out, that the city you mentioned was hostile to the Persian kings from time immemorial and that the inhabitants his (constantly) were busy with rebellions and wars. At the same time, we learned that their kings (of the Jews) were powerful and despotic and imposed tribute on Coele-Syria and Phoenicia. Therefore, I ordered that the Jews not be allowed to rebuild their city, so that their constant attitude towards the kings would not increase even more (Persian) hatred."

After reading this letter, Rafim, the scribe Semelius and their subordinates They immediately mounted their horses and hurried to Jerusalem, where they gathered a large crowd people and declared a ban on the Jews from rebuilding the city and the temple. Thus, these construction was suspended until the second year of the Persian king's reign Darius, that is, for nine whole years. Having reigned for six years and having subjugated those At that time, Egypt, Cambyses died in Damascus upon his return.

After the massacre of the Magi who had taken over the government after the death of Cambyses Persians and held power in their hands for a year, the so-called seven Persian houses chose Darius Hystaspes as king. Even while he was still a private
As a man, Darius made a vow to God that if he became king, he would send to Jerusalem the temple of all the sacred vessels of the Eternal that were still in Babylon. Just At this time, Zerubbabel, who had once been appointed, arrived to Darius from Jerusalem the leader of the captive Jews. The fact is that Zerubbabel had long been bound friendship with the Tsar and thanks to this friendship he is now, together with two other persons was awarded the honor he had previously sought, namely, becoming the king's bodyguard.

SECTION 2. TALMUDIC PEDAGOGY AND PROPAGANDA

TREATISE 1

ABOUT THE TALMUDIST TEACHERS (MELAMEDS)

AND JEWISH SCHOOLS

Chapter 1

The desire to isolate the Jewish school

Before a Jew even had a child, all his neighbors and close associates were already congratulating him.
father, greeting the future son with the words: “Talmid chochem,” which means Talmudic-sage. According to the teachings of the Talmud, the study of the law begins in the womb; but
At the birth of a baby, an angel strikes him on the mouth, and the baby, coming out into the light of God,
"Anything can happen."

1 Tract. "Nida", l. 30, p. 2.

Therefore, the study of the law must be started anew and continued throughout life. According to the Talmud, the study of the law should be divided into three parts:
the first part should be devoted to the study of the Bible, the second - to the study of the Mishnah,
The third is the study of gemara. This is the system and method by which, according to the Talmud, teach the boy and develop his senses with examples of different forms of wallet;

In the fourth year, you should begin to teach the boy to read and write, and, adapting to his concepts, explain to him that if you put a whip on both ends of a stick, you get a letter (Amer); if you open the wallet, it looks like the Hebrew letter - bet; opened a purse with money gives an idea of the letter gimel, etc.; moreover, melamed or father throws a kopeck onto the boy's table from above and tells him that an angel threw it from heaven, so that he only learns. Teaching the boy the rules of arithmetic, Melamed teaches its addition and subtraction: for example, one in four minus three, one in three - the boy answers 2; one of one - the boy thinks and scratches his sidelocks - According to the rule, zero follows - the boy remembered and puts zero under one, Melamed comes up with his own invention of his own philosophy and gives the boy a stern suggestion, - listen, if we, being on the foreign side, follow such If we follow the rules that if only zero remains from one, then we will all die of hunger. No, my dear, you can't do that - you need to give the remaining one for interest and then again one of three 2 will come out, etc. another 2 and 4, and the remainder can be brought to 100 and 1000.

In the fifth year the boy should be taught the Pentateuch; on the tenth Mishna; from the thirteenth years should be taught the commandments, because after thirteen years a Jew is responsible for failure to fulfill them; at thirteen years of age Ishmael was circumcised and received the name of husband.

1 The Hebrew language in which prayers, the Psalter and the in which the Talmud is written, this language has its own divisions, namely: Chaldean-Aramaic, the dialect in which the most ancient and sacred translation is written The Pentateuch "onkelos", as well as some prayers "berikh-shemei, erukim-Purkan, Kaddish"; religious acts are still written in the Chaldean-Aramaic dialect, such as; marriage record "kesu-ba", divorce bill "get", etc. All Talmudic and Kabbalistic books are printed in this language.

The Jewish-Rabbinic language was formed from a mixed ancient Hebrew-Biblical with Chaldean; all the books of the law are printed in this language Jews. The font of this language is square, in which all the Talmuds and other religious books.

The second font, the rabbinical one, called Rashi, in which all the Talmudic commentaries and other doctrinal books. The third font is italic, - used in private correspondence.

Chapter 2

Division of the course of study

From the age of 15, one must begin studying the Talmud itself, the Mishnah and the Gemara.
In the Talmud, the most important and suitable parts are studied with particular diligence. practical life, such as: 1) the prayers read by every Jew; 2) the laws relating to regarding compensation for damages and insults; 3) laws relating to various penalties, fines, interest, loans secured by collateral; 4) trade laws, transfer of inheritance, etc.; 5) about the oath; 6) about different types and forms of court (of course, only Talmudic); 7) about kosher and trefa, clean and unclean animals; 8) about marriage contracts and dowries; 9) about matchmaking; 10) about divorce; 11) about marital duties and relationships. In general , the study of the Talmud has such
It is so important that only those who know it are considered human. The Talmud says:
“If the Jews were entirely concerned with the law, i.e. the Talmud, then God would have forced "other nations to work for them." An important point in the Talmud is regulations on lending money at interest. The Talmud requires that every father
I practically taught my children to give money at interest, so that the children would have time to “They acquired sufficient skill in this regard.” The Talmud decisively forbids giving money to a goy without interest? and even elevates it to a commandment: “Give in "grow money for a foreigner."

Before the birth of a baby, midwives, according to some signs, find out whether a boy or a girl will be born, and if a boy, whether he will be capable of study of the Talmud and whether he will become a rabbi. The latter is the subject of the most ardent every parent's desires, as well as to make their son the most worthy the greatest title in the world - Talmudic sage; every Jew, even the most the poor man, having waited impatiently for the child to turn five, carries him in his arms, and with him and his last penny, to the melamed (teacher) in the cheder (school) and I am ready to sacrifice everything just to let my son drink from this blessed source.

1 Tract. "Berakhot" 35, 2.

2 Tract. "Bova Metsie" 75.1.

3 Tract. "Avoide-Zura" 75, 1.

4 Tract. "Avoyde-Zure" 91, 2.

Therefore, it is not surprising that there are many Jewish schools in every society, Jews are devoted to them with all their hearts and souls, as true and precious hotbeds of religious education. Mogilev is a good example, where for a Jewish population of 8,000 there are up to 30 elementary schools, in which Between 50 and 80 children are studying; in addition, there are many small children wandering from home to the house of teachers, known to the Jews as "Stundists", teach children in houses for a rent of 20 to 30 kopecks per month. In Berdichev, the 60,000-strong Jewish community The village has up to 300 schools and up to 100 Stundists. What venerable the numbers of schools and what at the same time fruitless results are obtained from these schools, in which do not at all strive to develop the mental abilities of children, and from which they cannot bear any knowledge necessary in life! All training in elementary school consists of mechanical memorization by children ancient Hebrew dead language and in the reading of the Pentateuch, without any explanation the inner content of what they learn and read. Jewish child leaves school as ignorant as he entered it, with the only difference being, that he comes out of it already beaten down, exhausted, corrupted, as they themselves Melameds do not hesitate to instill in children theft, lies, cunning, slander, etc. vices. It is in these schools that young Jewish children are condemned to receive their education. generation, and here all the dark sides of the Jewish character are instilled in the children.

Chapter 3

There are two types of heders

Heders, or schools, are of two kinds: with payment to the melameds from parents for education for children and free, organized at the expense of the society. Heders of the first kind are divided, in turn, into three categories: 1) elementary, in which, as we said already, children are taught Hebrew and the reading of the Pentateuch; sometimes in these schools also teach calligraphy, also in Hebrew, and first four rules of arithmetic; 2) heads in which the Bible is studied and 3) heads in which which Jews study the casuistic subtleties of the Talmud. To the heders of the second kind include "Talmud Torahs" and "Yeshibots". Such schools in most cases are placed in the living, family room of the melamed with dank, sour air and beggarly furnishings. In this room, the width of which does not exceed a fathom and 2 arshin, and the length is 2 arshins 10 vershoks, often more than 30 children can fit in. And in winter, and During the blooming summer season they are condemned to sit in it for whole days, swallowing air poisoned by all sorts of miasmas, which has such a destructive effect on fragile lungs, which often leads to high mortality among children consumption. The time of education of children in elementary schools is not determined by any the same period as in schools of the next two categories. The number of teaching hours and the teaching method The gifts do not correspond to either the age or the mental abilities of the children. They the same for a child of 7 and 11 years old, for a child with disabilities and for a child with a lively, receptive nature. Children are crowded closely behind a long table on crooked benches, and all their scientific studies consist of the fact that melamed shouts out to them some Hebrew word or text from the Pentateuch, and the children, sitting motionless, mechanically memorize this text in a chant, repeating it after him word for word. But what does this text mean in common parlance, accessible to them? understanding the language, what inner meaning is contained in it - this remains for them an impenetrable secret, because most melameds consider it unnecessary such explanations are a luxury. For every offense, even the most innocent, a child beatings and slaps rain down, not to mention the punishments that are served retribution for a child's unsuccessful studies. The Melameds are especially inventive in these matters.

It will be enough to mention one method of punishment which is most often practiced them, - a "head-washing", which consists of removing from the guilty child cap, melamed hits him on the bare head with a four-pointed whip.

Most Jewish children have scabs on their heads from similar beatings; Their destructive effect on the functions of the brain goes without saying. It is quite natural that from such a system of education and treatment children become prematurely dull and, upon leaving school, become incapable of further scientific development, if anyone decided to apply it to them, and constant fear of beatings develops a morbid fearfulness in a child, to overcome which he is no longer able to. Is it not from a similar system of education practiced over Jews for many centuries, and that miserable cowardice and humiliation in front of every physically strong person, which is the distinctive feature of this people?

Chapter 4

2nd Class Headers

Only children are allowed to join the second-class cheders, where the Bible is studied. male, aged 10 to 14 years. Teachers in these schools are mostly Lithuanian Melameds. Only children are sent to these schools so-called middle party of the Jewish people. Jews avoid other parties to send their children to these cheders - firstly, because the Bible is not used by them worthy honor, and secondly, out of distrust of the Lithuanian Melameds. According to the situation and the conditions of teaching at these schools are no different from the one we described elementary school. Learning here also does not bring the child any significant benefits knowledge. They study the Bible incoherently, mechanically, and its moral side disappears from their understanding, since few of the melameds are capable of intelligibly explain it to the children.

If there is a melamed who is a hunter for explanations, then his explanations are strictly religious, rather Kabbalistic in nature in the spirit of the famous Bible commentator Rashi, whose religious hypotheses and theories largely contradict common sense. Third-class heders are no better than these schools, which the Talmud is studied. Here the child's mind is forced to invent various with cunning twists and turns, and thereby destroys his common sense and distorts his heart with religious fanaticism. Not a single bright, vital stream will touch the mind and heart Jewish child in these schools. He is condemned to remain stuck only in the realm of traditions, distorted by their senseless interpreters, and with these traditions, the moral meaning of which is inaccessible to him, he enters into real life. What else can come out of a person after such preparation, if not a pitiful a fanatic who directs all the efforts of the mind towards one goal: to obtain by any means ways to earn a penny to ensure their existence.

Chapter 5

Public organization

Let us give information about the organization of Jewish institutions developed the social meaning of the development of Jews among peoples and institutions alien to them very practical, beneficial, one might say, exemplary. These institutions omnipresent among Jews: they constitute the most important conditions of their social life and as if they were legalized in the Jewish population, just like the 10 Mosaic commandments, and therefore exist absolutely everywhere where a group of Jews has settled. These institutions that always form the basis for the rapid development of Judaism exist not only in the cities, but in every insignificant place in the county. Begelfers not only They are responsible for carrying children to and from school, but their responsibilities include wash and dress the children at home and read a few prayers with them before taking the children to school. Melamed receives up to 10 rubles a year from wealthy parents for each child, and for the poor or the orphan he receives the same reward from the charity society. Each cheder has up to 10 children. In the richest and most abundant Jews in the town of Yarmolintsy in the Podolsk province in the same district - up to 30 heders. each of them has from 10 to 40 students, with fees from 10 rubles or more per student; in the town Satanove - up to 20 heads.

In the district town of Proskurov there are 47 cheders. In each of them 40 to 200 students (200 in two cheders alone); and therefore some melameds receive 2000 rubles a year in maintenance. Official headers, i.e. those that are open-According to the certificates issued to the melameds, only 6 are considered, 10 students per each. Besides all these headers in Proskurov there is also a city one-class a Jewish school with 60 students, the maintenance of which is financed from box collections Up to 2,200 rubles are allocated annually. Melameds often visit cities and towns. from the outside, then the first duty of Melamed is to find such a one for the heder premises, the owners of which spend the whole day at the markets. Of course, such The premises are rented for next to nothing, and a cheder is opened in it and quickly flourishes. Melameds visit the homes of the children of rich Jews.

When children, brought up under the strict ferula of the Talmud, thus absorb into themselves of Jewish nationality, then many enter the city 2-year school, where there are up to 30 of them a year. There they acquire the necessary knowledge in Russian language, as a weapon for further struggle. After this, it becomes clear, Why is it that nowadays there is not a single young Jew who does not know literacy. What a great thing! What nation in the world can boast of this?

In Kamenets, all this is on an even larger scale. For example, There are considered to be 100 heder schools there, with 200 to 300 students in each, and charity hospitals with more than 300 beds. How many such chaderas are there in In Odessa and in Berdichev, this capital of Russian Judaism?

It is no wonder that the Jews are so concerned with such charitable institutions.
they are rapidly moving forward, getting rich and dominating, - that everywhere in the south all the markets and capitals are in their hands, and in Proskursky district half of the estates (up to 67) are rented by them, and in their hands were absolutely all the taverns and inns, where everyone was taken products of the peasants.

Chapter 6

Transformation of Jewish schools

The transformation of the currently existing Jewish schools of the 1st and 2nd categories into one-class primary schools, where special attention is paid to preparatory classes in which pupils acquire the necessary supplies general educational information, a good and solid foundation for education has been laid Jews, which will inevitably lead to their moral degeneration. We are convinced, that the teachers who are now being specially trained in the Vilnius and Zhitomir schools In institutions, educators will conscientiously fulfill their mission and avoid that corrupting influence on youth, which is what distinguishes melameds. Melameds are one of the great pedagogical evils that existed and, unfortunately, still exists up to the present time. Due to profound ignorance, in the absence of any system in teaching, with unlimited despotic arbitrariness in dealing with children, with the corruption that they instill, the melameds also destroy young fresh forces by inhaling they have a narrow religious fanaticism, this distinctive feature of Judaism. With the transformation the formation of Jewish schools, foreseeing their fall and not wanting to let go of it teaching activities, the melameds petitioned for the right to be granted teaching children at least until the first graduation of teachers from teacher training schools institutions. The main reason they cited in their petition was that by taking away their right to teach they are deprived of their daily bread in old age and in the absence of crafts that would ensure their existence.

The Talmud teaches that a Jew should not give his children to an "akim" to be taught to read and write.
or craft, and it is also forbidden for a Jew to teach the "akim" any craft whatsoever.
(Kitzer Shulchan Aruch, Chapter 167). Jewish law obliges everyone to study the Talmud, Therefore, a Jew who does not know the law is the same as a foreigner and a stranger.

Having studied the law, a Jew has the right to enter into marriage; according to the degree his knowledge of the Talmud he can count on a more or less advantageous match; Fathers of the bride test the grooms by offering them this or that place for explanation from the Talmud. The more knowledgeable a Jewish infant or groom is in Talmudic casuistry, the more advantages and various honors are given to him as a true prince with the title of "talmid chochem." Therefore, it is not surprising that when it was made public there was a decree on the establishment of state Jewish schools, the Jews fell into despair, they cried, fasted and sent messengers to all their righteous people, so that the latter with their prayers they delivered the Israelites from this great misfortune from the goyim. It goes without saying that the shepherds of Israel did not sit idly by then, well realizing that an ungodly education would turn the hearts of the pious away from them the Israelites, who feed all the righteous with their numerous descendants, and will deprive them of all moral influence along with their enormous incomes, and honors associated with it. Under the cover of deep ignorance of his brethren the righteous man had nothing to worry about, and he lived out his life in peace. Wherever Whenever he arrived, he found profit everywhere: local residents brought him rich gifts gifts, silver chairs, golden vessels, and everything, willy-nilly, was subject to them power. The righteous man lived happily, generously scattering his blessings. What what would have happened to these men if the Jews had opened their eyes, and the ignorant had learned to be wise reason?

A Jewish man's story from his life in a cheder. "The Tormentor" - that's what I always call him when I have to talk about him; that's what he really was. In his cruelty, not knowing no mercy, he was inventive to the point of virtuosity, and the composure with which he
He carried out frequent executions on our young bodies, it was amazing. Not a shadow there was no anger on his face or in his dull eyes, not a sign of the slightest irritation in his movements, he performed his execution so calmly and majestically, he definitely performed the sacred rite.

Oh, how great was our contempt for this despot! I must add, that we had various legends about him, one more terrible than the other. They said that as if he buried three wives, lost all his children and generally experienced so much misfortunes that no one else in his place could have endured; and yet his no one ever saw him in tears and no one ever heard him complain about his essentially sad fate. And his methods of torture and atrocities were widely discussed. We, the Hederniks, were truly monstrous. We prayed and waited daily.
the coming of the Messiah to deliver us from the barbaric hands of our Melamed. Oh, how "Our hatred for the heartless tyrant was deep!"

Chapter 7

On Jewish opposition to government schools

From here began the preaching to all Jews that enlightenment is positive evil and temptation coming from the devil. From here all obstacles arose.

from the side of the Jews to the emergence of state-owned Jewish schools established government.

Having firmly decided not to send their children to the newly opened state schools, Jews, in order to at the same time avoid the reprimand of various auditors and superiors, those who came from time to time to inspect the schools, managed to do the following way: when the arrival of some auditor was expected, they would gather a lot of people boys from the "cheders" and "talmud-tor" and they filled the empty benches of the school.
The auditor, seeing many children at school, was always pleased with the school, without realizing it, that the students don't know a single letter of Russian literacy. If he did learn about this the trick of the Jews, then, fearing the enormous force of Jewish opposition, he considered it
It is better not to make a noise and, having received his share, put a seal of silence on his lips on the grounds that the Jews are not related to him and are not of the same nation as him, and therefore there is nothing he cares too much about their welfare and sacrifices himself for their enlightenment.
The Jews' aversion to state schools is motivated by the following: Jews say, that nothing will come of their children in state schools, that they are in Christian schools will not receive useful information, i.e. they will not study the Talmud, but will become acquainted only with those books which they call treif and pusl, i.e. bad and vicious. This explains why the Kagalniks and all Jewish teachers are fanatics they use all means to prevent the Jewish masses from changing their lives in accordance with the spirit of civil life. How does the author fulfill this rather such a difficult, complex task?

“The Jews came to Egypt as a small tribe and settled separately in the land Goshen, and they lived according to their own special laws and customs... and separated themselves from the Egyptians, masters of the country, did not intermarry with them and did not eat bread with them..." - this is how Mr.
Rabinovich wrote his story about the Jewish people as a lesson to the cheder youth.
separately, isolate yourself, protect yourself in every possible way from outside influence, for sure your ancestors did the same in Egypt, and this is the example they bequeathed to you! With such

With this teaching, our author seems to be addressing his young audience from the very first moment acquaintance with her, from the very first words of his story. But the teacher tries to instill in the disciples the same isolation that the Jews had in Egypt.

“The prophet (Samuel) hated the king (Saul), who reigned in spite of him desire, and he secretly dug a hole for him...” we read in another place in Mr. Rabinovich (p. 16): it is he who gives the promised in the preface “whole and prominent features of great people people as an example to students." But firstly, the message just given Rabinovich does not agree with the truth (biblical); secondly, how could he, in principle, the prophet personally hated the king, the anointed of God, only because he himself, the prophet, was an opponent of royal power in general? How was Saul to blame here? And not Should Samuel in any case have submitted his will entirely to the will of God, who ordered him to anoint this humble shepherd, and later - himself a rejected hero, to the kingdom? And thirdly, finally, what kind of example and "good" is this?
"path" to "imprint on the heart" of a young reader? These are the things that are taught to their youth Jewish teachers and writers of moral books.

By the way, let us cite the admonitions of modern educated teachers. A. R.
Rabinovich published a history of the Jewish people for young cheder students under titled "Goldot Am Ye-rosl", issue [-UT, Warsaw 1898.

Chapter 8

The story of a Jew, a former student at the cheder

As proof, we will cite the opinion of one educated and well-intentioned Jew, published in the "Bulletin of South-West Russia" for 1866. "When my father, - says L. M., - brought me to the heyder (school), the melamed addressed him with with the following words: “It’s good that they brought us to the cheder, and not to any other ungodly from state schools. Do you know why many of our children leave Epicureans (apostates from the faith)? Because their parents send them to Christian schools, gymnasiums, universities, and it is well known what they teach there:

walk around without a yarmulke, shave your beard, speak a foreign language...

Is it a different matter in the heider? Here, any melamed will say to the student: "Listen! Without
You can't sit with your hat on, it's a sin; you can't talk to Christian children, and you can't play with them either “They are also not allowed: it is a sin”! (“Bulletin of Western Russia”, book 7).

The author goes on to say: “After six months of my After entering the Heyder, the immoral Melamed began to teach me to steal from my mother.
money, and when I told him that my mother taught me that stealing is a sin, he replied:
"It is a sin to steal from strangers, but it is permissible from relatives." This is the permission that was issued Melamed, at one time, from his teacher, he considered it necessary to give it to me too.

My teacher was called Rabbi Zerach Berel. One day, while studying a verse with me, which says: "Whoever robs his father and his mother and says that it is no sin,
"Comrade to the robber." I started to intercept, as it happens in a heider, and explain these words, looking at my melamed, but he stopped me and said: "You are already God
I climbed into God knows where. I'll explain it to you. This verse should not be understood as simply as It's written, but completely differently. Robbing and stealing from your own parents is also a sin small. Listen, - continued the melamed, - what the wise king understood in this verse: "Whoever robs the Creator and Judaism, that is, whoever eats something without first creating it "Prayers, comrade robber."

However absurd this interpretation may be, it nevertheless had quite an effect on me, - L.K. continues, “And I confess that I began to steal from my mother the money that I brought Melamed. This pious teacher of mine addicted me to theft, weaned me off pray. He told me that only adults should pray, and not boys; that we have enough of what we read at school. He told me to tell my mother that The melamed strictly ordered not to pray at home and not to have breakfast, but to perform both in the heider and other things, and so that, consequently, my mother would give me money in the khayder instead of buns.
It goes without saying that my meager pennies, like those of other students, fell into the hands of Melamed." L.K. concludes his memories of the school with the following words:
“My heart bleeds when I remember that the Jews entrust the education of their children to these crazy melameds and their dishonest assistants, the Belfers. Our a wise and merciful government took notice and established for us Jews, state schools, where educated teachers teach us wisdom and enrich us knowledge, but we, to our shame, with the exception of a few, are reluctant to use it with this blessing. It makes my soul sad when I remember that my children co-religionists still languish in dirty Talmudic eshibots and heiders and God news, how long will they continue to suffer in them due to the mercy of our backward leaders, rabbis, kagalniks and melameds who do not tolerate any enlightenment except Talmud."

Chapter 9

On the prohibition of fanatics from entering new schools

In confirmation that these gentlemen are hindering the enlightenment of the Jews western region, the author cites a letter from his relative, a Hasidic fanatic, written to his father, the following content: “I know,” writes a Hasid to a Hasid, “that my letter will not please you, it will not be a good message, as it says in it bad about your son; but I remember the words of the Holy Scripture: if you see your neighbor's lost sheep, you must lead it back to the right path. The sheep is your son, but my nephew; he has gone astray from the good road; he, terribly to pronounce, instead of eshibot (a Talmudic school respected by Jews - I.L.), To our great misfortune, I entered the damned state rabbinical school. You, my friend, do not look at the fact that he wears a long caftan, like all Jews, when he comes to you. No, I assure you, my friend, that in Vilnius he walks like Rabinchuks-scoundrels, in short! One thing, my friend, surprises me: how did you give yourself up deceive? Now, as soon as he took the passport with the birth certificate, you should have realized that he was going to Vilnius not to enroll in the eshibot (after all, in Eshibota does not need any papers and is not required), but that he intends to enroll in some any of the state schools. Farewell! I hope you'll fly to us on eagle wings. wings and we will see each other face to face."

“Regarding the said letter,” the author continues, “I had to do a lot to endure from my father. Upon my arrival from Vilnius, my father took out the letter and, having read it in in the presence of his mother, he said: “What do you say to this, son? After all, you wanted to go to Eshibot, where did you go? You disgraced yourself and me and our entire family name; after all, when studied in the heyder, already knew how to chat in Russian and read their tref books; and in this

In the damned school I read, I think, the ungodly Bible with biur".

1 The Bible received this name because it was published with a commentary.
Mendelssohn, where the author tries to find a direct line contrary to the Midrash and Talmud the clear meaning of the words of Holy Scripture, in which the old rabbis found profanation Divine words and why they pronounced a heir, i.e. a curse, over him.

I, wanting to calm my father, told him: "First, father, find out what is there school, and then battles. In these schools they teach us everything useful; there enlightened teachers teach not only the law, but all kinds of sciences that useful in life for every citizen." - "Be silent," shouted the father, "you still dare speak, robber, apostate! I have heard this song more than once from our the custodians of the state school, and also from the state rabbi, and from many Epicureans (i.e. apostates) who were not educated in Jewish heiders.
In vain do your uninvited and unsolicited mentors strain themselves to transform the people of Israel! No, a thousand times no! I can assure you that all of them they will burst before this comes true. Even if there is the strictest order that We all sent our children to state schools, we are all Jews, from the youngest to the oldest,
We will fast, go to cemeteries and pray at the graves of the dead.
Jews, so that they, for their part, would intercede before God for the living the Israelites until God has mercy on them and these orders are cancelled, and until We will again be allowed to continue raising our children in a purely Jewish manner. spirit. It is not for nothing that great Talmudists are buried in the cemetery. But now we, and especially our kahal, is still able to settle accounts with you and with all our brothers. And What's next? Wait, Epicureans! The time will come for the election of rabbis, Then, official false rabbis, say goodbye to your plans against the native Jews.
Everyone who owns a 4-arshin hut will have to bow to the waist, so that he gave his vote in favor of your choice, then our melameds will be forced to leave these gentlemen, rest in peace. And with your honors, teachers and caretakers,
"The kahal will end in one fell swoop." Mother, hearing father's cry, intervened in our argument.
"Tell me, please," she turned to her father, "why are you the most upset?
Was he the only one at school? After all, it's not just any father's children who study there, and I don't think so, so that they would be taught something bad there. Is it important, as you told me, to read the Bible with biur? By the way: let me know why you can't read this Bible? After all

Is she ours, Jewish? I still really don't understand what harm she does. Although I a simple and uneducated woman, but she read in tequila (prayers for women) words: "Holy Bible, Holy Bible"; and you, my husband, throw it on the ground like a thing unnecessary and ungodly; explain to me why you do this and why this Bible

Do you think it's harmful?" - "Wife!" the father shouted. - Don't fool my head with such stupid things.
question; why should we, Jews, know why it is impossible. It is enough for us that our tzaddikim, The rabbis and all the kahalniks strictly forbid us to read them. I myself saw mine with his eyes, as the tzaddik threw the Bible with the biur into the fire and was beside himself with rage the whole day joy; I have never seen him like this; I, said the tzaddik, have done today a godly deed. You seem to know how, according to the command of the local rabbi and The kahal gave one of the synagogue's yeshibotniks a severe beating when they found out that he was secretly reading
"tal bible with biur"".

1 "Bulletin of Western Russia", 1867, book P, p. 136.

A correspondent from Borisov writes:

“Recently a Maggid, i.e. a Jewish preacher, came to our city from Bialystok, Elukem-Getsel Levitan, and began to preach in the main synagogue, outraging fanatics against the weak of faith. He cursed parents who send their children in Russian schools, and children who attend these schools. The main thing the manner of his speech was aimed at destroying what was existing in the city.
Borisov is an exemplary heder, which is, as it were, a preparatory point Jewish youth to the European way. The Maggid's speeches so captivated the Jewish mob was so in favor of the idea he was promoting that the latter was ready to tear to pieces anyone who dared not fulfill the Maggid's orders (a picture similar to (for riding times). In Borisov we have a paramedic, Zilberman, a man with with an excellent reputation, who reported the Maggid's speeches to the authorities. Further pro-Magid E. G. was forbidden from speaking and ordered to leave the city of Borisov.
Led by the Maggid, they turned to Rabbi Gurvich (there are three in Borisov) rabbi) demanding that Zilberman be subjected to "kheyrem," i.e., anathema. July 21 a huge crowd of Jews gathered in the main synagogue, on Minskaya Street, and the Maggid Levitan, in the presence of Rabbi Gurvich, jumped up on the podium and proclaimed: “For that, that Zilberman reported me to the police, in the name of Rabbi Gurvich and the entire public
I impose a curse on him so that none of his brothers dare invite him to theirs sick people, do not walk close to it, and do not sell it at a distance of at least 4 arshins him food supplies, etc." Indeed, from that moment on, persecutions and persecution of the paramedic. The Jews cursed Zilberman and his family with all sorts of with obscene words; from the servants who came to the market to buy bread and other things food supplies, everyone ran away, shouting: "They are all in herem, don't sell them anything."

The same thing happened in the meat stalls. Zilberman gets water for the paramedic. Russian water carrier; the Jews also attacked the latter, threatening to kill him if he dares to deliver water to Zilberman. I personally witnessed this fact:
During the day, walking along the main street of the city, I see all the Jews running away from the sidewalk:
Zilberman. I ask, "What's wrong?" They explain that Zilberman is in a "herem."
Magid placed an anathema on him.

Rumors of this wild fact between Russians and Jews spread throughout Borisov district and even penetrated into the provincial city of Minsk, from where he arrived in Borisov's spiritual mentor, Rabbi Yankef Meer Gorodzensky, with the aim of removing Zilberman On July 29, the Jews were gathered in the main synagogue in the presence of the spiritual father, but immediately, certain individuals appeared who had scores to settle with Zilberman and rushed to Minsk spiritual leader, Rabbi Yankef Meer, with threats that they would beat him if he dares to free Zilberman from the khairem. Meer nevertheless gathered the Jews from intelligentsia circle in a private apartment and in their presence removed from Zilberman and his family's kheyrem, notifying the rest of the Jews about it, pasting it in all the synagogues and "advertisements to schools under their signature."

Chapter 10

The opinion of a modern educated Jew

According to Levin (a modern educated Jew), the fault of such ignorant views of the majority of Jews - the Talmud, which thus is the main reason for the boundless development of Jewish fanaticism, isolation and alienation of Jews from other peoples with whom they are in constant intercourse. This opinion, of course, is quite well-founded.

Let us cite some of the teachings of the Talmud that are the subject of religious lessons for Jewish youths. Thus: “Whoever on Shabbat indulges in tanoishi, i.e. voluptuous pleasures, he will receive the reward promised by the Kabbalists:

eternal enjoyment of God; according to the promise of the rabbis, all his sins will be forgiven and he will
"will be freed from hell."

1 Tract. "Shabbes", l. 118.

There are more detailed descriptions in the Talmud about this kind of pastime. instructions. Thus, for a talmid-chochem (a learned Talmudist) it is considered sufficient to have this pleasure once a week, i.e. from Saturday to Saturday. Ezra established On Friday, eat garlic, onions, radishes, peppers, etc., alcoholic substances, as they make them more capable of fulfilling the commandment “Piriye voyrivie…” (“on Shabbat one can have intercourse with a girl after the wedding if it takes place on Friday, and (not to pay attention to her suffering and to the Maykhalym Shabbat)! "Oyrakh Chaim", p. 280.
It is remarkable that such Talmudic teachings are taught verbatim by teachers. eight-year-old children, despite their seductiveness, immorality and blasphemy, such as foreign treatises on divorce laws with the content is extremely greasy and immoral.

In the Talmudic story of Adam's wedding, it is reported, among other things, that angels stood with torches near the bed of the young spouses and so on, which Adam had love affair with the devil Lilith and with her, after 130 years, he produced evil spirits - that he had intercourse with animals and many other absurdities. Jewish heders are the most great evil. Melameds, notorious fanatics, instill terrible malice in children against Christians. The Melameds openly and loudly teach and insist on how to deceive Christians, how to give change and always try to underpay. Because Often a goy, out of gullibility or lack of time, does not check the money, to this Many people don't even know how to count.

Once we ourselves heard it through an open window while passing by on the street heder, a similar kind of lecture, and, having stopped, they were convinced that these were not fairy tales, invented by the melameds. In reality, the heders are breeding grounds for che-hatred of people, secrecy, isolation, bitterness towards Christians.
In the Hederah and Talmud Torah, poor students earn income by copying books in notebooks.
"Toldot Yeshu" (the life of Christ) is a terrible curse, a black slander against Jesus Christ, the Mother of God, and the Holy Apostles. Jewish handwritten notebooks.
The disciples sell to fanatical Jews, and many support themselves with these funds. This Every poor Jew knows the vile slander against the Christian faith even in his spare time tells his family and children, also considering it his duty spread this among your own. After all, there is no such slander in the printed Talmuds,

There are only rare special books that are kept in great secrecy by fanatics. Jews, from which manuscripts are prepared and distributed in heders. At the same time, study various offensive legends about Christians, poems, proverbs, and This is in the most vulgar and offensive form for Christians and Christian holiness. In this way, in these hellish Jewish schools, they instill in their children a terrible malice against Christians, making them enemies of all Christianity for life. Dostoevsky formulated the Jewish point of view this way: “Everyone hates us and therefore "Everyone is lying about us." Indeed, the Jews do not allow any critical, impartial attitude towards oneself. To be only truthful when speaking about Jews means already become one of their enemies. Unconditional praise and flattery - that's what they demand, and what further, the more impudently. They are deeply offended by the liberals for the fact that they maintain a prudent neutrality on the Jewish question.

Chapter 11

The Melameds' blasphemies against Christians

Many ignorant and fanatical melameds refer to the Talmudic teaching to justify the blasphemy they commit against Christian religion. So the Talmud says: “All jokes or ridicule are forbidden to a Jew, but "jokes and mockery of the "elyl" (gods) are allowed."

By using this paragraph, Jews allow themselves to mock faith and religious rites of Christians, and at the behest of fanatics this was even elevated to a law that every boy studying with a melamed should know as much as possible by heart vile blasphemous verses against the Christian religion. Knowledge of such verses Melameds try to distinguish themselves in front of their students' parents.

The more a melamed knows about Christianity, the more blasphemous verses he rises in the eyes of parents, gains fame and a larger number of students. Therefore, every Jew, starting from the most inveterate ignoramus-fanatic and ending the most noble and rich Jew, who was just beginning his education with the melamed, knows the following blasphemous verses relating to the cross: “Ishurem areylem, atohes atzei- " and so on, and " ", and " ruvtsekh on der maleh, er gate kaken in kleister,” and “Vas ken ikh machen fun fil people, Juden Kumen and Kirch Schulachen” and so on; hundreds more verses like these, for example: "Goy , . -, . teshaktsenu, saev teisavenu, ki kheyrem gu”, - means: “Like a pagan and his pagan disgusting, and turn away from it, for it is forbidden."

One of the Jews who converted to Christianity, Alexander Alekseev, in his
In his essay he says the following: “This is the extent to which this hatred extends in in the hearts of Jews from the greatest to the smallest. It is known that before military schools soldiers' children, or battalions of military cantonists, were filled with Jewish minors whom the Jews used for conscription. In these schools They taught us Russian literacy and allowed us to read when we were cantonists. large passages from the New Testament Scriptures. We read them all, but how, Whenever we saw the name of Jesus Christ, each of us would scrape it out with a penknife with a knife, so we ruined all the books." Alekseev gives an even more disa clear example of this fanatical hatred of the Jews towards Christianity, ready to all sorts of vile antics in mockery of Christ. “Once, as I remember now, - says Alekseev, - on one Jewish holiday Simches Torah, i.e. joy about the holy according to the law, the inhabitants of our town, of course, Jews, gathered in the house of a rich man fanatical Jew; when it began to get dark, the owner of the house began to close the shutters, he lowered the curtains so that the Christians would not notice him in any way antics, and lit the candles. Then he took off his dress and jumped half-naked onto the table; leaning against the corner and wanting to more accurately imagine himself as the crucified Christ, he leaned head, stretched out his hands, holding them as if nailed to the cross, and those looking at

It was the Jews who laughed. When we children began to ask the melamed about the meaning of this performances and ridicule, then he answered us that once upon a time there was Christ on earth, who declared himself the Messiah, in whom Christians believed and who is revered as God and They depict him in icons in this form. By telling this, he tried to instill in us strong hatred of Christ" "Alekseev's work "The Social Life of the Jews"
p. 74). If we keep in mind that a person in his ordinary, everyday life is guided by convictions, the direction and nature of which are determined in to a large extent religious beliefs, then it becomes clear the origin of hatred towards Christianity and the alienation of the Jews, the people ignorant, living only by his religion, for whom the Talmud was the highest and the only leader of life. Thanks to this fanatical leader the above-mentioned traits of the Jews developed in a strong and reliable way. Hide immorality of their religious rules, keep them secret, move away from curiosity the tortures of the wicked goyim - such was the constant concern of Israel from the moment when mutual hostility flared up between him and all other peoples and religions of the world with one on the one hand, and the hatred and malice of all peoples and religions towards him - on the other.

And now, despite the efforts of the government, which has been concerned with the issue for more than half a century, on improving the life of Jews, their education and enlightenment, Jews, with the exception of a very small number, remain the same anomalous creatures - half-Asians, half-Europeans with their corrupted, wild jargon, with their with characteristic clothes, with funny sidelocks, immersed in a fantastic persistence in the sphere of Talmudic false interpretations, without revealing the slightest desire to get acquainted even with the language of the country that spares no effort for them happiness.

Chapter 12

Eshibot and prayer house

The Talmudic school common to all Jews is an eshibot and a prayer house, at the same time, a school for the study of the Talmud and other religious sacred books.
The Eshibot is never locked. Prayers are said in it at certain times, and then the rest of the time the religious zealots in it bend their backs over the Talmud.
Actually, the eshibot does not enjoy any holiness, which is evident from the fact that he .serves as a permanent residence for a whole large class of people known to Jews called Eshibotniks. These Eshibotniks live permanently in prayer houses. to-^ah. There they study, smoke, eat and sleep. Besides the permanent ashibotniks, everyone a devout Jew, to the best of his ability and ability, spends a certain amount of time of the day in these eshibotah, where he finds, so to speak, moral food for his sinful Soul.
There is not a single Jew who, up to a certain age, was not an eshibotnik.

Eshibot is a Jewish educational school. This school is as ugly as the rest.
Jewish life is as harsh as their religion. A lot of strength, a lot of abilities
It dies, withers, and is distorted in this school gradually and systematically.
It instills laziness in its victims, weans them from healthy *work and makes them useless incapable. In short, this school doesn't give its students anything good. And if we take into account that every Jew more or less has to when faced with this school, it becomes quite clear why there are so many anomalies, so We encounter many plagues among the “chosen” people!

If the reader asks: how do these people who fill the eshibots live? - They live at the expense of others. This people has many slaves who are exhausted to to feed him. Since the study of the Talmud was elevated to the primacy of religious principle, then, not only the one who studies it, but everyone who contributes to it his study to another, deserves to be in heaven, and therefore poor artisans and that part of the Jewish masses that did not have the courage to devote their lives to something useless studying the Talmud, working by the sweat of his brow to feed numerous eshibotniks. Each of the eshibotniks has seven slaves, according to the number of days of the week, who take turns feeding and watering him. This is the next feeding of the Eshibotniks family families are known by the original name: "there are days." Ask Eshibotnik: How do you live? I eat days, he will answer you.

The poor slaves share their labors and earnings with the eshibotnik voluntarily, willingly, with the intention of taking advantage of a piece of paradise, contributing to the ashbotnik to study the law. How deceived are these poor people, giving away their insignificant crumbs to the parasitic scavengers, it will become clear to the reader when he get acquainted with the inner world of the Eshibots, where we will introduce him now, trying to reproduce the story of one day of the life of the Eshibot with a photograph accuracy.

It's six o'clock in the morning. An emaciated old Jewish man lights a tallow candle, and in front of You are illuminating an unattractive picture of the eshibot.

Imagine a huge rectangular room with many benches of varying sizes. On these benches, a huge, crowded mass snores fervently. people. Pillows of various sizes with pillowcases of all sorts of colors stick out from under the headboards of some, and all kinds of bags and rags - from under the headboards of others.
The sleepers are covered with whatever they can find: some with blankets, others with their outer garments, and others with You can't tell what it's from. And it's all dirty, filthy, disgustingly dirty... Old man slowly approaches the door. There is a huge tub and a barrel of water there. He washes three times hands, touches his face with wet hands, then wipes himself with a hanging one with a towel, which throughout the whole week, from one Saturday to the next, is displayed in this place and is intended by the administration of the ash-bottom for everyone students, as well as for those who come to pray.

Of course, the old man's face turns red from the touch of this dirty towel.
dirtier than it was before the mandatory washing process.

Chapter 13

Eshibotniks' occupation

Then the old man reads a short prayer and begins to wake up the eshibotniks.
Each of them quickly gets up and throws their bed linen under the bench, he washes himself like the old man, like him he lights a tallow candle, sits down at with a huge tome of Talmud and starts screaming at the top of his lungs. At this time, in the eshibot there is a real Sodom. But please don't think that the Eshibotniks really They take up the teaching with genuine fervor out of love for the Talmud. Not at all. This just comedy, just pretense.

The thing is that outsiders are expected for the morning prayer. Outsiders soon they begin to appear one after another, and at about seven o'clock the morning begins prayer that lasts until almost 9 o'clock. The worshippers gradually disperse, and
The ashbotniks take up their books again because they are expecting other visitors.
Indeed, various women begin to appear, each of them, entering, touchingly looks at the Eshibotniks and approaches one of them. The latter pretends to be so engrossed in reading that he doesn't notice anything or anyone. The Jewish woman stands there, stands there.

around him - and still can't bring herself to tear the ashbot worker away from his work; finally she touches him in a motherly way and says in a barely audible, ingratiating voice:

- My son, I brought you breakfast.

"Just a minute," the worker says quickly and dissatisfiedly, "more."
Let me read a few lines, to the point...

"I'll wait, my son, I'll wait, my beloved," the woman says devoutly and patiently waits for the eshibotnik to finally be pleased to accept it from her breakfast brought to him.

The Eshibotnik, immersed in his Talmud, keeps one eye on his patient woman and smirks inwardly. Finally, he interrupts the teaching and sweetly pronounces:

- Hello, benefactress... How is the Lord carrying you?

- I live only by your prayers and your teaching of the Holy Torah, my son...
Take, my dear, your breakfast... Do not complain that it is so little... I serve with what I have!..

The ashbotnik carefully examines the breakfast and, as if to the side, says:

- Breakfast is meager, what can I say, I'll have to go hungry until lunch... There's nothing to do,
I will try to satisfy my hunger with study... God will help.

The Jewish woman is touched by such humble words and, taking out two or three kopecks from pocket, gives it to the worker, saying:

- Here, my dear, take it. Buy something, and next time I'll bring more.
Well, goodbye, pray for me...

The eshibotnik reluctantly takes the kopecks and before the Jewish woman has time to leave, a second time
He pounces on the tome lying in front of him and begins to let out a wild roar.

A similar scene, but with different variations, is repeated with each eshibotnik. When women disappear, the picture of eshibotnik life is very changes.

“Is everyone ready?” one of the students’ voices is heard loudly.

- That's it! - the eshibot answers in chorus.

"No one else is waiting for?" the same voice is heard again.

“Not a damn thing,” the eshibot answers in chorus again.

- Well then, go ahead and have fun!

At one point, the thick books are thrown aside and the eshibotniks begin group in small groups of several people.

Let's listen to what they are discussing so heatedly.

"What did they bring you, Itska? Show me your breakfast!" asks one of the Eshibotniks.
at another's.

“Yes, it’s absolutely nasty... There’s nothing to show,” the unfortunate Itska answers pitifully, and yet he puts on display a slice of bread and a piece of cheese.

“The breakfast isn’t great,” agrees the comrade, “but it’s okay, you won’t die of hunger... And Here, buy some butter from me, you see how much there is: it’s enough for two.

- I think I'll buy it if it's inexpensive...

- What, jester, is expensive, in any case, less than a ruble and a little more a penny...

- If it’s more than a penny, then it’s expensive.

- What am I bothering about... I just need one kopeck for tobacco - and that's it.

- A whole kopeck too expensive! No one gives me gifts...

- I know they don't give it as a gift, but still...

- Well, to hell with you... So be it, get a penny... In another place - another scene.
One of them was brought a hard-boiled egg for breakfast. He

He brags about it. Many people pester him to sell it.

- I'll give you a kopeck! - one shouts.

- One and a half! - shouts another.

- Take a kopeck and a pretzel to boot! - the third one shouts.

“Give it to me on credit,” the fourth one finally runs up; and the bargaining with the egg ends happily.

When the Eshibotniks finally review the breakfasts they brought from each other, and various purchases and sales will end, everyone reverently washes their hands, says the established short prayer and begin the process of eating. The meal accompanied by various jokes of a purely eschibotan nature.

Chapter 14

The uncontrolled life of the eshibot students

And all this without proper control, without supervision. Only very few young men, pale, stunted, emaciated, take no part in affairs comrades and from early morning until late at night with indescribable zeal swing over thick folios of the Talmud, making wild sounds with cracked voices. These young men either go to the grave early from excessive work, poor food and harmful air, or, if you come across someone with a strong constitution, then in ten years-twelve acquire enormous Talmudic scholarship and receive an honorary the title of spiritual rabbi, which gives the privilege of living in poverty all his life and enjoy the respect of their fellow believers. The Eshibotniks gather again for hours by seven, just in time for early vespers. After prayer, the Eshibot professor, called "Sosh Geshifa," he gathers the students and reads them a lesson from the Talmud. Everyone is sitting around him, but few listen to him, because the assigned lesson is never asked, because it is assumed that each student tries for himself, therefore, no control is needed. This reading continues until late vespers and late at night, and The poor ash-botniks are forced to pretend to be zealous for a long, long time engaged in learning. But then the last visitor leaves, and the ashbot workers are back on will. The Jewish scholar Levanda, in his memoirs about his childhood, tells the following about his school life: “I, a seven-eight year old boy, as usual, flourished then in the heider, under the guidance of a melamed, I studied divorce laws according to the Talmud laws. Of course, due to circumstances beyond my control, I didn’t have a wife then; but in time I could, or even had to have it: therefore, in time I could be placed in such conditions that divorce from his wife was inevitable; therefore, there is nothing incongruous in the fact that I, an eight-year-old citizen of this world, first of all, they began to introduce me to the divorce process. If I more prudent, I would then appreciate all the foresight of my co-religionists who kept medicine ready when the disease was just foreseen; but It is known that intelligence comes only with age, and therefore I ask you not to put me in guilt that, while studying divorce laws, I experienced what I experience a gluttonous boy, clinging to an unripe and sour apple with his teeth: I he winced, spat and got angry at my melamed, who didn’t feed me anymore tasty food. It seemed to me then that he was doing it on purpose, to spite me; but Later I became convinced that I had accused him in vain: he himself, as I later learned, was dissatisfied with the choice of spiritual food for his pets; he himself, perhaps perhaps he did not approve of what he did, but was an unaccountable slave of the system which he did not invented and which he, perhaps, cursed in his soul. Why then accuse his? When and where did the studying youth become cretinized for the glory and power of those idiotic combinations that are called programs? Headers, despite their own, apparently completely free teaching, also had their own programs,

God knows when and by whom abandoned and, what is worst of all, using the same despotic power, which only suits the programs of state-run schools. Programs were obligatory, and what is obligatory is, as we know, not something to argue about it is necessary, and therefore the melameds had no choice but to, with a heavy heart, to initiate the little ones entrusted to their care into the sacrament of Kiddushin (marriage) and the conditions
"shtin (divorce), which is what they did."

Chapter 15

Reasoning on the Method of Teaching

However, if we look into the matter, such a program should not surprise us, nor to disturb. If in the most modern times very enlightened people thought of the truth that without Homer and Cicero there is no salvation, then what's so surprising if the Jewish the wise men found salvation for the youth only in divorce proceedings and antitheses? In divorce treatises there is casuistry, mental gymnastics, and in What is it in Homer? Fairy tales, myths; in Cicero, words and words. But that's not the point.

“Look what they’ve come up with,” says the melamed. “There will be schools for Jews! Jewish Schools will take children! That's all we need! And what are we supplying recruits for? every set, so this doesn't count?

“And what do you think, slave Meir?” the master asked several times a day, Will my sons be sent to school too? You see, three years ago I was a tenant I placed a bet on our family and I have a receipt.

“May God help us all,” answered our melamed, who was not in the habit of assume.

“It can’t be,” the owner insisted, “that our number is next in line.”
I will complain to the governor.

“What will happen to all the Jews will happen to us too,” our melamed answered, with difficulty.
sighing.

“Do you know what will happen when the children finish school?” someone asked.

“They will then be sent to the Caucasian line,” the questioner answered.

"Lord, have mercy on us!" they all cried, wringing their hands.

“They are coming, they are already coming,” said Rebbe Tankhush on the following Monday, shaking his tin mug.

“Who goes there?” they asked him.

“Ben-dan, Ben-Mashe,” he answered, nodding his head meaningfully. “They’ve already set out on their journey with swords, arrows, spears and other military armor. River Samba-tion calmed down and let their ships pass. They will spend the Sabbath with the Dark Ones.
mountains, and after Saturday the wars of Gog and Magog will begin. The enemy is strong, but everyone will be on our side.
angels of Sabaoth. The sun will come out of its cover, and the whole world will be hot, only on The Valley of Jehoshaphat will be cool, and God will sit on the judgment throne to judge all nations. It was not for nothing that Archangel Michael blew his trumpet all night long, I know what that means, he said.
Rebbe Tankhush and looked around at all the listeners with an inspired, almost frenzied look, which made us involuntarily tremble. This Monday, a drop fell into his mug many, many half-penny pieces, even the poor, almost beggarly, maid of the master hurried to make our contribution, and we, the hederniks, gave all our pocket money to the Rebbe Tankhush money, mentally asking him to intercede so that the wars of Gog and Magog would begin as soon as possible, even before next Thursday, so that under the noise of the general
"We will avoid the trouble of our usual Hader reprisal."

Chapter 16
The reading of melameds and the weeping of the listeners

“For a whole week our cheder was in such a messianic mood, and our melamed considered it possible to announce to us that in a few days, not counting the subscription, Omar-reb-Yohanan will read to us, i.e. the Talmudic tales about the last days of the second Jerusalem Temple, a play usually read in heders on days, preceding Oba 9 (July), the day of the Jerusalem catastrophe; and in the yard there was then Tevez (December).

This announcement pleased not only us, who had an interesting prospect in mind extra-subscription play instead of the usual boring rehearsals, but it made me happy residents of the alley who expressed a desire to also be present at this creative reading.

The long-awaited Thursday has arrived. To clear the space for the public, the owner ordered that all unnecessary furniture be taken out of the hut, which was done in a flash executed. Even the military quarters had nothing against the transfer of improv- a bivouac in the neighboring hut.

“We don’t want to hinder your pilgrimage,” said the good soldiers, dragging their backpacks; pray, pray, God is one, both for you and for us.

At the appointed hour our hut was filled and overflowing with old people, old women and children of different ages and sexes, so that even in the entryway and nearby barn There was not enough room for everyone who wanted to hear the word of God. The faces of all those present expressed impatient curiosity and gratitude and were turned with servility to the place where our melamed was sitting, who He buried his nose in some book and remained gravely silent.

Finally, after half an hour of tedious waiting, Reb Meir, looking around his the audience with a dull and melancholy look, began to read the description in the form of a prologue the Jerusalem Temple, the splendor of King Solomon's court, its grandiose grandeur ivory thrones and similar objects. The listeners rocked heads and shrugged their shoulders, amazed at the countless riches of the Jewish kings and of the whole people and bringing the conviction that there will never be another such wealth in the world was, could not be and, of course, will not be. Some, however, significantly winked at each other, as if to say: what about it, brother, we are definitely a people chosen, because - such wealth!

At the end of the prologue, Reb Meir, pulling his hat down over his nose, began loudly, but Omar-reb-Yohanan read in a whiny voice. The listeners pricked up their ears and made a sour face, which they considered appropriate to the present situation. As Reb Meir progressed in reading, this mina began to take on more certain forms, - a face about to cry. A few more minutes, and Tears appeared in the eyes of the more sensitive women; then this moisture sparkled even in the eyes of always firm men. Half an hour later the whole hut, from young to old, was already cried quietly at first, then louder and louder, and finally literally sobbed. Reb Meir raised his voice more and more and became more inflamed; he no longer read, but he shouted out every phrase of the text, snorted, sweated, finally his voice suddenly broke off, he He threw off his hat, tried to catch his breath, and lost consciousness.

The most terrible commotion. Indescribable chaos. Shouting, noise, hubbub, cursing and even fight. The military quarters, believing that they were offending the "priest" (the soldiers considered our melamed (a clergyman), rolled up his sleeves and began to act with his fists to the right and to the left, which increased the commotion even more. Assuming that this this terrible turmoil is the war of Gog and Magog promised by Reb Tankhush, we, The hederniks, having seized our hats, rushed home to announce our to parents about the important events that have begun; but, to our regret, halfway there

The melamed assistant caught up with us and said that Reb Meir had been brought to his senses, and that he He will already give us a reason for our unauthorized absence."

Chapter 17

The Melameds expound without understanding the confusing Talmud

All Talmudists, without exception, puzzle over the curly commentaries Talmud, without understanding the meaning of the text, without having the slightest idea about the language Talmudic, nor about its grammar. What a contradiction! Without understanding the meaning, often with while intentionally distorting its meaning, the Jews at the same time nourish an unshakable the belief that the Talmud constitutes an encyclopedia of all the wisdom of this world.

Despite, however, a complete lack of knowledge of the language, with the help of pushes and kicks and other similar pedagogical measures, the Jews are being imbued with science with great difficulty. The Melameds, receiving payment from the fathers of their students, try out of personal interest maintain good relations with their fathers and attest them to their parents with the utmost the best side. But the learning is still going on just as hard. And then there are the beatings and the thrashings doubled just to squeeze something out of the martyred disciples. Torment this continues for a very long time, until out of outrageous pedagogical oppression will not produce a generation that is exhausted in body and weak in spirit, timid, fearful, downtrodden, with a complete emptiness in the head and heart.

Jewish Conversations about Melameds

“Some of those present told entire episodes, recalling each one in their melamed, others vaguely recalled the distant time of their heder education, the third listened to the stories of the first and second, as to an essay from everyday life Tungus, Malays, Ethiopians, since they themselves had never been to Heder.

The conversation was related to teaching in cheders in Russian.

“You know,” said one of the interlocutors, “this will be a very interesting thing, when, for example, my reb, Reb Simche Kanchuk, starts speaking Russian. His beard is shaggy, sidelocks in a spiral, a shirt collar wide open, extremely greasy a pointed yarmulke, a knee-length shawl-cotton, a snuffbox in one hand, and This dandy teaches in Russian:

- Come on, boy: Ms 100- and if an ox gores an ox... Well, speak up, cow! ("S!").-

- Ha-ha-ha! - is heard among the listeners.

- Or, for example, another "pusuk": when the horses of Pharaoh entered... Speak then, horse head! ("8, ŕish !")... The Jews, as is known, have a special method of teaching Russian language, - a method adopted especially in the class where this the language is acquired by ear, without any proper theoretical preparation, and it consists in the fact that it is not the spirit and character of the language that is assimilated, not even entire phrases and expressions, but only words, separate names, and it turns out not Russian speech, but a peculiar and often extremely curious translation from Jewish jargon, such as: "to flip, toss a plate" (instead of "to overturn") or: "short Friday" (ḱ). It's very simple - if 71I is , then] is ... etc.

The pedagogical influence of the Talmud is destructive not only in itself, but also due to the educational tactlessness of the melameds, who get by only on kicks and beatings due to their complete ignorance! And such ignorant teachers are found quite often. The melameds were distinguished by their indiscriminate ignorance, especially in former times. They were not subjected to any preliminary examination; whoever wanted, he became a melamed, if only he could purr a little in Jewish and to present oneself as a devout person. If the affairs of some Jewish speculator became entangled to the point of hopelessness, he immediately took up the craft of a teacher.

There was even a joke about this. Some father, who tenderly loved his son and Having become convinced that this son was a complete idiot, he gave him the following instructions:

"My son! You have no capital, you have not learned a trade, you do not know how to read, write, and you don't know how to speak: what will happen to you? Go and be a melamed." There were many It is said about the destructive pedagogical influence that it has on The impressionable brain of a child is filled with all sorts of "devilry and witchcraft." The Talmud with particular persistence confirms the possibility of all kinds supernatural phenomena. The Talmud even provides a means to visually verify the existence of the devil: you just have to get a black cat born from a mother the same wool, kill it, burn it and scatter the ashes around the bed experimenter; in the morning on this ashes there will be visible clear traces of chicken legs of those devils who have a habit of visiting people during their sleep. The Talmud deduces the scene and the lord of devils Asmodeus, and the seductive night Lilis with her devilish retinue. This Lilis, the night beauty of the underworld, comes at night to the Jewish bedrooms and arouses the most seductive thoughts."

Chapter 18

Teaching little children against Christians

A Jewish child grows up in his parents' house in a dirty shirt until he is five years old. age; he speaks Jewish jargon and does not understand at all the dominant language of the country; he knows that a gentleman in a frock coat is called a puritz, and The peasant in the scroll is a goy; he knows that he must eat only kosher, i.e. food permitted by the Talmud, and one cannot touch the clubs, even the plate of clubs, from which the Puritans and the Goyim eat; he will not take even a delicacy from Christian child until he asks his mother if it's kosher or treif? In the fifth year another period of life begins: the boy is given into the care of a melamed. Every day his pale, thin face, adorned with long sidelocks, in a tattered hat, appears in the parents' house, performs something like washing and hairdressing of the boy and takes him to school. Thus, going around the apartments of Jews, the melamed drives his pupils in the school where they learn to read and write. Dirty books lie in front of as little boys, they read prayers and the Talmud aloud, and amid the mumbling of subtle children's voices can be heard, the abrupt hoarse tenor of the teacher correcting mistakes. Guided by such a teacher, the boys memorize daily prayers and begin reading the Talmud in exactly the same order. Most of the poor boys finish their education, barely touching the Talmud two having learned to write a little in Hebrew, and completes his education at home, where, preparing for civil activity, gets used to commercial tricks and Accounting. Here, children already begin to trade, under the supervision of their parents, with small items:

with ribbons, needles, matches, and in the tenth or twelfth year of his life already They know how to cheat a man. As for the education of richer Jews, it, started by the melamed, is continued by the khussid - a relative who constantly reads the Talmud and constantly delves into its meaning, never to understand it.
Here the young pupil gets used to the Hussidic mysticism, which makes for alien to all social activity and prepares him to become a future rabbi, when he will be guided by the Talmud to resolve Jewish disputes, in advice on commercial matters and finally in medical benefits. But the rabbi, in addition to his education must still come from the Levitical line. The Jews have their own aristocratic concepts; they sometimes say: I am poor, but I am from a noble family, I was I would have been a rabbi, but they couldn't give me the proper education. If my son a rich Jew is destined to be a merchant , banker, tax farmer and the like, then after completing his education under the guidance of a melamed and a rabbi, he is hired teachers who teach him Russian and Polish literacy; sometimes they send him to their public schools. The daughters of such nobles are taught to play the piano and French. But, despite education, a Jew is obliged to remain nothing to others, as a Talmudic Jew, regardless of whether he graduated from high school or rabbinical school. The external gloss only gives a different appearance to his figure, he shaves his beard, lives in a magnificent apartment; but he is the same Jew, looking with such contempt for the Puritz and the Goy, like his Passover compatriots, with the only the difference is that his manners are polished by education, and he is not in appearance simple, but, as Jews call their fellow Jews, a “cibulized Jew.”

Chapter 19

The state of the heders in modern times

"Weekly Chronicle of Voskhod" 1889, No. 35, writes from Zvenigorodka, Kievskaya province: “Our heders with their representatives, the melameds, represent a miniature version of the medieval Inquisition, applied to children... There are no conditions, no teaching system and no order in them. exist... Our Talmud-Torah presents an even sadder appearance... The program This institution consists of: cold, hunger, corporal punishment and ancient Jewish reading..."

“Our Talmud Torah,” writes another (from Lipovets, the same province), “Weekly Chronicle, 1889, No. 37), - as it was 20 years ago, it has become petrified in one position: the same gloomy, grumpy, eternally sleepy, semi-literate melamed, those the same skinny, ragged Talmud-torniks wandering the streets; the same ones in tatters tattered, without caps, without beginning or end, prayer books, the same gloomy, dirty, a disgusting little hut with some things knocked together for appearances and tied with ropes a table and benches; the same rusty tin can with a narrow gap in the lid, ringing on Fridays at the doors of pious citizens..."

“Routine and ignorance,” says the third (Dzygovka, Podolsk province, ibid., no. 40) - they celebrate their Sabbath here... The dominance of superstitions and all kinds of prejudices - rampant; our classic header thrives here with all its attributes, starting from the literal-minded ignoramus-melamed, dirty, smelly premises, tightly, as if a barrel of herrings, filled with eternally noisy children, and ending with a Domostroy whip about the four straps..."

“In all three parts of our city,” writes from Vitebsk (ibid., 1892, No. 13), there are Talmud-Torahs... What do these hotbeds of enlightenment represent? This is very dirty rooms, filled from 9 am to 9 pm with pale emaciated children... Children remain in this stuffy atmosphere for almost 12 hours straight and they see only their bent, withered melamed teachers, and on the happiest days - the dead, around whom psalms are read. Most of the children are dressed in rags, and some are almost completely naked, wearing only the tattered underwear that once was white; the faces are all pale, sickly, the bodies, apparently, are all weak. And these creatures in groups of 20 to 30 people or more, under the leadership of one melamed, You could say they don't study, but rather they all shout at once after their rabbi, trying to outshout them one another. Who hasn't heard the outrageously reaching comments of the ignorant Melamedov, he cannot imagine how little children gain from such training, how their vital juices dry up in the bud."

“My heart bleeds,” says a correspondent from Bila Tserkva (ibid., 1890, No. 22), - looking at the pitiful hopeless situation of innocent children, doomed to languish for days in stuffy and stinking kennels. Young children chests are strained from early morning in senseless memorization, under blows and kicks of idiotically zealous melameds and their begelfers; sweat and tears without-flow incessantly over the pale, exhausted faces of the downtrodden, frightened, hoarse children; with every movement of the formidable melamed they shrink in panic fear; punches, slaps and blows are raining down left and right. And so In this way, every year thousands of young lives are lost, mental abilities and physical strength."

“There is a gloomy place in the city where the poor youth languish and “withers over enormous volumes,” they write from Vilkomir (ibid., 1889, No. 26).

“We have two melameds (for 120 Jewish families) and not a single Russian teacher language, not a single decent school; one of these melameds is a shoemaker by trade,” They write from the village of Kamenka, Taurida province (1614, 1893, No. 26).

“In one apartment,” they report from Pruzhany, Grodno province (1614, No. 26, 1889), - there is a prayer room, an eshibot, and the main Talmud-Torah... Near the drowning several eshibotniks are sitting in the oven, swinging for show over large volumes, they conduct a dispute with appropriately exaggerated gesticulation, not always on Talmudic theme... Around a long table sit about 25 ragged boys, half-naked and barefoot, with tired, pitifully tormented faces, with a dull look they look at the tomes open before them; a lecturer, a man, is with them of advanced years, with a thin, wrinkled face, leaning on both hands, listlessly, barely He audibly teaches them the Law of God, but sometimes he falls into a deep sleep for hours.
This is our teacher and our Talmud Torah”... Etc., etc.

“Yes, this is our pedagogy and our elementary, secondary and higher education. In it empty schematism reigns, the play on words is fruitless, dulling pedantry and dead syllogism; there is no concern for the body and earthly life. Here Jewish youth develops their minds, forms their character and will, acquires their habits and inclinations, is affirmed in his spiritual and moral behavior, in views on life and human activity. In this school, only in passing and They even briefly dwell on Jewish literacy itself; attention is paid to its beginnings very little attention - because right now what constitutes its quintessence comes onto the stage sentence and its entire internal essence - the folios of the Talmud, mysticism and fantastical, dialectical-theological tournaments and clever debates about fate an egg laid on a holiday, or about an extra iota of a divorce letter... And all this against the backdrop of an impossible situation, excluding any thought not only about any kind of rational school diet, but also about the most basic requirements of simple everyday hygiene. As a result, both local organic injuries such as spinal curvature, vision impairment, chest anomalies cells, etc., as well as general instability of the body, predisposition to diseases, especially nervous, and pathological direction of rational activity, i.e.

The result is abnormal development of mental and loss of physical strength."

“What can we expect,” says the Jewish correspondent, “for our future from such a thing?”
order of things? The answer is clear.

But how can we help? Where is the path to saving the younger generations?

This path was indicated above. Whether it is our fault or someone else's, we still until now the only people in the world that has erected a disregard for physical development almost into the highest principle of life and education, into the guiding principle of personal and public behavior; we are concerned about the spirit of the people, and in the wrong way understood, completely forgot about the body, which, in the words of one of the founders of German gymnastics, Guts-Muths, beauty of the soul and exaltation mental powers, we disdained the authority of our teachers of the law, who claimed that "Any teaching without physical labor is unstable and leads to sin" (Pirke Abot, P, 2); rejected what is essential and important in our individual and social life, which Herbert Spencer so rightly calls physical morality that has the right to exist alongside general morality,

- a right not recognized by people who believe that the body can be treated as whatever you like.

We need to fill this significant gap in our education. This our most important and immediate task. The ancient god Antaeus gained new strength from touching the earth. Our renewal depends on the same touching the earth.
- in a broad sense, to physical labor in its various forms:
agricultural, manual, professional, technical, etc.
It is necessary and important to adapt all our primary education to this order.
things, i.e. to establish it on the principles that pursue the tasks of not only the mental, but along with it, bodily, physical development."

Educated and sensible Jews look with suffering at such a disastrous the state of the Heders, who is to blame? The fanatical Jews themselves threw millions, just so to defend the old position of the heders. To continue to teach children the destructive ignorant melameds to fanaticism.

Last year, there were 14 Jewish elementary schools in the Kalisz province.
state and private schools, including 4 for boys, 5 for girls and 5 for general education.
There were 238 Jewish religious schools (cheders); there were Christian schools 422. There were 4,468 Jewish children of both sexes studying in Jewish schools, and 643 Christian schools; of the children who studied in Jewish schools,
There were 4,123 boys. The total number of Jewish school-age children in the province was:
There were 5,000 boys and 5,000 girls. The population of the province was 1,032,426 souls.
of both sexes, including the Jewish population, numbered 100,000 souls.

Although the Jews shout and complain that they are offended in Russia and completely deprived of everything right, to this we can say that Jews enjoy greater rights and advantages over the Orthodox, Catholics, Lutherans and Muslims. Children of all named religions are required to attend government school and begin their studies with Russian alphabet, and in Lithuania Catholics study the Law of God in Russian, starting from elementary school to high school. Some Jews achieved special advantages at the expense of everyone; only the Jews were left with the existing heders, where teaching is carried out according to the old method by ignoramuses - fanatical melameds in the Jewish language and, as usual, in uncensored books, fanatical origin, immoral and blasphemous. Isn't this first-class advantage over all Christians and other loyal subjects? While their own Orthodox Christians are extremely constrained and limited in their native language, for example, as in Georgia, - as evidence we present correspondence from the newspaper:

"Russian Trud" points out that in the women's monastery in Bobdia, built Georgians in memory of St. Nina, where until now the service was performed partly on Russian, partly in Georgian, currently the abbess has prohibited all Georgian service and singing.

Thousands of Georgian fans, visiting the tomb of the Equal-to-the-Apostles, are sad that cannot even serve a prayer service in their native language; their prayers, addressed more than once to exarch, were left unsatisfied by the latter. In Ochamchira, where there are 3,000 souls Georgians no more than 4-5 Russian families, worship, by order of Sukhumi Bishop, it is also forbidden to send in the Georgian language. Why such intolerance?

Lithuanians are prohibited from printing prayer books and other religious books. in the Latin script adopted by them and this prohibition is strictly supported by police authorities.

Chapter 20

Jewish actions - student outrage at the university

Talmudic Jews in all Christian states continuously produce turmoil. Although they act on the initiative of the Talmud very cunningly and cautiously, but the poisonous effect always comes out. On the capital of the "Secret Jewish the "Kiev Union of Socialist Revolutionaries" was created, which was manifested in student proclamations seized by the authorities. This union operated secretly the minds of student youth. The main goal of the Jews was revealed everywhere in the petition students: from Kyiv, Warsaw, Riga and others - to destroy the percentage restrictions on the admission of Jews to all educational institutions. This is the main reason of all the student unrest caused by the Jews, they always know how to force the goyim pull chestnuts out of the fire.

At Kiev University, unrest among students began back in November. the year before last, at first on the basis of purely national interests, in view of the desire expressed by some students, mainly Poles and Jews, send to Warsaw for the day of the opening of the monument to the Polish poet Mickiewicz the address from on behalf of students of Kyiv University of all nationalities with praise political activities of the said writer and with condemnation of the staging of the memorial Nick in Vilnius to Count Muravyov. The issue of sending such an address raised a protest among Russian students, and this movement, accompanied by a whole series of demonstrative behavior on the part of the Polish-Jewish part of the students led to open clashes between representatives of both parties. In December, the situation the situation at the university became so tense that the academic authorities found themselves forced to expel from the university 9 people, the main instigators of the unrest, and classes will be stopped until the usual time before Christmas. holidays. During these unrests, a secret organization existing among students of St. Vladimir University under the name of the "Kyiv Union Council" United Regional Communities and Organizations" issued several appeals anti-government nature, aimed at denigrating the memory of the Count Muravyova and to the praise of Mickiewicz's revolutionary activities.

On March 9, particularly violent riots occurred in the university building, representatives of two student parties, for and against, which entered into an open conflict against the strike.

The "nationalist" party, which was joined by law students of the 4th course, approached the rector of the university with a request to start giving lectures, but on At the very first lecture, the strikers broke the windows in the doors with a bench and tried penetrate into the auditorium, where about 300 listeners had gathered. These last ones, Armed with cans of physical devices, they drove off the attackers. Riots also occurred in the clinic of the Kyiv military hospital, where lectures were given medical students, and they met the head of the hospital who came to them noise and shouts.

As a result, on March 10, an announcement was posted in the university building.
of the following content: “By order of the Minister of Public Education, all Students of St. Vladimir's University are considered to have resigned. Those who wish to re-employ to enter the university and continue attending lectures, they submit a petition to the city. to the rector. Re-admission will depend on the discretion of the university administration."

On March 12, applications are accepted from 4th and 5th year students from expressed a desire to go back to university, and on the very first day there was 510 applications were accepted. Students were admitted in groups as they arrived and without No order was exercised. The rest passed through just as calmly from the outside.
days when accepting applications from students of other courses.

A total of 2,425 applications for readmission were received and accepted by the board.
2,181 people returned to the university, 244 people were denied admission, 160 of them Jews.
The total number of students who have been denied admission does not yet include the 1st and 2nd courses.
all faculties.

The meeting at the Riga Polytechnic Institute took place on February 18th, about 160 students, at which letters received from St. Petersburg were read describing student unrest and calling for people to join the general movement.
The meeting decided to stop the hearing as a sign of sympathy for the St. Petersburg comrades.
lectures. On February 19, morning lectures at the institute proceeded, however, without any obstacles, but At about 3 o'clock a meeting of up to 300 people gathered again, and supporters the disorder interfered with the lecture and forced professors to stop classes. By order of the trustee, classes at the institute will resume on February 20.

discontinued.

300-400 students took part in the riots described, mainly first-year students, most of whom were rather passive, active
A relatively small group of students, about 60-70 people, showed participation, and Jewish students took a more noticeable and visible part in the gatherings origin.

To the attack on Mrs. Slavyanskaya's choir in Lviv. The Polish-Austrian authorities, and also the local press and society are apparently trying to soften the impression, produced by a ridiculous Russophobic demonstration by a bunch of Polish students, the majority of whom turned out to be Russian subjects, some emigrants, some who came to Lviv for a visit during the Christmas holidays. It is characteristic that this mostly Poles of the Mosaic law. Several Lviv students, those involved in the demonstration have already rushed to abandon solidarity with their random comrades and expressed regret about what happened. Editorial
"Galichanina" also received many expressions of regret from all sides.

The total number of Jewish students in the Russian Empire will be over a hundred thousand people, excluding the lower institutions. If we were to allow those who wished to study Jews without restrictions established by a certain percentage, then, probably, the number of Jewish students in secondary and higher education would reach more than half a million educational institutions. The desire to study at government educational institutions manifested itself among the Jews after the introduction of general military service. While the Jew was uneducated, wore sidelocks, a yarmulke and shoes, walked in a long lapserdak, he did not was so harmful - everyone saw and recognized a Jew from afar and accepted his normal precautions.

Nowadays, when the Jew has put on a mask and transformed himself into a German, then a Frenchman or an Englishman, a Pole or even a Russian gentleman, then the Jew became very harmful and dangerous for all classes. Now the Jewish doctor, lawyer, apa thyler, a dentist, a publisher and editor of a metropolitan newspaper; a typographer, a lithographer and a topographer, in a word, that's all, and thank God that God still saved us from the Jew police chief, justice of the peace, investigating magistrate and military captain (Dreyfus).

Rabbi Yakrin is not the first from among the Jews themselves to speak out with fervor denouncer of modern Jewish Talmudic Pharisees. Rabbi Yakrin in

The Mogilev Provincial Gazette openly laid out all the dark deeds of Judaism.
And these dark sides are of such a kind that the pictures from the Jewish world pale in comparison to them.
everyday life, presented in the play "Smugglers" ("Sons of Israel"), which caused such fierce protests from the impudent "cibulized kikes."
in the dark - a paradise for bastards, I want at all costs to keep the darkness near my unseen activities. Rabbi Yakrin cites that a gang of Jews, raping girls and married women, nested in the Mogilev synagogues, which in vodka was secretly sold in synagogues. Yakrin's revelations revealed how It could not be clearer that the problem of Jewry lies mainly in the exploitation of the poor Jewish people by Jewish rich bigwigs, Jewish clergy.
These abominations and oppressions are so great that, from time to time, they begin to expose not only non-Jews, but even people from the Jewish environment, like the rabbi himself Yakrin. It's not easy for him, a clergyman, to talk about his brothers in faith, but the truth is stronger than him, and he can no longer remain silent.

In a great extreme, the rabbi directly subjects himself to a painful death.

The Kahal is strong and mighty, and it has drowned out many voices, and death and death without a trace, the words of the kahal sentence: “Let the name of the wicked perish.”

Perhaps sooner or later revelations like those made by Yakrin, will finally convince us that the Talmudic doctrine is not one of those religions that deserve the patronage of religious tolerance, but there is intolerant opposition state doctrine. The awareness of this truth and its implementation would accelerate solution to the Jewish question.

Jews jealously do not allow discussion of their shortcomings and all those traits of theirs national character and those aspects of their religion that make the Jewish question hitherto unresolved. Any touching of the Pharisaic Talmudic secrets the kahal evokes desperate cries of indignation from the faithful Talmudists and accusations of misanthropy against those who dare to touch these secrets, attacking the weak, inciting one part of the empire's population against another.
Anyone who dares to speak about the bad sides of Judaism is labeled a Judeophobe, slanderer, enemy of humanity and ignoramus. Jewish newspapers try all sorts of such things to ridicule and even to spitefully scold with shameful words all those who only speaks neither in favor of nor in praise of Judaism. On the contrary, they try to exalt and praise all pro-Jew writers.

Chapter 21

From the sermon of a famous pastor in

Father Leon in Paris on Judaism

“The Jews owe humanity monotheism, they gave the Holy Land to Christians,
The Mother of God and the God-man. From them came salvation - jis s[s si! Nothing compared to the Jewish glory - nothing but his crime and the suffering he endured punishments. The Jews rejected the Savior. They crucified our Lord Jesus Christ, this is their crime. The most terrible ingratitude weighs upon them in the face peace. They are a people of deicide: this is their curse. On them will lie the stain of eternal the blood of Christ. The Cains of the Lord, the personified anathema, they wander among the nations with an indelible mark on their foreheads. All societies close their doors to them. They alien race, hostile race. Our national glory - is it their glory, ours?
Patriotic sorrows - are they really their sorrows? They rejoice, they amuse themselves, and they are happy.
Where on the pages of our French literature does the name of Israel appear? Where on
Is his blood on our battlefields? Where is the radiance of his genius in our history? True, it has passed
For 100 years, Jews have been living among us, primarily with us, with our nutritional juices.

The only influence they had on our morals and on our art was marked by a trait that is harmful to us. Penetrate to the sources of our troubles, our present humiliations: at the root of everything you will find the Jew. As He is advancing among us, Christ is retreating. Talmudic demoralization is taking hold. our laws, morals, our national spirit, infecting them with gangrene. Divorce It's destroying our family. Neutrality in matters of school education is devastating.
the soul of a child. Expulsion of religious elements from hospitals fills the hearts of the suffering sick with despair. How can the Christian fight a nation against the Jewish invasion? There are three means of struggle: the clergy, the magistracy and the host, that is, the army. By the grace of God and the honor of France, two of these strongholds are not are still damaged. The Jews know this; therefore, in their mouths these words received nicknames, poorly disguised feelings of annoyance: a saber and a censer. Socialists, Huguenots, Freemasons have reason to join the Jews: the cross and the sword are native sisters. Why did France, having freed itself from the Jews in 1394, accept them into modern times?
time? The Jewish invasion of France coincides with the era of our national selflessness and our disasters. In 1791, the French Revolution recognized Jews rights of French citizens: this was the moment when France rejected Christ. Whenever a Jew sat down at the hearth of any nation, he did everything, to humiliate her, to destroy, to devour. The leper infects with his leprosy. Grief to the one whom his hand touches, the Bible says: { ï ! The national ills of the Jews have defiled Europe. The Church has surrounded the Jews. harsh orders: that they be locked up in Jewish quarters; excluded from all public positions; prohibited marriages with Christians; punished usury, ritual murder and other crimes of which they were guilty; burned The Talmud, this plague-ridden book, a monstrous crime against public organism. Catholics, separate yourselves from the Jews; keep them away from your homes, from your property, your honor, your soul. Let them keep company Gentlemen of the intelligentsia! You will gain nothing, you will lose from touching Jew! Let us counter Jewish solidarity with Catholic brotherhood.

They did everything to destroy him, they did everything to silence us! pleasant to the thief.

Loneliness destroyed us. Unity will save us.

Let's move forward, and Goliath, clad in golden armor, within a century showering curses on the Christian people, will soon be humiliated and cast down dust! David was a simple shepherd, but he went to fight in the name of the Lord. Oh, Lord! NiSend us a sling with stones, the sling of your glorious ancestor. O Lord! Support us in prayer, courage, solidarity. O Lord! Convert the Jews; and if the hour is not yet "Punch through, drive them away! But save us."

Father Leon of the Friars Minor Capuchin in Paris.

If in France, with such a small percentage of Jews, they say such things in churches Sermons, what we need to do in Russia when more than half of us are Jews the same amount as in the whole world? We have more trouble from the Jews, but we are more resilient.

French.

Chapter 22

"Where are we Jews going?"

(Open letters to modern Jewry by Rabbi M. Yakrin)

“We Jews have never ceased and will never cease to turn to to Russian society and the authorities with requests to improve our living conditions, both in private in both cases and in general. But the question is: is the government capable of doing anything?

for us, with all the desire to do good to us and at the same time to liberate the Russian society from the ill-fated "Jewish question"? Have we introduced it enough?
frankly with our inner world, with our sweet routines, under the yoke which we ourselves groan? Isn't it the direct duty of every honest person in this regard?
a Jew who sincerely wishes good for his unfortunate fellow believers, to come as far as of their strength and abilities to help the authorities and not hide, but on the contrary, openly, with with complete trust to bare before her our wounds, both old and neglected, and new, fresh...

I expressed this thought in print exactly 33 years ago; this thought is constantly the unforgettable Rabinovich also conducted it in his "Dawn"; with the same thought I remain now. Moreover, I even find that it is precisely now, when the Jewish masses have fallen into captivity to his own brothers, this one thought, put into practice, alone can save her from destruction: it is precisely now, when we, Jews, stand at a crossroads and do not know ourselves where we go when various crooks take advantage of our position and try to completely confuse us and lead us astray from the straight and honest path - there is only one an unflattering, sincere appeal to the authorities and to the Russian people and can us lead to the straight path. But, I repeat, the appeal is unflattering and sincere.

If this path of salvation for us is blocked by our modern Jeroboam's "gods of Israel", then... down with them! An honest press in this case can provide us with invaluable services, but here too, I must say, the seal is honest, not chasing after petty interests, after cheap "popularity" among her own as "defenders" to attract subscribers; the print of the former "Rassvet", and not modern Jewish-Russian leaflets, which, however, I will talk about later.

I can well foresee that the mentioned sheets will sing to me in chorus: where are these "Gods"? Where are these tailcoat-clad kagalniks? Show them to us!

Well, if you please, here they are, and not even described, but directly photographed with nature.

For this I ask you, gentlemen, defenders of our current order, come with me to an interesting meeting taking place in one of the cities features. This time we'll find the entire local frock-dress kahal there in full force, we will find all the modern "gods" of Judaism, because it is extremely subject to discussion a serious "internal question" of the community. It goes without saying that before It is useful to listen to what they will talk about there, to get acquainted with the moral physiognomies, with the "ethics" of orators.

Here in front, in the place of honor, sits the representative-philanthropist, he is also the actual and main leader of one of the nice locals charitable institutions. This is a local rich man and "activist". His socially useful he began his public activities for his citizens "without distinction of religion," opening for them... a fun establishment. Having put together in a short time this honest way and with various other equally nice deals, the "small" capital, he put it into turnover on "small" percentages. From this small capital and small percent somehow imperceptibly for himself suddenly grew in him amazing a stone house on the best street in the city, and in this amazing house a What an amazing hotel, where few people stay, but many "drop in"...

He crawled - literally crawled - into the management of one charity institution that needed a horse. Having received it by chance from one of his the lodger in exchange for the 10 rubles owed him for the old, good-for-nothing nag, he he generously "gave it up" to the institution he was caring for for 60 rubles. Having learned about this a prank, one slightly eccentric but honest Jewish intellectual let him go in front of all the members of the kahal, a full-fledged slap in the face. He wisely did not start any business, but having happily climbed out of this institution, he just as happily climbed into another one, and in in a short time he brought him to such a "brilliant state" that... even he himself an inventive, never-discouraged pillar of local Jewish charities institutions have already begun to scratch their heads, and the aforementioned Jewish intellectual, as usual, his left knee.

Next to this "rich philanthropist" sits another, no less worthy, "rich philanthropist." As a three-times failed experienced businessman who went through fire, water and copper works, he realized that it was much more profitable to be a treasurer charitable institution than its representative, and despite the "enormous wealth" and "high" social position, "condescended" to accept modest position of treasurer of local charities. As an experienced a financier, he decided to make a small "reform" in the financial part's regulations the most important Jewish charitable institutions, namely: instead of the previous strange order by which the institution's inviolable capital was kept in state bank in the name of one of the most reliable philanthropists, and the most bank book - in the name of another, he found it more "rational" and "it is expedient" that the money be kept by him and used to pay his salary workers. When another, outraged by this peculiar financial reform, an intellectual publicly threatened to report this "reform" to the authorities at a meeting, the impromptu financier generously "promised" to return the cash register... part money spent.

Next to him sits another, similar “rich man-philanthropist”, also three times a failed businessman, who also at one time committed a crime with the money he had left with the money of a charitable institution the same thing, but then paid out little by little he spent public money on himself. But that businessman "little man" in both the literal and other senses. But let's move on to the meeting.

- Brothers! - the chairman addressed the meeting, - our local society a great misfortune has befallen our active representative, who always provides us with such "invaluable services", got caught: about his current activities information is being collected. If all his activities are revealed, all ours will be revealed too, the activities of honorary representatives of all our charitable organizations will be revealed institutions...

“Excuse me,” the restless Jewish intellectual interrupts the chairman, “I I really don't understand what he and I have in common? As far as I've heard from reliable sources, our dear representative has been doing this for a number of years among us, especially in relation to our poor people, such things for which It's high time he was in government housing; he shamelessly imposes taxes on the poor direct taxes, and for the rich commits indirect fraud, says in some metakh unpronounceable, legitimizes the illegal...

- Brothers! - interrupts the chairman, - do not listen to him; our honorable A colleague always has a unique perspective on everything; it would be better if we discussed this matter sensibly.
so that it can be silenced, so that the compromising information about our leaders does not reach authorities. For my part, as a relative of our representative, I have already taken measures energetic. Our experienced legal adviser, a member of ours, promised us his assistance; we
We will go around to all those who have been offended by our representative - all the complainants; we will go to many of them have already had an impact: some were moved to pity, some were threatened with having their credit undermined, who was influenced through relatives and brides, who was given money, in a word - when will it begin case, few will testify against our representative; unfortunately, there are such persons offended by him, who do not fall for any bait. There are also such naive people who are afraid to give false testimony, afraid of responsibility for false testimony oath, etc. What should be done about them? Then we must keep in mind that for now our representative is in his place, many are still afraid of him, his revenge and retribution; but not God willing, if he is eliminated, then there will be a farfaln di gance postroyke. .. Although I I must inform you that, just in case, we already have in mind a very reliable one a person "from our side" who, in the event of the elimination of our representative, "in all

"in relations" will replace him for us. He had connections with the activist who fled Russia "People's Will." He was the main driver of most of our charitable institutions, especially where one can frequently deal with workers. An influential honorary diplomat guarantees that it will pass safely.
guardian of our community. There are, however, other means: Zionist capital, beautiful Esthers... But there are, however, some that greatly hinder us; we tried in in relation to these persons everything: direct and indirect threats, anonymous and open denunciations, swearing, cursing and slandering them in front of their acquaintances, from whom we “demanded” stopping acquaintance with them, etc. Nothing helps; there is only one thing left to do some of our loyal members found people who would falsely show and swore that the enemies of our representative gave money to those who would show against him.

- Scoundrels! - the Jewish intellectual could not stand it. - After all, all these unfortunate they will then take an oath, and then they can be held accountable for false testimony and false oath at the end finally put him in prison, because our dear representative committed his tricks too brazen, the whole town knows it...

- Don't listen to him, gentlemen, he always has his own unique view on everything.

“Gentlemen,” one local homeowner addresses the meeting, “of all that, what our honorable chairman told us here, we could be convinced that in the matter
We have nothing more to say about our representative. All measures, as you have heard, accepted and things will go like clockwork, as with us, by the way, everything always goes well.

Let's better ask Mr. Chairman to give us at least a small report on to the ward and charitable institution so that we could check some things on business...

"Brothers!" the chairman cries out excitedly, "we have an informer in our meeting..."
Please don't say another word until he leaves.

Huge, heavy figures with clenched fists approach the homeowner. fists. The landlord reminds them of their past. General commotion. The matter is approaching to a fight. The landlord wisely leaves. The meeting continues.

Another Protestant, not rich but honest and hesitant, rises up a devout merchant.

“Why did you offend the homeowner like that?” he asks the assembly. “He asked.”
to check in practice the report of some of our charitable institutions; but this is
This should have been done long ago. Our reports say one thing on paper, but in reality they say something completely different...
For example, I read in a printed report that on the street where I personally live and everyone
I know of only one who provided assistance to almost fifty women in labor... I just couldn't believe it with my own eyes and went to personally check thoroughly - and there was nothing like that It turned out... This is right in... We can't do this with our hard-earned money, which we sacrifice for our unfortunate brothers; we ourselves have earned them with difficulty.
we often deny ourselves a piece of meat in order to pay both ours and yours... We and we are so poor, and you are robbing us... We, crammed together, are already suffocating, and you are completely strangle...

The merchant didn't finish: the chairman looked at him menacingly from under his glasses.
"executive power" of the frock kahal, stopping at nothing, ready to loudly and publicly slander everyone and undermine the credit of anyone an honest worker, to boldly make a false denunciation, etc. This subject was a boy running errands, but became related to one representative of the frock-dress kahal and quickly

He jumped into the "people". His "profession" gives him almost nothing, but he lives, nevertheless, widely, with money stolen by his relative-representative from the unfortunate Jewish masses.

He looked at the merchant - and the merchant fell silent.

These are your gods, O Israel.

"Yakrin".

DEPARTMENT 3 JUDICIAL

TREATISE I TALMUDIC COURT - BESDIN

Chapter 1

Rules and procedures of the court

The Talmud says: “If a Jew is in litigation (before the court) with a non-Jew, then let the brother yours will win the case, but tell the foreigner: "Our legislation requires this" (here we are talking about a country where Jews reign, for example, like in Austria. - I. L); if if the legislation of a foreign people favors the Jew, then again brother Let yours triumph, but tell the foreigner: “This is what the your legislation." If there is none of these conditions (i.e. if the Jews are not have dominion in the region, and the people's legislation is not directed in their favor, then You need to entangle the foreigner with various tricks so that the celebration remains behind a Jew.

Then follow the words of Rabbi Ismail, who cites the testimony of Akiba: “We must try to ensure that no deception is revealed during the legal proceedings, and that “Through this, Judaism and the Jewish faith were not subjected to dishonor” (Tractate “Bova Kama”, p. 113, 1).

The same Talmud helped the Kahal to subjugate and group the Jews around itself. in another way, in the form of a tax.

These are the duties of the rabbi and representatives according to Talmudic law. cities.

“At the head of the city are: Ab-bet-din-gaon (rabbi), rosh-bet-din (chairman beth din), a 12-member beth din and city representatives. The rabbi is appointed for three years by agreement of the general meeting. The rabbi's duties are expressed in the following points:

a) To invite representatives of the kahal to his or her general meeting for whatever reason
In any case, the rabbi is obliged to appear immediately, without the slightest delay.
Moreover, a rabbi does not have the right to refuse to participate in legal cases. He must to ensure that there is no murmuring in the city from private individuals against the kahal and daionov (members of the Besdin). He must, together with the kahal, wisely discuss the matter according to scripture, and in matters of money - together with the Daions. He should not pay any attention attention to obstacles, even if they come from the general meeting. But this the right can be granted to him only in such a case, if taknot hakgisaa (city charter) recognizes ḱ.

b) The rabbi has no say in the affairs of the kahal, i.e., in relation to the kahal fees and ransoms.
right to intervene. Only upon completion of any ransom condition will the rabbi is present to ensure that the matter is decided by a majority vote, and signs the document together with the entire kahal.

c) If the kahal wishes to establish a new fee or tax, or anything, contrary to the rules of the city, and at least one member protested against it, then

The rabbi is obliged to stand with the protester and try to get the meeting cancelled and the case was brought to an end peacefully.

d) In the proceedings of monetary matters subject to the court of the besdin, the rabbi does not is obliged to participate. The Dions themselves have the right to decide such matters without him. Rabbi has no right to interfere and refute the decision of the Dions even by an iota. If, however,
At the beginning of the trial, one of the litigants will want the rabbi to participate, in which case he will not may refuse, even for the most insignificant matter.

d) The voice of the rabbi in all matters does not have precedence over others, but in equal he has an advantage in the number of votes. To protect a private individual, the case is decided according to the rules established for the entire region. At the invitation of Baale takone (the compilers of the rules) the rabbi must join them. The destruction of someor the rules are made by majority vote. The rabbi cannot interfere the destruction of any rule, if this does not violate the rules of the entire region.

The adoption of a new rule can be prevented by a rabbi in conjunction with two by the authors of the rules.

e) The rabbi himself does not make decisions or explanations of any issue;
In such cases, he is guided by the rules of his region. If this question does not find an explanation in the regulations and rules of the entire region or city, then for his two representatives of the general assembly join the rabbi in the decision, two a leader and two daions, not related to each other.

g) The rabbi has no right to interfere in the affairs of the shamoyim (appointing voters) during their meeting on the final days of Passover; during elections the rabbi does not has no right to say anything good or bad about voters or householders and to no one in the world.

c) At a meeting of members of the entire region, the rabbi does not have the right to sign any any decision or document against the kahal, private individuals or many individuals without their knowledge representatives of the general meeting."

1 "Kiriya Nesmana", a collection of historical articles of the city of Vilnius, city of Fin. Vilnius, 1860.

Chapter 2

Duties of Rabbis

According to our legislation, the duties of rabbis are as follows:

The duties of the rabbinical commission include the following: a) consideration and resolution of opinions and questions relating to rules and rituals Jewish faith and the actions of rabbis; b) consideration of cases of divorce in in such cases when the rabbis themselves encounter ambiguity in the law or when a complaint about the wrong decision of the local rabbi.

Duties of Rabbis: “The duty of a Rabbi is: 1) To see that in The established rules were maintained in public worship and religious rites:
to explain to the Jews their law and resolve any misunderstandings that may arise in it;
to instruct them in the true sense of the law, but not to use other means in this, except for persuasion and exhortation. 2) To guide Jews to the observance of moral duties, to obey the general state laws and established authorities. 3) To perform exclusively throughout his department the rites of circumcision and naming of babies, marriages, divorces, burials, and news also throughout his department, registers of births and submit them where necessary the rules specified in the laws of states."

1 Volume 1, institutions of ministries, appendix to Art. 1226, paragraph 12.
2 VolumeX1, part. 1, page 1806.

Where are we Jews going?

(Open letters to modern Jewry by Rabbi M. Yakrin)

“What exactly does the synagogue represent in the eyes of modern people today?
Our official rabbis are, frankly speaking, quite difficult to define: there are rabbis who allow the doors of these temples of God to be opened exclusively for prayers, the divine service itself is performed in them with the participation of well-organized choirs, and on particularly solemn occasions, such as on royal days, when performing wedding ceremonies inside the prayer house, and not near the dung heap on in the backyards, as is “traditionally established,” and at memorial services they are allowed together with the choir play and organ. The speeches in them - and sometimes full of deep meaning - speak only themselves rabbis, and the local Jewish community always listens to and attends the service intelligent youth. We already meet such rabbis in many provincial towns, such as Vilnius and others.

But there are other rabbis with different views who find it useful not to only after, but also during the prayer itself, talk personally with the parishioners about "the needs of Jewry" and not only on ordinary days, but also during solemn prayer of the New Year, and it is handed over to the worshipers to read right there numbers of modern Jewish-Russian leaflets... Instead of properly organized choirs allow those conducting religious services to fight, grimace and to perform such manipulations with his hands that the parishioners watching this, with all their might, in their piety they can hardly restrain themselves from laughing. About the prayers on royal days, lasting usually a maximum of 8 to 17 minutes, to notify parishioners are considered completely unnecessary, and therefore these prayers take place almost in full in the absence of an audience... Speeches in synagogues are allowed to be given by various scoundrels local and visiting, like the "popular" and even "famous" Jewish a preacher who, fearing due retribution for his "sermons", recently fled, as they say, to America.

It is known that from the sublime to the ridiculous there is only one step, and from the ridiculous to... the circus,
Of course, not even a quarter of a step. It turns out that there are such rabbis, with such views on synagogue prayer performers, which they even find quite
It is natural that these prayer warriors participate in circus pantomimes together with clowns and trained horses!!! Let the reader not think that this is a figment of my imagination:
Before us is issue 102 of the Minsk Leaflet from August 25, 1901, where in the advertisement, placed on the front page, the Truzzi brothers' circus pompously announces the fun Minsk residents that on Sunday, August 26, a brilliant performance will take place at the circus with a pantomime, in which, in addition to clowns and 50 horses, the Minsk synagogue choir of singers. As for the performance of prayer itself, even in such solemn and great days of the new year and forgiveness of sins, the same "Minsk Leaflet" from August 28, 1901, in issue 104, in a two-column advertisement on the 1st
The page informs pious Minsk residents that in the "Paris" hall, on Jewish holidays:
New Year and the Day of Forgiveness of Sins - Canton Burstein with a choir consisting of 20 the man who will be conducted by singer and director B. Konviser will sing holiday prayers. The ad not only lists "seat prices" for this spectacle in the seats in the rows, and even where "tickets can be obtained in advance" etc. It's a pity just that "Minsk Leaflet" in a specially designated section for such "spectacles"
"Theater and Music" did not then give the usual report on the artistic and material success of the "evening".

In order not to offend, however, modern state rabbis, I, wishing to be completely impartial, must state the fact that in addition to the artists-singers and There are conductors among the synagogue singers, there are "artists" among the rabbis themselves, and so undoubted proof of this: the law (Article 914 of the ninth volume on acts states) prescribes that spiritual boards monthly audit their rabbis corded register books with notebooks and so carefully that it obliges them even "to sum up the number of births, marriages, divorces and the dead, first in numerals, and then in Russian and Hebrew." In his
In turn, entries in corded notebooks must be made by rabbis without fail
"at the very performance" of religious rites and again in Jewish and Russian languages. Corded registers of births should not even be kept by the rabbi, but at synagogues and prayer houses. The rabbi himself and the entire Jewish spiritual leadership The sogroge are responsible for every soul missing from the records.

It would seem that under such conditions any abuse or any kind of false. But... it is necessary, if you please, for the girl to be younger in the birth certificate her age, she needs it both for marriage and for entry into the lower classes educational institution, and... in a word, it is necessary at all costs, and to the venerable the metric scribe also needs to "earn good money" at any cost, to earn so much so that both he and his numerous household members and relatives up to the tenth knees inclusive could wear thin underwear under their tailcoats, so that when case "for business" to insinuate oneself into the house of a dignitary... Then a modern rabbi straight is an artist, and from an ordinary "metric scribe" he is already turning into "metric maker", artistically inventing different ways to create metrics. Various "certificates of age" are put into circulation by means of indications of persons, trustworthy", persons who always remember perfectly well when and almost in what this girl saw the light of God at an hour, remembering as firmly as ever all these well-known professional "witnesses" in every city firmly remember, filling the chambers of our magistrates and city judges, at the same time always those who manage to be everywhere and see everything. Of course, ordinary ones are also used "additions", "correspondence" of different persons from one, "unfavorable according to the metric local-"sti", to another, more prosperous one, and various other artistic tricks...

But in the end, at the first trial, this whole scam is discovered, and in the end, God forbid, an order will follow to accept our girls by their "appearance"...

Special Jewish courts are located wherever there is a Jewish population; In large cities there are several of them; in small towns - one. In the courts these are the dayens, i.e. judges - chosen people who know the Talmud well, and the chairman is a rabbi; the only statute that guides this court is the Talmud. It is this Talmudic court (besdin) that still deals with all criminal and civil cases of Jews, property rights are determined in relation to real estate, inheritances are divided, etc. Besdin still lives under someone else's in the name of the arbitration court and managed to protect Jewry from any external influence.
"Jews are forbidden to sue in a non-Jewish court and in non-Jewish courts institutions." This prohibition does not lose its force not only in relation to such issues on which non-Jewish laws are the same as Jewish ones, but even if Both sides themselves wanted to present their case to a non-Jewish court. Violation of this prohibition is recognized as a crime equal to blasphemy, violation of the commandments and laying on of hands the whole law of Moses.

In such cases, the "besdin" has the power to impose "niduy" on the apostate and "herem" and not remove them until he frees his opponent from non-Jewish authorities. "This punishment is inflicted both on the one who takes the side of the apostate and on the one who who would use non-Jewish power to force a Jew to convert to the Besdin without "with his own prior permission to do so."

"The document, even though it mentioned that a lawsuit could be filed in court non-Jewish, should not, however, be represented there. Otherwise, the plaintiff must bear all damages exceeding, on the basis of Jewish law, the amount, "mandatory for payment according to the document."

1 Tract. "Khoshen Hamishpot", l. 26, p. 1.

2 Ibid.

3 Ibid.

Chapter 3

About the state law

In relation to state law, although the Talmud says in one place:
"Dine demalkhute dine", i.e. the royal law is the law (obligatory for the Jews)*(7; am also, Sec. 369, p. 11) but elsewhere it is explained that this regulation applies exclusively to issues concerning the personal benefits of sovereigns, the decisions judicial places can in no way be obligatory for a Jew; and thirdly the place is completely confusing and confuses both first opinions: "Rabonon mikre malke", i.e. are rabbis sovereigns? Thus, this question remains not permitted in the Talmud, although the practice of Jewish courts indicates which law Jews follow in a similar case.

In some of the decrees of the kahals cited in Brafman's book, it is said, that members from among the Jews serving by election at a non-Jewish judicial seat, and even those are obliged to decide cases heard in their presence, not on the basis of conscience or state laws, and by the decisions of the Jewish court, besdin or secretly existing kahal.

The scope of Besdin's activities is currently defined as follows:
Besdin deals with cases of loans and debts, marriage records, inheritance and deeds of gift, as well as complaints about damages, etc.

The damage and losses caused by someone else are also subject to the investigation of the besdin cattle; cases of theft and robbery, and Besdin collects from thieves and robbers only the value of the items they stole, but no more (i.e., without a fine, to to whom the criminal must be sentenced according to the law of Moses).

1 Ibid., Sec. 369, p. 21.

2 Tract. "Gitin", p. 62, etc.

3 Ibid., pp. 62 et seq.

4 Ibid.

In this article, Hoshen Hamishpot adds: “Although the current besdin cannot sentence thieves and robbers to fines, but he is also given the right impose a "niduy" on the criminal until he completely satisfies the plaintiff.
The limitation of the rights of the current besdin generally applies only to fines, established by the laws of Moses; but the fines imposed by the Talmudists for violation of their regulations, are collected everywhere in cases of damages caused by "indirectly, and about informers."

Every Besdin, even if he has not received approval from the authorities of the Land of Israel,
If he notices that the people are indulging in debauchery, he has the right to sentence the guilty to the death penalty, subject to monetary penalties and various other punishments, and it is not even necessary for the defendant to be exposed by witnesses. If the accused is a powerful person (by his position in the non-Jewish environment) and the Jews

If it is impossible to deal with him by one's own means, then such a person is punished through non-Jewish authorities (local). In this case, the besdin has the right to declare the property of the defendant "gefker" (free) and destroy the disobedient one, depending on “the demands of the circumstances.”

1 “Khoshen Hamishpot”, chapter 9, article 1.

2 Ibid., ch. 2, v. 1, Ioradea228.

Chapter 4

The procedure for summoning to court

As for the procedure for summoning the defendant to court, it is usually a besdin announces to him through a messenger (sha-mesha) that he should come there to the appointed time. If the defendant does not appear, the summons is repeated; if he does not appear a second time, appears, then the court issues him a third summons, waits the whole day, and in case of failure to appear
The next day, a "niduy" is imposed on him. But these rules are observed by the besdin only when the defendant leaves the city for the village. If he lives permanently in the city, then he is called only once, and in case of no-show the next on the same day a "niduy" is imposed.

The messenger of the besdin must not be disrespected. For insulting his besdin has the right to subject the guilty party to corporal punishment. Even the messenger himself the right to punish the insolent is granted, and no penalty is collected from him if he causes Such a disobedient person will suffer monetary losses.

If the besdin changes his place of residence, the defendant must appear and there. Otherwise, he will be subject to "nidui." If the messenger declares that he or the judge (in absentia) was treated rudely, then the applicant enjoys full confidence and through him, the disobedient person is declared “shashtai” for this (i.e. mortal “niduy” or "herem")!

1 “Khoshen Hamishpot”, verses 1-4

Upon the appearance of the parties in the besdin or kahal, the plaintiff sets out his claim, the defendant gives explanation, after which the rabbi orders them to retire to another room or simply in the entryway; after the litigants have left, the court deliberates on their dispute and considers Talmudic laws and interrogates witnesses when necessary. By decree the rabbi sends a servant (shamesh) to invite the litigants, of whom each one, approaching the judges, puts down money at his own discretion for the work of the besdin (Rezakgeld) After this, the rabbi announces the decision to them orally, and sometimes in writing.

During all this time, both parties to the dispute must stand, even if they are the most honorable and the richest people (among the Jews, whoever is rich is honorable). The rabbi should not invite them to sit down. In some places, there is something like a besdin at the court lawyers (toanim) explaining the arguments of the litigants. When the strict meaning the law is difficult to apply to the decision of the present case, then Besdin invites the litigantsboth sides rely on peaceful mediation (pe-mare), which is what happens quite often.

Here are some documents related to the Besdin trial, taken from "Books of Kahal" by Brafman.

Chapter 5

On the selection of officials for fundraising to maintain the power of the Besdin

“25 Nissan. It was decided to elect three representatives as representatives of the kahal, and namely: one of the heads, another of the leaders and the third of the ikorim, so that they together with the rabbi-gaon and the righteous besdin, they compiled the clause and regulations to curb and subdue persons who deviate from the decision of the Besdin. Everything that will be theirs

“It is decided that it must have the force of an action or decision of 8 city representatives.”

Chapter 6

On the choice of two heads for coercion

the Rebbe of Israel will appear before Besdin

“Saturday in the Shemin department, 28 Nisan, 5561 (1861). Representatives
The kahal has decided and decreed to elect two heads: Rebbe Samuel, son of Rebbe D., and Rebbe

Isaac, son of Rebbe I., to appear before the Besdin court in his case against Rebbe Leizer, son of Rebbe
M. Using the authority of the 7 city leaders, these authorized representatives should not to proceed with the matter until the said Rabbi Leizer gives it to the kahal written power of attorney to destroy the protest filed by him with the magistrate together with Rebbe Zelman on the case of the latter's brother, Rebbe Hirsch, with the kahal, and until he will destroy this protest in accordance with all the rules of judicial decisions."

"On the drafting of rules for the enclosure of the besdin (Jewish court). On the eve
On Friday, 4th of Ira, a large meeting decided to finally restore and strengthen Jewish court, and to come up with the necessary means and measures for this, and also to draw up rules for guiding judges. There should be no more than six judges. For all rules and the measures that will be taken by the kahal to protect and strengthen the sacred abyss, the large assembly expresses its full consent, and all the decisions of the kahal in this in relation to which they are equivalent to the decisions of a large abyss."

"On the deprivation of Rabbi Joseph's rights for disobedience to the Besdin. Thursday, 23 Sivon.

Because Rebbe Yosef, son of Rebbe Arie, rebelled and opposed the ruling besdin and kahal, then the city leaders decided to exclude him from the number forever members of the Northamid brotherhood and deprive him of any right to choose in that brotherhood, and also his moreine (noble title) from now on and forever."

Chapter 7

On the punishment of Abraham, son of A., for failing to appear in court “Tuesday, 4 Nisan 5462 (1802). Since Rabbi Avraham, son of A., not only already twice disobeyed the order of the kahal to appear in the court of the besdin and thereby violated the herem, but also remained a disobedient representative of the kahal in relation to other matters, too,

The representatives of the kahal on this day decided by general consent without contradiction:
to remove Rabbi Avraham, son of A., for three years from the above-mentioned date from participation in elections and exclude him from the general meeting and from all fraternities. In case of destruction this resolution must comply with the rule PBepit ue (i.e. disagreement one of the representatives of the kahal may be delayed by the decision to destroy (our current situation). All notaries are prohibited from writing for the rebbe.

Abraham any loan letter and any document in general, and representatives should not accept complaints from him during the entire above-mentioned period anyone. This resolution will come into full force when it will be approved by the Besdin. On Thursday, 6th of Nissan, the representatives of the kahal decided, that the above decision has legal force even in the case when the representatives of the Besdin will not approve it, and therefore the ministers must let everyone know fraternities about this resolution. If any of the fraternities wants to sue kahal regarding this order, then for this purpose the representatives of the kahal in advance lawyers are appointed - Rebbe Moses and Rebbe Joseph. Since Rebbe Avraham has already invited to the besdin of the representatives of the kahal, then the same two lawyers were appointed against him and against the rebbe Abraham."

Chapter 8

On the punishment of Rabbi Avraham for disobeying the Kahal

“Saturday, the section of Sima 5562 (1802). Since Avraham, the son of Rabbi Eliazar-Lipman still remains in his stubbornness and disobedience to the saints laws and the kahal, and how, in addition, he once expressed himself in words that were offensive to the kahal, then the city leaders decided to punish the aforementioned Eliazar by deprivation forever and ever: 1) the right to vote; 2) the right to participate in the general meeting and 3) expulsion from all fraternities. In addition, he is punished with a fine of 8 chervonets, as indicated in the decision of the kahal, issued last week."

Chapter 9

On the Rebbe Chaim's insult to the representative of the society, Rabbi Joseph “Thursday, 19 Shevat, 5562 (1802). Because Chaim, the son of Abraham, dared insult the representative of the community, Rabbi Joseph, son of Isaac, with abuse, then the decision

The representatives of the kahal decided: firstly, to deprive Chaim of the title of moreine (noble title), and from that time on he was awarded the title of hover

(commoner) in all the affairs and customs of the Jewish people; in addition, Chaim must to pay a fine of 5 chervonets into the kahal treasury and to provide for the parade ground, published them (Chaim) for sale. Everything said was decided on the basis of laws and customs."

Chapter 10

On the punishment of Rebbe Chaim for insolence against members of the kahal

“Monday, 22 Shevat 5562 (1802). Since with Rebbe Chaim, son Abraham, who was already mentioned in the act, again suffered a misfortune, which consisted in the fact that that during the meeting of the representatives of the kahal he approached the most pure (court) table and in the presence of all members of the kahal, he scolded some representatives, then for such insolence the latter decided: to punish the aforementioned Rabbi Chaim was excluded forever from the holy brotherhood of the burial priests, of which he was considered a member. In addition, he was fined 30 rubles.
which he must deposit into the cash register, including in this amount those five chervonets which were mentioned above. As for the deprivation of Chaim once and for all the title of moreine by general agreement of the representatives of the kahal, as it was mentioned in the previous issue, then the kahal notaries are obliged deprive Rebbe Chaim of this title even in written documents, in which there will be his name should be mentioned."

Chapter 11

On the punishment of Rebbe Meer for denunciations of the Besdin

“Saturday, the 2nd day of the Feast of Tabernacles, 5562 (1802). So Rabbi Meer, Jacob's son had the audacity to launch denunciations against the kahal, then its representatives it was decided: to fine the said Rebbe Meer by depriving him of moreineh (noble titles), so that his name would no longer be accompanied by the epithet "moreine", but by the nickname
"hever" (base) in all the regulations common in Israel. All this "decided on the basis of laws."

Here are some more regulations to protect the court of besdin.

"Monday, Noah 5562 (1802) For the punishment of those who apostatize from the decision Besdina representatives of the kahal decided: to elect from the total number of people on a weekly basis leaders, one shamish, or strict guardian for each of them apostate. Every task given to the shamish (overseer) in relation to the apostate, must be carried out by him, the shamish, without question. All this is decided with "by common consent on the basis of legal provisions."

Chapter 12

On the punishment of those who disobey the decision of the Besdin

“Thursday, 23 Ira 5562 (1802). The representatives of the kahal decided that persons who prove obstinate or disobedient to the decisions of the Besdin are deprived of all their rights to own the property that they acquired this year, purchase or gift, so that all documents issued by the kahal to these persons the right of ownership of any property shall be considered illegal and insignificant, like broken shards."

"On the punishment of Rebbe Joseph for his denunciations of the kahal. Saturday, the 25th of Sivon. Since Rebbe Joseph, son of Rebbe Arie, caused the kahal many losses and expenses Christian judges with their terrible denunciations of the kahal, the rabbi-gaon and the shamshi (notaries), and thus almost undermined the foundations of our holy laws, then representatives the kahal decided to take away half of his place, which belongs to him and his brother, and give it into the possession of the kahal as compensation for the expenses incurred by the kahal. But as this half of the place is not satisfied even by 1/19 of the share of those caused by Joseph kahal of expenses, the latter reserves the right to take advantage of any opportunity, in which it will be possible to meet these expenses from property Joseph. All this was decided in the meeting of all the leaders, in the presence of the members, in the kahal room, according to all laws and regulations."

Chapter 13

On the deprivation of the same Joseph of the title of moreine

“Saturday 25 Sivon. The representatives of the kahal decided: if Rebbe Joseph, son of Arieh, comes to prayer in the synagogue, then call him to the Torah second to last and call him a hover (commoner or ignoble). It was also decided: not convene a kahal meeting for Joseph and do not allow him to be judged in the abyss, unless by common consent of the kahal and the besdin, and the rule must be observed PBegit uyeyu. Besdin himself cannot allow this in any way without the consent of the kahal. "bring him to court."

"On depriving Joseph of the opportunity to live with his wife. One of the members The kahal must be instructed to announce to the wife of Rebbe Joseph that she is forbidden perform ritual ablution (without which she cannot live with her husband) until her husband her, Rabbi Joseph, will not submit to the decision of the besdin. If she does not submit to such order, the purification that she performs will be deprived of its legal force, and she will still remain unclean, and therefore forbidden to her husband."

Chapter 14

Translation of a document found in a synagogue

In one of the towns of the Kherson province, in a Jewish synagogue, was found a document with the following content: “This declares that the Lord, may He be blessed, gave the power to the besdin to strengthen the power of his determination even to the supreme (heavenly) union of angels under the throne of the Lord, as proven in the treatises: "Moed-Cato, p. 17, sec. 100, 4; Bova-Metzia, p. 29, the Babylonian Talmud, and the tractate Rash Hashanah" and the Jerusalem Talmud. Our sacred Mishnah (Interpretation of the Old Testament of the Talmudists) says: “Why are the names of the oldest Jews not indicated, - in order to indicate that every three people who became besdin over the Jews are equivalent the abyss of our teacher Moses? (Tractate "Rash Hashanah", p. 2, note by Rabbi Moshe Isfleg in the book "Chasem" and "Mishnat" 55, p. 11). Whoever does not suffer from oppression (is not afraid (gneta) of the orders of the besdin, then although he arrived to another, he is subject to the conclusion of Sh. L.D."! (These letters mean either "Shelo" or tract. "Shabbes", p. 34) Rabbi Akiva says: "It is better to die a death by one's own hand than to change one's words Talmudists”, etc. We, the children of the living God, the Lord of Hosts, have found it is necessary to prevent the destruction of the Great Name, which has now happened in in our town through these uneducated offenders and lawbreakers, listed below. We came to remove them from us according to the command of the Torah, in fulfillment of the Lord's command: "Purge evil from among you." We conjure the butcher-offenders, namely: Gersha, the son of Moshek Itski, a butcher, and Yakov, the son Isachar-Ber and Gersh-Ber, called Gorsh-Ber, the son of Lethali-Juda and Keil Nuhim, son of Eliukim and Srul, son of Zelik, the curse of our teacher Moses, the curse Jesus Navin and the name "cursed" (in the Pentateuch of Moses) and all the power of the curse the book of Ben Joseph, cited in the book of Avkut Ruhel, and the oath of our teachers from France, cited in the resolution of the issues of Rabbi Manz, and we prohibit receiving from them any benefits. Let no one of us approach even through strangers, and let no one will buy from them from the cut meat, for they are cursed, rejected from society, and we We forbid them from receiving any benefits. Therefore, let everyone who lives protect your soul. Each of us knows the strictly printed punishment. Let the herem penetrate counting 248 members of the human body (tractate "Moed Koton", p. 17). May the blessing of good things come to those who fulfill our word. Amen."

Chapter 15

Translation of a document about the Talmudic court

The archive of the Vilnius educational district contains a translation from a very interesting text. Jewish document from the kahal book of one of the provincial cities of the western edges. The acts preserved in this book date back to the beginning of the 19th century, up to 1825. year. Here is its content: “Points compiled for the protection of the Talmudic judgment from the weakening which became noticeable as a result of our sins, established on a legal basis in order to, God forbid, prevent our enemies to be our judges, to bend the daring apostate into an arc and disobedient and force every Jew to be devoted to the Talmudic court and law.

All these fences and provisions are drawn up by agreement of the chiefs (al pyrozney mangichi ugnidey gakgila) and the leaders of the city and besdin (Talmudic court), together with the rabbi, who signed and confirmed by oath- not only to be faithful to all the provisions set out below, but also to try to support and strengthen the void by possible measures and means.

Here are the points approved by the council of sages: A) If any Jew will three times invited to the besdin through the shamish (messenger) on business for which he must appear after the first summons (gasroe rishon), or someone will not comply decisions of Besdin after the first warning, in this case Besdin is obliged to declare herem to this person through the messenger of the society (al yedei shamesh venemaan (gakogol).

The leaders and representatives of the kahal agree to all herems that are in similar
In some cases, they will be declared besdin. Shamesh must inform this person that herem approved by the verdict of society and besdin (begaskomas aluerei verozney hakogol).
If such a herem is violated, then the besdin is obliged to include this act in his a separate log that such and such a person violated the herem (banin-kes meyukhod shelogem), and confirm this act with the signatures of all members. Shamesh is also obliged to record this case in the public administration journal (bespinkes hakogol), and then consult with the secret chairman (neygosh ganeel) on what to do and how to proceed with disobedient, and everything that comes out of the mouth (geneygesh-ganeelo) of the secret chairman, must be fulfilled.

If, at the discretion of the Besdin, the disobedient person turns out to be a dangerous person, capable to cause harm and evil to society, then in this case the besdin invites one of members of public administration (parnes heydesh)' (Now renamed as elders and collectors) to discuss the case.

If it turns out to be necessary to invite even more members of the public management, then in this case two more are called, but exactly those that are indicated will be a Besdin and a member of the Kahal, previously invited. None of the Besdin members and members of the kahal invited to him cannot refuse this matter, and any of their the decree must be executed.

B) If the disobedient person persists for three days, then all his property, both movable and immovable property, and the places acquired by him in the synagogue, besgamedrosh and so on, are made free for all (gefker) - according to the charter and decision of the besdin (al pi Gefker Besdin), and all oral and written claims and demands are satisfied besdinom from the property of this person in his presence, by appraisal, but not by auction.
If, after the claim is satisfied, there remains excess property, then such belongs to the kahal. If there are only verbal complaints, then they are satisfied at the discretion of the besdin and public administration. But shamoshim

(messengers) are required to confirm and sign everything that will be done Besdin and the kahal. Besdin is obliged to record in his book that everything he did was done according to voluntary agreement of the disobedient person.

B) If the plaintiff proposes the case to three daionim (members of the besdin), then the daionim are obliged to begin consideration and decision of this case without accepting the challenge the defendant's side. And if he (the defendant) wishes to postpone the case until they find other daions, then his desire remains unheeded, excluding only the very important cases when the besdin to whom the case is offered himself recognizes it as necessary invite more daions.

The main thing is that the matter should not tolerate embarrassment (inuy gadin). Announcement
The herema depends on the daionim; they can invite the rabbi who is obliged join them. The leaders of the kahal and all other daions are obliged to support and support everything that will be decided by the three daion-ons, without any murmuring and excuses.

If the defendant turns to another daion with a question (about his case), then he
They don't give an answer because this daion didn't take part in the investigation of the case.
He should only answer that Besdin decided the matter according to the law.

Shamesh, who is in the service of society, also cannot refuse the case proposed to him and cannot point the petitioner to another shamish.

D) If the plaintiff brings the defendant to a non-Jewish court, then he, i.e. the plaintiff,
They force the herem to go to the abyss, and he is sent a warning that the kahal and besdin will certainly collect from him all the costs and losses incurred will be the opposing party, and in addition to the costs and damages, he will be liable for violating the herem will be subject to collection under the law on fencing.

D) A Jew is prohibited from being a witness in favor of someone who wants to present his case the case is brought to a non-Jewish court (begasas), and everyone is obliged to testify against such, if anything is known to anyone.

E) If the plaintiff has a bill of exchange, he can initiate a lawsuit in a non-Jewish court, if this will not be contrary to the besdin; otherwise the matter can be dealt with in this the latter, even if only one side wanted it.

G) If the disobedient one submits to the abyss while the matter has not yet reached the secret chairman (neigem geneelom), and with repentance before the besdin will declare his consent to his decision, then the besdin removes the herem from him, but not otherwise than after receiving it as collateral obligations - bills of exchange by which he could be forced to respect decisions abyss in any matter, in any case and at any time. When the case has already been transferred to the hands of the neigem geneeloma, then it is terminated only by general meeting of representatives of public administration (kahal) and besdin, on general at their discretion.

3) Shameshim (messengers) are elected monthly, by the ballot of one secret chairman (neygem ganeelom) from among the persons on their list. Secret the chairman must confirm with the most solemn oath that he is no one in the world will not spare and will support the Talmudic court according to its instructions by all possible means and measures.

Moreover, the secret chairman affirms by solemn oath that will never reveal to anyone in the world that he was the secret chairman.

These are the measures that should be used by the secret chairman in order to to humble and destroy the opponents of the secret court:

1) An apostate is deprived of the positions he held in the kahal or brotherhoods (Hebrews).

2) Excluded from the society or fraternity.

3) Excluded from public or fraternal gatherings.

4) It is not allowed to the Torah and other holy rites in the synagogue, bezgamedrat and other places, especially cannot be allowed to the icon case to perform a general prayers. He cannot be honored and prayers cannot be delayed for his sake, even for a moment.
'a quarter of an hour'.

1 Among the Jews, if anyone received an insult from a private individual or society and did not can find satisfaction, then the offended person appears in the synagogue during prayer approaches the ark and delays the prayer, demanding that the community provide him with justice.

5) A disobedient person cannot be invited to any public or a private feast. The host is subject to herem.

6) No one should rent an apartment or a shop from an apostate, and he should not whom to hire such, although the conditions concluded with him in this regard before the imposition of herem on him remains in force. His wife is not allowed to co-the performance of the ritual of ablution in the mikveh. It goes without saying that at the fateful hour misfortune will befall him (-)'.

1 These words explain what is given as a sacrifice to the monster.

7) If the disobedient person is a craftsman, then it is forbidden to order work from him under heavy herem.

8) If someone has entered into an engagement contract with a disobedient person, then the other the party is released from the obligation without being subject to the usual penalties in such a case in case of collection of a fine and reimbursement of costs.

9) It is allowed for the restoration of the whole society (besdin and (revered great rabbi), to produce witnesses that the apostate consumed treif (food prepared by a non-Jew or unfit for Jews according to commandments of the Talmud), or broke the fast, etc., and subject him to punishment for this.

All of the above has been compiled with the consent of the representatives of society, besdin and the highly revered great rabbi (gorav hagadol), and all of us, the undersigned, confirmed this resolution with a serious and valid oath and took upon themselves the obligation to carry out everything that has been decided carefully, which we confirm with our signature.
1801 Minsk."

14 signatures required...

The rabbi's signature is stipulated as follows: "I agree with all to confirm and seal with a fortress everything that is written in this document, in which I sign up, Humble Israel."

Chapter 16

On the actual existence of the kahal court

That such a kahal court remains firmly established in the Jewish environment to this day, despite its antisocial character, it does not represent the slightest doubts about the statements of our modern publicists. Besdins and kahals continue to operate to this day. This is proven by a document from 29 January 1869, signed by the state rabbi; in what form and to what His decisions are driving the Jewish masses into frenzy, as recent news shows. from the town of Shklov in the Mogilev province. Suspecting a Jewish woman of having an affair with As a Jew, the Shklov Jewish court decided to disgrace and punish her. On March 12 a crowd of a thousand people was moving noisily and excitedly through the streets of the town shouting towards the assembly square; in the crowd walked a Jewish woman and a Jew tied up; people spat on them, pushing and hitting them as best they could. This ceremonial procession continued until nightfall. another day the police found this Jewish woman in a Jewish almshouse chained to wall. The same tortures were repeated on another loving couple. After the public The Jewish girl had to sit on a chain in a Jewish school for shame, without receiving a three days in a row of food. The man, beaten half to death, was taken to the cemetery, where he had to tearfully repent of his sins all night at the graves of his fathers and grandfathers. the cemetery did not return - isiï , i.e. he went to Abraham.

But these incidents are not the only ones of this kind.

Let us note that the kahal and besdin give their decisions, according to which it was possible would expect obedience, especially the terrible force of declaring a herem to the disobedient one. The right to declare herem places the kahal hut, i.e. the kahal with the besdin, above any law, and gives the kahal power an absolutely dictatorial power, because who violates herem, he, according to the teaching of the Talmud, “violates the whole law.” All these facts lead to the conclusion that the Jewish community enjoys self-government to such an extent on a vast scale, which is completely inaccessible to the Christian community; except physical death, the Jewish community enjoys the right to betray in its midst its members even to political death.

Besdin exists in every Jewish community and, satisfying all the demands of the merchant life of the Jews, replaces all other civil courts. Talmudic scholars insist that the Jews' need to have their own court does not arise from a simple whim and not to satisfy the people's ambition, but follows from the main dogmas of this teaching. The Talmud, according to them, positively forbids a Jew to sue in a non-Jewish court, and every Jew must follow unquestioningly comply with this prohibition.

Disputed cases of Jews, especially claims for bills of exchange, letters of indenture and safe-conduct receipts currently being received by local authorities are nothing more than only a means for subduing those who disobey the Besdin decisions, since Besdin before resolving a dispute, he takes from the parties forms for a bill of exchange, for a loan a letter, or a receipt for their signature, similar to that in arbitration signatures are taken in consent to such proceedings from both the plaintiff, and from the defendant. If the party that lost the dispute in the void does not submit to it decision, then Besdin writes on the form, signed by him in advance, an obligation in favor the winning party and represents to it the right with this fictitious document seek recovery from local authorities. It is clear that government authorities and the court innocently turns into a blind instrument of the void.

When the Jewish court is discussed in official circles, the Jews respond usually about it as a moral, loving judgment. But from the properties of this The original institution clearly shows that the besdin is sanctioned by religion and is is subject to compulsory court.

Even its administrative and economic status is very dear to the Jewish people a device by which Jews are united and gain strength for exploitation of Christians. They say that Jews have no territory. On the contrary, their territory where they settled: moreover, their property consists of everything that brings profit to the area of their settlement. Here, as in the court case, all the rules flow from Talmud, which states (according to the testimony of the most competent authorities of Talmudic legislation), that non-Jewish residents of the kahal district with all their the property comprises the state territory and the property of the kahal, which he can sell in parts to Jewish residents.

The Talmud expresses this principle even more figuratively, likening the area of the kahal a free lake in which only the Jew who has acquired to this right from the kahal. Having secured such a rule, which came to him as if from above, the kahal sells to the Jews for exploitation not only real estate, but also we have already said before, but also even individuals without real estate. Jew may have a non-Jew under his control, lend him money, use bribery against him, robbing him, and all this because non-Jewish property, according to according to the Talmudic expression, freely.

After this, it is clear that the economic situation of the places where they settled Jews, it depends solely on them, since individuals compete with there is no possibility for the kahal. Complaints from residents of Jewish settlements that where one Jew will be established for some kind of exploitation of Christians, especially peasants, the latter have no opportunity to deal with another Jew - confirmed with the same interpretation of the Talmud. The same Talmud helped the Kahal to subjugate and to group Jews around themselves in another way in the form of a tax. The tax was attributed to the Jews, firstly, on consumer goods that have religious significance (kosher meat); secondly, on objects of worship and on objects associated with their rites religious doctrines (public baths, etc.). Without mentioning public support in Jewish environment of wild rituals, from which the Kahal derives the main source of its income, and about the strict control that every Jew is subject to when in the performance of the ritual side of their doctrine, we will only note that all these obtaxes that are burdensome and in every way harmful to Jews and Christians are collected through ransoming, a system that is known to be quite ruinous. Thus, for example, regarding the tax on meat, i.e. on a basic necessity, from on which the health of the people depends, the kahal, relying on the teachings of the Talmud and erecting the consumption of kosher meat in the dogma of religion, established a tax for its sale, and for the right to slaughter livestock. The government legalized this kind of tax, only yielding to the assurances of the kahals that the division of meat into tref and kosher is supposedly a dogma of their doctrine. But according to the assurances of many persons well versed in Talmudic legislation, it turns out that the existence of kosher is determined not by the fanaticism of the Jewish masses, but by the vigilant supervision of the vigilant kahal agents and various cunningly created institutions, through which the kahal subjects every pound of meat to its control, and finally, by those strict the persecutions he uses against violators of kosher. Kosher is imposed on the masses more by the force of fear of punishment than by religious fanaticism.

These punishments are terrible for a Jew. Not only is the Jew expelled from the community, is deprived of all the benefits that it provides him, is cursed by the name of Jehovah, but every Jew is also obliged to harm this outcast member, to ruin him, to slander him, in a word, to try to destroy him.

Chapter 17

Reasons for the imposition of a curse by the court

Among the reasons why a Jew falls under the curse, it is necessary to name the following are the main ones: anyone who insults a rabbi is subject to a curse, even if even after his death, and who disdains the words and decrees rabbis. Anyone who prevents others from fulfilling their duties must be cursed.
Talmudic rules, who transfers his role to a non-Jew, who is before a non-Jewish court testifies against his fellow believer, and in general all who do not fulfill all rites of the Jewish faith prescribed by the Talmud.

Previously, the curse had definitions or degrees, but now there is only two kinds of curse: "niduy" and "herem". The lesser degree of curse, "niduy", is accompanied by the fact that the person subjected to it is isolated from others and, with the exception of wife, children and household should be 4 cubits away from each other and in all during the time of the curse one has no right to have a haircut or wash one's face. Ten men gathered those who are together constitute a sacred assembly; but if there are nine, then the one who is under the curse he cannot replace the tenth. Appearing in the assembly of ten saints, he sits separate from them at a distance of 4 cubits. If he dies while under the curse, then the judge orders a stone to be placed on his coffin as a sign that the deceased was worthy petrification. As a result of this

0 They don't pity him and don't accompany the corpse to the cemetery even the parents and his relatives. This curse, at the discretion of the judges of the kahal, can be continued beyond the usual 30 days to 60 and even 90 days if the damned does not repent.
If after this time he does not improve and refuses to obey the court, then the stubborn one is subjected to the highest degree of curse, which is called "Herem." "Herem" forbids the cursed one from any contact with strangers."

The one under it cannot live with others or teach them; he is forbidden share food and drink with anyone; no one is allowed to serve him, nor accept services from him; only a few food items are allowed to be sold, so that he doesn't die of hunger. "Herem" is pronounced over a criminal at least not less than ten people. This curse usually occurs with great solemnity: they light wax candles, blow a horn, children shout appropriate verses from psalms, they beat the floor with mallets, etc.
During the ritual, the candles are extinguished as a sign that the damned one is excluded from the number participants in the heavenly light."

1 Bookstorf, p. 828.

2 Ibid., ch. 1.

The Talmud is not only the main culprit of all the shortcomings in the life of Jews, but also hinders them from moving along the path of progress. Representatives and zealous executors of the Talmudic law, i.e. rabbis, besdins, melameds, daionim, shames, chiefs, judges and teachers of the Jewish faith, in a word, the entire kahal staff, standing at the head of the Jewish people, harm the proper order of Jewish life, are forced to live completely differently from all other citizens. Let someone think about it.
some Jew to lead a life in Russian, to become instead of a melamed or an earth factor-a businessman or a laborer - the kagalniki will immediately lower him in the eyes of other Jews and they will say that he is becoming a gamurets, i.e. a man-farmer, or they will do with him something worse.

1 The Jews call their Talmudic scholars by the name “Ish Khoshev”, i.e. dear the soul of Israel, and the less learned are called "gamurets", i.e. from the word "eretz" - land; i.e.
because an uneducated person is not capable of thinking about anything other than earthly things, then he is called "Gamurets".

Jews hate those who befriend Christians, eat and drink with them, especially from their dishes. The Kagalniki, having learned of this, raise a din among their fellows everywhere, proclaiming that such and such a person has become a goy and eats treyf. This person is subjected to ridicule, universal contempt, persecution, and sometimes death. Such is the power and power over the Jews of the Kahal and Besdin. However, if we are to believe individual statements local publicists, recently the Jewish masses in some places are beginning to express dissatisfaction with the burdensome laws of the kahal institutions and openly against they protest. So, some time ago in various organs of our press very interesting news in this regard was reported that in the city of Velsk In the Grodno province there is a fierce internecine struggle among the Jewish community population of plebeians with kahal patricians. The Jewish masses somehow awakened from a long-term lethargic sleep, sent upon her by the kahal with the aim of more accurately to rob, and, finally seeing in the face of the kahal a Pandora's box from which they pour out on her all the disasters, I decided to throw off the yoke of the kahal at any cost. Let's go in the course of the petition, denunciations in which, pointing out the terrible abuses of the kahal, Poor Jews are crying out for legal protection. Despite the enormous efforts of the Kahal to hinder the progressive aspirations of his victims and hush up the case, in Velsk, on the orders of the highest provincial authorities, an investigation is already underway, revealing that there is a special association among Jews called "kahal", which keeps all the poor fellow believers in an iron fist and mercilessly exploits them: for example, every Jew, bound hand and foot by the kahal, one has no right to eat a piece of bread without first paying a tithe (moser) on it institution. The poor Jews are in such terrible dependence on their kahal, which was destroyed only 4e j, and still exists. When Brafman, Having published his “Book of the Kahal,” he outlined this institution in bright colors, Jewish publicists raised a storm and wrote a whole series of explosive articles and brochures, proving that there is no kahal among the Jews, and everything written in this book is not more like a fantastic invention of Brafman.

The text of this herem (anathema, excommunication from society), by means of which the kahal institutions keep the entire mass of Jewish society in serfdom, We place it below, in the case of the curse of Khatskel Porokhovnikov.

Chapter 18

Prayer after cherem

Here we present the words of the prayer after the announcement of the herem:

“He who blessed our forefathers - Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses, Aaron, May He send peace to David, Solomon, and the prophets of Israel, and to the righteous his blessing on this city and on all cities, with the exception of the one (person) who He will break this herem. God in his mercy will save them and protect them from all evil and misfortunes, prolong their years and years, bless every work of their hands and deliver them together with all your brothers the Israelites; let this be His will, do it. Amen."

1 Kolbo, charter of herem, $ 139.

While the Jews are few in number, they are not visible; but when they establish a synagogue (school, prayer house), cemetery and will form a council (kahal) at the school, then the influence their growth is great. The greatest harm to society is caused by councils (kahals), in which government regulations are considered and discussed. Any the order in the kahals is considered from three sides: does it tend to undermine religion of the Jews, to the undermining of their material well-being, and is it possible from this orders to somehow extract material benefits for the Jewish society. Then they reason and look for measures - in some way this the order is not to be carried out at all or carried out in a roundabout way, for appearance's sake. Everyone is like that The techniques are permitted and explained by the interpretation of Jewish law.

In order to achieve material benefits, a Jew has the right to any non-believer in anything I want to persuade, convince (in a word - deceive), as long as the desired goal is achieved achieved; if the infidel does not know that he has been fooled, or remains silent out of shame and does not states that, according to Jewish law, such a Jew received God's blessing. This interpretation applies fully to the entire family of the infidel, to the entire society and to the whole state. If a Jew, knowing about such a blessing over his a fellow believer, out of envy or self-interest, will explain to a non-believer his mistake or declare it to society or the government, then such a Jew is considered an apostate from the Jewish religion; for this, According to the interpretation of Jewish law, the informer's condition and residence must be ruined and destroyed, and he himself should be crippled; such a reprisal could would not even be produced secretly if the apostate Jew were not protected by law of the state where he lives; but even the protective law does not save the unfortunate Jew from the secret persecution devised by the Jewish community.

If a fanatical Jew should ruin and maim an apostate Jew, and if the former could not to hide his actions and is unable to defend himself before the punitive law state, then it is the duty of the Jewish society to do so with all material and by moral means to free the Jewish fanatic from the impending punishment. If one Jewish community is unable to protect its fellow, then all of them societies have a duty to snatch such a Jew from the hands of justice, and for influential and wealthy Jews are informed about this to help achieve the goal, living in large cities and capitals. Therefore, it should not be surprising if in the former Poltava Criminal Chamber during the last 3 years of its existence from The 200 Jewish defendants were all acquitted.

The imposition of a herem is still practiced today, as can be seen from the following fact:

In view of the fact that the Jewish newspaper Getzefira has recently begun to work hard serve to promote the ideas of Zionism among Jews, representatives of the conservative Jewish circles (Hasidim) decided at a secret meeting, according to the Morning Courier", to impose a terrible Jewish curse "herem" on "Gatsefira", notifying about this through announcements in prayer houses and convincing fellow believers break off all relations with the rejected newspaper and do not provide it with any assistance assistance.

According to the teachings of the Talmud, "a musser (informer) can be killed, even if the denunciation was made long ago. In this case, the murder is committed as a preventative measure, to avoid "future denunciations."

1 Brief decision on the commentary "Toisfes" on the Talmud "Avoyde-Zura", p. 77.

A "muser" - an informer - is someone who causes harm to a Jew through denunciation. Thus, for example, one who noticed that a Christian had been cheated and reported it, thanks to what the cheated Jew should have returned his property, it is admitted informer. The most terrible informer is the one who dares to open Jewish secrets. It is permissible to take the life of a traitor even before the denunciation is made, for, by expressing only one intention to betray someone, the informer himself already betrays death itself. The traitor should be warned with the words: "Do not inform"; if he will so impudent and will answer: "No, I will betray him," - then the deprivation of the life of this informer constitutes a merit, and whoever kills him first will have done a good deed.

Khatskel Porokhovnikov, a Jew from the town of Shklov, being by nature honest and straightforward, did not agree either in opinions or in actions with the members of the kahal society.

The disagreement arose because Khatskel had somehow brought anger upon himself and persecution of the Jewish kahal community and took it upon himself to defend himself legally order, seeking protection from government authorities. For this, he was forced “to expose all the abuses of the kahal society.”

1 Tract. "Hosher Hamishpot", p. 388, 10.

2 We borrow this paperwork from the newly published work of an unnamed author under the title "The Shklov Murder".

Khatskel Porokhovnikov denounced the Shklovsky skating rink to the government society: about the supply of the latter with fugitive soldiers, instead of those following from the society recruit, about falsifying the years in the birth certificates of the local rabbi, taking false oaths, sales of dead cattle meat by butchers and the sale of tobacco with forged packages.

The Kahal authorities decided to impose a herem on Porokhovnikov. It should be noted, that herem is usually imposed only on non-believers.

The imposition of a herem on a Jew is an extraordinary, special measure. In the kahal hut
All the elders, guild leaders, and kahal leaders are gathering. Agents from other cities are being summoned.
and information about this is reported to all departments of the main kahals, to all districts Jewish towns of the Western Territory.

In the summer of 1873, all the representatives of the terrible judgment. With faces distorted with anger and constantly spitting, they called a curse on the head of the disobedient Khatskel Porokhovnikov.

Chapter 19

The words of a Jewish teacher, spoken at the trial!

1 Testimony of the superintendent of the Shklov Jewish school, Yakov Peskin, in Mogilev Criminal Chamber, in the case of the murder of Porokhovnikov, No. 68 "Voice"

1876

“As a social institution, the kahal is a gathering of swindlers, which as a result of various conditions of closed Jewish life, it was formed, strengthened, seized public administration into its own hands by force and various tricks and exploits and robs Jews and non-Jews through fraud and directly acts to the detriment of government goals and aspirations, turning laws, government decrees and orders into dead letters. The Shklov Kahal, and after it Berdichevsky - are the most important kahals of Russia; of these, the first is the most influential.

“Having seized public administration into its own hands once and for all, the Shklov kahal influences the whole society and can force everyone to obey him, resorting to to threats, bribery, curses, persecution, conscription, executions, drumbeats, inquisitorial torture, etc. He keeps everyone in such a state horror and fear, so cleverly makes everyone put the seal of silence on their lips that no one will dare to say an extra word; everyone speaks carefully, knowing that the inquisitorial court could sentence him to the loss of all his property, torture and even death. The power of the kahal instills panic in everyone, because everyone They value their material well-being, but even more so their lives."

These are the words of a Jew, a teacher at the Shklov Jewish school, spoken at the trial.
If a Jew, who stood in better conditions to the kahal and to the entire Shklov society, as the educator of their children, he could give such testimony that the murdered man would have revealed Porokhovnikov? The torture and torment he endured could have made a hero out of him.
martyr of the medieval Spanish Inquisition.

The kahal hut was lit by many candles. On the table among various religious objects, lies a sacred scroll called the Torah. Gray, red, black, fat, skinny, cross-eyed and half-blind Jews in white robes surrounded table; the rabbi, holding up the printed form of the curse, said: “Children of Jehovah! Yes
It will be known to you that our fellow believer Khatskel Porokhovnikov turned out to be a disobedient
great kahal, used his foul language to denounce his fellow believers, in a word, he became a renegade. By betraying us to the "goyim," he does not leave us and harms us;
therefore, according to the definition of the kahal, today we must impose a herem on him and to notify the katal societies that Khatskel Porokhovnikov's bread is not the bread of a Jew, his wine - "nesech", i.e. the wine of idolatry; its vegetables are defiled, its books are books wizard; no one should eat or drink with him; no one should perform any rituals on him children of his circumcision, nor teach them the law, nor bury the dead of his family and treat him as a "nuhri," a non-Jew." "Herem, herem, herem," they cried.

All.

Then the rabbi, hitting himself in the chest with his fist, delivered this long tirade:
“By the power of peace and the sacred word, in the name of God, the kahal and this sacred covenant; in the name of the 613 covenants of God set forth in this covenant; the herem which Jesus Navin cursed the city of Jericho, the curse with which Elisha met those who pursued him boys; all the herems, curses, expulsions and destructions that have been used from the time of Moses to the present day; in the name of God Akatriel - God-Tzahaot; in the name of the Archangel Michael, the great chief; in the name of Metatron, who named after his rabbi (God); in the name of Sandalphon, who weaves crowns for his rabbi; in the name of that God whose name is composed of 42 letters; by the name which he appeared to Moses in the bush; by the name by which Moses divided the sea, by the name of Ee; by the mysterious power of the name of God; by the power of the letters with which the tablets were written covenant; in the name of God Tzahaot, the God of Israel, who sits on the cherubim; in the name of the chariot saints and all who live in heaven; by the power of the names of all the angels who serve God, and all the holy archangels who dwell in the highest places - we destroy, we conjure, we exterminate, We shame and curse every son and daughter of Israel who violates our decree. Let Hazkel be cursed by the God of Israel, who sits upon the cherubim. Yes will be cursed by the sacred and terrible name of God that was spoken high priest on the Day of Judgment. May Khatskel be cursed by heaven and earth. May it be cursed by a higher power. Let him be cursed by the great chief Michael;

Metatron, who is named after his rabbi; the God of Akatriel, the God of Tzahaoth.
Let him be cursed, Khatskel, by the Seraphim, the Chariots and all the inhabitants of heaven and holy and most pure servants of the Most High. If he, Khatskel, was born in the month Nison, in whom the archangel Uriel reigns, then may he be cursed from this archangel and all his angels. If he, Khatzkel, was born in the month of Airoa, in which if the archangel Tzanapniel rules, then may he be cursed by this archangel and all the angels him. If he was born in the month of Sivon, which is ruled by the archangel Armiel, then be he cursed by this archangel. If he, Khatskel, was born in the month of Tammuz, which is ruled by the Archangel Penien, then may he be cursed by this Archangel. If he was born in the month of Abb, which is ruled by the archangel Barkiel, or in the month of Elul, which is ruled by the same archangel, then may he be cursed by this archangel. If he, Khatskel, born in the month of Titre, which is ruled by the archangel Tsuriel, then let him be cursed by this archangel. If he, Khatzkel, was born in the month of Hegivon, which is ruled by the archangel Bazkriel, then may he be cursed by this archangel. If he, Khatskel, was born in the mesyatse Kislov, in which the archangel Aduniel rules, then may he be cursed by this archangel. If he was born in the month of Teivst, which is ruled by the archangel Enoeel, then may he be cursed by this archangel. If he, Khatzkel, was born in the month of Shvat, which is ruled by the Archangel Gabriel, then may he be cursed by this Archangel. If he, Khatskel, was born in the month of Adar, which is ruled by the archangel Rumiel, then let it be He is cursed by this archangel and all his angels. May he, Khatskel, be cursed from seven archangels who govern the seven days of the week; from the four archangels, governing the four seasons of the year, from all the principles of the Law in the name of the crown and seal.

May he, Khatskel, be cursed by the name of the great, powerful and terrible God. God-Creator, mow him down. Let the wrath of God break out upon his head and his defenders. May he be cursed - wherever he is now, at all times and in every place. His spirit - Khatskelya - let him fly away instantly, let the unclean death seize him and let him not finish (not he will live) months. May the Lord punish him, Khatskel, with consumption, fever, inflam- with insanity, madness, sword, ulcer and jaundice; let him pierce with his own sword he his chest. Let him, Khatzkel, be overcome by extraordinary despair and he will fall into the snare set for him by God. Let him be cast out of the kingdom of light into the kingdom of darkness.

Let him, Khatskel, clothe himself with a curse as with a garment, let him destroy himself forever.

May the Lord grant him forgiveness. May the wrath of God be poured out upon Khatskel and may all curses written in the Law, and his name will be blotted out from under heaven, and God will doom him to misfortune beyond all the tribes of Israel, according to the curses of the covenant written in the Law.

"Amen, Amen, Amen."

"Amen, Amen, Amen," cried the crowd, animated by fanaticism; their faces burned, eyes sparkled with hatred.

"Sons of God!" cried the exorcist. "The curse has been placed on Khatskel."

From now on he has no soul, no body, no property, no existence, no no friends, no patrons. He's cursed. Kill him, rob him, put him in prison, To slander is not only not a sin, but even a godly deed. Cursed will be the one who "Whoever speaks to him, whoever gives him a drop of water, will show him compassion."

The rabbi, having finished the curse, raised his hands to the mountain and plunged into pious reflection. Those present stood quietly; no coughing or movements. After five minutes, everyone started to move and slowly, sedately, without noise, began leaving the kahal hut. Only five kahal elders remained in the room. and the rabbi. The latter, taking out several packs of folded sheets of paper from his pocket, began report to the kahals messages received from other kahals.

The applications received were from Uman, Lublin, Berdichev and Baltic kahals. Resolutions were written in a dirty notebook, and each kahal noted down the names of persons subjected to herem in order to notify about them in all Jewish taverns, inns and farmsteads.

Chapter 20

Publishing a herem

Regarding Porokhovnikov, it was given to all the main kahals to know.

The next day after Porokhovnikov was given the herem, he immediately felt all the burden of this curse. Previously, although rarely, one or another would enter his tavern was worth two or three kopecks of vodka; with the imposition of the herem, his tavern became as if plagued: not a single soul crossed its threshold; when Porokhovnikov didn’t have enough fire, so not only no one lent him matches, but even He was not allowed to enter the room. He could not buy meat or water at any price, no bread. Previously, getting by from day to day by trading in a tavern, with profit, often consisting of three kopecks a day, Khatskel now, with his alienation from society and a curse, he was forced to die of starvation.

Testimony of a teacher from the Shklov Jewish school at the murder trial Porokhovnikov was as follows: “Khatskel Porokhovnikov, embittered by Jewish society and not knowing how to exist, offered to the excise official his services in uncovering the fraud of tobacco traders. His services were accepted; the next day Porokhovnikov brought the excise official to the shop

Shenderekhin, where many packs of tobacco were found under counterfeit low by parcels. The next day, Shenderekhin wanted to kill Khatskel, but before he could, only threatened that his place would be "under the bridge." For a whole month, Khatskel he didn't eat for days or even two; it happened that he would run to the witness, take a piece of bread and will leave. Sometimes, meeting a witness on the street, he will say: "Give me three kopecks, I haven't eaten for two days,
"I'm dying of hunger." Sometimes, quietly, some butcher would give him a few kopecks so that he wouldn't report them for selling meat from dead cattle. A certain Blutstein persuaded a certain Shuster to poison Khatskel, explaining that he would do something pleasing to God business. Seeing that with his denunciations to the chairman of the treasury chamber about the patentless the sale of liquor by Jews and other authorities for various fraudulent schemes of the kahal Khatskel is becoming harmful to the kahal day by day, the kahal persuaded one Jew put someone else's pilgrimage money into Khatskel's pocket and accuse him of theft.

1 A leather box that Jews place on their heads during prayer, leather straps wrapped around the left hand during prayer, and other attributes, stored in a pouch like a tobacco pouch. All this together is called "pilgrim's prayer".

No sooner said than done. And then one Saturday, the police, following a complaint from a suspect,
A Jewish woman searched Khatskel's home and found someone else's pilgrimage money in his pocket; witnesses at the trial falsely swore that they saw Khatskel steal the pilgrimage. For this, the accused was sentenced to three months in prison. After leaving prison with with a torn heart, embittered by the inhuman actions of the kahal, Khatskel
He began to denounce again; but the kahal had already decided to finish with him.

At the beginning of October, the kahals gathered for a decisive meeting.
The rabbi presided, and Zevel Boguzo, a bloodthirsty robber, defended interests of the drinking establishment, led by a rabbi. After heated debates on the pros and cons by a majority vote it was decided to kill Khatskel Porokhovnikov, and
The execution of this sentence is entrusted to Boguzo.

Boguzo invited the Uglich infantry from the Shklov quartered regiment of three Jewish soldiers: bugler Adelsky and privates Yatvitsky and Slovin.

After treating them to vodka, he offered them 175 rubles if they would undertake to kill the damned man.
By God and the society of Khatskel Porokhovnikov.

The soldiers agreed to have a drink. The next day they showed up at the pub.
office, where they were treated again. In addition, Boguzo gave them vodka, cucumbers, chicken and cabbage for lunch. On the evening of October 10, Boguzo invited Porokhovnikov to his place under the guise of exhortation to humble himself and repent, he got the unfortunate man drunk, as well as the hired ones killers: Adelsky, Slovin and Yatvitsky. During the conversations, Boguzo said Po-Rokhovnikov, that in a tavern, located about 3 miles from the town, he bought from a Jewish woman feather bed and promised to send for it today, so if Porokhovnikov and company want to earn money for vodka, then he offers them to bring this feather bed. Drunk Porokhovnikov, not suspecting a trap, agreed to the proposal and on a dark night, in 9 o'clock in the evening, the victim and the killers moved in a group of four in the direction of the indicated Boguzo korchme.

Here it seems appropriate to give a portrait of the one condemned to death.
Porokhovnikov was of enormous height; his figure and face were bony, his arms were long, with short sinewy fingers, black hair, coarse, tousled; round eyes, large, hidden under overhanging eyebrows; the face is yellow, wrinkled, lifeless.
He dressed more than poorly, so that one can safely say that all his clothes were not worth it.
more than 15 kopecks in silver, and even then for a hunter-trader, a rag picker.

The dark night grew blacker and blacker as it enveloped the dreary outskirts of Shklov: the field, the roads, estates - everything merged into one huge, dark, impenetrable spot. Porokhovnikov walked ahead towards the tavern; his murderers followed him, heated up vodka and a generous reward promised by Boguzo.

Chapter 21

The murder of the Jew Porokhovnikov by his own brothers

When the travelers came out of the town, onto a plowed field, Slovin, running up from behind Porokhovnikov, threw a rope around his neck and wanted to tighten his throat, but Porokhovnikov, lunging, managed to throw him off himself and ran away. The Jew is here too. turned out to be a Jew. If he had taken a defensive position, then under his Three short soldiers with Herculean strength would hardly have been able to cope with him; but, drunk,

He started to run and, tripping, fell on a plowed field. Slovin ran up struck Porokhovnikov with a stone, Adelsky and Yatvitsky rushed after Slovin strangle the victim. With superhuman effort, Porokhovnikov threw off everyone killers, but at that time Slovin grabbed him by the legs and lifted him so high that his head
The unfortunate sufferer, covered in blood, fell into some kind of rut. Yatvitsky pounced on Porokhovnikov's head, and Adelsky literally broke his body in half and, having tied a scarf around his neck, threw him to the ground. The cracking of bones and an inhuman roar Porokhovnikova was the end of a terrible drama. Then everything became quiet, only the howling
The autumn wind sternly picked up the last groan of the departed soul of the martyr.

Having dug up some damp, plowed earth, the murderers laid him down in a small the body of the murdered man. Then Yatvitsky broke off two fingers from the corpse, and together went to Boguzo, to whom they handed the fingers of the murdered man as evidence accuracy of the completed assignment.

A precise executor of the orders of the kahal, Boguzo was not satisfied with two fingers, and ordered that the body be delivered to the kahal hut, where the members of the kahal would gather.
The killers, joined by soldier Belchikov, headed back to field, took the corpse and brought it to the kahal hut at a time when the latter was full was the entire synclitus of the Shklov kahal.

On the floor of the spacious kahal hut the body of a murdered Jew was laid. Enormous, the black, curly head of the murdered man with an aquiline nose, terrible tin eyes, caked with blood at the edges and popping out of their sockets, and a black wide beard was turned towards the light. The pale, exhausted face of the murdered man with a torn mouth was covered there was blood. The lips were convulsively compressed, as if the curse of the whole his sad, wretched and unsightly life, tormented by enemies and ill-wishers. The neck of the murdered man was covered with a huge scarf, which served the last service to the unfortunate man. The right hand, without two severed fingers, fell back on the floor; the fur coat in which the body of the murdered man was delivered was all covered in blood and dirt. On this very

A dead man lay on the floor in a fur coat. At the door of the hut, wiping away the sweat streaming down his muscular tanned faces, stood four tired Jews. One of the killers had already been in prisoner companies.

Opposite the doors of the hut there was a huge table with burning candles, and on the sides Representatives of the Shklov kahal stood in various poses along the walls. When they entered the kahal hut a dead body was thrown down, the whole group of Jews, apparently waiting impatiently the appearance of the murdered man, first she rushed with curiosity to the corpse, and then with an arrow bounced back to different corners, seeing her implacable enemy killed, tortured, lifeless. Only the first moment of the terrible picture seemed to bring panic to Jews, then they gradually came to their senses. Hatred, malice, fury awakened in their inhuman souls. Of enormous stature, fat, bloated a fat Jew named Zevel Meerov Boguzo, approaching the murdered man, hit him with his boot in the head and, spitting, said with disgust: “May you be damned, Khatskel Porokhovnikov!
May you have no peace in Abraham's bosom. May your dog-like soul be tormented forever.
demons, may the sentence of our great kahal be carried out on you, traitor, and in the future life." Then, spitting several times in the face of the murdered man and turning to to the public, he said: “This is what will happen to everyone who goes against the great Shklov kahal.
And you, children,” he continued, turning to the people standing near the door, “be Blessed be Jehovah; for your faithful service, receive 25 rubles as a reward for now.
Now tell me in detail, word for word, how you dealt with this beast."
Yatvitsky, as if waving his hand dismissively, said: “Great thing!” - they knocked down and strangled, that's all there is to it." - "This is what will happen to everyone who goes against the will of our great "Kahala," Boguzo said smugly. The Kahal members approached the dead man and looked
They looked at him with contempt, turned away and spat.

“Where are we going to put this dog’s body?” said one of the riders, pushing with disgust, a kick to the head of the murdered man.

- Where? Throw it right out on the field, behind the place, - said Boguzo. - A dog's game death and dog funerals.

- What if the police pick on you?

- Police? - said Boguzo ironically. - We are the police ourselves, we don’t have a police, I

I would deliberately like to throw this dog right out into the street to set an example for everyone the strength of our kahal. I'd like to see what the police would say and who would dare tell her how Porokhovnikov was destroyed!

- But why let the police and the court bother us? They won't leave us alone, will they? such a thing, if they find a body; there will be inquiries and expenses, - said the gray-haired kahal agent.

- Perhaps, if that’s the case, it would be better to throw it into the lake.

“Into the lake is good,” added another, “by spring the fish and crayfish will have eaten it, that’s all.” and it will end. Hey, good fellows, finish the job, put the dog in the bag, put it on the boat and lower him with a stone around his neck to the middle of the lake.

“Well,” Yatvitsky answered, “we’ve started, we need to finish, and you’ll give us some extra money for that.” Five rubles each; look at the weather.

- Well, well, let's add, just take this dog to hell.

An old Jewish woman handed over a long cloth in which the soldiers placed The murdered man was quickly sewn up, and, having been thrown onto his shoulders, he was carried out of the kahal hut.

Behind the town, not far from the Dnieper, there is a large lake, formed partly from running water from the Dnieper, partly from swamp springs. The lake in some places is up to 20 feet deep, and the banks are overgrown with reeds and bushes.

On the night of October 10th the weather was windy and stormy. Exactly at midnight, tired and The exhausted hired executioners of the kahal dragged the body of the murdered Porokhovnikov to the shore lakes. The Jewish messenger of the kahal showed them a boat hidden in the reeds, which served the kahal Jews for various purposes, such as concealment contraband and other stolen goods, and sometimes for the dispatch of the killed by the same the road along which our Porokhovnikov walked. The dead body was placed in a boat;

the soldiers, with the help of a guide, pushed her into the water - and she rocked on the dark waves of the lake. The wind picked up the boat and carried it from wave to wave. Inexperienced rowers did not They couldn't handle either the oar or the rudder, and after 10 minutes they couldn't see the shores.
lakes, they didn't know where they were. Each wave lifted the boat higher and higher.
higher, trying to tip it over or break it into pieces. Afraid that the wave would tear it out of hands of oars, the murderers put them in the boat and in some kind of senseless stupor, Confused, they were ready to jump out of the boat, hoping to swim to the shore.
A terrible despair took possession of them; with pale, distorted faces, with disheveled from the splashes of water and the wind, these cruel people, who killed for hire, had their hair
The men were terribly afraid of losing their own lives. The storm raged terribly.
The waves violently picked up the boat and threw it onto a tiny sandbank covered with reeds and small bushes; the boat capsized, the rowers and the dead body fell into water at a depth of no more than an arshin.

Someone grabbed the edge of the boat and held it there. The whole group was in that position.
stood there until 6 a.m., when the wind died down and the waves subsided. Around 8 a.m.
The villains returned to the town.

Porokhovnikov had an old father in Shklov, a tradesman named Wulf Porokhovnikov. Three For weeks he didn't know what had happened to his son. All the searches, all the inquiries remained useless. By chance, in the tavern, one of the murderers, Yatvitsky, who later Litvinsky, - let it slip to the old man that his son had been catching crayfish in the lake for three weeks, and maybe the crayfish are catching him. November 2, Wolf Porokhovnikov made a formal a statement to the bailiff of the 1st station of the Mogilev district about the murder of his son Khatskel, and and indicated the suspects. What would have come out of old man Porokhovnikov's statement, it is unknown, but at the same time the head of the gendarmerie department reported to the provincial prosecutor about the murder of Porokhovnikov, and thus arose criminal case. Old man Porokhovnikov testified in court that the manager of the pub Mikhnevich said in the presence of a magistrate that the office would have given 20 000 rubles for the murder of Porokhovnikov, who caused her great harm. Then many people were brought in and they told the investigator about the rumors that were circulating in people, the refutation or destruction of which the kahal representatives do not were especially cared for. For four and a half months, the matter dragged on slowly, confusing; first the testimony was given to clarify the evidence of the case, then the testimony changed and the matter became more complicated. On March 22, 1874, retired private Stepanov, while catching While fishing with his comrades in the lake, he saw a dead body in the ice hole. Stepanov reported it to the district police officer.

bailiff. During the investigation, the body was found to be in a severe state of putrefaction, as a result of prolonged exposure to water. The body was in a canvas bag, legs
They were tied with rope. After removing the clothes from the body, a summons was found in the vest pocket.
from the Mogilev World Congress addressed to Khatskel Porokhovnikov. Summoned
The bailiff, Khatskel's father, Wulf Porokhovnikov, recognized the body found as his son.

Then the following information was obtained through judicial investigation: Private Leiba Eskin under oath he testified as follows: he, the witness, was told by Private Budnikov, to whom Yatvitsky reported that Khatskel Porokhovnikov was killed by Yatvitsky, Adelsky and Slovin hired Boguzo, who paid them 175 rubles. The murder itself happened in a field, outside the town; two severed fingers were initially presented were not to Boguzo, but to the kahal clerk Gurevich, who had already handed them over to the kahal society. Then, already in the Mogilev prison, the murderers also confessed, explaining detailed step by step the entire course of the terrible murder. Only one Boguzo is absolutely not in which he did not admit and, despite all the evidence and confrontations, denied all his complicity with the murderers.

Chapter 22

The court sentenced the murderers to hard labor.

On July 4, 1875, the Mogilev Criminal Chamber sentenced: Aaron Yatvitsky, Itsku Adelsky and Itsku Slovin are to be exiled to Siberia to hard labor for 12 years.
Boguzo was sentenced to 14 years of hard labor for conspiracy to commit murder.
The remaining persons involved in the case, Shenderikhen, Fundalsky and others, were left in strong suspicion. At the prosecutor's protest, the case was heard on January 28, 1876.
years in the 1st section of the Department of the Governing Senate.

In our time, in the Chernigov province, a Jewish distiller reported to the excise officer management that the plant's lessee allows deviations from the distillation process rules on the drinking tax. For this denunciation, the Jewish distiller was recognized by the Jewish community an apostate from the Jewish religion, and the following persecutions began against him: a) they arranged a divorce for this Jew from his wife and family; b) they took away his earnings money and property with transfer to the family; c) were not given to him by the tenant money owed for distilling, and d) finally, the unfortunate one dark night He was lured into the forest near the factory, where he was beaten, disfigured, and had his mustache and beard torn out. The investigation according to the old order (even though it was the investigator) did not reveal anything, but they were running around rumors that the plant's tenant paid 2,000 rubles for this. If the plant's tenant hadn't had managed to free himself from punishment, then the Jewish society would have been obliged to all by the means within his power to free his brother from the impending punishment. Thanks to the confidence in the help of the whole society, every Jew begins to always boldly and decisively in a known matter.

From the bloody case of Porokhovnikov, everyone can be convinced of the unfairness and cruel treatment of Jewish kahals towards their brothers. The kahal executes a Jew for the slightest disobedience will result in renunciation of society, confiscation of property and even pronouncing a death sentence. The community's subordination to the kahal is expressed payment of taxes. In case of the slightest resistance in this regard, the kahal with unlimited power deprives a Jew of everything, and often even of life itself. The Kahal distributes members of their community for rent or lease various establishments and property within the boundaries its territory. Thus, some are allowed to operate taverns, others a grain trade, and the third - estates, forests, etc.

By distributing various institutions and property among its members, the kahal ensures their operation without interference from competitors. Anyone who has not received from the kahal of the right to operate any establishment cannot, under any it was a sight, at least for the sake of trade, to even go into this establishment or the estate is already being exploited; otherwise he will be a disobedient to the kahal authorities. The Kahal despotically rules its community and demands absolute obedience from the Jew. slavish obedience. Of course, riding societies are underground institutions, secret; existing 4 asyu, they are forbidden by the League. Every Jew is obliged by oath under no circumstances should you give away your own and be careful always, at every step, in this in relation to the goyim. In the kahal secret court they are guided by Talmudic laws; all dark deeds, barbarism, robbery, theft and murder are not committed only without the slightest shudder, but with the greatest zeal and covering commitment and compliance with religious requirements. If Jews are not shy to kill a fellow member of the catalan society, a person in whose care a poor family and children - is it possible to think about mercy and pity for a Christian, recognized by the Talmud as the most despicable creature? Every fanatic of the Jews the Talmudist, inspired by the Talmud, looks at the Christian with bloodthirsty hatred, revealed in practice by atrocities, as evidenced by numerous examples.

Chapter 23

Fanaticism and barbaric murders of their fellow believers

Mishnagide Jews did not hesitate to wage a bloody struggle against their blood relatives. Hasidic Jews. In the main communities of Lithuania: Vilnius, Grodno, Brest and others, the matter it came to beatings in synagogues, on the streets and outrageous false denunciations authorities. Some rabbis who fought against the Hasidic sect were beaten the last ones or subjected to public scandal. For example, in Grodno he was beaten by Hasidim one preacher, in Shklov - the learned rabbi Yakov, in Rogachev - the preacher Yitzhak-Isaac Yanover. The Hasidim captured the rabbi of the town of Valfa outside the city and stripped him of his clothes. naked and sent to all four sides, so that the poor shepherd had to enter to the city in an unusual form. One Talmudist Sholom from Lubavitch was irritated sectarians killed to death. An incident occurred in the city of Krasnostav (Volyn province) premeditated murder: Hasidim lured one of the local representatives to themselves the rabbinical party, a certain Rabbi Samuel, got him drunk and then stabbed him to death at night and thrown into the market square. The crime was soon discovered, dressed up there was a formal investigation, and the murderers were subjected to the sentence of the Zhytomyr court strict judgment and punishment! (Voskhod, November 1892). This is the behavior of the Jews between with his brothers, and what can we say about Christians - there is all sorts of bloody the crime is attributed to merit.

The archives of the ministry in St. Petersburg are filled with files of denunciations. Vilna Mishnagids versus Hasidic Kabbalists. It cost hundreds of thousands of rubles. every slanderous case, just to destroy and not give the Kabbalists a chance. And Indeed, the Lithuanian Jews defended this, which even now no Kabbalist has openly will appear neither in Vilnius nor in Kovno, they huddle secretly, and even then they are not seen in the city

How many people. They are called "jumpers" in Lithuania by both Jews and Christians, they
They pray in a special way, with grimacing and waving of hands and an extraordinary cry.
The Warsaw Hasidim, on the contrary, pay the Mishnagdim back with the same hatred; they are not given to drink water from one's own dish is called "Litvak-pig, dog". They are not accepted in A home and shelter are not given to the stranger. The hostility among the Jewish sectarians continues even now. similar to that internecine massacre during Titus's capture of Jerusalem. This nation so embittered - apparently, that the words of God's curse weigh upon them forever.

Members of the kahal communities, distinguished by fanaticism, ignorance, isolation, superstition, barbarism, etc., at the same time they are permeated with an extraordinary unanimity and a sense of duty to mutual and fraternal support. G. Grinevich in his
In his essay “On the Corrupting Influence of the Jews,” he says that in the Odessa kahal before During Easter, the kahal collected up to 9,000 rubles in silver through private charity, which were distributed to poor Jews on the holiday.

Chapter 24

Kahal communities

The more famous kahal Jewish communities in the Western region of Russia are:
Odessa kahal, more numerous and more powerful in its intrigues; of the kahal kings Abram Brodsky, Gurovich and others became famous for it. From other kahals more remarkable: Berdichev, Shklov, Vilensky, Mogilev, Minsk, Mariupol, Platsky, and others. Grinevich says that the kahal-communal life Jews of the Western Territory proves in the best possible way that our Jews are essentially not recognize, with the exception of a few individuals, neither the government of the country, because they are governed by a kahal, there is no government court, because the court and the punishment are the same kahal is being brought out; neither civil laws, because they follow, in relation to other peoples rely solely on the Talmudic prescriptions.

If Jews sometimes turn to the court of the country where they live, then in in exceptional cases, from some special, selfish reasons, or then, if will any member of the Jewish kahal community break out of blind obedience?
kahal authority. Under such circumstances, turning to the official court of the country, with the help of various intrigues, false testimony and all sorts of tricks and deceptions those who turn to the conversion achieve the goal of bringing the guilty one to the obedience of a lamb before the kahal authority. In these small secret kingdoms above all laws There is one law that reigns - the Talmud, according to the dictates of which everything is done.

The very life of Jews and their social life clearly reflect the influence Talmudic teaching that Jews are nothing more than citizens the future Palestinian kingdom, which is in no way obliged to recognize the order modern Christian states. The citizens of these states, i.e. all Christians, descended from the shameful relationship of the foremother Eve with the devil and deserve the name "pigs." The "Jerusalem nobility" cannot be denied to be taken from the Talmud, which promises them a kingdom over all people, untold riches, - the messiah of the king and so on. The Kahal, rejecting the country's authority and laws in principle, very often such denial is also revealed in practice, when engaging in base and lawless scams and without hesitation in achieving their selfish and criminal goals in choosing methods and means.

This is the picture Judaism presents in the Western region of Russia. A mass of Jews is fragmented into many small communities, closely knit together, united solidarity of views and interests and almost universally the same level of development. Despite the state power of the country, the communities are governed by the kahal, this is so to say, by the sovereign power, against which no Jew dares to go without fear for their lives. Contrary to state laws, these communities have their own laws; members of the community are subject to their own civil laws, which are antisocial in their nature a being that prescribes theft, deception, and thievery against non-believers. Of course, all these criminal means are prescribed to be done carefully, so that everything was sewn up. This ignorant mass is, however, imbued with pride to the point bone marrow: Jews consider only themselves to be people, while other non-Jews, especially goyim, They are called pigs, which the kahal sells for exploitation to one or another member communities; these pigs are obliged to work for the Jews not only in this life, but also in the future. Due to this principle, the Jews themselves do not plow or sow, do not engage in no hard work, they don’t even conduct proper trade - but they direct their activities to light trades, crafts, and even then only to the extent of deceiving goyim. Knowledge of crafts is acquired by Jews superficially on the basis that with with the coming of the Messiah, having conquered the whole world under his banner, they hope to occupy the position of princes and rulers, and therefore work for them serves only as a temporary resource of life.

We already know what the kahal governance of our Jews is, what the laws are kahal communities, how kahalniki deal with the disobedient with their court kahal power. All this, of course - we also know - grew out of the soil The Talmud, that precious book for every pious Jew. The same Talmud instills in the Jews: to exploit without ceremony the population among which they live, in the interests of the future Palestinian kingdom; not to engage in agriculture and avoid hard work altogether, for all this must be done for them by the goyim, the future slaves of their Palestinian state. That is why all the humane measures of our government, undertaken with regard to Jewry, remained completely unsuccessful, and sometimes completely inapplicable. The government made attempts to educate the Jews farmers. The Ministry of State Property, in conjunction with the Ministry the Interior Ministry gave them land on the most favorable terms and offered money for initial acquisition of agricultural tools, draft animals and other essential household items. What came out of this? Humane measures and the government's intentions to make Jews full-fledged citizen-owners did not lead to the desired result. The allocated plots of land and the money issued for the Jews, of course, accepted the arrangement, but despite all the severity of the laws and control of officials appointed specifically to oversee the progress of the case, Jews secretly leased out land to peasants. Furthermore, having settled in villages with with the supposed goal of engaging in agriculture, the Jews began to mercilessly exploit working people by intoxicating them with vodka. The Jews, founding a colony, immediately they started taverns, which served as the best tool for exploiting peasant labor kopecks. This is how they fulfilled the Talmudic commandment given by God himself, the commandment about agriculture, which they understood in the sense of cultivating the Palestinian land.

According to the teachings of the Talmud, farming is extremely difficult and unprofitable, and In addition to the commandment about Palestinian agriculture, there are also such convincing words: “Whoever uses one hundred shu for trade will have food for his table every day meat and wine; and whoever uses them for farming will have to "be content with onions and salt" (tsibules un zalts). This teaching is transmitted successively from time immemorial, from generation to generation. Having weaned the sons of Israel from agriculture, the Talmud carefully instructs that it is not a sin to deceive a goy and one should to rob, to fleece, to persecute, to harm and even to kill; the latter is even put behind religious feat and merit. Thanks to this, we still have religious traditions in Russia. such systematically formed gangs of thieves that could have their own history, if someone were to collect materials for it. According to Mr. Grinevich, These gangs have their nests in the region of the Dniester, Prut and Bug, and their agents are located even within Russia and in the capital Moscow itself. Stolen oxen and horses from Moldova are transferred to Bessarabia, Kyiv, Podolsk and Volyn provinces; from here the stolen goods are sold to Austria, Bessarabia and Moldova. Similar Jews also engage in commerce in the regions of Lithuania and Samogitia: transporting stolen goods horses through secret agents to Courland, from here they, in return, receive stolen items. We personally know all the stolen items, such as:

the towns of Yanishki, Zhagory, Vekhni, Laizhevo, Kovno province, etc., where The main offices of the Jewish Horse Thief Society are located here.

Chapter 25

Opinion of publicists

Grinevich says in his work that he also personally knows the following thieves' centers: in the Podolsk province - the town of Ataki, in Bessarabia, above Dniester, Sculeni and Fanesti - on the Prut, on the border of Moldova. These are the main points where thieves exchange stolen goods. People wouldn't have it any other way. calls these places as Jewish thieves' shtetls. Translation of stolen horses, cows and other things are carried out at night, and this is of great help to thieves the Jews, the ferry renters, who, by the way, inhumanely fleece, are providing dark people, charging twice, three times the rate and maintaining the ferries themselves in most of them are rotten, which is why accidents often occur. Speaking about gangs of thieves, to our shame we cannot remain silent about the fact that from there not a single police officer or thousand-man, leaving the service, goes out to the chiefs retirement without capital. Some Jews are engaged in cabbies, transportation passengers and goods in their large budas, i.e. covered with matting of a huge the size of the carts. According to the Talmud, getting a piece of bread easily and cheaply, These Jews almost never have passports, just like their passengers. Their main activities are: transporting people from one place to another, hiding from prosecution for criminal offenses; in transportation contraband, uncensored books, counterfeit money, etc. Without having any labels, without paying anything to the treasury for the trade, the said cabbies are the biggest Some are thieves and are engaged in the resale of stolen horses, etc.

The Jews are making every effort to clear the field for exploitation young peoples of Eastern Europe. According to one of the princes of the tribes Israeli, Italian banker Montefiore, Disraeli-Beaconsfield, as is known, insisted that the Berlin Congress oblige the still weak peoples of the Balkans peninsula to grant full citizenship rights to Jews. Strengthening of the Jewish community here is entirely consistent with the interests of the British policy in the East. The Romanians, however, courageously resisted such a provision of the Berlin Treaty and, by allowing foreigners of all faiths to obtain the rights of Romanian citizens, They protect their country from the free influx of Jews with rather harsh conditions acquisition of this right.

The question of equal rights for Jews in the eastern half of Europe only then will move forward and gain firm ground when a movement arises among the Jews themselves the desire to wean his tribe from vagrancy, usury and the desire to live off someone else's account. "Can Jewish periodical literature indicate any popular publications that would combat moral, political and economic ills of their own people? Intelligent Jews, like interpreters of the Talmud, do nothing but instill in the Jews that they are the first the people of the world oppressed by Christians; and how the Jews oppress Christian peasants - about this not a word. We hear only cries about rights; but granting them would actually mean granting the right to shamelessly and publicly fleece the less intelligent and less of the dodgy peasantry. Let the Jews themselves wean their fellow members off life. primitive nomads, and the question of the emancipation of the Jews will receive real subsoil, which it still does not have. The first condition of civilization is the transition from nomadic state to sedentary life; until it exists, all states with a significant Jewish population will have to treat them as semi-wild peoples, they will be tolerated, but denied rights."

Extracts from the civil catechism of the Talmud are not new in our literature. All Jewish scholars who converted to Christianity pointed to them. This catechism also Mr. Brafman also characterized it in his famous work, The Book of Kahala. But the Jews, not Those who have accepted Christianity before, no matter how learned they may be, resort, like the former Professor Khvolson, to all the scientific tricks, to obscure, to hush up even the talk about Talmudic catechism.

TREATISE P THE WORKS AND SUCCESSES OF THE JEWS

Chapter 1

The false opinion of historians

Historians of Judaism usually explain the former persecutions of Jews and hatred of all peoples towards them due to their religious intolerance and barbarity. They managed to bring this idea even into science, so that modern German scientists Virchow and Momsen, who had absorbed such concepts almost with their mother's milk, began to zealously the head of the parliamentary opposition to the demand for restricting rights that arose in Germany Jews.

The latest research into the expulsion of the Moors from Spain, which Jews were bankers and even ministers, explain this expulsion not simply religious intolerance and political intrigues of Christian leaders and clergy, but by the economic oppression, by the suffering of the Spanish people, which accumulated in him during the brilliant reign of the conquerors in Spain- Moors. These "noble" Muslims, like the noble aristocracy in Poland spending huge amounts of money on their entertainment, on lofty amusements, on fantasies of various kinds, requiring great efforts from art and science, and patronizing the latter, they themselves did not even take the trouble to extract from the plebeian the means they needed for living and for humane entertainment, but they handed over this low work for the Jews and then they were approached with demands for money as if they were their own treasurers or bankers.

It is clear that with such exploitation of the population, a significant part of the extracted The people's property remained in Jewish hands. The Rothschilds' wealth also originated there. Rothschild's ancestor, a Spanish Jew, bequeathed to his descendants the indivisibility of what he had passed on to them. capital, and since then capital has grown mainly only by banking turnover. But thousands of such capitals remained to the descendants of their original owners and in most cases grew incomparably faster than the Rothschilds, although they remained and still remain less noticeable. Be that as it may, but, We believe it would not be a stretch to say that the impoverishment of a richly gifted people Spain was the original source of monetary power in Europe for the sons of Israeli. That's where the poverty comes from, which the population still can't shake off. Spain. This is, finally, the source of the spread of the Inquisition in Spain and its success there. Jesuits.

Religious intolerance, of course, often played a certain role in the former in the Middle Ages, persecutions of Jews; but, according to the proverb: sџ s siïs ii si, - the culprits of this religious intolerance towards the Jews alone were just as many Catholic clergy, how much religious intolerance and hostility to all peoples, the exceptional, closed character of the Jews themselves. And yet, religious the intolerance aroused by the Roman clergy would not have resulted in anything serious would have been resolved regarding the Jews, if the people had not felt a heavy burden from them economic oppression.

Chapter 2

Jews in Finland

Who can be more tolerant than our Finns and our Slavs? And what Until recently, as is well known, Finns hardly knew Jews and against they had nothing; when Jews in the guise of some Germans recently began to settle in the main trading points of Finland and set up their own trading posts, they were first were received as warmly as the Germans and the French; but, having become better acquainted with their trading techniques, came to the conclusion that allowing them to live in the country was very dangerous, then the Finnish Senate decided: to prevent future evils, to prohibit them settle in Gelfsingfors, i.e., condemned them to expulsion from the country in January 1881.

Were the Slavs or Russians not hospitable to Jews in their time? Let's remember. although briefly the history of their stay in the regions of the current Russian Empire. Jews made their way to the young peoples and tribes of today's southern Russia in time immemorial times. Long before the founding of the Russian state, they had already become stronger in the Khazar kingdom, located along the Don, which managed to convert the kogan to their faith (king) of the Khazars and nobles.

But even the religious propaganda of the Jews has some special quality, as can be seen from their propaganda among the Khazars. Taking it into their own hands the main administrators of the kingdom, i.e., converting them to the so-called “Mosaic faith” and having subjected them to their mysterious theocratic rule, as is known, they and then they calmed down in their religious zeal: the peoples and tribes that inhabited The Khazar kingdom, by all accounts, remained pagan. What were the Jews doing there?

- it is not known either from the correspondence of the Khazar kogan with the Jew, the Spanish minister, or from other data; but the result was that soon the powerful kingdom the Khazars somehow unnoticed, without major invasions, pogroms and revolutions, spread out and disappeared, as if the semi-nomadic and nomadic population had fled from some plague, and behind and the settled population evaporated. Svyatoslav, Grand Prince of Kyiv, father of Saint Vladimir, with his squad, has already passed through all this almost unhindered kingdom, defeated the Khazar army that met him, destroyed the White Tower and safely returned to Kyiv, and then began to take tribute from the Vyatichi, who had previously paid tribute
The Khazars were given a "piece of bread from the plough." Soon after, the Khazar kingdom disappeared from history.
Meanwhile, several decades before that, huge squads of Russians did not dare to go without permission from the Khazar kohans to sail into the mouth of the Don in order to get there by portage Caspian Sea to attack Persia and Khiva with Samarkand; they obediently do-
They were waiting there for permission to pass from the king of Khazaria.

Chapter 3

The fall of the Khazar Kingdom

Therefore, the hypothesis that by its fall
The Khazar kingdom owes mainly to the Jews, who took the king into their own hands by the majority of the Khazar nobles and with their help, who were too zealous in their work here by exploiting the population under their control.

During the fall of the Khazar kingdom, the Jews appear with their religious propaganda in our Kyiv, where they settled early and had a whole “Jewish street." "The Jewish Khazars," says the chronicler, "came, saying: We heard that Bulgarians and Christians came, and who taught you their faith?” etc. As they know, failed to convert Grand Duke Vladimir the Saint to the "Mosaic faith"; but the their settlement in Kyiv, the courage with which they turned to the Grand Duke, proposing him to accept their faith, as well as the influence that they subsequently had in ancient

Kyiv, can serve as the best proof that Russian Slavs are friendly accepted them without any prejudice against them, and if subsequently the people took up arms against the Jews and began to drive them out of Kievan Rus, then, of course, the reason it was not the hosts, but the guests who soon managed to become an unbearable burden for owners. Religion has nothing to do with it. Not only the people who still remained in a semi-pagan state state, but the enlightened princes were not well aware of the difference between religious and Jews. Yaroslav the Wise himself naively asks the Metropolitan what the matter is? And Metropolitan Hilarion writes "A Word on Law and Grace." The very question of the prince and some excitement among the Russian clergy, noticeable both in the aforementioned "Word" Metropolitan Hilarion, and in the evening walks of Saint Theodosius of the Caves to Jews in the competition about faith, indicate a significant success of religious in Kyiv Jewish propaganda. From the life of the holy martyr Eustratius we see that this monk Pechersk monastery, captured and enslaved by the Jews, was forced to accept the Mosaic faith and, finally, crucified by them on Good Friday on the cross in Chersonesos Taurica.

These are the only traces of religious antagonism. They point more to the existence of Jewish religious propaganda in the 11th century rather than religious hatred to them the Russian population.

Chapter 4

In Kyiv, Jewish pogroms of the 11th and 12th centuries

Meanwhile, during the 11th and 12th centuries there were several Jewish pogroms in Kyiv, not counting the fire of the Jewish quarter in 1124; and these pogroms took place as a result of economic oppression by the Jews, who kept to themselves, as if in a camp hostile to the population, from which they went out into the world only for trade and usury.

In general, the Jews apparently sought to preserve their identity here, as elsewhere. not only in a religious sense - in which no one interfered with them, and in a tribal sense - against which no one armed themselves with either, but also in their own special interests. Moreover, they sought to at the same time enjoy the rights of the dominant indigenous population. They, of course, recognized the authority of the Grand Duke and in every possible way curried favor with him. the prince directly and through his entourage. The most talented of the great princes like Yaroslav [and Vladimir Monomakh, relying on the interests of the indigenous population, distanced themselves from the Jews, keeping them in the position of colonists foreigners and, when necessary, limited their rights or field of activity in interests of the productive class of the population. Thus, Yaroslav the Great legitimized charging interest from debtors no more than 20%, whereas previously moneylenders took up to 120%, and in case of non-payment of the debt, the debtor went into bondage to the creditor; the usurers

There were mainly Jews here.

On the contrary, the great princes, who pursued mainly their own egoistic goals and petty political interests, were connected with Jews through financial affairs and were their patrons, i.e. they relied on interests contrary to the people. And what We see—at least regarding Svyatopolk-Mikhail? He died in 1113.
April, after Easter, near Vyshgorod. His body was brought to Kyiv. "And they cried
"He is," says our most ancient chronicler, "the boyars and his entire retinue sang over him the usual songs and put them in the church of St. Michael, which he created for the demons; the princess
He divided his wealth among the monasteries, priests, and the poor, so that everyone would be amazed.
"man." Despite, however, all these rich memorial gifts, on the other day "The Kievans," says the chronicler, "plundered the court of Putyatin the thousand, and went to The Jews also plundered... And the Kievans sent again to Vladimir, saying: go

Prince of Kyiv. If you don't go, you know that much evil will be done. Then you won't Putyatin's yard, no social ones, but also the Jews to rob, and again you will come to your widow Svyatopolk-Mikhail), and on the boyars..."
So embittered were the people against the Jews and those who patronized them.
The subsequent expulsion of Jews from Kyiv immediately elevated them in the eyes of the people Vladimir Monomakh, and he himself was put on the path of the people's interests, which
That is why they made him into an exemplary Grand Duke of Ancient Rus.

Chapter 5

The influx of Jews into White and Kievan Rus

Despite the expulsion, Jews soon appeared in Kyiv. During the aforementioned
The chronicler says that the entire Zhidovskaya Street was destroyed by the fire of 1124. The presence in
In the 12th and 13th centuries, there were undoubtedly Jews in Kievan Rus, Volyn, and Red Rus.

although Benjamin of Tudela and Rabbi Petachiah, who traveled with the purpose of describing Jewish communities scattered throughout the world, for some reason, do not talk about their united vertsakh in Kyiv.

By the way, it would be worth noting about these travelers - great zealots Jewry. Among the early rich and enlightened Jews of Spain, for the first time the idea matured to form a special kind of sons of Israel from those scattered throughout the world a state without territory, closely linking all kahals (communities) with one theocratic center. It was with this goal in mind that the aforementioned learned rabbis traveled around the world. By the 15th century, the idea of in such a state it was already fully realized, and the Jews of Europe, partly also Africa and Asia, it was invisible even to the masses of Jews, united into one whole, and all important public affairs were immediately reported to this center (consisting of the great Sanhedrin of the princes of Judea or from one great rabbi - this is still unknown), and were sent on the instructions of this center through the main rabbis and then kahals. Such a state system required all possible mystery and deliberately supported mysticism in every possible way among the Jewish masses population.

An impenetrable mystery still surrounds this system of theocratic Jewish state. After the Tatar pogrom, we see the presence of the Jewish population in various cities of Volyn, Red Rus, not to mention Poland. Probably, with the restoration of Kyiv, devastated by Batu, they appeared here again. At least after the annexation of Kievan Rus to the Grand Duchy of Lithuania They don't appear in Kyiv as recent arrivals. In Lithuanian Rus', they were barely small groups of them were still noticeable, appearing in trading cities. in fact, they come from Kyiv and Poland, where their influx from Europe took place at the end of the 11th century century, reaching Veliky Novgorod in the 14th century, where thanks to their influence the heresy of Judaizers was formed - the best proof that the Russian people was alien to religious hatred towards Jews.

The influx of Jews into White and then into Kievan Rus took place in the 19th century. century, when after the unification of the Grand Duchy of Lithuania with Poland, Polish the aristocracy began to take away lands from the Russians in Kievan Rus and appear here as if ruling princes, with the rights of life and death over their subjects, when the noble gentry, who had seized state power, needed enormous capital for feasts, entertainment and bribes to form a party for themselves at the Sejm, when, with on the other hand, the royal power was in dire need of rich and reliable creditors.

The kings of Poland and the Grand Dukes of Lithuania began to give to the Jews early on charters of various rights and liberties (siḱs j). Generally speaking, the right of the Jews to life, honor and freedom in the state remained constantly inviolable

The Lithuanian statute places Jews in a position in this regard gentry: he grants them the right to the gentry “imposition”, i.e. to such satisfaction that befits a nobleman. Jews even had the "right of the sword" (js) and Until the very fall of Poland they walked with swords.

Monopoly, as we know, kills all life. And the Jews in the former Polish There were monopolists in the kingdom. Moreover, the capital in their hands does not constitute the country's wealth. Capital in Jewish hands is flowing out of the country, where it is more profitable for them, and they sail around Europe, around the world, just as easily as a Jew turn into German tomorrow, the day after tomorrow into Italian, French or English. Their theocratic state embraces all countries and peoples, and the Jew considers himself equally at home everywhere. Therefore, the capital in their hands is also are alien to the country.

For two centuries, the Jews, thanks to the state structure of the Rzecz
The Commonwealth and the freedom they enjoyed were devoured by the countries that were part of it.
the Polish kingdom, just as they ate up the Khazar kingdom and the Spanish people, so they will ate up they Germany and Austria, if the governments of these countries do not take serious measures to reflections of their exploitation, if they are not recognized as foreigners, people of a different kind, if not a hostile state.

Chapter 6

Results of Jewish activity in Poland

The result of the activities of the Jews in the Polish kingdom was not only the impoverishment of the peoples of Poland, but also the impoverishment of the eminent lords themselves, who in the end
In the end, they sold their services and their Fatherland almost at public auction.

The incurable state of Lithuanian, i.e. White Rus', is known to all. Here again in
In the 17th and 18th centuries, the Jewish population fled from other regions where they had to live.
dangerous, and began to eat away at the remnants of the country's prosperity. Former Kiev, i.e.
Dnieper Rus retained some strength only because the Jews, although were temporarily removed from it.

The population of the Dnieper region was no less oppressed by the lords and Jews, but as soon as it found support in the people's organized army, in the Zaporozhian Cossacks, immediately Bloody uprisings began. Let's recall the Kosinsky uprising in 1593, Nalivaiki and Khmelnitsky himself. The people explain the reason for this most of all as unbearable economic oppression of the Jews with the help of the gentry and then the Jesuit priests.

No matter how devastating these terrible uprisings and endless wars were, nevertheless, they gave the population the opportunity to take a break from the even more eroding life of exploitation of Jews.

Having fought off Poland and dealt it a decisive blow, Little Russia joined the Moscow kingdom; but from the political point of view, its best part, the Dnieper region, was returned to Poland, and the Potocki, Branicki and other gentlemen with crowds of Jews and The Jesuits invaded the country again. Their unbearable oppression again sparked an uprising in
In 1768, the so-called Haidamaks led by Zaliznyak and Gonta exterminated all Jews, priests and priests throughout the region of Counts Potocki and Branicki military Poles. In Uman alone, populated mainly by Jews, there was a massacre.
then after its capture on June 10, according to the Poles, up to 12,000 people, according to many evidence, much less.

But that's not all. If the aristocracy and so-called freedom have shaken the Polish state commissioned Jews to obtain funds for it from the crown population financial resources and patronized them in every possible way, then the lords - the gentry, with their sides, surpassed the government itself in relation to the Jews. Eternally in need of money and too busy with intrigues at the Sejms and various pomps, the eminent gentry constantly kept Jews around her like bags of gold, into which she would at any time

At times she could let her hand go. In exchange, she handed over to the Jews the things she had captured from the Russians.
people of the land in the so-called lease, i.e. simply for uncontrolled farming, with the right judge peasants and even punish them with death.

Thus, with the help of the royal government and the gentry, the Jews, enjoying not only equality with the main population of the state, but also privileges, took over all trade and all capital in the country and killed not only the trade of the native townspeople, but even the industries in cities and towns. Despite the Magdeburg Law with its guilds, the natives
The townspeople could not compete with the Jews, who imposed exorbitant taxes on their trades duties and levies.

Chapter 7

Enslavement of Christians by Jews

Jews seek to enslave the peoples who have shown them hospitality whether consciously or accidentally, the Jewish question has arisen since then. But, despite excess of time, he hasn't moved forward a single step. One could even say, humanity is now further from solving the enchanted question than a hundred or a thousand years ago.

And what a strange phenomenon is also noticed: the Jewish question is becoming burning, as if urgent, then suddenly it dies down, as if there had never been any talk about it.
Even in countries like France, where the Jewish question seemed to have been formally resolved irrevocably, - and there it flares up again with new strength, with new tension.
Of course, this issue may be resolved in France in the near future. Jews They've taken too much power there, both in parliament and in the administration. They're the bosses.
in the financial and commercial arena. They control a huge part of the press.
Under such conditions, an objective discussion of the disasters caused by the Jews is almost unthinkable.

But Judaism carries within itself the seeds of its instability. Jews, as the seizure of power and the prevailing economic situation become intolerable arrogant and haughty. They are merciless in their despotism, merciless to their victims, too intolerant of foreign religions, foreign customs, foreign public and government institutions. No one is capable of driving people to the point of frenzy, like the Jews. And that is their Achilles' heel. They themselves, with their own hands, will destroy the privileges they enjoy Jews in France and some other Western European countries. Not for the first time and This is not the last time they reach the apogee of their power and lose it as a result of their insatiability and abuse of it.

But let's leave France aside. It succumbed to the abstract teachings of the 18th century, produced, according to Renan, an “unsuccessful experiment” in their application in practice, and in fact Dreyfus could already be convinced of a fatal, hardly reparable mistake. The Dreyfus affair, the expulsion of Deroulede and the ban on the production of the play "Oesadapsé" in Paris is the first indications of the strength of the passions tearing the country apart on the basis of the Jewish question.

But why can’t the Jewish question be firmly resolved in Russia?
solutions?

The Slavs were by nature too good-natured; they were always extremely tolerant and overly trusting. Because of these qualities, we are able to be on guard our interests, when danger is already on the nose, when it is impossible not to see it. Until then now anyone can gain our trust, can live and enslave us, can gradually undermine our religion, destroy our customs, and we will console ourselves with the thought that we have the power on our side, and if necessary, we will crush them in one fell swoop any enemy.

And what’s wonderful is that while we are weak and do not yet believe in our own strength,
we are cautious;
but the more clearly we realize our strength, the more trusting we are, the more we want to appear magnanimous and the easier it is to deceive us. Look, in fact, how Russia
What was our attitude towards Judaism during the time of the appanage princes of the Moscow state? were disunited; we were aware of our weakness and inability to fight against the persistent, an annoying and heartless tribe; and we didn't even try to fight. We They instinctively feared and directly did not allow Jews... Ivan the Terrible went even further.

When Novgorod was captured, he expelled them, and when Polotsk was captured, he ordered everyone to be baptized.
Jews.

Even such a meek tsar as Alexei Mikhailovich repeatedly expelled the Jews from Moscow, and during the expulsions from Mogilev he ordered the confiscation of all “Jewish courtyards."

We followed the same direction in terms of not allowing Jews in
In the 18th century, Peter the Great, the most progressive ruler, did not dare let the Jews in, knowing that you won't be able to survive them. And once they get stronger, then the enslavement of the people is inevitable.

“I want to see in my country,” said Peter the Great, “better peoples than the Mohammedan and pagan faith than the Jews: they are rogues and deceivers. I eradicate evil, not I will spread it. There will be no housing or trade for them in Russia, no matter how much they say about this.
They try and do not bribe their close ones to me."

In all subsequent reigns, right up to Catherine I, the same thing is observed a cautious attitude towards Jews. Not only are they not allowed in, but if they go somewhere penetrate contrary to the law, immediately issue laws for their eviction.

But the number of supporters of Judaism among St. Petersburg officials is gradually increased. Was this a consequence of the then bureaucracy's isolation from life of the people and unfamiliarity with the activities of the Jews, or other reasons; was there even this is a consequence of completely disinterested considerations, it’s hard to say. Judging by Peter the Great's words about bribing his "close ones" can be completely doubted the selflessness of pro-Jewish officials. Be that as it may, however, the fact is not It is doubtful that while the local governors-general were looking at any invasion of the Jews, the Senate held other views, and a few days later Upon the accession of Catherine II, he presented her with a “unanimous” resolution on allowing Jews arrival in Russia... The Empress ordered to postpone this issue, and over time, Despite the strong influence of the philosophical teachings of the 18th century, Catherine II allowed Jews are allowed to settle only in the deserted steppes of Novorossiya and Taurida. In the annexed

In the same provinces after the partition of Poland, Catherine II allowed Jews to remain, but in the internal provinces were still not allowed in. “Allowing them into Russia could bring “great harm,” the wise empress said, having become acquainted with the activities Jews in Belarus.

A completely different direction is noticeable in the 20th century. Our state the body has become stronger; we have begun to realize our strength and now we have become more carefree about Jewish invasion.

Countless complaints from the annexed provinces of the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth, which reached not only the Senate, but also the Tsar, forced Alexander I in 1802 to form a special committee to draft a project “on the settlement of Jews.” Among them G. R. Derzhavin was also a member of the committee and presented a detailed report on curbing the “selfish pursuits of the Jews,” adding to it a whole reform project.

This project was supposed to: destroy the kahals in all the provinces inhabited by Jews, the abolition of all kahal fees and the restriction of the influx of Jews to a certain percentage of the Christian population, etc.

From this project it is clear that Derzhavin understood the strength of Jewry.
as a political caste and on what grounds it should be fought. But, of course, The Jews themselves understood the meaning of the project. And therefore, the kahals and “leaders” immediately cities" began to gather everywhere in emergency meetings and decided send a delegation to St. Petersburg to prevent any innovations, and “on gifts" to allocate a million rubles. The same delegation was instructed to "attach efforts to replace Derzhavin. If this fails, then it was not forbidden to “encroach on his life."

1 “State within a State” by A. N. Pyatkovsky, p. 118.

How successfully did the delegation from the Jewish kahals, equipped with enormous financial resources, one can conclude from the consequences of the Project
Not only was Derzhavin not accepted, but, on the contrary, the new regulation on Jews of 1804 further develops the isolation of Jewish communities on Russian soil. Kahals are strengthened and gain independence in financial and judicial matters, police and educational.

In 1827 the legislation goes further and provides the Jews themselves societies select and supply recruits. One can imagine what power the kahal-rabbinical administrations acquired, what oppression and what abuses they could produce!.. The Kahal bosses could even hand over to recruits for credit subsequent recruitment of each member of his Jewish community who evades from fulfilling the requirements of the kahal or deviates from the Talmudic ritual of the true faith!.. And we are handing over such power into the hands of representatives of the hostile to us of the political caste!..

But our generosity, or rather shortsightedness, goes further. In 1835 a new regulation is issued that strengthens the power of the kahals and recognizes them
"departments." Kahals are intermediaries between the government and the Jewish "estate". The kahals are responsible for the implementation of all regulations authorities, collecting and spending the sums collected from the Jews... The rabbis are entrusted with the duty to monitor the purity of the rites of worship (although, it would seem, what business to the state, how purely the Jews perform the rites of worship), to instruct Jews in the true sense of their law, etc., etc.

The establishment of a “box tax” in favor of Jewish communities completed the process.
the isolation of an independent political organization. And since it is boxed
By the way, the slaughter of cattle was also subject to tax, and in some places, all slaughter was in the hands of the Jews, then obviously the Christians were also indirectly subject to a tax in favor of Jews... Apparently, the Jews, who know how to corrupt weak-willed people, took advantage of fully with our art. Thus, with our own hands, we laid the foundation autonomous "state within a state".

Of course, this situation could not continue for long. Again the Jews, those who enjoyed enormous power began to abuse it too much. They began to fall again complaints; throughout the provinces of Jewish settlement there was a groan. And after a few years, namely in 1844, the kahals were destroyed everywhere except in Courland and Riga, and Jews are subordinated to city and district governments on a general basis.
the collection was transferred to city councils and town halls. But for some fatal reason
The Jews were left with a clue to their separateness due to misunderstanding: the duties of the kahals

The responsibility for collecting the box tax was assigned to "Jewish" tax collectors.

The Jews were left with ample scope for abuse.

We can't seem to finish the job. However, it's unlikely that the compilers "positions" sincerely and wanted to put an end to the isolation of the Jewish caste. Already In 1845, the special tax “from Sabbath candles” for the maintenance of Jewish schools, and a “rabbinical commission” was established under the Ministry of Internal Affairs for resolution of all issues related to the rules of the Jewish faith. In 1852 Jews were granted the right to have their own special guilds. Taxes were collected from Jews. separately from Christians; moreover, Jews were allowed to hold their own meetings, the center of which were synagogues. The arbitration court between Jews continued operate on Talmudic grounds. The registers of births remained in the hands of the rabbis.

Thus, although the kahals were formally destroyed, in practice they retained their power. The state within the state continued to exist. And let us note, such self-government in the absence of actual control on the part of the government is given to the Jewish "class", or rather, a separate political caste, at a time when tens of millions of Russian population were still in complete slavery!.. Can one be surprised after this that the Jews, led by their rabbis under actual discipline, they enslaved all the local population and took over the most profitable branches of trade.

With the onset of the period of transformation, the isolated Jewry became even more is getting stronger. The Jews, without abandoning their previous methods of influencing St. Petersburg officials use an even more powerful means - mixing and even by identifying the concepts of Judaism and liberalism."

1 This issue is very consistently considered in the brochure by Mr. Orlovsky under with the same title: "Jewry and Liberalism."

The general upsurge of Russian society, which welcomed the liberation of the peasants, the revival of self-government and the granting of a public court were exploited by the Jews in their own way benefit in the best possible way. During the time of freedom of the individual, supporters appeared allowing Jews to live everywhere. The same thing, that the abyss of ignorant peasants will fall into bondage by those skilled in usury and secret trade Jews, that the freedom of the people is above the freedom of the individual - this is what the supporters say Jews didn't even think about it.

In the name of equality before the law, we demanded the expansion of Jewish rights and in in relation to their entry into public service, and in relation to the acquisition lands, and in relation to obtaining nobility, and in relation to any kind of occupation trades, etc. The same thing, that Judaism is based not only on religious grounds Mosaic law, but is governed by a special Talmudic legislation, alien and even hostile to the legislation of all Christian states, the same as the Jews recognize only their own rights, and the duties imposed by the state, even in In principle, they do not allow this - we did not want to see this.

In the name of brotherhood, we took on the role of defenders of the "persecuted tribe." And that the simple fact that the Talmud itself does not recognize the brotherhood between a Jew and Christian, that the Talmud permits both deception and betrayal of Christians, that it considers all those who do not profess the Jewish religion to be infidel goyim - we do not accept this either didn't notice.

During the sixties and part of the seventies we began to equalize rights Jews: in the production of trade, crafts, in the acquisition of real estate, and the main thing is to take up positions in the civil service.

Jews who had been in the first guild for ten years received the right to be registered in our merchants in all cities together with members of their families and acquire real estate. Jews registered as merchants were provided with the opportunity to keep clerks - Jews, too. And we know what it costs these rights turned into. The temporary residence of Jews was not slow to turn into permanent. In Moscow, entire neighborhoods passed into Jewish hands and were populated Jews, allegedly clerks. More than 50% of the merchants were Jews, and among the merchants of the first guild there are 72% of them!.. Academic degrees opened the way to to universal residence and to public service.

Finally, in 1865, the Pale of Jewish Settlement was effectively abolished. granting the right to "Jewish mechanics, distillers, brewers and craftsmen in general and artisans to live throughout the empire." All the most resourceful Jews immediately signed up as masters and artisans and filled the most commercial and industrial cities. The Jews were rarely involved in craftsmanship, but took over all speculative and stock exchange affairs, commission business, sale of wine and vodka, distribution smuggled and stolen goods, etc., etc., and the main craft was usury on the largest scale.

The Jews didn't stop there. They persistently sought to penetrate the nobility, which stands at the head of local government bodies. To the rescue the Jews received the "explanations" of the Senate, which interpreted the laws on the introduction of Jews in the noble genealogical books, that only Jews who accepted Christianity did not enjoy this right. The Jews who remained faithful to the Talmud, i.e., alien to our statehood, turned out to be worthy of inclusion in the books of nobility!.. Such Thus, if we take the point of view of the heraldry department, it turns out that the government was concerned about granting the Jews a privilege for preserving their initial isolation...

It would seem that the Jewish question has been resolved finally and forever in our country. meanwhile, it only became more acute, but did not move forward at all. Again
The Achilles' heel of Jewry was revealed. Again, groans arose, complaints poured in.
Even hostility appeared between Jews and Christians in a more crude form, in the form of violence against each other... The Jews were so arrogant that they did not even turn attention to the historical turn that began in the eighties and evoked national consciousness in place of the increasingly corrupting cosmopolitanism, - self-awareness, which made us distinguish forms from ideas, phrase-mongering from demands-common sense.

Under the influence of these demands and in the protection of not the “persecuted”, but actually Since the eighties, measures have been taken against obvious enslaved populations abuses of skill and against the boundless greed of Jewish usurers-workers. But... all these measures are paralyzed by the united opposition of the Jewry and many of its supporters, who see the highest cult in full government intervention, because the world should be governed only by economic laws.

By virtue of these laws, capital is the main engine of civilization.
in every country the owners of gold should be the masters, and the tribe that is distinguished by a greater ability to make money by any means, has the right to rule over all nations. Jews are the least squeamish people in their choice means of enrichment must become kings of the world.

Having seized control of a large number of periodical press organs and acting in one
In this direction, under the strict discipline of world propaganda, the Jews achieved identification of their desires with the cultural movement of all mankind, - identification of Judaism with liberalism.

Under such conditions, when views on the Jewish question are no longer formed not only under the influence of material temptation, but also under the influence of persistent Jewish propaganda, it is impossible to count on the precise application of laws on Jews. What difficulty must there be in developing and implementing any a new regulation that could at least partially protect the population from further Jewish enslavement! Every compiler faces a most difficult task to understand the web of those abstract principles that are imposed by the “world "Israeli Union", but which are least applicable to Talmudic Jews.

When solving any issue, it is necessary first of all to establish firm basic principles. But when we come across the Jewish question, there is no there can be no talk of firm principles. In the Jewish question we have to either to act with one's eyes closed, or to hover in the realm of contradictions.

Would you like to give yourself an account: is it possible to give Jews access to the internal Russia?

To answer this question, it is necessary to first establish the fact: Are Jews destroying the material well-being of the Christian population? If Jews even if they are harmless, there is no reason to restrict their freedom to settle where they are they wish. If they act destructively and corruptively, then there is no reason to invent pretexts for resettling them throughout Russia, but on the contrary, one should seek means to facilitate their eviction even from those places where they are already destitute people. Individual freedom is a great thing, but the freedom of the people is above everything else. And therefore, to create freedom for a handful of alien people at the cost of enslaving millions the indigenous population, perhaps even “culturally” in the Jewish sense of the word, but inhumane from the point of view of broader humanity.

Chapter 8

A rabbi preaches in a Lithuanian shtetl

One of the travelers, a Jew, writes in the magazine in the article “Trip to Lithuania” "Voskhod": "Let others be proud of the immeasurable amount of their strength in the form of million-strong armies and millions of bayonets and guns. We still have our own great spiritual invincible army! "Some with their chariots, some with their horses, but we in the name of God," as it is said in Scripture.

And looking at this army so well armed with spirit, I exclaimed together with the great poet-king: “Even if camps surround me, my heart will not tremble! If they rise up against me in war, I will not be afraid."

“The only pity,” says the traveler, “is that the rabbi didn’t say a word about it.” the immediate ailments of their local listeners, although there could be many reasons for this once.

The sermon ended with repentance, which had a stunning effect on me. action. The rabbi, and after him everyone present, began to beat themselves with loud sobs in the chest, reciting a prayer of repentance. Rav Ashi, as the Talmud relates, read The Bible and came to the following verse (Jer. III, 27-30): “It is good for a man to bear the yoke of youth. Let him sit alone and dumb, for such is his lot; let him fill Let the mouth be ashes, perhaps there is hope; let him turn the cheek to him that smites him, let him "be sated with shame" etc.

Here he burst into tears and exclaimed: "So much - and there may be more!" This exclamation I was ready to break down at the sight of these repentants. For what, for what!

Oh, you poor, hungry, humiliated, spat upon. You are not guilty before anyone, but rather, everyone is guilty before you. You are accused so viciously and incessantly that you do you really consider yourself terrible sinners? And even if you really were such, then you have nothing to fear from hell. For the Talmud says that there are three kinds people were freed from the torments of hell: those who suffered from hunger, painful illness and evil wives. And you suffered from all three. For if you did not always have evil wives, you always There was something even more terrible - an evil stepmother who turned your life into a terrifying hell.
Oh, no, you have nothing to repent of, you stepchildren of the universe. Not because you were saints. Oh, no, far from it. But in any case, you are not to blame for many of your sins. Let those who have tormented you for thousands of years and torn your soul into pieces repent.
body, your souls, trampled into the dirt your good, glorious name, mocked everything that It was dear and sacred to you. It was they who disfigured you. And not they, these hypocrites, those who spoke of meekness and filled the world with atrocities - not to them in any case reproach you. You can always give them one answer: "If we were to demand even a hundredth part of the virtues that you demand from us, not one of you would have been "worthy of being a Jew."

After the sermon, the established funeral prayer and "maruv" were performed. And only after the end of the last one the parishioners began to slowly disperse, as if reluctantly. Some even stayed after everyone left and will probably continue to pump over the books.

The whole hamedrash (prayer house) is for them a temple of religion, a temple science, a temple of art, even something like the "corridors" of parliament and themselves parliament, where if not finally decided, then at least discussed all world issues. For these people, despite all the depressing worries, are great politicians and in general have endless curiosity. They are interested not only in not only "an egg laid on holidays", but also all sorts of eggs eaten in the area politics, wars, etc.

From the rabbi's sermon to his chosen sinless children it is evident, that this kind of edification is a clear encouragement to all lawlessness against Christians, and the rabbi blamed all their sins on the goyim. Then, after such a consoling The Jews are happy to try to deceive and cheat the goyim even more. To this Let us cite at least one fact:

In Warsaw, in the stables of Moshek Goldstein (Kostelna 68, Praga) 6 horses and 2 village carts were found, but Goldstein himself escaped. It later turned out that two horses were stolen from the village of Chentskov from the mayor Schroeder, and three horses were stolen in the Falenty commune from Jan Nockiewicz and Piotr Slabovich. The identity of the person from whom the sixth horse was stolen has not been found.

It is becoming increasingly difficult for the Russian population to live within the Jewish borders settled. Jews are gradually displacing Christians from their lands. There are already cities people with means are resettled in the central provinces. When asked what they encourages this, they give a categorical answer that may seem vulgar, but in which there is a deep truth: “Yes, simply because life "It's getting lousy." And this is really true, and life really is "getting lousy." It's simpler In other words, this life is falling apart, as the Jews bring demoralization into all areas of it. then, feeling their strength, they begin the usual onslaught, the impudence of which does not know limits. Thanks to this, not only the average person, but also the agents It becomes twice as difficult for the state authorities to live there than in the Russian provinces. The Jewish population, acting in solidarity and unity, completely escapes any kind of administrative regulation, demoralizing by his example the indigenous population, paralyzing the energy of state agents. The Russians officials often give up in the fight against Jews, the police are exhausted - and in the end, sometimes, no matter how hard you try, you can't do anything, especially before Jewish masses. To what extent does this undermine the prestige of the foundations of Russian life?

there is no need. "It's just like running," they complain in the courts, overwhelmed with cases about various crimes committed by Jews and in various government institutions. And there is no doubt that if this state of affairs continues if it continues, then the time is not far off when officials will have to be called to duty in the Jewish Pale of Settlement by advertisements, as they now call for zemstvo doctors, or assign them double salary.

"The Jews have become insolent, there is no way to deal with the Jews," complaints are heard from all sides.

And how well-founded these complaints are can be shown by hundreds of correspondence, appearing more and more frequently in recent years. Recall a number of such facts just in recent times: resistance to the authorities and beating of Russian soldiers by Jews in Minsk, the murder of a soldier by Jews in Vilnius, the beating of soldiers by Jews in Zhitomir, continuous clashes with the police in different cities, beating of an excise officer official in Slonim, while drawing up a protocol, and the Jews bombarded him eyes with snuff, attack in Orhei on excise official Bugaesco, who was mutilated and lost an eye, and there was a whole series of similar violence from Jews.

In general, all these facts, which are becoming more frequent day by day, have long pointed to the need to take some measures to discipline the Jews, not only in the interests of the indigenous Christian population in the Pale of Settlement, but also for the protection the rights and dignity of officials who are subjected to bullying and mockery sides of the Jews.

And one of the radical measures that would allow the Jews to be disciplined, to contain this criminal world at least somewhat within the boundaries of legality, and at the same time time is of the utmost importance to protect the interests of the Russian population, there would be strengthening the police force in the Jewish Pale of Settlement was funded by the Jews themselves.

They are the main violators of the law, they supply the main contingent of criminals - let them pay for the increased costs an increase in the police force, which the state is forced to bear due to their fault.

SECTION 4.

TREATISE ON PROSELITISM

Chapter 1

The oldest method of Jewish propaganda

The high opinion of the Jews about themselves and their religion must naturally was to bring them to religious propaganda. Palestinian Jews, locked in the very themselves, full of disgust for everything foreign, treated them with indifference other cults; but the Jews, placed face to face with the Greco-Roman world, did not could resist the urge to convince him of the superiority of Judaism. They were prompted to this is the very contempt with which the Greeks and Romans treated the Jewish faith and nationality. But writings aimed directly in favor of the Jews could not have success, and the prejudice against the Jews was so strong that in defense of them, emanating from themselves, they did not pay attention. Therefore, the Jews turned to a means that was very common at that time: they began to spread apologetic works, passing them off as the works of ancient writers, and, hiding behind the authority of the latter, they fought with their opponents on their own their soil. The 5th century BC was especially rich in such products; the place of origin The apology was Alexandria, the capital of the intelligentsia of the Jewish emigration, - the main its point of contact with Hellenism. In one of these works, attributed to To Orpheus, Moses is presented as the only mortal who has seen God, and who brought to earth his law, written on two tablets; in the other - Phocylides, a semi-mythical poet of Ancient Greece, preaches a morality borrowed from partly from Aristotle and partly from the Pentateuch of Moses. Later, in the [century A.D., alleged letters of Heraclitus appear in Ephesus, in which an unknown Jew under mask of the ancient Ephesian philosopher, ridicules paganism and exposes everything the benefits of Jewish law. The Alexandrian Jew Artapach attributes Moses invented writing and spread it among all nations.

The so-called prophecies enjoyed special respect among the Greeks and Romans. Sibyls; to these predictions the Jews add a whole series of new prophecies, so skillfully mixing one with the other, that the deception was not unraveled by either the pagans writers, nor priests. In Virgil, for example, we find references to such the predictions of the Sibyl, which undoubtedly belong to the number of tendentious Jewish additions. In these additions, Uranus is identified with Noah; Saturn, Titan and Iapetus - with Shem, Ham and Japheth; the overthrow of the Titans is attributed to God Abraham. In a word, Jewish monotheism sought and found for itself artificial points of support in mythological tales, reworking and interpreting them in accordance with the given theme. The influence of these Jewish forgeries was of two kinds: on the one hand, they evoked a whole series of ideas, characteristic of Judaism - for example, the apocalyptic teaching about the nearness of death peace, about the golden age (a pagan form of Jewish messianism); on the other hand, they aroused interest in Judaism, the desire to get to know it better and served thus one of the indirect weapons of Jewish propaganda.

In 139 BC the Chaldeans and Jews were expelled from Rome because they had begun convert pagans to Judaism and allowed the Romans to celebrate the Sabbath proselytes. The Jewish kingdom still existed then, in almost all countries In the then civilized world there were already Jewish communities and they tried to attract the natives to their religion.

During the reign of Emperor Tiberius, the Jews were subjected to equally severe persecution. He forbade them to perform their religious services and ordered their clothes to be burned.
ritual and utensils.

He transferred young Jews to the provinces under the pretext of military service.
unhealthy climate; the rest he expelled from Rome and threatened them with eternal slavery, if they show disobedience.

The same story as now, hatred of Jews has nourished all nations for a long time before Christianity. Therefore, the nation itself is to blame, not Christians.

Flavius explains the reason for the expulsion of the Jews from Rome by Emperor Tiberius for that three Jews converted one patrician woman, Fulvia, to Judaism. A crime was that the Jews had committed sacrilege by persuading Fulvia to sacrifice most of the property for the Temple of Jerusalem, did not transfer the money intended purpose, but they used them thievishly. Fulvia's husband, Saturnino, was a personal a friend of Tiberius and convinced Caesar to expel the Jews from Rome. There were many other reasons, except for this one, which prompted the emperor to exile.

Chapter 2

On the influence of Jewish teachings

As for the period of the emperors and the influence of the Jewish scholars of that time on Roman society, then the rabbis who wrote the history of their people during the reign Trajan, conveying in a distorted form the events of this reign, tried to

to highlight the influence that Trajan and his daughter Imra allegedly had on him some Jewish teachers of the law. According to them, Terence Rufus, who was in charge over the troops in Syria during the Jewish revolt at Bar Kokhba, often visited together with his wife Rabbi Akiba and benefited from his religious lessons. Stories Jewish chronicles about Antoninus the Meek and his relationship with Rabbi Judah, whom The Jews call him holy, even more surprising. Of all the emperors, they praise only him alone, and when history is surprised by the mercy of Hadrian's successor Titus and the justice of Numa, the Jews praise him for the persecution of Christians and the adoption circumcision".

According to these chronicles, Antoninus was initiated into the secrets of Jewish law. Rabbi Judah; every night he visited this saint and studied with him Jewish law and Kabbalah. In this way, the rabbis managed to transform the "the ruler of the world into a skilled Jewish lawyer."

1 Sap2 Tzetai Base, r. 107.

2 i Sh. l, . 5, 7 is ғi, hi , (, book 1, page 18).

The Talmud says the following about proselytes: “Anyone of the non-believers who has converted to Jews after finishing the harvest in their field are not subject to the laws of leket, shikha, and pe'ah (offerings for the poor). Rabbi Judah says: "The law of shikha on him is spreading, since the provision of this duty to the poor takes place only in "time to gather sheaves into stacks."

“Bread on the root sold to a Jew by a goy is subject to the law

0 peah, and sold by a Jew to a Gentile is not subject to it. If a Jew and a goy, being partners, divide the grain between themselves, then the Jew's plot is subject to the law o peah, and the plot of the goy is not subject to it."

“Rabbi Simon says: ‘Bread that belongs to both a Jew and a goy is not subject to the law on pea. From the property of a deceased proselyte, which was appropriated For a Jew, unharvested grain is subject to all duties, but harvested grain is subject to no duties.
"is not subject to" (Tractate "Pea").

The Arabs brought the Jews liberation from centuries of slavery. The caliphs showered the Jews with honors and power, patronized their worship and encouraged them the desire for science, as a result of which the Jews competed with the Moors in acquiring wealth, knowledge, especially philosophy, medicine and astronomy. Having assimilated the spirit Arabians, Jews not only did not renounce their faith, but also tried to propagate and convert others to Judaism.

As a minister, Shaprut learned from the Slavic embassy that arrived in Cordova, about the existence of the Jewish kingdom of the Khazars in the east of Europe, sent to a letter to the Jewish king! (in Hebrew) and received the following answer:
“The Khazar king Joseph reports that the Khagan (prince) Bulan arranged (732) a dispute between a Christian, a Mohammedan and a Jew, and a learned Jew, Isaac Sanjari convinced him so much of the truth of the Jewish religion that the Khagan, together with converted to Judaism by his subjects that same year. About one of his successors Bulana, Khagane Obadiah, is said to have founded synagogues and schools and commanded teach the people the Holy Scriptures." Joseph" claimed "that the neighboring kings pay him tribute that in his state there are many cities, villages and mountains and that he is the twelfth Jewish ruler in it." When Hasdai asked what the Khazars knew about the Messiah, Joseph writes: “Our gaze is turned to Jerusalem and the Babylonian academies,” and about his ancestor of Obadiah, that “he called the learned Jews who taught the Holy Scripture, Mishnah and Talmud." This proves that the Khazars were rabbinists, not Karaites. This state, under Khagan David, was destroyed by the Russian prince St.

Toslav of Kyiv (969) during the life of Shaprut and many Khazar Jews resettled to Kyiv and other Russian cities, which later became part of Kingdom of Poland.

1 Shaprut's letter and the response received were translated into modern languages. (See News about the Khazars and other peoples by Professor Khvolson, 1869, p. 56).

2 The last king of the Khazars.

Samuel served as a state adviser and secretary under King Khabus.
Ganagid (1027-1055). Samuel was at the same time a rabbi and the head of all the Jews.
states. He wrote an introduction to the Talmud, as well as several poetic works imitating the psalms (Ben-Tehillim), parables (Ben-Michele) and Kohelet (Ben-Koheleth). Judah Halevi (Abdul Hassan 1085-1143) of Toledo (the Castilian capital).
The number of his poetic and synagogue works exceeds 300. He became famous another religious and philosophical work, "Kuzari (Khazar), or the Disputation of Isaac Sanjari on the superiority of Judaism." Being very rich, Judah in his old age
At the age of 18, he undertook a pilgrimage to Palestine. It is said that upon entering Jerusalem was trampled by an Arab's horse at the time when Judah was singing his song about Zion (Eli Zion ve'a-rega). Rabbi Yehuda Shalevy in his literary work proves that in the 17th or 8th century the Khazar king with his entire royal house, his nobles and a significant part of the Khazar people who dominated the lower The Volga, the Caucasus, Crimea and Kievan Rus were converted to Judaism.
according to the testimony of Khazar, Arab and Jewish sources, this The conversion of the Khazars was preceded by a scholarly debate between experienced theologians from Jews, Christians and Muslims.

The philosophy of Epicurus never ceased to rebel against Neoplatonism even under on his last breath for allowing religious into his system concepts of the Jews. Alexander Serer is among the brilliant titles that adorned emperors, was proud of the name of arch-synagogue. Decius, having declared a bloody persecution of Christians, ordered the proconsuls and priests not to disturb the Jews in the synagogues; and According to Dionysius of Alexandria, Valerius' persecution of Christians was caused by by the suggestion of one Egyptian arch-synagogue, who, as is evident from his words, was "Jewish proselyte".

The Justinian Code contains, among other things, the following prescription:
Emperor Theodosius to the prefect: "A new and almost unknown sect has arisen in Africa;
wicked people want to convert Christians to Jewish superstitions; these apostates must renounce their heresies if they want to avoid the punishments prescribed by law punishments. Meanwhile, their prayer houses must be destroyed or converted into property of Christian churches?

1 SagauBopae $sgiri, tag. apa t Alehpag. $eu.

2 So hй0s. de 1415 i [iïї, [es. 1.

Chapter 3

Nestorian heresy

The Nestorian heresy was recognized by the councils as a branch of the Jewish religion. Bishop Proclus, denouncing Nestorius, presents him as a follower of the synagogue. “Jew! - he exclaims, turning to Nestorius. - Tell me, who could redeem us if not the son consubstantial with the Father in divinity?” The Church declared that the teaching of Nestorius is a revival of Jewish superstitions, confirming the errors of the synagogue. From the Acts
The Council of Chalcedon shows that when the historian Theodoret, accused of the errors of Nestorius, appeared in the assembly, then the bishops unanimously exclaimed:

“There is a Jew who has come to us, remove the student of the synagogue!”

1 Vagioioesi, BS ғђђђђђђђђi., i I, ss 260, which talks about one non-story Anze who accepted the Jewish faith.

The past centuries were distinguished by an extraordinary abundance of prophets among the Jews, martyrs and spiritists. David Reubeni deserves special attention, he is in the ardor enthusiastically went to Italy, where he arrived to obtain firearms weapons to free Palestine from Muslim rule. This brave man boldly appeared on a white horse in the Vatican, where he was given a gracious reception by the Pope Clement. Then David Reubeni entered Portugal, preceded by the silk a banner on which the Ten Commandments were embroidered, despite the brilliant the meeting with banners and processions given to him by the king - a young Jewish the prophetess who had conceived a plan to bring back her suffering brothers and sisters
The Holy Land was immediately burned by the Inquisition. David Reubeni barely escaped.
running away from the fire.

Diego Perez, under the name of Solomon Molcho, converted from Christianity to Judaism, he was so excited by enthusiasm that in the heat of religious zeal he even tried convert the pope himself to the Jewish faith. Soon after, such a misfortune befell him the death of a martyr he desired during his stay in Mantua, where he was abandoned by order of the emperor himself, into a blazing fire.

But in general, one cannot help but admit that religious propaganda is not very akin to close to the spirit of the Jewish people; it has always manifested itself in indirect ways, avoiding direct roads of direct missionary work. The reason is that the Jews have long there is an inherent idea that anyone who converts to Judaism has some kind of ulterior motives. Thus, during the reign of the Maccabees, when the latter reached the highest power, strength and might, many people from various countries flocked to the royal chambers seekers of happiness, the so-called royal advisers and servants, who for
In order to prove their loyalty to the sovereign, they accepted Judaism; Jewish
The scientists did not want to recognize them as true proselytes and mockingly called them "proselytes to the royal table." They looked in the same way at the non-believers who accepted Jewish faith for the sake of a woman (migum yishus) or for some other purposes.
“New converts are as painful to Jews as boils,” says the Talmud, for whoever guarantee that they are sincere believers? This reflects the Jews' fear that Talmudic morality of dubious quality when faced with any another moral and religious system will not withstand the influence of the latter and will fall under the pressure of a force fresher and deeper. Confirmation of this is in the very Talmud: “Converts do not easily abandon their pagan customs and continue “to live as before, and the Jews, among whom they live, adopt their customs.”
This is the Talmud's view of proselytism.

1 Tract. "Yebamoth", 47.

2 See Rashi.

Chapter 4

On the seduction of Orthodox Christians to Judaism

As for our Russian history, there is distrust of the followers of Moses the law has always existed in Rus' to a greater or lesser extent and was accompanied among other things, the fear that the Jews would not attract people to their religion Christians and people of other faiths. Therefore, their civil rights are constantly in more or less embarrassed, and their resettlement to Russia from other states were forbidden; several times they were even subjected to complete expulsion from Russian territory."

1 History of the Ministry of Internal Affairs. Vol. 2, part 12, p. 129.

The Reverend Father Joseph, Abbot of Volokolamsk, who lived in the 15th century, wrote a book entitled "The Enlightener", which was compiled using materials from ancient manuscripts called "Chronograph". This work tells of the initial phenomenon of the schism. We will quote verbatim an excerpt from of this book about proselytism. “As soon as the Russian land was baptized, all of one mind the Holy Trinity, but no one has ever found a heretic or an wicked man I saw: and so they went on for 470 years. This happened in the year 6979, during the reign of the Grand Duke Ivan Vasilyevich, when the Novgorodians were entombed, then came to them as princes Prince Mikhail Olgovich, with him came a Jew named Skhariya, who was previously in Kyiv alive. This Jew deceived; Denis brought Alexei to the same Jew the archpriest, who still existed on Mikhailovskaya Street, and who was also of the Christian faith made an apostate. Then other Jews came from Lithuania, whose names were: Moses, Shmoy, Joseph Khanush. Alexei and Denis loved them so much that they were always with them. they wished to be, and not only they themselves adhered to Judaism, but also those who followed their children they brought them, wanting to be circumcised in the Jewish faith, but the Jews did not order them, saying that Christians will find out about you and you will be rebuked. They changed their names Christians, Alexei, named Abraham, and his wife Sarah. Then Alexei He converted many to Judaism, including his son-in-law Ivashka Maksimov and his father, the priest Maxima; also Denis the priest converted many people: then they converted Sofia Archpriest Gabriel and Gridya the key-keeper; Gridya taught Judaism Grigory Tuchin, his father Tucha, had great power in Novgorod and taught many Judaism, Mishuk the dog, Vasuk Sukhov, Lavresh, Fedor, Vasily Popov Pokrovsky; and the priest Jacob, and Yurka Semenov, the son of Dolgov, Stefan Kryloshanin, Ivan the priest of Voskresensky, priest Naum; deacons, Makarii Mukha; and so much have they disturbed the Christian race, as the ancient heretics did; drinking and eating, and not honoring the Lord's feasts... In the year 6988, when the prince was in Novgorod the great John Vasilyevich, then taking Alexei the priest to Moscow to serve as archpriest to the church The Most Pure Mother of God's honorable Dormition; and Denis the priest to Michael the Archangel, and these filthy people turned many Christian people in Moscow into Judaism, for some to flee and be circumcised in the Jewish faith. In the year 6993 he was appointed there was a holy Gennady to the great Novgorod and Pskov. This one, like a lion, tore apart nails filled with the womb of Jewish teaching, and crushing them and smashing them against the stone:

They rushed to flee and ran to Moscow, where Alexei's help was ready.
archpriest, and Denis gained priest, and besides, there are already many in Moscow deceived; and from the monks they called a certain Archimandrite Zosima by the name of, and they took a monk named Zakhariy: then from the court of the Grand Duke, Feodor Kuritsyn, and deacons of the cross, Istoma and Sverchok, and from the merchants Semyon Klenov, and others
They taught many to become Judaizers. They then had the courage to approach the Sovereign Archpriest Alexei and Fyodor Kuritsyn, like no one else; for they were diligent in the law of the stars and many fables, astrology, and witchcraft and all kinds of black magic, and this for the sake of the multitude they turned away from them… After Gerontius, Metropolitan Istoma, the deacon before approached his death by flattery of the Sovereign and placed him on the great throne Saint Zosima the wicked in the year 6998… Then to Great Novgorod and Pskov the archbishop was the holy Gennady; he sends to the Sovereign and to the Metropolitan Zosima about the blasphemy and desecration of the honest cross and divine icons, for many heretics appeared in Novaya Grad and Moscow at that time. The Russian lands heard the saints and all gathered; Rostov Archbishop Tikhon, Bishop of Suzdal Nifont, Ryazan Simeon, Tver Bassian, Sarsky Prokhor, Perm Philotheus, also archimandrites and abbots and the entire priestly council of the Russian Metropolitanate, and They came to Metropolitan Zosima, not knowing anything about him yet, as he was the leader and teacher of the heretics. Zosima, however, was a Christian and commanded the Novgorod heretics at the council to curse Archpriest Gabriel, Alexy and Denis the priest of Arkhangelsk and all heretics. At that time, many heretics they were taken over, and by order of the sovereign they were sent to Great Novgorod to Archbishop Gennady: he sent against them for 40 miles to put them on horseback in southern, and he commanded that their clothes be turned inside out, and their backs to the heads of horses, and He commanded that they place sharp, high birch bark helmets on their heads, and that they place their faces toward the horses.

they placed them on their hind legs so that they could look to the west into the fire prepared for them, and on their helmets written in ink: This is Satan's army; and he commanded them to lead them through the city, and
He commanded those who met them to spit on them and say: These are enemies of God and blasphemers

Christianity and the Orthodox faith; and then he commanded that the helmets on their heads be set on fire.
So, good shepherd, put the heretical regiment to shame and frighten the others, so that they might see this shame has been chaste; and thus the evil heretics are condemned to imprisonment and in exile… In the summer of 7013… they burned the Novgorod heretics Wolf Kuritsyn, and "Vassian, Abbot of Novgorod, and many other heretics."

Chapter 5

Schism caused by the Jewish heresy

According to the testimony of the Venerable Joseph, this first manifestation of the schism was caused by Judaism. Despite all the strict measures against the Judaizing sect, it still exists today. Recently, this sect has even become openly disseminated.
spread. On this basis, one cannot but recognize as entirely fair those restrictions that the government imposes on Jewish settlers in internal cities of Russia.

In 1676, Alexei Mikhailovich appointed in his famous code the death penalty for Jews who convert Orthodox Christians to their faith, and entry is prohibited Jews from Smolensk to Moscow.

In 1827, when Smolensk was annexed to Moscow, when it was taken into the treasury all customs and drinking fees, the latter were provided for rent to willing persons from all classes except Jews; then they were surveillance has been tightened and entry into Russia is prohibited. But Jews by nature sneakiness, despite all the strictness of supervision and the law, is ordinary and inherent They visited not only all the cities of Russia, but also Moscow, by the same route.

Chapter 6

Jew Borukh, missionary in Moscow

In 1736, the Jew Borukh came to Moscow and converted the captain to Judaism.
naval lieutenant Voznitsyn, who went with him to Smolensk and received the rite from him circumcision. In addition, the same Borukh was accused of the "capital murder of a priest" Abraham in Smolensk, in the seduction of the common people with other Jews into their faith, in the construction of a Jewish school or prayer house, and in the torment of the one who was hired by him

"peasant girl."

The Jew Borukh and Lieutenant Voznitsyn were burned by court order. to think that on this occasion in 1736 the Senate decree prescribed: immediately to expel all Jews from Little Russia; this order was repeated in 1742 the strictest prohibition not to allow a single Jew into Russia. When will this decree

Some senators objected and presented a report on the need for for national economic reasons to allow Jews to temporarily come to Little Russia and Riga, then on this report Empress Elizabeth Petrovna laid down the following resolution: “I do not wish for any interesting profit from the enemies of Christ.”
In the last century, proselytism was in great demand not only in Russia, but also in other places. In 1831, Dr. Antoni Sanches, one of the famous doctors of his time, ni, invited to Russia for the position of court physician and a former member Academy of Sciences, in 1849 he was removed from service and had to leave. Doctor
I assumed that he had done something wrong to the Empress, but then it was explained that he belonged to a sect of secret Judaizers, as is evident from the following friendly letter written to him by Count Razumovsky. “You are doing well did what you could to obey Her Majesty's orders. She was not angry with you for some offense against her or her interests, but she believes that her conscience does not allow her to leave in her academy a man who has abandoned the banner of Christ and decided to fight under the banner of Moses and the Old Testament prophets."

1 "Russian Archive", 1870, p. 280.

Chapter 7

Rules on clean-up days have been approved

On February 3, 1825, the “rules on Sabbatarians or Judaizers” were approved.
and on measures to prevent the spread of this sect."

These rules prescribed: wherever they were discovered Judaizers, take the leaders of this sect, assistants and seducers, send them away those fit for military service, and those not capable of it - to Siberia for settlement, so that they were also sent out separately to remote places; wherever a Jewish sect was discovered, all Jews without exception were expelled; local the authorities must keep a close eye on and make it difficult for the Orthodox to communicate with Judaizers. Local authorities must monitor and prevent detection heresies to avoid temptation for the Orthodox.

The Judaizing sect in Russia was very similar to Jewish beliefs, concepts and expectations. According to the expert on Jewish life, S.V.
Maksimova, the Subbotniks, or Judaizers, consider Jews to be their brothers in faith
- observe all Jewish rituals, show readiness to enter into marriage communication with them."

1 "Notes of the Fatherland", 1864, book 4, p. 338.

As for the conversion of Jews to Christianity, this is done for the most part of the selfish species, and only a small percentage of them remain loyal Christian religion. The majority, of course, return back to Judaism.
due to the temptation of their fellow tribesmen and former co-religionists. Similar scammers even come from abroad with the sole purpose of making money for themselves, and then laugh at Christianity and return home.

In ancient times, Christian sects, amidst their heated debates, tried to compete with each other to surpass each other in their zeal for the conversion of the Jews, who, as the historian says, Socrates gave monetary rewards if they agreed to accept Christianity. These The awards later became a subject of speculation for the Jews. One a Constantinople Jew intended to be baptized according to the rites of all Christians sects, in order to thus obtain the rewards determined by each of them a new convert. He moved from the Orthodox Church to sects successively, in one after another, until finally his deception was discovered by the Novatian bishop, who who learned that the deceiver was baptized in all Christian churches, and even Patriarch of Constantinople.

Chapter 8

Baptized Austrian Jewish missionary

Some time ago, an Austrian Jew came to Russia under the name the appearance of a baptized man, with some kind of manuscript directed against the Jewish religion, and collected money from all over Russia for the publication of this work, assuring everyone that this way to convert Jews living in Moscow to Orthodoxy. He himself accepted sham baptism, remaining with his wife and child a faithful follower of the Talmud.

His main task was to become a zealous missionary in the eyes of the Orthodox;
Indeed, many of our Russian zealots paid attention to him.
Orthodoxy and donated considerable sums to the supposed zealot for the publication of the work everyone donated to him: governors, metropolitans, archimandrites, merchants, priests, etc.

This collection was as successful as the collection for the Serbs. Having recommendations letters from various Orthodox archpastors, this so-called missionary showed them rich merchants in St. Petersburg and Moscow; received significant sums from them and, in order to to gain trust and give even more importance to their business, he explained his plans to them his future actions regarding the conversion of Jews to Orthodoxy and promised merchants to stop the influx of Jews into Moscow, assuring that even those living in Moscow
The Jews will flee from the capital, specifically from the dangerous enemy missionary. How both the clergy and the merchants were carried away by his speeches and gave him a lot of money for editions of a work written in old jargon, with which he traveled all over the most important cities of Russia. In St. Petersburg and Moscow, where his headquarters were, he collected, according to rumors, about 10,000 rubles. When the collections began to decrease and many they began to refuse the subscription for the second and third time, then he turned to to the Rogozh schismatics in Moscow, who, of course, accepted him with open arms. He even moved in with them permanently, having begun a new work in favor of the schism, which, according to him, was to be trans-to chat abroad, where he left irrevocably, having torn a decent deal from the schismatics a ton of money. There's no need to give his first and last name, as many Russians subscribers will remember him for a long time.

This missionary was an ardent follower of his religion and the Talmud; he visited Shabbos and holidays in the Jewish quarter in Zaryadye with his brothers; he performed everything their rituals with his wife and child: he spoke in no other language than his favorite jargon. At the same time, a second similar missionary appeared, also baptized.
a Jew who came from the Vilna rabbinical school; he was accepted as an auditor at the Moscow Theological Academy, where he was supposedly preparing for Department of Hebrew; but soon, for some unknown reason, he was expelled from academy. Then, due to the cunning characteristic of his tribe, he was placed as missionary in one of the missionary monasteries, where, wanting to establish himself a useful figure in Orthodoxy, he began to publish articles in various spiritual journals and, pointing to his printed works, he tried to make collections from missionary purposes; but there were no sympathizers and he abandoned his mission.

the field of sionarism and the Orthodox monastery. Later he turned again to his own people, under their old and invincible banner of the Talmud.

There are many such deceiving proselytes in Russia, because each a baptized Jew, unless he achieves his goals with the help of Orthodoxy selfish goals, returns again to Judaism in full confidence that his co-religionists will be protected from punishment for betraying Orthodoxy.

“Private Katzman, a baptized Jewish cantonist, was put on trial in 1862 for apostasy from Orthodoxy to Judaism. The Moscow District Court acquitted Katzman, taking into account, firstly, the law of 1862, which prohibited the conversion of Orthodoxy of non-believers under 14 years of age without parental consent, and secondly, that although Katzman was baptized in infancy, but neither the rites nor the sacraments of the Orthodox Church did not observe it later and continued to profess the Jewish religion.
The Moscow Court of Justice agreed with the prosecutor's opinion that the 1862 law does not have retroactive force, as all laws in general do, and that Katzman’s affiliation with Orthodoxy is undoubtedly proven by the fact that he accepted the sacrament of baptism and is obliged was to perform rituals and attend church. The Chamber therefore determined: to send Katzman was brought to the spiritual authorities for admonition, depriving him of his right to return to Christianity of using the rights of the state and taking his estate into custody. But this
The decision of the chamber was overturned by the Senate's Criminal Cassation Department.
The ultimate fate of this case is unknown. It is clear from the first glance at the Katzman case that from a strictly legal point of view it is hopeless, and an acquittal the district court is devoid of any legal basis. On the one hand, it is obvious that, according to the fundamental principles of law, the law of 1862 cannot be applied to a person, baptized no later than 1855. On the other hand, there is no doubt that according to the meaning of our law, the one who is considered Orthodox is the one who is baptized according to the rite Orthodox Church'.

1 Jewish Library, vol. 3, p. 134.

As proof that baptized Jews remain adherents of the Talmud, Jewish rites and customs, we will give as an example the following case, which took place in Moscow. One Jewish family was baptized and, as usual, received money in allowance; but a dispute arose between the baptized father-in-law and son-in-law regarding commercial division, and so they turned to the kahal arbitration court to resolve their dispute the Jewish court, they chose three Jews steeped in Talmudic wisdom, who made their decision on the case. The parties are quite satisfied with this decision obeyed.

Chapter 9

Sect of Judaizers

The sect of Judaizers existed from the very beginning of the Christian era. Even in During the time of the apostles, the question was raised: are Christians obliged to fulfill the Law of Moses?
or not? After some deliberation, the apostles decided that they should fulfill the ritual Mosaic law, such as circumcision, shabbes, etc., they can, if they wish, Jews who accepted the Christian faith, hence the formation of the Christian sect Judaizing, under the name of the Menaion, and in Hebrew "Minim". These hateful for Jews, the name they still use to call Christians. This name is often encountered. and in the Talmud. The Minami even treated with the name of Christ, from which it is clear that the Minami were Christians. Saint Jerome in his letter (er1zyu]a ai Aigizat) says: “Until now there is a heresy among the Jews in all the Jewish synagogues of the East, called the heresy of the Menaians, which is still condemned by the Pharisees, is called by them usually Nazarenes, and who believe in Christ the Son of God; but they want to be Jews and Christians, etc....» (s hi iŕs Ss 141$
Baege$1$ eï diae @ChsIag Mtaeogat eï a Ragiss izaie pips datpaag 410$ ushoo Maghageoz Popsrapi di! euodip ip Shtissḱit APAT Oet, ze44it Ï sss hisssssssssssssssss ï ï tdaste.

This peculiarity of Christians from the Jews did not last long, since the Jews themselves by their persecutions and intrigues against the Mosaic Christians they contributed their complete union with Christians in all the rites of the Christian Church. But later, when the Jews, after their dispersion throughout the land, regrouped, united and began to propagate their teachings among Christians - this sect Judaizers appears in a new form, no longer composed of Jews converted to Christianity, and vice versa from Christians to Judaism.

Chapter 10

On the revival of the Judaizing sect in Russia

Recently, due to the large influx of Jews into Russia, the sect Judaizers have revived. Eyewitnesses say that the sectarians even hire Jewish mentors (melameds) to teach Hebrew from the Bible. "Voronezh Diocesan Gazette" for 1877, No. 9, scholarly researcher Jewish sect writes that “the very name of the sect, in the mouths of its followers, shows that it is essentially Jewish in nature. The sectarians call themselves followers of the Mosaic Law or the biblical Mosaic confession, and faith their own - Jewish, but most often - Mosaic. They give themselves this name because, that they “hold the law of the radiant prophet of God, Moses.” Therefore, they reject everything New Testament teaching, namely: they reject the Divinity of Jesus Christ, His Most Pure Mother of all the holy saints of the New Testament; do not venerate the holy icons that they after renouncing Orthodoxy, they took it out of their homes and distributed it to their neighbors; wear crosses around their necks and do not mark themselves with the sign of the cross at all. "It is better for us We will agree to cut off our hands, they say, rather than sign ourselves with the cross sign." On holidays established by the Orthodox Church, they work; not observe the fasts of the Orthodox Church; even predominantly at this time and as if with with deliberate intent they consume meat food, being content with something else time of dry eating."

Their own dogmatic opinions are as follows:

1) Expectation of the Messiah not as God, but as a great prophet.

2) The expectation of the Messiah is sensual.

3) The Messiah, when he comes, will destroy the enemies of Israel.

4) In the prophecy: “Behold, a virgin shall conceive in her womb”… under the name of the Virgin they mean Israel in general: “Hearing the daughter of Zion.” Isaiah 7-14

5) Belief in the existence of ten tribes beyond the Euphrates, with which the Saturdays at the end of the world.

6) Expectation of perfect sensory peace after the seventh thousand years from the creation of the world (now they are in their sixth thousand. According to the Jewish calendar Now they have the year 5654).

7) Jesus Christ is a simple man, but smart.

8) The teaching of the apostles is not the same as the teaching of Jesus Christ, but is lower than it.

On this basis, the sect of Judaizers cannot be recognized as a sect of the new Jewish. They do not recognize the Kabbalah and the Talmud as divine books, as new-
The Jews do not have them at all, knowing about them only by hearsay.

However, regarding the Voronezh Judaizers, it should be noted that they illiterate peasants and for the most part do not know the basic principles of their faith: “As our fathers believed,” they say to those interested in their faith Orthodox, - so we believe; our faith is older than yours; your Christ is forcibly entered into God's company." Or "our faith is ancient, the faith of our forefathers and fathers, and therefore more important and salutary." Their belief is reduced mainly to the exact the performance of ritual features of the Old Testament Jews.

Chapter 11

Rites of the Judaizers

The ritual side of the Judaizers consists of the following:

1) They recognize the Sabbath, as a result of which they received from their Orthodox
The neighbors' name is Subbotniks.

2) They celebrate the days of the Old Testament prophets.

3) Perform circumcision. Circumcision of male children is performed on the 8th day of birth. Adults, converting to the Jewish sect from Orthodoxy,
They are circumcised (such a case happened recently), and also change their names to Jewish ones.
The performer of circumcision is, apparently, one specific person in all Subbotnik sectarians from the Pavlovsky and Bobrovsky districts. Thus, in the village of Gvozda Pavlovsky district came to perform circumcision from the village of Ozerki, Bobrovsky district, peasant Efim Bocharenkov, “reputed to be a rabbi and performing all "Rites of the Jewish religion."

4) Easter is celebrated according to the Jewish calendar. For example, in 1875 they celebrated Easter on April 8th together with the Jews, when we had Tuesday of Holy Week. Before
On this holiday, the Judaizers fast for a whole week, eating only unleavened bread.

5) They do not eat pork meat and lard and do not even keep them at home pigs.

On Saturdays, Easter and other holidays, the Judaizers perform prayers. Prayers, for example, the Saturday Saturday are performed three times: in the evening from Friday to Saturday, and on Saturday morning and evening. Also, apparently, on other holidays prayers consist of reading and singing: they read from the psalter and from books in general Old Testament and other books. There are several readers from the local peasants; they read different books at the same time, and each one reads aloud, while the others
Those present at the prayer listen silently. The reading lasts for about two hours.

Then comes the general singing, which consists of one of the readers, taking some any book - the Psalter or the Bible - begins to read something from it in a mournful voice voice, so that to an outsider all this reading seems somehow howling. Having read three or four words in this way, the reader stops, and those present begin to chant in the same mournful voice the words he said; then the reader again says exactly the same 3-4 more words, and those present, when he stops, repeat his words in a chant. Such singing
It also lasts for about two hours. During the prayer, all participants stand in hats, hats or caps, and some in unusually cut caps. The place for such prayer meetings are not held by any one specially for that purpose in a certain locality a certain hut: every house whose owner belongs to the number Judaizers, can alternately be a place of worship. In the room Usually a table covered with a tablecloth is set up. The necessary books are placed on the table.

One day from July 19 to 20, from Friday to Saturday 1874, on the table, besides books, a simple cup was found, filled with earth, into which three were stuck candles - two stearin and one wax; at other times - a picture with an inscription not on in Russian; once again, under the Bible on the table there was a copper kopeck from 1801, the time of Tsar Paul I. Stearin candles are used for evening prayers, which are placed in copper candlesticks and on the table, in the front corner - under curtains. After the prayer there is a common table, and it is not forbidden to use wine.

By renouncing Christianity, these sectarians renounced their Russian nationality, Russian customs, and they are trying to get rid of the Russian language. They accepted the faith of modern Jews in its entirety and, together with the Jews, share into Talmudists who accept the Talmud and Karaites who reject it. Ashamed of their of Russian origin, they call themselves newcomers to the Jews, for one people with the last ones to be circumcised and circumcise their children, celebrate Jewish holidays, wear Tifilim and Tzitzitz try to copy the Jews and speak if not in Hebrew slang, they distort the Russian language in a Jewish way. Together with the Jews, they hate Christ, Christianity, and everything Christian. In Russia, they consider themselves prisoners, Russia is called Assur (the word "Assur" is read backwards), Babylon and Gog, and that's all, What the prophets said about these countries and peoples applies to Russia. What was said about Gog read according to the Viennese and Russian editions of the Bible: Gog in the land of Magog, prince of Rosa, Mosokho and Tobolo. This, according to the sectarians, means: prince of Russia, Moscow and Tobolsk. Their dream is to wait for the Jewish messiah, the conquering king, to conquer and to plunder the pagan, i.e. Christian, kingdoms and move to Palestine.

Thus, the Judaizers had long cherished the idea of resettling in Palestine, and attempts were made to realize this dream long before the birth of militant Zionism.

In the eighties of the last century, the Astrakhan Judaizers, especially The residents of Tsarev, Prishib and Zaplavny were expecting the Messiah any day now; they were at the markets discussed this, huddled in groups, and right on the ground they drew a "plan" of Palestine and divided it, sent wanderers to Palestine to scout out the best places. "We ourselves," Father Tiflov reports, "I had to observe how women of the sectarian they were getting ready for the journey, they baked some sweet buns, or kokurki as they are called locally, and dried them crackers, so that they would be ready when they came for them to take them to Palestine."

In the 90s, the Judaizers of Transcaucasia began to move to Palestine. with the support of Rothschild and his agent Rabbi Lubetzky.

These Judaizing Russian peasants formed the agricultural core.

Palestinian colonies, pointing to which the Jews seek to refute the axiom about the absolute unsuitability of the "chosen people" for any kind of healthy agricultural labor.

Chapter 12

Books of the Judaizers

As for the books used by the Judaizers in worship, we we have the opportunity to list them, namely:

1) The Bible in the Slavic language, editions of 1720, Elizabethan 1766 and 1791 years. These Bibles contain notes indicating the use some of them in places during worship. The notes are that to some small pieces of red paper are glued with wax to the sheets of the Bible (one of the 23 sheets) matter. These notes are found only on the Old Testament books; on the New Testament There are no books.

2) Psalter: a) in the Slavic language, editions of 1823, 1863 and 1872; b) in in Russian, the publication of the Russian Bible Society of 1822; c) in Russian language with Hebrew text, published by an unknown person.

3) The Book of Joseph, in the Slavic language.

4) The Beginnings of Orthodox Christian Reading - in Russian, published in 1868 years.

5) Prayers of the Israelites, 1869 edition, in Russian and Hebrew.

To explain why the Judaizers have books with Hebrew text, which, probably, most of them do not understand at all, we present Mr. Maximov's testimony about the Transcaucasian Judaizers. He, distinguishing between two shades of opinion that were the reason for their division into two parties - pure Jews, or Gers (in Russian, aliens), and on Saturday workers, - and noticing that the first in everything try to be like the Old Testament Jews, says about them: the Gers teach that “it is necessary pray in the language in which God himself listened to human prayer several thousand times years and he himself spoke with people from the mountains of Sinai and Horeb, and from the cloud, and in every place and in all the time." He also testifies that these Heroes all pray according to the book "Sedar", which includes morning and evening, before and after dinner prayers and services Easter; they are also working hard to have "Sidar" with double text.

- Jewish and Russian; to read and pray in Jewish; to understand in Russian.
Apparently, the local Subbotniks are following in the footsteps of these heroes." Besides printed books, which the reading is borrowed on certain days, in the hands of the Judaizers there are also handwritten notebooks containing excerpts from psalms for use in services, divided by the headings: vespers, matins and mass, - that is, church songs. We have some information about two such notebooks containing church songs.
songs and those used by the Judaizers of the village of Gvozdy. In them, church
The songs begin with the words: “How are you, Lord, Master,” and end with: “Have mercy your servants." The final words of these manuscripts are remarkable: "May the Lord save us from oppressor"; in them lies the reason why this sect is classified by law as one of the especially harmful.

This is the information we have about the contemporary Judaizers of the Voronezh province.

Chapter 13

Propaganda and successes of the Judaizers

Osman Bey in his work “The Conquest of the World by the Jews” (p. 37) says the following: “The statistics of Austrian history (1872) reveals to us this monstrosity and points to Judaism in a new form, namely, in the form of a prosperous force through proselytism.

Here are the numbers.

Passed:

From Catholicism to Protestantism 80.

From Protestantism to Catholicism 20.

From Christianity to Judaism 200.

The eloquence of these figures supersedes everything that could be said about the efforts, currently used by the Jews to subjugate humanity under their rule ambition and greed.

How then, says the author, do Jews acquire proselytes when they are already the very thought of becoming a Jew is repugnant to the most skeptical and condescending people? The matter explains itself. Thanks to free thinkers, change religion has become a money issue, and many are ready to become anything, just would receive a certain amount per month. Therefore, Jewish missionaries will have to only to take advantage of the poverty of the masses, and they, coming with an advantageous offer, confident of success.

In the agricultural and industrial districts of Austria, where there is morals and principles are loose, the poor classes are accessible to proselytism. A Jewish missionary, always armed with excellent information, sets to work as follows:

- How poor you are, my children, I feel sorry to look at you! Don't you have work, to obtain funds to meet needs?

“We have work,” the peasants answer, “but everything is so expensive that we don’t know, as it should be.

“If you are right, my good ones,” the Jew says to this, “you will still live, The way you live now, you will not stop being unhappy.

After a short silence, the missionary adds:

- Look at our Jews, how they know how to do business: they are rich everywhere and powerful. Our people love each other and mutually support their fellow believers, while among you Christians, people devour each other. Become Jews, and you you will lack nothing. In this world, my friends, there are two categories of people - inflators and inflated. Rest assured, it's much better to belong to the former. class, rather than the second. Only a fool allows himself to be deceived, but smart people try to take advantage of its simplicity. Become Jews, I tell you, and you you will be the happiest of people.

At these words the unfortunate peasants look at each other, They shift from side to side, but end up accepting the missionary's outstretched hand.

- You are right, father, we will come over to you; at least you will protect us.

After this explanation, the Jewish missionary joins the neophytes to his phalanx of usurers and swindlers and forces them to take a deadly leap forever in the bosom of Judaism.

Chapter 14

The success of the Jewish mission in Poland

Poland has always been a hotbed of tolerance, so heretics are persecuted from everywhere received safe refuge in Poland. The Inquisition could not take root there, because which was contrary to its republican spirit. The Polish lords considered themselves absolutely free in matters of conscience. The city of Krakow was especially famous for its tolerance. Already In the 10th century, members of the Albigensian sect fled to Poland. The sectarian Dulcin preached in In the 19th century, the community of property and wives was introduced, and his preaching was accepted in Poland with with great hospitality. The lords became Dulcinians, and this frightened the pope so much. John XXII, that he temporarily introduced the Inquisition in Poland to exterminate heretics. But the Inquisition burned only a few peasants, while the lords remained inviolable. It was the only Catholic country in Europe where The Inquisition couldn't fight the heretical aristocracy. The Hussites also let in roots in Poland, Lutherans, Calvinists, and finally Jews. Among Catholics, Judaism was distributed quite freely. According to the constitution of 1552, after two or three years, Having outraged the Polish nobility, the inquisitors were deprived of the right to even initiate any religious accusations against the gentry. Socinians, or Anti-Trinitarians had every opportunity to openly express their negative teaching about the Holy Trinity. Before Servetus's fire had even died down, a loud and unpunished outburst was heard at the Council of Polish-Lithuanian Protestants preaching an almost Jewish monotheism. Two years later, a new council was convened - in Pinchowa, and the number of people in Poland who think that God is one, but not triune, turned out to be already significant. A certain Peter Statorius spoke out, who gave Socinianism even more more Jewish tint. Some think that Statorius himself was French. a Jew. The owner of Pinczow, the nobleman Lesnitsky, was initially a follower of Calvin, But Statorius convinced him to adopt Socinian views. Without thinking twice, Lesnitsky drove all the Calvinists out of Pinchowa and gave their printing house to the Socinian temple. All the enemies of the Holy Trinity rushed to Pincov, and in a short time it became a new Jerusalem of the Judaizing Catholics.

Socinian propaganda began in Poland. At the next Sejm, the Socinians they staged a public debate with the Calvinists and defended their teaching so successfully, that in just two years hundreds of noble lords had already joined them. The Socinians in Nesvizh the Bible in Polish. The city of Rakov arose, which eclipsed Pinchev. That's why our schismatic priestless people, persecuted in Russia, found refuge.

In Poland, in the Suwalki province alone, there are about five thousand of them. Thanks to Jews who were strong in Poland, and the closeness of the Socinian dogma with Jewish monotheism, Socinianism in Poland gradually began to acquire features Judaizing heresies. Jews had long been working to spread Judaism in Poland.
The center of their movement was Kyiv. It was from Kyiv that a Jew arrived in Russia in the 16th century.
Skhariya, the founder of the Judaizing sect. Suppressed by severe executions, the Jewish
The sect continued to hide in Moscow without losing its ties with the Lithuanian Judaism. When, in the 13th century, persecution of the Jewish heresy arose again in Moscow, and freethinkers Matvey Bashkin, Abbot Artemy, Feodosiy Kosoy, Vassian, Ignatius and others were imprisoned, but some of them managed to escape to Lithuania. Feodosia Kosoy and Ignatius, having fled, joined the anti-Trinitarians.

Chapter 15

Feodosiy Kosoy, a Judaizing sectarian

Feodosiy Kosoy recognized one God and the ten commandments, looked at the evangelists, as storytellers, denied the Holy Trinity, the divinity Jesus Christ, the incarnation, redemption and all the sacraments, the invocation of the saints, traditions
He called churches and rituals idolatry and children's comedies, and icons idols.
temples - idol houses.

This Judaism, or Socinianism, quickly spread throughout Poland and Lithuania.
The Anti-Trinitarians were alarmed, but were so clever that they began to bother about merger with the Feodosians. It ended with Socinus's nephew, Faustus Socinus, arrived in Poland, reformed anti-Trinitarianism and called it Unitarianism.
The renewed Socinianism and Theodosianism, having merged, began to be called “Polish brothers." This was Christian-Jewish rationalism. "Polish Brethren" they gave freedom to celebrate Sunday to anyone they wanted, Saturday to others, then various modifications of the Feodosian sect appeared, there were sects that fell into Judaism. This is how the Sabbatarian sect arose.

By the end of the 15th century and at the beginning of the 17th century, there were already many in Little Russia
Subbotniks. At this time, a fictitious letter from Ivan the Polovtsian began to circulate Smera, the court physician of Prince Vladimir. Smera was allegedly sent to Greece for research of faith. He found in Alexandria some of the most perfect Christians faith and morals, completely different from the rest of the Greeks. He accepted their faith and, having learned that in

In his absence, Prince Vladimir had already been baptized according to the Greek rite and did not return to him, but sent a letter on a copper plate in iron letters in Bulgarian.
The board was found in the Russian Church of the Holy Savior near ancient Sambir.
some deacon. This was in the second half of the 15th century. Kyiv Rules Metropolitan Onisiphorus Devochka. The Metropolitan belonged to the Anti-Trinitarians, but in in his heresy he went further under the influence of the copper letter. "The most perfect
The "Christians" were the same Feodosian people, but now with a definitive Jewish tint.
Following the Metropolitan's example, clergymen fell into heresy. Churches began to be cut down. crosses, the churches themselves were abolished, Christians fraternized with Jews and gave them their icons, ashamed of their former idolatry. When Onesiphorus the Girl

Orthodox people reproached him for pandering to the Jews and for destroying temples, he got off with empty excuses. Smera's letter contained a promise that there will be a time when the Slavic people will unite to praise and confess one God of Israel, and with him the last Jewish people along with the rest nations will learn the teachings of Christ and receive salvation because they will submit to the will of God of his own. With various options, which are extremely difficult to note and hardly even perhaps in a strictly scientific way, Christian-Jewish rationalism, adapting to the circumstances of time and place, it flared up here and there in
In Poland and Ukraine, he found powerful patrons, and in the 17th century he the famous Nemyrich, who came to the fore during the hetmanate, was a supporter Vyhovsky.

Chapter 16

The sect of Frankists, Judaizers

In the 18th century, the mysterious Jew Frank renewed the dreams of the “most perfect Christians”, merged them with the teachings of the Jewish sectarian Sabbatai Zevi, and his preaching had some success in Poland. Frankists recruited Jews. Outwardly, Jews accepted Christianity and adopted Polish customs and traditions in every detail, but internally they continued to consider only the Jewish people as God's chosen people, secretly
They celebrated the Sabbath and believed that Christ was the true Messiah.

S. Zvi, returning from Turkey, died in Belgrade. After his death, his number supporters did not decrease. His hypocritical system was developed and distributed in North Africa, Poland, and Germany. In the East, all Sabatei they pretended to be true Muslims, and in Western European lands, they pretended to be Catholics, We're for the Lutherans. Sectarians have the right to join any religion they want, as long as it was profitable. Jewish anti-Trinitarianism, which rebelled against the temples and crosses in southwestern Russia, could only sympathize with the Sabatians; the Sabatians in in their essence they remained as intolerant as the Rabbinical Jews or the Pharisees. Seysky direction; accepting outward baptism, the Sabatians in every possible way avoided communication with Christians, and their hatred of the goyim was still great. The main Their dogma was the same as that of the Talmudists: only Israel will be saved, and only The world belongs to Israel.

The Sabbateanism was revived by Frank, who came from Turkey to Poland in the first half 19th century and brought with him significant funds. He approached the government with proposal to preach Catholicism among the Jews and baptize them. Polish the magnates began to coddle him and put their families at his disposal. Almost all The most noble Polish families were adopted by the newly baptized. In Lvov in 1759 A public debate was held between the rabbis and the Sabbatians, or Frankists. Victory remained on the side of Frank's followers. Soon after the dispute, Lvov himself was Frank and solemnly baptized, although he had already been a Mohammedan, remaining Jewish. In exchange for noble rights, the neophytes petitioned the Polish the government only about one thing: that they be allowed to form an independent the middle class enjoying special trading privileges. He took on the task Frank himself went to Warsaw. But since the Catholics noticed that the new-The baptized celebrate the Sabbath on Fridays, and one of the converts revealed secrets in court sects, then Frank in Warsaw was in for a big trouble - he was imprisoned in Czesto-The Khovsky Monastery was labeled a heretic. With the election of a new king, Frank's fate changed. for the better; he was released and recognized as a martyr. For his followers privileges were approved. The sectarians' prosperity quickly increased, and Warsaw was filled with a Semitic element. The neophytes wore fashionable Polish and with swords. Frank appointed Leyba Notovich, who took the surname Labentsky, Warsaw Vice-Patriarch, and he himself went to preach in Austria, where continued to deceive the people.

Chapter 17

Extract from the statutes and regulations of the Kingdom of Poland

“1) Jewish treachery, being always perverse, is unfavorable and hostile Christians and tries most diligently to harm, and not only in matters of faith and physical life, but by plundering their property and encroaching on every good thing.

For example, the blessed memory of Vladislav Jagiello, the most pious the founder of the Bishopric of Chelm, in his charter published in Krakow in 1420 year, briefly tells us about the wickedness and vicissitudes of the Jews.

2) “The Jews are the true enemies of our Christian faith,” says Casimir
Great in his confirmation of the privilege concerning the freedom and rights of the Jews in Krakow 1343

3) All the perverse efforts of the Jews are directed towards always destroying and to take away Christians' property and wealth. Ibid.

4) We do not want anyone to be a guest in a Jew's house. Ibid.

5) We have determined for absolute fulfillment what should not and cannot be done, for Jews to be in charge of any customs affairs, considering it unworthy and it is contrary to divine law for people of this kind to perform any honorary positions and duties among Christians. This was decreed by Sigismund I in Krakow 1538

6) That the Jews should not keep in the state either under their own or under someone else’s name no customs, metal mines, salt mines, not even taverns, banned Sigismund Augustus under the punishment of the statute of Sigismund I, in Krakow, 1438.

7) In addition, we want the Jews to not have the opportunity in our state to trade freely in all items, but that they should adhere to moderation everywhere, established by us, both when purchasing goods and in finding the means to live.
Sigismund I in 1538, and Sigismund Augustus in Petrokov in 1562 and again in 1567.

8) Likewise, the rights of the state must prohibit Jews from engaging in Christians trade and money circulation in the farmsteads. We believe that this is even less Jews should be allowed, on the contrary, we order and forbid them to be under even with the most severe punishments they did not dare to do anything like that, risking losing everything things subject to confiscation according to ancient statutes. Sigismund I. Petrokov 1538

9) In the decree of 1562, in volume 28, it was determined that Jews should not were engaged in trade contrary to the terms concluded with the cities.

According to the statutes of 1538, volume 84; they must not rent salt mines, no customs duties or other taxes.

10) In the decree of 1567, volume 3, it was determined that the Jews, contrary to the conditions, concluded with the cities, they were not allowed to engage in trade. They should not hold customs duties, salt mines, inns, or other property in the state, both under one's own and under a false name, and then under the threat of punishment, expressed in the statute of Sigismund of the same year 1538.

11) No Jew shall dare to keep in his house as a permanent a Christian minister of both sexes, and under the threat of collecting a hundred marks from a Jew, and imprisonment for a Christian. The exact execution of this entrusts to the chiefs and authorities (rulers) Sigismund Augustus in his decree in Petrokov 1562"

Chapter 18

Decision of the Poznan Diocesan

Synod (1720) on the Jews

(translated from Latin)

"The treacherous Jewish tribe, burning with primordial hatred against the Lord our Savior, always turns out to be extremely hostile to Christian name. The more stringent it is subject to restrictions based on canonical and the civil rights of our state, especially seeks arbitrariness for itself, and, relying on patronage, he disregards everything and leaves nothing untouched.
The Jews impoverish people through unjust extortion; through various kinds of tricks and interference in customs affairs causes losses to the public treasury.

Engaged in trading in precious items, selling meat, food supplies and drinks, renting taverns (inns), hotels, and sometimes even property, they They not only take away the means of living from Catholics, but they don't even hesitate to appropriate them dominion over them. Having already flooded all of Russia, the Jews are spreading further throughout most of Greater Poland, and they even strive to infect Lesser Poland, once free from such filth. Therefore, every Christian who cares about public good, loving honesty and taking honor to heart Christian name, not only must avoid any mixture with the Jews, but, on the contrary, I must restrain others from this, and finally, take all possible measures precautions against that tribe hostile to the Christian name. Chri-
A Jewish citizen must not buy from Jews any meat, food, or drink, nor goods that he can purchase from Catholics. He should not only give away renting taverns, hotels and property to Jews, but is obliged to remove them from our country and contribute to such a removal so that it does not seem that he, favoring the Jews for temporary gain and preferring them to the Catholics, by his actions he allows the revered Christ to be blasphemed and becomes unworthy, so that the name of the Lord would be called upon him and so that he would receive some blessing both for yourself and for your children.

We wish that these excerpts from the canonical and civil law and especially from the laws of our state regarding Jews
"Everyone read and observed them as often as possible to get to know them better."

(Book of the official priest Zhukovsky, p. 342, from the Sandomierz library).

TREATISE P

ON MEASURES TO DISGUST

Spread of the Jewish Sect

UNDER THE NAME OF SUBBOTNIK

Chapter 1

Decrees of the Holy Synod of July 29, 1825

Regarding preventive measures in the first half of the 19th century, Emperors Alexander I and especially the Siberian provinces, their wives and children did not if they wished to follow them, then do not force them to do so and leave them as they are residence. 5) The measures explained in the first paragraph do not apply to subbotniks Caucasian province, located in the Aleksandrovsky district, because the existence by their orders of the Government itself it is in some way approved; but the whole the severity of these rules will apply to them: a) if an attempt to involve is made others into the misconception of this sect and b) if external evidence is presented sect or temptation arising from it. In such cases, how to deal with the leaders Subbotniks living in the Aleksandrovsky district, on the exact basis of the above rules. 6) Those who commit any acts are to be considered the leaders of the sect. either rituals, or takes the first place in the divine service, or gives instructions in Jewish rules. 7) From the districts in which the Sabbatarian sect, or Jewish, is located, and the neighboring districts to expel all Jews without exception, wherever they may be were located there, and in the future they should not be allowed to stay there under any pretext. those who, contrary to this prohibition, are treated as if they were without a passport, subjecting persons who give them shelter to penalties of $35 and 39 of the Regulations of 1804 years defined. 8) Make it the responsibility of local authorities to make it difficult as far as possible the communication of the faithful with the Judaizers and not to give out passports to anyone belonging to this sect for travel to other places. 9) To prohibit any external manifestation of the Jewish sect and any action that is obvious to give a powerful reason to temptations, placing strict supervision over this on the department civil, without the participation of spiritual authority. 10) Under the external appearance of a sect of course: gatherings from different houses into one for prayer, circumcision, wedding, burial and other rites that have no resemblance to Christian ones; under temptations it is understood: any action in the presence of a Christian that is contrary to his faith, and especially blasphemy and mockery of the rules of the Church and those who follow them. 11) Decide it is an indispensable rule that these apostates should not be elected to any public positions on the basis of the rules approved for schismatics. 12) Make it the responsibility of provincial authorities to have accurate information about their profits or about reducing their number by returning to the Orthodox Church; but collect this information with all possible modesty and without explicit orders, so as not to give rise to any inconvenience, such as: or the announcement of a large yet the number of these Russian Jews, who are probably still in hiding, or the spread sense, as this has already happened during the investigations - about the number of schismatics. 13) Like nothing cannot have much influence over the errors into which they seek to seduce him, and that It is this very remedy that is used by both schismatics of various sects and Subbotniks in in relation to the Orthodox faith, then in the relations of local authorities to call Subbotniks as a Jewish sect and proclaim that they are truly Jews; for their real name is Sabbatarians, or those who adhere to the Mosaic law, not gives the people a precise idea of this sect and does not produce in them that disgust towards it, what can be produced by the conviction that they are trying to convert them to Judaism."

Chapter 2

On the duties of the clergy

“Regarding the duties of spiritual authority: when observing the above-mentioned rules should be put into effect by the civil authorities to the spiritual duty: 1) To use methods of persuasion, the sacred rules of religion and our corresponding, to the conversion of apostates again into the bowels of the Church. 2) For this pay special attention to the priests of those parishes in which it is taking root Judaizing sect, trying to achieve this through behavior, meekness and firm knowledge in In accordance with the Law of God they corresponded to their important purpose. 3) Parish priests, having concern for the preservation of their flock by the faith of the Church, should not to seek by any obvious actions and efforts to expose apostates. It is only for them to take advantage of the appropriate occasions for gentle admonition; and in they should not accept orders from the civil authorities no participation. 4) If, regardless of the parish priests, the spiritual the authorities recognize the benefit of placing the conversion or admonition of apostates on people chosen by him for this purpose in the form of missionaries, then this must be done without any participation of the civil department, which is obliged to provide missionaries patronage, if the diocesan bishops demand it. 5) Education children in schools there is a means by which one can act with the greatest success disgust and gradual cessation of all kinds of religious delusions, and therefore one can only wish that, taking into account the necessary considerations, the Ministry spiritual affairs and public education found the opportunity for this beneficial intention to put into action. Regarding those orders, however, which may be made to ensure the precise implementation of the above measures, Count Kochubey believed: 1) that governors in measures dependent on civil authority, and diocesan bishops, to the extent dependent on spiritual authority, must monitor success of these, report every month in order on the progress of the case and be responsible for precise performance of the duties assigned to them. 2) If sacred and clergy allow themselves to omit or abuse their duties, imposed on them, then the diocesan authorities must strictly act in reasoning about them on the basis of the secret decree of the Holy Synod of March 22, 1800 3)

That the civil governors, exacting strict penalties for any omission on the part of the officials they employ must be brought to trial as soon as they are noticed omissions arising from neglect and especially from abuse. 4) That, if the sect is under the care of diocesan bishops and civil governors the Jewish will be completely destroyed in accordance with the rules prescribed here, then officials and clergy who contributed to achieving this goal should be awarded according to their participation. The Committee of Ministers, upon consideration of this Count Kochubey's conclusions, without finding anything to add to them on his part, believed: to confirm this presentation in everything and to bring it into execution to ask for the Highest permission. At the meeting on February 3 of this year, it was announced committee, that the Emperor approves of the committee's position. Second the proposal of the synodal chief prosecutor, which consists of: the manager
The Ministry of Internal Affairs informed him that the Saratov civil the governor, reporting on the decisive measures of the local provincial authorities in the arrival of the leaders of the Judaizing sect and their assistants on the basis of the said position of the Committee of Gentlemen Ministers adds, among other things, that the implementation of these measures had such an impact on the Molokans, calling themselves Sunday workers, who even live in significant numbers in Saratov province, that 11 of them have already joined the Orthodox Church, yes 13 more people intend to follow this; and therefore the Saratov civil the governor concludes that success in this case will, of course, be significant if the diocesan authorities will be concerned with the most hasty placement in those parishes where there are Saturdays and Sundays, such priests who would behave with their meekness and firm knowledge of the Law of God they corresponded so much to its important purpose. Mr. Manager of the Ministry of Internal Affairs, having in mind the beneficial orders of the Holy Synod in relation to the Jewish sect in the Voronezh province, and attributes this circumstance to the discretion of the Spiritual Governments. Secondly, a reference from previous cases. I. On the Jewish sect, existing in the Voronezh diocese.

According to the newspaper "Kivas Aulze", in the Old Mühlgraben, as well as on In Gagensberg, on Dorofeinskaya Street in Riga, a Baptist church has recently appeared a religious sect of "Subbotniks", which got its name from the Sabbath, which sectarians celebrate it instead of Sunday. Religious meetings of sectarians, taking place in private apartments, with their noisy and high spirits

The neighboring residents have long been fed up with them. "Foot washing" rituals take place at meetings.
and "brotherly kissing", indicating a dubious moral lining a new teaching, proudly called by sectarians the only true faith.
Men and women accepted into the sect are first asked: When will you repent?
They then undertake to contribute a tithe of all their income to the leaders and preachers of the sect. The disseminators of the sect are some people from Prussia, which had already acquired many proselytes among the Latvian workers. Sectarians, According to the correspondent, they have already managed to upset several families by attracting one family member's side with the obvious reluctance of the others. As a result - disputes and even fights between husbands and wives, parents and children.

In the chamber of one of the magistrates of the city of Zhitomir, a case was recently heard the case against the Jews Kirzhner and Rosenstein for assaulting Mrs. S-voy, who contributed to the adoption of Orthodoxy by the daughter of the Rosenstein couple. June 5,
At about 8 o'clock in the evening Mrs. S-va was returning home from the all-night vigil, having sent away the baptized Jewish woman Anna Rosenstein from the church in a closed carriage. At this time, among the large she noticed a boy in the crowd that had gathered and was apparently lying in wait for her, Kenis's store clerk, who ran past her on his way from the church to the shop.
Then the mother of the baptized girl, Rosenstein, ran out and started shouting: “You bitch, you baptized my daughter, my blood,” and rushed at her with her fists, then the Jews ran up The Kirzhners also began to scold and beat her, holding her by the arms from behind. They freed her gothe family and the bank's doorman Kononov with some soldier, and she disappeared into the pharmacy Ochikovsky. A crowd of Jews blocked the entire street from the gymnasium to the boulevard. Following Sidorova's testimony Gersh Rosenstein asked the judge to dismiss the case non-jurisdiction of the justice of the peace.

The magistrate ordered that Leah Rosenstein be arrested for disorderly conduct.
two weeks, for insulting Sidorova with words and actions for 20 days. In total difficulties for two months. Kirzhner Srulya, 19, for disorderly conduct for 20 days, Avruma, 16-

10 years, for 10 days; both were acquitted of causing insult by words and actions."

Chapter 3

On the Judaizers in the Voronezh Governorate

In 1818, when she came to the Emperor from the single-householders Voronezh province Pavlovsky district most humble request with a complaint about the oppression they suffered from local authorities, both spiritual and civil, for their confession of the Mosaic Law, - His Imperial Majesty ordered a rigorous investigation to be carried out, providing the former minister spiritual affairs and public education to do in relation to the sect itself Judaizers conclusion and submit it to His Majesty for his discretion.
In fulfillment of this Highest command, Prince Golitsyn treated
To His Grace of Voronezh and the former civil governor there Dubensky, so that they would enter into a closer examination of all the circumstances, related to the said sect, and for the proper consideration of this matter they delivered to him their opinions on how to put up a barrier so that its actions were destroyed and so that not only those who converted to the sect of the Mosaic Law are returned were to Orthodoxy, but the temptation that came from those who entered was also eliminated already in the said sect and spreading the rules of their apostasy.
As a result of this, the Most Reverend of Voronezh presented to him that this sect arose between Orthodox Christians around 1796 from natural Jews, between Christians living there, and spread in the Voronezh province, Bobrovsky and Pavlovsky districts in six villages: Kozlovsk, Titanka, Gvazda, Klenovka, Verkhniy and Nizhny Mamon and Chigolka. Its essence, without directly representing the Old Testament-Jewish worship, is contained in some rituals only, such as:
the celebration of the Sabbath and circumcision, in the formation of marriages and their divorce according to arbitrariness, in the burial of the dying and in meetings for prayer. Infected Through Judaism, people create temptations and bitterness for their faithful neighbors, namely: on holidays and fasts they make fun of Christians and secretly they instill in young people that their faith is better than the Christian one; that they do not have posts that they can marry whoever they want, even relatives; they get married themselves and are divorced at will; with what and similar temptations they settle debauchery, which is why many single-household residents secretly adhere to their customs, deviating from churches. The number of obvious apostates in state-owned and landed villages at that time

It extended to one and a half thousand souls of both sexes, and secret ones almost more.

Chapter 4

Opinion of the Bishop of Voronezh

In order to destroy the sect, the Bishop of Voronezh proposed: 1) all remove the ministers or leaders of the sect from the villages where they are currently located, wherever the government pleases, as well as the soldier Anton Rogov, stubborn the distributor of it, transfer from the Voronezh battalion to the most remote place, do not send him on home leave or return him to his previous residence. 2)
Those who remain in apostasy, drawn into it by corrupt false teaching and seduction from others, from now on strictly prohibit having Saturday gatherings and doing circumcision of infants; the zemstvo police and rural authorities will closely monitor this to the authorities and parish clergy and church servants. 3) Diocesan the authorities, through spiritual shepherds and prudent exhorters, should use every possible effort to bring those who are in error to their senses and to convert them to Orthodoxy. 4) In each state-owned village where there is a sect, establish one school, and in landowner schools, make this the responsibility of the landowners themselves. In these schools to teach ordinary children, in addition to teaching reading and writing, the Holy History and catechism. 5) If behind all this there are false teachers or representatives
Levitical order, then such persons should be treated in accordance with the Supreme Decree of 1807 January 8 (this decree ordered the recruitment of eunuchs into military service, reading landowners and their villages for recruitment); and the former Voronezh civil governor Dubensky added to these measures from his side: a) So that the intended the most holy pastors, while serving, could not be carried away by shortcomings bribery, then ensure their maintenance and, at the same time, put obstacles in their way. 6)
All false teachers should be sent to military service, those fit for military service - with credit, and not those fit - to non-combat duty without credit, sending them to a remote Georgian corps, from where they should not be given any resignation or vacation and should never be sent on business trips to Russia.
Those unfit for any service shall be sent to a settlement and 7) all real Jews expel from the Pavlovsky and Bobrovsky districts, as well as from the adjacent districts, and do not let them in from now on. Former Minister of Spiritual Affairs and Public Education, without taking any decisive measures on this matter, he proposed it through the Synodal Chief Prosecutor to the Holy Synod for consideration in conjunction with the examples that have been made so far, relating to the aforementioned sect of the Mosaic Law.

The Holy Synod, after examining this matter, found such apostasy from Christianity
The St. Petersburg church has always been dangerous and tempting for the common people, more sensuality of the visible, and in general offensive and harmful to Christianity, and therefore, having considered the instructions in general about schismatics, - by his definition 4

August 1819 the above measures to eradicate the Jewish sect, presented by the Voronezh high priest and civil governor, approved in the following form:

1) To the diocesan bishop to provide on the basis of a secret decree
The Holy Synod of March 22, 1800, the fifth point, having chosen at its discretion clergy who have more experience and skill in bringing about fierce hearts to repentance, learned in prudence, meekness, humility and good character sufficiently tested, send to those villages where the sect exists, so that they with civil officials who will be sent by the head of the province, gave the apostates due admonition and those who would convert would be joined to the orthodoxy according to the rank. 2) The civil government, having learned reliably, who exactly among the apostates are the ministers and leaders, has such immediately convert into military service both combat and non-combat, and those unfit for either which should be sent to remote government factories and other similar places. 3) After that not to return both these and those sent to military service to their previous residence, so that by placing them there the faithful were not tempted again and it could not arise again their secret tricks said sect. 4) Thus appointed to the military send the service, according to the opinion of the former Voronezh civilian Governor Dubensky, to the remote Georgian corps, where he was escorted from Voronezh battalion of the internal guard soldier Rogov, who, as above said, a persistent disseminator of the sect. 5) To those remaining, after the aforementioned admonition, stubborn in apostasy, strictly prohibit all external things, as in the Highest the order of February 32, 1803 stated that the demonstration of apostasy from the faith and all sorts of temptations, for which the zemstvo police should be kept under surveillance; and parish clergymen in converting them to the true path should be guided by certainly by laws issued on this subject, for which the diocesan authorities will have surveillance. 6) If henceforth, for the proposed removal of false teachers and debauchees, among those who remain in apostasy, will appear among them leaders or the first in the sect, without whom it cannot exist, then with such to act as stated above in point 2 about the false teachers themselves. However, regarding the position of the clergy located in those places where the sect exists, which was touched upon in the opinion of the former Voronezh governor, -

The Holy Synod will not leave this separate from this, having demanded from the diocesan the high priest the necessary information, make appropriate considerations based on it and definitions. Subsequently, the Holy Synod, having requested from His Grace Bishop of Voronezh and on this subject information with his opinion, definition 25 February 1824 approved all its provisions. These provisions were as follows: first, unreliable priests from those parishes where the Jewish sect exists, and vacancies to be filled by other worthy ones. Secondly, as in those villages of 33 dessiatines there is not enough land to support priests, not just one with their families located, then to provide them with: 1) those in the villages of Klinovka and Gvazda churches whose parishioners reside in one place should be made into three-parish churches two-parish, and 2) so that at them, as well as at the churches in the villages of Verkhniy and Nizhniy Mamonakh, always have experienced and excellent priests, enroll them and deacons in other parishes at three-state churches, priests and deacons places; this is all the more necessary since they will be engaged in converting apostates to Churches, as well as teaching in the proposed schools for the children of local residents.

Chapter 5
Decree of the Holy Synod to the Bishop of Voronezh

Along with the approval of these provisions, the Holy Synod, by decree of February 29, In 1824, he ordered the Most Reverend Bishop of Voronezh to to the priests chosen to bring to the place of those removed, as well as to others to the priests remaining there, he gave pastoral care, on the basis of the existing regulations and, according to the circumstances, instructions for achieving the goal, acceptable for the eradication of the aforementioned sect. And in March of this year, the city of the synodal-
The Chief Prosecutor proposed to the Holy Synod that, according to the assumption
The Voronezh high priest, in the villages where the Jewish sect arose, should establish schools where, in addition to teaching children reading and writing, they primarily teach Sacred History and Catechism with an explanation of the divinity of the New Testament from books of the Old Testament, the former Minister of Spiritual Affairs and Public Education demands shaft from the trustee of Kharkov University on this subject of the conclusion.
The trustee, and in agreement with him the current Minister of Public Education, others believed that these schools should be subordinated to the spiritual department, on the assumption that that it, through its deans and worthy clergy who are not in at a distance, may have more ways to eradicate this sect and more vigilant supervision and influence on the villagers themselves according to their rank, rather than superintendents of civil schools who have no means at all to attend such schools due to lack of funds for travel. To this, the chief prosecutor added that, information about the number of followers of the Jewish sect, it is clear that in 1818 amounted to 503 souls, and in 1823 it extended to 3771 souls, and therefore such a rapid the increasing schism requires, in his opinion, Mr. Chief Prosecutor, quick and reliable measures to cure this evil, so as not to encounter great difficulties later on further dissemination of it. The Holy Synod, considering the opinion of the the trustee of Kharkiv University and the Minister of Public Education with the opinion His Grace of Voronezh and with those existing in public schools by laws, found that the proposed schools, as being of the same kind as must exist in all parishes according to the Supreme approved rules of public education, be under the jurisdiction and perfect dependence of their district supervisors and the director of the Voronezh schools; that this their dependence on the superintendents of district schools is all the more necessary because they must to educate not only the youth, descended from people infected with Judaism, but also everything is generally located in the same parishes; that the institution is of significant benefit schools in relation to the eradication of the Jewish sect must stem from good instruction of youth in the Law of God, clear and intelligible explanation the divinity of the New Testament from the books of the Old Testament, and for this it is enough to have in schools of good mentors, who can be the same parish priests, which the Holy Synod, when assigning measures to suppress the said sect ordered that the best clergy be appointed there; that supervision over the schools dean, who often performs duties beyond those of a parish priest other assignments and not receiving not only travel expenses, but also no other money, will be a burden more sensitive for them than for the district inspectors schools that use a specific salary of 300 rubles a year, and that finally with the assignment of these schools to the spiritual department, a new type should have been introduced schools, intermediate between secular and religious schools, this kind of schools, which would require a special order of management and supervision, while schools, whether parish or rural, according to $ 31 preliminary rules of the people education, should be governed by their own statutes. Why did the Holy Synod, based on $20 rules of public education, which are the basis for the arrangement of such schools where they do not yet exist, have been given a significant responsibility by the trustee university, by its determination on April 6, provided all the care and care of the Minister of Public Education with the fact that when, with diligence school authorities will be established in places inhabited by those who have fallen away to Judaism, schools, and permanent methods will be determined for their content, and future teachers will be their work is assigned salaries as a benefit to those methods that are intended for them the diocesan authorities: then the Holy Synod will not leave it to do proper arrangements regarding the assignment of teachers there and proper instructions and for the guidance of youth in the Law of God, and for the protection from all opinions contrary to Christianity that may be suggested to him parents, relatives and strangers who apostatized from Christianity in Judaism.

Chapter 6

About the Jewish sect in the Oryol province

In 1814, the Most Reverend Dositheus, Bishop of Oryol, reported To the Holy Synod, that two brothers, merchants Boris and Ivan Yakovlev with his families, and their son-in-law Joseph Ivanov, having departed from Christian faith, profess the Jewish faith; they are circumcised, keep the Sabbath, disdaining with all Christian sacraments and rites, and blaspheme the holy icons. In such a
They also drew the peasant Ivan, who lived with them as a worker, into apostasy from the faith Zhigulin, who also, moving away from Christian law, accepted circumcision. He,
His Grace reported this to the Oryol civil governor for investigation with the deputy from the spiritual side and the treatment of the guilty according to the laws. In order of importance In this case, the Holy Synod granted the then synodal chief the prosecutor should contact the head of the Ministry of Police for the adoption of the order measures to stop this pernicious delusion. Then, upon request
The Governing Senate of the General Assembly of Moscow Departments by decree from The Holy Synod of June 21 of the same year ordered His Grace Orlovsky, so that he would choose the said merchants for admonition and conversion to the orthodox faith Yakovlevs, the tradesman Mikhailov and the peasant Zhigulin from the parish, whether the seat of their clergy, or from another place of the most excellent priest-a minister who would have such qualities, abilities, knowledge and education, what the exhorter should be according to the explanation in paragraph 5 of the secret decree

The Holy Synod of March 22, 1800, set forth, and entrusting him with this matter, giving special pastoral instruction to him so that this clergyman would be of the same degree, what success will there be in converting these people or hardening them in about his error, he reported to him, the Most Reverend, weekly, and he, the Most Reverend, based on those reports, he must teach the exhorter the necessary guidance to bringing the lost to the path of truth, by setting a final deadline for the exhortation at your discretion; in the case of their sincere conversion to the Orthodox faith, do an order to join them according to their rank, and about all that in detail reported to the Holy Synod. Then, in April 1821, His Grace Orlovsky reported To the Holy Synod, that of those apostates, the peasant Zhigulin died, and for exhortations of the merchants Yakovlevs and the tradesman Mikhailov, Yelets Cathedral was elected Archpriest Gorokhov, who, in order to convince them, explained to them the difference between the Old and New Testament and presenting to them for conversion to Orthodoxy various passages from Holy Scripture, talked with them for almost 9 months; but they responded that that, without condemning the Faith of Christ, they do not consider themselves apostates from it, but firmly stand in the fact that they have never been Christians, but maintain the faith of their fathers, i.e.
Jewish, which is still professed and which cannot be changed under any circumstances

They don't agree. Why did the Holy Synod of May 13, 1821, address him, His Grace?
ordered: to stop exhorting them; and upon the report to the bishops again, that these the apostates were entrusted to the Yelets mayor under constant supervision, it was given to know from The Holy Synod on the intention, in which they, the Yakovlevs and Mikhailov, remained behind the admonition he made to the Governing Senate on July 22, 1822. What a regulation about them followed in the Governing Senate, about that to His Holiness
The Synod does not know."

Chapter 7

About the Jewish sect in the Tula province

About the Jewish sect in the Tula province, the Most Reverend Abraham, former Bishop of Tula, in 1819 reported to the Holy Synod that the Kashira district in in five villages, peasants of various landowners who adhered to the Jewish faith opened up and Kashira merchants Mikhailov and Krasnov with their families, about 150 people in total. produced on this subject by the Tula consistory under the deputy with secular the investigation revealed, among other things, that the content of their faith is that they expect one salvation in the Mosaic law, they do not go to the Orthodox Church, they do not make the sign of the cross, do not receive church sacraments - and Easter they perform according to Jewish law on March 15; that they maintain this faith, according to the announcement elders in their families, from ancient times, but until 1811 they hid themselves to avoid being called confession from Christians, and from that year they clearly revealed themselves in this confession of theirs, and that Their only guide and mentor is the peasant Ivan from the village of Lublin. Oskin, and along it the village of Verkhne-Rezhkina, peasant Nikolai Demidov and merchant Krasnov, of whom Oskin admired the position of Jewish rabbi, buries the bodies those who died, even by an unknown death, in a cemetery they had established without permission, performs marriages and other ceremonies, and in his absence, his children do this his. These Oskin and Krasnov were summoned through the Tula provincial government in Consistory for exhortation to accept the Christian faith: but Krasnov for the reason decrepitude and illness could not appear, and Oskin, with admonitions, due to the blindness of his mind and hardening of the heart, in its delusion, and especially in the non-recognition of the triune The deities, in rejecting the Messiah, even in the sense in which the Jews expect him, in Jewish observance of the Sabbath, in the carnal understanding of the future Kingdom, in he remained adamant in his disregard for the worship of holy icons and other errors, and therefore he was sent to the provincial government to report on him and his actions, in relation to taking on the rabbinical office, discretion. From among his followers 74 people were converted to the path of truth by the exhortations, and at their request are attached by rite to the Orthodox Church, and the other families number up to 70 people, through their many exhortations, remained steadfast in the Jewish faith; why is such inflexibility of theirs also subject to consideration by the provincial board.

However, even from these, the majority give hope for their conversion Christianity, but are held back by the false teachings of the aforementioned peasant Oskin. to this the bishop added that during his visit to the diocese in 1819, I made my stay in Kashira district an absolute duty to seek out those who have been carried away by the false teacher into error and to return them to the depths with the word of truth Christ's Church, and in case of their inflexibility, entrust them to their parish priests.

to continue the proper admonitions over them, having provided them with a bishop in instructions on this subject for parish priests in the decree from the Holy Synod of March 22, 1800, set out, with their confirmation of success in this matter report to him in detail for thirds of the year, so that in case of their failure, he could to see whether it would be necessary to replace them with more capable priests. The Holy Synod, by decree of July 3, 1819, confirmed the decision made by His Grace. an order to convert those people who remained in error to the path of truth. Together with that, he presented the former Minister of Spiritual Affairs and Public Education with the task of according to the content of the said report, proper communication with the manager Ministry of Police.

Chapter 8

About the Jewish sect in the Saratov province

In relation to the Jewish sect existing in the Saratov province, then The Holy Synod knew from the report of His Grace Penza in 1822 years that the Molokans living in the Balashevsky district, in the village of Inyasev, perform in Saturdays, according to the custom of the Jews, a sham worship service with the disorderly shouting of singers, and how the building in which they meet consists of the altar of the local church in 39 fathoms, then with this cry they interfere with the church service and upset upcoming. Why did he, the high priest, refer this to the head of the Saratov provinces, and the Holy Synod, as a result of this report, by the decision of April 14, 1822 years provided the former Minister of Spiritual Affairs and Public Education with the opportunity to communicate secretly with the head of the Ministry of Internal Affairs about such tempting and intolerant actions of the Molokans for the adoption of measures to stop them, as external evidence of apostasy from the Church, by virtue of the Supreme Command in the rescript from On February 21, 1803, given to the Tambov civil governor, - the proper mer. As a result, the Molokan worship service, by order of the manager The Ministry of Internal Affairs has destroyed it, and the Molokans themselves are obliged to sign a subscription under what guise not to spread one's heresy and send out ministry from house to house their own without any external ceremonies. They ordered: about this, approved by the Supreme the position of the committee of gentlemen ministers, which contains rules on disgust and userooting the Jewish sect, for the purpose of proper and unconditional execution, in Moscow and Georgian-Imeretian Holy Synod office, to the synodal members and other most holy diocesan bishops to send decrees, ordering in this case: 1) so that the diocesan authorities will ward off and eradicate this evil, paying special attention to the parish priests, entered into the immediate examination and testing of moral state, qualities of knowledge and experience these priests regarding whether they can convert those who are mistaken in the paths of truth must correspond to the rules prescribed for parish priests in the secret decree of the Holy Synod of March 22, 1800: under which during the consideration, one should not leave without consideration the fact: was any of them on trial and in fines, and is not currently under investigation and trial, and upon this consideration and testing of those priests who prove unreliable, to appoint to change by other worthy priests, and then about the information and circumstances to all the above-mentioned subjects related, with provisions and conclusions to submit to the Holy Synod for consideration, attaching to it service records of the priests who will be elected to replace those appointed for replacement.

2) Concerning the admonition and conversion of such apostates (where they exist or, contrary to expectations, will be revealed) by people chosen for this in the form of missionaries: having chosen now from the clergy, worthy and known before the rest in teaching, prudence and in the abilities proven by experience, in bringing the erring to the path of truth, as many of them as are needed, send them to those places regardless parish priests, who are to stay there for as long as circumstances and the success of the appeal will require it; and then return to the previous ones to their places with a detailed report to their superiors about everything they have done will be. 3) Such missionaries, when they are sent out both now and in the future, when cases will require that, to provide instructions, which would, by the way, mainly contained the rules: a) to act on minds and hearts apostates with meekness and humility; b) choose appropriate occasions for this; c) in the guise of in your teachings and convictions, do not show them any kind of insistence and effort, but to show more simplicity and ease than ordinary conversation inherent; 4) in the very explanation of the divinity of the New Testament, not so much to be guided by one's own reasoning, as much as by the instructions from the books of the Old Testament and the scriptures Fathers of the Church, distinguished more than others by clarity of thought and purity of word. what instructions should be prescribed to the Holy Synod. 4) In the dioceses where there was or still is a Jewish sect which was used to suppress of this measure and were they really for it? Was there also no such thing under Tula? the dioceses subsequently applied something to the measures that were used for the Jews of Kashira! Provide the Holy Synod with detailed information about about the number, and where there are still such apostates today. (P.P. P. 3. T. XI, No. 30,436).

September 15. The Supremely approved report of the Synod. On additional "Resolution concerning measures to prevent the spread of the Subbotnik sect."

Chapter 9

Report on the Voronezh sectarians

“When in the Voronezh province in the Bobrovsky and Pavlovsky districts it opened among the villagers there was a Jewish sect, called the Jewish one, and at first During the persecution of the same, complaints were received from apostates belonging to it oppression of local authorities, then Your Imperial Majesty was pleased to order the former Minister of Spiritual Affairs and Public Education, Prince Golitsyn, to carry out appropriate research on this subject.

Prince Golitsyn, having gathered through the Bishop of Voronezh and the local civil the governor all the necessary information about the sect, along with their opinion, offered them to consideration by the Synod.

Based on these opinions and other considerations, the Synod decided to exterminate the Jewish sects the following measures: 1) All those who have apostatized from the Christian faith to Judaism should in their villages, through the most worthy people from the local clergy, the proper admonition, in front of officials from the civil authorities, and those of them who convert to Christianity, join Orthodoxy according to the rite. 2) False teachers and their leaders should be converted into military service, both combat and non-combat. and send to the troops located in Georgia, where they will be escorted from Voronezh battalion of the internal guard and private Rogov, who is stubborn a disseminator of the Jewish sect; those unfit for any military service should be sent away to remote government factories and other similar places. 3) After all such not to return them to their former places of residence, so that their resettlement there will not be the faithful were tempted and the Jewish sect could not arise again. 4) Those who following the said admonition, they will remain stubborn in apostasy, strictly prohibit any external action that shows a departure from faith and any temptations.

These measures were included in the regulations of the Committee of Ministers, approved by your
By Your Imperial Majesty, this year, February 5, on which day, although it was appointed the leaders of this sect, wherever it is located, and their assistants should be sent away immediately fit for military service...

And in appointing these two measures, the Synod had the following experience as a basis: when, upon the appearance of that sect in 1806 in the Voronezh province, after the admonition from the side of spiritual apostates, three mentors were given over to the military service, the consequence of this was that out of the 66 people who made up that sect, 59 converted to Orthodoxy; remained in unbelief, in addition to those converted to military service service, only four people, and then the sect clearly did not arise until 1814, yes would have been hopefully destroyed forever, if three of the false teachers the single-householders who did not bow to piety were then removed, one, namely Rogov, who deceived with the appearance of feigned conversion to Orthodoxy, did not remain there a long time before applying for service, and then instead of being sent to a remote place
The Voronezh command was not left in the local battalion of the internal guard, and at the same time, he had not yet taken advantage of home leave, which also provided him with opportunities restore that sect.

Such an experience gives rise to a justifiable fear that even now, according to all the rules, to the overthrow of the Jewish sect laid down, this evil will not be completely eradicated, if the heads of the sect and their assistants are not specifically assigned service in Your Majesty's troops located further from those provinces in which the aforementioned sect exists, and if they continue to use temporary home leave, and especially leave from service, with the right to be placed in places of their current residence."

Chapter 10

Resolution of the Ministers

In addition to this, in the position of the gentlemen ministers regarding the duty of spiritual the authorities in the rule say: “If, independently of the parish priests, the spiritual the authorities consider it good to impose the conversion or admonition of apostates from people chosen by him for this, then this must be done without any participation "civil department."

The rapid spread of the Jewish network in the Voronezh province and the emergence under different names in other places they require that this rule was put into action; which is why the Synod decided to send it to all the places where
This sect exists, missionaries from the clergy with proper instructions.

But, - how will missionaries be appointed from the clergy receiving maintenance from the income from service in their present churches and parishes if they are sent away, then the service will be entrusted to the remaining priests of those
the same churches, and the nearest ones, who will receive half of those incomes for themselves, and the other one should be given to the family of that missionary; the mission should have travel to designated places with the payment of travel money and to have food, but they will not be able to meet such expenses. Moreover, they cannot to limit one's actions to certain places and times, then - how therefore, and as a warning to those who might follow from these apostates against the missionaries any unfair slander, - should necessarily be missionaries for travel to designated locations and for maintenance during their stay there to determine the benefit from the treasury.

In these circumstances, the Synod considers it necessary to supplement the Most High approved by Your Majesty the regulations of the committee of the Ministers add: 1) the mentors of the Jewish sect sent into military service and their assistants should be sent only to the corps located in Georgia, in that the assumption that they, not knowing the Georgian language, cannot disperse between the local residents of their false teaching, and among comrades of military rank not strict supervision of the management will allow them to do so. 2) By definition, they will not be fired there from service and not to give temporary leave to their homes, for such removal of them from homeland and being cut off forever from relatives and people they know can to produce in the followers of the sect their fear of continuing further in their apostasy, and even more so to support or distribute something else; 3) finally to issue, - according to demands of diocesan bishops, from local treasury chambers, to the account State Treasury for travel on both routes, two horses for each, - travel money, and one ruble for maintenance, calculated during the journey for 50 miles, and during stays on site - daily.

Most gracious Sovereign! The Synod, most humbly submitting to Your
To the Imperial Majesty for his discretion these additions are requested "Your Majesty's highest decree."

Chapter 11

The Second Supreme Document on Sectarians

"Resolution. So be it."

1 P.P. S. 3, vol. 40, no. 30, 488.

Second document.

During the reign of Emperor Nicholas I, this is the position of the Holy Synod of 1825 December 18, announced by the Chief Prosecutor to the head of the Ministry internal affairs, regarding married people converting from the Jewish sect to Orthodoxy.

Here is its content:

“Having received Your Excellency’s letter of September 10 of this year, No. 943 on the resolution of the question: is it possible for those who are converting from the Jewish sect to Orthodoxy allows married persons of both sexes to enter into other marriages according to the rules of the Greek Russian religion, I proposed it, in accordance with your demand, the good judgment of the Holy Governing Synod. The Holy Synod Having sufficiently considered the above issue, I found it necessary to do the difference between the marriages of natural Jews and the marriages of those who were once children The Orthodox Greek-Russian Church, through error and ignorance, fell into Jewish impiety. In the first case, one should act in such a way that if someone from the Jews who married into Judaism, he will accept our Orthodox faith, and his wife will remain as before in the Jewish law, then about the admonition and his wife to accept Orthodox faith to have relations with the diocesan bishop; if she with due admonition she will remain in her former law, and live with that husband of hers wishes, then leave them in marriage without dissolution on the basis of the 1st letter Saint Apostle Paul to the Corinthians, chapter 7, verses 12, 13, 14, in which it is depicted: “If If a brother has an unfaithful wife, and she desires to live with him, he shall not leave him: For the unfaithful husband is sanctified in the sight of his faithful wife, and the unfaithful wife is sanctified in the sight of her faithful husband." Moreover, according to the provisions of the Holy Synod, which took place in 1721, on marriages non-believers with the Orthodox, they should be obliged to sign subscriptions, the wife in order that she born with that husband of their children neither by seduction, nor by threats, nor by other means did not bring anyone into Judaism by any means, and to her husband for maintenance

She did not dishonor or reproach the Orthodox faith; but she obliged her husband to do so, he carefully took care to bring his wife to acceptance by exhortation Orthodox faith. If the wife, due to her husband's conversion to the Christian faith will remain unyielding in her former law and will not wish to cohabit with him, then in this case their marriage will be dissolved completely, allowing her husband to enter into another relationship an Orthodox person on the basis of the same chapter of the Epistle of St. Apostle Paul, in which,

By the way, in verse 15 it says: “If an unbeliever is separated, let him be separated, not "Porabisya bo brat ili sestry", etc.

This is also done in the event that the wife turns from Judaism to Orthodox faith, and the husband will remain in unbelief.

As for those persons who, through error and ignorance, have departed from the Orthodox Greek-Russian faith, fell into Jewish impiety, and being in one, entered into marriage with a woman infected with the same disease according to the Mosaic Law wickedness, then, having been illuminated by the light of God's grace, they will again turn into the depths Orthodox faith, but their wives will remain in the same error, then such persons, through a learned and capable priest to exhort according to the power of the 31st rule of the local Council of Laodicea, - the wife in that she, leaving her error, joined the Orthodox faith, and her husband wanted him to stay married to her with her that if they mutually agree to everything, then they will be married again in churches according to church regulations. Otherwise, their marriage is by virtue of that the rules of the Council of Laodicea, as perfect outside our Orthodox Church, not to be recognized as marriage, but as adulterous union; for those who maintain an Orthodox faith to allow her husband to enter into another marriage, if he wishes, according to the rules of the Greek-Russian Church.

Regarding this position of the Holy Synod, which has already been communicated to everyone to the most holy diocesan bishops for proper execution, I am duty-bound

I consider it necessary to inform you, dear sir."

1 Second complete collection of laws, vol. I, No. 4.

This year, as reported by the Voronezh Diocesan News and other newspapers, a sect has begun to spread rapidly in the Voronezh diocese Judaizers, who, while outwardly considering themselves Orthodox, until recent times performed all the rites of the Orthodox Church, without, of course, recognizing the sacraments educational value. Recently, sectarians have begun to turn to to the Minister of Internal Affairs with requests for permission to separate from the Orthodox the church to which they had previously belonged in pretense, and to become openly followers of the "biblical Mosaic faith." Such a statement in different time followed from all who adhere to the Sabbatarianism, living as in Pavlovsky and Bobrovsky districts. Of course, petitions submitted to the minister, were returned to them without satisfaction; after which the subbotniks completely seemed to be from the external performance of Orthodox rituals and began to avoid even meetings with Orthodox priests. Along with their renunciation of Orthodoxy, they began to openly perform their religious rites. The number of Judaizers There are over 900 souls of both sexes. Recently, an entire family from the village of Mechetki converted from Orthodoxy to the Mosaic faith in the village of Mikhailovskaya Donskoy area. The performer of circumcision is, apparently, one specific person all the sectarians of the Pavlovsky and Bobrovsky districts. So in Gvozda of the Pavlovsky district
A peasant from the village of Ozerok in the Bobrovsky district came to perform circumcision Efim Bocharenkov, reputed to be a rabbi and performing all the rites of the Jewish religion. This was the reason for the restriction of the Jews' rights to free choice.
places of residence in the Great Russian provinces.

Chapter 12

Punishment of Jews for seducing two Christian girls

The fourth document relates to the reign of Emperor Nicholas [and published on December 9, 1826. It confirms the punishment determined for Jews for the seduction of two Catholic women into the Jewish faith, and prescribes strict observance a decree that Christians should not be in the service of the Jews. Its content following:

“The Governing Senate listened to the proposal of Mr. Chief Prosecutor Volkov, which explains: by definition of the 3rd section of the 5th department of the Government Senate, to which more than 9 Jews are sentenced to punishment for converting spirits the Minister of Justice introduced the Roman Catholic girls into their faith a note to the committee of gentlemen ministers, which, finding and for its part defining Pra- the Senate's ruling on this matter was correct, and he believed that it should be brought to execution; and at the meeting on the 31st of last August it was explained to the committee that to this day
The article was followed by a personal order from His Imperial Majesty:
"I agree, if there are Jews under 30 years old, then they should be sent to the soldiers Georgia." On such a Highest order, following the order of the Minister Justice, who followed him, Mr. Chief Prosecutor, on September 14th of last year, he proposes to the Governing Senate for proper implementation. According to the information in The Governing Senate found itself in the presence of cases concerning the Jews of the Vidza and Solotsk kahals, convicted for the conversion of two Catholic girls, Sapitskaya and Savitskaya, to Jewish faith, represented by the Vilnius civil governor, and The Governing Senate, after examining the circumstances of the matter, determined: the conversion of Savitskaya and Sapitskaya from the Roman Catholic faith to Jewish law happened in the city of Vidzy; from an early age they served in Jewish homes, and when Savitskaya was 18 years old, and Sapitskaya was 16, the first, seduced by the promises of the Jews, that through the adoption of their law will change the poor state into a happy one, this inspired Sapitskaya, and both, through frivolity, decided to deviate from Christianity confession and accept the Jewish law, which happened in May 1817
the time of the Catholic feast of Corpus Christi; and so that such a lawless act could have been committed without hindrance and the crime would have had no witnesses, the Jews
They hid the Catholic women in their cemeteries and performed the initial rites over them. appeals, they called Sapitskaya - Rivka, and Savitskaya - Sarka, they held them for a while several days in Vidzy, they took him out of that city and, escorting him from the town to a small town, in which they completed the conversion, and in another they married Sapitskaya to a Jew, they made a marriage contract, calling her a Jewess who converted from Christianity to Jewish faith; and to further conceal the crime, they sent both to Courland province, to the town of Grubino, where Sapitskaya’s husband, having left her, hid; and She went back to the Vilnius province, where she was subsequently summoned and Savitskaya; here they, having repented of their error, already in the spirit of Christianity, both died. Such an event is proven by the circumstances of the case; and although according to it many Jews were slandered, but for committing a crime among like-minded people

According to their faith, only the following Jews were found guilty: Meer Veniaminovich.
According to Savitskaya, he was the first to persuade her to change her faith with selfish proposals and he informed the Jewish clergy about it; and according to his own testimony, he spoke to her about his law to instill the rules of it, suggested that she go over to theirs faith, and when he learned that she wanted to accept it, he advised her to go to the kahal and to announce to them his desire; about which he himself promised to report to the rabbi and sub-rabbi, and
At the beginning of the investigation he fled from Vidzy, precisely out of fear of responsibility.
Vidz: Rabbi David Ginzberg and Rabbi Omer Abramovich, who explanation of Savitskaya and Sapitskaya, affirming their intention to change the Christian confession, turned into their law; the Jew Girsha Kushelevich exposed the rabbi and the sub-rabbi, that by their order he accepted Savitskaya and Sapitskaya into his house on cemetery and they gave him a certificate, according to which he escorted the converts from from one place to another, and received assistance from the Jewish kahals; Meer Veniaminovich showed that Nodravvin is the main criminal of this case, in which although Ginsberg and Abramovich did not confess and the evidence itself was not found; but how they did not refute the evidence against them in any way; and an appeal could not will be accomplished without their knowledge, as clergy; and in the certificate issued by Savitskaya from the Grubinsky rabbi, it is written that Savitskaya and Sapitskaya had in their hands papers, data from the Vidza clergy Ginsberg and Omer that they turned to Jewish faith; therefore, all such reasons and the escape of Sub-Rabbi Omer they quite open up their crime, and by force of the decree of April 28, 1775 (May 1-

y) of the day, mere persistence in confession cannot be a reason for their justification.
The sub-rabbi of the town of Solotsk, Paftaliovich, and his wife: the first completed the address; and the latter participated in it, in which they, like the two Jews mentioned, did not confessed, but the arguments were found to be consistent with military processes guilty, because in addition to the testimony of Savitskaya and Sapitskaya, the Jews Kushelevich and Itska testify against them in what they accomplished with the rest of the Solotskys spiritual rites of conversion, which is confirmed by written evidence Grubinsky rabbi, in which it is explained that from this sub-rabbi Paftalovich and others
The Solotsky clergy, who hid during the investigation, received a notice that

The appeal ended at the Solotsk Spiritual Assembly).

Chapter 13

Testimony of the Jew Kushelevich and his wife

“The Jew Kushelevich and his wife, by their own admission, accepted Savitskaya and Sapitskaya were brought into their home, they were taught Jewish prayers, and after the completion of Kushelevich took them out of Vidzy and was present at the completion of the conversion. The Jew who married Sapitskaya, his father David the barber, Solotsky, Vernik Abramovich, schoolboy Yakheliovich, sub-rabbi Poseliovich and Zelviolovich, those who have entered into marriage and are signing a marriage contract, and therefore obvious accomplices to the crime. But of them, Yakheliovich and Zelviolovich have already died, and the rest fled. Besides these, the main perpetrators of the crime turned out to be Leizer Abramovich and Movsha Kelmanovich Gurvich with their wives were involved in this their own - Savitskaya and Sapitskaya were in the service of these Jews, and although they themselves did not admit to influencing Savitskaya and Sapitskaya to change the law or knew about this, however, the following circumstances prove that they could not help but to know about such a case. By their own admission, to the very day of the appeal Savitskaya and Sapitskaya were in their service, and according to the latter, a Jew Kushelevich and his wife, they, Abramovich and Nelynanovich, came to Kushelevich for with these girls and took them to the city, even spent the night there in order to An unexpected, sudden concealment would not arouse suspicion. The investigation revealed that After the appeal had already begun, Savitskaya spent the night at Abramovich’s, and Sapitskaya at her father's, to whom she was brought by Gurvich's wife, and the next day both of them, returning to Kushelevich, were taken out of Vidzy. In addition, the Jew Beniamovich, who had seduced Savitskaya, was then living with Abramovich and exposed him in a face-to-face confrontation, that he knew about everything. Thus, the denial of these participants cannot be respected, especially Abramovich, judging by the fact that he had already been convicted and left suspected of two very important cases, namely the attack on the falvarok Kazirsky and about the murder of the landowner Sabetsky. Schoolboy Berko Yugman, despite the his piracy in knowledge of the present case is exposed by the testimony and Kushelevich, his wife and Meer Veniaminovich, because in face-to-face confrontations with him the first explained that he came to the cemetery to see Savitskaya and Sapitskaya to find out about their intention, announced the order of the kahal to accept them into the cemetery and was present departure from Vidz; and the last thing he told him was that the rabbi and sub-rabbi had issued certificate of conversion of Catholic women. Yugman did not deny any evidence, then this and his status among the members of society make it impossible to give credence to his denial and free from legal punishment. Finally, in the knowledge and treatment of the aforementioned girls and failure to report this are exposed by the Solotsk kahal cantor Borukh and hospital attendant Itska; the first was convicted by the testimony of the Jews: Kushelevich and Itska, and by those, which gave reasons for converts, and the second by his own admission that from curiosity was present during the conversion rites and did not report it, considering it a matter this is unimportant. Having considered the degree of importance of the crime of each of all those registered persons, by force of the code of Chapter 22, paragraph 24 of the decree of June 3 (July 3), 1838, Lithuanian statute, section 12, article 9 and the Charter of the Deanery, article 242, Governing The Senate finds that in accordance with these, the Vilnius Chief Court has determined: to punish Meer Veniaminovich 10, sub-rabbis: Osher 15 and Neftaliovich 10 blows whipped, and then sent to hard labor; Neftaliovich's wife, together with her husband, send him there to work without punishment, and punish the Jew Itsku with 50 lashes with remaining in the previous residence. As for Cantor Borukh and Girshi Kushelevich and his wife, although the release of the first two from corporal punishment old age, in accordance with the decree of 1798, November 19, and the awarding of the latter to the punishment of 25 lashes corresponds to their crime, but their release due to old age, from exile to Siberia with their remaining in the Vilnius province, - contrary to the said decree and the same one that followed on April 9 (30), 1814. It is equally impossible to agree with the intention of the civil governor leaving Leizer Abramovich under suspicion and with the decision of the main court on Movshe Gurvich and Verka Yugman, so that they would be under suspicion, and moreover, the first fined one hundred rubles for keeping a Christian woman in his service; since above It is said that all three Jews not only knew about the conversion of Catholic women and did not report it about that, but by their actions they are revealed to be participants in the crime, therefore, leaving them under suspicion would be inappropriate to either the gravity of the crime or the legal punishment to which the main criminals are subjected.

With these respects, the Governing Senate determines: 1) The decision of the Chief the trial of the Jews Veniaminovich, Osher, Neftalionovich, according to the strength of this last one and The Jew Itske is to be approved. 2) The Jews Borukh and Kushelevich are to be exiled to Siberia for settlement. common with the wife of the latter. 3) Jews Abramovich, Gurvich and Yugman, punishing each 40 lashes, exile to Siberia. 4) Other persons affected or those who participated in that, namely the Woods and Solotsk Jews: the slaves of Berka, Zysk, Rosenberg, Leib the Reznik, Leizarovich and Iogelyovich, although none of them are in any way did not confess and there is no legal evidence against them in the case; but how can it be to allow the kahal, as the leaders of the Jewish community, to be unaware of in such an important case; the other Jews did not justify themselves at all in the slander of some of them Savitskaya and Sapitskaya, and the others were Jews Veniaminovich and Kushelevich: that therefore, all of them should be kept under suspicion under the supervision of the local police and not allowed to any public positions. 5) In other articles, the decision of the Supreme Court leave it in force. And as the conviction of the criminals followed before November 19 of the past 1825, by the Most Merciful Manifesto of January 1 of this year it was decided: “Criminals convicted before the day of our accession to the throne, i.e. until November 19th of last year to the commercial execution or corporal punishment and to exile in hard labor, or to Siberia for settlement, to be released from execution and punishment, exile only to work or to a settlement”, then on the basis of this manifesto, not subjecting the said criminals to the sentenced commercial execution and corporal punishment, to exile from them Veniaminovich, Osher and Neftalionovich with his wife to hard labor, and the rest to Siberia for settlement. About the execution of which Vilensky the provincial government and the main court are ordered to appeal to the latter genuine case. Moreover, the provincial government must make it a matter of utmost importance the duty to subject those guilty to legal punishment for the release of surety of some of the defendants in such an important case. Meanwhile to use all possible measures, through the provincial government, to find those who have disappeared and other criminals visible from the testimony of the Grubensky rabbi, and according to the investigation to subject them to the strictness of the laws; about which the Courland Provincial the ruling regarding the said rabbi; finally the present case and certain those guilty of this shall be punished to prevent future commission of similar crimes crimes against state regulations to be published in those provinces, where the Supremely approved regulation on Jews on December 9, 1804 allowed them stay, namely: Lithuanian, Belarusian, Little Russian - Kyiv, Minskskaya, Volyn, Podolsk, Astrakhan, Caucasian, Kherson and Tauride, as well as the Belostok region; and about this, send decrees to the provincial governments with the following, so that the registration would be announced uniformly in the Jewish kahals; moreover, strictly confirm to the boards that local police, according to the decree of April 22 1820 and the fundamental laws depicted in it, strictly observed that People of Christian faiths were by no means in the service of the Jews. What about

To the Little Russian and Lithuanian military and the Belarusian Governor-General, the main courts and equivalent judicial places of the aforementioned provinces shall be informed decrees, and to the 1st and 2nd departments of the 5th department and to the 2nd department of the 6th department
The Governing Senate shall report the information. And since this conclusion
If more than 9 people are sentenced to punishment, then on the basis of the Supreme Command 22 December 1817 (January 9, 1818), without implementing this conclusion, to request the Supreme Permission through the Minister of Justice. Ordered: about the due execution of the personally handwritten Highest order of His Imperial Majesty, announced on the 31st day of August of this year to the committee of gentlemen ministers with depicting the determination of the Governing Senate to order the Vilnius:
to the provincial government and the main court by decrees with an appeal to the last suba real case; but about the prescribed case and the person determined guilty in it punishment, - to prevent the future commission of similar crimes against state regulations, - to be published in those provinces where the Supreme the regulations on Jews approved on December 9, 1804 allowed them to stay, and namely: Lithuanian, Belarusian, Little Russian - Kyiv, Minsk, Volyn, Podolsk, Astrakhan, Caucasian, and Belostok regions, and about that in the provincial governments of these provinces and the Belostok regional administration should be sent decrees so that it would be announced equally in the Jewish kahals. Moreover, strictly confirm to the boards that local police, according to the decree of April 22 1820 and the state regulations depicted in it, strictly observed that People of Christian faiths were by no means in the service of the Jews. What about to the Chief of the Civil Service in Georgia, Astrakhan Province and Caucasian region, Little Russian and Lithuanian military and Belarusian to the governors-general, the main courts and the judicial places equal to them of the aforementioned the provinces should be informed by decrees...

Not without reason believing that printing is the most convenient way to all sorts of misconceptions are being propagated, and by the way, the Jews the government can most easily use it to spread their false teachings drew attention to this, and in order to prevent this inconvenience, it legalized 1826 year, June 10, the following decrees on the censorship department concerning Jewish books.

$ 194. Jewish books published to date in Russia without censorship permissions.

$195. The following Jewish books are permitted to be printed in Russia: 1) books Holy Scripture without interpretations and 2) prayer books without additions on subjects strangers.

$ 196. When examining other Jewish books, the censors, in addition to the general rules are guided in particular by the following:

$ 197. Books that contain blasphemy against Christianity and the Divine its founder, are prohibited.

$ 198. It is also prohibited to print books that instill Jews are taught hatred or contempt for people of different faiths rules that are contrary to morality and public welfare, such as: it is forbidden to testify in favor of a Christian, or it is allowed to deceive Christian.

$199. Controversial books between Jewish sects may be approved printing, if they do not contain anything contrary to censorship rules."

Chapter 14

On Jewish propaganda in Poland

When the Jews in Poland, having gained strength and freedom, began to convert Christians to the Jewish faith, then the Catholic clergy involuntarily began to oppose it, primarily literary. In the 1540s, a book appeared: On the Amazing misconceptions of the Jews. " 41$ is j". (1 7\ 7] 4, p.
46, 1860). The author demands harsh measures against the Jews, such as the destruction newly erected synagogues and restrictions on the Jewish population in cities a certain number. In 1543, priest Stanislav Lvovchik published a book in Krakow under the title "About the Saints Killed by the Jews" (" Sis liŕis 91").

He ends his book with a reminder that the Jews should be completely expelled from Poland'.

1 Chatsky - ibid.
2 Saski, About Isi I robasy, 1.1, 51. 106, ed. 1861.

Another preventive measure against the “infection of Judaism” was, according to in the opinion of Catholic zealots, in the isolation of Jews from the Christian population.
The then head was particularly concerned with such “sanitary” considerations.
Polish Church Peter Gamrat. He was extremely concerned about the fact that in
In some Polish schools, Jewish children studied together with Christian children.
In his message of July 15, 1542, he proves all the harm that comes from such joint training for the Christian religion in view of the spreading Judaizing "epidemic"'.

1 Szaski, Kozrgama, 1. 99.

In the interests of general and systematic opposition to Jewish heresy the clergy decided to encourage the secular authorities to limit the rights of the Jews and beyond to restore ancient church decrees that were intended to humiliate the Jews in the eyes of the Christian population, to isolate them in all spheres of life and instill in them contempt, as if they were outcasts. Many of these regulations were introduced in Poland.
have long been and especially solemnly confirmed by the Kalisz Synod of 1420 (at Vladislav Jagiello); but over time they fell into oblivion, and only some of them (laws on distinctive Jewish clothing) were again confirmation in the Petrovka Sejm.

It was necessary to refresh them and supplement them with new elements, in accordance the demands of the time. This was done at the Synod of the Polish clergy, which took place in 1542 in Petrokovo, under the chairmanship of Peter Gamrat.
"Constitution-
The "Tutsion" of this Synod on the Jews, sent to the dioceses, is distinguished by its extraordinary with a strange tone and harsh expressions. Here is its content:

“The Holy Synod, taking into account how many dangers threaten Christians and the Church from the masses of those expelled from all neighboring states and Jews admitted to Poland who do not hesitate to mix the holy with the ungodly, - decided:

1. So that due to their large concentration in the country, even worse things do not happen, what should be feared, it was decided to petition His Majesty the King: so that the number of Jews in the Gniezno province and especially in the city Krakow was reduced to certain sizes, such as those allocated the area can accommodate them.

2. So that in other places where they, the Jews, have not had a residence for a long time, do not give them the right of residence, prohibit them from buying houses there from Christians, and those bought must be obliged to sell them back to Christians within a certain period of time, after which these houses, if they have not yet been sold, must go into property of the royal treasury.

3. That new synagogues, even those built by them in Krakow, are ordered was to be destroyed.

4. Since the Church tolerates the Jews only so that they may remind us of the torments of the Savior, then their number should not increase at all; according to according to the decrees of the holy canons, they are only allowed to repair old synagogues, but do not build new ones.

5. Christian wet nurses are forbidden to feed Jewish babies and back. Petition the king to forbid this under penalty of the strictest punishments, although, incidentally, diocesan priests also have the right to prohibit things like that.

6. Furthermore, Jews should be prohibited from displaying their goods for sale in public places, in cities and towns, also at fairs: let them sell them only in their homes.

7. Jews are required to wear clothing that would distinguish them from Christians; how is this there was no time and as they still do in all other countries.

8. It is forbidden for Jews to keep Christian servants and subordinates; if they

If they have such, they must certainly set them free.

9. Jews in Krakow may have no more than six warehouses for their Christians goods, according to long-standing agreements approved by the king.

10. In many places, Jews occupy positions with the permission of secular lords. managers, so that those who should be slaves of Christians receive through this power and judgment over Christians.

11. Jews work and trade openly on holidays, contrary to the holy canons and statutes of zemstvo law, which leads to a general temptation for Christians, to their oppression and humiliation. Therefore, it is necessary that His Majesty the King prevented this and prohibited it with his royal edict."

Both of the above mentioned goals were clearly expressed in this document. clergy. On the one hand, forgotten canonical rules are being revived, aimed at protecting the Christian population from the "temptation" from Judaism (prohibition of keeping servants and wet nurses from among Christians, working and trading in church holidays), to isolate Jews and instill contempt for them (the law on distinctive clothing, about the allocation of a special area for Jews in cities). On the other hand, parties, a petition is filed with the king to limit personal and public rights of Jews, about the reduction of the number of Jews in cities, and especially in Krakow, about the appointment of a special “Pale of Settlement” for them, outside of which they have no the right to live and acquire real estate, about the destruction of new synagogues, about prohibition of trade in public places, etc. Of all these, the clergy Some had already entered into force, while others were about to do so soon. come true. Thus, the laws that Jews do not have the right to hold positions managers, and the canonical rules on distinctive clothing are approved, as we saw, by the Sejm Constitution of 1538 the prohibition of keeping Christian wet nurses and restrictions regarding Christian servants were renewed by Sigismund [in charter to Lithuanian Jews from 1540. Other wishes of the clergy were fulfilled gradually in the form of royal decrees regarding individual Jewish communities of Poland. Thus, in 1544 and 1545, Sigismund limited the number of Jews in Poznan, having ordered the expulsion of all newcomers, “foreign” Jews from there; several years before that At the request of the Magistrate, he forbade the Poznan Jews to live outside their quarter, to walk in crowds along the streets on Christian holidays. Similar Restrictions were gradually introduced in other places as well. By the beginning of the 17th century the above program of the clergy was already legitimized in most of its points...

TREATISE III: A GENERAL REVIEW OF PROSELYTISM

Chapter 1

Jewish Martyr Ger-Tzedek (saint), Count Potocki

In conclusion, we consider it useful to reproduce the literary history, which expressed the aspirations of the Jews to spread their religion and which, according to the very names of the heroes accurately indicate the tastes and inclinations of Jewry. Proselyte Judaism in it is Count Potocki, one of the representatives of the most famous and, most importantly, the richest Polish family. With obvious affection on almost every The legend says that his parents sent him money... he demanded it from them. money... they sent him a huge sum of money. The story is called "Ger-Tzedek" (a true story) KHUSH). The Talmud recognizes three categories of foreigners: 1) "Ger-Tzedek" - foreigner righteous in Judaism; 2) "Ger-Toshab" - compared with Jews in all civil relations; 3) "Shivo-beisakh" - seven Canaanite tribes that do not use their rights.

We borrow the legend from the famous writer Krashevsky, who translated it from Hebrew. This is what Kraszewski says: “In Vilnius, the memory of this person is highly revered called Abraham Abrahamovich, who, coming from a high family of Christians, Catholics, adopted the Jewish faith in Amsterdam and, returning to the "land", was burned near the castle; his ashes were buried behind the Jewish cemetery, and planted they planted willows in that place, which still exist in the old Jewish cemetery (because Jews do not bury those who died an unusual death in the cemetery itself), where this tree grows on his grave. His funeral feast is celebrated on the second day. Pentecost in the Vilnius synagogue. Having heard the story of his life, having learned about the existence of a manuscript in which this whole story is set out, we tried to acquire the original, which cost us a lot of effort, and we are placing the translation here in all the originality and naivety of its form and language. In the note to the text Krashevsky adds: “I acquired the original manuscript for its weight in gold, and maybe maybe even more expensive, and I had to promise that I wouldn't "give away" whoever I got it from. I I translated the story with the help of Alexander Ellenbogen. In several places I had to omit. The story is written in pure Hebrew."

1 These places, apparently, were not convenient for placing in the print of Christian-stiansky writer, as probably containing obscene expressions about Christian Church and its pastors.

Chapter 2

Translation of a Jewish document about Count Potocki

"In the year 479 of the sixth thousand (see 1719 of the ordinary chronology) there lived a great lord in the Polish land and had a wise son. The boy grew up. His father loved him and sent him to the royal city of Paris, the city of the French king, full of wise men and writers, where for every wisdom there is a special school in which they study young people. At the same time, another gentleman lived in the Samogitian land, not one of the important ones, named Zaremba, and he had a son. The boy grew up and became a great sage, inquisitive about everything his eyes saw. And his father sent him to the capital, in Vilno, to study, and the young man soon learned all the sciences and knew them ten times better than everyone else peers, and his good reputation spread among all the lords, and they gave the young man was given a lot of money and sent to the city of Paris, the capital of the French land, to study there at the academy. The young man arrived in Parikh, and was received with great honors, and became
He is a comrade of the son of a great Polish lord named Potocki.

One day the comrades went for a walk around the city, to look at its buildings and palaces; and they wanted to drink. They went into a wine house and sat down to drink there. There they They saw a small tent nearby in the garden, and in it an old German Jew, sitting and reading some book. And the comrades went into the tent to see what he studies so diligently; they looked at the book and did not know what was written in it. And The master's son asked his wise friend if he could read this book. And he answered Zaremba: "I don't know, I've never heard of this language until today."
The comrades asked the elder what was in this book, what kind of writing it was and what kind of language it was the book he read?

And the elder answered them:

- This language is a sacred language, the Jewish language.

And they asked to tell them what was written in the book. The Jew gave it to them A few words of sensible explanation. And in their eyes, these words seemed good. And they asked him if everything written in this book was true? And the elder answered:

- This is all true, correct. And the young men said to him:

"Why doesn't our rabbi teach us from this book?" The elder answered them:

- We are given a different faith from Christians.

And it was his thought to strengthen their faith. And he told them that all the lords strengthen their faith and therefore declared a great curse so that no one from your people did not teach their son from this book. That is why your rabbi does not teach you from this book. But the comrades began to strongly beg the old man to teach them, and the son the magnate even promised to pay him well, and the elder agreed to teach them and assigned them an hour three times a week.

In six months they learned the whole Pentateuch, and the words of the Law entered into their hearts, and became completely different people: they began to study the Old Testament in a special room. Because of Because of these activities, they did not find time to study at the academy and did not go to their temple for prayer.

And their rabbi called the young men and began to admonish and reproach them, to which The magnate responded to his rabbi with strong words.

One day both comrades went for a walk in the field (outside the city); their servants followed them. And they both sat down in a remote place, and the magnate's son said to his comrade:

- Brother! I want to reveal to you all the secrets of my heart, but do not reveal them to anyone.

And Zaremba answered:

"God forbid that I should do such a thing." And the magnate said:

- I promised myself in my soul to run away from here to Amsterdam and accept the Jewish faith there.

And his comrade answered him:

- As you do, so do I. And I will do so when I receive money for travel expenses.

And they both swore and kissed each other and said, "God be witness between us!" And they rose and returned to the city, and deliberated for a long time.
among themselves and finally decided that the magnate's son should go to the city of Rome, for they they were not yet sure (they were still riding on two roads) whether the faith of the Jews was true, so that to live in it, or the papal piety is truer to abide in it; there, in
In Rome, he had to find out the truth, whether there was truth in the Roman worship.

And the magnate's son wrote a letter to his magnate father, asking him to send money, for he wishes to go to the city of Rome. And he went and arrived in the city of Rome, and the Pope received him with with great honors, and he began to study at the pope's academy, and every week he gave a feast for all the lords (papal magnates) and for all the lords of the pope's servants, and distributed riches to them gifts. And he had one friend, close to the pope; and he once asked this servant of the pope:

- Tell me, please, something about the customs of the Pope and his holiness and sacred rite, and how does he ascend to heaven?

And the papal servant answered him:

- For a kind gift, I will tell you everything clearly, that all this is not true and that the Pope does not ascend to heaven at all, and on the holy day (the day of sorrow, which they call (post), when people say that he sits in the deepest peace, immersed in thought, and then ascends to heaven - all this is not so at all... That's how he comes during the entire fast.

And the magnate's son took the speech to heart and said to himself: "Now the hour has come to go out
Let me out of the darkness and turn to God! - blessed be His name, who led me on the path truth!" And he fled from Rome, came to the seashore and boarded a ship. Arriving in Amsterdam, he converted to the Jewish faith. And he sat there for several months, and his his comrade and friend had no news about him, the magnate's son, because he could not write, so that their secret would not be revealed."

Chapter 3

Count Potocki's comrade Zaremba

“Thus Zaremba remained in Paris until he finished his studies, and then returned to the Lithuanian region and on his way visited the city of Hetman Tyshkevich, who was one of his father's friends and had previously given him money for his stay in Paris.
He arrived at the hetman's castle to spend the night there, and Tyshkevich received him with with great honors and detained him for about a month, and then the smart Zaremba wished leave. And Hetman Tyshkevich said to him:

- I will reveal to you the secret of my soul - I want to give you my only daughter, for I have fallen in love with you very much!

The young man bowed to him twice and said:

- How have I earned such favor in your eyes? My father, you know, is from a family poor and thin, and you are my great sovereign and master!

And the hetman said to him:

"If you are small in your eyes, then you are great in mine." And the hetman sent a letter to his father. young men. And his father came to the hetman, who gave a great feast. The young man took good fortune in marrying the hetman's daughter and became great among all the lords. And all the affairs the edges depended on his will.

Some time passed, and his wife became pregnant and gave birth to a son. Father-in-law he gave a great feast for all the lords of Lithuania. A month later and because of the great Zaremba forgot the condition and oath he had given to his comrade for peace and happiness, to the son of a tycoon.

These days, letters arrived from the post office from the Polish land, stating that the magnate’s son had perished. the great Potocki, who went to the city of Rome, and no one knows where he is.

Hearing this, his comrade became very upset and began to reproach himself for having forgotten his duty. oaths made between them, for he guessed that his friend had truly fled to Amsterdam to convert to the Jewish faith; and it was grievous for him to change his oath, for it became clear to him that the magnate's son had truly recognized the papal piety. And He was very saddened by this in his heart, and his face changed from great sorrow. His father-in-law realized that he was in great grief and trouble. He asked him, "What's wrong with him?" He replied that he was unwell and asked his father-in-law to allow him to go to his father. The father-in-law went out and ordered that a carriage and horses be given to him. And he, and his wife, and his son went to his father, and, having stayed there for a month in sadness, he wrote a letter to his father-in-law that he wanted to go to Königsberg, to disperse. And his father-in-law sent him a lot of money. And he went, and his wife, and his son, and they arrived in Königsberg and stayed there for about a year. They liked the customs of the people Prussians, and the fact that their rural dwellings are more beautiful than Lithuanian dwellings, and the rural resident there lives a gentleman in a better house than in Lithuania. And he said to his wife: "Let's write a letter to your father to send us money, and we will buy ourselves an estate here." I liked this speech to his wife, and she wrote to her father, who actually sent them a lot of money. And when the money was received, Zaremba announced to his wife that he was going to the Dutch land, and there is a ship that goes to Holland. And she said to him: "I will go and with you, and let's take a look at the charms of the country." They boarded a ship and arrived in Amsterdam, where they rented a beautiful home."

Chapter 4

Zaremba and his wife embrace Jewish law

“On the morning of the second day, Mr. Zaremba went to the city rabbi and announced to him, that he wanted to convert to the Jewish faith. And they assigned him a special hut, and circumcised him and his son, who was about five years old when he was circumcised. And his wife was still waiting for her husband, and he didn't return all day. In the evening she went with a servant to look for her husband and son. And he sent to meet her to tell her not to look for him, for he had converted to the faith Jewish. When she heard this, she fell to the ground unconscious. And they put her people stood up and asked her: "What's wrong with you?" And she screamed in a loud voice: "My her husband became a Jew!" And people laughed at her and said to her: "Here everyone is free to do as he pleases." And she went and came to the hut where her husband was. And he shouted loudly to her not to come near him, for a Jew is a low person, and you the great lady, the hetman's daughter. She began to cry and beg him and said: "I will accept I also embrace the Jewish faith!" And her husband said to her: "Okay, if you want to convert to Jewish faith, then you must study Jewish law, and you will see that many burdensome commandments, not like in the faith of others, to whom everything is permitted. When you will learn everything, you will know everything, and you will still want to convert to the Jewish faith, then you will be received with love." And his wife liked this speech, and she went to her to the hostess and asked her to send for a woman who could instruct her in the faith

Jewish. And when the days of study were over and she had learned well, she went to her husband and sent for the judge. And he told her the severity of the commandments, what punishment awaited them violation and what is the reward for their fulfillment. Then he ordered the women to immerse her into the water. And she became a Jew. Then she sent to her husband and joyfully announced:
"Now it's like you and me." And her husband said to her: "You did well to accept this faith, but I will tell you that my desire is to marry a Jewish woman, and you - you go out marry a Jew, because together we will not know well how to perform the rituals - therefore I will take a Jewish woman, and she will instruct me in the law, and she will instruct you "Your husband is a Jew, whom you will marry."

And she answered him:

- I'll tell you a story that I read in the chronicles: "Two people were walking in the forest and They got lost and walked for several days in great fear, not finding the way. But suddenly a miracle happened to them, and they found themselves on the straight road. But as soon as they entered road, one says to the other: "Now let us separate husband from husband, I will go on the right hand alone, and you go alone to the left." Then his comrade answered him: "Where is justice?

When we were wandering, we walked together, but now that we have come to the straight road, you
You want to separate from me. Now we must go together and rejoice at the miracle, which God created for us." And you want to do the same. When we were wandering in the wilds ignorance, you were my husband, now that we have found the true path, you are from me
You want to separate. It's unfair! On the contrary, we will be together and we will be happy.
"the miracle that happened to us by the grace of God."

And the husband saw the goodness of her heart, and took her as his wife, and lived in Amsterdam for a long time.
time, and then went to the land of Israel (Palestine).

Meanwhile, Ger-Zedek first went from Amsterdam to the German land. But not he could endure the rituals there and went from the German land to the Russian land, and from Russia to Lithuania and lived there for several weeks. One day in the synagogue he saw some-then the boy, the tailor's son, who was jumping noisily at school, shouting loudly and being naughty. And the modest Ger-Tzedek shouted at him not to misbehave, and the boy answered him proudly, with with great audacity.

And Ger-Tzedek said: “I see by everything that he will not grow up in the faith of Israel and will cheat on her, for his insolence is great." Hearing this, the boy's father became very angry for what he said about his son: he will betray his faith. And he went to the lords and reported them that Ger-Tzedek lives here.

They immediately sent servants and brought him into the courtyard and put him in iron shackles, and sent him to the capital, Vilnius. And the great lords learned that he was the son of a magnate.
Polish Potocki, they fell before him and said to him:

- Where did you get such stupidity?

But he did not listen to their words, did not answer them anything, and they greatly angered him.
silence, and they said to him:

- Who are you laughing at, who are you joking with, because we are talking about your life here?

And he answered them:

- You are stupid - that's all; how can I answer you! After all, you didn't call me by my name, for I am a Jew, and my name is Abraham, and you called me Potocki, and this is not the name of a Jew, and They considered me not a Jew, and therefore I did not answer you.

And they put him in prison, and the bishop sent him a golden cross and himself came to him and said:

- Do me the honor I deserve! And he answered:

- It would be fair for me to do you the honor of taking off my hat to you, for You are a great lord, and I am a Jew, a miserable man, low-born, despised, an exile poor; but you hold the cross - and I cannot take off my hat in front of you.

And this made them very angry, and they left him in anger. And they sent to him a beautiful woman to persuade him. But he did not listen to their speeches and sat in prison for more than a year, and worms bred in his intestines.

And he said:

- Eat my body, for my body has been fed with unclean meat. And the second day the holiday of Schwuss (Pentecost) came out sentence to burn him; they strongly begged him before burning him, so that He returned to their faith, and he laughed at them.

Then they ordered the executioner to cut out his tongue and rip it out of the back of his head. When while they were tormenting him, he loudly and joyfully extolled God, saying:

- Blessed be you, O God, for you sanctify your name to all the people!

Chapter 5

Jews retrieve the ashes of the burned Ger-Tzedek (Potocki)

“And on that day fear and great darkness fell upon the Jews, and no one went out of the door of his home. Only one came out, and his name was Rabbi Leizer Ziskes of blessed memory - for he had no sign of a beard, so he went to the place of burning and stood among the others.
And he succeeded with the help of a bribe that he gave to the executioner's assistant, who brought it to him a little ashes from the body of the pious and pure, and everything was destroyed by flame. And do-he began to bleed a little from his body. One woman laughed and opened her lips, when the executioner cut out his tongue and twisted his lips, and that woman became speechless, and those who gave wood for its burning, their houses burned to the ground. So let all your enemies perish for the blood of your servant! The next day a letter came that he should not be killed, but it was it's already late.

And in those days there lived in Rus' a man who said that there was Ger-Tzedek in the city of Vilnius and accepted martyrdom there publicly..."

Chapter 6

The seduction of three Christian women by Jews into the Jewish faith

We borrow the story of the murder of a Christian boy from Velizh case, which is included in our book "On the Use of Christian blood." The decision in this case proved that the Jews converted three Orthodox women to the Jewish faith. In 1825, during the passage of the Tsar of blessed memory Emperor Alexander I through Velizh, soldier Terentyeva sent to His Majesty a request in which, calling the boy, Fyodor Yemelyanov, her son, she complained that that he died at the hands of the Jews. For this reason, the case was reopened: the investigation was first entrusted to a special official; then he was sent by the highest order aide-de-camp Shkurin, a whole investigative commission was formed, and at the end the Chief Prosecutor was sent from the Senate, and the case was submitted directly to the Government.
the ruling Senate.

Being already vast and extremely complicated in itself, it became even more more complex when six or seven other similar cases were uncovered in connection with him:

about the theft of the antimins by the Jews, about the desecration of it and the Holy Mysteries, about the conversion of three Christians to the Jewish faith and the killing of several more babies. The veil was pulled off a whole series of the most horrific crimes.

In Velizheu, the Jew Berman had a worker named Paraskeva Pimenova, Tsetlina - Avdotya Maksimova, the Jew Arons - Maria Kovaleva, all three, although Christians, but having settled down with the Jews, accustomed to their way of life, customs and rituals.
Kozlovskaya was still very young at the time of the incident; Kovaleva had been there since childhood the unaccountable serfdom of the Aronsov Jews, unaccountable to the point that, as has been shown subsequently, she did not even dare to announce her very well-founded suspicion regarding the killing of her brother by his owners. Maksimova was energetic and an immoral woman, a faithful servant of the Jews for money and wine; Marya Terentyeva, a peasant woman of dubious reputation, also lived in Velizh, served mostly parts from the Jews and was also ready to do anything, just like Maksimova, for the same money and vodka has long been the main accomplice of the Jews in all suspicious affairs. The Jews of these dissolute women were used as instruments in all the atrocities in which they were participants in killing and stealing Christian babies, and then solemnly turning them into Jewish faith.

During the investigation, Terentyeva repentantly testified that the Jews used flattery and threats
They were forced to accept the Jewish faith by exile to Siberia for the murder of a boy, and described in detail the entire ritual of their conversion within the walls of the synagogue. After long instructions they were brought to the ark, where the commandments are kept in the multitude lit candles. Here, all three women were read the confession at once Jewish faith in Jewish jargon, since they understood Hebrew well, having been devoted slaves of the Jews for many years. Among other rites, committed against these women, and about which they spoke, Terentyeva on the investigation showed that in the synagogue they were put on a hot frying pan, forced swear that they would not reveal to Christians the secrets into which they had been initiated, and while they covered their mouths so that they wouldn't scream, since all this happened at night in deep silence; then they bandaged their burnt soles, smearing them with ointment, and After this whole ceremony, as a sign of equality to the Jewish faith, they also gave each a piece of cloth canvas, soaked in the blood of a child who had just been tortured in their presence, in in whose torments they took an active part. These women were renamed from Christian to Jewish names.

There was a disagreement in the Governing Senate during the examination of this case, Why was the matter brought before the State Council, which met on January 18, 1835? year The highest approved opinion, - “Christian women: the peasant woman Terentyeva, soldier Maksimova and noblewoman Kozlovskaya, for apostasy from the faith, in which they they themselves confessed - to send Kozlovskaya to Siberia for settlement, depriving her of her gentry.
“then release Yeremeyev and the others, subjecting the first to strict repentance.”

Chapter 7

Provincial Secretary Kruger is a Judaizer

In relation to proselytism, we will cite an excerpt from the Saratov case about the murder of two Christian boys by Jews. This case was considered in The Senate, and then in the State Council, whose decision states: May 4, 1853 retired provincial secretary Ivan Ivanovich Kruger, meeting with his collegiate registrar Vyrypaev and 1st class scribe Kudryavtsev, as the latter they testified under oath, began when they started talking about the missing in Saratov two boys say that he knows the culprits, he himself was present at the murder of a Jew-we are in the prayer room of one boy; and that he himself contains the Jewish law and receives from unknown to him Jews were given 25 silver rubles a month. The governor of the province, upon being informed of this, he ordered the person serving in his office Collegiate Registrar Vyrypaev should explain everything in detail to the investigator, Mr. Durnovo. As a result of this, and on Durnovo's instructions, Vyrypaev persuaded Kruger to submit the investigator received a written notice of the incident in the Jewish prayer house. In his announcement to his court councilor Durnovo on May 7, 1853, Kruger explained, that on February 19, 1853, the barber, Private Michel Schliefferman, brought in Jewish prayer house of a boy of about 13 years old, who was circumcised in the presence of Zaidman, the guard of Berman's prayer house, and that after that the boy was tortured.

During interrogation by the investigator, Krueger affirmatively testified to the following circumstances:
in the autumn of 1842, he, Kruger, visiting the widow, the provincial secretary Beloshapchenkov, with whom he had a short relationship, recognized a private guardsman crew of Ezra Zaidman, who lived with her in the same yard and visited her on occasion cash accounts for mortgages accepted from her and belonging to her as well, and to other persons.

Beloshapchenkova, wanting to marry him, Kruger, and hearing from him that he is not decides to marry her because she has a young son with her, she reported on occasion, about this circumstance to the Jew Zaidman, who offered her to give it to him her son for money, explaining that he would send him far away from Saratov. Agreeing to Zaidman's proposal and having received from him a deposit of 150 silver rubles, Beloshapchenkova conveyed this to him, Kruger, asking his advice. Kruger volunteered himself talk to Zaidman and talked to him at Beloshapchenkova's two or three times.
In the last of these conversations, Zaidman told him that, being convinced of the justice and the truth of his faith, wants to make Beloshapchenkova's son a Jew. In a conversation with He, Kruger, not only listened to Zaidman about the Jewish faith with attention and did not contradicted his evidence regarding the merits of the Jewish faith, but even agreed with him. Zaidman suggested that he himself convert to the Jewish faith from Christian, promising for this wealth and respect of his brothers, the position of rabbi, because he knew from Kruger's stories that he had studied Hebrew, and various honors and respect from the Jews. Having informed Zaidman of his doubts Beloshapchenkova about whether her son at such an age can endure the necessary to enter the Jewish faith, the rite of circumcision, Kruger said that Belshapchenkova she asked him, and he himself would like to see the circumcision of the Jews, to hear and understand, What prayers are read and what ceremonies are involved. Compelling requests him that Zaidman would notify him of the time when the circumcision would be performed, - and a promise on his part that if he sees that there is nothing dangerous in circumcision, then he will not only advise Beloshapchenkova to give up her son, but he himself will join the ranks Jews, - forced Zaidman to give him his word that he would tell him about this in due time.
Soon after this, Zaidman, asking him whether he had ever been in their prayer room, and learning, that he had never been in a synagogue before, invited him to look at their service, where he went with him. This time there were quite a lot of Jews in the prayer house, and among them Yankel Yushkevicher, with whom, after the end of the ceremony, when almost everyone had left, Zaidman introduced him to Kruger, probably as a result of their preliminary contacts conversations about him. Yankel asked him how he liked their service and rituals, and then, turning to the Jewish faith, he said that it was true, and then he entered into the under- a detailed explanation of the necessity of circumcision and propitiation of God by offering him even bloody sacrifices, etc. In mid-February 1853, on the 18th, Beloshapchenkov sent him a note brought to her by Zaidman. In this note, sent barber Schliefferman to Zaidman and written in colloquial Hebrew language, they asked to come to the prayer house “together with the invited person.”

Chapter 8

The rite of circumcision of a Christian boy

When Kruger arrived at Belshapchenkova’s, at about 3 o’clock in the afternoon, she told him, that Zaidman was waiting for him to go with him to the prayer room to look at circumcision of a Jewish boy, but without waiting, he left alone. Then he, Kruger, went straight to the prayer house, where he arrived at about 5 o'clock, when it was still light; the gate were open and he did not notice any guards in the courtyard at the gate. Approaching the entryway, he saw that they were locked; but when he knocked and said the prescribed words: "Bara-raki aresh shamaam iam togemo" (He created the firmament, the heavens, the earth, the sea and abyss), - Zaidman opened the doors for him.

These words were spoken to him by Zaidman the day before the circumcision as a password for a pass to the prayer house. In the prayer house he saw four more Jews, Schliefferman, Yankel Yushkevicher and two soldiers, Vogelfeld and Berman, whom he saw in prayer room when he came there with Zaidman, and earlier when they passed by his apartment. The Jews were all standing around the bench, and in the middle of them was a boy 11 years old or older, wearing only a white shirt, barefoot. Yankel was reading aloud from a book. some prayers in front of the ark, i.e. a cabinet that stood in the corner of the room and in which were Jewish commandments, covered with something. To the right of it stood a table, on which contained several large and small format books, some of which were in bound, and others without binding. They read from Moses, as well as chapters 4, 5, and 6 of the prophet Isaiah or Jeremiah, he doesn’t remember exactly, but he only knows that in the places he read contained the prophet's regrets at the sight of the abandoned Temple of Jerusalem, appeals to the people for repentance and propitiation of the angry God, descriptions oppression of Jews by pagans, etc.

On the table there were candles burning made of yellow wax, quite tall, thick at the bottom, and thinner at the top, conical in shape, three or four in number.

There was a bench in front of the boy. After the prayers were read, the boy was laid down. face up on the bench, and Schliefferman began to do some circumcision with a special arc-shaped knife, which is somewhat thicker towards the end.

After the trimming, which lasted two or three minutes, the boy's nails They didn't circumcise him. The boy didn't cry at first when they put him down, but then he started scream, but the Jews holding his hands covered his mouth with a handkerchief. At the end After the circumcision, the Jews began to discuss something among themselves.

Chapter 9

The ritual bleeding of a boy

After that boy standing in front of everyone next to Yankel after circumcision, they brought him back to the bench so that she was in front of him; then, taking hold of head, bent him over some clay vessel placed on a bench, like cups, and the boy stood on the floor, and all the Jews, except Schliefferman, held him by the head and by the hands. Schliefferman took the knife, but not the same one, but some other one, like lancet and cut the skin below his right shoulder, causing blood to flow. At the same time, Shliefferman also cut a vein below the back of his head, from which also Blood flowed into the same vessel. The boy's blood flowed for several minutes. Both before the release of blood from the boy, and during the performance of this ritual and after All the Jews sang prayers and psalms around him. The boy's bleeding stopped. Shliefferman, having bandaged him with bandages. The boy was bleeding out. he was very excited and cried, but he could walk quite freely, although he was very pale; he was entrusted to Schliefferman to take him to the hut located at prayer room. At this time, Yankel, approaching Kruger, said that the ritual he had seen Circumcision is very important for Jews and that he should not tell anyone about it.

Kruger, realizing that any contradiction on his part to Yankel could be suspicious and therefore dangerous for him, he promised to remain silent. Yankel he went on to say that the boy who was circumcised today, through bleeding, presented himself as the sacrifice of atonement. The blood of this boy, released as the blood of a sacrifice, offered to God, holy and used on holidays. Women can use during childbirth, for those with poor eyesight - apply it to the eyes, and it not only helps in these cases, but also from all other diseases.

Chapter 10

Attempt to convert to the Jewish faith provincial secretary Kruger

While Kruger was in the prayer room, he did not take any part in crime, but was only a witness. From the conversations that took place then, he learned that this boy, whose name he had not been told, had been kidnapped and brought to prayer house by the Jew Shliefferman. In the evening, at about 7 o'clock, everyone began to disperse; at the same time time came out of the prayer room and he (Kruger - O. 17.) together with Zaidman, who was given him as a kind of guide and with whom they came to Beloshapchenkova. On the way to Zaidman persuaded him to accept the Jewish faith, and said that his desire he informed all the Jews who were in the prayer room that he wanted to join the ranks of the Jews, and his consent approved by them unanimously; he also told him not to divulge it, because it a secret sacred to the Jews; otherwise, he, Kruger, would never get rid of revenge.

Having come with Zaidman to Beloshapchenkova, he told her about Zaidman’s departure incident in the prayer room and, being very upset by it, became very ill and remained Beloshapchenkova had it for a few days. He left on the 4th or 5th day, when he felt take it easy, from Beloshapchenkova's apartment with the intention of announcing the incident to the authorities, he met Schliefferman, and after some conversation with him and nowhere without going in, he, Kruger, returned to Beloshapchenkova and informed her of the decisive his intention to announce everything to his superiors the very next day.

But Beloshapchenkova, fearing responsibility for her relations with Zaidman, begging him to keep quiet about everything, she did not let him go into the apartment and finally said that he will be killed if he does not abandon his intention. He, Krueger, remained with Beloshapchenkova until the evening of the next day; at that time Zaidman arrived, and after him Shliefferman and Vogelfeld. They all started demanding money from Beloshapchenkova, given to her for her son, from which one can conclude that this money was not one's Zaidman, and general; then, turning to Kruger, they reproached him for deception, because that he did not give any reason to hope not only for the acquisition of Beloshapchenkova's son, but also that he himself would become a Jew. Having become embittered as a result of his objections and their stated intention to report the crime to their superiors, they rushed to him and started beating him. He screamed as much as he could, but with double glazing
With the shutters locked from the outside and the doors closed, it was impossible for anyone to hear his cry; after a while he managed to break free, grabbed the overcoat that was in front, and ran away. When one of the Jews grabbed him by the coat, he tore it from top to bottom, and he ran from the yard to the street, then to his apartment.

Upon his arrival at the apartment, his owners, the Sevastyanovs, and their cook were very were surprised to see him completely disfigured and bloodied from the injuries inflicted he was beaten. They asked about the reason and place of everything that happened to him, but he didn't explain anything to them and didn't answer. From that time on, he lay for two weeks.
he was completely unconscious, but after that he felt much better and began to leave the house, although he was still in very poor health. Kruger heard that Court Councillor Durnovo will soon arrive from St. Petersburg, I didn't want to before his arrival to announce to the then Saratov authorities, about whom I heard rumors back then everywhere, that it took large sums of money from the Jews. Having met with the official Vyrypaev, he, Krueger, told him in a few words about the incident. Vyrypaev advised him to announce what he had seen, and since he himself already had the intention of announcing to the investigator from St. Petersburg, and not to the local authorities about what happened to him, then went with Vyrypaev on May 7 to the investigator, the court councilor Durnovo, where I found the notice.

Chapter 11

On the Christians' desire to convert the Jews

In our time, the Christian desire to convert Jews has changed. Practice many centuries convinced that this work is useless and in vain. First of all, the Jews they need to be freed from the shackles of the Talmud, and only then can they be useful brothers to all humanity. In Europe, no one pays attention to this, especially in those states where there are very few Jews. But where a large mass of Jews live other people's account, it would be worth taking care of their education. In England, for example, recently The 69th report of the London Society for the Propagation of Christianity was published. between Jews. The information contained in this report covers the activities society from April 1, 1876 to March 31, 1878. The company in the reporting year had its agents in thirty cities of Asia Minor and Europe, including two Russian cities - Warsaw and Chisinau. Such a wide area of activities of the society is not satisfies him. The constant influx of Jews into Palestine and their acquisition there various privileges as landowners, a fact that, according to the report, stands in connection with the events that have arisen in the East in recent years, - forces society consider the need to expand his missionary work in Asia Minor.
In relation to Russia, society would not like to limit itself to activities in two only in cities. Although the sympathetic reception given last year in St. Petersburg authorized representative of the society, and allows us to hope, according to the report, to spread the society's mission to other cities of the Russian Empire, however, formal conditions in which it would be possible to organize such missionary work have not yet been established defined. The report does not specify from whom London society expects such conditions.
said.

The Church Herald contains an interesting list of independent Orthodox Church religious communities existing in St. Petersburg. Between Among the many different schismatic sects, we will cite one that relates to our subject. On Pochtamtskaya Street there is a prayer house of the "Hernhuters", also known as the "Brotherly Community." The main concern of the "Hernhuter" community
- conversion of Jews to Christianity.

Another society called the Ryabinovtsy has a prayer house in Chubarovo.
alley, in Borisov's house. The teachings of this sect were spread by Isaiah, a native of Perm Antipov. On Volkovskaya Street (behind the Moscow Outpost) there is a women's a schismatic skete where elderly schismatic women live. The skete has order and discipline.

monastic. Mother Apollinaria is the headmistress. There is also an orphanage with a Jewish "mentor" ev.

Let us finish our essay on proselytism with a few words about the religious circle, known as the "Children of Jeremiah." These children of Jeremiah gather to pray in choral synagogue, located between the Egyptian and Kalinkin bridges.
Almost all Jews come to the synagogue to pray; it is also very often visited by Saturday people, called Judaizers, who enjoy great favor with the Jews with respect. In this synagogue, psalms are sung in Russian translation. This, of course, is for the Judaizers, and especially for the new converts, it is very attractive;
By giving this to Jewish missionaries, they easily attract newcomers, trying to convince them the importance and superiority of the Mosaic religion over all others.

Nevertheless, Russia, having become a new Palestine for the Jews, must seriously to think for the good and benefit of his subjects, the sons of Jacob, to free them from the heavy shackles of the Talmud, for which everyone would later be heartily grateful to her, just as they are grateful to her for freeing the Jews from their ugly sidelocks and ugly yarmulke, thanks to which the Jews are now on par with educated peoples peace, though in appearance. If the beneficial reform had freed the Jews from Talmud, then the Jews would be on par with educated nations not only in external, but also from the inside, the Jews would become brothers to humanity.

The following fact is reported in the “St. Petersburg Spiritual News”:
visit of His Grace Sergius, Bishop of Uman, to the village of Novaya Greblia Jews from Uman district - men, women and children, about 40 people - donated bread and salt to the Most Reverend. One of the Jews said the following greeting: “We ask You, God's chosen one, accept from us, Jews, bread and salt, as an expression of our deep respect for your sacred person. The Jews were once a great people, and from it came the greatest kings, prophets and holy bishops, and now by the will of We are scattered throughout the world by God, and from our family there are no kings, judges, or saints.
telev. But we, living under the rule of the Orthodox Russian Tsar, learned to love him, pray for him and fulfill his sacred commands, - learned to respect the Orthodox leaders appointed by him. We also ask you to pray for all of us and bless us all with your holiness." Having accepted the bread and salt, His Grace addressed those who brought the gifts with the following words: “Your great people were expecting the coming of the Messiah, having prophecies about Him, but when the Messiah came, he did not recognized Him without seeing Him as an earthly king. The Messiah has come, and you can be sure of this, reading the prophecies which are preserved among you, as well as among us, and which are clearly They depict Him. The Apostle Paul, who says about himself that he is a Jew of the Jews, said that until now, when you Jews read the books of the law and the prophets, it is in your hearts yours is covered by a veil that is removed by Christ our Savior. I pray that this veil will be removed from your hearts; then both you and we will be with the Messiah-Christ is one." According to the testimony of a local priest, his Jewish fellow villagers show complete sympathy for the Orthodox priest, constantly come for advice, and sometimes for arbitration, - when meeting with a priest, they kiss him hand.

Chapter 12

Jewish propaganda in Poland in 1539

After the end of the case of the Krakow townswoman, the Judaizer Catherine Zaleshovskaya faced a much more complex case of converting an entire groups of Christians in Krakow and other places in Poland. Around 1538, the rumors were spreading that in various parts of Poland people of the Christian faith had converted to Judaism and accepted circumcision. These converts left for greater safety or were taken to the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, where they found safe refuge with the local Jews (from the Lithuanian register in the “Acts of Western Russia”, vol. I, no. 194, and "Russian-Jewish Archives", vol. 1, no. 175).

Alarming rumors about secret propaganda of Judaism prompted the clergy to subject the proselyte Ekaterina Zaleshovskaya to public execution under extraordinary circumstances inquisitorial environment and thus make a frightening impression on the strata of society infected with Jewish heresy. Judaizing Catherine Zaleshovskaya She was publicly burned at the stake in Krakow, and the Jews placed her among their saints. martyrs and remember them in their prayers, especially on the day of her execution, as do the Vilnius Jews of the "ger-tzedek" of Count Potocki.

The Polish writer Velski says in his chronicle (under the years 1539-1540):
"A Jew of that time, seeing that people began to reason and argue about their Christian faith, as if doubting its truth (Lutheranism), was seduced many of us Christians converted to the Jewish faith, having circumcised them" (isi , P, 1983. Another chronograph. KHUT v., A. Gvagnin, Ktoshsa, Zaptasu1 Eigore]$K1e], g. 158).

These rumors reached King Sigismund [and his dignitaries. Sigismund's words in decree of 1539: "First of all, we have done this, some people of the Christian faith in our local lordship, the Polish Crown from the place of Krakow from our places crowned, they approached the Jewish law and accepted circumcision" (Russian-Jewish Archive", I, No. 175).

The king also paid attention to the Protestant propaganda in Lithuania. Having learned that converts to Judaism also went there, he became indignant. For that
For this purpose he sent two authorized commissioners to Lithuania, the nobles Sila Antonovich and Jan Korchius with the order to carry out the strictest search there for persons who had been seduced into Judaism. The commissioners were ordered to diligently search here for "those people, who from the Christian faith turned to the Jewish law and from Krakow or other places and cities were taken away." The search was ordered throughout the entire principality.
Lithuanian: in castles, cities and farms, royal and lordly, spiritual and secular.
When the designated criminals were discovered somewhere, the authorized officers had to inform the local authorities about this, who were obliged to immediately seize the guilty and take them into custody. If it is discovered that any of the Jews were harboring in his midst such apostates, or, knowing of their whereabouts, did not report it to the authorities, then such a concealer was subject to imprisonment and confiscation property. Similar lists of places where the presence of new converts seemed Most likely, they were handed over to the noble detectives by Deputy Chancellor Matseevsky.
The king's decree on the search was ordered to be announced not only in these places, but throughout the whole principality so that the entire population would know that in the event of discovery somewhere no one has the right to intercede for newly converted people (Russian-Jewish Archives, I, No. 175, p. 225).

It is known that under Sultan Soliman (1520-1566), who brought Turkey to power, the Jews in the East enjoyed a much better position than their co-religionists in the West, not excluding Poland. Jews expelled from the Iberian Peninsula peninsula and persecuted in Germany and Italy, they emigrated en masse to Turkey. Some of the emigrants settled in Palestine, which was then in ruins.

The modern chronicler Velsky connects this new phenomenon, related to In 1540, with the religious unrest in Poland at that time and with the Jewish proselytism, which had previously been manifested especially in Krakow. Encouraged by the re-religious strife within the Christian community itself, the Jews, according to Velsky, began to convert the Poles to their faith, and so that the new converts would not repent and could return to their former faith, clever Jewish missionaries expelled them from Poland to Hungary and Turkey. When King Sigismund strictly drew attention to Jewish proselytism, the Jews resorted to the patronage of the Turkish Sultan, asking to petition the Polish king to grant the Jews free departure to Turkey. The Sultan replied that "there is no need to petition for this, because in Soon I will come to Poland myself, drive out the Christians, and calm you down and reveal to you "free path everywhere."

Further, it is clear that the king himself tells the Lithuanian Jews in his letter from 1540.

Chapter 13

King Sigismund Go's charter on the proselytism of Jews

"When I was last in the lordship of Our Grand Duchy of Lithuania, we received a report through a Jew, a resident of the Polish Crown named ..., that as if all the Jews who have settled in Our lordship, the Grand Duchy In Lithuania, both our royal, princely and lordly people gathered to make the following offense: firstly, contrary to the law of the Christian faith, also in defiance of Us, their Sovereign, and the whole good Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth, they conceived the idea I would like to leave our principality with all my property for the Turkish land. that they, secretly taking and buying small children born in the Christian faith, decided to circumcise them, convert them to their Jewish law and expel them from the Principality ours abroad to Turkey; there are about 50 such children, they, the Jews, in Tykotyn and other beaten to death in places. They sent the mentioned circumcised people abroad through several cabbies (furmans), who were hired for that purpose, according to the testimony the said Jew, who gave Us the list of names of five such persons."

The king simultaneously reports very important details about this matter in his private letter from Vilnius to the Krakow voivode Piotr Kmita dated July 9, 1540 years. “Last year,” writes Sigismund, “some persons under oath testified before us (ji hi {51$ s), that Many Christians were circumcised by Jews. In the same year, a certain Jew was in Kiliya (on Danube, near the border of what was then Poland and Wallachia). Immediately upon our arrival in this city (Vilnius), he told us that he saw many hundreds of circumcised people in Kiliya, taken there from our state. And since many of them (circumcised Christians) did not want to part with their wives and children, and were brutally killed Jews in synagogues. Moreover, the Jews sent to the Turkish emperor and asked him write to us so that we give them the opportunity to emigrate to Turkey, for which they will provide considerable services. To this the emperor (sultan) replies that there is no need for letters. For someday he himself will come (to Poland) and act here as in Hungary, that is, not only Jews, but also Christians, he will expel from our state. Although We shouldn't have ignored these reports either, but they were confirmed according to the testimony of our Turkish translator, an Armenian, who testified that he saw Tyagini (Bendery) has fifteen Jewish carts, heavily loaded with things, which were transferred from our state to Turkey. Others joined in the flight of the cantor and some other Jews, who, having learned what was said about the aforementioned their crimes, disappeared" (Excerpt from a letter from Sigismund, in the 16th volume of "Aba {ii», stored in the manuscript department of the Imperial Public Library- (teke in St. Petersburg).

The spirit of Jewish missionary work was raised due to the influential position Jews at the Sultan's court (doctor Moses Gamon, Don Joseph Nasi (prince), etc.). Many dreamed of the restoration of Jerusalem, of the imminent return to the Holy land, that the Sultan, who was then advancing on Europe, would free the Jews from Christian bondage. Under 1540, the contemporary European chronicler Joseph Hakogen records the news that Soliman decided to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem, his destroyed buildings and decorations, and that work on this has already begun.

Chapter 14

About Jewish Martyrs

In the old cemetery of Lutsk there is a monument to a Jew named a martyr of the last century. The monument on his grave still remains, the inscription on it reads as follows (in translation):

"A monument over the grave of a saint who suffered terrible torments and glorified His (God's) great and mighty name. This scholar named Judah Ze'ev Wolf, the son of Rabbi Povia, ascended to heaven on the Sabbath day and accepted his sentence with bitterness, 28th Togmuz 522 years old. (July 176)."

Jewish tradition tells the following about this: Wolf was a saint a handsome young man, very pious and learned. Thanks to these qualities, he had the misfortune to please the local Catholic priests, who decided that convert him to their faith at any cost. They often had religious disputes with scientist Wolf, but he always emerged victorious in the dispute. This is even more encouraged them and strengthened their desire to introduce the talented Jew to the true churches. But, finally convinced of the futility of their efforts, the priests decided to resort to force. They threw a dead pig into Wolf's house.
According to the common law of that time, a Jew in whose house a pig was found was obliged reward the owner of the last millet in such quantity that it covers the whole a pig, standing upright on its hind legs. Such a high ransom was not forces to Wolf - and he was thrown into prison. After several months, He was given a choice between baptism or death. He, of course, chose the latter. The unfortunate man was executed by quartering. Tradition adds that the persons who took part in the accusation and execution of Wolf are terribly
They paid for it later, because God's punishment fell upon them, etc.

In Nesvizh, in the large synagogue, there is an ancient prayer book written in parchment, and it contains the following historical prayers: 1) prayer for the repose of the soul souls of the martyrs of 1648 in a longer version; 2) about the Jewish martyrs of the cities Pavolochi and Iudorkova in 1753, on the days of 19, 20 and 21 Iar; 3) about the Jews killed in the city.
Mogilev (on the Dnieper), 4) about the saints from Tavrov; 5) about the saints from the town of Senyavka, near Nesvizh, about whom folk legend also speaks. These are all Jewish saints executed publicly for crimes: various kinds of blasphemy against Christianity religion and for the torture of Christian babies, etc.

Mr. Dubnov published his article in the magazine "Voskhod". It is indicated on the contents of the Pinchevsky prayer book, received by him from the local "sholnik" Jewish commune. This is an ancient prayer book, written on parchment in square format. font.

The contents of the manuscript are as follows: about half of the book is occupied by ordinary prayers, blessings and finally the texts of "herems" (formulas of anathemas of the great and small) against apostates. The other half of the book consists of funeral prayers about Jewish martyrs who died for their faith in Poland and Ukraine in the 16th and 17th centuries, as well as about many famous rabbis and public figures, ascetics mainly the Krakow district (to which the town of Pinczów belonged). Here there are prayers, namely: 1) about the martyr Mordechai, the son of Meer, executed in Lublin in 1636; 2) about the Lenczyca Martyrs of 1639; 3) about the seven saints executed in Krakow in 1637; 4) about those who died on charges of killing Christians babies in Krakow in 1596, in Lublin in 1598, in Sandomierz, etc., about killed in Rus' and in Krakow in 1648-49; 6) about the victims of the massacre and war in Poland in 1654-60, etc. (The Poles constantly hanged Jewish spies during the war.)

Jews, remembering their ascetics and holy martyrs who suffered for their fanatical idea of exterminating God-defying Christians, they do not pray for them, but to them who are blessed in the bosom of Abraham and pray for their followers - so that They were strict adherents of the teachings of the Talmud and would exterminate the goyim.

Chapter 15

On the propaganda of the rabbi of the Viennese community

The famous preacher and rabbi of the Viennese Jewish community, Dr. Adolf Jellinek, once telling how harshly he treats those who turn to him with requests for their acceptance into the bosom of Judaism (in Austria, as is known, this is allowed) and what measures he takes to keep them from this transition, he added by the way: “And do you know why exactly? Besides the fact that Jewry I am generally alien to proselytism, besides the fact that I don’t believe in the sincerity of the transition at all from one religion to another without any extraneous goals, I do this also because I know It is very good that, while I am communicating to them the rules of Jewish doctrine, I am, however, by no means in able to instill in them a Jewish heart, which is, in fact, the most important thing.”

If this position of the venerable Viennese preacher is true, then, on the other hand, On the other hand, it seems that it must be acknowledged that leaving Judaism does not always entail the loss of the Jewish heart. And perhaps it is in this sense that we should understand the Talmudic position that "he who leaves Judaism still remains a Jew." The most brilliant proof of this is Heinrich Heine, in whom, as in In every genius, the typical features of his origin stand out in particular relief.

Chapter 16

The historical conversion of a Jew to Christianity

Joseph, a young Jew, was an inhabitant of the Roman ghetto, a young man with with a beautiful appearance, brilliant abilities and a thoughtful mind. He long ago lost the naivety characteristic of ghetto children, and, having grown up into a stately young man, he to the great chagrin of his parents, he refuses both the bride and the title rabbi.

One day Joseph, who loved to wander the streets of Rome, disappeared somewhere. and he didn't return home that night. His mother and father, his fiancée Mariama - everyone was beside themselves. out of fear for his favorite. It was a difficult and dangerous time. Jews were accused of all the disasters and misfortunes that befell Europe at that time. A Jew found behind the ghetto gates after midnight, was therefore almost certainly doomed to death. It was especially dangerous for Jews to walk through the streets of Rome that night, which fell on Christmas Eve, when the superstitious feelings of the Catholic the crowds in Rome were greatly aroused and aggravated. A Jew caught on such a night behind the walls of the ghetto, he could least of all expect mercy.

The night passed in anxious and vain waiting - Joseph did not appear. Only in the morning, when his father had already gone to the shop, he returned. He entered the house in some in an enthusiastic mood and loudly said in Latin: "Peace be with you!"

- What, are you drunk or something? - his mother exclaimed in fear. But Joseph continued in in the same strangely solemn and enthusiastic tone: “1 11$$1115 ! (glory in "To God in the highest and peace on earth). Today is Christmas, mother!"

Poor Rachel, his mother, couldn't believe her ears. She covered her son's mouth with her hand, calling him a blasphemer, but the son replied that it was not he who was blaspheming, but she, his mother. “Rejoice, be glad,” he said, “today the One who was to "to die for the sins of the world."

“Daon has gone crazy,” the mother decided in despair.

But the son declared that, on the contrary, if he had ever become enlightened, it was now, for that night. And, answering the anxious questions of Miriam's fiancée, who was there, he told how he went into St. Peter's Cathedral at night during a service. "I didn't think “I was drawn to pray,” he said, “only by strong curiosity, I wanted to see with my own eyes and hear with my own ears this worship of Christ.
was carried away by a powerful wave of organ music rising to the sky, to the foot of the throne of the Most High in the crystal heights. And suddenly it became clear to me what I was striving for my soul. I have learned the meaning of these disturbing desires that have always consumed me, these strange moods, these vague inclinations, and, as if illuminated by lightning, I understood the secret of peace of mind."

“And what exactly?” Miriama asked.

“The mystery of self-sacrifice,” Joseph said enthusiastically, “to suffer, to give sacrifice oneself entirely to the world, to perish at the hands of one's fellow men, to die in sweet torments, like the fading notes of that pleasant young voice singing iŕ. O Miriama, if I could lead our brothers out of the ghetto, if I could to die for their happiness, to make them free sons of Rome!

Then Joseph directly announces that he has decided to convert to Christianity and convert also all Jews into Christians, since they must understand that self-sacrifice and Martyrdom constitutes the highest good, the only divine and important one.
In vain his mother and fiancée try to prove to him that it is the Jews who sacrifice themselves, that if and they talk about voluntary martyrdom, and that is the only way it can be found among them, and remind him of all the insults and persecutions suffered by the Jews from Christians, however. It's all in vain. Ecstasy, kindled in the soul of a solemn youth music and hymns full of grandeur, makes him deaf to all exhortations, pleas and evidence, he leaves his parents' home and accepts Christianity.

Joseph's baptism took place with particular solemnity. The Pope himself was present.
during the ceremony, after which the new convert, dressed all in white, was taken along the streets of Rome with the ringing of bells and the singing of hymns. And in his mystical fascination Joseph, now named Giuseppe de Franchi, felt himself immersed in a sea of love and universal brotherhood, imbued with divine holiness and heavenly with delight, while his brothers in the crowd looked sad and mournful.
their faces looked at him as if he were a hated renegade.

Having accepted Christianity by the mere attraction of the soul and with only one thought and the hope of revealing the great truth of self-sacrifice to his brothers, Joseph decided to refuse all the benefits that the new could bring him position. He refused to marry a rich and beautiful woman who passionately loved him. Elena de Franchi, he renounced his positions, his wealth, everything worldly and took monastic vows. But the monastic cell did not satisfy him. His nature demanded active love, apostolic service, self-sacrifice. In the chest a fire burned within him that demanded an outcome, and Joseph believed in himself, in his strength and in the truth he recognized. He was convinced that he only had to pour out his soul to Jews, to express himself to them clearly and fully, so that they would understand him and be convinced of his right and went over to his side. But the Jews didn't want to listen to him. In the ghetto itself, he could not preach, since baptized Jews were not only prohibited from entering the ghetto, but also any kind of communication with its inhabitants. It was necessary to limit ourselves preaching behind the ghetto wall, but instead of Jews, the audience to which he preached was filled out by Christians only.

To make the Jews listen to him, Joseph asked the Pope to issue a bull, which would oblige Jews, under penalty of severe punishment, to attend sermons.

The Pope agreed and issued a very strict bull, but by this time in the ghetto, and in throughout Rome, a terrible plague broke out, from which people died like flies. Gates The ghettos were locked and Jews were forbidden from leaving them. The plague continued. several months, and when the gates were finally opened, there were more people in the ghetto dead than living, and although the bull was not cancelled, during this time the pope he was so merciful that he no longer forced the Jews to listen to Joseph, which they particularly could not stand, but allowed to act in the role preachers to other monks.

Meanwhile, Joseph himself had changed greatly during the plague. He was therefore very he was glad when he was freed from the duty that he himself had invented, but on the other hand, it was on him they assigned him another duty, which he had never thought about before and which turned out to be even less to his liking than preaching, namely: he must was to sit at the door of the auditorium and write down all the Jews who came to the sermon, and those who didn't show up. He personally knew all the Jews in the ghetto, and so who could be better than him?

could cope with this responsibility?

And so, instead of playing the exalted role of an apostle, he had to sit with a list in hand, certify the identity of every Jew and be present at ridicule, mockery and other humiliations that the Jews were driven to the sermons they hated, and he often had to witness them the humiliations that both his own parents and the lovely Miriam were subjected to.

Suddenly Joseph declared that he repented of betraying his faith and was returning back to Judaism. He made it public before the entire Christian congregation and Jewish, and that he wishes to undergo public execution to atone for his misdeed from the Christian authorities according to the existing rules. The astonished Catholic the clergy tried to influence him with exhortations, but it was a futile effort, and finally he willingly accepted a martyr's death with the utmost regret of even himself Pope. In his death throes, he screamed loudly that he was happy to be honored to die.
Jew.

BOOK FIVE

DEPARTMENT 1. THEORETICAL

TREATISE I THE JEWISH WOMAN

Chapter 1

The Dignity of the Biblical Woman

In his daily prayer, the Talmudic Jew prays thus: “May he be blessed
"The Lord our God, who did not create me a woman."

A Jewish woman must say the following words every day: “Let there be Blessed be the Lord our God, the King of all the world, for He created me according to His will
"your own."

The Old Testament law commands a son to honor his mother in a woman, but beyond that we
We have many examples when women were exalted by God, for example:
Sarah, Rebecca, Miriam, Deborah, Anna, etc.; they were honored with divine revelation and the high gift of prophecy.

The biblical woman enjoyed all the rights of a man. Leafing through
In the Bible, we see that the woman of that time often acted completely independently into the public arena as a prophetess, priestess, and holy companion.
Thus, Aaron's sister, Miriam, having the prophetic gift, exerted considerable influence against the Jews. Deborah was not only a prophetess, but also a judge for several years.
Israeli land.

Judith played a completely political role by cutting off the head of Holofernes, and thus saved her people from certain death.

Esther also appeared as the savior of her people from civil disasters and Oppression. Things became different for women in Judaism under the influence of Talmudic teachings.
In the Jewish view, it falls to the point of denying the great human element in it.
dignity, while God's law placed women on an equal footing with men in the following touching words: “Honor your father and your mother”; the Talmud limits the sphere of her even family influence to the last possible extent.

The biblical woman was not subordinate to man, but compared to him, as It is said: “I will make him a helper suitable for him” (1 K. M. 2. 18). Man, like the woman, equally created in the likeness of God (1 K. M. 2:27); God created both said: “Have dominion over...” (1 K.M. 1:28-30). True, in the story of creation Adam precedes Eve, but this does not give him any right to subjugate and humiliate her. Eve always has an influence on the morality of Adam, she is the main culprit of his fall and She suffers from this the most. The husband recognizes his wife as part of his own bodies, as it is said: “And the man said: now this is bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh mine, let this one be called “wife,” for she was taken from man” (1 M., 2, 23), and she wears the same name as him "Adam" and must share his life path - all this gives a full and clear assessment of the situation of women.

The wife is not considered a person subject to the arbitrary will of her husband; she dominates independently within the limits of her calling, which is perfectly characterized in the following in the words of the Holy Scripture: “Whatever Sarah says to you, listen to her voice” (1 K.M., 21, 12). The Jewish woman did not live, like other women of the East, closed off from life of the surrounding world. Being placed in a completely free relationship with it attitude, she was not covered with a veil (1 K. M., 12, 14, 24, 11), she was not deprived of the right be in the company of a man (1 C, 9, 12; 2 K. M., 21, 22), present at public meetings (1 K. C., 14.4; 2 C., 6.20), does not hesitate to take part in all national holidays (1 c., 18, 6; Judges 16.27), the solemnity of which she tries to increase it with singing, music and dancing (K. Sud., 11. 34; 21. 22; 1 C, 18. 16). Her Domestic activities consisted of performing household duties.

Women in Jewish history often occupy a prominent place and demonstrate commendable activity. Sarah, Rebekah, Rachel and Leah and in later history are presented as role models of women and took an active part in the creation of the home Israel. Moses owes his salvation in part to his sister Miriam. And again the same Miriam solemnly strikes the strings during the Jews' crossing of the Black Sea. harps and sings an inspired song. During the construction of the tabernacle of the covenant, women sacrifice luxury items to the sanctuary - gold jewelry, metal mirrors (2 K.M., 35;:25..26.38),

During the era of the judges, Deborah heroically arms Israel to fight the Midianites. The armies of Israel follow her triumphantly, having overthrown the age-old shameful yoke of slavery. (Judges 9:52, 56) A woman's determination frees the city of Shechem from the tyrant Abimelech (K. S. 9. 52. 53). After the battle, the women go out of the city with songs of victory and joy. to greet the warrior heroes (1 Sam. 18:6, 7). Their song has such an influence on the people that Saul begins to fear for his throne when he hears them praising David's heroism. Michal's loyalty saves David's life, and Ivagael keeps him from shedding blood. Joab orders a wise woman to be called from Tekao, who cleverly influenced the parable Absalom's return from exile (2. p. 14. 2-20). A woman's hand pacifies the rebellion Sheva (2 S. 20, 22-23).

When Elisha asked the Shunamit whether she needed intercession before the king, she replied: “I live among my people.” (2 Kings 4:3) Among the prophets we also find many female names, among which Hulda stands out. The mother of King Assa ruled the state for a long time. During the secondary political independence The Jews also had women in charge of the state, the widows of Hyrcanus and Alexander Ianaeus. The Talmud says this about a woman: “The only purpose of a woman is “to produce offspring” (Trak. Ketubot, p. 59).

Rabbi Eliezer, son of Azariah, says: “Whoever refuses marriage by violating those who obey the commandment about the reproduction of the human race are considered murderers, diminishing the number of likenesses of God, for it is said (1 K. M., 1. 27); "in his own image He created man" and after that (there), "be fruitful and multiply" (Tosefta Ivamot, 8. 8).

Chapter 2

About the Talmudic woman

A Talmudic woman cannot be a participant in the full promise; she is not capable of circumcision. She has no direct participation in the matter of assimilating the promises and because it is as if God placed it outside the law, which, according to the teachings of the Talmud, commands "teach the law to your sons, but not to your daughters." The purpose of a woman, according to The Talmud, is only that she provides the man with the opportunity to fulfill the commandment that commands him to procreate. The Talmud forbids teach daughters the law of God and give them education, limiting it for women knowledge of housekeeping and the ability to knit a stocking. To teach your daughter the Law means to teach the art of deception'.

1 Tr. Menachota L. 43, 2; and Kish L. 30.

2 Tr. Iomalah. 66.2.

3 Tr. Iomath. 20.1.

Article One of the Talmudic Torah says the following: “Women, slaves and young children are free from the study of the law."

Further it speaks of the Talmudic woman as follows: “A woman who studies according to the law, she receives a reward, but her reward is not equal to that which a man receives, because it is not commanded to her; and whoever does what he is not commanded will not receive such a reward as is given to the one to whom it is commanded. And although a woman is awarded, after all, our sages commanded that no one should educate his daughter law for the reason that most women do not have sufficient sense to understanding of the law and due to the limitations of one's mind, one may become confused in the words of the law.
That is why our sages said: “Whoever teaches his daughter the law is the same as teaches her crimes." However, this applies only to the study of the oral law; as for the written word, he should not teach her this either, but if he does this does, such an act of his is considered equivalent to if he taught her

(his daughter) to a crime." The purpose of the Talmud is to instill in the woman the consciousness of her insignificance and accustom her to complete submission. A pious Jew even It is forbidden to speak publicly not only with another man's woman, but even with his own wife; according to the definition of the Mishnah, a husband who has a wife who is quarrelsome or not diligent in performing duties towards him and not pleasing him, may to deduct 7 denarii from her dowry every week for his own benefit. The rabbis The Talmud proves that a husband, having transferred to himself the entire dowry of his wife, still I still have to continue making penalty deductions on her account, because the wife can get inheritance from relatives, and then the husband can collect what is due to him according to the account."

1 Gilkhat Talmud Torah 1.

2 Ketubo5,7.

“Our rabbis command every man to strive to do everything possible ways to marry the scientist's daughter, even if it meant selling everything he had property; if the Jew did not find such, then he must take the daughter of the public headman; he won’t even find her, he can marry the trustee’s daughter; if not will get her too, - he should try to take the teacher's daughter. Just don't under any circumstances should marry the daughter of an uneducated man, because the uneducated are vile, and their wives are like insects, and about the daughters it is said: "Cursed is he who lies with the beast." "The Eagle of the Synagogue" from later philosophers, Maimonides teaches the following:

“No one can say: “I want to study and fulfill the law of God and His wisdom, to be a partaker of all His blessings and to inherit life future"; and further: "I want to refrain from crimes that the law prohibits, to avoid the curses stated in the law and to be worthy of participation in the future life." If anyone serves God from such motives, he is unjust, because he to live for God only for the sake of fear is far from the way our wise men stood prophets; thus no one can serve God worthily; only the uneducated (amgaaretz), women and children get used to serving out of fear, until their minds are in “state to understand serving God out of love.”

1 Tr. Pesachim, pp. 49, 2.

2 Gilkhat Teshuba l. 10, p. 1.

The Talmud defines its legislation in the words that command: “A woman shall not can be a judge (tract. Yerushalmi, - Shebuot, ch. 4. Halacha 1). As for the above-mentioned Deborah, then, according to the remark of the Talmud - Tosefta (tr. Nida l. 50 a), as if she would not judge, but only expound and interpret the laws. According to the generally just to my understanding, this should have more significance than the judge who judges according to certain ready-made laws.

Further, the Talmud limits the rights of women, equating them with a person without rights the position of slaves: “She cannot be a witness where the testimony of two is required witnesses. Or where special mental effort is necessary." (Rash-Gashana, p. 22, p. 1); tr. Psokhim, l. 4, p. 2; Tosefta). Women are equally not allowed to take the oath (Tr. Ibamot, l. 88, art. 2, l. 117, p. 1).

“A woman, due to her physiological purpose, is endowed with a weak will, strong impressionability, and therefore it is more inductive than man" (Midrash Raba, 1 book M. 18; tr. Nida, l. 45, p. 2).

It is said that Rabbi Chiya was once asked: What is the dignity of a woman?
He answered: “In that they accompany their sons to school and patiently awaiting the return of their husbands from the audience of the rabbis (tr. Berakhot, l. 17, p. 1).
In another place the same Rabbi Chiya expresses himself as follows: “Their merit if they raise our children and save us from sin” (tr. Iba-mot, p. 63
p. 1).

“A woman’s job is to work at home, a man’s job is to work outside the home” (Toldot) Rabbah to verse 26.35). “I have always called my wife nothing other than home” (tr. Gitin. L. 92);

Iasi, the son of Johonon of Jerusalem, used to say: “Do not talk much with "his wife." If this is said about one's own wife, then it is even more so in relation to neighbor's wife. Therefore the sages taught: whoever spends time in conversation with women, He harms himself. He is distracted from studying God's word and ends up in hell." (Abot 1 chapter of the Mishnah). “The rabbis taught: those who give money from their hands to the hands of women with the intention of looking into her, be he like Moses who received

Torah on Mount Sinai, they will not escape punishment" (tr. Eruvim, p. 18). "Rabbi Yohai ben Yosi
He used to say: "Whoever looks at women ends up indulging in vice" (tr.
Yalkut, lit. 255). "Any courtesy and conversation with another man's wife is forbidden" (tr. Sabbath, p. 17).

The Talmud goes on to mention the inability of a woman to even bear witness in court and deprives her of the right to do so.

"There are ten categories of incapable people who are not given the right to testify in court; this includes women, slaves, children, the insane, the deaf, blind, wicked, vicious and interested in the matter; all such in number are ten."

1 Gilkhat Teshuba l. 10, p. I.

Chapter 3

The opinion of a learned baptized Jew

Quite an authoritative Talmudist, Kirasevsky, who converted to Christianity,
In his work "Critical Analysis of the Talmud" he says:

"But if we reason like that, then we must admit that women can get away with it break all ten commandments of the Law; all of them seem to apply to men: when referring to the persons to whom they are given, the masculine gender is used. But is it possible to allow God to give such a law... Examples from practice can be given ancient Jewish legal proceedings, which prove that women in famous In some cases, they had every right to testify in court. The Israeli king Solomon, when two women appeared before him, each of them claiming her rights to a living child, did not refuse to judge them because they were women who had no right testify. And besides them, in this case there are no other witnesses
It was. Let's take another example. When Boaz wanted to marry Ruth, he First, it was necessary to buy out the inheritance left by the sons Naomi, and this required proof that Ruth was indeed his wife one of Naomi's sons; there were no other witnesses besides Ruth and Naomi, so how Elimelech, Mahlon, and Chilion died, and the marriage of Mahlon to Ruth took place in foreign country. However, we do not see that any kind of difficulty. Boaz and the elders of Israel were satisfied with the women's testimony.
Thus, the rabbinical ruling that deprives women of this right does not is justified neither by the law of Moses nor by ancient Jewish practice. In taking away women of this right was expressed only by the Talmud's view of women, a view that was insulted "violent for her human dignity."

The ancient rabbis teach that a husband can treat his wife as he pleases.
as you please: “He who eats fish can start eating it from the back, from the tail; he who buys meat can start eating it from the back, from the tail;
“He can bake it on the fire, boil it, or roast it on a spit, as he likes.”

With regard to marriage, the Talmud states: “Before the time of written law it was so: if a man and a woman meet on the street and want to connect with each other friend, then the man, having taken the woman into the house, cohabitates with her without witnesses, thus “In this way she became his wife.”

1 Gilkhat Shtut 1.1.

Akiva, the most learned contemporary of the schools of Shammai and Hillel, looked upon marriage as shrine. "Where there is a husband and wife, there is God," he used to say. With such a highly moral Akiva's view of marriage allowed for broader conditions for divorce than others contemporary legal scholars. It should be thought that Akiva, like Hillel and his school, considered divorce one of the conditions that makes it possible to preserve holiness marital relations between spouses, since they considered marriage to be based on love, at the beginning of life, and not the theological-dogmatic one, which she adhered to the school of Shammai. This explanation is more natural and more in accordance with the truth. The marriage of Akiva was based on the sacred feeling of love, and this is precisely the sanctity of marital relations inspired him with the idea that God dwells between spouses. A woman in Akiva's eyes was a higher being, bringing happiness into family life. He even put her on a very high level, claiming that anyone who wants to have a rich and long-lasting offspring must obey the commands of the Lord and his wife. With such a high view of a woman and her role in the family cannot be allowed to exist and the thought of Akiva preaching divorce in the name of divine protest. On the contrary, considering a woman capable of the realization of family ideals, he was deeply convinced that she could fulfill its task only under the conditions of a peaceful family life, closely connected with love,

- and outside of these conditions, Akiva considered marriage unthinkable and a woman incapable of sacrifices required in the name of peace and love. Akiba drew his views from his own family, he had a perfect wife who provided him with everything and filled him family life as the highest moral bliss. The Talmudists of later times for their own personal reasons they made a woman their slave, without rights or responsibility before with her husband.

Chapter 4

About divorce

The Talmud then continues on the subject of divorce: “From what time does the wife neighbor is considered divorced? - from the time he sends her out of the house and leaves her to her own devices; or from the time the wife leaves from the authority of her husband and follow the desires of her heart, for for them there is no divorce letters, so that if a husband or wife wanted to separate, they "separate and are considered divorced."

To this the Talmud adds: “There is no marriage union among the pagans.”

Elsewhere it says: “Marriage is binding between Israelites, or among the pagans among the pagans, but not among slaves with slaves or not among slaves with "Israelis."

The public prayers of the synagogue and most of the rites of worship may be committed only in a congregation of 10 men, because this is the number, according to rabbinical teaching, attracts the presence of God." If there are 9 men and a million women, then the meeting cannot take place because the woman is nothing. Only a 13-year-old boy will show up and one day, the conditions change - and the meeting becomes completely holy.”

1 Gilchat Melachim 8, 3.

2 Ibid.

3 Gilkhat Yesurabiya 14, 19.

4 Drakh Garmomiye t. P ch. 3 and 4 Tatia taiye MaesrShe l. 23, 2.

5 Drach Harmonie t. P, Paris 1844.

According to Talmudic law, in ancient times, for a Jewish boy to reach the age of 12 age was a critical time. Twelve years, according to Jewish tradition, Moses left the house of Pharaoh's daughter; Samuel heard a voice calling him to prophetic activity; Solomon gave a judgment that first revealed his wisdom. And Josiah, the king of Israel, first conceived his great reformation. To this year a boy, whatever his rank, according to the teachings of the rabbis and according to popular belief
According to custom, he had to learn some craft for an independent existence.
From this year onwards he was completely freed from the power of his parents, which could no longer sell him into slavery. From that year on, he became "Ben-gat-Torag," or son of the Law. Until
At that time he was called "katon" - a minor, and from then on he became "gadol", or adult, he was treated as a full-fledged person, he began to wear already
"tefillin" and had to be presented by his father to the synagogue on one of the Saturdays, which on this occasion was called "Shabbat Tefillin." According to rabbinic teaching,

"Sefer Gilgulim" (a boy under 12 years old) carried out only "Nefes" - an animal life, and from that time on he began to receive “ruach,” or spirit, which, if his life is virtuous, must develop into a "nisema" - a rational soul. A woman, however, according to the teachings of the Talmud, is doomed to remain in the state of "nefes" for the rest of her life, i.e.
to lead only an animal life forever, since they are condemned by the Talmud to stagnate forever in humiliation, slavery and oppression, without the right to even bring a complaint to court.

Reaching the age of twelve was a decisive era education of a Jewish boy.

Judah Ben-Tema says of himself that at the age of five he studied the scriptures (Mikra), in ten - "Mishna", and at 13 the Talmud, at eighteen he got married, at 20 he acquired wealth, at 30 - firmness, and at 40 - wisdom and so on. In this story we do not we must forget that the Jewish people and the Eastern inhabitants in general are developing with at a speed unknown to us, and that boys in those years had to send military service and even, to the great detriment of the generation itself, between the Palestinian and
The Jews of Asia Minor are considered capable of marriage.

According to the law, which required the annual appearance of male Jews in Jerusalem

During the holidays of Passover, Pentecost and Tabernacles, Jewish women were allowed to be there forbidden, just like now Jewish women, all in general, have no right to be together with men in the synagogue and are deprived of any participation in joint both in rituals and in prayers.

A Talmudic woman cannot acquire information about the religion she professes religion and is excluded from all rites of worship. "And he who teaches his daughter holy law (says the Talmud), is as guilty as the one who would teach it obscenity."

Chapter 5

Jewish women cannot be witnesses

The Talmud says: “Women cannot be witnesses according to the Law, for it says: according to two witnesses... and the word "witnesses" is masculine, not "feminine."

The Talmud positively reduces a woman to the level of a slave in relation to
to the spouse: the husband is such a master of the one he marries that even if he desecrates the most sacred laws of marriage, the woman's right to complain is not recognized to be caught; the husband alone dominates family life, he alone owns the family the right to enjoy freedom and his wife; the latter is left with only everything to endure without complaint. Contrary to the commandment of Moses: “Do not covet your neighbor’s wife yours"... and further - "the debauchee is guilty of the death penalty", the Talmud teaches that Moses prohibits Jews from committing adultery with the wife of their neighbor, i.e., a Jew, or with the wife of strangers, i.e., non-Jews, are excluded from this commandment,” proving that non-Jews do not have marriage. This opinion is based on the fact that all non-Jews, according to the teaching Talmud, are deprived of human dignity. Marriage exists only between people, but cattle cannot be recognized as having the right to this institution.

1 Gilkhat Edot, 9. 1. Deut. 9, 6.

2 Tractate Sanhedrin, p. 37, p. [.

3 Tosefot of the Talmud and the famous Rashi to the pentacle Lev. 20:10.

Rabbis Behai Levi, Gerson and others argue in the same direction that
A Jew will not commit a sin if he dishonors a Christian woman. Even the "eagle of the synagogue" himself, Maimonides, with all the philosophical direction of his thought, admits that “one can
"to dishonor an unbelieving girl, i.e. a non-Jewess, through intercourse." ' On this on the basis of this, did not our Church and the kings have sufficient reason to prohibit Christian girls should be in service to the Jews? After this,

Can one doubt the inexplicable frequent dishonor of Christian virgins? How much
There were criminal cases, and major ones, even in our memory.

The Talmud says: “Whoever sins with his mother in a dream, reg-soyat, then his mother must call wisdom, hoping for wisdom, who with the named - for friendliness, who with sister - on the mind and reason, and whoever dishonors another man's wife must hope for eternal life."

And although it is generally not advisable to arouse desire for a woman in the evening before going to bed (but this opinion can also be attributed to hygienic advice), however, it is still clear that This treatise allows lust.

In the Talmud there is - ï 411 $, ; $1
ashet ipiga ites appo$ $ regshae si, $1 41$ at sh4ege t osshit 1. i.e. pop sï gay$
Is iiiḱs, dsha sisavsit jiiŕỹs 1i{ s { ï Totepŕit Let's talk about it."

In other places in the Talmud we find confirmation of this conclusion. Thus,
The Talmud tells about some of its main authors (Rabbis Rav and Naiman), that they, having come to some foreign city, asked to announce publicly whether he would like any of the women to be their wife for a few days."

1 Yad Hazaka 2:2, about the kings of Com. 2:3, in some editions, however, this thrown out.

2 Treatise Broheis l. 57.1.

3 Treatise (Nivo) vol. 47, 2.

4 Tract. Yoma p. 18.

Rabbi Elijah, according to the Talmud, was always not averse to dishonoring anyone please the girls, as long as the sin is committed only from the outside, without touching "the insides of the soul."

The Talmud says about Rabbi Eliezer that there was not a single public a woman with whom Eliezer was not closely acquainted, when he found out that one requires a whole chest of gold, then, taking this chest, he wandered with it, looking for her, and arrived had to cross seven rivers... (the rest of the story is very indecent and tempting)? The Talmud, however, tells that at the moment of Eliezer's death, God from heaven he called him to himself, and Eliezer went into eternal bliss.

The Talmud tells of Akiva, whom the synagogue calls the second Moses, that one day Akiva saw a woman on a palm tree, grabbed the tree and climbed up it; but only it was the devil in the form of a woman and he said to Akiva: “If it had not been from heaven commands to deal carefully with Akiba and his law, then I will not take your life I would value it even at two coins.” The Talmud says the same about the rabbis Meizhe and Tarpone. It should be borne in mind that, according to the Talmud, all such actions of the rabbis constitute an example and are included in the law for the purpose of praising them, not condemning them”, and In general, the Talmud contains many things that in the eyes of Christians will seem not only extremely tempting, but also extremely disgusting and repulsive, which is sufficiently proven by the above extracts?

1 Ibid., p. 19, p. 2.

2 Tract. Avoyde-Zura l. 17, p. 1.

3 Trak. Kiddushin l. 81, 1.

4 Broheis Tract l. 62.1, Hagigah l. 5. 2.

5 Tract. Sanhedrin l. 22; tract. Shabbes l. 149; tract. Nazir l. 23, tract. Soito l. 10; tract. Moeid k. l. 18, etc.

If a husband has an affair with another even under one roof, in front of his wife, the latter, according to the teachings of the Talmud, has no right to do anything even to her husband any reprimands on this matter. And when Rabbi Yochanan spoke about some disgusting actions - which are indecent to mention - said that they immoral, the other rabbis rebelled against him. “No,” they said, “the law is so does not say; whatever a husband wishes to do with his wife, he can do, as if with a piece of beef from the butcher, or as with a fish that you bought from a fisherman." An example is given as proof of this: for example, one married Jewish woman brought a complaint to the rabbi that her husband was performing his marital duty in a Sodomite manner, and received a response from Rabbi: “My daughter, I cannot help you, the law (Talmud) has given you over to the flock.” However, this disgusting teaching is found only in the old Talmuds, enjoying in the eyes of the Jews the greatest privilege of divine inspiration and valued they are more precious than gold and diamonds, and this teaching is found in the new Talmuds only in a few editions. ' They briefly added something based on false In the interpretation of the Bible, the rule is that a Jew in the given case can act as he pleases as you please; a Noahide, i.e. a non-Jew, can have intercourse in the Sodom manner only with the wife of another Noahide. The Talmud approves of many things that Christians are considered disgusting, horrible, obscene, but difficult to portray words the consequences of this teaching. This dishonest teaching and narrative is not only in the ancient edition of the Talmud, but also in new editions. In the new edition these things are repeated somewhat shorter with a shameful interpretation, falsely based on the Old Testament, which supposedly allows a Jewish husband in the above-mentioned case to do what he pleases.

1 Amsterdam 1644; Silsbach 1769; Warsaw 1864 in the treatise Nadarim l. 29, l. 1, p. Sanhedrin l. 58.1.

Chapter 6

Slave obedience of a woman to her husband

A Jewish woman must surrender to sodomy if her husband demands it, and if she does not have it the right to complain if he has a relationship with a goy, especially since the dishonor of a goy, or a non-Jewess, a Jew is not charged with debauchery as with a woman, but he is accused of such in a case of bestiality. "Rabbi Shile punished with a whip the man who had intercourse with a woman... (in the new Talmuds, periods are put instead of the words "goyim"

- I. L); the punished man went with a denunciation to the king and said: “There is one man among Jews, who judge without the permission of the government." Then the sovereign sent for appealed. When Rabbi Shile appeared before the king and was asked why he had punished cruelly this man, he answered: “Because he had intercourse with a donkey.”
The king asked, "Do you have witnesses?" He answered, "Yes." Now Elijah appeared in in the form of a man and testified."

1 Talm. Tr. Broheis ch. 9.

A Jewish widow entered into an affair with a Christian and became, according to her own consciousness, pregnant from him. Rabbi Asher ordered his authority to cut off her nose, which was immediately carried out! This happened in 1305. However, our honest and most learned professor Khvalson, who was in Russia (as himself admitted in his essay) among many other thugs and nose-cutters-
The rabbis present Asher as an example of religious tolerance. Khvolson probably also himself he counted among the ranks of these humane and progressive rabbis, for which he received praise from Jews throughout Russia received the general, very honorable title of "a guter id" (a pious man). If if it weren't for his purely national-patriotic exploits and the role he took on himself, then no Jew would dare to pronounce the name of Khvolson, and with disgust spitting in all directions, he would call him "meshumed", which means a traitor, a convert or apostate.

Rabbinists as proof of the impeccable moral purity of the Jewish people tribes indicate a small number of illegitimate births among the Jews; but
This can be explained by the following: Firstly, the Talmud allows Jews to dishonor goyim; secondly, it strictly prohibits family relations; and thirdly, sodomy permitted by the Talmud.

On the Christian side, there is a known innate aversion to Jewish women, and religion strictly forbids intercourse with Jewish women, and therefore Christians cannot have frequent communication with them; the main reason for this is that the Jews hide their metric records, and therefore statistics are positively unknown about the number illegitimate births among Jews. But statistics and moralists are asking very an interesting question: why is there so much violence between women in all the big cities of Europe?
relatively more Jewish women than men are observed to exhibit free behavior other confessions? And indeed, statistics tell us that in Paris,

London, Berlin, Hamburg, Vienna, Poland and Russia, in the so-called half-world, even openly in brothels, the Jewish element predominates, especially in Recently this trade has become the exclusive property of the Jewish people. nations; factors and procurers have occupied even in St. Petersburg and Moscow all the brothels and disturb passers-by day and night with a beckoning cry. In the western provinces In Russia, the entire poor class of Jews is exclusively engaged in this craft, although the rich class is not averse to this deal; the richest Jewish woman never will refuse, if the opportunity arises, to play matchmaker and will willingly take on the work of overcoming all kinds of obstacles due to business; this is an innate talent among Jews.

As practice shows, in Russia prostitution is considered almost a the artisan class; by law, the Jews in the internal provinces of Russia, and especially in in both capitals, only merchants, artisans and those with academic title; meanwhile, thousands of procuresses and prostitutes live in both capitals, not having neither one nor the other title, therefore, they enjoy the rights of a craftsman workshops, like tens of thousands of chief executives-Machers-Jews, who also enjoy the rights of guild artisans.

In America it is no better." The Jewish one is even more worthy of sympathy and regret. a woman, although fallen, but who nevertheless bravely broke the path of routine Talmudic morality; for prostitution for a Jewish woman under unbearable pressure of the Talmud, depersonalized by it to the utmost, reduced to the level of a slave, the purpose of which does not go beyond providing a man with the opportunity to perform the commandment to continue one's race - prostitution, we repeat, represents the only possible way out of the dark crypt in which he buries her alive a fanatical Talmudic casusticism.

1 Israeli Archives, vol. XU, p. 711, 1867.

Live goods

From the Constantinople Notes

- Your Excellency! As always, I have found contraband! - he addresses, a suspicious young Jew bending over to the obviously freshly baked guardian of the law, replacing the secretary of the Constantinople Russian general consulates.

- What contraband?

- It's already known what kind - living goods... And three Jews on the ship just now
They brought six Russian girls for delivery!

An hour later, three arrested Jews with live goods are taken to the shore in Russian consulate, where they are interrogated first individually, then together.

In the passport of an already elderly Jew, dressed in the style of Berdichev chic,
It says: given to Itske Borochman with his wife Sarah and daughter Gevron.

"Are you Sarah, Borokhman's wife?" the official asks the young woman, about seventeen years old,
a pretty blonde, German or Polish, clearly not Jewish.

The girl looks around timidly and immediately doesn't dare say anything.

Borokhman, whose knees are shaking, can't stand it and loudly yells:

- Yes, yes, my wife!

- Shut up! - the young official shouts at him, indignant at him.
impudence.

From further questioning of all the diassi-wives and ia$1-daughters it turns out that each of the girls brought in, there is a victim of the most daring deception, based on complete the inexperience of the girls, most of whom are blondes, since in Turkey beauty
Blondes are highly valued.

All these girls were persuaded by Jewish specialists in the trade of women to go to Odessa, allegedly to serve in some theater. In Odessa, they were told that the troupe left for Feodosia, and that is why it is necessary to go there by boat. When will they already were on a steamship, it was only at sea that they learned that they were being taken to Constantinople, and persuaded them to call themselves their wives and daughters, promising great things in Constantinople salary for participation in the theater.

Lost, without any opportunity to consult with anyone, vigilantly warned by the Jews against any contact with strangers, the poor girls forced to give in, unaware that they will be sold into slavery.

In Constantinople they are soon transported to the Asian quarter and... all ends are covered in water:
unless someone informs on them, or the victim manages to escape. But such cases are isolated. Usually, having found themselves in the house of a Turkish woman trafficker, they quickly transported to private harems in the care of ever-vigilant black eunuchs.

After a month or two, the girls are converted into Muslims, some of them are taken to Baghdad, Damascus, Cairo, etc. p.

There are two Turkish prostitution agencies in Constantinople. They sell not only European women, but also Circassian women. They skillfully protect themselves from any there was no suspicious visit; no one was immediately seeing women for sale they show that it is absolutely necessary to come with some well-known face trader; even a Young Turk, known as such, will not be allowed into this house.

Our agency has noticed many cases of Russian girls being brought in for sale.
consulate, but a huge number of times the smuggling goes unnoticed. Many rich Turks have several blonde wives, and young victims of outrageous
The business dealings are forever hidden under the veils of jealous Ottomans.

Chapter 7

On the behavior of Jews and the fertility of women

In ancient times, the Jews were corrupted no less than other orientals, so carefully isolated from foreigners and for a long time without having despots on their necks.

Public prostitution existed among them even in the times of the patriarchs. Onanism, bestiality, sodomy, incest even of children with parents, not to mention about ordinary debauchery, - stain many pages of Jewish history.
When confronted with the Syrian tribes, the Jews developed lustful the cults of Moloch and Bilhah, which consisted of child sacrifice and various shameful ceremonies that usually ended in promiscuity. Priests of Baal-Wilphegor there were all young men, beardless, handsome, anointed with incense, in the temples of their They sold themselves to anyone who wanted to sodomize their god. The same temples also included many women were engaged in debauchery. On the mountain tops, in the shade of the forests, surrounding the temples of Baal, at the crossroads, on the streets of cities, even in the very in the temple of Jehovah, public women were scattered everywhere - Syrians, Egyptians, Babylonians, Arabians.

1 Ref. XXI, Leviticus XYSH.

Palestine, according to the prophets, was the greatest harlot and
"She committed adultery on every hill, under every tree of the field."

The reason for such a decline in morality among a significant portion of Jewish women easy to find: it consists of nothing other than immorality and seductiveness the influence of the Talmud on them through its interpretation by their mentors, i.e. their teachers young brothers. If in the father's house the young daughter is not separated from male half and from the mentor, then how will she avoid early desires debauchery, about which one hears outrageous Talmudic interpretations every hour. Who will guard her hearing from morning to evening to save her innocence, to keep her safe dima and protect it from inevitable destruction? To preserve its purity intact, Will the deep contempt shown before our eyes be enough for her?
followers of the Talmudic law to a woman, and - a state of ignorance and moral impersonality, in which the Talmud condemns her to stagnate?

According to the teachings of some Talmudists, the role of a woman in her appointment is set very high; for example, with all his learning, Maimonides was carried away to strange and funny regarding the need to multiply children in Israel.
“The commandment ‘perye verivie’ (be fruitful and multiply),” says Maimonides, “is why it is so necessary for Israel. It is known from the Holy Scripture that during the time of Moses, Whenever the ark came to rest in a certain place, Moses would say, "Rest here, “Lord, in the multitude of thousands,” - therefore, - continues Maymond, - if at least one person was missing from the designated number, then the Shekhinah - the Holy Spirit - cannot to dwell among Israel. After this, every Israeli can understand for himself, - Maimonides concludes, - what a great sin does he commit who does not produce a man on light; for it deprives society of the presence of God's Shekhinah." Hence the interpretations The rabbis gave birth to the Jewish chant on the Sabbath day: “Multiply, O Lord, our children,
"like the sand of the sea."

1 See Maimonides' work on daily reading, day 3.

On the fertility of Jews in the Voskhod magazine last year

They say that there are currently 11,399 Jewish residents in Libau. 269 were born and 88 died. persons. Over the year, the population increased by 610 persons. With what joy does a Jew calculate such a large increase in its aristocratic and intelligent tribe in hope of the imminent enslavement of Christians. Birth rate in Yekaterinoslav for March Jewish month: male - 106, female - 78; twin births: male - 3, female - 13; died 20 persons. There were 36 Jewish marriages. Unfortunately, missionary activity Christians have completely ceased to exist. Jews wishing to be baptized, especially the Orthodox

The clergy does not want to baptize at all, they dissuade it is better to remain in Judaism in avoiding the hassle and hassle of dealing with them. Meanwhile, the government loses money every year millions to missionary societies. Sends to Japan, America, China and Kamchatka for the conversion of remote and harmless savages. And here, in the very heart Russia, the most pernicious ulcer is left to multiply and develop in peace, to be educated in all higher educational institutions, so that later, having received academic degrees degrees, to sit there themselves, publishing newspapers, magazines, aimed at polemics against their own government and undermining public morality and the Orthodox faith.

In practice, in reality, Jewish women achieve according to the requirements of the Talmud reproduction of the children of Israel; we very often encounter amazing things in different places phenomenon: besides, as is very often the case, Jewish women give birth twice a year, but It often happens that they bring twins and triplets - for which, according to the Talmud, it turns out the greatest grace of Jehovah; and for all this the Jewish woman is humiliated, destroyed, enslaved and despised in the Jewish family!

Correspondence from Novominsk. - A Jewish woman, Sura Rifka, died here recently.
Furmanskaya, who lived for over 100 years and had many great-grandchildren. Descendants
It consisted of 168 people. Furmanskaya spent her entire life in the same the house in which she was born.

A 24-year-old Jewish woman living in Yekaterinoslav recently successfully gave birth to triplets. This woman is distinguished, according to "Pridnepr. Krai", extraordinary fertility: a year after her marriage she gave birth to quadruplets (no one of them did not survive), the following year she gave birth to twins and the other day gave birth to triplets. Varsh. diary, 1900, no. 80.

Jews look at women exclusively as birth-givers, they do not recognize them as human dignity and consider any education unnecessary for her. Wives Hasidim are not only not allowed to eat at the same table with a stranger, but even talk to him, look at him without a special witness, who is Jewish is called a sheimer. One rabbi proves that boys are better than girls and says, that children can ask God for it after their father's death, while they have full right to drive his mother out of the house, for she, having given birth to them, had already finished her role. If a wife does not have children for 10 years, then the husband can leave her without any form of divorce.

A husband can leave his wife at any time and marry another, while An abandoned wife does not have this right without a formal divorce.

Chapter 8

The opinion of Rabbi Shammai

Rabbi Shammai said: “No one should divorce his wife until he will see in her marital infidelity."

The opinions of other rabbis are not at all like this, for example: Rabbi Hillel commands so: “For a divorce it is enough if the wife spoils the food, through which she will not find favor in the eyes of her husband." Rabbi Akiva also says: "With his wife, he can each will leave if he only finds a woman more beautiful than the first, as per the law Moses says, "If a wife does not find favor in the eyes of her husband," this refers to beauty or prodigal deed; but the opinion of Rabbi Hillel must necessarily be accepted forever."

1 Soria sit apit. Tour Eben Gaezer-Gilhot Gitin.

2nd Tour Eben Gaezer Gilhot Gitin.

Here is another Talmudic law:

“The Bible’s words, ‘If a wife does not find favor in the eyes of her husband,’ teach us that Divorce can only be done by the will of the husband; if the wife is divorced against her will husband, then she is not considered divorced; in relation to the wife, the husband can always "divorce your wife against her consent." Further, it is said even more effectively in Talmud: “It is not permitted to marry someone with whom one intends to have sex later.” get a divorce, but only if she is notified by her husband that he took her only for a while, then the husband can leave his wife or get a divorce.”

If someone's wife becomes deaf or dumb, then the husband can give a divorce paper - and she is divorced; if the wife has lost her mind, then the husband cannot throw her out of house until she recovers; our sages have arranged it so that she does not became a victim of evil people, since in such a state she cannot defend herself; the husband, however, can marry another, but is obliged to provide for her her own funds; in the same way, he is not obliged to fulfill his marital duty, since a reasonable person cannot have communication with a madwoman; nor is he obliged to her treat; if a husband divorces his wife, then she must leave his house, and he is not obliged “connect with her.”

The Talmud constantly places women in many ways as slaves and thralls in relation to husband; so, turning a blind eye to his infidelity, he is far from being so lenient towards a woman; a husband, for example, is prohibited, among other things, from having marital relations with an unfaithful wife, because such a woman is a beast, and whoever loves her does not care, who loves cattle. In the Jewish book Pachod Itzkah, "The Fear of Isaac,"

1 Yad-Hazakah Gilhot Gerushin 1, 2.

2 Ebek Gaezer Gilhot Gitin.

3 Yad-Hazaka, Gilchot Gerushin 10, 23.

4 Sephor, sheet 14, page 2.

where it speaks of the treacherous wife, we read the following: “And he (the husband (treacherous wife) secretly whisper in his ear that according to the rabbis' verdict he must divorce your wife, and let him hear

he will find out in his heart and will turn around, and will be healed, and will marry another. If he if the secret order of great people is not obeyed, then in that case it is necessary to force him to divorce his wife by all sorts of coercive measures, to flog him with rods, beat him with a flail or thorns. You can even force him to do this through the Goyim. The wife should under no circumstances live with him. If, however, the husband remains stubborn, then he is beaten with a blacksmith's hammer until he pain and torment will not submit. It is even permitted to use it to punish a stubborn person.

a weapon that does not spurt blood when struck, and it is harmless to hit him with this weapon.
mercifully to the point of destruction. For he who shames the holy seed must be given over destruction and disgrace. Here the author adds: “It is known that the great King Rashbo (?), Rabbi Shalom of Montpellier, gave a similar decision in 1231 in a case of lesser importance."

1 That is, local authorities, through intrigue.

Chapter 9

About her husband's infidelity

On the contrary, a husband's infidelity to his wife does not frighten morality at all wise men, and if the concubine dared to bring adultery with her under the marriage roof, then this act has nothing terrible for them, only so that the rival the spouses were not married, so that she would not be unfaithful, and, therefore, emerged from the category of speechless animals: then everything will be fine; that's all demands strict rabbinical teaching from a Jew. Among the teachers named in our book, according to the decisions of the Sanhedrin of 1807, they find this convenient teaching in Rambam, whose authority is so great in the synagogue. This rabbi is surprised that they can subject doubt his teaching. “I cannot understand,” he says, “how one can doubt it;

It is undoubtedly true that the trade in women is permitted by law." "Rabbi David Adubraham (Kaby Rau14 Adibgasvat) quotes the same words of Rambam and He supports them with the parables of Maimonides, the words of the book of Genesis: "Increase and multiply."
The rabbis give this meaning: it is useless to submit to the yoke of marriage in order to achieve the goal
God's providence and the multiplication of the human race, and a freethinker and a vile the seducer performs this with no less dignity than the virtuous man Divine commandment.

Each person can take several wives, even a hundred, at once, or one at a time.
another, and the wife (the first) cannot prevent him from doing this, with one condition, however,
“to feed her, clothe her, and fulfill her marital duty.”

In the book “Arba Turim” the author also advises like Maimonides, but only to take no more than four wives: “Everyone can marry several wives, as the rabbi says that this is allowed, only so long as he is able to feed them.

However, our sages advise not to take more than four wives."

Further advice and instructions on this matter continue as follows:

“Where the custom of taking only one wife prevails, it is not allowed to marry on another. Rabbi Gershon anathematized anyone who takes more than one wife; but this anathema does not extend to one who takes the wife of a brother who died childless, as well as on the betrothed. This anathema does not apply to all countries and has “force only until the end of the fifth millennium.”

1 , 1, . 208.

2 YadChazaka, 14, 3.

3 Eben Gaezer 1.

4 Ibid.

From this law we clearly see that before Rabbi Gershon there was a
The custom of polygamy. It was prohibited only until the end of the fifth millennium.
This period has long since passed, i.e. before 1240 according to the Christian calendar.
European - now it is considered that the year 5639 has passed since the creation of the world, and therefore the Jews are now free from Gershon's anathema and, against their will, restrain their passions under the influence of Christian state laws to which they are subject.
In the Turkish state, Jews indulge in polygamy, since the state
The law allows this.

The Synod of 1030 prohibited polygamy, but the Hasidim insist that this is the ban is imposed only for 1000 years; as a result of this we find, for example, the fact is that several Jews, having married in our region, went to Constantinople, sold their wives there and, returning, married again. So many continued until they were discovered by the government and brought to trial.
In the eastern regions, however, Jews still practice polygamy.

Knowing the insignificance of a woman under a Jewish roof, there is nothing surprising if the one who is called her husband, is in reality only her master; if his the marital title gives him the right to flog her with whips and in every possible way correct the one who gave him the marriage; if according to Jewish interpretation a nephew cannot marry his aunt, while the uncle is given the freedom to marry his niece, for the reason that in the first case equality deprives the nephew of the right of personal correction, so necessary for marital harmony (. , 35). But if this same woman, without offending the Talmudic rules, lives under the marriage roof of a married man, will strengthen the bonds of marriage, then let him beware to be unchaste or to allow a daring glance to see only a few strands of her hair. Such oblivion would be a crime against religion, the husband will have the right to expel her immediately from the marital home and hand her a bill of divorce for spreading temptation in the depths of the chosen people! So,

The Talmudic woman is nothing: nothing before the God she worships; nothing before the son she gave birth to; nothing for the husband with whom she lives under the same roof and who prefers a concubine to her, constantly threatening his wife with divorce.

Talmudic law prohibited the betrothal of a girl before the age of 12 and to marry before 17; but the social disasters of the Jews forced them to avoid of this rule. “Those driven from one place to another,” say the rabbis, “are nowhere finding refuge, living in the painful uncertainty of what tomorrow will bring day, we must provide for our daughters at the earliest opportunity and look for protection for them in advance." The price of girls varies according to circumstances that regulate and fluctuate the price of any commodity in general; but legislation is trying to determine its normal size are in complete harmony with the unfavorable view of women by the orientals. According to the law Moses, the price paid for a bride was the same as for a slave Frankel refutes Unger's opinion, since in the last quoted passage (Deut. XXI, 29)
"It is not about the price of the wife, but about the retribution that the seducer must pay unbetrothed girl to her father for her dishonor." So, but the seducer must to marry her, and in the mentioned place of Deuteronomy the amount of the kalym is determined, necessary for marriage. The Jewish-minded Frankel doesn't want to understand this. According to Talmudic law, the norm of the mentioned ritual kalym serves as a paltry dinar, Mɏ Italian voice; hisses the same sums, obliged to provide for the wife in the event of her widowhood or divorce, is determined in 20 guilders for a girl and 100 for a widow; from the 5th century BC this gift was provided all the husband's property.

Chapter 10

The custom of giving the bride a morning gift

The disappearance of the kalym and the development of the custom of giving the bride a morning gift or the obligation to provide for her in case of widowhood or divorce, of course, improves the position of women, and they improve not only by this provision, but also by the fact that here the husband is instilled with a sense of a certain duty, a certain obligation in relation to his wives. And this duty necessarily contributes to the strength of the marital union, making it difficult to divorce due to the whim of one husband. The custom of dowry, which finally entered due to the development of law and the state, it also contributes greatly to the strength of marriage and not only improves the wife's relationship with her husband, but in certain cases puts her first head of the house. In the Muslim East, wealthy fathers often marry their daughters poor people, and such husbands necessarily become completely dependent on their rich wives. "Such a wife," says an observer of Turkish customs, "has little reasons to complain about her lot. She is not a prisoner at all; she travels freely in in her gilded carriage; she strolls in an elegant caique along the charming the shores of the Bosphorus; she rules over the harem and over the heart of her husband."
It is not without reason that in the East there is a reaction against a significant dowry: oriental
He wants to be the master of a poor wife rather than the slave of a rich one.

All over the East, girls are often getting engaged, even married minors; parents, of course, do not ask for their consent and in case resistance can be forced into marriage by force. Widows, however, are completely free have their own hand. But the power of parents to marry their son and give away their daughter is also quite recognized by the legal customs and laws of the primary states, subsequently significantly limited by legislation in the interests of women.

Without the consent of the bride, marriage becomes impossible, and among Muslims, an adult daughter herself chooses a husband for herself; but in reality, parents can always force their daughter the said agreement and thereby take away from the law all its force; and we have marriage is concluded by free consent of the bride and groom, but the weddings of our merchants and peasants testify to how illusory the bride's consent is in a crude society. Among the Jews Reev's adult son is legally quite independent, but ordinary morals demands that he not marry without his parents' consent. If he refuses from this rule, then in the old days his parents would take a barrel with fruits and broke it, saying: "Our relative married an unworthy woman woman; we do not want his children to mix with ours, and let this be a sign in

“in the future” (i.e., just as the fruits were separated, so we will be separated from it).

Along with the duty to love and respect one's wife, religious systems and codes
The East requires the husband to dress and feed her decently, and also to have sex with her sexual intercourse at certain times; Jews are also obliged to treat wife (but not from a long-term illness, because for constant illness he can give her a divorce), ransom her from captivity (on this basis he enjoys the income from property of the wife), it is proper to bury the deceased, for which he inherits her dowry. To The wife can force her husband to fulfill these duties through the court.
Of course, such restrictions on male tyranny improve family life.
women, if possible, guaranteeing her from the capricious whims of her husband; but all the mentioned concerns of the legislation do not apply to women, or even to wives in general, but only as a mother of the family and a zealous assistant to her husband.

Convincing the rulers to be more humane with their slaves, legislation have in mind the interests of the family and the husbands themselves, since experience always shows that a person can be turned into a slave much more successfully through gentle management them than through cruelty and arbitrary tyranny. "Happy is the man he who has a virtuous wife, because the length of his days will be doubled because of her,” says the son of Sirach, expressing the general desire of all orientals to have a virtuous wife. Her ideal is that she should act innocently towards her husband, She was faithful to him and bore children, ran the household well, was submissive and always ready servant of her husband.

All the concerns of the Eastern legislators and moralists are directed towards the development this ideal and the means to realize life. The husband's authority receives religious sanction; the wife is obliged to submit to him due to the curse that lies on her for the fall; the rights of the husband, based on a purely civil contract between him and his bride and her parents, are sanctified by the wedding ceremony and are approved by the state power. Everything strives to make a woman a virtuous woman.

Chapter 11

The opinion of Drach, a former rabbi

The learned pen of Drach, a former rabbi, has revealed many secrets to us since under the influence of new ideas, religious beliefs began to be destroyed one after another, and finally the faith of the Jew, until then unshakable, began, in turn, to waver and hesitate. The Talmudic woman benefits more from the benefits brought education and freedom than her husband; she was only a slave everywhere and always, was an instrument of her husband's pleasure, a sufferer appointed to assuage his sorrows poverty and persecution. Burdened with household chores, continuing the family, The Jewess seemed to have been born only for this; her monotonous life passed in the midst of these activities... and she was still happy if her selflessness and devotion did not bring upon her complaints and ill-treatment. The woman was considered nothing in the social state of the Israelites; her birth was not like the birth men, recorded in the book of communities; her death was also not the subject of such evidence; her active, patient life passed from day to day boringly and monotonous. Jewish girls were not taught literature, science, or art, no crafts and nothing of morality or religion. They were taught only to endure and remain silent. They are forbidden from entering the temple until they are married, and it is difficult to understand them.

piety and even fanaticism, when it is known that Judaism has no place for women nothing, that it does not give them any place in the social hierarchy; that it is on them looks at it as necessary furniture, hardly worthy of the slightest attention.

As soon as a Jewish woman gets married, she enters a state of untidiness, inherent to her caste. A fiery temperament characterizes her beauty in general, and this circumstance is for the most part the cause of her downfall, - without being, moreover, held back by religious fear, which is being destroyed in Judaism day by day as persecution and danger disappear.

The Jewish woman is arrogant and talkative, weak and treacherous, a slanderer gossip; she has homebody habits, deeply despises Christian women and slanders their co-religionists. If a Jewish woman belongs to a noble family and has received caring upbringing, she rightly amazes with truly rare qualities, grace and intelligence."

The morals of the German Jews are changing; the Jew ceases to resemble himself, he goes forward irresistibly; this change and transformation is accomplished with with a speed that makes one dizzy wherever a Jew has common sense and the inclination to escape from authority, to free oneself from the shackles of the Talmud. But also the Jewish woman, who had been a captive for so long, is emancipated and relatively freed from the despotism of her husband. This means that the restraint that replaced her morality weakens; that taste and passion for pleasure and luxury carry her away; that her fiery temperament throws her into a whirlwind of light, where pride is no less than coquetry commands her to shine; and the Israelites, without any hesitation, show us the fact that is now being witnessed is that in the houses of open Jewish women during the season balls and evenings as princesses of the tribe of David, distinguished before all by their wealth and "with the splendor of their outfits" A

1 Judea and their history - rag. Setete, raz. 49 and 52 is.

2 The Israeli Universe. Vol. 1, p. 295, 1865.

Like any other woman, a Jewish woman does not need a tyrant treatment that leads her to the need to adhere to good morals for the impossibility of indulging in evil, - no: she needs a wise law that would with meekness and justice he penetrated her reasonable soul and loving heart.

A renowned philologist, historian and expert on Egypt, Dr.
Reinisch, in his speech in Vienna, at a meeting of architects, says: "In the ancient country pharaohs in the early 19th century BC, the rich Egyptian culture began to be replaced depravity, moral corruption and extreme debauchery. The reason for this was numerous Phoenician, Arab and, most importantly, Jewish merchants who settled in Egypt and their abuses in trade, passion for quick profit perverted the correct order of the Egyptian people. The period of moral decline, which is described in detail by the author of the Leiden Papyrus. Demoralization

It began with servants and slaves, then the rule of concubines emerged. The nobles bought Syrian and Ethiopian slaves for themselves and endowed them with wealth, while their their own wives were left in neglect and suffered poverty.
the desire to acquire wealth, the boundless passion for pleasure led to a complete decline of social relations. Ancient respected families became impoverished and fell; they were replaced by shameless scoundrels. People who previously had nothing, began to possess wealth, palaces, gardens, slaves, treasures and more infiltrated high society, but also gained access to the palace.

Treatise on the Transmigration of Jewish Souls

Chapter 1

The Wandering of Jewish Souls

The Talmudists teach that just as a man has a great difference from a woman, so

It is precisely the difference between women's and men's souls. A woman's soul is in large degrees below the male soul, etc.

There is a saying in the Talmudic Haggadah which points out quite definitely on the teaching and wandering of souls. “The souls of the righteous,” it says in the Haggadah, rest under the throne of Jehovah, as it is said (I Samuel 25): "Let the soul of the Lord be my is tied in the knot of life" (and the "knot of life" is the source of souls, located under the throne of Jehovah "guf", or "gif", a warehouse or store); the souls of sinners wander and rush around the world, as it is said there. "And let the souls of your enemies rush about like "an arrow shot from a sling" (tract. Shabbat, p. 152)." Among the people, the belief in The wandering of souls is known as "kaf-gagal" (an arrow from a sling). This is quoted in book "Emunot Vedeon", chapter UT, - the famous rabbi Saadia-Gaen. The famous rabbi, auto-
The 12th century scholar Jacob Tash explains the principle in his book Sefer-Gayashaar wanderings of souls. “If the soul, after separation from the body, is pure and flawless, then it, like a bird that has escaped from its cage easily flies through all the heavenly circles and returns to his nest is in the sky; but the soul of a sinner is like a bird whose wings are cut off and which cannot fly high, but only scurries in the lowlands until it grows back her wings; so the sinful soul cannot ascend to heaven, being burdened with sins, pulling her down, and only after atoning for her sins through suffering in this world, such a soul can return to his heavenly abode (Sefer-Gayashaar, ch. XII).”

Chapter 2

Transmigration of souls

Since the 13th century, Kabbalistic teaching has begun to preach a new principle: transmigration of souls (gilgul neshamot). Application to the afterlife punishment is known the number of souls incarnate each not only in one person, but in different objects. Kabbalah teaches that every soul sent down to earth by Jehovah has a predetermined purpose to realize the whole sum of religious ideas, to improve in the fulfillment of all the commandments; if this goal is not achieved in the time of the soul's stay in a certain person, then upon the death of the latter the same soul migrates into another person who is born again; and if here too if the predetermined goal is not achieved, then it migrates into other people until will fulfill its purpose. Practical Kabbalah from the 16th century onwards followed the same the paths are much further. The Hasidim, based on the teachings of Kabbalah, believe in the transmigration of souls. brought to the point of hideous deformity, which offends the entire human race, although Mishnah Gideons, there is the same kind of faith among the people. This faith does not come out of thin air, not is a willful invention of the people, but blindly follows the teachings of moral and religious books published by various philosophizing rabbis who tried in the Middle Ages centuries of one outdoing the other, and in the end the mind went beyond reason, which disgraced the dignity of the human race.

The entire Jewish mass firmly believes that when a person passes away after death before the heavenly court, the latter can sentence him to Gehenna, or to Gilgul (transmigration of the soul). In the latter case, the sinful soul, preserving its un-separateness and full consciousness, moves into another person, more partly into a newborn, who is destined to suffer and be tormented a lot in his lifetime. If a sinful soul moves into an adult, then this is called "the intrusion of an evil spirit" (ruach), the expulsion of which from a person can be accomplished by means of a Kabbalistic spell cast by a baal shem, i.e. a Kabbalist healer.
In the act of transmigration of the soul into another sinner and sufferer as assigned to him by fate the soul that has migrated again suffers and experiences all the torment and goes through all sorts of terrible ordeals for them. But this is still a relatively light form of punishment. Souls more serious sinners are transferred into animals and even into inanimate objects objects. It is clear that the human soul, transferred into an animal, suffers unimaginably. If the animal is clean, i.e. if its meat is permitted to use as food, then the soul that has moved into it still has hope of being saved; namely, when the animal is slaughtered by Jews according to all the rules of bedika (law) and over the shabby blessing (broches) is performed with its meat, then the soul is liberated from punishment and receives peace. But if the animal is unclean, then the one relocated to his soul perishes forever. "To end up in a pig after death" is the most terrible thing a performance for a Jew, this punishment is awarded for the most serious sins.
According to the general belief of the Jews, gilgul is the most severe punishment, worse than Gehenna.
There are many stories circulating among the people based on the teachings of rabbinical religious literature about all kinds of gilguls and the phenomena they cause. It is said, as the roasted bird suddenly jumped on the plate under the knife of the man who was about to eat it, and as after the solemn blessing was performed over it, the one who lived in the bird the soul of the sinner separated and soared to heaven, about which this soul itself later testified, appearing in a dream to her savior. That fact is conveyed, as the soul of this or that deceased sinner appeared in a dream to such and such a rabbi, revealed to him the name of the man in whom she now, after resettlement, resides, and begged to convert this person to the true path or to give him the famous "tikun" (soul-saving amulet), so that the soul could be freed from imprisonment, even if death of this man. All these folk tales are based on the teachings of the rabbis, where in Similar cases and facts are published in various religious books. One rabbi writes about the occasion when he was served chicken soup for dinner - the plate squeaked, as often happens, When air gets under the enamel, the rabbi did not eat this soup and ordered the meat to be poured out throwing out the chicken, believing that the chicken contained a sinful soul. Thousands of similar fables is found in rabbinical literature, so devout Jews have a fantasy of something like this beliefs develop endlessly.

Chapter 3

Practical Kabbalah

The founder of practical Kabbalah, Ari (Isaac Ashkenazi), says: “Let the people does not think that the transmigration of souls is a light punishment. For, even when transmigrating into righteous man, a person suffers from staggering and anxiety at a time when he should have rested in heaven. Needless to say, he suffers even worse when enters into an animal or a bird. Sometimes the soul enters into an inanimate object, how a man who has sinned by slander turns into stone, i.e. the soul enters into a stone rolled in the field and abides in darkness; but whoever was not careful to use even if it is a questionably forbidden food, it turns into tree leaves, and During the swaying of the latter by the wind, he experiences terrible torment. Also the chapter Jewish community, oppressing the people, turns into a bee, and in this form experiences much greater torment than he would experience in Gehenna, for he is crumpled in in such a tiny place; this is a direct punishment for his arrogance... Even more so those who are transformed into unclean animals suffer. And even after all these ordeals, the sinner not yet free from Gehenna. (As quoted in the popular book "Kav-Gayasher" by Rabbi Kaydanovera, Vilen. ed. 1864 p. 150).

Chapter 4

The Teachings of Rabbi Menasseh

Rabbi Menasseh ben Israel teaches that a person whose amount of merit more than the number of sins, is transformed, i.e. instilled into a pure animal for atonement for their sins, but a person whose number of sins exceeds amount of merit, turns into an unclean animal (given in the Shevet Mussar, part, [, p. 79). In general, for each kind of sinful crime a penalty is established a special kind of transmigration of the soul. A person who has led a dissolute life is transformed into reptiles or poisonous reptiles, neglecting to pronounce the blessing over food it turns into water, i.e. it enters into water (ibid.). In some
The following legend is given in the books, showing the significance of gilgul. In Castile
One day they were preparing for a bullfight, the favorite game of the Spaniards. One was prepared
The hero is a magnificent bull. At night, on the eve of the day intended for the fight, he appears
A Castilian Jew saw this bull in a dream. The Jew immediately recognized his father in its image.
“My son!” says the ghost. “Know that for my sins I have been turned into a bull and into the very one who tomorrow must take part in the battle on stage in front of the people and be tormented. Therefore, my son, do something so that I can free myself and run along such and such a road before I am subjected to terrible torments and tortures; not spare no expense for this. Then slaughter this bull in which I am, religious laws, and divide the meat among the God-fearing poor. This is what they advised from heaven and allowed me to notify you about this. If you do so, then will be transferred from the body of a bull to the body of a man, and then completely freed." For the first time cited in the Sefer Haredim of Rabbi Eliezer Askari of the 15th century, and then reprinted in "Shevet-mussar" and other books. Stories about gilgul are filled whole volumes of so-called religious and moral books.

Chapter 5

About the summoning of souls after death

The souls of sinful people can be summoned long after their death.
Thus, in Gittin, 56, 2 and 77, p. 1, it is told how Onelos, the son of Kalonicus, summoned the souls of Emperor Titus and the prophet Balaam, whom he asked about the fate of the deceased and the reason for their own condemnation. But the soul of the righteous can be called forth no later years after his death. In connection with the latest concept of time, there is also a challenge the soul of the prophet Samuel by the sorceress of Endor. One Sadducee said to Rabbi Abugu:
“You say that the souls of the pious are preserved under the throne of glory, how is that The Witch of the Dead (from Endor) could summon through necromancy Samuel? He said to him: “This happened within the twelve (first) months (after his death), since there is a teaching: the first twelve months the body remains, and the soul rises and falls; after the first twelve months the body decomposes, “and the soul rises and no longer descends.” (Shabbes, sheet 152, p. 2).

The teaching of this kind of Talmudists is very much in line with the ideas modern spiritualists.

The moral concept in the teachings of the Talmudists is set out mainly in treatise "Pirke Abot" (sayings of the fathers), which is therefore usually printed in appendices to Jewish prayer books siders.

From the formal side, the basis of the moral worldview of the Talmudists constitutes the freedom of human will, in the broad expanse of intellectual philosophy, in various divinatory reasoning.

The Talmudic teachings on the soul are very diverse, complex, extensive and quite It's strange and funny. The Lord God created all souls in six days, creation of the world, then the Lord God hid everything in the storage "guf" or "gif", and from here God spends and sends one soul to each Jewish woman before childbirth. (Rashi tr.
Hagigah l. 5, p. 1; Nishm l. 42, p. 1.)

The Lord God created only 600,000 Jewish souls, as every verse of the Bible has 600,000 meanings to interpret, and each meaning refers to one soul.
Jewish souls have an advantage over other souls because they represent a part of God himself, i.e. they come from Him, as the son represents a part of his father. Therefore, the Jewish soul is more pleasing and dear to God than the souls other peoples of the world, for their souls originate from the devil - and these are the souls of animals and animals. (Ialkut-hadash l. 154, p. 2 and others).

Every Jew has two souls: during sleep one soul flies away to gather dreams, and the other remains to guard the body so that an evil spirit does not take possession. During the Sabbath, As soon as the candles are lit in the evening, the souls are immediately freed from hell and ready for the holiday Shabbat is appointed for rest for the pious Jew, the festive soul "shume- "Isair", and this soul should receive peace and festive pleasure "tainigim", i.e., lustful pleasure. Therefore, every Jew must observe the Sabbath. solemnly, cheerfully, eat well and indulge in all sorts of things a pleasure to treat the festive soul. Every Jew on Saturday after A delicious lunch should be followed by a rest, and then the spatsir is set off, always slowly humming under his breath: bam, bam, bim, bim, ... to amuse the guest's soul, so that she I didn't feel sad. In the evening, Jews don't light the fire for a long time, in order to prolong the the Sabbath holiday and to detain the souls of hell longer. That's why Jews on Saturday evening for a long time they do not light a fire and wander in the darkness, whispering like crayfish groping, as soon as one lights a candle, then everyone lights it at the same time. Everyone avoids lighting it first, because he will then be the reason that the devils will drive Jewish souls to hell for torment hellish.

DEPARTMENT 2. ECONOMIC AND HISTORICAL

TREATISE I: POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC TEACHINGS OF THE TALMUD

Chapter 1

Money in the Talmud

It is said in the Talmud: “If the people of Israel did not have silver in abundance and gold, then he would not have made himself a golden calf. (Tractate Berakhot, p. 32). Unfortunately, Gold and silver were taken by the Jews from the Egyptian people.

The Talmud goes on to say: “Only the poor in spirit are poor.” (Tractate Nedorim, sheet 41).

Therefore, he who has a lot of courage and impudence is rich.

By the way, it would be worth mentioning the trade in church tithes, as described in the Talmud.

“The second church tithe cannot be sold or demanded as security debt, neither exchange nor use as weight. You cannot speak to your neighbor in Jerusalem: “Here’s wine for you, and you give me oil, but we can give gifts to each other "items of the second tithe."

It is forbidden to give collateral for a loan. It is forbidden to use maaser-sheni (sacred money) tithes) to be used as a weight to determine the value of gold denarii, even if these diparii are meant to profanate another maaser-sheni; it is impossible “They should not be given to a money changer, nor should they be lent out, unless they are in danger of rusting.”

"What does it mean: you can't sell the 'second tithe'? You can't do that to your neighbor.
such a condition: here are 200 zuz (maaser-sheni), give me one mina (khuling) for them “from free."

“The messenger from the court has no right to enter the house of a defaulting debtor and take maaser-sheni as collateral for a debt. One may not say to one's neighbor, "I give you this maaser-sheni as collateral, you give me chulin for it” (i.e. free money or objects).

“You can’t make such a condition with your neighbor: “Here’s wine for you, and you give me oil, Here is some oil for you, and you give me some wine,” but it is allowed to make the following condition: “Here is some wine: I have no oil”, to which the other replies: “Here is oil for you, I have no wine”. Here and it turns out that the exchange is both perfect and imperfect, and the service is rendered to both to another. Maaser-sheni money cannot be placed on abscesses and wounds; it cannot be turned into cameo" (decoration).

“The tithes of livestock may not be sold alive unless they are blemished, below, alive or slaughtered, if it has a defect; it cannot be betrothed to oneself wife. While the firstborn cattle can be sold alive if it is without vice; and alive or slaughtered, if it has a vice; one can betroth a wife with it" (use for consumption).

“If the following are bought with money: water, salt, or fruits, sacred with soil" (not picked), or fruits that cannot reach Jerusalem (quickly (perishable), then what was purchased is not holy (maaser). If the fruit was purchased by mistake for money maaser-sheni, then the money remains sacred; if bought consciously, then fruits should be brought to Jerusalem and eaten; when there is no temple, they should be left ROT".

“If the animal was bought by mistake (with maaser sheni money outside Jerusalem), then the amount of maaser-sheni must be replenished, but if it was purchased deliberately, then it should be bring to the "place" (for sacrifice); when there is no temple, then after death buried together with the skin."

“If the value of the maaser-sheni of the second tithe has been paid, but the homesh has not been paid, then, according to Rabbi Eliezer, maaser-sheni is permitted as food, according to the sages -
"not allowed."

“If before the redemption of the tithe maaser-sheni from the product of demai is not completed naming (the ransom formula does not indicate what part of the product is assigned to the maasersheni), then, in the opinion of Rabbi Eliezer, the profanation is valid, and in the opinion of the mu-Dretsov, is not valid."

“The law on homesh when redeeming maaser-sheni tithes is bypassed, i.e. directly "they are deceiving."

They say to a son or daughter, an adult, as well as a male or female slave, from the Jews,
- the following: “Here is the money for you: redeem for yourself this tithe of maaser-sheni.”
However, such words cannot be used to address young children or male and female slaves pagans, since their actions are considered the actions of the owner himself. The law on

They go around the tithe so as not to pay homesh. But one cannot say: “Redeem for me
This is maaser-sheni with this money."

“If the owner of the maaser-sheni is on the threshing floor and does not have money with him (so that give to a stranger for ransom), then he says to him: “I am giving you these products,” and then he adds: “...let them be profaned by the money that I have on me "home."

“If meshiha (i.e. attraction, a ritual that legitimizes a purchase and sale transaction) fruits of maaser-sheni were made for one sela (coin), but the price rose to the point of receiving there is still money in the village, then the seller is entitled to only one village, the second remains in favor buyer as a village of maaser-sheni. If the meshiha of the fruits of the maaser-sheni tithes was carried out for two villages, and before receiving the money, their price dropped by a village, then in the account payment he gives one village from the money of Chulin, and the other from the money of Maaser-Sheni. If the seller is an amgaaretz (laborer), then he gives the second village from the money of maaser-sheni from "demai."

“If, when redeeming the maaser-sheni tithe, the naming (i.e.
the owner did not say out loud), then, according to Rabbi Yossi, the mere fact of redemption is sufficient, and in the opinion of Rabbi Judah, it is necessary to speak out clearly” (Tractate Maaser Sheni.)

“If someone put aside an assarion (coin) as a ransom for the product of maaser-sheni, and, Having used half of it, I went to another place where this product is valued pondion (i.e. twice as expensive), then as a ransom for the maaser-sheni tithe he must spend another assarion. If anyone, having spent from the pondion set aside for the ransom Maaser-sheni, half, will go to another place where its product is valued at assarii (twice as cheap), then he must spend another half an assarion on food."

“If one assarion is set aside as a ransom for maaser-sheni from the product, then it is permissible from There is about 1000 of this product. The School of Shammai says: you can eat only 10 Assariyya, and the school of Hillel says: if the product is vaddai, then it can be eaten on the 11th assars, and from the product demai for 10 assars.

Any money found is considered khulin, even if it is found together a gold denarius, silver and copper. If a potsherd with an inscription is found with the money "maaser", then money is counted.

If the vessel found bears the inscription “korban” (sacrifice), then Rabbi Judah distinguishes

There are two cases: if the vessel is made of clay, then it itself is chulin, and its contents are “korban”; if the vessel is metal, then it is a "korban", and the contents are "chulin". They objected to him: no
It is customary to keep chullin in a korban vessel.

“If a vessel is found with the inscription K., it means “korban”, with M., it means "maaser", with D., it means "demai", with T., it means "tevel", with T. (tav) it means "teruma" (exaltation), for in case of danger they wrote instead of "terumah" one T. Rabbi Yose says: All these inscriptions denote the names of people (i.e., owners). Rabbi Yoseh says: even if a vessel with fruits is found that has the inscription “teruma” (offering), then the fruits are provided to the hulin, since it is possible that in the past year in the vessel
There was an offering, but then the offering was taken out."

“If someone says to his son: ‘Maasar-sheni is in such and such a corner,’ and the son finds some products in another corner, then the products are chulin. If in the specified place he found instead of one mina (indicated as maaser-sheni) 200 zuz (coins), then the difference is - Chulin. If instead of 200 zuz he found only one mina (coin), then it is all maaser."

“If someone says: “I have in my pocket a maaser-sheni consisting of 8 gold coins coins", and he finds gold denarii, then they are considered maaser-sheni. If anyone says: "I have 8 gold denarii in my pocket," and he finds 8 gold coins, then they are considered chulin. If someone says: "I have 8 gold coins in my pocket," and he finds 50 sels, or 200 zuz, then they are considered maaser-sheni. If someone says: "I have in

"If he finds 8 gold denarii in his pocket," and he finds 50 sel or 200 zuz, they are considered chulin.
If someone's maaser-sheni consisted of 1 mina, and he found 200 zuz, then, according to Rabbi,
Here chulin and maaser-sheni are mixed; and the sages say: everything is chulin. If anyone
He says that he has 200 zuz, and he finds a mina, then, according to Rabbi, there is one mina here.
"One was left, and the other was taken, and the sages say - all is khulin" (borrowed from the Talmud, Mishna and Tosefta, 1st volume, translation by Pereferkovich. Treatise "Maaser Sheni" 2nd tithe).

Chapter 2

Greed in the Talmudic Ideology

If it is true that gold rules the world and owns humanity, then the Jews must be recognized as the masters of the world and the rulers of humanity as the first the rich of the modern world, who know how to concentrate vast masses in their hands material treasures.

If gold is the lifeblood of war and peace, the goal of the family man's desires, the adornment of every glory, the motive of friendship and hatred, the source of fiery eloquence, condescending silence, or, on the contrary, shameless slander, then This mighty nerve of human life is in the complete power of the Jews.

It is said of Jugurtha that, upon entering Rome, he exclaimed: “Corrupt city! Why can't you find a merchant rich enough to buy you? In the modern corrupt world this merchant exists; he is everywhere... This merchant, worshipping the golden calf and, in turn, being rewarded by it, buys absolutely everything that can be bought and sold. If only it were possible buy up air and then resell it, then, probably, a candidate for entrepreneurs The head of this enterprise would be a Jew - a world merchant and banker.

The ancient Jews, even during their flourishing reign, carried on trade of this kind, which we learn from various pagan writers and even from the Talmud itself. During the Easter holiday, near the temple, on both sides of the eastern gate, even before Solomon's portico, there were shops for merchants and tables for money changers, or publicans. The demand on the latter was conditioned by the fact that twenty days before At Easter the priests began to collect the ancient sacred tax of half a shekel, or, ours, 45 kopecks per person, which was paid annually by every Jew, rich and poor, as an atonement for the soul and was intended for the expenses of service in the tabernacle. But pay this tax with coins brought from different countries, or minted from copper, or bearing pagan symbols and inscriptions, was considered illegal. It was possible to send such a coin from distant places, but every Jew, who came to the temple, preferred to pay the tax in person and in this case was obliged to be a small silver coin instead of the ordinary circulating one. Jewish money changers exchanged for him with a deduction of 5 percent, in the form of an ordinary "kolban", i.e. growth.

G Ueg.ToBy. 61.3.

Whether this trade is concentrated on those immediately adjacent to the sacred buildings on the streets, - it would be excusable, although not entirely decent. But evil at The Temple of Jerusalem did not stop there. From the Talmud we learn that someone

Baba ben Buta was the first to drive 3,000 sheep into this yard, and from there into the sanctuary. small traders and money changers' tents were adjacent directly to the sacred fence. the insides of the pagan courtyard, suffering from the heat on a scorching April day, infecting the temple itself was stinking with filth and filth, whole herds of sheep and bulls languished until The drovers were bargaining and exchanging with the pilgrims. There were people with huge wicker baskets filled with pigeons. And under the shade of the arcades formed quadrangular rows of Corinthian columns, sat at tables covered stacks of various small coins, money changers, despite the general contempt and abuse towards them for dishonest trade. This was the entrance courtyard to the Temple of the Most High! The courtyard that was a witness that this house, intended to be a house of prayer for all peoples, was turned into a place which, due to its uncleanliness, resembled a slaughterhouse, and the bustle of trade - to a huge bazaar. The lowing of bulls, the bleating of sheep, the talk of different languages, trade and swearing, the ringing of coins and the knocking of scales could be heard on neighboring courtyards and interfere with the debates of the Levites and the prayers of the priests. Filled righteous anger and indignation at such gross disrespect of Jesus Christ at the entrance to the temple he made a whip from the rods lying on the floor and, wanting to cleanse the sacred the courtyard from the filth that defiled it, first he drove out indiscriminately the sheep, bulls and vile the crowd that surrounded them. Then, approaching the money changers, He overturned their tables, scattering carefully stacked piles of change and leaving the owners to collect money scattered on the floor. Then, commandingly declaring: "Take it from here!" He ordered the pigeon sellers to leave, but with less severity, because the pigeons were victims of the poor.

Finally, turning to the terrified, shameless crowd, He explained His right, saying: "Do not make my Father's house a house of commerce." Here are 5 percent of the Jews where they originate from, with the only difference being that they subsequently moved to 10%, and then by 20% and especially in Russia they brought it up to 40% per month without a twinge of conscience.

Let us return to the trade of forbidden tithes. The School of Shammai says: desiring to separate the offering in the latter case, all the jugs must be uncorked and the wine pour into the winepress, but the school of Hillel says: it is not necessary to pour wine into the winepress, it is enough to uncork. (Tractate Maaser-sheni).

The product of maaser-sheni, i.e. tithe, transported from the place where it is valued expensive, to a place where it is valued cheaper, or, on the contrary, is bought out at the price of the latter places. If the product of the maaser-sheni offering is brought in jars from the winepress to the city, then the difference in price belongs to the maaser-sheni, while the transportation costs are attributed to owner's account.

They buy maaser-sheni at a lower price - at the purchase price, not the selling price shopkeeper; they change money at the exchange rate of the money changer, and not at the rate of to whom he accepts small coins in exchange for large ones. It is impossible to redeem maaser-targets by eye; if the price of this product is set, then upon redemption it is sufficient the presence of one witness; if the price is not established, for example, the price of sour-wine, spoiled fruit or rusty money, then it should be established in the presence of three witnesses. Rabbi Simon son of Eliezer says: the price at which the shopkeeper buys the corresponding grade of this product. (Tract. Maaser-sheni.)

If the owner gives a sela (coin) for his product, and a stranger gives the same amount, then the advantage is on the owner's side, because he must add homesh (fifth share). If the owner gives it to him, and a stranger gives it for assarion more, then preference is given to an outsider who added to the main price. When buying out your own maaser-sheni, as well as one received as a gift, an additional amount is added by four shares of the cost of the fifth.

When redeeming a maaser-sheni, the owner must add to the redemption amount Homesh, did he collect the product from his own estates, did he buy the products - i.e. took from a Samaritan or from a pagan, whether he received them as an inheritance or as a gift: in all In these cases, adding homesh is mandatory. How is homesh calculated?

If the cost of maaser-sheni is determined for one village, then 5 is paid upon redemption denarii. Rabbi Eliezer says: to the village one must add '/ villages.

When redeeming a maaser-sheni, it is permissible to exchange inferior coins for better ones. (Treatise Maaser-sheni).

The Holy Scripture teaches us this:

“Do not offend a hired worker, the poor and needy, whether he is one of your brothers or of your strangers who are in your land, within your gates. On that same day, until sunset, pay his wages, so that he will not cry out against you to the Lord, and there will be no sin for you” (Deut. XXTU, 14:15).

One must lend to every poor person with readiness, and take interest from fellow tribesman was strictly forbidden:

“You shall not lend your brother on interest, either silver or grain or anything else that “It is permissible to lend at interest” (Exodus XXI, 25., Deut. XXIII, 19).

True, it was allowed to take a deposit as a guarantee of payment, but even in this case
It was necessary to be guided by love and humanity.

“If you take your neighbor’s garment as a pledge, you must return it before the sun goes down.
her. For she is his only covering, she is the garment of his body: in what will he be sleep? And if he cries to Me, I will hear, for I am merciful." (Exodus 22:26, 27.)

“You shall not misjudge the stranger, the fatherless (and the widow), and you shall not take the widow’s garment pledge". (Deut. XXTU, 17.)

It was forbidden to take a hand mill or only its upper millstone as collateral,
"for this is to take the soul as a pledge"; without the upper millstone it was impossible to grind flour, needed for daily bread, and the mill itself was no good and had no no price.

In general, the law establishes the following rule:

“If you lend something to your neighbor, do not go to his house, to take collateral from him; stand in the street, and the one to whom you lent money will bring it out to you your pledge on the street. If he is a poor man, then you shall not go to bed, having (at himself) his pledge; return his pledge to him at sunset, so that he may sleep in his garment and blessed you; and this will be counted a merit for you before the Lord, “your God” (Deut. XXIV, 10-14).

And what a person does, he must give without annoyance, but kindly and willingly.

“And if there be among you a poor man, any of your brethren in any of your dwellings, in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee: thou shalt not harden thy heart, neither close your hands to your poor brother. But open your hand to him and give him on loan, depending on the need, what he needs. Beware, lest it enter into your heart wicked thought: the seventh year, the year of release, is at hand; and therefore thine eye you have not been unkind to your brother, and you have not refused him; for he will cry out against you Lord, and there will be a great sin (on you). Give him (and lend him as much as he asks and as much as he needs), and when you give to him, your heart should not be sad, for Therefore the Lord your God will bless you in all your works and in all that will come to pass.
be made by your hands." (Deut. 11:7-10.)

Every seventh year, the accumulated ones are destroyed due to the statute of limitations and abolished this period of debts: this is a year of remission, when all obligations are forgiven.
I wonder if such a provision is practical? In any case, it makes a great honor to the heart and humanity of the legislator. This category also includes called the law on the jubilee year, but since it rather follows from social relations, rather than from general motives of a humane nature, then I will not stop there.

On the contrary, it was only humanity that inspired numerous legal provisions war. The newlywed was free from military service for a whole year.
duties, and this privilege also extended to the betrothed, because, according to

According to ancient Israeli beliefs, betrothal was an act that legitimized a man's relationship with the woman he has chosen and was equivalent to marriage, even if it was not yet legally registered. Next, who built a new house and planted a new one vineyard, he could not go on a campaign so as not to die in battle and so that the other did not consecrate his property. The hostile country should have been, if possible, spare during the war: even during the siege of cities it was not allowed to cut down fruit trees trees that did not bear fruit were cut down, and then only to provide the necessary when besieging a tree. The law quite rightly asks: "Are trees people, to fight with them."

Chapter 3

Testimony of ancient writers

Many ancient writers prove that the passion and love of the Jewish the tribe's reliance on money as their only hope and protection arose under the influence of difficult circumstances, constant persecution, universal contempt and merciless persecution, and that before their dispersion the Jews were mainly engaged in agriculture and livestock breeding. In refutation of this opinion, one can point to the above facts that the commercial and exploitative tendencies manifested itself among the Jews even much earlier than their dispersion. During the Roman dominion, for example, they were engaged in the slave trade, as evidenced by all historians, ecclesiastical and civil. Martial also paints for us a greedy Jew, who constantly demands huge interest for a paltry sum.

The Jews' disgust for foreigners and their hatred for the Edomite kingdom the inaction of laws, in the midst of general corruption - all these were conditions that were very favorable to the secret Jewish penchant for usury. Only when the Roman the laws were imbued with the Christian spirit, freedom of extortion was somewhat limited.

In a speech delivered in defense of Flaccus, Cicero marveled at the Jews: “Everyone year,” he says, “significant sums collected by them are sent from Italy to Jerusalem for the needs of the temple." The Roman orator praises the firmness of Flaccus, who forbade Jews living in Asia to contribute to the increase of wealth through monetary collections Jerusalem Temple".

From the codes of Theodosius and Justinian one can see that the business of trading in slaves everything was completely concentrated in the hands of the Jews alone, constituting a huge, a special branch of industry, the most flourishing and profitable, central the points of which were Rome and Constantinople.”

In addition, Jews were involved in all other industries in the empire. industry: they took over the duties from roads and crossings and all state income; sold talismans, predicted the future for superstitious people, etc.

Even in ancient times, the Jews clearly demonstrated their passion and ability for profit. After their resettlement in Egypt, they managed their affairs there so well that they did not

They not only enriched themselves at the expense of the natives, but even managed to seize power into their own hands.
Joseph's elevation to the rank of Viceroy of Egypt was a signal of migration the entire Jewish people to Egypt. The natives saw the Jews as a danger to themselves. Then Pharaoh's government decided to resort to repressive measures; but the Jews
They seized everything they could lay their hands on and fled from Egypt; they carried away with them a lot of gold and silver, as can be seen from the Talmudic rabbinical stories.
But that the Jews came to Egypt in extreme poverty is evident from the legends biblical."

1 Ssego rgo Nasso, $28.

2 Isii Jsi, Ave. 1, GHXX; Tasy Appa/. LY. XYI, $43; R|p isi, paig. MB.
XXX, $47.

3 During their Passover, the Jews display all their silverware in memory that they carried away a lot of silver and gold from Egypt.

During Nero's reign, the number of Jews in Rome reached 30,000. They had a residence permit
The 14th district of the city, on the other side of the Tiber, was assigned. Among the Jewish population, one can was to find the greatest poverty and the greatest wealth. Among the Jews they met and an obsessive beggar, who had learned begging from his mother, early in the morning shouting out his crappy goods on the street and offering them in exchange for broken glass.

Juvenal, approaching the window in the morning, sees a ragged Jewish woman sneaking into a rich a house with different offers for purchase and sale or prediction and interpretation dreams for the smallest price."

Such representatives of Jewry were only amusing, but more hateful was Jewish money lender, broker. Almost all noble Romans were debtors to Jews, who were able to seize control of a significant part of the capital's trade.
This was due to their extensive connections and acquaintances, scattered throughout all parts of the empire, and the speed with which they received the information they needed from everywhere.
Among the rich Roman Jews there were also those who did not shy away from pagan amusements and pleasures from commercial types. This is proven by numerous sarcasms various writers, from Horace and Ovid to Martial and Juvenal, who constantly chose Jews as the subject of their satire.

Chapter 4

Interest is strictly prohibited - taking from a Jew

“The crown of mercy,” says Maimonides (Yad Hahazaka Matn. Aniim, X, 7), our law has established a duty, the most sacred of all others: before command us to support the poor, the law has ordered us to come to the aid of the one who poverty threatens, for it is said: "If your brother becomes poor and his hand weakens with you, support him (your brother, but not a goy), so that your brother will remain to live near you

1 is ji si . Satire 6-ya, art. 546, .

"2

547.

2 Books Leviticus. , 35.

This is the kind of support that should be given to a person with a shaken position, must take the form of a loan. Lending, says the Talmud, is better than give'. In this way you do not insult the person you oblige yourself to, but you encourage it his activity, and not weaken it. However, under what conditions, according to the law, is the loan is it permissible on the condition of interest-free? Is the loan in cash or in kind, issued with the condition of growth is strictly prohibited,” the transaction is recognized invalid”, the lender and the debtor are both equally subject to deprivation civil equality. The following are considered accomplices to the crime: the scribe, the person who drew up the mutual letter, the witnesses who signed it, and the guarantor for debtor. Neither one nor the other, if they fail to justify themselves, can no longer send no public office and are even deprived of the right to act as witnesses in court."

If the lender wishes to have collateral, he is still prohibited from entering for this purpose. pledged to the house of his debtor. The debtor's house is inviolable, as is his personality. The received collateral must be returned to the debtor every time the last needs it. If he gave away his blanket and is freezing, then by law he must give it back to him. When the seventh year comes, the sabbatical year, then all collection is prohibited. It is determined that in the Sabbatical year all debts are forgiven. Despite all the sympathy the Jews have for the main thing for one's fellow men, they say, is to give to the poor and help them, but first all that is necessary is to return his freedom to him if it was taken away from him.

Slavery is the worst of evils, says the Talmud."
"Shabbes", p. 63.
Exodus, XXI, 24.
Bova-kama, l. 30; Bova-metzia, 73; Bova-batra, l. 94.
Mishnah Sanhedrin, IP, 3.
Bova-batra, l. 8, 2.

ə

To serve foreigners, to obey without complaint all their wishes and all their whims - this is for the Jews a much greater misfortune than the most cruel torment, says Flavius Josephus." In view of this, it is necessary to give everything, to sacrifice to everyone and, if necessary, to sell the very house of God, the scrolls of the law contained in synagogue", so that he has the opportunity to return a person to the bosom of the family, thanks to cruelty of enemies who found themselves deprived of freedom. One must pay too much large ransoms, in order to prevent new thefts by their brothers. Here the reason why the Jews try to buy their criminals out of prison and defendants. Also, they should be sheltered from military service: they, considering themselves slaves, do not are required to comply with local law.

The tendency towards extortion and exploitation has become even more developed among Jews, that the Talmud in this case provided irrefutable proof of its disagreement with biblical laws. Interest is strictly prohibited.
Moses: The Talmud prescribed a means of circumventing the prohibition by means of written conditions'.

But at the same time, the relations of Jews in monetary transactions and usurious subtleties were colored and tinted with religious fanaticism and religious hatred towards Christians, as the following excerpts from the Talmud prove:

“If at the same time a ‘nuh-ri’ (Christian) comes to borrow money for interest and a Jew, even a rich one, without interest, then preference should be given to the Jew, for it is written: "to my people," i.e., one's own people have precedence over "Nukhri"".

1 Apidius. Yideou, HY, 1.

2 Bova-batra, 8, Tosafot.

3 Gitin, IX, 9, Talm. Vavil., 46.

4 Heter iske.

5 “Shulchan Aruch” Tir choshen hamishpot, dept. I, p. 264.

“It is forbidden for a Jew to have financial dealings with the “avoydes elylym” three days before their holiday." Here the question arises: why is it accepted in our time to have affairs money with akims on their holidays? Let's assume that most holidays the latter are established in honor of the saints, but in every week they have one day "Nozri" himself (i.e. Jesus Christ), and this day, according to Rabbi Ishmuel, is it is the holiday to which the above rule applies. But, probably, the same author says that it is allowed to deal with the "akim" despite this rule to avoid persecution from them.

“Know that whatever the peoples and whatever their religious rites, all of them are "avoydes elylym" (i.e. idolaters), and on their holidays it is forbidden to have sex with them, but one should treat them in all matters specified in the rule as are considered idolaters. It is generally forbidden to have any dealings with those who believe in Sunday. Sunday should be considered on par with holidays of idolaters°.

1 Comment Rashi on Talmud "Avoide-Zura", page 2.

2 Comments Rambam on the Talmud "Avoide-Zura", sec. I, page 96.

The Talmudic sages had already established a form for their people in ancient times.
bills of exchange or deeds of debt obligations. The "prozbol" established by Hillel, i.e.
the written statement which the creditor submitted to the court represented only a symbol of the fictitious transfer of debt to a judicial place, which, as a state institution, is not subject to the law of "shemit" (in the Sabbatical year). In the "mishna" the formula
This statement read as follows: “I convey to you, members of the court of the city of M, that every debt, which I have on MM, I will collect when I want."

Hillel introduced a fictitious "prozbol" to circumvent the Mosaic law of atonement. all private debts at the end of each seven-year period. The law on "shemita" (debt forgiveness) became harmful in that it paralyzed the credit necessary for the development of trade.
they cancel it, but only advise the creditor to file a written statement with the court that the debt is subject to collection; and according to the Mosaic Law, all debts are forgiven on the 7th Sabbath year.
The Talmudists invented "prozbol", which is a creditor before the beginning of the Sabbatical year files a claim with the court, and the debt must be satisfied. In this case, the debt, if the creditor forgets to submit a probation to the court.

“A Jew is forbidden to lend money to a Christian on his holiday; he is not must also pay him the debt or receive payment from him” (if occupied without bills, then you can collect the debt). Rabbi Judah says: “To receive payment from him it is possible in order to annoy him." Other rabbis say: "True, by paying
You will annoy him with money, but after payment he will feel pleasure.” Rebi Shmuel says: “Since the Jews here are in a state of dependence, then in order to avoid persecution, it is possible to conduct trade with Christians and on their holidays." In a short decision The commentary "Toisfes" of the Talmud Avoyde-Zur says that "the above-mentioned pra-Vilo only applies to an interest-free loan, but you can give Nukhrim a loan with interest.
money even "boy keisakh - voyitl", i.e. at Christmas and Easter.

1 Ibid., Rashi.

2 "Avoyde-Zura". Page 2.

3 Ibid.

“If one Jew instructs another Jew to buy some goods from a Nuhri, having a known price, and the seller mistakenly gave more goods than he should have, then one half of the surplus goes to the commissioner, and the other to the one whose money was at the time purchase of goods. If the Jewish owner instructed his clerk to sell the goods, then sold it to Nukhrim, and Nukhrim made a mistake and paid more money than he should have, - in

In this case, the clerk should not give any of this surplus to his master.
And here we could say that half of the surplus goes to the owner the above-mentioned rule, but here the matter is different, because the clerk could “return the money to Nukhrim as proof of his honesty.”

All of the above is prescribed in the case when the surplus received to the clerk, it is obtained from money or goods belonging to the nukhri; if, on the contrary,
If there is any surplus left from the owner's money or goods, then the clerk is obliged to return this surplus to his master. For example, Abram (the master) gave the clerk Leiba 600 rubles, to buy him, Abram, 100 quarters of wheat at a known price, for example, at 6 rubles per quarter. And Leiba actually bought 100 quarters, but Nukhri made a mistake in the calculation.

and received payment from Leiba only for 75 quarters, i.e. 450 rubles, which means it was the owner's the money, 150 rubles, remained in Leiba's hands, and he is obliged to return these 150 rubles to his to the owner, Abram, because in the law the messenger is considered the same as himself sending. In this case, the circumstance cannot be taken into account, that Leiba could return this money to Nukhri as proof of his honesty, because this kind of honesty can only be shown with one's own property;
attacks as these 150 rubles did not become the property of Leiba, then he has no right to them rights."

Chapter 5

The Teaching to Deceive the Goy

In ancient editions of the Talmud, Samuel's teaching is given that it is wrong to deceive goy is not a sin, and therefore the teacher himself tells how he once was in a piece of iron, which the goy was selling, he bought a piece of gold and, having agreed with the goy, gave him for it the supposed iron 4 zuzi (about 60 kopecks), gave him only one zuzi; Samuel admitted
It is completely inappropriate to be embarrassed in front of a person who can't count money and distinguish gold from iron.” Rabbi Kagan bought 120 barrels of wine from a goy instead of 100; the third rabbi sold the goy a palm tree and gave such an order to his servant: “Go and steal some logs, since the goy does not know exactly,

"How many logs belong to him?"

1 “Shulchan Aruch”, Tir Choshen Hamishpot, p. 142, art. 11,12 and 13.

2 Tract. Bova Kama 113, 2.

3 Tr. Bwa kamal. 113.1.

Rabbi Moses said: “If a goy makes a mistake while counting, then a Jew, Having noticed this, he must say that he knows nothing about it."

Rabbi Brents in his work “JђI” says: “If the Jews ran around in during the week in different places, deceiving Christians, then on Shabbat they come together and, boasting to each other about their deceptions, they say: “The goyim need to have their hearts taken out from the breasts and kill even the best among them" - of course, if it works out achieve." Our Russian Jews are diligently guided by these examples. Not-a long time ago in Kyiv, according to newspaper reports, a treasure was found during excavations near the Church of the Tithes, representing a remarkable treasure - a pile of gold items weighing several pounds. The Jews bought up most of the gold and have already, no doubt, melted it down, as they usually do in this region in such cases.

1 shaepba [, 5, 21; tr. Sangnedr. l. 76, 2.

Numismatists of all times complain about the Jews, that thanks to them they were exterminated periodically in many countries ancient gold and silver coins, why Many coins are currently very rare and incredibly valuable. About this It is said in Butkovsky’s work: “History of Coins”, p. 134. “At the present time ancient Polish coins, and especially medals, constitute a remarkable collection rarity. The Jews living in Poland were the main culprits of the extermination gold and large silver coins. Recently formed societies of lovers antiquities barely stopped the extermination." One Jew, a goldsmith in Podol, as the newspapers say, he bought a pound of gold items, and what's more, the so-called Jewish one a pound, i.e. almost twice the legal price, for 2 rubles. Fourteen old hryvnias were bought by a Jew for 15 kopecks. A stunning exploitation of the working people, the finder of the treasure, the easier it is to explain in this case that the workers did not know the price found things and even gave each other gold rings. Today's Jews, observing the Talmudic rule, if they do it when buying or selling with a Christian has some kind of account, then they offer him to count the money himself, in the hope that that he will be wrong.

In other places in the Talmud there is a prescription: “Tues goy miter”, i.e. a mistake Goy can be used, but nukhri and goy are the same.

The Talmud forbids lending money to a goy without interest; it is permitted to do so loan only for interest. Maimonides says: "You can borrow money from someone any khutei or foreigner, and then give the same money to others from "his own." Therefore, Rabbi Schwabe, a convert to Christianity, had reason to say: “If a Christian needs money, a Jew skillfully knows how to approach him, and the Jew adds interest to interest until the sum reaches such a height that a Christian cannot pay it without selling his property, and when the amount of the debt finally exceeds the value of the property, then the Jew turns to the judicial authority, so that the property of a Christian would be given to him for possession."

The Talmud requires every father to practically teach his children and family a method of paying out money at interest so that it can be acquired in advance sufficient skill for this.” In one of the prayers read on the feast of Pentecost, there is the following place: “God’s commandment is to take interest from a stranger, but this is not is done among the Israelites themselves."

The Law of Moses allowed taking a fair interest from a non-Jew.” But the huge the mass of our “infallible” rabbis teach that Moses forbade the Jews not to charge interest from non-Jews. Moses, they say, said this: "You are obliged to charge interest from a foreigner." Rabbi Maimonides writes: "Our God commanded to take interest from a goy, and only in this case do him a favor - this is so that we do not do goy help, - so we are obliged to cause him harm even in such a matter in which he may be useful; but we must not do this to a Jew."

1 Treatise of Avoyde-Zure, p. 71, p. 1.

2 Bova meciel. 75.1.

3 Deut. XXI, 20.

4 Sef. Miz. Sheet. 73, 4.

The Talmud confirms the same: “It is forbidden to give money to goyim without interest, and “with interest it is possible.” Levi and other rabbis repeat the same thing.”

The famous Rabbi Behai states that the rabbis know that Moses prohibited usury, but, however, this rabbi writes: “The rabbis of the blessed memory commanded that from a goy it is permissible to take only such interest as required for the maintenance of the life of a Jew.” The same rabbi, being confident in his infallibility, speaks to a Jew about an apostate (one who has apostatized from Judaism), and therefore in general about the infidels, whom the apostate Jew joined: “His life is in your hands, and even more so his money.” From this it is clear that it is being legalized unlimited interest, even theft and robbery, because property and blood are sacrificed to tyranny.

Chapter 6

The doctrine of property rights

The Talmud teaches: “Whoever returns a lost thing to a goy, God will not forgive him; “Therefore, it is forbidden to return a stolen item to a goy.”

Rabbi Moses teaches: “Jews sin when they return lost things.
“to apostates, as well as to all who do not honor the Sabbath.”

Rabbi Rashi says: “Whoever returns lost things to a goy is considered a goy.” equal to a Jew."
Tract. Avoyde-Zura l. 77.1.
Tolkov. Pentateuch 234.1. Toze.
Commentary on the Pentateuch, p. 213, 4 Toze.
Ibid., p. 214.
Truth of Job, p. 88, 4, p. Tos. 62.
There is iron. 132.8.
Tr. "Sanhedrin." Chapter 1

m e l m m

Maimonides teaches: “He who returns lost things to a non-Jew sins, because that in this case it increases the power of the ungodly."

Rabbi Cheruchet adds: “If a goy holds a Jew’s pledge, the pledge, which Jew will lend him money, and the goy will lose this pledge, and the Jew will find it, then
A Jew should not return a found pledge to a goy, because it is his duty
The return of the lost item ceased from the moment the Jews found this pledge.
If the finder thought that the found thing should be returned to the goy for the glory of the name God's, then he needs to be told: if you want to glorify the name of God, deal with that,
"what belongs to you."

“The property of all non-Jews is of the same value as if it were found was in the desert: it belongs to the first who seizes it."°. In the Talmud there is a decree that prohibits open robbery and theft. But decides to acquire anything by deception or cunning.

It is forbidden to deceive a goy, but it is permissible to appropriate what he has lost.”

The property of Christians, according to the Talmud, is called "gefker", which means free, a thing that does not belong to anyone.

The property of non-Jews is like a free desert.” “If a Jew exploits a non-Jew, then in some places it is forbidden to have relations with this face to avoid undermining the first; but in other places this prohibition does not have forces: any Jew can lend him money and rob him, because the property a non-Jew's "gefker" (free), and whoever takes possession of it first, it belongs to him.

1 Yad-H. 11.3, p. 31.1.

2 Sef. mesh 51.4.

3 Treatise of Bova-Batra l. 54, p. 2.

4 Tractate Bova kama l. 133, p. 2.

5 Talmud, tractate Bova-Batra, p. 55.

b Talmud Choshen Hamishpot 156, p. 17, and Bardahai tract. Bova Batra, chapter 8.

In the treatise of Avoyde-Zur, p. 13. It is not proper to sell a white chicken to a Christian. Rabbi Rashi gives the reason that if he buys a white chicken, it is probably for sacrifices to their idols (ibid., sheet 14).

One should not sell an ox or a calf to a goy. Rabbi Rashi states the reason: so that they would not be worked with on Saturday, i.e., on the Sabbath (ibid., sheet 25). Every Jew should be like the sun and the moon in the sky, so that it would stand against the goyim, our enemies.

Rabbi Rashi teaches that a Jew should always strive to put himself above, than a Christian, that this is established by the law of God.

“It is forbidden to build dovecotes in a city or town, because pigeons they can harm vegetable gardens, etc., but outside the city, a dovecote must be built on its own fields, or on the hefker, at a distance of 50 cubits from the city, because the pigeons, having eaten their fill, they cannot fly further than 50 cubits; if the majority of the gardens belongs to Nukhrim, it is possible to build a dovecote in the city."

In ancient times, the Jews had a custom that in acts of redemption and exchange, the buyer took off his shoe and handed it to the seller.”

1 “Shulchan Aruch”, Tire. Khoshen hamishpot page 160.

2 Ruth, chapter IG p. 7.

The Talmud, similar to this ancient custom of buying and selling, introduced the “Kabolat” Kinion”, of course, with the attribution to it of that important meaning and power which All Talmudic regulations are usually covered. The buyer himself submits the or a handkerchief to the seller and says to him: “Take this thing in exchange for land or a house, etc., which you sell to me, give as a gift, etc." When the seller reached out with his hand a hem or a scarf, then the act of purchase and sale is considered to have already taken place. And although the buyer has not yet taken possession of the item he has purchased and has not paid for it to the seller, however, the sold item or property, wherever it may be, already constitutes the legal property of the buyer. And neither of the two parties can violate the completed act of sale and purchase.

Nowadays the Talmud has introduced, instead of the old one, another form of notarial property, where the buyer hands his hem or scarf to the seller and says to him: “Take this thing in exchange for land or money”, etc.; if the seller pulled the hem or the scarf with his hand, then the act is completed and the thing, by law, already belongs to the buyer, even though it has not been paid money, and none of them can violate the perfect act without mutual consent purchase and sale".

According to the Rambam, it is forbidden to buy anything from Christians three days before their holiday, and also sell them any products that can be stored for a long time.
Products that spoil quickly, such as vegetables, etc., should be sold.
It is possible. The purpose of this regulation is to prevent Christians from being able to celebrate their holiday.
to give yourself complete pleasure; you shouldn't buy from them either, because they they will collect money for the holiday; having neither food nor money, they will not leave out of frustration “They will go and serve the idols.”

Chapter 7

On the prohibition of trading in images

Jews are forbidden to have the slightest profit from the trade of Christian images."

In the commentary of Toisfes on the same Talmud it is said on this subject:
following:

“Our coins (money), although they have on them the image of the idols of Shesa “voyerev”, i.e. cross, but still allowed.”

1 Talm. Choshen Hamishpot, l. 195, p. 1.

2 Comments Bais-khudush - on whom. Rashi, talm. Avoyde-Zura 1st department. page 78.

3 Comments. Yours on Talm. Avoyde-Zura 3rd Sec., p. 40.

4 On this basis, the Talmud prohibits wearing Christian symbols on the chest.
orders, and therefore the Jews who received the order wore it on a stick in their hand, and when this
It was necessary to raise the baton with the order and recommend themselves as knights.

“It is forbidden, according to the teachings of some rabbis, to lend money to goyim the construction of the "elyl" house, its decorations, as well as its servants. It is especially forbidden sell them the items needed for this, and whoever observes this will be given an inheritance prosperity. Books by akims should not be accepted for binding, except for books legal content. In case of complaints from the akims, it is possible to give in, but should be avoided whenever possible."

“In places where akims gather for some church ceremony, and The main thing is that where they confess, it is strictly forbidden for a Jew to have any money with them affairs?".

“It is forbidden to sell Christian church books, even the Tanakh, i.e.
The Bible, so that they do not become entrenched in their faith."

“It is forbidden to sell to Christians items that are part of their ‘avoides’, "divine services".

“If a Jew and an akim own a bakery in the company, the Jew cannot say:
"You take your share on Shabbat, and I on weekdays"; but it is necessary for the Jew to sell his part to this akim, and after the Sabbath he bought this part from him again, and what's more, “He agreed that the nukhri (Christian) would work on Shabbat, and he himself would work on weekdays.”

Magarshue's commentary says on this matter that a Jew should try to do so “to distribute the days of work wisely, so that the goy always gets the Sabbath.”

“A righteous man (a Jew) is allowed to deceive: “with the innocent, be innocent, but “With the wicked (Christian) be wicked.”

1 Kitzer Shulchan-Aruch, l. 167.

2 Ibid.

3 Ibid.

4 Tract. Avoyde-Zura with commentary. Teusfes, pp. 21 and 27; Magarshue, p. 251.

5 Talmud Bova-batra, l. 123, page 1.

“It is permissible to deceive any non-Jew” (Rabbi Samuel).

Chapter 8

On the Permission to Deceive

“A Jew is allowed not only to deceive a non-Jew, but also to keep any thing, lost by a non-Jew and fell into the hands of the first, for the Talmud says: "How can one know that Is a thing lost by a goy allowed?'' And the one who returns such a thing should not expect anything from God. pardon, for, Rashi explains, he thereby makes the non-Jew an accomplice advantages of the law, which was given only to the Jews.” “Who returns to a goy what was lost things, he considers him equal to a Jew” (i.e., he rebels against God).” Maimonides also states: “He who returns lost things to a non-Jew is sinning, because in “In such a case, he increases the power of the ungodly.”

Rabbi Gerukhet adds: “If a goy holds a Jew’s pledge and the goy loses him, and the Jew finds it, then the latter should not return the found pledge to the goy, because that the obligation to return the lost thing ceased from the moment the Jew found this pledge. If the finder thought that the found thing should be returned goy for the glory of God, then he needs to say to himself: if you want to glorify the name "God, deal with what is yours."

The Talmud teaches that since the Jews and the Divine Majesty are one and the same, it goes without saying It goes without saying that the whole world belongs to the Jews. On this basis, the Talmud clearly says: “If an ox belonging to a Jew gores an ox belonging to a goy, then a Jew is freed from guilt or compensation for loss,” because the Holy Scripture says: “The Lord God appeared and measured the earth and gave the goyim into the power of the Israelites. Since Noah's children did not fulfill the 7 commandments, the Lord God gave away all their property "The children of Noah, according to the teachings of the Talmud and the rabbis, are called all nations world in contrast to the children of Abraham.

---

1 Talmud Bova-kama, f. 113, p. 2. Venice edition.

Tract. Ioma, l. 88, p. [.

Tract. "Sanhedrin", ch. I.

Yad-Hazaka4, 11, 3; l. 31, 1.

Tract. Sef. mesh, l. 51, ch. 4.

Tract. Bova-kama, p. 2.1.

Tract. Megillah, l. 13, 2; Cad. so., l. 56, 4; Behai in the explanations of Genesis. 46, 27, l.

chm © lmo m

56.1.

Rabbi Albo teaches, along with other rabbis, that God gave the Jews authority over the property and blood of all nations'.

The Talmud says in another place: “A child, if he stole something, even if “worth less than the smallest coin in the world shall be punished by death.” On the contrary, the Talmud says to a Jew: “It is permitted to offend a goy, as it is written: ‘Not do harm to your neighbor, but do not do harm to a goy."

"It is permissible to rob a goy."

Rabbi Ashi says: “Seeing the vineyard filled, he said to the servant: “If this vineyard belongs to a goy, then pick me some grapes, but if it belongs to "If you are a Jew, then do not touch it."

The commandment “Thou shalt not steal” Maimonides teaches that one should not rob any person, that is, no Jews. In another place he adds that it is wrong to rob a non-Jew. 'It's possible. Everything is based on the position that the whole world belongs to the Jews; therefore stealing from a goy is not stealing, for a Jew cannot steal, he only takes.

The Talmud says: “It is permissible for you to deceive a goy and take interest from him, but if whatever you sell to your neighbor (i.e. a Jew) or whatever you buy from him, do not “Do not deceive your brother.”

Sef. Yalk., 3, ch. 25; Yalk. shim. gabak., l. 83, 3-583.
Tract. Yebamot, p. 47, 2.

Treatise "Sanhedrin", l. 57.1.

Bovamets., p. 111.2.

Tract. Bova-kama, p. 113, 2.

Seng. miz., p. 105, 2.

Yad-Chazaka 4, 9,1 and Tashi interpretation. Lev. 19,11.
Tract. Bova mets., p. 61.1.

© ә +

If a Jew is in litigation (before the court) with a non-Jew, says the Talmud, then “let the brother yours will win the case, and tell the goy: "Our legislation requires this" (here goes we are talking about a country in which Jews reign); if the legislation of a foreign people favors a Jew, then let your brother triumph again, but say to the goy: "Your legislation requires this." If none of these conditions exist (i.e. if the Jews do not have dominion in the region and the people's legislation is not directed at them benefit), then it is necessary to entangle the goy with various tricks so that the celebration remains behind "A Jew." Then follow the words of Rabbi Ismail, who gives testimony Akiba: “We must try to ensure that there is no open deception and fraud during legal proceedings.” so that through this Judaism and the Israeli faith would not be subjected to dishonor."

1 Tract. Bova Kama, p. 113.1.

Bearing in mind that all Jewry was brought up in such concepts about foreignness property and was saturated to the marrow of the bones, sucked in with mother's milk into its blood and flesh such wild political and economic views, - nothing to be surprised about, that after the fall of the Kingdom of Israel, throughout the Christian era until in our times the distinctive and most hated national feature of the Jews was their greed and extortion, with the help of which they always and everywhere quickly They drove the Christian population into extreme poverty. These immoral qualities caused frequent complaints about them to kings, rulers and clergy. Meaning all these complaints that Jews, wherever they settle, not only feed themselves at the expense of the poor people, but they also acquire wealth thanks to excessive compensation, which they are not ashamed to demand and extort from the economically defenseless population for their usurious commission and other services.

Thus, the popes often appealed to the kings with complaints that the Jews in their relations with the Christian people have a detrimental effect on their morality, and this their harmful influence is so successful that church items and sacred vessels in in many places they are constantly transferred into Jewish hands for the debts of local residents.

Chapter 9

Pius V's accusations against the Jews

Pius V directly accused the Jews of robbery, of hiding church vessels, of magic, of blasphemy, etc., and renewed the strict decrees of Benedict XII, tried hard to the oppression and limitation of the rights of Jews. Persecuted and despised everywhere since the day of the dispersion All over the globe, disenfranchised, Jews seem to have to were either completely destroyed or exist in the most deplorable conditions environment. But fate and their innate talents overcome all obstacles: rise and rule over all the powers of the earth, for they possess gold, and Gold rules the world. The only way for Jews to acquire it is wealth is the study of the science of finance, and on this road they achieved the possible success; they acquired the ability to find gold and concentrate it in their hands; they used all their instincts, talents, all their genius exclusively on the object of strengthening his credit, managing to always put it so high, to give him such a solid and high position that no one could even think of such a daring an attempt to shake and destabilize it, for to shake it would mean to shake the whole social and economic system.

From the Talmudic quotations given at the beginning of this chapter it is clear that property Christians are considered free and are called gefker. One of the competent Talmudic scholar Rabbi Joseph Kulun calls the property of Christians a “free lake,” in which only that Jew can cast his net who has bought it from the Kahal right.

The Talmudic section Choshen Hamishpot states the following:

“At the present time, when we live under the rule of foreign nations and when the Jewish population is growing, a Jew who wants to settle in the city again becomes a persecutor of local Jews. Based on this consideration, the local kahal the right to close the doors to new arrivals is granted; and to achieve this the kahal is allowed to use its power and means, even the power of the goyim, for the purpose (government Christian power through intrigue)."

“Local residents cannot prohibit merchants traveling through cities temporary trade in their city; but to choose a place for their permanent trade no one can do this without the consent of the local kahal, with the exception of the Talmud-huchem, the sage, who is granted the right to settle and engage in trade where he
"as you please."

Let us cite another curious teaching from the Talmud.

Examples of futile prayers: “Someone collected 100 cores of bread and prayed: “Let there be "Let there be will... so that there will be 200 of them." He collected 100 jugs of oil and prayed: "Let there be will..."
so that there are 200 of them"?

“When visiting the capital (for example, Moscow), two prayers are read: one at the entrance, and the other upon exit. According to Ben-Azai, there are 4 prayers: 2 upon entering and two upon exiting. In this case, “They give thanks for the past and pray for the future.”

When entering, they read: “May it please You, O Lord my God, to bring me in safely to this capital (Moscow)." Upon entering the capital, they read: "Thank you O Jehovah my God, You have brought me safely; may it please You so also "to bring me safely to my goal." The well-known goal is profit.

1 Choshen Hamishtot $ 156, p. 7. “Questions and Answers” by Rabbi Joseph Kulun, $191.

2 Tractate Berakhot.

3 Tractate Berakhot chapter 9.

Only a Jew who comes without permission to enter and follows prays in all sorts of roundabout ways, but if sometimes failure occurs and you get into the public-military route by transport, then no longer reads any prayer.

TREATISE P SECRET CANAL ACTS

Chapter 1

Dispute between the kahal and a private individual over the parade ground

The Talmudists, based on their teachings, look at Christians and property Christian as its own property, and therefore the Jewish government, the kahal, sells parts of this property to Jews on very strange terms.

Indeed, anyone who is unfamiliar with the strange Jewish legislation It will seem very strange and incomprehensible - how the Jewish kahal sells some Leibe or Leiser a Christian monastery with all the priproperties: mills, lakes, ponds, farmsteads, etc. How to understand a kahal act, carried out according to all the rules of the Talmud, on the sale of a house of some kind to a Jew any pan, i.e. master, Christian, with all the attributes for the eternal and hereditary possession from the center of the earth to the height of heaven, when this house is property of a Christian according to legal documents, and the Christian about this sale knows nothing? What benefit does a Jewish buyer gain from such a purchase of a Christian a monastery or a house? What, one wonders, does a Jew gain by paying such an act? kahal money? The answer to this is very simple. The Jewish buyer acquires the right (according to Talmudic expression - "hazaka"), i.e. power over Christian property in boundaries corresponding to the amount of money paid; this rule is hereditary and can be transferred to another. By virtue of this right, the buyer can, without the slightest competition and obstacle from other Jews to take possession of this house, as stated in the sales deed, "by any means necessary." Until the buyer will finally take over the house, he is even allowed to ask for help and under the protection of the kahal. The buyer must first try to rent this house from the owner, engage in trade in it, lend money to the owner at interest and exploit it with all with their art. There are even cases where the kahal sells for exploitation Jews and Christians who do not have real estate. We have provided information about this in

At the beginning of this chapter there are quotations from the Talmud “Khoshen Hamishpot” and “Mordachai”, tr. Bova-batra, etc.

Below we present several passages from the book "Kahal" from which one can clearly see to see the audacity and impudence of the Jewish underground methods recommended by the Talmud and by which the Jews are guided in all their affairs.

The case of the right of ownership of the parade ground of an uncircumcised (i.e. Christian) hat maker Zvansky. Following a protest filed by representatives of the kahal against the rebbe Eleazar, the son of Edoraim, concerning the right by which he owns the square the aforementioned Zvansky, the representatives of the kahal decided to appoint from two toanim (lawyers) who would defend this case before the court of the righteous the besdina of our city. The following were appointed as lawyers: Rabbi David, son of Eliazar, and Rabbi Isaac, son of Zevi Hirsch. All this was decided by common consent on Wednesday.
Department of the Pentateuch Qarach.

Note: This resolution was not implemented. After that, on Friday of the same weeks, by decision of the representatives of the kahal, two other lawyers were elected the said controversial matter, namely: 1) the head of Rabbi Isaac Ber, the son of Moses, and 2) Rabbi Pesach, son of Israel. These lawyers appeared before the court of Besdin with the opposite side, Eliazar, and the righteous Besdin, having listened to both sides, drew up a decision on this the following decree applies.

Chapter 2

On the sale of the rights to Yohiel-Michel, the son of Aaron to own the stone shops of Baikovo

"Saturday, Emar department, 5559 (1799). According to the decree of the leaders city, the right to own two stone shops of Baikov, built on the high square, to the eminent rich man Jochiel-Michel, son of Aaron. Besides two this right of the benches extends to the gates adjacent to them, to those located below them cellars, as well as on the upper floor, located above the said shops, in a word - on all the space they occupy, from the center of the earth to the height of the heavens.

For such right of ownership, Yohiel-Michel must be issued a document with with all kinds of provisions and approved by the holy Besdin. All this must be made without prior publication. For this right, Rabbi Yochiel-Michel must deposit two hundred rubles in banknotes into the kahal treasury."

Chapter 3

On the sale of Mr. Kister's shop by the kahal

To Abraham-Abel, son of Rabbi Meer

“Today, on the eve of Monday, the 6th of Nisan 6560 (1800), from the general by the consent of all the gentlemen members, leaders and representatives of our city it was decided and decreed: to sell to the master of the head and the rich man, Rabbi Abraham-Abel, son of Rabbi Meera, the right to own the stone shop of Mr. Kister, occupied by him, Abel, in present time; also the right to a balcony and stairs, which is contrary to the above shops; also the right of passage through the house of the said Kister to that shop; all this is within the limits from the center of the earth to the heights of heaven sold into eternal inalienable Abe's possession to the heirs and authorized representatives, for which he must pay to the kahal cash register 75 rubles in silver, in which immediately upon depositing this money, issue him a deed of sale a fortress signed and confirmed by the heads of the kahal and sealed by the besdin of this city."

Chapter 4
On the sale of the shop of the same Kister by the kahal

Rabbi Yochiel-Michel, son of Aaron

“At the same meeting, the gentlemen representatives of the kahal decided to sell to the head and rich man R. Yohiel-Michel, son of Aaron, the right to own a stone shop Pan Kister, occupied by him, Jochiel-Michel, to this day; also the right to the balcony and the stairs opposite this stone bench; also, the right of passage through the courtyard of the same Mr. Kister.

We sold all this within the limits from the center of the earth to the heights of heaven for eternity inalienable possession both to him and to his heirs and assigns. For such for the sale of the river. Yokhiel-Michel must pay 75 rubles to the kahal treasury. ser., and upon payment of this amount, immediately issue him a deed of sale, signed and confirmed by the heads of the kahal and sealed by the local besdin."

Chapter 5

The form of the deeds of sale issued the aforementioned rich man Abel and Michel

“In the general meeting of representatives and leaders of our city with a common the agreement was made and sold to the rich head Rabbi Abraham-Abel, son of Meer, the right to own the stone shop now occupied by him, belonging to the master Kister, namely: one of the new shops that he has now built in the high market.
This shop borders on one side with the stone shop of the same Mr. Kister, now occupied by the rich man Zevi-Girsh, the son of Rabbi Zev-Wolf, and on the other side
- the shop of the same master, now occupied by Rabbi Michael, the son of Rabbi Aaron. Facade
The shops face the aforementioned market, and the back part faces Mr. Kister's yard. Right to own a shop above certain boundaries, as well as a cellar located under a shop within the same boundaries; rooms built above the shop, a balcony and stairs located in the same space - the right to own all of this in from the center of the earth to the heights of heaven we sold the final sale and pure to the above-named R. Abel, his representatives and heirs forever and eternity. We also sold to the aforementioned Rabbi Abel, his authorized representatives and the heirs have the right of free passage through Mr. Kister's yard to this shop, cellar and into the upper rooms, within the above-defined boundaries, without leaving any for themselves absolutely not the slightest right to this property. The aforementioned R. Abel already he has long ago paid into the public treasury all the money due from him for this property, and therefore from this moment all the above listed rights belong completely and inalienable to him, his representatives and heirs, and they have full power dispose of this property as they please: sell, give away inheritance or rent it out and exchange it, as in general every person who manages with their own property, and no one dares to interfere with them in anything ever. And even if Mr.
Kister will destroy the current aforementioned buildings and replace them with others, then then the right to own a part of the new building within the limits described above without any the changes remain with the aforementioned R. Abel, his authorized representatives and heirs. If the said R. Abel, or his authorized representative, or the heir-

If the niks acquire these buildings by purchase from Mr. Kister, then they have the right to destroy and rebuild them at will, like any owner, without the slightest interference from anyone's side. And if anyone protests against Abel's right to everything or part of this property, then the entire kahal and bes-din are obliged to intercede for the rabbi Abel, his delegates and heirs, in order to restore this right in their hands in with all its might. The kahal is also obliged to satisfy these protesters.
by all possible means in order to peacefully restore our real sale in in the hands of R. Abel, his authorized representatives and heirs in full, unlimited possession. And all expenses and losses that the said R. Abel will incur, his authorized representatives and heirs from this kind of protest must be recovered by them from all possible sources of the kahal according to the law and decree given to them, and This R. Abel and others have the full right to collect these from the leaders of the kahal, from all the most reliable income of our city, based on this paper as a valid written in accordance with all Talmudic regulations, and as on a bill of exchange, drawn up on the basis of state laws, and no kahal dares to interfere them, but, on the contrary, is obliged to stand up for their rights, so that not one iota of them is retreated from the actual deed of sale issued to them. All this was decided and decreed with general consent, without any contradiction, with the existing number of members in the kahal room, according to all the prescriptions and regulations of the Talmud, with all the force of that the principle that the affairs of the kahal do not require the performance of a formal kinion.

And in testimony of this, we, the heads, representatives and leaders of our city,
We subscribe. Monday eve, 26 Nisan, 5560 (1800); Minsk. Authentic
The document was signed by 6 city representatives. The place of the rich man R. Isaac. s.r. Akiba, and R. Bera, s.r. M. Defenders, sk. heads: rich man R. Tsevi Balezer and rich man R. Chaim, s. r. Segal, and R. Zevi Hirsch."

Chapter 6

On the granting of the right of ownership to R. Michel, son of Aaron Exactly the same document that was issued to R. Avraham Abel was also issued to the head of the rich man, R. Michel, son of Aaron, for the right to own another shop of the same master Kistera, now occupied by the said Michel and adjacent to the shop of R. Abel. The document was signed, as stated on the reverse side, by 6 leaders and notary attorneys; he was also confirmed by the Rabbigaan and the righteous besdinom, absolutely as the document copied above by R. Abel, without any changes increases and decreases.

Chapter 7

About the sale to R. Eliazar, village of Joseph, Segal rights to own a monastery

“Saturday, Bamidbar section, on the eve of 1 Sivon 5560 (1800). Representatives The kahal decided to sell the right to own the monastery on Yuryevskaya Street, formerly belonged to the Carmelite order, not the Franciscan one. Its boundaries the following: on one side Yuryevskaya street, starting from the wooden house r. Moses, s.r. Israel, to Tatarskaya street, and on the other side - in the same street, from the corner Krevskiy Lane to the house of the uncircumcised (Christian) Matvey Khrenovich inclusive. This is the right to the above-mentioned monastery and to the houses and buildings, belonging to him and contained on the parade ground within the above-mentioned boundaries, as stone and wooden, also on the cellars and rooms of this monastery, those who are on this parade ground, with all the buildings and rooms belonging to it, as well as to the monastery's distillery, located in its own garden, the courtyard and the free parade ground, contained within the above-mentioned boundaries, and on the monStyrsky vegetable gardens and hayfields, extending to vegetable gardens and hayfields, belonging to the houses on Yatkovskaya Street. The right to all of the above from the center of the earth up to the heights of heaven, the representatives of the kahal sold to the head of Eliazar, S.R. Joseph, Segal, to his authorized representatives and heirs in perpetual, inalienable possession. Followed by The aforementioned R. Eliazar Segal has long since paid the full amount for this sale, in which the representatives of the kahal issued him a deed of sale, word for word in the form deed of sale issued to the aforementioned R. Abel, village of Meer. This fortress was signed on 6 leaders, with the exception of the rich man R. Isaac, and notary attorneys, in Wednesday, 4 Sivon 5560 (1800) year."

Chapter 8

On the issuance of a deed of sale to the river Michel

On the same date it was decided to sell to Rabbi Michel, s.r. Isaac, the right to ownership of the parade ground and buildings of the Christian, German carpenter John, which he built on a new street, opposite the houses of the architect Kramer.

In vain does the philosophical-Jewish cunning try to shift the blame pogroms on the ritual accusation of using Christian blood, to this The Christian people have always been indifferent to this issue; they are not as child-loving as Jews. If it happens that a child goes missing, then usually only the parents grieve, and others will sigh out of decency, and that's the end of it - whether they found the child or not - a lot always remains indifferent. The main reason for anger and pogroms is robbing merciless, deception and fraud of the Jews, impudent humiliation and ridicule of Christians. As proof, we will cite an ancient excerpt here.

“So Vladimir accepted the throne with the pleasure of all the people; but the rebellion arose, however, they publicly asked him to bring justice to the Jews, who had taken away all their trades Christians, and under Svyatopolk they had great freedom and power, through which many merchants and the artisans were ruined, but they seduced many into their law and settled in houses among Christians, which had never happened before, for which they wanted to beat everyone and their houses to plunder. Vladimir answered them: Because they have entered everywhere in different principalities and many have settled, then it is not proper for me to do so without the advice of the princes, and even more so, against the law, that they were allowed by the previous princes, now they are allowed to kill and plunder them, where many innocent people may perish; therefore I will immediately call the princes to council, and soon he sent to call to Kyiv; when the princes gathered for a council, and Vydobych

After long deliberation, the law was established as follows: now all Jews from all Russian lands send them away with all their property and do not let them in again, and if they enter secretly, they are free to rob and kill. And they sent letters to all the cities about this, according to which they were everywhere they were immediately sent out, but many were willfully beaten in the cities and on the roads and plundered. From this time on there are no Jews in Rus', and when one comes, the people plunder and kills." (Russian history from the most ancient times with tireless labors After 30 years, collected and described by the late T.S. and Astrakh, Governor Vasily Nikit.
Tatishchev. 1773, book. P. Page 213 v. 12).

Chapter 9

A dispute between a kahal and a private individual

the right to own the bishop's shops

“Wednesday, 24 Shvot, 5562 (1800) Regarding the dispute between representatives of the kahal and the sons of the late Arius regarding the right to own stone shops bishop, representatives of the kahal decided: to distract the month of elders of R. Moses,
s. Jacob and Eliazar, s. Joseph Halevi, in relation to this litigation, by the authority of the seven leaders of the city, giving them the right to finish it off with the sons of R. Arius at your discretion - amicably or through legal proceedings."

Chapter 10

On the appointment of two lawyers to conduct the proceedings

between the kahal and Abel, village of Isaac Aizik

"Saturday, Shem's department, 5562 (1802). Regarding the dispute between representatives kahal and Rabbi Abel, s. Isaac Isaac, son-in-law of Zevi-Girsh, about the right to a new house, which was built by the uncircumcised (Christian) blacksmith Zelezi and representatives of the kahal Two lawyers were elected: Eliazar, s.r. Joseph, Segal and Chaim, s.r. Isaac Isaac, to conduct the trial with the aforementioned Abel. This was decided by mutual consent.

based on laws and customs."

Chapter 11 On the Confirmation of R. Zevi's Right to the House of Christian Zelezi

"Wednesday, Sima department, 5562 (1802). By general decision of representatives the kahal was made public so that anyone who had a claim to the right of ownership the house of the Christian blacksmith Zelezi, announced this in advance. As a result, the head R. Zevi, s.r. of Reuben, declared that his son-in-law Abel, son of A., who is now absent, has documents of ownership of this house: a formal certificate and several "Besdin's decisions. Apart from this claim, no others were made."

Chapter 12

On the sale of the right to benches by the kahal priests of the Bonifratian order

"Monday, Pekudei department, 5562 (1802). By general decision representatives of the kahal were sold to Isaac, s.r. Zev-Wolf, the right of ownership stone shops located in the small market and belonging to priests Bonifratsky Order. Namely: the right to those six shops that are on the corner the said market, and one shop located on Zibitskaya Street. The right to all this The representatives of the kahal sold to the above-mentioned Isaac and Joseph, the village of Samuel. Also they sold them the right to the empty parade ground located between the courtyard named priests and the court of Avigdar. The width of this parade ground extends from Zibitskaya Street to the church of these priests. The money for this sale has long been paid buyers to the kahal treasury up to a penny. All this is decided on the basis of laws and customs."

Chapter 13

On the sale of the house of Christian blacksmith Zelezi

R. Eliazar, son of Joseph Katz

“Monday, the 3rd of Nisan, 5562 (1802). Decided and decreed by consent all representatives of the kahal the following: the former representatives of the kahal sold to the head R. Eliazar, son of Joseph, Katz the right to own the house of the uncircumcised (Christian) blacksmith Zelezi on Yuryevskaya Street, in which it was issued to him by representatives kahal with the proper signature input, which states that the representatives of the kahal must satisfy all claims that anyone has made to this right. Such a protest against the above-mentioned right, based on the testimony witnesses, R. Abel, son-in-law of Zevi Hirsch, has long since stated why R. Eliazar, on the basis of the aforementioned right, demanded from the representatives of the kahal satisfaction on their part from R. Abel. As a result, representatives of the kahal decided: to give R. Eliazar from the kahal treasury the sum of 4 chervonets, for which he must release the kahal from any responsibility for the above-mentioned matter, even in the case when the litigation which he, R. Eliazar, himself must conduct with R. Abel besdina, will be decided in favor of the latter, and he will finally lose his rights the said property. If R. Eliazar does not agree to such a proposal, then he should be paid 10 chervonets and the above-mentioned right to return representatives of the kahal. To secure the said sum, the kahal subjects R. Eliazar all those real estate properties of our city, which he, the kahal, can own extend his rights, and R. Eliazar can choose from all the properties that he wants I'll like it better. If R. Abel wants to acquire the right of ownership from the kahal the above-mentioned house with all the space belonging to it, as explained in input, issued to R. Eliazar, then he must deposit 8 chervonets into the kahal’s treasury, after which This right will finally pass into the hands of R. Abel. In addition to the 8 chervonets taken from R. Abel The kahal will add 2 more and thus reward R. Eliazar. Everything described above has been decided and decided by common consent of all members, on the basis of laws and customs."

Chapter 14

On the right to own a stone balcony

Mr. Trankevich's house

"Sunday, Akhrey department, 5562 (1802). Right of ownership of the balcony of the house Pan Trankevich, which had long ago been given away by representatives of the kahal of R. Saul, son of Wolf, was sold last to R. Yehuda-Leiba, son of Jacob. Now, according to In the event of R. Saul's bankruptcy, his creditors filed a protest against it.

sales. But as we, city representatives, know, this right is not initially was sold by the kahal to R. Saul, but only given as a benefit, on the occasion of his extreme poverty, then the representatives of the kahal, ignoring any protest against said sale, under whatever pretext and on whatever grounds it was revealed, they claim the right to own the balcony beyond the Yehuda-Leiba River, granting him with regard to this purchase, all rights and powers that exist in the world according to the laws of the universe may be assigned to him to secure him against the seller's creditors.
these rights, in accordance with the fundamental laws and regulations of our sages, the said right cannot be taken away from either the said R. Yehuda-Leiba or from his authorized representatives, etc. Such a decision was made by general consent on the basis of laws and customs."

Chapter 15

On the granting of rights to R. Isaac, son of Gershen to own half of Mr. Baikov's house for 50 rubles due to him from the kahal.

“Monday, 11 Nissan, 5560 (1802). Since the rich man Johel-Mihel, son Aaron still hasn't paid in full for what the Kahal representatives sold him.
the right to own two stone shops of Mr. Baikov, and to representatives of the kahal
It is urgently necessary to pay R. Isaac, son of Gershen, the 50 rubles due to him from the kahal.
then the leaders of the city decide: to give to the aforementioned R. Isaac for what was said debt input and the right to own half of the stone house of Mr. Baikov with all its accessories of the upper and lower floors, benches and cellars.
To the aforementioned rich man R. Yohiel Michel for the money he had contributed to the treasury long ago
The kahala is to issue money for the input to the other half of the named house. R. Isaac must be issued on the following condition: if within a quarter of a year from the date signatures of the sales document, R. Michel bears the remaining money due from it, then R. Isaac, having received his debt, will be obliged to cede his right to R. Michel according to the said document and the latter to be handed over to the kahal for destruction. But if in within three months R. Michel does not contribute the remaining money, then the above-mentioned The document will remain in full force and effect forever. All this is decided representatives of the kahal by common consent on the basis of laws and customs."

Chapter 16
On the sale of the right to own the parade ground
R. Isaac, son of Gershen

“In the general meeting of all the heads, leaders and representatives of our city, with by common consent, without any hesitation or reservations, in the kahal room, at the current number of members. It was decided to sell the right to Rabbi Isaac, son of Gershen, ownership of the parade ground and hospital of the clergy of rickets at the end of Kaidanovskaya Street, bordering on the east with the house of R. Shalom, son of Meer Katz, and on the north with the house of R.
Alexander, son of Zevi Segal; also the right to the empty parade ground of the local townspeople, adjacent to the above-mentioned parade ground and hospital, starting from the excavated rampart, now leveled with the ground, right up to the street in front of the tavern of Abraham, son of R.
Isaac Isaac. This right extends to the entire space of the said parade ground, considering the length from the house of the said R. Shalom to the street located before the mentioned tavern, and in width - from Kaidanovskaya Street to the house of the aforementioned r.
Alexandra, equally to the hospital and the booth, now standing on the same parade ground. All these the rights were sold to the said R. Isaac, his heirs and authorized representatives, by sale pure and final, from the center of the earth to the heights of heaven, without any restrictions. The money for this sale the aforementioned Reb Isaac has already contributed to the public treasury in full, down to the last penny. From now on, all these rights are assigned to him, his heirs and authorized representatives, into his eternal, inalienable property, and they, i.e.
i.e. buyers can dispose of them at their own discretion; sell them, bequeath them, to rent out or mortgage and give away to whomever they please. If they are in able to ask permission from the authorities to build something on this parade ground, then they have every right to build whatever buildings they want on it, stone and wooden, and also to destroy, repair and dig everywhere, as sovereign owners. In case even the government itself builds up this parade ground with any buildings, then by our strictest order we forbid everyone to encroach on the right of the said Reb Isaac or his heirs and authorized persons, neither by means of no purchases, no hiring, no dealings of any kind with the government; also No one is allowed to engage in factoring there. Only one the said R. Isaac or his heirs and authorized representatives are granted full the right to take possession of the said buildings by any means whatsoever, equally to be engaged in factoring in them. It is the duty of every kahal to defend the aforementioned R. Isaac, his heirs and authorized representatives, so that all these rights were behind them are kept in peace and tranquility. If anyone ever appears, who will challenge this sale, all or part of it, then the kahal must to satisfy the contestant by all means in order to maintain this our sale in the hands of R. Isaac, his heirs and representatives. Every kahal and besdin (Jewish court) must protect all named R. Isaac, his heirs and authorized against any person who invades their territory and causes harm damage to their rights; they must pursue this person by all means and means. Bend him into an arc and collect from him all the expenses and losses that he will incur because of for him said R. Isaac, his heirs and authorized representatives. If the kahal does not will turn his attention to this person and will not persecute and oppress him, then all expenses and losses that such a person will cause to the owners of the said rights, must be collected from the kahal, from its best income. In the last In this case, the aforementioned owners of the rights can show the amount without any oath losses incurred by them, and this must be collected in full from the income of the kahal. It is repeated once again that every kahal and besdin are obliged to protect the said r. Isaac or his heirs and delegates, and to hold all the things stated in this the act of law, to the iota, in their hands, without the slightest damage or limitation. All this is established by the general consent of all the heads, representatives and leaders of the city without any hesitation and reservations, in the rolling room, with the number of members present, on based on laws and customs. In witness whereof we subscribe. Thursday On the eve of the new moon of Av 5562 (1802), Minsk. This document was issued by r. Isaac, son of Gershen. We, notaries, have also confirmed with our signatures that it was drawn up at a kahal meeting, in a kahal room, by general consent, on on the basis of laws and customs, as well as on the basis of the principle by which The actions of the kahal do not require the execution of a formal kinion. This sale took place with a public auction, which was announced in all its pages at the time synagogues, and there was not a single one who would raise the price or dispute sale. Sunday, 3rd Av 5562 (1802).

Chapter 17

On the sale of the right to own a shop by the kahal

“Thursday, according to the department of Vaetchanan, the 14th of Menachem Av 5562 (1805). Since Pan Sheibe intends to build a new stone bench near his gate, which will be to go out to the courtyard of R. Yehuda-Leiba, the son of R. Yakov, then the representatives of the kahal
It was decided to sell the right to own this shop to the said R. Yehuda-Leibe sale, complete and final, from the center of the earth to the heights of heaven. For this right the said R. Yehuda-Leiba must contribute 9 rubles to the public treasury.
by making these contributions, this right is assigned forever to him, his heirs and authorized."

The documents we present make it clear as well as possible in what way and by what means
By means of which the Jews, with the most limited rights, managed to displace the foreign element from the cities and towns of their settlement, to take possession of capital and real estate property of these localities and free them from any non-Jewish competition in in matters of trade and crafts, as had already happened in the western provinces Russia, Poland, etc. Napoleon I in his letter to the Emperor of Poland dated November 29, 1806 years says: “By what miracles did entire departments end up in pledge with the Jews at that time a time when they constituted the smallest minority of the entire population empire - up to 60,000 Jews" (7 4 Jis. 1841-333). In our time in the protest against Jews by non-Jewish residents everywhere we hear that the same voice.

How does a Jew relate to this from his national-religious point of view?
property of a non-Jew, movable or immovable? On this issue the Talmud (Khoshen gamishpot, sec. 132-171,) so mixed black with white, or, more accurately, unclean with dirty, that any Jew seems to be able to lead astray himself an insightful non-Jewish scholarly researcher. But in practice, we can easily make sure, especially by reading Jewish judicial decisions, for example, the kahal ones acts and other things that the Jewish judicial authority actually sells to private Jews the right called "khazaka" and "meropie" to own real estate non-Jewish residents and the exploitation of every non-Jew. There are even such cases where the Jewish judiciary sells Jews into exploitation, even persons without real estate. Here are the words of the law relating to the right of "meropie": "If a person, i.e. a Jew, has a non-Jew in his exploitation, then in some places other Jews are prohibited from having contact with this person and from carrying out explosions first; but in other places every Jew is free to deal with this person; it is possible lend him money, bribe him and rob him, since the property of a non-Jew is "gefker", a free desert, and whoever takes possession of it first will have it "property".

1 Hoshen Hamishpot, section 156, page 17. “Mordakhai” tractate Bova Batra, chapter 8.

TREATISE SH HAZAKA AND MEROPIUS

Chapter 1

About the secret exploitation of the kahal

Kahal is the governmental body of the Jewish community that governs it dictatorial grounds, according to their national laws, artificially arousing in the Jews the spirit of religious intolerance towards other peoples, strongly tying a knot of unprecedented economic solidarity between Jews, the deadly result of which is the friendly exploitation of the local non-religious na-villages - makes the life of the latter an unbearable yoke under the invisible power of the kahal.

The essence of the system of exploitation of non-believers is as follows: based on the Talmudic rules of "Hezkat-Ushub", i.e. on the authority of the kahal in its area, the land on which the Jews settled, with all the property and persons included in it of the Gentiles is placed as the property of the Jews; in accordance with this the word of the law: “Property "the infidel is free (gefker), and whoever takes possession of it first, it belongs to him." (Khoshen-Gamishpot art. 156) is already a real implementation of the rules of “Hezkat-Ushub". Kahal, recognizing everything in this area as its own, so to speak, state-owned property, sells two rights to individual Jews: 1) the right of “meropia” and 2) the right "Khazaks".

Meropia, or ma'arufia, is the law by virtue of which a Jew is put into exploitation, the person who bought it, receives the identity of the non-Jew with whom he enters into relations, transactions, etc. By this right, the personality of this non-believer becomes inalienable and moreover, the exclusive property of the Jew who bought the meropia for it, and no longer has a single Jew in the world the right to lend money to this Christian, nor carry out his orders. Nor, in general, enter into any relations with him.

Khazaka is a right by virtue of which the Jew who bought it is entitled to use it, the real estate of a Christian is transferred. By virtue of this right, this property of a non-believer becomes an inalienable and, moreover, exclusive property of that Jew, who bought the Khazak for him, and now no Jew in the world has the right to rent this property, nor give loans on it, nor enter into any relationship with the owner him in any transactions regarding this property. This is a right purchased from the kahal continuous and exclusive influence on the property of an infidel ends for a given Jew, either by taking him away for misdeeds, or by the expiration of the Chazaka's term. Death The actual owner of the property is not interrupted by the Khazaks.

By granting in the “gakhlat” (deed of sale) to the purchaser of the khazak or meropiya the right uncontrolled choice of means for exploitation of persons and property Christian, the kahal nevertheless undertakes to: 1) provide all feasible general protection in case the acquirer of the right, being careless in the choice of means for the "final seizure" of the person or property of a Christian, fell into the hands of a non-believing administration or court (i.e. bribery and false witnesses), and 2) in the language of deeds of sale, “to protect X (the purchaser of the right), his heirs and authorized against any son of Israel who, whenever and wherever, shall invade its boundaries and will harm its rights. The Kahal and the Beth Din must pursue and drive out such a person wherever it is possible for the Jewish authorities to bend him into an arc and collect from him all the expenses and losses that he will incur because of him the said X, his heirs and authorized representatives."

Due to this order of things, the economic dominance of the Jews in their places settled way of life has reached the point that a Christian producer can neither buy nor sell something without the mediation of a Jew who has purchased his identity from the kahal or property; moreover, in the event that a Christian allowed himself to incur something any disfavor of the kahal, then the latter will declare such an obstinate person under

"herem", and no Jew in the world will dare to enter into the slightest the relationship that with the unlimited influence of Jews on the economic life of the country, it can to create a direct path to ruin. For a Jew who violated the decree of the kahal about herem, the same fate that befell the aforementioned Khatskel Porokhovnik in 1873, i.e. death. It goes without saying that with the fall of the kahal, the Khazaka and event, this terrible tenacity and economic situation for Christian producers will fall solidarity of Jews with each other and the Kahal will now be unacceptable under fear punishment competition between Jews, which will give the opportunity to the Christian the population to make a profitable choice for themselves between a mass of helpful intermediaries, and not be completely dependent on them.

In Uman, a Kyivlyanin correspondent reports, a society has long been established Jewish water carriers, who, through the Khazaki, eliminated all competition in in this trade and forced the entire local population to recognize this right only for them. Since the water carriers' society consists exclusively of Jews, it is clear that water delivery is done haphazardly, and the benefits to the local population cannot be considered out of the question. Protecting their interests, the Jewish water carriers are doing everything they can to prevent the appearance of non-Jewish water carriers, and therefore every water carrier that appears a Christian is beaten, doused with water, his barrel and cart are broken and thus force them to give up competition with them in this industry. As a result existing between Jewish water carriers on this account Khazaki water delivery is constantly being produced for householders by the same people and has even become inheritance law. Moreover, the decrees of the Khazaka are so valid and strict, that no struggle is conceivable on the part of the ordinary people. Jews-water carriers arbitrarily set quite high prices for water delivery, and they often perform their duties carelessly, leaving consumers often for several days without water. Any protests against such a malfunction or against high fees they decisively do not lead to any consequences, because any ordinary person who decides to fire a Jewish water carrier risks being left without anything at all water. None of the other water carriers will deliver water for any amount of money, and that is why every ordinary person is forced to put up with all the malfunctions and the whims of his water carrier. For the Jews of Chazak, the immutable law, for violation whose perpetrators are strictly prosecuted. Khazaker, whose rights were violated by a competitor, considers himself entitled to beat up this offender every time and take away his earnings money. During Jewish holidays and Saturdays, the urban population is forced stock up on water for several days, otherwise you may be left without water.

Chapter 2

About Khazak law

The newspaper “New Time” from the Rechitsa district of the Minsk province wrote about the existing Jewish Khazakh law there. The correspondent reports that he recently, passing through one of the villages of the Rechitsa district and stopping at a local priest, accidentally heard the following words: “There was a Jew here yesterday, a buyer bread, but our Jew, the Khazakh, didn’t allow him to buy it here, so he left and took the bread remained unsold, and he gave more than our Movshi." This phrase, incomprehensible to the face of an ignorant person, seemed to conceal a whole series of Jewish activities, aimed at exploiting the local population. The point is this: with the exception cities and towns, almost every village in the Rechitsa district is home to in a hut rented either from a peasant for 90 years (this is a fact), or in one’s own house built on peasant land, also rented for a long period, a family Jew, who like the ancient barons and lords, he has a surname by the name of the village

(Kaperovsky from the village of Kaperovka) and considers that village and its surroundings to be his own property that is subject to exploitation; and since there are settlements near every village, then all They, together with the village where the owner himself lives, constitute his hunting district. The owner
Such a district is called a Khazak."

1 The pronunciation of Lithuanian Jews is "khazaka", the pronunciation of Polish Jews is - "hazuka".

He has the right to sell salt, flour, and various small items to all his peasants.
supplies and buy from them everything that they can sell; in addition, he belongs to the so-called right of autumn, i.e. the right to collect in the fall, while driving a cart around his district, in exchange for various trinkets, such as copper rings, laces, belts, and most importantly vodka, and collect them as if they were a gift from the peasants, part of the collected grain, which in other places is called kolyada. Khazak at the same time says: “After all, I don’t sow, where can I get bread for the winter?” Khazakov’s law is in force unknown Jewish laws of the Talmud are protected from any violations. Without permiss-In the Khazak region, no Jew in the area dares to buy or sell anything. This is a right or is passed down by inheritance, from father to son, or during the life of the father, the Khazak of several villages, is divided between the sons by village, or may even be Acquired by purchase. The price for the right to exploit one village can reach up to 2,000 rubles.
ser. forever. Although people put up with this state of affairs, it is obvious to everyone what evil is inflicted by the Khazakh law on free rural trade. Without a doubt, it is possible to believe that these great heroes of the past Turkish war, like Greger, Horwitz, Kogan, Varshavsky, Polyakov and others were also obliged to contribute for the right of "Khazak" a considerable fee for the benefit of their kahals.

A penniless Jew becomes a small-time commission agent. As soon as he Having managed to save a few rubles, he takes up trading. Among the Jews in the ulcer of greed and profiteering is developed to the highest degree. Often the product, fell from the manufacturer into the hands of a Jewish buyer before it reached consumer, is held by 10 other buyers. It is clear that each of the dealers wants to receive a certain percentage for holding in his hands the said product. All these percentages must be paid by the consumer, and thus arises astonishing high prices, which are a terrible burden for consumers. For the same reason, so that there could be the possibility of multiple repurchases of the product, the dealers, when confronted, set the lowest possible price they pay for product. In the end, it turns out that both producers and consumers lose, and in Only Jewish buyers remain in the profits.

Chapter 3

The farmstead of Jewish landowners in Suwalki Governorate

We have the help of Khazakh law in the Vistula region, in one Suwalki provinces, the Jews managed to take possession of 250 landowners' estates under legal deeds of sale estates, covering up to 80,820 dessiatines of land. Most of the estates belonged to Jews. got for next to nothing, - after purchasing at auction with the assistance of Khazakh law and with the help of the kahal. The Jews sold the felled forests abroad, earning much more, than was paid for the estate. The buildings, lakes, meadows and lands were given away. A Jew who was in memory of all the miserable poor man, factor, and having obtained from the kahal a deed of sale for such and such an estate act, i.e. Khazak law, having taken bardy (pact) on lease from the landowner in his estate, soon becomes the owner of this estate: "Pan Dziedzic", as he is called in our locality, - a Jewish landowner. Such a landowner orders himself to be called his servant
"Your Excellency Mr. Dziedzic." Some of these landowners come to the city.

Suwalki, playing the role of old Polish landowners. Beautiful horses harnessed to a carriage, driven by a coachman in livery with large silver buttons, he is wearing a tall hat with braid, in white gloves, and holding a long scourge. Horses with bobbed tails, in Krakow harness, a carriage with noblemen coats of arms. In this luxurious carriage sits an old, hunched-over Jew, the same pitiful as before, only now "clear Mr. Dziedzic", drives into the very

The best "Hotel" occupies a luxurious space designed to produce its a beneficial deal with visiting landowners. It happened once in Suwalki, in Mitrinovskiy's confectionery, that the Jew, "Pan Dziedzitz" B., was sitting at breakfast, - here it happened that his former master and landowner, who had a Jew "dzedzitz" a farmstead factor until he took possession of his estate. But the former landowner aroused regret in the Jew "dziedzice" because he noticed the boots on him in an extremely in poor condition, very worn out, almost without heels. Then in the presence the public Jew "dzedzitz" B. gave his former master and landowner M. five rubles, the latter, once very proud, accepted this alms with a smile. There are no such facts
You can bring as many as you want.

Although the state law destroyed the kahals, they remained in underground practice Jews and the Asyu Kahals still exist. Otherwise, how can we explain that in
In the Vistula region, such a mass of landowners' estates passed into the hands of Jews. In one In Suwalki Governorate, 250 estates are already in Jewish hands. The rest are owned by landowners can consider themselves only fictitious owners of their estates, in essence, the real owner is considered to be the Jew, who is waiting for the final crisis;
until the public sale of the estate is scheduled, which everyone is waiting for mathematically calculated, measured and hung out like a pharmacy. As usual, on the auction is one Khazak - in the company of many fictitious Jewish buyers, the estate goes to him for almost a penny, i.e., on the third occasion of the auction. If the user Even if the Russian landowners were allowed to buy, they had no money. The Russians in the Polish region they have no desire to buy. In this case, a profitable harvest given to the Jews alone. Meanwhile, young peasants from the Vistula region Due to landlessness, about 300,000 people left for America, and they are still continuing to do so.
peasants of both sexes are leaving. Of all the estates in the Suwalki province, numbering 250, There is hardly one Jew who runs a decent household. The rest of the Jews are engaged in various underground business, i.e. smuggling, especially those living near the Prussian borders. Land is distributed to peasants at a very high price; other Jews have arranged hard corvee for the peasants, for the land allotted to them they must work with with their livestock on Jewish estates. All Jewish estates do not keep workers from the Jews, and all the workers from the Christians of both sexes, boys and girls; lackeys, coachmen and maids are all hired from among Christians and order themselves to be called Jews.
landowners call their servants "clear noble Mr. Dziedzic", otherwise they get angry and They call them rude and they are dismissed.

Some Jewish landowners have neglected arable fields and buildings are falling apart, and the owners themselves are busily engaged in trade and smuggling. It's time
It would already be necessary to pay special attention to the dominance of the Dziedzitz Jews. Now it is possible it would be necessary to demand from the Jews that, having received their estates, they should not destroy them to the ground, which has a very detrimental effect on the economic situation of the country, and then on treasury finances. If the Jews acquired land under the guise of colonization, then they should to have their own workers from among Jews and Jewesses, but not to spoil the morality of Christianity workers. They must learn to manage the household and work themselves. Hundreds, thousands of healthy and poor Jews, starving, are exhausted from idleness, trying avoid hard work. One means beneficial for Jewish landowners

"dzedzitsov": the administration, the government should set a deadline, within which Jewish landowners should acquire their own workers from among the Jews:
one year, two, or at most three years. After this period, in which The "dzedzitz" Jew did not hire workers from his own people, and the estate was transferred to the treasury for redemption.
During this period, the farm could have been organized more profitably. The land is very much needed for colonization, to give them to the Russians for ransom, retired soldiers, retired officials who would gladly take it for ransom with an annual payment. From Prussia fellow schismatics appealed to the Warsaw Governor-General with with a request to give them land for settlement in this region. They were refused, since there is no free lands. Three thousand schismatic priestless people live in Suwalki provinces, there are many co-religionists. The stubborn ones are Uniates. With the provision at least for the redemption of land, the matter could have moved forward more successfully than to conduct useless verbal arguments and religious disputes. This kind of colonization in this the region would be very useful in comparison with the corrupt population that brings causing millions in losses to the treasury through his smuggling activities, living right next to the border in spacious single-village landowner estates, most convenient for warehouses smuggling.

Chapter 4

The growth of Jewish land ownership

In the Polish newspaper "Niva Polska", a widely distributed publication in landowner spheres of Western Russia, placed compiled according to official This report shows the astonishing growth of Jewish land ownership in the Pale of Settlement.
Having given a table illustrating the land seizures of Jews in the former Kingdom of Poland, The newspaper summarizes its findings:

"The numbers speak for themselves. In the Lomza province, Jews are depopulating year after year.
they buy twice as much, and in Suwalki more than eighty (80!) times more, how much land is acquired by the local peasantry, who are in such need of land; in all In the Kingdom, Jews on average buy only half as much as they acquire peasants. If we add to this that the Jews rent 48,363 morgues, and the peasants only 37,019 morgues, i.e. almost a quarter less than the Jews, then we get the proper the concept of the extent to which the oppression of Jewish competition in the sphere is heavy agricultural. This oppression becomes especially sensitive exactly in "lately."

Moving on to the statistics of Jewish land ownership in the empire, the newspaper cites the following data, taken from the same official source (Collected. statistician, sv., vol. IX).

In six provinces of the northwestern region, Jews:

own 62,343 dessiatines.
695,985 are rented
Total 758,328 decimeters.

In three provinces of the southwestern region:
own 58,405 dessiatines.

124,806 are rented

Total 183,211 decimeters.

In Bessarabia and Novorossiya:

own 21802.97 des.
rent 302,459.80
Total 324,262.77 deci.

"According to official data alone, there are in total in the hands of the Jews within the Pale of Settlement of the Empire 1,265,065 dessiatines

Everywhere within the empire the same phenomenon is observed: remarkably the rapid growth of Jewish landownership compared to the increase in peasant landownership.
During the period from 1861 to 1896, Jews captured an average of 23,435 people annually. tithes.

In a short period of time from 1896 to 1900, the Jews take over already at 84,988 des. on average annually. Thus, in recent years the sizes Jewish land seizures are progressing approximately four times faster than before.

This phenomenon is even more striking outside the Pale of Settlement, i.e. within 35 Great Russian provinces. In the period from 1861 to 1896, we saw in Jewish hands dim 386,025 dessiatines, i.e., on average, the annual capture was 11,029 dessiatines; during the period 1896-1900, 359,620 dessiatines were added here, i.e. 71,924 dessiatines per year on average; "in other words, the seizures during this time were carried out faster than before."

The newspaper notes that this phenomenon can in no way be explained by deprivation Jews' earnings as a result of the introduction of the wine monopoly; the fact is that all 745,645 tithes seized by the Jews during this short period of time were distributed in total between 790 persons. Therefore, the buyers are by no means poor innkeepers. tavern keepers, but large capitalists.

It would seem that the law on Jews in Russia issued on May 3, 1882 should have a moderating effect on the growth of Jewish land seizures.

However, "in reality, things turn out differently": Jews took over the Pale of Settlement in 15 provinces:

from 1861-1882 336,820 des.
on average 16,039 annually

in 1882-1901 869,610

on average 45,611 annually

“Without wanting to look ahead to how long this will continue an outrage against the law, however, we hope that in the end the law will prevail and correctly understood public interests and a limit will be put on counter-the equestrian invasion of Jews into the sphere of land relations, where their participation is least "desirable."

Chapter 5
Christian servants of Jewish landowners!
1 Niva Polska, 1901, April 18-19

Placing the indictment in the case of torture by Jewish colonists several peasants and the disappearance of a peasant woman serving Iosif Zadovsky Ekaterina Pobotova, we consider it necessary to share the thoughts that arise involuntarily under the impression of this terrible deed.

But first of all, let us note the following significant fact.

The report on the case was published in the Jewish newspaper published in Odessa, in the “Yuzhny” Review”, the publisher of which is the Jew Beilenson, and the editor is a certain

Tsakin, also, judging by his last name, is a Jew; and if he is not a Jew by origin, then,
Of course, he's a Jew at heart, otherwise he wouldn't have worked for a Jewish publisher. Like this report appeared in a Jewish newspaper - we don't know, usually the Jewish press keeps everything silent similar cases.

Apparently, the editors of Southern Review published it due to a misunderstanding, or he simply came to the conclusion that “you can’t hide an awl in a sack,” and therefore tries soften the impression with some reservations.

Be that as it may, the very fact of the appearance of this message in a Jewish newspaper, We hope this will free us from the accusation of trying to exaggerate and negative phenomena from the life of Jews.

The brutal torture of several peasants by Jews. Torture no less brutal than his cruelty to the most brutal tortures of the Inquisition, again raises the question of hiring Jews used Christians as servants and reminds us of something that has been forgotten in our time for some reason a law that absolutely prohibited Jews from hiring Christian servants.

What caused the complete disregard and oblivion of this law - was it accidental?
We won't talk about the administration's negligence or bribery now. Yes, finally,
This won't help the problem. What's important is the fact itself and its unconditionally negative meaning. for the Russian people. It must be assumed that our fathers and grandfathers were both smarter than us and less carefree than us and, of course, there were fewer traitors and renegades among them, selling their homeland to the Jews than in our days; one must assume that they are more than us understood the significance of this evil, since they tried to protect the people from it even by publishing special law. And this is indeed so, and they were quite right, and evil really great.

We ask those who are not familiar with this issue to contact us to the residents of the Jewish Pale of Settlement and, in general, to representatives of the provincial intelligentsia, consciously and sensitively concerned with the life around them.

And they will all answer with one voice:

- Yes, it is a huge evil, so huge that it must be fought.
without delay, fight by all means and means, both in the interests of the people and in the name of Christian love for one's neighbor, and in the name of the law.

If we assume that out of seven million Jews there are only a few hundred thousand
They can hire Russians into service, but the Jews only have a few in their service hundreds of thousands of Christians, then one cannot help but think about the demoralizing the significance of this fact for the Russian people.

To what extent do the Jews really demoralize those in their service?
servants, one can judge at least by the fact that the Russian intelligentsia, taking on service servant, first of all asks her a question.

- Did you serve the Jews?

And if the answer is affirmative, such servants are either not hired at all they hire, or take with caution.

It's understandable. It's usually the worst part of the servants who go to the Jews, who don't could settle in a Christian family. She goes reluctantly and serves reluctantly, feeding in the soul towards its “masters” if not hatred, then at least contempt or disdain.
The world around her is a world completely alien to her, the Jewish attitude to life and Jewish ethics is gradually being undermined by its moral, religious and national foundations. She necessarily celebrates Saturday and works in all her Christian holidays. Jewish skepticism and cynical attitude towards the Christian religion is gradually doing its job, demoralizing more and more deeply and completely Russian servants. If these servants are stupid, they turn into slaves, into beasts of burden.
an animal driven to exhaustion by backbreaking work; if she is smart, she inevitably one has to be hypocritical and lie, falling lower and lower in moral in relation to those good, healthy feelings that decent Russian servants have to the Russian family, of which she becomes a member, by whose interests she lives, experiencing her grief and joys, she does not know and cannot know in the service of the Jews. So She gets used to hostile feelings towards her owners, so she becomes both malevolent and sloppy, and most importantly, corrupted. After all, the Jews are not they miss no opportunity to bring at least a drop of joy into the servant's soul poison of decay, not to shake her religious and national feelings, otherwise simply persuade them to secretly convert to Judaism. How many thousands of "Judaizers" are there?

there are still today among the Christians serving the Jews, and how many thousands of Russian souls, corrupted by Jews, with shattered religious and moral feelings who have become indifferent to their homeland and have already become mangy in the full sense of the word!

And hundreds of thousands of Russians live in such an environment, and are educated in such a school.
proletariat, from which a gangrenous a growth in the people's body.

Hundreds of thousands, having served with the Jews, go over to the Christians, new hundreds of thousands take their place from the Jews... And so from year to year - healthy Russian people's blood flows into this gangrenous abscess, gets poisoned and spreads the infection throughout to the body...

And how many thousands of meek, naive and simple-minded Russian people ended up on all my life to the Jews in this slavery, in serfdom...

Do you know Russian people who consider themselves honest citizens and loyal sons of their homeland, how many thousands of your brothers have fallen into bondage to the Jews,
For years, or even their whole lives, they only dream of how to break free from this bondage?..

Did you know that many of them often only need a few dozen rubles in order to escape from the Jewish yoke, that only these
The Jew, taking advantage of the honesty and naivety of the common man, drags out tens of rubles noose year after year, intimidating him with both the court and the police.

And while all this is happening, we are either complacent or do nothing.
we undertake it even when our duty to our native people demands it of us, and Christian duty and law!

Our society knows so little about the many urgent needs of its homeland and its burning anger, that, taking to heart the fate of the Balkan Slavs, worrying about regarding the fact that they can be Germanized or Catholicized, it does not see that is happening under his nose, he doesn't see how every year several hundred thousand Russians
They are becoming lousy in their national character and Judaizing in their religious and moral aspects...

It seems that God has not deprived Russian society of stupidity.

So declares the Southern Review. And then continues:

“Without giving any explanations (the nature of these accusations, we hope, is quite clear)
(This will be revealed in court), we move on to the content of the indictment."

From the apartment of the tradesman Iosi Zadovsky (a Jew), living in the Dobra colony, various gold and silver items were stolen on the night of December 15, 1900 amount less than 300 rubles.

Zadovsky suspected his servant Ekaterina of committing this theft.
Pobotova, who soon after the theft disappeared from the colony to an unknown location.

Knowing that Pobotova was acquainted with the peasant M. Kondratyev, who lived in the neighborhood of Zadovsky, the latter suspected Kondratyev and his acquaintances of complicity him: peasants I. Bondarenko, N. Reshetil, A. Voloshchuk, M. Morozov and A. Zuev, who lived in the same colony.

According to the statement of Iosi Zadovsky and his relatives, the above-mentioned peasants were arrested (around midday on December 15) by the colony's clerk, Kupchin, and the sotsky city of Ternyany.

The next morning (it was Saturday) Sotsky Redinger, who was watching I wanted to send him to the order where the people suspected of theft were placed the prisoners were brought to the district police officer, but the absence of a protocol on their detention prevented him to carry out his intention. When the sot Redinger demanded from the sot Ternyana protocol, the latter responded that the Jews themselves want to deal with the thieves.

Around midday, brothers Ios, Yankel and Duvid gathered near the order Zadovsky, Ya. Prosyanikov, L. Kosoy, L. Giber, H. Pulson and Ya. Kryuk - aka Zadovsky — and demanded that those arrested be handed over individually in order to deal with them personally.

But the guards (Germans) did not fulfill this demand and drove the Jews away, who after that approached 2-3 more times with the same requirements.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the German guards were replaced by Jewish guards.

Soon after this shift, the arrested persons were taken away from the order to an apartment Zadovsky.

Here Zadovsky, Prosyanikov and Kosoy began to extort confession in the theft from suspects and hit them with ropes soaked in water. In addition In addition, Kondratyev and Voloshchenko had their legs and buttocks pricked with a needle, and the first of them, in addition to in total, a hot needle was inserted into the opening of the penis, and in the second They pulled out his hair. Reshetilo was tortured for two hours, Voloshchenko - 6 hours, and Kondratyev was tortured from 8 o'clock in the evening until the morning of the next day, giving him only small breaks.

The latter could not withstand the torture and slandered Moroz and Bondarenko in the theft, the names which his tormentors suggested to him.

At midnight on the 16th, the M.I. Zadovsky and Kosoy brigades took Moroz and Zueva, Kondratyev's cohabitant, and brought them to Zadovsky's apartment, where soon the sot Bondarenko, taken from his apartment, was also brought in by Ternyan and Pulson.

Here, in Zadovsky's apartment, about 15 Jewish colonists took on Zueva.
They beat her with wet ropes, and D. Zadovsky inserted a hot wire into her anus opening. M. Zadovsky and Prosyanikov received from Zueva the 2-month-old baby she had brought with her, grabbed him by the legs and, holding his head down, they threatened to tear it apart if she, Zueva, did not confess to the theft.

When they left Zueva, they turned to Moroz and Bondarenko. They tied their hands and legs, they threw a bag over each of their heads and beat them with short, double-twisted with ropes, also soaked in water. They beat them until their blood spattered the walls. rooms. They couldn't bear the torment and falsely accused each other of theft.

Zueva was released at 6 o'clock in the morning, and Moroz and Bondarenko with only a few
They tortured me intermittently until the evening of the 17th. By this time, the local police officer arrived, in order to conduct an investigation into the theft, so the Jews themselves decided to stop the torture.

These are the facts set out in the indictment.

The investigative examination of the complainants, which took place on May 8 and July 17, 1901, did not yield any results.
no signs on the bodies of the victims" (It is understandable; the first examination for some reason produced only 5 months later, and the second one - seven months later torture!) But medical experts and the medical department of the Kherson provincial government, those who considered the question of the nature of the beatings inflicted on the victim expressed their opinion in the spirit that violent actions, as testified by the victims themselves, must be recognized as torture and torment.

The Jewish colonists interrogated during the investigation as defendants testified: 1)
I. Zadovsky and Giber, that they were in Nikolaev on the 16th, 2) Ya. Zadovsky - that on the 16th

December he did not leave his apartment, and the next day (5 p.m.) he went to a minute only to I. Zadovsky, where he found Moroz. D. Zadovsky and Kosoy testified that On the 16th they did not visit I. Zadovsky; Prosyanikov - that on the 16th he was in the village of Poltavka, from where he returned on the morning of the 17th; Pulson - that from the evening of the 16th until the morning of the following
I was at home during the day, and around 8-9 o'clock in the morning on the 17th I went with I. Zadovsky to Novo-Danzig colony to search for Pobotova. M. Zadovsky - from the evening of the 16th and I spent the whole day of the 17th in the village of Yavkin.

In view of the above, the persons now named are accused of the crime, provided for in Article 1489 of the Penal Code.

21 witnesses, a medical expert and an assistant of the Kherson medical inspector.

Has Ekaterina Pobotova been found or has she disappeared forever? Yuzhnoe
The Obozrenie does not consider it necessary to say a word, although it would seem that since December 1900 and to this day it should have been found somewhere, if, of course,
She was alive. Who knows, maybe she died from torture even before the Jews became subject other peasants to inquisition.

Anyone familiar with Jewish colonies knows how isolated they are from authorities and any kind of administrative supervision in general, who knows what the darkness of fanaticism reigns in these colonies, he will not doubt for a moment that Ekaterina Pobotova is not hiding, she has disappeared forever.

Let us add one more thing by the way: “Southern Review”, placing on the day of the case hearing in Nikolaev, in No. 2111 of March 24, the indictment did not stand up to tempted to put some pressure on the court and admitted the charges, aroused against the Jewish colonists, "outrageous."

Chapter 6

Along the northwestern edge

As is known from government reports, Jewish land ownership in

The Smolensk region currently extends over 350,000 dessiatines. Of these, direct ownership a total of 252,019 dessiatines. Of these, 221,770 are shown as forest. The holdings, it would be fair to say, "Sub-titled" (in someone else's name) are considered to be over one hundred thousand dessiatines. Forest, forest and forest. Many millions, which grow as they are cut. Christians, however, have passed on these living millions of Jews, experienced in all kinds of circumcision, and they themselves were content with the paltry sums that they deposited in banks (unless (They put it down!) and they cut four-percent coupons from them. But besides the forest, the land itself doubles in price every five years, and timber prices are skyrocketing. By county The number of properties "in one's own name" is distributed as follows: the largest number is in Velsky - 128,346 dessiatines, in the Porech district - 63,803 dessiatines, in the Roslavl district - 27,622 dessiatines, in Yelnya - 13,622 dessiatines, Dorogobuzh - 9,476 dessiatines, Smolensk - 3,407 dessiatines, in Gzhatsky - 2,720 dessiatines, in Dukhovshchinsky - 1,390 dessiatines, in Vyazemsky - 1,055 des, according to Yukhnovsky - 427 des, and according to Krasninsky - 111 des. How and between whom Have the "nominal" estates been distributed? I have no information. Thus, the main the mass of Jewish land ownership - over two hundred thousand dessiatines - falls on the three most forested districts: Velsky, Poretsky, and Roslavlsky.

Jewish land ownership is concentrated in the hands of a few families and characterized by the fact that there is almost no small property - all are huge estates. Below a thousand dessiatines are not even enough. The main families that own colossal estates in our country real estate, - these are the Berlins, Azarkh, Zeliksons, Zafren, Risker, Zelikins, Khavkins, Libenson. The holdings of these families are vast. These are the largest land magnates: some, like the Berlins, all-Russian. Then very, very

Jews have large land holdings: Shalyt, Bezsmertny, Galperin, the doctor Pevzner, Epstein, Levshits, Ginsburg, Grad, David Kadinsky, Lagoriev, Roshal, Chernyak, Magidson, Lury, Gurevich, Fradkin, Levin, Schwartz, Ratner, Rivosh, Herzberg, Actual State Councilor Lazar Solomonovich Polyakov. Candidate of Laws Moscow University Evsey Leibov Members have 403 dessiatines. I named only thirty-two Jewish surnames and they almost exhausted the number of Talmudic landowners. Only the possessions not worth mentioning remain. Thirty-two Jewish magnates on the entire province. What power they have! What capital they have! I'll look at it in detail now.

possession of the all-Russian, multi-landed Berlin dynasty. Eight representatives
This venerable family owns no less than 57,092 dessiatines. An entire principality.

Torpetsky 1st guild merchant Shaya Berkov Berlin has seventeen estates.
There are eight of them, extending to 5,250 dessiatines, in one district. In total, Zalman Berlin has 19,234 dessiatines.

Toropets 1st guild merchant Beinus Salmanov Berlin owns 9 estates. In total Beinus Berlin's land is 11,932 dessiatines.

Toropets 2nd guild merchant Leyba Zalmanov Berlin owns only six estates. Leiba Berlin's lands amount to 10,309 dessiatines.

Finally, the merchant's son, Berka Zalmanov Berlin, has an estate of 1891 dessiatines.

Thus, in the hands of Shai and Zalman Berkov and Beinus, Leiba and Berka
The Zalmanovs Berlin - two brothers and three cousins - are concentrated land and forests of about 50,000 dessiatines. Then Grunya Berlin has 2,070 dessiatines, Rachel Berlin - 3210 and merchant Hanka Berlin - 751 dessiatines. Three Jewish women from the great
The dynasties have a total of over 6,000 dessiatines.

The Berlins own lands in only two districts of the Smolensk province:
Velsky and Poretsky.

You see how correctly and evenly Berlin is buying up forests and lands.
Velsky and Poretsky districts. In the first decade there were 16 estates, in the second - 14, and in third - 14. In the first decade, 17 thousand dessiatines. It is obvious that the purchase is so could have continued correctly in the twentieth century, and what would have remained for Christians half of it? What would escape the hands of the all-powerful and omnipresent Shai, Zalman, Leiba, Beirus and Berka? And what escaped would not have escaped the hands of other Jewish magnates of our province.

The questions that remain to be answered are: from whom did the mighty buy the forests and lands?
Berlins? And what do they do with their estates? They bought Berlins from the Russians too.
merchants, but mostly noble families flash before our eyes: Butkovskys, Voevodskys, Chelishchevs, Baumgarten, Skrydlovs, Engelhardts, Rachinskys, Kushelevs, Nashchokins, Ugrinovichs, Ozerovs, Stanislavskys, Sipyagins, Leslie, Nelidovs, Kol-Chitsky, Ganetsky, Goryainov, Gedeonov, Meshchersky.

Before us is a picture of the liquidation of the old landed service nobility, native Smolensk families. Or rather, only a corner of the picture, for now here
The activities of not all 32 families of Jewish land magnates are depicted, but only just one last name, and just Shai, Zalman, Leiba, Beyrus, yes Berka, yes Grunya, yes Rachel, yes Hayki, only a corner of the liquidation activities of the Jews demolition and uprooting of the old Smolensk service and landed classes.
When you review this work in the province as a whole, you will understand what kind of new government it is and a new yoke came to Rus'... What do the Berlins do with the estates they bought? They
They don't live there. They don't run any farms at all. They don't sell them, and they don't even rent them out.
They don't give away a single scrap. Their clerks sit there, grow the forest, cut it, float it down, and convert it.
in chervonets.

The Nov. Vremya correspondent continues: “I move on to other key issues land magnates of the Smolensk province.

After the Berlins, who own 57,000 dessiatines in the Velsky and Porechsky districts, come the following surnames: Azarkh, Risker, Zafren, Zelikosny, Khavkin.

Their possessions are enormous.

The Azarkhs have 23 estates in the Velsky and Porechsky districts, in which the lands amount to 27,367 tithes.

Risker in the same districts - 18 estates, and in them the land is only 21,147 dessiatines.

Zafren in Velsky district has only two estates, but they contain 19,050 hectares of land.
tithes.

The Zeliksons in the same two counties own 18 estates, and in them there are 15,293 lands.

Finally, the Khavkins in the same districts have 13 estates; in them the lands amount to 11,409.

Thus, five Jewish families own 74 estates, in total complexity making up an area of 94,266 dessiatines. Add to this the holdings Berlinov. This will result in over 150,000 dessiatines concentrated in the hands of six Jewish surnames. In other words, these surnames belong to U; only direct (on its own face) of Jewish land ownership, and all this mass of land is concentrated in only two counties, Velsk and Porech.

We have seen that the main mass of land belonging to the Berlin family, owned by two brothers, Zalman and Shaya Berkov, and two sons of Zalman - Leiba and Beinus. Total four representatives of the family, who are closely related, have a concentration 50,000 dessiatines.

We notice the same thing in the other main Jewish families of the landed dynasties. magnates of the Smolensk region.

Let's take the surname Azarkh. Smolensk 1st guild merchant Berka Shmaev Azarkh owns 9,436 dessiatines of land. Incidentally, in 1896 he bought 4,000 dessiatines from Princess M. V. Obolenskaya. This Berka bought from the peasants in 1882, 1896, and 1898. -1162 tithes.

Smolensk merchant's son Shmerk Berkov Azarkh has only 377 dessiatines. But Berka Shmaev's heirs have already acquired 8,646 dessiatines.

Yankel Movshev Azarkh has 6805 dessiatines, and Berka Movshev only 42 dessiatines. Finally, the Smolensk merchant Gitlya Zulka Azarkh owns 2061 dessiatines.

Thus, five representatives of the family and their direct heirs A very extensive holding of 27,000 dessiatines is concentrated.

The Risker family has only one representative. Velizhsky, 1st Guild Merchant Chaim Mikhelev Risker is the sole owner of 21,147 dessiatines in 18 estates.

Tula 1st guild merchant sons Hillel and Isak Meyerov Zafren bought the village of Pokrov from Princess Vasilchikova in 1895, which had no less than a lot of 18,300 dessiatines, and in 1896 they bought another 750 dessiatines from some tradesman.

The Porechesky 1st guild merchants Zeliksons bought from the nobles Zagryazhsky, Voeikovs, Stanislavskys, Gerngros, Rachinskys, Gedeonovs, etc., as well as merchants 15,000 dessiatines. Moreover, Abel Khaimov Zelikson has 2,110 dessiatines; Yankel Abelev - 8960 dess; Zalman Abelev - 3114 dess; Leiba Abelev - 1073 dess, Feiga Abelev - 36 tithes. It's clear that this is father and child, one family.

The Khavkin family is represented by the Porech 1st guild merchant Israel Movshev Khavkin. Israel Movshev bought it from the nobles Chelishchev and Voeikov in 1896 and 1899.
3406 dessiatines in the Velsky district, and over 6000 dessiatines were bought by him from the Porech nobles.

So, besides the four Berlins, Berk, Yankel and Gitl Azarkh, Chaim Risker, Hillel and Isaac Zafren, Abel Yankel, Zalman and Leiba Zelikson, and finally Israel

Khavkin - that's all the magnates who own the vast area of 150,000 dessiatines forests and lands. Just fifteen Jews with their heirs from six families!

Of course, the question may arise: is this true? Perhaps these very magnates in fact, only persons who, before the law of May 10, had the right to buy forests and lands as merchants first guild. Many more are involved in actual ownership and operations.
Jewish surnames, even those who do not have the right of residence within the Smolensk region.

Anything is possible. Jewish affairs are a dark and mysterious thing. Who owns what and It's impossible to tell who is what in Judaism. Often riding on trotters, covered in diamonds, speaking three languages perfectly - German, in Polish and Esperanto, - a civilized magnate hides his master, in front of which bends in three arcs, dirty, large-haired, without residence rights Chaim or Leybu in the wine cellar of his own palazzo. And his own palazzo
It turns out to be the property of this very same person hiding from the police registration a large-faced Jew. I say this because I heard that they appeared from under the fallen noblemen with luxurious habits seeking rich Jewish brides. After reading calculations of the countless wealth of the Smolensk Jewish magnates, they, perhaps,
They are heading to their estates. So as not to make a mistake.

Chapter 7

On Jewish possessions outside the Pale of Settlement

According to a special correspondent and expert on Judaism, the Jewish land ownership is a wedge driven into the depths of Russia's core. The more this the wedge will cut in, the more destructive will be its effect on the Christian population of the country. Branching out, penetrating into Russia from Smolensk to St. Petersburg, Jewish land ownership is already dangerous because, alongside the obvious, it is not subject to accounting, secret, in someone else's name, but firmly secured by various documents cops. In cities, Jews are buying up entire neighborhoods.

The whole danger of the seizure of urban and local real estate by Jews may not Only he in whom not only all national and class differences have been eclipsed can understand understanding of things, any state sense, but who has abandoned ideals old, honest populist worldview. To see the land not in the hands of the Russian a peasant, a landowner, a merchant, a Russian person in general, who watered for hundreds of years with sweat and blood this holy mother of yours! To see the land in the hands of the worst of all bourgeoisie, in the hands of bankers' offspring, building "villas" and decorating them paintings and furniture that remained in their custody! Did they really react to such a sight?
Would our best people be indifferent? This is a completely new dogma of ours.
"progressive" direction - to bow before the power of the banker's fireproof closet. This is the dogma of our "Marxism."

I note that the Jewish proletariat is happy about the new law.

- It's good that rich people aren't allowed to buy land. It's better for us. Now
The rich will start trading, where there will be a place for us too. And what was there for us in the estates?
What should we do? Now the rich will give us bread.

This is how the impoverished masses of Jewry interpret it. Indeed, to their new estates, Decorated with "villas", the bankers did not invite the proletarians.

What would they be needed for there?

The law generally affected only a hundred or so rich bankers and merchants.
first guild and certified Jews. In the conquest of Russia, as well as in the fruits of this conquest, the poor Jewish masses do not participate. We are very generous shared their forests with the Jews. The lion's share went to the latter. We We ourselves created Jewish capital in the region. Thanks to this simple-minded division, we significantly reduced the working capital of their farm. The forests were a piggy bank, from which we allowed the rapacious and raking paw of the Jew to scoop up. In the name of which we Did they do this? Couldn't we have done it without Jewish mediation?

In any case, thanks to this division we were able to use the meager remains of the forests to develop only a very modest culture in the region. And the Jews, having accumulated capital,
They took over the trade in grain, flax, and hemp, and strangled the Russian bourgeoisie.
and the middle merchant class took possession of credit in the region.

So, will the division of forests be followed by the division of lands? When the Jews are in the cities the houses will whine when the suburban lands, now near Smolensk, have reached a price of 300 rubles, will pass into the hands of the Jews when they will be displayed on all the floating rivers Jewish "villas" and from the windows of a train car, someone traveling on a business trip abroad a St. Petersburg official will admire the "palaces" of Jewish estates, then a fight against the chosen tribe will be unthinkable. What's surprising if the zemstvos still Ten years ago they raised a cry and asked to forbid the Jews from plundering the region! And,
Obviously, the state is only now responding to this demand, which has been brewing for a long time.
The impression from the publication of the law was sobering for the Jews, encouraging for Christian.

- They said that the Jews are already complete masters, that nothing can be done with them.
It's impossible and fighting them is unthinkable! But they've been besieged!

This is how Christians interpret it.

The Jews, feeling a firm hand over themselves, were filled with respect. In fact, in fact, there is no measure to the contempt with which Jews treat Russian idealism and holy "simplicity." They themselves understand perfectly well the true purpose and meaning of their "operations." And that sheepish submission with which Christians offer their throat, makes them laugh a lot.

We can't apply our usual standards to Jews. They are a truly unique people.
To illustrate this, I'll tell you a rather funny story.

A Jewish capitalist died in one of the major Western cities. In his will, he expressed a wish that two rainbow hundred-ruble bills be placed in his coffin.
The fact is that this rich man was once, in his early youth, an unhappy, poor man; lived in a dirty place, ate a slice of black bread a day, watered herring brine, and was engaged in penny deals. But then she came to the town a rich Jewish "aunt", an elderly widow. She turned a favorable eye on the young man attention, kept him with her for a whole week, and he pleased her so much that, when she left, she gave him two rainbow ones to make a profit. And from these "rainbow" liquors, indeed, He became rich and a millionaire. In memory of this event, when he died, he bequeathed put two tickets on his chest.

A family council was assembled to discuss how to carry out the deceased's wishes. It must be said that one of the rich man's daughters married a Christian, a Pole. Seeing that everyone The Jews were chattering about something, waving their arms, and the naive Pole, for his part, suggested So, to fulfill the will of the deceased, put two hundred old Polish coins in the coffin rubles.

"What are you saying? That's not it at all!" his Jewish relatives waved at him.

It turned out that they couldn’t come to terms with the idea that two hundred rubles without all the benefits will be lost in the grave. Finally they came up with an idea: they wrote a promissory note for two hundred rubles, everyone signed it and placed it on the chest of the deceased.

Chapter 8

The Jewish conquest of banks

Private special Jewish banks are becoming more and more widespread every year. spread their nets in Russia and together with Jewish banking firms collect those colossal capitals that give them the opportunity to dominate Russian stock exchange, to conquer Russian trade and industry, to seize into their own hands of all the largest enterprises not only in the Pale of Settlement, not only in outskirts, but also in such powerful centers of Russian industry as Moscow, where they step by step they began to push out Russian capitalists. Looking at this sad picture, You can't help but wonder how they still haven't come to their senses and understood everything of terrifying significance for the country and people of this bloodless but inexorable conquests; and you are even more amazed when you think about the fact that the Jews, complaining about all kinds of oppression, harassment and persecution still manage to get such a privilege that none of the nationalities that make up empires, manage to obtain permission to establish such an enterprise, which is designed to serve their interests specifically, and by creating advantages for the Jews, is detrimental to the entire population of the country. I, at least, don't know of any specific Armenian, not specifically Georgian, not specifically Great Russian, not specifically Polish bank, which would be created primarily to give the opportunity for Armenians, Georgians, Great Russians or Poles to conduct economic fight against this or that nationality, seize industry and trade for their own hands. But the Jews managed not only to gradually take over the credit institutions permitted on a general basis for the entire population, but have achieved the right va to establish openly and specially Jewish banks, that is, such banks that are entirely owned by Jews, run by a Jewish administration and serve only interests of the Jews. I will not list all such banks here, especially since in there is no need for this: in Russia there are only three or four private banks that do not belong to Jews or in which they are not yet in charge, although perhaps under someone else's sign. Among the special and typically Jewish banks, in addition to Petersburg-Azov, which suffered a collapse, and another one, which burst at the same time approximately the time after the fireworks process, in recent years has come to the fore, Having significantly expanded its activities, the South Russian Industrial Bank, a branch of which was opened in Chisinau in 1897 or 1898.

This bank represents such an interesting and characteristic phenomenon, it serves such a powerful weapon for the conquest of Russia by the Jews that it would be unwise to try even slightly to understand his role means at the same time to at least slightly recognize our own stupidity.

The bank was founded in Moscow by the famous Jewish millionaire Polyakov, who is the owner of it and, it seems, two other Moscow banks and the main shareholder. Of course, Mr. Polyakov would not invest all of his capital that was needed in the bank. for other extensive transactions, concessions and enterprises. And therefore, in recent decades when the Jews began to take over the prothought and trade in St. Petersburg and Moscow, when the need arose to strengthen the influx of capital and expand the credit of Jewish merchants, at the time of their a tense battle with Russian businessmen, the South Russian Industrial Bank appeared at their service as if by magic. But to open a bank and nail up a sign - does not yet mean to generate an influx of capital necessary for the bank. For this it is necessary it was necessary to create special departments or so-called “Polyakov’s” in the provinces pumps" that would establish a continuous flow of capital from the depths of the province - to the central bank, to the main battlefield in the arena of conquest of Russian industry and trade and the seizure of profitable enterprises right under their noses. And departments, or pumps, were created one after another, created exactly where their appearance, apparently, could not be motivated, especially for the uninitiated, no economic grounds, where it sometimes could not but cause bewilderment. Indeed. In some dead commercial point, in which trade and industry are poorly developed, although there are branches state bank, large private, city and land banks, three credit societies, a branch of the South Russian Industrial bank. After all, to open such a branch, you have to paralyze part of it. working capital of the central bank; after all, in order to develop banking operations, it is necessary not only to accept deposits, but also to issue loans, take into account bills and, while filling the bill portfolio, empty your cash register. Is the game worth the candle? especially in a dead city, especially in view of the inevitable competition with existing public and private credit institutions there, producing identical turnovers and operations? This question is the emergence of a branch The South Russian Industrial Bank caused not only in our country, but probably in all other cities.

I now have before me an issue of the Finance Bulletin, in which it is printed balance sheet of this bank on July 1, 1902. As can be seen from this balance sheet, the South Russian In just a few years, the bank managed to open its branches in seven cities - Kyiv, Odessa, Baku, Batumi, Chisinau, Zhitomir, Kamianets-Podilskyi. If from this list exclude Baku and Batumi, where the bank's operations are dependent on the oil industry, it turns out that the remaining five points are located in areas where the main role is played by the bread industry, where the inflow of deposits depends on harvest. Noting this curious feature of the South Russian strategy industrial bank, I will briefly characterize the activities of its Chisinau departments, especially since the activities were probably developed according to the same program other departments.

It was opened, as we have already said, about four years ago, that is, just in a time of crop failure and crisis. It can't be said that the moment was particularly opportune, although It cannot be considered a failure either. The "crisis" and "money crunch" were exactly those catchphrases that gave the bank the right to avoid discounting bills without interfering with it at the same time accept deposits. The bank's policy, as locals said at the time financiers who monitored his activities were "wait and see", "the bank I was feeling my way around and looking around." Bank books, unfortunately, are not in my disposal; but, as I was told, the turnover for the first two years was very modest, they avoided taking bills into account, and if they did take them into account, it was mainly Jewish. The public also waited and was not particularly willing to contribute, despite the fact that the interest rate on deposits in the South Russian Bank was higher than in other banks, As is the case now. The bank adhered to this policy for two years, remaining in the shadows. and modestly waiting. But then - last year, thanks to the harvest, to local banks capital poured in. This year, also due to the harvest, it is expected that a smaller influx of capital. The extent to which this influx could reach is given by some idea of the accumulation of deposits in our banks. Suffice it to say that in In one Odessa bank, these deposits already amount to 20,000,000 (twenty million) rubles. As you can see, for banks that are hungry for such deposits, the moment is more than favorable.

It is very possible that the transfer of the Chisinau branch of the South Russian Bank to a new, more central room, coincided with this moment by chance; that pump, with which the housewarming party in the current apartment was celebrated in the presence of eminent townspeople, and the Jews even made such a compromise that they even invited an Orthodox priest to serve a prayer service is also an accident, so to speak, some "homage" to Russia. But one thing is certain, that the South Russian Bank - a specially Jewish bank and that the Russian capital coming into it is capital, the influx of which should especially increase at the present time, will serve for the benefit Jews, will serve for the war of the Jews with Russian capitalists and the conquest of Russian industry by Jews - in the very center of Russia - Moscow. If anyone doubts that the South Russian Bank is a specifically Jewish bank, he can be convinced the names of the people on the bank's board in Moscow. Here they are: Polyakov, Rubinstein, Dyvin, Tselker and Khigerovich. They also serve in small bank branches. Jews are the exception.

I will not claim that the “Polyakov pumps” lived up to the expectations placed on them. their hopes were raised, and tens of millions of people from the provinces began to flow into the central bank in Moscow. Russian money that would allow the Jews to expand the arena of struggle in the very the center of Russia and conquer Russian industry and trade. But, running the bank balance sheet lying before me, the total turnover of which still reaches 24 millions, but, paying attention to the fact that they are re-accounted and taken into account in the state bank has bills of exchange for almost seven million rubles, that these seven millions will also go towards the conquest of Russia, I cannot help but say with both sadness and horror:

- What is this, really? Could it be that the Moscow capitalists, who call themselves as “all-Russian merchants”, they cannot comprehend the significance of this fact, really all of them are so insignificant and morally weak that they can no longer fight back the invasion of the Jews, whose triumph and courage in the economic struggle speaks volumes about one thing: about the short-sightedness or impenetrable stupidity of everything Moscow merchants.

I say all this not without pain in my soul, fulfilling my duty; I say it, prompted not for any personal reasons or in a hostile attitude towards this bank; on the contrary, from the board of the Chisinau branch of the South Russian I met with the most complete courtesy from the industrial bank; it also honored me with my invitation to the housewarming party, although I did not take advantage of it; moreover, in total a few hours ago, the South Russian Bank opened a loan for me and took my bill of exchange... Ah, I realize all my black ingratitude, I imagine that the noble indignation into which my article will plunge the bank's board... But when, on the other hand, I imagine the colossal work of a billion people, countless victims and an ocean of blood shed by the people who had built a great and vast Russia, and at the same time I see how the well-being of this people those to whom he has given such wide support are undermining, threatening to destroy the whole country hospitality, that is, right, next to this ocean of blood and the interests of one hundred and forty millions of Russians - the blood that I might spoil for the representatives of the South Russian (?) bank, doesn't bother me at all.

Especially when I think about the benefit that the truth expressed here will bring benefits to the Russian people in general and to the Moscow capitalists in particular, serving for THEM a PUSH.

Here's another little illustration: about three years ago I raised the question of the need to establish a Bessarabian agricultural and industrial union in Chisinau bank. And yet, as you can see, while Jewish credit institutions are developing and thriving, we still haven’t gotten around to creating this necessary there's work for them.

Or here's another fact. About two years ago, with the assistance of "Bessarabtsa" was the first mutual credit society to be established in Chisinau, now passed entirely into the hands of the Jews.

I remember then, having learned that the Jews were campaigning before the elections, trying to take over the company, I warned its founders about this.

I remember how they tried to dissuade me, assuring me that society would remain in the hands of Christian population, that my fear is that it, by opening a small loan to the Jews-industrialists and artisans, will only give them an extra chance in competition with Christian artisans - is not justified.

The elections took place, and Christians remained in power. But only a year passed - and the society was completely taken over by Jews, and the organizer who created this institution, who invested his capital in it and carried out the duties free of charge for a year chairman, not only was not re-elected, but was not even awarded gratitude from members of society, even in the most ordinary form.

Such are they, the “oppressed,” and such are we, the “oppressors.”

This is why almost all private banks and credit institutions in Russia passed into the hands of the Jews and were filled with Jewish servants who were displacing the Christians, That's why the Jews have reached such a level of courage that they are even conquering in the center of Russia.
Russian industry with the help of Russian money, which is being pumped out
"pumps" from naive Russian people...

Chapter 9

Is there a Jewish kahal?

Having read with great interest the article “Jewish "Inquisition", written in connection with the recent trial of 8 Jews from the colony Good Kherson province, accused of inhuman torture of several peasants, - torture reminiscent of the times of the Spanish Inquisition, I remembered another Jewish trial, which our press at the time hushed up.

At this trial the criminals displayed the same unheard-of cruelty, savage brutality and hellish ingenuity in developing the plan of the crime and its execution implementation.

About this case, rare in criminal annals - an attempted murder out of revenge - where the author of the crime was the entire Jewish community, and the target was a rich landowner, not a single newspaper said a word, except, it seems,
"Odesa News", which published a short note about what was being sorted out there a case of attempted murder of landowner so-and-so, with a jury verdict
The accused persons, such and such, were sentenced to so many years of hard labor. No the motive of the crime, no interesting details of this outstanding situation and The Jewish "Odessa News" did not publish the crime for its own purposes. They did not publish it, of course, only because then I would have to write about my oppressed brothers and discover their monstrously brutal plan for a kahal murder. Russians
The newspapers did not print a detailed account of this trial, probably because in the city
In Olgopol, Podolsk province, during the trial of this case, there was no public there was not a single Russian who clearly understood the enormous significance that there should have been detailed correspondence for Russian society, for Russians readers.

Meanwhile, this process so vividly and clearly depicted the essence of the Jewish ideologies, the usual methods of struggle of the Talmudists, - that one has to regret deliberate silence about the details of this kahal crime. Jews about their They don't like to write about vices, and their press always keeps silent about any outrageous matter, in in which the perpetrator is a person of Jewish nationality.

The Russian public, ss, still doesn't know about this exceptional po the situation and the actors in the process, since a detailed report on it, placed by the author of these lines in the magazine "Observer" for 1901 under the title

"The Jewish Camorra" could only be read by a limited circle of readers monthly thick magazine. It is worth noting that the article "Jewish Camorra" was previously rejected by one very common St. Petersburg Russian newspaper, and only the independent magazine "Observer", headed by a knight without fear and reproach, deeply respected A. P. Pyatkovsky, placed the named article.

Outstanding in its motives, setting, characters and many other things details of the kahal Jewish crime, the main character of which, a young man a Jew, appeared in the role of a hired bravo, an instrument of revenge of the Jewish society, happened on 8 February 1900 in the town of Kalinovka, Vinnytsia district, Podolsk province. This is what I heard in court in the city of Olgopol on May 15 and 16, 1901, during the hearing of this case.

In 1891, merchant L. Valkov purchased the town from landowner Sobeshchansky Kalinovka and from the moment of approval of the purchase deed and entry into possession, he led civil trials against the Jews, residents of this town. These trials lasted almost 30 years.
The Jews were trying to be recognized not as tenants living on Valkov's land, but as chinshevniks, i.e. the eternal owners of the landlord's land they occupied, obliged only to pay a paltry quitrent to the owner of the town. Valkov argued that the Jews living in the estate he bought were tenants, whom he could be evicted from the town at any moment. This was the endless Valkov's litigation with the Jews lasted for more than a quarter of a century. He waged war in such a way
Thus, the entire Jewish community of Kalinovka with the owner of this town, since
All Jews were equally interested in having the court recognize them as chinsheviks.

This stubborn war of one against all lasted for a long time, and finally in the 27th year Valkov won. At the end of 1897, the Senate recognized the Kalinov Jews as tenants.
Valkov, not the chinsheviks. Valkov dealt a cruel blow to the Jews of the village.
Kalinovka. Valkov exercised his rights against his tenants.
and began to file lawsuits in the district court for eviction from the property that belonged entirely to him shtetl of some Jews, who had especially managed to annoy him, including two influential in Jewish society, Kalikhman and Eidler.

The entire Kalinovka community was in a state of agitation. The Senate's decision is law. The demand Valkova is legal. What should we do? Circumvent this Senate decision, as usual.
Jews could not practice it in any way, and yet the situation of many became critical. Every Kalinov resident could find themselves in Eidler's situation and Kalikhman, and the Jews could not start any new lawsuits with Valkov.

All the Jews of Kalinovka found themselves dependent on Valkov, and this is it dependence and gave rise to even greater bitterness among the Jews towards the hated to the winner.

The Kalinov Jews pondered for a long time how to get rid of Valkov and finally settled on the decision to kill Valkov. This terrible decision had a sound reason: Valkov was childless, single and had no relatives, so in the event
After his death, his estate was to go to the treasury.

What did the Kalinovites do against their enemy?

It has been positively established by witness testimony that as early as 1898

(shortly after the Senate's decision) the Jew Kalikhman, who was evicted from the town by Valkov persuaded the peasant Zhobokrik to kill Valkov, for which he promised him 1000 rubles, but Zhobokrik was not tempted by the large sum for him and did not go for the vile crime.

The murder of Valkov, therefore, did not take place in 1898 due to circumstances beyond his control.
Jews due to circumstances... Then the Kalinovsky Jews chose from among themselves influential Jew Eidler to organize the plan to assassinate Valkov. Five-ten-year-old Eidler, who had reasons to consider Valkov his enemy, willingly took on the noble mission and, having received 600 rubles from somewhere,

He went to Odessa to find a reliable assassin. Why did Eidler go to Odessa?
Why didn't the Kalinovsky Jew take on the murder? Because it's impossible to take on murder.
It was risky for Kalinovka resident Valkova. For 27 years of life, side by side Kalinov Jews Valkov knew all the local Jews by sight and in case of failure attempt (which is what actually happened) could recognize and expose the person who attempted his life. It was because of these subtle considerations that the Kalinovites decided to invite a traveling killer from a remote area. A large part of this was discovered caution, subtle calculation and foresight. Eidler, judging by all his further actions, was a man of subtle and inventive mind.

Looking ahead and wanting to leave yourself a safe escape route in case of failure of the planned crime, Eidler stopped in Chisinau on his way to Odessa under the pretext wine purchases. On February 3, 1900, a Chisinau commissioner, sending wine to the station.
Z. railway station Kalinovka, bought a ticket for Eidler to Kalinovka station. Eidler is not a nobleman, but meanwhile, a commission agent buys him a ticket, as if he were a spoiled person, accustomed to to such services. Eidler did this thing so that at the right time he there was a witness that he, Eidler, went home to Kalinin from Chisinau on February 3rd.
vu, ane to Odessa.

From this it is clear how carefully and strictly thoughtfully Eidler carried out the assignment.
kahala. He had to protect himself mainly because in case in the case of Valkov's murder, suspicion would first of all fall on him and Kalikhman, as the persons evicted by Valkov and therefore harboring hostility towards him. And here he has a witness in reserve, which will confirm that he went from Chisinau to Kalinovka.

The investigation established that Eidler was already in Odessa on February 4. There is no there is no doubt that, having boarded the train on February 3 in Chisinau, Eidler bought him
The ticket agent got to the Razdelnaya station and there, having bought himself a ticket to Odessa, he boarded on the Odessa train and arrived in Odessa on February 4. There is no other explanation His appearance on February 4th in Odessa cannot happen.

In Odessa, teeming with the dregs of human society, all sorts of "si i] sagtapo" and subjects of a dangerous criminal type, it was not difficult for him to find a suitable master of his craft. He visited a thieves' den, existed under the eyes of the vigilant police under the legal guise of "domestic dinners", where the knights of the dark industry usually gathered for mysterious meetings and development of approaches to the common man's wallet and life. This was a formal bureau of criminal offenders, where anyone who had a criminal record could apply they need it. It was here that Eidler found the killer, a young Jew named Blank, 29 years old, reserve private. Why was a Jew chosen? Yes, probably because he
It would be more reliable to protect the interests of the kahal than a Russian; besides, a Jew could be bought much cheaper, for 600 rubles, while the Russian (Zhabo-krik) wouldn't even take it for 1000 rubles shed human blood.

On February 5, Eidler and Blank left Odessa for Kalinovka. Here, Eidler had to "show" the victim to the killer Blanc. Here it was easy. The landowner Out of boredom with the village, Valkov went to Kalinovka station (distant from the metro station) almost every day.
Kalinovka in the 3rd century). The Kalinovka Jews knew this habit of their enemy well, That's why Eidler chose the station as the most convenient place to show Valkov to the arriving Odessa bravo, without arousing anyone's suspicion. February 8, Valkov He arrived at the station. A little while after his arrival, an unknown person approached him. a Jew (the investigation did not find him) tells him that he is a visitor and wants to buy from him bread. Valkov gives his consent, and offers it to an unknown buyer to visit his estate and inspect the bread. They talked like that for a few minutes, after why the unknown person bowed and mingled with the crowd at the station.

During this conversation, Jew Blank was in the crowd and observed Valkov, "studied" him, followed him. The reader, of course, has already guessed that the unknown person who spoke with Valkov about bread was not a bread buyer at all, but a person sent by the kahal so that Blank could get a good look at the planned the victim without attracting anyone's attention, especially Valkov's.

Returning home from the station at dusk, Valkov was stunned by a shot in back of the head. Coachman Valkov, turning around at the shot, saw a rapidly running from the sleigh of a young Jew. As a result of the shout raised by the coachman, the one who was running away was was detained by people who happened to be on the highway. A man was found near the sleigh. revolver. //Blank was the one who stubbornly denied his attempt, but could not give any satisfactory explanation as to the reason for his escape, and location in Kalinovka.

Valkov, an old man of 57-58 years old, was wounded in the back of the head, but survived.

Thus, the culprit of the assassination attempt was detained and his identity was established precisely. The investigation revealed one interesting detail: on February 5 (in the day of Eidler and Blank's departure from Odessa) to the head of the Odessa detective department A Jew, Schiff, an agent of this department, appeared to Chebanov. Schiff told Chebanov that 5 In February, notorious thieves in Odessa visited his cohabitant, the Jewish woman Itskovich Blank and Varshavsky and some middle-aged, dark-haired Jew he didn't know, who had a gray beard. The aforementioned persons drank vodka at Itskovich's. Blank and The unknown man was dressed for traveling. Varshavsky stayed behind, while Blank and the unknown man They left for the station on the same day, February 5th. After their departure, Itskovich told Shifu that Blank and an unknown person left Odessa with the aim of killing some landowner, living 3 miles from the station and commuting there every day. Itskovich went on to say Shifu, that an unknown Jew came to Odessa with the special purpose of hiring the killer, for whom 600 rubles were collected (?). Blank received part of this amount, one hundred rubles from an unknown person “as a deposit”, and the rest of the money is with some rabbi, and Blank will receive them only when he kills the landowner (i.e., executes the death penalty) sentence). The investigation into this case was conducted vigorously, and to assist the investigative authorities The most experienced agents and detectives from the south of Russia were sent to solve this a dark case, which at the beginning of the investigation bore all the hallmarks of a capital crime, two detective celebrities took an active part - Yevtushevsky (from Kyiv) and Chebanov (from Odessa) with his best employees. In a word, everything was

This was done so that this time the Jewish crime would not go down the drain.

Despite the fact that here the judicial and administrative authorities had to to face a Jewish crime in which everything Jewish was involved society of the Kalinovka metro station, which sometimes created insurmountable obstacles and hindered the success of the despite the criminal investigation and police search, the truth still prevailed, and An unknown person who arrived at the station on February 4th was discovered. It was Eidler. For Chebanov acted very cleverly in capturing the "unknown." Having learned that on February 8 near the Kalinovka metro station there was an attempt on the life of a landowner who lived 3 versts away station, and comparing this attempt with Shif's statement, Chebanov sent someone to the station.
Kalinovka Shifa, who was recognized among the twenty Jews presented to him middle-aged, brunettes with gray beards, one who drank 5
February in Odessa, Itskovich drank vodka and then went with Blank to the station, he was a Jew Eidler. Thus, on the basis of direct and circumstantial evidence, he was brought into the case.
and Eidler is a prominent member of the Kalinovka kahal. In the town of Kalinovka, Eidler's arrest caused panic. The excitement and fears of the members of the criminal cabal increased even more when Another prominent member of the kahal, Kalikhman, who proposed in 1898, was arrested to the peasant Zhabokrik 1000 rubles for the murder of Valkov.

When the leaders of the society, Eidler and Kalikhman, were brought to trial for Blanc's inducement to commit murder by bribery, when the whole society Kalinovsky Jews were seriously compromised in this matter, - the kahal let all means are used to save their captured members. Kahal solidarity -
All for one - was shown here in all its glory...

This is what they came up with to save Eidler (Kalikhman fled abroad), who was in custody, the Jewish accomplices who were at liberty, undoubtedly directed by the rabbi, the custodian of the killer's reward money.

In March 1900, the murderer Blank, who was being held in the Vinnytsia prison, fell ill, but did not dangerous. The Kalinovsky kahal takes advantage of this circumstance. One day, a prisoner a mysterious stranger, a Jew, appears to Dr. Galitsky and, after asking about his condition, health says:

- We would be very grateful to you if Blank died...

Doctor Galitsky, having guessed that he was being offered “gratitude” for Blanc's departure to Abraham's bosom, he jumped off his chair in anger with the intention throw out the scoundrel, but he instantly disappeared.

It is clear that a parliamentarian from the Kalinovsky kahal came to see the doctor.

This is how the Jewish kahal conducts its affairs to save its members. Hired The bravo from Odessa had to pay with his life for his shot. Otherwise, the alien in the kahal interests of the Kalinovsky society, saving his head, he could confess to in court and hand everyone over with their heads, expose the organization of the Kalinovsky Kahal headed by rabbi-treasurer. Such consciousnesses are commonplace. Subsequently, however, it turned out that Blank decided to save himself by completely denying everything in which he accused, and did not give up anyone. Maybe he did not give up his accomplices and another motive - out of fear of the kahal revenge that would inevitably await him in prison, in Siberia, in hard labor. But he knew that he couldn't avoid hard labor anyway.

As usual, both defendants were defended by Jewish lawyers.

Eidler, who was not the main defendant, was defended by a well-known Kyiv lawyer Kupernik, the main accused, Blank, was defended by some unknown person Rosenberg.

Eidler couldn't hire such an expensive celebrity as Kupernik. Undoubtedly Kupernik received his fee for whitewashing the “innocent victim of Christian persecution," - Eidler, from the Kalinov Jews. It is very likely that those 500 rubles that were kept by a mysterious rabbi and were intended for Blank for a clean murder Valkova, send it towards the amount of the fee for saving Eidler.

No matter how hard the investigative authorities tried to reveal the name of the venerable rabbi, the kahal treasurer, and still hasn't achieved anything. And that's understandable: a rare kahal the crime is being solved. Go against the kahal, expose its members, expose it secret, means to subject oneself to eternal "herem" (curse) and even death according to the sentence of the "besdin" (secret spiritual court). As for the sacred person rabbi, then no Jew will ever, under any circumstances, betray him. Even Schiff, having reported Blank and Eidler, still did not give up the rabbi. And what did he, Schiff, know the name the rabbi's treasurer is beyond doubt. The spiritual rabbi is a sacred person, to issue him - to stop being a Jew. And without that, Schiff, Eidler's main accuser, was so so frightened by the kahal's revenge that after reading the court verdict he asked the police chief not to put him in a common cell in prison (he was held there for some crime), but take me to solitary confinement. “Do me a favor, your honor! Order-

They shouldn't put me in a general cell, but in solitary confinement. Otherwise, they'll kill me for my actions.
"testifying against Eidler. Their society (i.e. the kahal) will not forgive me for this."

Here's more proof of the kahal's invisible involvement in this matter. When for the first time
The Blank and Eidler trial was held in Vinnitsa, then to the agent of the Kyiv detective agency police, Yevtushevsky, who came to Vinnytsia to hear the case as a very a dangerous witness for the accused Eidler, once entered the hotel room
"tinsel" of this hotel and offered Yevtushevsky good money for he was not so strict in the case of Eidler and Blank, in other words, if he will not incriminate the accused.

But the kahal failed to influence the court. The accused were sentenced to hard labor, Blank for 7 years, Eidler for 6.

TREATISE IV ON USURY AND COMMERCE

Chapter 1

Usury among Jews according to the Talmud

From the "Zaraim" section, tract "Sheviit." Talmudic jurisprudence: “Debts secured by loan letters are repaid on the Sabbath year and unsecured. Only debts to the store for goods taken away are not repaid, and even then if they were not taken as a debt. R. Jude says: "It extinguishes the sabbatical year "only the penultimate debt."

“According to the teaching of R. Judah, the debt in the shop is repaid on the Sabbath year, and the sages
They protest that it is not forgiven. It protects against the cancellation of "prozbol." This is from the statutes, introduced by Hillel the Elder. The essence of the proselyte: “I convey to you MM, judges such and such a place that for any debt owed to me I have the right to demand payment at any time."

“This document may contain the signatures of not only witnesses, but also the signatures of the judges. The prosbol drawn up before taking out a loan is valid, but after the loan, - invalid. On the contrary, letters of credit or bills of exchange written before receipt loans are not valid, but those written after the loan is issued are valid. From five lenders, if one person received a loan, then five prozbols are required (i.e. 5 (act documents), if one lender gave a loan to five debtors, then "One prozbol is required."

“The prozbol should be written on the eve of the 1st of Tishri, at the end of the sabbatical year; if it was written within this legalized period, then even if it was later torn, the owner will not loses the right to collect the debt even after many years. Rabbon Simon, son of Gamali-al, said: if the loan was issued before the writing of the proselyte, then it is not a sabbatical year forgiven. Only a probate can be written under real estate. If If the debtor does not have real estate, then the prozbol cannot be written. R. Chutzpah says: “It is permissible to write a prozbol on real estate owned by the debtor's wife or his guardians." R. Jude says: "In prozbol - judges They sign on the inside, front side, and the witnesses on the outside, i.e. "back side".

The Talmud also teaches Jews about usury. The Talmud offers entire tractates on lending money on security, interest, etc. Jewish moneylenders are known to the whole world; there is no need to talk about the quick and enormous profits of the Jews this way!
It is also known about the Jewish percentages, which have long been included in Rus' proverb. Such is the success of Talmudic pedagogy, which, from the age of four, begins to teach the boy literacy and develop his senses with examples of different forms wallet: if you open the wallet, it looks like the Hebrew letter "bet"; closed a wallet with money gives the idea of the Hebrew letter "gimel" and so on. In Russia

It was easy to make money from selling vodka. They used it to the fullest
To this day, Jews in the southwestern region, where taverns and pubs were kept, use this means mainly by them. Many complaints even penetrated into the literature against the ruinous and murderous influence of this Jewish vodka monopoly.
The students of the Talmud, using all sorts of tricks and deceptions, took advantage of this monopolies: they diluted vodka with water; and to keep the vodka from losing its strength, they added various substances, often of a toxic nature, which resulted in frequent cases poisoning. This attracted the attention of the ministry, and orders were issued for strict monitoring the quality of the vodka being sold, but the evil did not cease exist. Jewish tavern keepers had a particularly destructive and destructive effect on peasants; they got them drunk and took into their hands not only the property of these the unfortunate, but also themselves, subordinating them exclusively to their own tyranny and making incapable of fruitful independent work. Jews are not shy no kind of mediation in the form of making a penny.

There is no need to talk about the lack of a broad understanding of the national life, as well as the consciousness of public interests; this understanding, and with it desire to break away from the Talmudic, antisocial in its internal makeup kahal-communal life; not even among educated members of Jewish communities, for example, in the learned members of the "Society for the Dissemination of Education among Jews in Russia." There is not even a simple awareness of the need to respect the property of a non-Jew, which, according to the teachings of the Talmud, we repeat, belongs to the one who is the first among the Jews will capture it and which can therefore be stolen and plundered by direct and indirect means among non-Jews, they do not even recognize the human personality in a non-Jew.

Chapter 2

Commissionership of Gorvits and Kogan

During the Russo-Turkish War, Gorvits and Kogan were in the commission twenty-two thousand Jews served under the guise of members and agents of the association, sutlers, money changers, merchants; among them there are many Magyar Jews. Some agents played the role of bosses in Bulgarian villages, taking away people for a pittance the price of provisions, which became known to the Tarnovo and Sistovo governors.

These are scenes that sometimes played out in Bulgarian villages. A village comes the clerk of the partnership, accompanied by two Cossacks. They are driving the people away. A Jew presents them with the following document: “Partnership for food active army. Agent Adolf Levi in the village of such-and-such owes so much barley, wheat and so much hay, at such and such prices." (The prices are set almost half the price of government-issued ones).

A Jew, like some Adolf Levi, plays a trump card against the Bulgarians, playing the role of the authorities. Some even ordered gray drape military coats for this purpose. cut with smooth light buttons. The shoulders are covered with a hood, on the head is a white cap. Who is it, an officer or just a slacker? Accepting In a commanding tone, the Jew shows the Bulgarians a partnership form and a large “must-but," he explains that this is an order from the highest authorities. On behalf of the army and for the army, he orders the immediate delivery of the specified quantity of bread, barley and hay. The Bulgarians, who which, even the day before, the troops received all this, paying double and even triple - of course, find the prices extremely unprofitable for themselves. In the end, the required The amount of food is being delivered, but that is not the end of it yet.

- You must deliver all this amount of bread and hay to the city on your oxen.

- For free?! - the Bulgarians are amazed.

- Of course!... And again a reference to a decree, supposedly issued by the highest authorities.

There is nothing to be done, the Bulgarians take the cattle from work and drag them into the city, sometimes a hundred miles, grain reserves. The partnership supplies the same grain to the treasury, but at prices much higher than the existing ones, and there are supposedly extremely expensive ones delivery, and on top of that another 10% according to the contract.

Correspondent Gradovsky reported from the theater of war about the Jewish exploitation is as follows: “Some Jew Leiba in Zimnitsa, who arrived here with two with onions in my pocket, I managed to turn around quite a bit, so that recently I have already owns a fairly significant stock of hay. The Jew would never sell it for any amount of money. hay in anticipation of frosts and in general the time when there will be no supply, when it is possible will take whatever comes to mind. Such a time has finally come: the bridges are raised, the mass the carts have accumulated in vain waiting for the crossing, the ice is preventing the delivery of hay, horses die without food: but the general grief is joy for the Jew, he rubs his hands in delight hands, for a pood of hay they pay him eight francs. Suddenly, in the midst of this Mephistophelian

During the celebrations, news of a truce arrives, and rumors circulate about the imminent conclusion of peace.
The alarmed Jew runs to the officer. "Your Honor, is it true what I heard?"
- "What?" - "I heard there will be a pacification." Officer: "Thank God!" Jew: "How glory!
Oh God! How is this possible? What will happen to my hay? Is such a system even possible? No.
Having warned the commercial people, make peace! It cannot be that such a thing a strong power like Russia made peace without warning commercial interests people!.." The Jew is seriously convinced that the war is being waged to fatten his pockets; thousands of other Jews share the same conviction; the same thought flashes through into actions, expressions and non-Jews, those who like to arrange various deals with them..."

Russian Orthodox people, hearing and reading about various quartermaster sorrows in during our last war on the Balkan Peninsula, I couldn't be more amazed at what Our natural Russian merchant class is sleeping. This shortcoming was annoying. enterprise, this inertia of commercial methods, which gave the most sensitive part for the army, supplies for the quartermaster's office, into Jewish hands. But Is it inertia? A lack of enterprise? There are more than one known attempt to take in a row without Jewish hands; but somehow everything turned out that, despite all the diligence fulfillment, with all the praise that Russian suppliers were awarded and which they fully deserved it, in the end he turned out to be a contractor, and moreover, in the biggest cases, he is still a Jew. It's a matter of a special kind of dexterity, which The sons of Israel are distinguished. They are special masters in the practical execution of contracts; they are executive in their own way, - executive in the sense that their failure to meet deadlines does not ring the bell, as is done with Russian deliveries; the Jewish contractor, without being timid or getting excited, he promptly petitions for a delay, firmly believing that there is no such thing on earth nothing is impossible. Finally, the Jews are omniscient: where and when and to whom one must appear to receive the delivery, they know everything, and they use their information to that end greater infallibility and success, that in addition to everything they represent tightly united force: Itzka will not give up Leizar, Leizar Moshka, and all of them therefore become a solid, insurmountable wall between the treasury and the producers, which the Russians, acting alone and, moreover, lacking omniscience and jack-of-all-trades practicality, never to be broken. For example, huge ones are required procurement of leather and various leather goods such as footwear, ammunition, etc.
state-owned, a contractor who has ever supplied anything to our army, should receive a summons from the quartermaster's office and an invitation to the auction as soon as they assigned to such a supply as he has ever performed. Does he receive this a summons, that's another matter. A Jewish contractor knows how to remind people of himself, he knows how find out in advance what is required; he will certainly be given a summons, and The Russian supplier does not possess this higher intuition.

There were similar facts:

A certain quartermaster's office calls suppliers of leather goods; sends out summonses, inviting some to supply leather, others to supply finished ammunition leather things. The thing seems simple, but not without intent. There is, let's say, in view of the chief supplier of leather goods, a Jew climbing out of his skin crush all Russian competition. Let's call him at least some kind of Leizar. G. Leyzar is a force. He doesn't give bribes: they don't take them now, they say, G. Leyzar only attentive to the household needs of people he needs, and for the most insignificant he offers to borrow money from him at interest (or even without interest) to the right person A tidy sum. Borrowing against a promissory note is not a bribe, it's a simple private matter. commercial business. Meanwhile, the same Mr. Leizar only needs: "chance" I already have it in mind.

Let's look at the results of such foresight:

The auction. Respectable Russian tannery owners came to the auction, but People are not very sharp. G. Leizar is terribly unhappy that there are strong Russians at the auctions, breeders who can bring down the prices that Mr. Leyzar thought he could maintain... What can be done about this?

Mr. Leizar is not keen to enter into an agreement with Russian counterparties, he feels powerful. He or someone from his party (the Leizares always have a party, although on the outside they all seem to be on their own) and whispers in the official's ear (who had the imprudence to borrow money from a benefactor on a bill of exchange) that such and such did not has the right to participate in the auction of leather, he was invited by summons to supply ready-made ammunition.

The official is in a vice. It's impossible to displease the bill holder.

“There was no summons for you,” he says to his Russian competitor. “Your unit—” ready-made ammunition items.

But this time, chance brought me to a breeder who knew how to stand up for himself.

- Well, so what if it wasn't there? Why didn't you send it yourself? After all, I'm in fourth grade.
I put leather on last year, therefore, you should have given me a summons, but you didn't...

“They didn’t give it to me, so there’s no point in trying,” Mr. Quartermaster concludes sternly.

- And you read my statement, and you will see that I want and can supply both leather and leather, and maybe I'll get it cheaper than others.

- This is no place for arguing, and I have no time...

“No, you read my statement,” the Russian counterparty insists energetically.
If you don’t read it, I will now telegraph to the chief quartermaster in St. Petersburg. So It's not allowed. I know my rights...

Mr. Quartermaster is embarrassed; the explanation has taken on a sharp character. He tries last shot:

- You allow yourself too much: this is a presence, not a tavern, the general himself Here...

“What does a general matter to me if my cause is right?” the one bravely led out of patience, Russian counterparty. - I'll tell the general himself the same. I'm not leaving here, until they read my statement.

- This is how they will take you out...

- Well, let them take us out by force, and I will now send a dispatch to the chief quartermaster.
No, read my statement.

No matter how hard the quartermaster fought, he defended the idea of removing the “dangerous” from the auctions.
a competitor for the Leizari party, yet not feeling any legitimate ground under his feet, he had to yield the battlefield. The tanner's statement was read, and his right free competition came into force.

The correspondent concludes: “God grant that there will be more such people "stable Russian people." We completely agree with this desire. But Can't the treasury itself accept some Russian people into its enclosure?

any energetic measures?

The people certainly attribute all modern disasters to the Jews and not is deceived in this, as a personal witness of all the tricks and tricks of the Talmudists. Anyone who has experienced their deception and deception has no doubt about it. All small and large branches of trade and industry are captured by them and are shamelessly exploited, and all these sectors are experiencing a crisis: agriculture the farm suffered from Jewish tenants; sugar speculation, which reached of enormous size in the hands of the Jews, ended with the collapse of the Kyiv banks and greatly affected the farmers who started sowing sugar beets; the Riga bank in Jewish hands; the "Odessa riots" broke out with robbery and the beating of the Jews who mercilessly exploited the country and the population in which the people instinctively felt their true enemies and the undoubted cause of all economic evils.

In Russia, Jews play the role of mediators for both internal and external trade. As intermediaries in export, Jews set prices at their own discretion for raw materials and accordingly pay the peasant producers as much as as much as they want. Their agents organize raids on peasants and take them away. works, paying with glasses of vodka and promising in the distant future good price and cash.

Chapter 3

Roman merchant Paulo Seki and a Jewish merchant

According to the writer Gregory Setti, in 1587 the Roman merchant Paulo Mario Sechi, having learned once that the English admiral Sir Francis Drake had conquered San Domingo,
He hurried with this news to a Jew, also a merchant, who did not believe this victory. He said, "I'll bet a pound of flesh that it's true." And a deal was made between the merchants. a formal stipulation regarding a bet on a pound of flesh to be cut from a body loser.

A few days later, when the rumor of the British victory was confirmed, Seki seriously demanded that the condition be fulfilled. Then the Jew's courage sank into his heels, and he began to dodge in all directions, vainly begging Seki to be satisfied with the money,
He stubbornly demanded that the agreement be fulfilled. Then the Jew turned to the governor.
The latter reported this curious matter to Pope Sixtus, who rejected the demand.
Sek and sentenced both to hang. Then the Jew began to weep even more loudly.

and I would be glad to agree to at least five pounds by Jewish weight, but there is nothing else to be done it was, they barely managed to escape execution and both of them only after paying for charitable establishment of 2,000 scudi in favor of the hospital that was being built at that time.

In England, after the repeal of the Bill of 1753, a Jew bequeathed £1,200, the establishment of a Jewish school, but those who carried out his will encountered difficulties.
The British authorities found that permission to establish a Jewish educational institution represents an unlawful encouragement of superstition. Moreover, the authorities in their They went even further in their zeal. By virtue of some ancient parliamentary law, they
They took the bequeathed money and added it to the funds of the orphanage. This
The incident made an extremely difficult impression on the Jews and discouraged them for some time.
time to hunt for donations for the benefit of religious and charitable institutions
niy. But, despite the unsightly position of Jews in general, certain individuals achieved a prominent position in the financial sphere available to them and their wealth grew quickly. Trade and business were going on at a feverish pace, and Jews were in the eyes of grew rich.

Chapter 4

Restrictive legislation in Poland in 1538

The exploitation of Jews in Poland in the old days, as it seems, had already gone over the edge people's patience, and in order to avoid popular unrest, it was decided the constitution of the Petrokovsky Sejm of 1538, which aimed to organize the estates rights in Poland and to adapt the Jews to the circumstances of the new time, it forms quite a sharp turn in the course of Polish legislation on Jews, drawn up under the influence of the extreme demands of the noble party. Even at the Sejms of 1532 and 1534
For years, voices were heard demanding restrictions on Jewish trade and even their expulsion from the state; but then among the dignitaries there were found friends (bought) of the Jews, who-who firmly held their side. (Asa Topisapa 1. I, according to Chatsky “Ko7rga\ma” p. 45, ed. 1860)

The Jews apparently lost such influential defenders a few years later. years, when the General Sejm in Petrokov in January 1538 established a number of extremely restrictive and humiliating legal provisions that became the original points on the Jewish question for subsequent Sejms. The spirit of these measures it will be sufficiently clear to us from these two passages, which make up the 5th and 6th points special chapter " j1s", which is part of the Petrokov Sejm Constitution.

“Since the Jews, neglecting the ancient institution, cast aside the signs by which they can be distinguished from Christians, and they appropriated clothing that is completely similar Christian, so that they could not be recognized among Christians, we
We decree this to be observed forever: that the Jews of our kingdom, each and every one of them, no matter where they were, wore special signs, namely a beret or a hat, or other head covering made of yellow material colors. An exception is made for travelers: signs are allowed on traveled roads this kind of remove or hide.

If any of the Jews transgresses this law and does not wear headdress of yellow color, then upon reporting this to the local governor (rayonpo) or the sub-voivode, according to the custom of the given region and upon conviction of the culprit, the latter shall be sentenced to pay a penalty established for violators of this constitution, i.e. in the amount of one florin, with half of this penalty going to the benefit of governors, sub-governors or judges, and the other half - in favor of the instigator." (Uo[at. Geo. I, 525. Instigator - royal prosecutor).

The Sejm was already very hostile towards the Jews if it decided to introduce secular legislation church regulations on Jewish clothing with a distinctive yellow mark of shame on the head. This mark of shame was brought to Poland by the Councils of Budyonny in 1279 and Kalisz in 1420; but the sanction
He received secular power for the first time only at the Sejm of 1538. Due to the necessity of power tried to curb the defiant behavior of Jews by humane means, without violence, which they wanted to distinguish, so that everyone, seeing from afar, would be on guard when dealing with Jews. However, even these humane means did not deter the Jews. Thanks to cunning Jews achieved patronage from the royal power, the position of Polish Jews in At the beginning of the 15th century, it was significantly strengthened. With the rise of economic (business) prosperity and the emergence of kahals in Krakow, Lublin, Poznan and other cities
Yes, the prestige of the Jewish business began to rise.

In the resolutions of the Petrokovsky Sejm one can see the spirit of simply preserving the economic well-being of the country's indigenous population, to limit brazen Jewish volatile trade, so that the country's wealth does not slip away unnoticed way to foreign markets. The article "Oe 1Chae1z" is headed by the following point: “We decree for strict observance that Jews should not to be in charge of collecting any duties (as tax farmers). We believe also, that it is not worthy and contrary to the Divine right for this kind of people to be admitted to any honors or public office among Christians." (Ibid., pp. 524-525.)

Next comes a series of extremely restrictive laws that establish control over the loan operations of Jews ($ 2-3), freedom of trade for them was destroyed cities; the right to trade, and even then with restrictions, is given to them only with the consent of the cities and Trade in villages is completely prohibited ($8).

In the first chapter of the constitution of the Sejm of 1538 there is a categorical decision: “We establish Moreover, we also decree that from now on and in the future, all those in charge of us duties were certainly from noble people (s), possessing estates, secular (not spiritual) and Christians." This point is the fate of the Jews-tax farmers had already been decided, and the special paragraph we cited above about the prohibition of Jews from holding taxes on farms thus constitutes only particular conclusion from a general position.

Chapter 5

Repetition of this law by the Sejm

Twenty-four years later, the Sejm reiterated this resolution. In Petrokovsky's constitution The Diet of 1562 confirmed the previous trade restrictions on Jews and it is added that “a Jew has no right to hold any customs duties in farming duties, taxes or other mercenary articles, as taught by the above-mentioned statute." This statute is understood to be a constitution of trade restrictions for the Jews.

The law on tax farming is confirmed even more solemnly at the Sejm of 1565. Here a strict order is already given to “all the Crown’s voivodes, so that each one in his voivodship did not allow the Jews to pay any customs duties or other taxes and hired articles, according to the definitions of the previous statute and Petrovskaya constitution." For allowing Jews to rent taxes, the new Sejm law threatens a fine of one hundred hryvnias, and the “instigator,” the royal prosecutor, is charged with the responsibility to monitor this and collect from those responsible.

This is a threefold repetition of the law on tax farming at the Sejms of 1538-1565. accompanied at the end by the threat of a large fine for the authorities who allow it violation, proves that for almost thirty years the Jews could not reconcile with the onerous restriction imposed on them and some tried to circumvent it. And Indeed, it was not easy for a Jew, for whom even ordinary small trade was surrounded by a lot of formal difficulties, and in some places was completely prohibited, - It was not easy for him to part with the tax-farming industry that had given him significant material benefits, and even wealth. The Jewish tax farmer enjoyed often using his influence and connections at court not only for personal gain, but, most importantly, to protect their fellow believers.

The tax-farming industry of the Jews in the Polish Crown was reduced, but not destroyed. The dealers continued to circumvent the Sejm ban under various guises. participated in the farming of duties and taxes. This, of course, brought down upon them the oppression of the gentry and often gave rise to complaints. The authorities responsible for enforcing the law on tax farms, also could not be satisfied with the behavior of illegal tax farmers. There were also clashes and criminal prosecutions - Jews were threatened with new reprisals.

Chapter 6

The settlement of Kyiv by Jews

The “mother of Russian cities” had the difficult fate of becoming a major city. Jewish center of the Southwestern Territory. According to official statistics, the number of Jewish population of Kyiv reaches about 25 thousand souls out of the total number the city's population is 250 thousand souls. But this figure is far from the actual one; thus, the suburban village of Demievka, directly adjacent to the city limits, overcrowded with Jews; a similar Jewish settlement - Nikolskaya Slobodka - spread out on the left bank of the Dnieper, within the Chernigov province. All the Jewish population of both these settlements sets out on steamships from early morning and on the city railway, where various kinds of deals are made. Many Jews who work as clerks in stores or are engaged in various types of work head and non-head offices, factors, various types of agents, not excluding sukhters and swindlers - all of this finds a hospitable home in Demievka or in Nikolskaya Slobodka. The total number can be determined with sufficient certainty Jews working in Kyiv are no less than 50 thousand. In this regard, the “mother of the city-"Russian clans" has surpassed Berdichev, where in recent years the number of Jews significantly decreased. The influx of Jews into Kyiv became especially noticeable since the law of May 3, 1882, prohibiting the settlement of Jews outside the boundaries of cities and towns.

At present the best houses and more valuable estates have been bought up by the Jews.
owns hundreds of huge stone houses in the best parts of the city.
The aristocratic part of the city of Lipki, where lives, did not escape “Jewification” most of the representatives of the regional and provincial administration. Lipki is located estates of the Jewish Croesus Brodskys and all their numerous relatives. In the near in the future Lipki will turn into an exclusively Jewish part of the city - however, aristocratic. Kyiv is a kind of city for most Jews in the Southwestern region.
that is the promised land, where they strive, despite all the restrictions government measures that are very skillfully circumvented. In Kyiv, Jewish businessmen find a wide arena for their activities and process there are many dark deeds of a specifically Jewish nature. Thanks to the influence of Jewish capitalists, the Jewish masses live well in Kyiv. Most banks, joint-stock companies, larger industrial establishments in Jewish hands.
Such purely urban enterprises as water supply, gas lighting, city the railway, electric lighting, sewerage - in the hands of the Jews. In the government These societies are led by Jewish bigwigs who have taken control directors and managers, paid with large sums of money. The same Jews enjoy fat dividends from the shares of these companies. There are also a number of inflated enterprises, the founders of which earn large sums of money when organizing them brokerages and then safely leave the enterprises to their fate. The absence
The presence of Jews in the City Duma as members of the Duma does not interfere with the nosy sons of Israel to do things that are clearly against the law.

Joint-Stock Company of Serginsko-Ufalei Plants, founded by bankers Ginzburg, Meyer and other persons own a group of metallurgical companies in the Urals factories with an annual capacity of 2 million poods of cast iron and 1,600 million poods iron. And how it is owned is evident from the following. The factory population of the Ural factories
It was created, as we know, entirely artificially. People were resettled here in the last century.
serfs in order to provide industry with labor. Upon liberation the population did not turn into farmers due to serfdom, since they received too insignificant land plots. Remaining at the factories, the population retained complete dependence on them in the moral and material sense, and therefore if somewhere whether he lives well or badly, then the reason must be sought in the attitude towards the population on the part of the plant owner. The Serginsk-Ufaley plants stand out from the crowd Ural factories are indifferent to their workers. This is best proven by the following the figures provided characterize the activities of Jewish owners in the case improving the living conditions of factory residents. We provide a comparison of expenditures on this item at two neighboring factory enterprises: the Serginsko-Ufalei Jews of Ginzburg, Meyer and others, and Sysertsky Messrs. Sodomirsky and Turchaninov:

Serg.-Ufa Syserts
Spend per year:

“RUR 11,000 for medicine. 16,000 rub.
Fire brigade 600 3000

Schools and scholarships 0 4000

« libraries 179 1900

" Shelters and almshouses 0 4700

" pensions and benefits 1780 22 000

To this eloquent sign we must also add that the productivity The Sysert plants are inferior in terms of productivity to the Serginsk-Ufaley plants.

In Kyiv, Jewry penetrated not only into all industrial enterprises, but even into the highest strata of local society, occupying honorable positions as guardians, zealots, etc. Joint-stock companies, which have been emerging frequently in recent times, Jewish enterprises, where a few Russians are present only for decorative purposes. Of the Kyiv merchants of the 1st guild, 90% are Jews, who, paying into the warehouse Jewish-guild capital certificates are acquired in this way after paid five years of the right to acquire real estate in Kyiv and at the same time give the right of residence to his countless pseudo-clerks and merchant sons and daughters. Kyiv City - Lipki - is in the hands of Jews who acquired there more than 16 estates. A synagogue was erected on Rognedinskaya Street, the opening of which was accompanied by a special symbolic celebration. Kiev Jewry was infected house-building fever; Jews build a lot of houses, and, of course, where the construction would provide great benefits. Jews especially like Khreshchatyk, because there are houses there give a huge percentage.

Chapter 7

Jewish trade in Poltava province

In recent years, many farmers have been processing makhorka for sale. in large quantities, and the buyers are no longer neighbors, but manufacturers and warehousemen. The purchase of peasant tobacco is carried out as follows. In early September they come to large villages where the peasants plant a significant amount of makhorka, The clerks of the manufacturers and warehouse workers rent huts and sheds and the buying begins. The peasants of all the surrounding farms and villages harness their oxen and carry their tobacco, their expression, "to the end." The merchant, or rather the clerk, is in most cases red-haired the winner of girls' hearts or the lean, hawk-nosed Jew standing at the gate the courtyard he hired and studies, like a subtle psychologist, the faces of those approaching peasants. So, let's say, Gritsko comes along and shouts: "So, are you bathing your little one?" "We're buying." - "Well, come on!" The cart stops, Gritsko gets off the cart, red-haired the clerk, with his hands in his pockets, walks around the cart, looks at the tobacco, takes it out He takes a cigarette case from his pocket, lights a cigarette and declares categorically: “This tobacco is rubbish.” Gritsko is not at all embarrassed by this conclusion, since he was expecting it, and humbly asks: “What will you give me?” The red-haired heartthrob looks at the tobacco again and, having sorted approximately 5 pounds out of 25, he declares that this one (20 pounds) is still it's good enough, but he doesn't need the rest, and what a pood he can give 60 kopecks, sometimes 80, and in 1898 - 40 kopecks. Gritsko, not without reason, scratches the back of his head and after After a short dispute, he agrees to the proposed price, clearly realizing his the inability to achieve even a somewhat reasonable price. The weighing begins tobacco.

Whether the scales are true or not, it doesn't make Grits's life any easier. The clerks have been they established a new pood, which is not 40 pounds, but 43, and the goods are also subject to a hike in scales, often equal to 2 pounds per pood. Gritsko, being present at all this, has only the right to scratch his head, pick his nose and nothing more, risking in case objections to being chased out of the yard with their tobacco. Having received the minimum price for the 20 poods of tobacco taken away, Gritsko realizes that he won’t have enough for collector, to buy salt and tar, etc.; then the humiliating requests begin buy the remaining 5 poods at any price. Red Mercury descends and accepts these 5 poods at half or 4 times less. When it gets to the village

If there are several buyers at once, then due to competition the following maneuver is applied:
the most enterprising shop assistants find out which of the local women are especially is distinguished by talkativeness, and they or their husbands buy tobacco from them - for advertising - at a good price, significantly above average. Happy women are screaming all over the village, that such and such a merchant pays a lot, he bought from me for this price!.. And to this The merchant is being supplied with tobacco from all sides, for which he is already offering double or triple the price
the price is lower, and the peasants, in order not to carry it back, give it away for next to nothing, with interest thus returning to the merchant the money overpaid to the gossips. The landowner-the planter feels far from calm in front of the bank's publications, despite the fact that he has unsold tobacco in his sheds, sometimes for two or three years, processing which cost him 20-25 thousand. The manufacturers' trusted people come to buy only when the sale of the estate at auction hangs over him like the sword of Damocles.
It is less profitable for a merchant to buy tobacco from a landowner than from a peasant, because that for the landowner a pood was introduced not at 43 pounds, but only at 41 pounds, because of the campaigns on
You can't take the goods, because, finally, you can't reject some of the tobacco either, and in general
You need to behave more restrained.

I won’t presume to point out the means of helping tobacco growing, but some help is needed - both for the landowner and for the peasants.

Chapter 8

The conquest of St. Petersburg by the Jews

The Observer describes interesting details about the conquest of St. Petersburg.
Jews. Gresser's "Jewish question" was the discovery of a whole mass of Jews, illegally settled in St. Petersburg and lived here for years not only without established permission, but often even without the knowledge of the police. It turned out that in In St. Petersburg there are entire “boarding houses” where dozens of Jews lived secretly, and where every Jew arriving in the capital found a comfortable and peaceful shelter. They say that P. A. Gresser himself was amazed by the mass of Jews that found themselves in Petersburg, and that organized system, thanks to which they managed to months and even years to remain "unnoticed"...

All such Jews were, of course, expelled from St. Petersburg. So as not to provoke "Gvalta", P. A. Gresser expels the Jews not all at once, but gradually, but at the same time systematically and relentlessly. Of course, only those Jews were expelled who They settled in the capital illegally and had no right to live there. All other Jews remained; the official figure of the Jewish population not only did not suffer in in the sense of decreasing, but - alas! - continued to grow systematically. In reality the number of Jews in the capital has decreased somewhat, although this reduction is not could be outwardly noticeable, because those Jews who were already hiding were removed, trying to be invisible and unnoticed.

This, however, did not rid the capital of obvious - "big" and "small" - Jews; not stopped the "peaceful conquest" of St. Petersburg by the kahal, the economic enslavement and moral corruption of the capital. Almost twenty thousand Jews remained in the capital and, without hiding from anyone, without being embarrassed by anyone, they clearly cheated their businesses, openly engaging in their inherent "crafts." The capital's trade noticeably passed into Jewish hands and, as an inevitable consequence of this, sharply changed its character in the sense that from correct trade based on competition, turned into trade, entirely based on deception. The Jews they also rubbed into the industrial area, while the commercial activity of the capital was already was half in Jewish hands; dozens of new banks emerged and hundreds banking offices - all were Jewish. Hundreds of "loan houses" opened throughout the capital. cash registers”, whose owners - all Jews - were engaged in the exploitation of poverty and the needs of the Christian capital population and from this exploitation, by purely exorbitant interest rates (there was no law on usury at that time, and the Jews They freely robbed the “goyim,” charging 6 and 8% per month on loans, i.e. 72 and 96% per year!) quickly, in front of everyone’s eyes, they grew fat and rich, becoming “masters”, acquiring with their own palaces and looking down on the despised workers-"goyim" - this, according to the teachings of the Talmud, material for the enrichment of the "chosen" tribe, as a natural aristocracy of the human race...

Alongside economic enslavement, moral corruption was openly taking place.
the capital, which the Jews literally drowned in debauchery for the sake of profit. Not only it the outskirts, but even such central parts as Basseynaya Street, Znamenskaya, Preobrazhenskaya, Ofitserskaya, Meshchanskaya, etc. have turned into complete brothels debauchery. Dozens and hundreds of brothels sprang up everywhere, all with rare exceptions.
exceptions, contained by Jews.

Having entangled the capital in its web, having organized it according to all the rules of the Talmudic ethics of their anti-social activity, the Jews were no longer limited to it: they and demonstrated activities directly anti-state. The participation of Jews is also known in that sedition which ended with the regicide on March 1, 1881. Among the persons touched by this most shameful crime in Russian history, it turned out Jewish woman Gesya Gelfman.

No matter how zealous the administration was, no matter what supervision it established over the Jews,
No matter how many “small” Jews it expelled, but - strange thing! - the number of Jews in the capital not only did not decrease, but, on the contrary, systematically increased... All efforts to stop the Jewish obsession remained futile. Not to mention the secret Jews who continued to live in the capital and practice their “crafts” there, but obvious Jews continued to fill the capital, literally becoming an eyesore for the capital's to the average person and becoming a nuisance to everyone. Jewish books in the precincts were filled lists of newly arrived "guests" - they kept arriving and arriving.

Jews who did not have the right to reside in the capital and were therefore expelled from here, came to St. Petersburg already as those who supposedly had the right to reside here, and were already clearly and openly present. A Jewish artisan who was not engaged in his craft, but engaged in business dealings and therefore expelled from the capital, appears again - and The administration is already having trouble sending him out again. Why is that? He's the same one.
A Jew? "Fedot, but not that one!" He used to be a "glassmaker" who couldn't take glass in his hands and made a living as a money lender; now he is not a glazier, but an apprentice

Vazhinsky's dental school, another is an auditor at the university, the third is a conservatory student, the fourth is a "foreign Jew", the fifth is an attorney Berdichevsky first guild merchant, sixth - student in pedagogical courses Froebel Society, the seventh is a home teacher, etc., etc., etc.

Such “dental” students, who do not study the art of dentistry, but only those who paid Mr. Vazhinsky for his studies and are therefore considered his "students"; such auditors, who only pretend to study at the university, students of the conservatory, only listed as such, "foreign" Jews, yesterday former Shklov townspeople, representatives of the Berdichev merchants who arrived from Balty or Rivne, students of the Froebel pedagogical courses who did not attend then their office, home teachers, illiterate people, etc., etc. - hundreds and thousands ended up in St. Petersburg - the administration was stumped: what What does this dream mean? Where did such a huge amount of information come from, and how should we deal with it? On the one hand, the law allows Jewish students and lecturers at higher education institutions to reside in the capital educational institutions, as well as permitting the temporary arrival of merchants' representatives first guild and foreign Jews. On the other hand, the same law, listing in detail all higher education institutions whose students are allowed residence in the capital, does not mention either dental courses or vol-students of the university, nor about the Froebel courses, nor about the fact that the attorneys merchants and foreign Jews can live and trade in the capital. Apparently, Jews are clever they bypassed the administration, found a loophole in the law, and settled en masse in the capital, plying their trades.

However, this situation did not last long: regarding these Jewish The St. Petersburg mayor entered into submissions to the highest government authorities with the tricks institutions, which provided the necessary explanations.

Regarding “home teachers,” there was an explanation that the law does not instructions were made so that Jewish home teachers could live outside the localities permanent "Jewish settlement", and they cannot exercise this right, moreover, that persons of non-Christian confession who have acquired the title of domestic mentors or teachers, cannot, by virtue of the provisions of 1834, use any benefits associated with this title. Likewise, clarification from the Ministry of Internal Affairs, the law allowing Jewish students to live in the capital (Article 967 [of the X t. of the law on the state]) applies only to Jews who are accepted into the number of students in higher education institutions, and does not apply to those of their fellow tribesmen who only have permission from the authorities of these institutions to listening to lectures in them, since, according to the general charter of the imperial Russian universities ($90 1863), admitted only to listening to lectures are considered persons outside these educational institutions, and therefore in relation to the law residences must comply with the general rules in force on this subject, i.e. e., they cannot live in the capital. The same was done regarding the students of the conservatory.

clarification that since the charter of the Imperial Russian Conservatory
there are no exceptions for admission to this music society
If a Jewish music school is not established, then the latter must obey the general rules apply, i.e. the right of residence in the capital is not used unless have it by law. In exactly the same way, according to the subsequent explanation, “since in The charter of the Froebel Society makes no exceptions for applicants
If the pedagogical courses of the Jewish society are not done, then the latter must obey
"under the general rules", i.e. they do not have the right of residence in the capital. The same
An explanation also followed regarding the dental school in the city of Vazhinsky.
The latter, however, remained dissatisfied and, wanting the school to continue his to be engaged in the management of a refuge for Jews for a decent salary, those who want to make money in the capital, but do not have the right to live there, applied to the Ministry of Internal Affairs for permission for Jews, studying with him, to live in the capital. The petition was rejected; but The enterprising Mr. Vazhinsky was not satisfied with this either and filed a complaint with the Senate, which recognized the ministry's actions as legal.

Regarding foreign Jews, it was clarified that only those of them can live and trade in the capital, who have merchant evidence of the first guild. As for the Jewish attorneys of the merchants of the first guilds that do not live in the capital, then only those of them have the right of temporary staying in St. Petersburg, who have a certificate that they are members clerks of these merchants and have powers of attorney from them; in the absence of such police must "make notes on their passports about immediate leaving the capital and supervise the implementation of this.”

Furthermore, since a large number of Jews lived in St. Petersburg under the name of “Courlanders,” which, as the Jews proved, could live throughout the empire, because

The Courland province is located outside the Pale of Settlement, - followed by an explanation that “The Courland province is included, by law, among the localities designated for permanent residence of Jews”, and therefore the police should not allow residence "Courland" Jews in the capital.

All these explanations, having paralyzed Jewish tricks, untied the hands administration, giving it the opportunity to prevent the aggravation of the evil that it is designed to reduce and exterminate. Entire numerous categories of Jews, in-those who were kept in the capital by means of the above-mentioned deceptions and detours, were provided were to be removed from the capital. But if the explanations of the laws paralyzed the Jewish tricks, giving the administration the opportunity to remove many parasites, then, in turn, queue, and the Jews this time came up with a way to paralyze the effect of these explanations and all the beneficial efforts of the honest administration. They themselves left St. Petersburg. ha... but where? In the surrounding area: in Tsarskoye Selo, in Lesnoy, in Shuvalovo, etc.; their families remained in the capital, where they themselves still lived. Moving away thus, just for show, they actually continued to make deals in capital.

Having learned of this, the mayor Gresser ordered the bailiffs to “ensure that families of Jews who do not have the right to reside in the capital and are encouraged to departure, did not stay here." But is it an easy task to keep track of? Those families who managed to track down, were removed from the capital. Where did they move to? Yes, there, to with their "tate" - in Tsarskoe Selo, in Lesnoy, in Shuvalovo, etc., i.e. they changed places-residence - they fulfilled the demands of the authorities, but the capital did not abandon its interests
They didn't break the law. In short, "the wolves are fed and the sheep are safe!"

The following comic is broadcast about this new Jewish prank:
dialogue between the then St. Petersburg mayor and the Tsarskoye Selo police chief:

- Tell me, are you very upset with me? - For what?

- But your town has never known what the “Jewish question” was, and now Thanks to me, it became overflowing with Jews...

- What are you saying, what are you saying! We never even set eyes on your Jews: they only come to us sometimes.

They come for the night, but they still live with you, in St. Petersburg.

Indeed, Jews continued to live in the capital, although they were no longer its residents. were considered, because their place of residence was the outskirts of St. Petersburg, and not the very Petersburg! How brazenly the sons of Israel acted in this regard can be judged because not only those of them who do not have a certain type of occupation (i.e. "craftsmen" of all trades), continued their dealings in the capital, without being listed as its residents, but a lot of Jews, completely deprived of the right to live and 4 j capital, they maintained trading establishments in it, i.e. they were openly located in St. Petersburg and carried out their deals.

These tricks are not only annoying, but also have the character of a direct mockery of the authorities and their legal demands, naturally, cause on the part of the latter increased activity and the desire to insist on one's own way - to comply with the law, paralyzing all tricks and ruses.

First of all, it was indicated how to deal with those Jews who were removed from capital, but then reappear in it. Pointing out to the police that "the Jews “artisans, excluded from the guild and removed from the capital, are coming here again.” The mayor orders the bailiffs: “1) in the event of the arrival of Jews in the capital, those previously excluded from the workshop and removed from here, immediately initiate proceedings against them criminal prosecution (under Article 63 of the Code of Punishment, Tax, Peace) and 2) apply this measure and in other cases of the appearance of Jews in the capital after their removal from here.” Then, in types of providing the opportunity for stricter supervision to ensure that Jews, those removed from St. Petersburg and reappearing here did not escape persecution by court order, it was ordered: 1) to deliver monthly to all areas from the mayor's office lists of Jews excluded from workshops and removed from capital and 2) in all areas to start alphabetical books in which to enter all Jews removed from the capital, and then, when registering the passports of new arrivals in the capital of the Jews, it is necessary to inquire about them in these alphabetical books, and in case if they are found there, immediately initiate criminal proceedings against them.

Chapter 9

Jewish Commerce in St. Petersburg

In St. Petersburg, its own “ghetto” has already formed, i.e. a Jewish quarter, containing Sadovaya Street, Voznesensky and Yekateringofsky Avenues, Podyacheskaya Street, and recently - let's face it - Nevsky Prospect. Here the main mass of St. Petersburg Jews huddles and the center of their trade is located - Novo-Aleksandrovsky Market. Being here, in this Jewish quarter, you feel yourself not in St. Petersburg at all, but somewhere in Vilnius or Minsk - so numerous there is a Jewish element here and everything here is concentrated in his hands. New-
The Aleksandrovsky Market (corner of Sadovaya and Voznesensky) is teeming with Jews, and what other Jews - the most hardened, the most typical, what before could only be seen in Shklov and Berdichev. Just like in
In the Berdichev markets, you will see Jewish women sitting on pots with hot coals; you will hear the characteristic Jewish din and feel the real Jewish a spirit that immediately hits an unaccustomed person on the nose and drives him out. This a specific spirit is also quite noticeably felt in Gostiny Dvor, where not long ago all the trade was Russian, but now more than a third of all stores, especially in Nevsky Line, Jewish. When P. A. Gresser ordered that the Jews, those who own shops and other commercial establishments must indicate this on their signs their names and surnames, - it turned out that almost half of the local stores Jewish, that all these “Russian”, “Parisian”, etc. stores are in reality Berdichev. Not only Sadovaya, Voznesenskaya and other streets, but even Nevsky the avenue was dotted with Itskas, Shmuls, Sruls, etc. These Itskas, Shmuls, and It wasn’t just the Datels, Sagalovs, etc. who turned out to be in charge, but also the Rybakovs, etc. It’s just
It was painful to watch this colossal invasion of Jews into St. Petersburg trade, to this Judaization of the Russian capital! But the Jews are a good people, they don't want to cause us this pain and in recent times, taking advantage of the Senate's abolition Gresser's orders, carefully paint over their euphonious signs names… The Kahal has triumphed this time. For how long?

There are especially many Jewish tailors. Walk along Nevsky Prospect; here on both small and large ready-to-wear shops are constantly stretching along the sides - all Jewish. And these Jews are amazing benefactors! They directly benefit the capital
They sell dresses to the population for almost nothing: for 15 rubles you will get a whole a suit, and for 16 rubles a coat, for 25 rubles they give you a winter fur coat with collar, for 40-50 rubles a beaver coat. In the past, for such a price Only stolen goods were sold. Jewish tailors managed to penetrate everything state and private institutions and educational institutions where they are suppliers dresses for students and for employees, for the latter with payment in installments, through treasurers, by monthly deductions from salaries. But these operations do not they limit themselves: where there are Jews, there is no business without gesheft, and one of the local newspaper recently exposed the following scam by Jewish tailors: “They supply employees those institutions in which they are suppliers, at any time with ready-made clothes for pawnshops, take their signatures on accounts and then buy from them themselves Collateral receipts for mere trifles. This operation gives them ruble after ruble and more. This is how things are with tailors! Jewish tailors have a special interest in the student youth. As soon as autumn approaches and thousands flock to St. Petersburg newly minted students, who all need to get their uniforms here, and here they are besieged by nimble Jews who even come to their homes with annoying offering their services in terms of uniforms "at an economic price" "in four episodes of material" etc. Young people, especially newcomers, who don't know Petersburg, they are cleverly caught in these "economic layouts" and pay dearly for them: cheap ends up being expensive and... of course, it turns out rotten. On such no competition is possible on this soil, and the Jews very easily and quickly became fat masters of the situation: now 99% of St. Petersburg tailors, both with and without stores shops are run by Jews. Of course, they don't work there themselves: Christians work for them, and Jews trade and profit. This is what Jewish well-being consists of; to this-then exploitation and Christian labor, to raking in the heat with Christian hands and The goal of all Jewish aspirations is reduced to this. However, the heat is raked in in other ways as well: so, recently, with the excessive location of ready-made dress shops and with the emergence of competition, systematic fires of these stores suddenly began, pre-insured against fire... Fires always occur somehow in a strange way: in the evening, inside the shops, shortly after they closed... Thus Thus, in a short period of time, the shops of Datel and Kogan burned down - on Nevsky, Kraut and Benjaminson - on Zagorodny Prospect, etc. And nothing, - everything It turns out well - the trade of the burned-out stores not only does not suffer from this, but is further expanded by the received insurance premium.

The main evil is that the Jews demoralize the Orthodox Russian working people, they quickly corrupt to such a degree that after two years of service a Jew becomes completely A lost cause. They have a particularly bad influence on young workers.

Jewish tailors are followed by Jewish goldsmiths; on all the streets shops opened with huge displays of watches, gold and silver items amazingly low prices; watches from one and a half rubles, bracelets from one ruble, etc. Cooks and janitors acquire these toy things, the very next day turning into scrap; the Jews, of course, are getting rich, and the Christians are goldsmiths from the owners are turning into Jewish farm laborers: they are closing their shops and going to Jews - to work for them.

Of the 160 private printing houses in the capital, about half are already in Jewish hands. The law, as is well known, strictly forbids Jews from opening non-Jewish printing houses; the statute on censorship and printing (Article 165, note 1) states: “Jewish Reyam are allowed to open printing houses freely for printing in them exclusively Jewish books." Meanwhile, almost all Jewish printing houses Petersburg prints exclusively non-Jewish books: from 40 Jewish printing houses
Only in two or three are Jewish books printed, in all the rest there are not even Jewish fonts!..»

In the article “Are there any signs of a change in Jewish morals?” Zarya speaks:

“If the past 53 centuries from the birth of Abraham, the forefather of modern Jews, the nature of which we are now well acquainted with thanks to information obtained Assyriology, did not change their character for the better one iota, then where and in what not only any guarantee, but even a faint hope for the possibility of any change in in their environment now, when peoples with much better inclinations than they are - strongly "are they morally wavering?.."

Not finding the slightest sign to prove that the Jews, too, were on the way progress, changed as much as it requires, the author continues:

“I am no longer saying anything about the Jews, that is, about the time when the kingdom fell Israeli, in 722 BC, when Samaria was destroyed, their capital, by the Assyrian king Sargon, and all of them were taken into captivity, resettled throughout throughout the vast Assyrian empire, where their trace was completely lost, except several of the best families who migrated to the south of Spain and settled there.
Then, after 133 years, the Kingdom of Judea also fell with the destruction of its capital Jerusalem.
by the Babylonian king Nebuchadnezzar II, and all the inhabitants were also taken into captivity, so “The same as the Israelites, they were scattered throughout Babylonia.”

Chapter 10

Second influx of Jews into Moscow

A sharp difference in opinion between crown lawyers and practitioners on commercial courts and commercial litigation prompted me to talk about this issue with the managing director of one of the large Moscow partnerships, Mr. E.B., a man with a well-rounded education and independent glances.

While waiting for Mr. E.B., whom I did not find in the office, I took the first one from the table I picked up a book and started leafing through it automatically. The book turned out to be a list.
Moscow merchants. It would seem that there is little of interest. However, after looking through several pages, I became so interested... what do you think? - abundance Jewish surnames and marks against them - "Jew", which out of curiosity became counting the number of Jews and Christians page by page... Imagine my surprise, when on entire rows of pages out of ten merchants there were seven or eight people Jews.

I involuntarily turned the book over several times and looked at the cover heading, to make sure that I have in my hands a list of merchants of the city of Moscow,
Is this a list of specifically Jewish firms or some specific industry?
trade, like a commission shop, where, indeed, Jews predominate everywhere. But Every time I carefully read the cover and the title page, I had to to be convinced that in front of me is the book of all Moscow merchants for 1900. Really

I thought that at the turn of the 20th century, Moscow merchants became Jewish. society!.. What will happen next?..

“What are you so engrossed in?” Mr. E. asked me as he entered the reception room.
B. - Let's go to the office.

- I'm completely baffled: Moscow turns out to be Berdichev. You have Jews here more than all Christians combined.

- So what? Is that bad? We, too, are following the path of civilization...
What is modern civilization if not the worship of the golden calf?
Moscow is promoting the cultivation of Jews as gold-bearers. Oh, you! St. Petersburg resident, and you are still surprised!.. A civilized person should love everything Jewish, should enjoy even the smell of garlic, and you were stunned that we have so much Jews among the first guild merchants... Do you know how many there are? No more, no less 72%... You all think that Kity Kitychi still lives in Moscow. Not so.

It was: we now have Shmuli Shmuleviches. We have even overtaken Petersburg. You have Jews
They penetrated only into some departments, into literature and into theaters, but with us everything
The first guild merchants were transformed into Jewish traders... No more merchants!

- In Moscow, seventy-two percent of merchants are Jews? You're kidding me... Is that really so?
Is it possible? Tell me, seriously, what's the matter here? Moscow doesn't have a view Jewish city.

- What's the matter? - E.B. repeated half-jokingly, half-seriously. - The thing is that the rules
They have been reconsidering the Jews, it seems, ever since I have been alive, and they just can’t reconsider, and the Jews have already become experienced and have skillfully adapted to existing rules. See what tangible results... It's worth it for anyone a Jew must register for ten years as a merchant of the first guild, at least in his Berdichev, and then sign up with any merchant you like. That's what they do. As soon as will receive the right to be registered outside the Jewish Pale of Settlement, and so they are now being registered Moscow merchants... Many of those merchants whose names you found here, They trade in Riga, Kyiv, Odessa and generally in all parts of Russia, but most of all in Warsaw district, but are listed as Moscow merchants. Some do not They trade and only engage in business deals. But for a certain amount they receive the right ubiquitous residence. When there are any elections coming up, they all come together to Moscow or send powers of attorney to their own Jewish women... They are suppressing power - passion!
In the last elections for stock exchange notaries, the largest number of votes was received by Jew!..

- Well, what about it? In Moscow...

- Calm down: this time a Russian candidate has been approved. But what will happen?
God knows what will happen in the next elections. People with all sorts of ideas are getting used to it. They can even take down a Jew.
approve... Now our merchants only dream of becoming merchant elders to conduct a Jew...

- Excuse me, it seems you are afraid of ghosts. After all, the law of 1899 does not allow Moscow Jews cannot participate in election meetings. Jews cannot be are elected and do not pay class dues. As far as I remember, even the inclusion of Jews in merchants of the first guild are limited by the consent of the Minister of Finance and the General-governor.

- That's true. But the restriction on participation in elections does not apply to those Jews who had already been registered in Moscow. A further increase in merchants Jews are somewhat limited. If it weren't for this law, then in ten years in Moscow there would be if there were 100 percent Jewish merchants, we would all have to get out of Moscow... For now-then we are guaranteed that the Jewish invasion will not go so fast; but to choose and be Jews who registered before 1899 can be elected without hindrance. The only question is in the statement. And if attention wanes even a little, they will achieve their goal... But we have huge merchant capital. They collected it from the Russian people, but they had to manage it The Jews want them. They know where the gold is... But they don't even want it so much to get to gold, - they have no shortage of capital, - how much they achieve, for a Jew to be a representative of the Moscow merchant class... Think about the noses they will raise. Some celebration in Moscow, and suddenly at an official reception in among the class representatives, the merchant elder Itska Itskovich... That's what they need I want to. They see it both in reality and in their dreams. And what good will come to them? civilization, and we will wait for this...

- Perhaps you're right. There's really nothing surprising about it. The Jews took it into their own hands. stage, art, and most importantly, the press, and persistently instill in us their cosmopolitan views. The worship of Jewish idols is elevated to a cult... For us, Judaism has become a symbol of freedom and equality. We listen with pricked ears, and They do their job... Of course, they will get into the merchant elders and the stock exchange notaries, and mayors, and then... and leaders of the nobility. Well, yes. God bless them. I came to see you about something else. I wanted to know your opinion. regarding the abolition of commercial courts, and to talk about trade insolvency.

Letters from Vienna Jew

Schiller has a wonderful poem, "Division of the Land," in which, in a highly
The myth of how God determined each person's destiny is presented in poetic form.
He ordered one to be a plowman, another a craftsman, a third a merchant, and so on.
The last person to appear before God was the man who was destined to be a poet.
the poem ends. Besides this text, there is another version, which,
It seems that no one knows why this poem ends completely differently, but Schiller, due to reasons beyond his control, was forced discard this end.

This is how the poem actually ended. Another poet appeared after the poet.
a man with a humiliatingly impudent appearance and also demanded his share. He looked at him
God was amazed by his appearance, and when he looked into his soul, he was even more amazed: nothing
He had never seen anything like it before and was stumped. And there was reason to think, because this Man was in complete contrast to the previous ones. God thought for a long time and,
Finally, he spat and said: "Be a Jew."

Everyone will, of course, guess that I came up with this ending myself, but, really, “Section
"The Land" would have gained a lot if it had actually ended the way Schiller said if only the most burning truth. Even if you skim through history Jews, especially in recent centuries, you can’t help but be amazed at how much dirt and manure in this people. Even such a defender of the Jews as Leroy-Beaulieu could not hold back to huddle in one place of his article “Jews and Anti-Semitism” so as not to drop a few unflattering words addressed to the Jews.

Only occasionally did bright spots flicker in their history, but the Jews themselves disavowed these points. One only has to remember Spinoza. If it were possible, The Jews, it seems, would have roasted him alive. But these bright spots flickered in the old days, and now, apparently, they have completely died down. Goloukhovsky himself, the local minister foreign affairs, despaired of their appearance when he allowed himself to officially express the shortcomings of the Austrian export trade, which is based on the very on the broad basis of deceiving the gullible buyer, which was the case for Austria-Hungary is the Balkan Peninsula.

It seems that there have never been examples in history where a person occupying such a position
a high-ranking official like Goloukhovsky decided to officially state what he said Goloukhovsky at the meeting of the Austro-Hungarian delegations; of course, he did not name the names of the perpetrators of these atrocities, but this is not really necessary, since everyone knows that trade with the Balkan Peninsula is now only in one Jewish hands. Austro-Hungarian Christian merchants are no longer there.

It smells. And to keep it quiet, the Jews placed their consuls there, Jews in most cases.

One can only regret that Goloukhovsky could not tell the whole truth, so how Austria-Hungary was bound hand and foot by Jewish capital, but also for that Thanks to him for lifting the curtain at least halfway. After all, he still gave a push, who prompted others to look deeper into the root of evil, and then there will be those who they will try to pull it out by the roots.

This matter had hardly died down when a new one emerged to take its place.
a completely different opera. The other day, the local Jewish newspapers were reporting the story with the cornflowers, and of course, with a certain purpose, they kept silent about who, actually, the instigators of this story. Not content with the enslavement of Austria-Hungary in economically, the Jews wanted to enslave her this time and political arena, i.e. simply to cause unrest among Hungarian subjects, to finally take them into their own hands. It was on this basis that, in fact, arose, the story with cornflowers.

Things in Hungary seemed to be improving lately, but that would be
It's not at all to the Jews' advantage. So they came up with a way to stir things up again.
Hungarians. This role was taken on by one Pest Jewish newspaper and it was accused the People's Party in that it allegedly wants to organize an anti-Dnastic demonstration and hired for this purpose the famous Cardbordo, a master of similar affairs. Cardbordo was promised two thousand crowns for his work; he and the demonstrators had to pass by the royal palace in Pest shouting: “Long live Hohenzollern!" and then smash the windows in a building located near the palace.
ministries and finally distribute five hundred cornflowers among the demonstrators;
How much truth there is in all this is a dark matter. Perhaps there isn't a penny of it here... And it, in fact, it would hardly have led to any complications if The Jewish newspaper did not add to the report that Cardbordo received this order from one important political figure who is a pillar of the conservative party. This increase was enough to get the whole thing going. Now, not only in Hungary, but even partly in Austria, they are busy trying to untangle all the threads of this stories.

But this, it seems to me, is completely wasted effort. It is most likely a trap, in which the Jews want to lure the gullible in order to set them at odds, as I have already said before he said. On the one hand, but on the other, this thing was apparently invented, to divert public attention from those deals in which the heroes were Jews in recent times, and which, i.e., business deals, forced "Magoipi Moutu" to come out with a whole series of articles under the title "Unhappy Hungary" - against Jewish machinations.

These articles examine in detail the evil that is being caused to Hungary Jewish domination, supported by the Magyars, in all areas of spiritual and economic life. The newspaper then accuses Jews of sowing discord between the Magyars and other peoples of Hungary in order to isolate the Magyars and subjugate their final power, which they undoubtedly succeed in doing, since the Magyar The vengeance is gradually passing into the hands of the Jews. Now many Hungarian nobles, who were once large landowners, are nothing more or less than landless proletarians and strive for a piece of bread from their centuries-old places to move to the civil service. From here it will become clear what Resentment against Jews prevails among Hungarian officials. This resentment is for now it feeds in silence, but it seems that the time is not far off when it will emerge and outward.

Chapter 11

Personal Supreme Decree to the Governing Senate

“Recognizing it as fair to introduce, pending a general review of the legislation, about Jews, some changes to the current regulations on their rights of residence in in various parts of the Empire, We have ordered the following rules to be established:

1. The effect of note 1 to Article 779 of the Law (Holy Law, Vol. IX, 1889 edition) on the prohibition Jews in the provinces of their permanent settlement will henceforth again settle outside the cities and the town does not apply:

a) Jews who have completed a course in higher educational institutions of the Empire, their wives and children, sons until they reach adulthood or until they complete their studies at higher education institutions institutions (but not more than 25 years of age), and daughters until marriage;

b) on Jews, merchants of the 1st guild and members of their families included in their class merchant certificate, as well as for Jewish former merchants of the 1st guild, in for 15 years, members of this guild, both within the Jewish Pale of Settlement and outside one, and members of their families;

c) on the Jews mentioned in Article 17 of the Appendix to Article 68 of the Passport Regulations, 1903 edition, until they will engage in their crafts and skills, with their subordination, according to accessories to the rules set out in this article, and d) on retired Jewish enlisted men who entered the service through recruitment charter.

Note: The Jews mentioned in paragraphs a and b of this article - 1) graduated course in higher educational institutions and 2) merchants of the first guild are provided with with you while staying in rural areas of the Jewish Pale of Settlement domestic servants and clerks (or office workers) from among their fellow believers, at least not enjoying independent rights of residence in these areas, subject to in relation to them, the rules established by Articles 12 and 13 of the appendix to Article 68 of the Passport Regulations, ed.
1903, by affiliation.

2) The Jews mentioned in Article 1 of these rules are granted temporary their stay outside the cities and towns located within the Jewish Pale of Settlement, to enter into transactions for the rental of property for their housing and for the production of trade and trades.

3) Jews who have completed a course in higher educational institutions of the Empire and are not members under investigation, trial and police supervision and not tainted by a court verdict, enjoy the right to engage in trade and industry on common grounds everywhere grounds and can, without a preliminary 5-year stay in the 1st guild within the boundaries Jewish settlement to be considered as merchants outside the specified line.

4) Jews who became merchants of the 1st guild beyond the Pale of Settlement and stopped before the expiration of 10 years, a selection of merchant documents of the same guild have the right to be re-enlisted as a merchant of the 1st guild in the internal provinces without leaving for a second 5-year period of residence in the same guild within the Pale of Settlement.

Note: The rights assigned to Jewish merchants of the 1st guild, by virtue of this (4) Articles, as well as paragraph b of Article 1 of these rules, they are used only under the condition their non-existence under investigation, trial and police supervision and their non-discrediting by a debauchery sentence.

5) Jews who have been in the merchant class of the first guild, even if only intermittently, for 10 years outside the Pale of Settlement, they then acquire the right to:

a) for registration with the urban societies of the internal provinces and 6) for universal in the empire, living with members of their families, included in the merchant class certificate of the head of the family during the specified 10-year period, as well as with their wives and children, even if for some reason they are not included in the said certificate.

6) Jews who have been awarded the title of commerce or manufacturing advisers, enjoy the right of residence throughout the Empire with members of their families, not excluding rural areas of the Jewish Pale of Settlement.

7) Universal residence in the Empire in accordance with the rights, belonging to retired lower ranks from among the Jews who entered the service recruitment regulations (note to Art. 5 of the appendix to Art. 680 of Vol. [10th Law on Compilation, 1899 edition and Art. 1 of these rules) is granted to military ranks from among the Jews who, participating in military operations in the Far East, were awarded insignia or generally served flawlessly in the active troops.

8) Jewish merchants of the 1st and 2nd guilds have the right to come to all cities internal provinces for the production of trade and industry, without limiting the number such visits, so that their temporary stay there in total did not exceed: the first - 6 and the second - 3 months annually. In case of impossibility to personally go into the Empire due to illness and other reasons mentioned merchants are allowed to send in their place on trade and industrial matters account of the period specified in this article of his clerks with the appropriate powers of attorney.

9) Wives of Jews who have completed their studies at higher educational institutions of the Empire, and also awarded the title of Commerce or Manufactures Advisors, enjoy the lifelong right of residence throughout the Empire, both during the life of the husband and after his death, would they have entered into a new marriage; the children of the said Jews - sons until they reach adulthood, or until they complete their studies at higher education institutions institutions (but not more than 25 years of age), and daughters - until marriage, can to live everywhere, as during the life of the father, with his, in relation to minors, permission, separately from him, as well as in the event of the father's death.

10) All decrees of the treasury chambers on the inclusion of Jews in the merchant class and bourgeois societies of the cities of the interior provinces, which took place at least with deviation from the law, until the publication of these rules remain in force and cancellation are not subject to.

and 11) These rules do not apply to such areas
Empires in which special restrictive rights were established with respect to Jews.

The Governing Senate will not fail to make due arrangements for the execution of this order.

On the original, in His Imperial Majesty's own hand, it is signed:

NIKOLAY.

August 11, 1904. In Peterhof."

TREATISE ON THE JEWISH CAPITALITS

Chapter 1

Croesus Baron Rothschild

Among the most important capitalists of Jerusalem origin is Baron Rothschild, Knight of the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor and other orders, who was the Austrian consul for a long time. But he was once an ordinary Jew.

in Frankfurt.

Circumstances raised him to the level of obvious leader of the Jewish plutocracy. All Jews bowed before him, and from then on his authority was recognized in all countries of the world. He died, leaving his four sons about eight hundred millions of capital. Calculated at only five percent per hundred, these millions bring 40 million rubles in interest per year. What power in the hands of one ruler such immeasurable wealth! Five percent is considered a bourgeois percentage. What profitability figure can this capital achieve if we define the type Jewish percentage in the hands of the king of bankers - only 25%, which in its own way The barometer raises and lowers stock exchange prices? The power of the House of Rothschild is measured not by the hundreds of millions that belong to him, but by those enormous sums that are put into circulation on his orders. Every Jewish millionaire in In London, Vienna, Paris, Berlin and Russia he serves as an agent of the House of Rothschild and obeys the dictates of this monetary barometer. In Paris, as is well known, in some In some financial strata, an average return on capital of 25% per hundred is recognized. Such Thus, the owner of 800 million receives 200 million in interest per year. According to some attribute one of the serious French economists, Mr. Coquille Rothschild's capital is 300 million, and others increase it to a fabulous amount. figures of 500 million annual income.

Numerous magazines are vying with each other regarding the death of the monstrous capitalist tried to extol his selflessness and services rendered to France. However, the opinion some French patriots are of the opinion that "it would be much better if France managed without the help and services of Rothschild. Who doesn't know that wealth Rothschild is a consequence of French financial losses? "And one of Parisian journalists, not without reason, ask: “Isn’t our society ashamed?” Should a temporary society always need money? Nothing proves feeblemindedness more than our rulers!"

As one of the main reasons for the rapid decline in the Russian interest rate In 1877 and 1878, many newspapers pointed out the following fact: the state capital of the secret supreme kahal was placed in private hands and mainly in the houses of the Rothschilds, Gauchers and other Jewish bankers origin and religion, who engage in stock market trading at their own risk. The Jewish nation, although scattered throughout all the countries of the world, nevertheless constitutes organic whole through kahals (communities) of different levels. In the eastern In this matter, this secret world state supports the Porte. It also supplied it with capital. At the moment when it was necessary to undermine Russia's credit and puzzle, so say, her government, - the House of Rothschild, in agreement with Disraeli, his a colleague and other political figures put a huge amount on sale in Berlin the number of Russian state funds - and the latter have fallen dramatically.

change in Germany's policy towards Russia, banker Mendelssohn and others immediately appeared in St. Petersburg with a proposal for the 6th loan, and the funds, thanks to him, mediation began to rise rapidly.

Chapter 2

Capital of the Jewish world

This is an old statistic, currently the capital of the Jewish Croesus multiplied tenfold, there is no crop failure for them.

Let us consider the material resources of the leading merchants from the Jewish world, naming them by name and place, 50 years ago - whose capital has tripled today.

In Paris: A. G. Stern and Co. - 35 million francs.

Fould and Co. - 20 million francs.

G. A. Galpen and Co. - 25 million francs.

Anton Schnapper - 15 million francs.

Samuel von Haber - 7 million francs.

H. I. Reinach - 7 million francs.

I. E. Kann and Co. - 5 million francs.

Wischowsgeich, Goldschmidt and Co. - 15 million francs.

M. Kogan and Denver - 5 million francs.

Total 129 million francs.

Let us add to this small capitalists who own approximately 80 millions, the capital will amount to more than 205 million francs. In addition,
We also need to add Pereira and Mires, who own 30 million.

In London: Moses Montefiore - £2 million. Moses

Bischowsheim, Goldschmidt and the Stern brothers - each a million pounds sterling.

R. Raphael and son - 800 thousand pounds sterling.

Louis Cogan and son Samuel Montagu - each £500,000 sterling.

Small City houses over 4 million - only 11 million pounds sterling, that is, more than 260 million francs in London alone.

Vienna: Moritz Königswarter - 14 million guilders.

Hermann Tedeschi - 15 million guilders.

M. L. Biderman and K'i Edward Waner - each one and a half million guilders.
Louis Ladenburg - 2 million guilders.

Fr. Schein - 2'/› million guilders.

Leopold Epstein - 3 million guilders. That's 46.5 million guilders, yes.
in small trading houses there are over 14 million; therefore, in total there are over 61 million guilders, or about 153 million francs.

Berlin: S. Bleichroeder, Mendelssohn & Co., S. Hertz and H. C. Blaut - a million each thalers each.

Lieberman and Co. and N. Reichenheim with his son - 2 million each.

Hermann Girzon and M. E. Levi - 2'/› million thalers each.

Joel Meyer - 1 '/› million thalers.

Moritz Güterbock - 750,000 thalers.

Louis Rhys & Co. - '/› million.

A total of 13'/› million thalers, and together with small capitalists about 27 million thalers, which amounts to over 90 million francs.

Hamburg: G. B. Oppenheimer - 4 million marks.

I. E. Oppenheimer, Pintus Nathan the son and the Jaffe brothers - 2 million each.

Berens sons - ['/› million.

Samuel Levi and Sons L. P. White and Co., F. Jacobson, Koenigswarter, Alexander, M. M. Warburg, Julios Leser, Martin Frenkel, H. Jonas and Co. - one million marks each.

In Altona - Jacob Rey, Amsel - 1 million.

Hesen Neumann, I. V. S. Aarburg - 2 million; a total of 27 million marks; and Taking into account small houses, the sum will be 40 million marks, or 75 million francs, not counting the capital of the house of Hoppe and Co.

Frankfurt am Main: F. H. Goldschmidt - 7 million guilders.

M. Koenigsgarter, J. Stern and the Siltschuach brothers - 2 million guilders each every.

Lazar Speyer - |'/› million guilders.

M. Kon i K® - 1 million guilders.

Lottery collectors and small trading houses - about 8 million guilders and etc.

In Rome and Naples: over 20 million lire. In addition, Hollander and Leven, Lipman Rosenthal & Co., Becher & Fuld, Werne Heym & Gompertz in Amsterdam - have 40 million guilders. Calculating all these figures, we get a sum of over 2000 million rubles in silver in the hands of Jewish trading houses only ten European capitals.

In Russia in general: O. Ginzburg's Trading House in St. Petersburg; the Polyakovs and etc.

In Moscow, Malkeli, etc. In Odessa, in Kyiv, in Vilnius, in Berdichev, in Warsaw, in the cities bordering Prussia: Libau, Mitau, Riga, etc., one in a word - at least in Russia, in proportion to the turnover of Jews, one can consider Their capital amounts to 500 million silver rubles.

Back in 1849, at the direction of Zhuravsky (Statist. Description of the Kyiv province, 3570), the banking turnover of Berdichev alone amounted to 11,900,000 rubles and consisted, mainly, in various kinds of loans to landowners of the southwestern region.

The world population is distributed as follows: 52% are pagans, 30% are Christians; 15% are Muslims, and 3% are Jews. Despite the insignificant percentage

Jews in the world population, they constitute the overwhelming majority of the world's capital.

Chapter 3

The number of Jewish merchants in St. Petersburg

In 1870, with a total number of St. Petersburg merchants of 773 people,
There were 47 Jews, i.e. 6.1%; in 1896, with the total number of the capital's merchants in 421 people, 78 of whom are Jews, i.e. already 18%, three times more than in 1870.
At a time when the total number of stock exchange merchants had decreased almost by half - 46% - the number of Jewish merchants more than doubled - by 66%.

The banking industry is in an even worse position. “Among the directors and members of the board of eight St. Petersburg banks, says Mr. Bolshakov, only in There are no Jews in one place, namely in the Volga-Kama Commercial District. As for the seven other banks, then in each of them among the board members and directors there is a very large Jewish contingent. We should soon expect that all banks will be transferred to Jewish control. Jews are also infiltrating charitable spiritual departments - to the Red Cross and so on. Many of the large banks have full rights can be called purely Jewish. Here, for illustration, is the composition of one of the pe-Petersburg banks - "St. Petersburg International": Rothstein, Koch, Filipyev, Ritgauz, Shetkevich, Spitzer. The bank is obviously purely Jewish and is called "international" probably only because its main director, Rothstein, Austrian Jew...

It is also true, as is well known, that all banking houses and banking offices, even those, as the recent collapse of Kutuzov's office showed, who operate under Russian firms, are owned by Jews. This is already a complete Judaization of the capital's trade and exchange, the sad results of which we already have before us: “From strictly trading, commercial institution, says Mr. Bolshakov, the stock exchange has turned into a gambling a house where trading volumes are lost among the stock market games with different papers, and where “Instead of the spirit of trade that once reigned, the spirit of excitement now rages.”
The following figures undoubtedly establish the fact that the development of speculation
and
The excitement on our stock exchange is due to the growth and strengthening of the Jews there.

Among merchants engaged only in trade, Jews make up 15.9%;

Among the merchants who are engaged only in stock exchange speculation, Jews constitute 84.1%.

The Jews are the reason that the entire trade of the capital is completely has changed over the last two decades, i.e. since the invasion of the kahal, its character: correct trade, based on commercial calculations, turned now it's a complete scam based solely on deception.

The same must be said about the capital's press. In the seventies, when Jewish press organs emerged in St. Petersburg and when, through “support,” khala Russian press organs were transformed into pro-Jewish ones, F. M. Dostoevsky wrote in his "Diary of a Writer": "I think that this is only the beginning, but that the Jews will capture an even wider circle of action in literature; the Jew is spreading with horror-with a deafening speed, But the Jew and his kahal are the same as a conspiracy against "Russians" (51c!). These words now, only twenty years later, are not a prophecy, but - alas! - reality: already the entire capital's press - both magazines and newspapers, with the exception of "Observer", "New Time" and "Light", serve the kahal and defend the interests of Judaism, and most of the newspapers are even formally located in Jewish hands. This is obviously not the beginning, but the end... of an honest, independent Russian word. Some, of a softer nature, like Mr. Yasinsky, for many years who served the Jew of the Birzhevye Vedomosti faithfully, but finally could not bear it, the Orthodox heart was sickened, stopped bowing to the Jew and went back home again to the world.

It is not surprising that our press has fallen so much in the last two decades in terms of public morality, has become so vulgar and under the banner of "cosmopolitanism" zealously defends Jewish interests, contrary to everything good and noble, hated by the entire Christian world, harmful and dangerous to the entire Russian people. in the old days, the printed word was treated with respect and listened to; now... you're ashamed to even pick up many newspapers, so as not to bring it upon yourself suspicions of solidarity with them. This is what the Jews did with the seal, what they turned it into they are the printed word, the independence and honor of which have been so long and justly the Russian land was proud!

Let's borrow the following self-explanatory figures from "The Observer" determination of wealth between Christians and Jews in the main countries of Western Europe.

In Paris in 1891, with 2,400,000 inhabitants, including 50,000 Jews in the Jewish quarter itself, they owned property in houses and factories 500 million francs out of 11 billion francs of such property in all of Paris.

In Germany in 1888, one seventh of the capital belonged to Jews, although 45 million inhabitants in it, Jews were considered 570,000. In Vienna in 1890 belonged Jews owned 30% of all houses, and of the remaining 80%, they mortgaged them. More than half military stores and nine-tenths of drinking and entertainment establishments were in Jewish hands.

These figures are, of course, far from the truth, because they refer to something that has already expired.
time; in 7-10 years they should have changed, and, without a doubt, only in favor Jewry.

The Observer's article, among other things, contains a summary of various measures, undertaken in different years of our century by European states with with the aim of limiting, as far as possible, the noticeable harmful influence of Judaism. In general there were few of these measures. The lines that point to the exclusive patronage accorded by our legislation to Judaism in his religious affairs, which, however, have a direct relation to us. Article 1063

The eleventh volume of the Code of Laws states:

“If somewhere a division into sects arises, and one sect does not want to be in prayer community with others, in which case permission to establish a special a synagogue or a school is given only with the permission of the Minister of the Interior, research into how the meaning differs from the ordinary teaching of the Jewish faith and a certificate of its harmlessness to morality and public peace."
This law is the teaching of the Talmudists under the name of "ordinary Jewish faith" is recognized as being orthodox and harmless; the emergence of “conversations” or sects among Jews, - an undesirable, harmful phenomenon.

Meanwhile, the teachings of the followers of the Talmud are now finally recognized.
harmful, and if a Christian state is forced to tolerate them, then it must, in harm to oneself, to patronize them with one's powerful authority. On the contrary, with the aim of liberation of the Jews themselves from the despotism of the kahals and it is necessary to abolish prohibition of pilgrimage in private homes and restrictive conditions for the institution individual synagogues of Jewish sects.

A small book by a member of the "Glbgo Rago]e" team, "The Bo1zapane", was published in Paris.
which documents the history of relations and legislation of Napoleon I regarding the Jews. On the very first day of its publication, this brochure was completely sold out.
is indeed of great interest, especially in France, where Jewish the issue has become so acute recently. This is also facilitated by the prestige of the name of Napoleon, which has acquired a new and unexpected importance in recent years popularity. Napoleon's genius, his eagle eye, which never let anything go unnoticed one social issue, touched upon this painful aspect of our modernity, the beginnings of which took root during his reign.
The collection of documents on this issue reveals a clear and broad view Napoleon on this matter. The question of the Jews interested Napoleon during his return.
his return from the campaign in Austria, after the victory at Austerlitz, when the inhabitants of Alsace turned to him with a tearful request to free them from the oppression of the Jews, completely confused and ruined them with debt and other obligations, as a result of which everyone lands and estates passed into their hands. Alsace was at that time in a very similar situation with our current northwestern region. Napoleon's first act there was an order to postpone the payment of debt obligations for a whole year. At the same time, he decided to regulate the situation of Jews in France and gathered in Paris representatives of the Jews who had to clarify before the state advice, both their own Talmudic rules, and to accept the obligation act in the spirit of general French legislation.

It is interesting that Napoleon did not separate the Talmud from what he called Mosaic legislation, and this is partly the reason for the failure of its plans, although according to its
From the correspondence one can conclude that he did not have a high opinion of Jewish ethics. Here, for example, his own words in the State Council: “I will again note that No one complains about Protestants and Catholics the way they complain about Jews; it depends on that the evil caused by Jews does not come from individuals, but from an organization of this people. These are caterpillars, locusts, eating away at France..." Another time he exclaims, recalling the battlefield: “Those days (the Jews) appeared as clouds, like crows. In During the Battle of Ulm they came running from Strasbourg to buy money from thieves, what they plundered on the battlefields..." In general, Napoleon sought to raise and elevate Jewish morality. Nevertheless, the Jewish question was still in the Napoleonic era. in its infancy and only developed with his appearance on the fields of Waterloo. Indeed, as

It is known that this battle served as a catalyst for one of the founders of the Rothschilds - Nathan - realize from 25 to 30 million on the London Stock Exchange due to false the news he spread about Napoleon's victory and the fall of stock market shares, which he hastened to buy.

Mr. Boisandre's book has the merit of bringing together everything concerning Jews during the time of Napoleon I. She cites various documents proving as far as Napoleon I was able to look at everything from the heights of state. For the same documents show how Napoleon I cruelly persecuted even those closest to him bribery and embezzlement.

Chapter 4

The Jewish plan to make money

The Jews, having moved to rich countries, made a plan for themselves in accordance with their goals and the importance of the undertaking they intended to carry out. Plan their goal was to use cunning to seize all the riches of the country they were entering will move. “Let us take everything into our hands,” said the Jews, “the gold of our enemies, we will try to exploit their labor and leave them the fields that they will to process for our own benefit. If we succeed in taking possession of their wealth, we will become masters, and they are slaves."

Even in the Middle Ages, the Jews managed to accumulate enormous wealth, but in Recently, their monetary power has become immeasurable, and all public wealth found themselves in their hands. The rapprochement between different peoples, which was established at the end last century, gave impetus to the monetary power of the Jews. As experts in in financial matters, the latter more than anyone benefited from the developing industry and trade. With the expansion of money circulation, their influence has increased proportionately. At present it is so great that the Jews are in charge with all capital, no matter who holds it, as if it were their own.

In Russia there is not even a single significant enterprise, in which the Jews would not take part - if not directly, then at least indirectly, and Still, the Jew stands guard and allows himself to be sensed by everyone.

An interesting example of a Jewish spiritual testament in the form of the initial acts.

In December of this year 1898, the spiritual foundation was approved in the Lubny District Court the will of a certain Jew, Fratkin. The will begins like this: “I, Nakhim Fratkin, reached 120 years of age in perfect health. But since the limit of life is unknown to me, I decided to make a spiritual testament, while still in his strength, clear mind and health and having, thank God, a full 120 years of my life. I bequeath my courtyard a place with all the houses and land belonging to it, with the deepest soil up to the highest layers of the air to my son Leivan; let him take possession of it with double a condition similar to the conditions of the sons of Gad and Reuben."

The testator then distributes his capital of several hundred thousand rubles. between sons and daughters, and adds that this division should be done without trial, and if anyone decides to take the matter to court, then he is deprived of the right to his share of the inheritance, which should be included in the general division.

According to Jewish newspapers, two capitalists, one from Warsaw and one from Odessa, contributed 10 each 000 rubles, and 70 Jewish workers for 100 rubles each, and with the money collected they opened a Warsaw and Odessa have two factories for the production of Zion cigarettes. 5% of the income percent is allocated to the propaganda of Zionism, and the remaining amount is distributed between companies according to contributions. Workers who contribute receive additional compensation for labor for 10 rubles per week.

Chapter 5

Reform of Napoleon 1

Napoleon I, as a great man with an unlimited desire for reform, paid serious attention to the Jewish question. This is depicted in the following in the words of Napoleon (in 12 of his project on the transformation of the Jews).

“If this point is completed,” says Napoleon I, “then it will be necessary to to find effective measures to address the constraint that has become a habit of alienation and "to suppress this organized fraud and usury."

1 APseteipe Geyipz 4ez Jis 1841 - 300.

In the explanatory article to the said project, Emperor Napoleon says:
"Our goal is to help farmers against Jews in general and save some departments from shameful dependence; for the transition of the greater parts of the departmental estates to the Jews as a pledge to the people, who, by their customs and by laws constitutes a separate nation among the French people, there is a real addiction".

“In recent times this useless society almost took over these lands, and the extremity forced the government to hinder his successes."

“As the dominion of the Jews increases hour by hour through usury and collateral, then it would be necessary to put obstacles to it. Second the plan aims to, if not completely destroy, then at least reduce the tendency the Jewish people to many activities with which they cause harm in all countries of the world
"civilization, order and public life"! (Ibid.).

The Jewish question is visible in Napoleon's project: this is how, in his view, relations Jews to the French, constituting a sad and exceptional relationship between the French the phenomenon of citizens of different faiths and different tribes, arises from the fact that Jews are connected to the indigenous population only by external, artificial, weak ties:
language, costume and civil rights, but in blood, property and family life they, as the chosen people always form a completely separate, in their opinion, an aristocratic world to which non-chosen blood has no access.
the way the Jews' relationship with the native population stems directly from the very Judaism: from the aristocratic view of the Jew on the rest of plebeian humanity.
To destroy the source of this evil, Napoleon firmly assumed to assimilate Jews with the French. To achieve this goal, Napoleon drew up a plan to transform the development of the internal life of the Jews and hoped to bring it to fruition through rabbis.

Napoleon's project was so necessary and useful for the Jews and the French, and because the very need of that time called for it; moreover, Napoleon’s demands did not did not go one step beyond the boundaries of moderation, humanity and justice. Napoleon demanded only that the Jews recognize the French as exactly the same, as equals in every respect, worthy fellow citizens, as the French recognize the Jews; precisely so that the French would be brothers to the Jews, with whom one could enter into a family relationship kinship through mixed marriages. Or, more accurately and briefly: Napoleon is only seeking so that the Jews would recognize the human rights of the French, so that they would gave equality to their environment.

Here, unfortunately, the keen-sighted legislator found himself in a completely dark place.
him the area through which he wandered gropingly, and except for mistakes he could not accomplish anything could. Napoleon acted on the basis of a mistaken notion of the significance of the rabbis, but he, without suspecting it, in the means taken against Jewish banner, conveyed yet another irresistible force. Napoleon, first of all, considered it necessary to take care of the organization and increase of rabbinical authority, for which

For this purpose, in 1806 he established in Paris a Sanhedrin of 71 rabbis in the image of the ancient Jerusalem. Napoleon thought that the Jews would meet that high standard in this Tribunal.
spiritual unlimited power, to which they must obey unquestioningly the requirements of the Talmudic law they professed. Throughout the empire, provincial consistories with full rabbinical powers were established hierarchy.

So, the ruler of France, to whom at that time everything was unquestioningly submissive, he already hoped to increase his fame with the immortal crown of a reformer of Jewry. But This hope did not live long: soon the time came when it faded and flew away.
one must think that the Sanhedrin or the rabbis resisted the demands of the strong ruler. On the contrary: the rabbis confirmed and supported without serious resistance.
everyone wrote, but only because of the natural vicissitudes of Jewish nature; as soon as the time had come to carry out Napoleon's will, they all protested against it, which they had agreed to, and incited all Jews to resistance."

1 Sezsteshe 4eh Li4detyithu. Egtan i"at Mat 1857, 5. 148.

Napoleon, convinced that he could break the internal bonds within himself, there is no possibility of Jewry, in 1808 he issued a decree in which he begins to solve the Jewish question from a completely different point of view. In this decree, he subjects restriction of bills of exchange in the hands of Jews against Christians, prohibits Jews releasing money on bail to the serving class hinders the movement of Jews from one place to another to another, etc.; in a word, in the decree of 1808 Napoleon began to seek salvation the local population from the oppression of the Jews in the same general measures that history has always and I met the latter everywhere in all the countries where they lived.

Chapter 6

For your virtues

Jews are being bullied! Jews are being persecuted! Jews are being robbed of their bread! Poor thing!
people!

Weep, "Russian Jew"! Weep and be indignant, all of you, great citizens of the great people: the Jews are being deprived of their bread!! More: they are being deprived of their recruitment receipts...

And now a huge blow has followed in Russia for all of Israel, the monopoly took away the vodka, which is equal to the bleeding of all Jewish veins, it will come emaciation for all Jewry, and then, lo and behold, consumption. One salvation: Jewish doctors
They will prescribe treatment, the southern climate - everyone should go to America.

Jews were banned from entering Tula... They were expelled from St. Petersburg and Moscow Jews. Is it really a crime to do good to people?.. And what are conscriptions? receipts, how not good! However, no: it is dead paper, but in skillful Jewish in her hands she acquired the properties of a real adiae uiue. How many bitter separations, how many mother's tears, how many youthful worries were eliminated by this dead paper, fallen into living hands! Once upon a time, the state honored the merits of its valiant warriors.
that issued a recruitment receipt for each soldier who had been in battle with enemy. These receipts were issued to the descendants and relatives of honored soldiers. But fate is inscrutable, and the receipts got stuck in the government offices. They managed to die out honored warriors - those who were spared by the enemy bullet, managed to grow old descendants and relatives. But old memory is short - where to remember the receipts? And they, forgotten, they lay and languished in the government chambers until the ill-fated year of 1874, when universal military service was announced. Then the receipts unexpectedly-unexpectedly came into play. It's understandable: they were forced into military service new people, not accustomed to the harsh military life, people of delicate upbringing, fed not on simple black bread, but on real coarse kalach... These are the ones-then people remembered about peasant receipts. But how to get such a receipt? Although the receipts lay idle in the treasury chambers, although their owners did not always knew about their existence, but according to the law, they could not be obtained from the treasury chambers without There was no way that the male owners could help. The law requires that the owner of the receipt filed a statement with the treasury chamber that he is such and such, the owner of the receipt No. such-and-such wishes to sell this receipt to such-and-such. Judge-the same: a man should even know the number of his receipt, when he doesn't know about the its existence. And then: where to look for this guy who has the receipt? Where from find out that such and such a guy has a receipt? And here's the situation: you desperately need it buy a receipt to save your beloved son from conscription, to console him a crying mother to make this very unfortunate son happy... And you know that I have a lot of receipts, but where? Who has them? How can I get them? - Desperate situation.

But the world is not without good people, because there is a virtuous person in the world
The Jewish people came to rescue from conscription captivity. unfortunate Russian youths who were threatened with separation from their parents. And the throughout all parts of Russia there is a broad, ardent, fruitful activity of the Jewish nation.
The Jews appeared in such miserable villages where the Jewish spirit and hearing had not yet been heard “It was unheard of and unseen.” A golden shower simply poured down on the Russian peasants.
rain from Jewish generosity. Even recently, the poor, single people, who didn't have a penny for soul, suddenly found ourselves with tens of rubles in our pockets. Unexpectedly... for some kind of recruitment receipt that the lucky guy didn't even know about. "And how much “Did they find out, these Jews, that I have a receipt?” the Russian man was surprised. “No.”
Is it a scam? No. They give money, real money."

The fact is that the Jews found out in detail, of course, not without assistance treasury chambers, for which men and what receipts are listed. And having learned this, they
They went through the villages to look for the lucky ones and, finding them, offered them with a generous hand
They had their wallets at their disposal. For one receipt, the Jews would give the peasant a whole a quarter and even a fifty without any hassle on his part... Consent is needed
"peace", for the resale of the receipt - the Jews themselves call for peace, treat, without sparing, vodka, they pay the headman and the clerk... all themselves, all from their own wallets.

The deals were quickly concluded. The verdict of the meeting was that “the world has no obstacles" in transferring the receipt to such and such. Some clerk would scribble down the condition, that the peasant of the village of such and such, etc., trusts such and such to receive from the state the chambers will issue him the receipt for sale, at his discretion, to whomever he pleases.
The peasant so-and-so received the money in full in advance, and due to his illiteracy, etc.
Everything is as it should be. With these documents, the Jew could enter government offices without hindrance.
chambers, received - not without new expenses, of course - the necessary receipt and only then freely beneficed some ill-fated merchant young man. Of course, work should be paid for, especially such troublesome work. And a receipt bought for 25-50 rubles was sold for 5-6 thousand rubles, and at one time up to 10-12 thousand. It was a golden time! But things went smoothly, as they say,
"burned" in Jewish hands. And the Lord sought the Jews with His mercies: the poor
The junk dealers built white stone chambers, the townspeople became the first guild merchants and honorary citizens. Those were good times!

But then black clouds began to appear in the sky. First, the men themselves
They got wind of what was going on and started charging exorbitant prices for the receipts. I had to pay accordingly.
100, 200 rubles per piece, not counting various expenses, when the state price of the receipt only 480 rubles. And some men even began to climb into the state chambers for their own receipts: they say, they're not fools enough to take thousands. But here, thank God, they remained with a nose. They tried and tried, but nothing came of it: it’s not their business - and they turned back; but still it was not the same; besides, competitors from other nations: everyone trudges along the beaten path. I had to enter into different agreements... new expenses... But that's not all. There's tension in the chambers.

At first it was like this: you could come to any ward and buy any receipt: in each
The chamber has the necessary documents for all receipts, no matter what province they come from.
But by mistake, of course, there were several such cases that the same receipt was bought in different chambers and sold to different buyers. This was revealed. And so established a requirement that in order to receive a receipt from this chamber, one must certificates from all the other chambers have been presented that this receipt has not yet been credited and is not issued. This is a big expense. It was necessary to establish agency, because otherwise, until the end of the world, not a single receipt would be obtained:

please wait until these requests reach all chambers, and the incoming and outgoing and the necessary answers will be received. Having your own agents speeds up the process; everything communications will be conducted by telegraph. But what are the costs? There have been cases where Siberia, for example, sent telegrams of 200 words!! But the previous expenses were not only decreased, but still grew and grew... The trouble kept coming closer and closer.
Further into the forest - more firewood. The first hesitation was followed by another, that the receipts
It is allowed to resell only once. And then ominous rumors began to spread rumors... that in St. Petersburg they want to completely put an end to the receipt trade; that They want to give all the receipt holders their official price - 480 rubles per receipt a piece - and thus put an end to their very existence... According to rumors, this matter even reached to the State Council... Evil people slandered the Jewish buyers receipts, all sorts of fables. There could have been serious concerns. Luckily, the wind blew in the other direction. They started talking about war, and then the war itself began. No time for that.
It became necessary to pay the men 480 rubles per receipt when there were no more of these receipts darkness, darkness. The storm passed, the sky cleared, the Jews continued their work with vigor operations, feeling that things were not going for the better, and indeed, no more than through year again there were alarming rumors that it was supposed to take away the healing power of those receipts that have not been reported as of the date of the announcement of such an order petitions in the chambers. My God! - how much trouble this sinister thing has caused for the Jews Hear! It was necessary to hurry with the petition so that the good would not be lost. And What a terrible job this is! How much risk! How much running around the villages! You quickly
They took the hands of the receipt owners and quickly filed a petition, - and now
The receipt will sit on your hands, the receipt on which hundreds have already been lost?! And the travel expenses, and the treat of the "world"!.. This rumor brought a lot of evil to the Jews, a lot of money
It was worth it for them to put it out... And although the rumor remains just a rumor, it still hasn’t died out completely.
On the contrary, everything is even growing, becoming more and more alarming... Moreover, the Jews have become downright so drive... for receipts!

Chapter 7

Jews donate money for Columbus's expedition against the Queen's diamonds

The Jewish magazine Voskhod writes about Columbus that all his enterprises and successes his discovery of America was crowned with success solely due to the assistance of Jews. He allegedly maintained close relations with Jews in Lisbon. The astronomical works of the author of the famous chronicle "Sefer Juhasin" served for Columbus's main guides and accompanied him on all his voyages. Columbus allegedly highly valued the scientific works of the Jewish astronomer, especially his astronomical tables, which rendered him enormous services and which he once owed his life to the salvation of his life. When, during his last voyage, in 1500 year, the natives of one area threatened him with death, then Columbus, having learned from astronomical tables of Abraham Zacuto about the upcoming lunar eclipse, took advantage of this opportunity to instill fear in those who rebelled against him, and announced them that the God of the Spaniards will punish them for their villainous plans and, as a sign of his wrath, will deprive them moonlight. Indeed, the predicted lunar eclipse soon occurred and brought such terror to his enemies that they threw themselves before him with sobs and tears knees, begging for intercession before the angry God, and declared their complete submission. It seems strange that in Europe in the 15th century, there was talk of a lunar eclipse. was known only to one Jewish scholar.

After seven years of war with the Moors, Granada, the Arab stronghold, was taken Spaniards, and on January 2, 1492, thanks to new protection, Columbus again succeeded remind King Ferdinand of himself and seek an audience with him. However, the demands presented by Columbus seemed excessive to the king and unfeasible. The negotiations did not lead to an agreement, and the offended and A disappointed Columbus left Granada with the determination to leave Spain and appeal to the French court. And so, at this critical moment, when the the last thread of hope, new protectors appeared, four Jews - these were Juan Cabrero, Luis de Santangel, Gabriel Sanchez and Alonso de Lacabarielia. Queen very much wanted to equip Columbus's expedition, but exhausted by the long

The war finally hampered this feat. Jews are always saviors in misfortune; if in despair someone wants to kill himself and cannot find knife, - then a Jew is always capable and will quickly offer it to anyone who wants it a saving instrument. In the same way, the Jews, the ascetics of science and discovery, proposed The Spanish Queen Isabella borrowed a significant amount from her personal funds the sum of five million maravedis (17,000 ducats) for the expedition. Many Columbus's biographers claim that the Jews did not act selflessly, but agreed give the sum needed for the expedition only on the security of the royal diamonds and having negotiated a certain reward for his service, i.e. usurious percent.

“Having expelled the Jews from all their kingdoms and territories, their Spanish majesties "They instructed me to undertake a voyage to India." With these words, which convey in a dry tone about the tragic event that plunged hundreds of thousands into unimaginable misfortune Jews, Columbus opens his diary.

This all proves that Columbus is very grateful for all the Jewish services done to him. It was a high price to pay, because the expulsion of the Jews from Spain not only did not his heart was outraged and saddened, but, on the contrary, he was glad that the fatherland got rid of a severe ulcer or painful growth. It wasn't so much that he was embarrassed the Queen's pledged diamonds and these usurious interest rates, how many multiple interest payments with profiteers he himself had experienced Jews' (Historical research conducted in the second half of the twentieth century shows that and Columbus himself was a Jew. See: i . hisi iђs's 15. , No. y? Js, , 1991. - Ed.) It is obvious that Jews in Spain were involved in business. from the words of the Jews themselves: (“Sunrise”) “The exiled Jews were forbidden to take with them gold, silver coins and expensive precious items that were confiscated in favor of the treasury. With the haste with which they should have been to leave, the Jews were unable to collect their debts, which reached a significant figures, and besides, most of the property they owned was "plundered by many Spaniards" (and the Spaniards did not plunder, but only took their property stolen or fraudulently appropriated by Jews).

“Ferdinand was well aware that many Jews had left behind in Spain valuables, movable and immovable property and uncollected debts." Not content with the treasures already appropriated, he issued a decree on November 23, 1492. ordered that all Jewish property remaining in the country be confiscated in favor of the treasury." The Spanish king Ferdinand acted smarter than the Egyptian pharaoh who allowed the Jews to leave and take with them all the gold and silver.

Chapter 8

Jews in Poland under King Stanisław Augustus

From the very beginning of the appearance of Jews in Poland, as is known from legends, they had unlimited freedom, enjoyed great patronage from the authorities and panov. But the behavior of the Jews, as always and everywhere, arouses the entire masses against themselves.
lower class people, which they exploit without mercy. The emergence Some historians date the Jews in Poland back to pre-Christian times, from the 9th century century, but positive documentary evidence shows that in the 11th century Jews were in Poland and already had various kinds of privilege certificates.

During the reign of King Stanisław Augustus, Jews lived in Poland in numbers of 900,000 people and constituted a sharply different mass of people, exceeding the number of privileged gentry. The Jews already had masterful organized numerous kahals, which had their own representatives of the country and were sometimes called "the main representation of the Jewish people." The Jews did not served military service, did not take part in public life, paid
There are very few taxes or duties compared to the native inhabitants.
The Jews kept their isolation from the natives very inviolable; religion, speech, costume and customs constituted an insurmountable barrier to the rapprochement of Jews with the rest the country's population. The Jews have always behaved proudly towards the natives, as true aristocrats, treated religion as always with disdain and mockery, as the chosen people. The Tatars, no less sharply distinguished by religion and customs - the descendants of the horsemen who caused so much evil to Poland over the course of five centuries, nevertheless, they got along well with the local population, but the Jews brought it upon themselves hatred and malice of the entire mass of the indigenous population, first of the lower class, and then the upper class and authorities. The Jews endured neglect and various hardships;
The authorities and literature leveled grave accusations against them. Kashtelyan Yezersky attributed to them the instigation of Cossack wars and rebellion; in the published brochures they accuse they are involved in smuggling, in the export of coins abroad, in the fabrication of bills of exchange, and in counterfeiting stamped paper, in reducing the weight of a gold coin by clipping or chemical in a way that also exploits Christians through taverns and drinking, parasitism, etc. The most serious accusations were in a brochure entitled "Kasves1it o khudasN." The author claims that the Jews, dressed in uniforms, having painted their faces black, they made attacks on the rich estates of the lords.

The shure was written in 1791. Dozens of similar brochures appeared, which sharply denounced all the atrocities of the Jews, which is why the Jews brought local the population is in dire straits. It has already reached the point where it must be seriously to draw the attention of the government - the Greater Poland Voivodeship in the era
The four-year Sejm banned the leasing of taverns to Jews. Repeatedly The State Property Commission prohibited its officials from using services of Jews in the performance of official duties and provide them with credit, and those who disobeyed were even subjected to punishment. The townspeople everywhere complained that

Jews deprive artisans of their income and destroy with their illegal actions entire workshops. Marshal Belinsky positively forbade Jews from living in Warsaw, his Lubomirski's successor established special tickets with a five-day validity period, which should have served as a certificate of temporary residence; without such No Jew was allowed to appear in the city without a ticket. The ticket fee was set renewed, - every time a "silver penny." This kind of constraint does not at all The Jews were confused, and they came in such large numbers that the marshal's treasury received a collection of more than 200,000 Polish gold annually. If they were that much paid for tickets, how much Polish could they take out of the city of Warsaw? gold? However, the Jews achieved this through their cunning and bribery, that in Warsaw
They began to settle Jews, they were taken under their protection - August Sulkowski, Potocki and Poninsky was allowed to settle behind the rampart, and when a whole settlement arose, called "New Jerusalem", the townspeople of Warsaw demanded their expulsion on the basis of law. Lubomirski actually expelled the Jews from the city, destroyed their houses in New Jerusalem, all goods were sent to the cadet barracks, where they were sold wholesale sold to the exiled owners. The Department intervened to protect the Jews.
police, a representative of the Jewish community, the rich man Shmul (his memory) joined his protest
- Shmulevizna in Prague), who issued a memorandum, referring to the resolution the Treaty of the King and the Permanent Council of 1775

According to Lyubomirsky's explanation and the resistance of the townspeople, the Department was forced was to make public that "the Jews can return to their places of residence, from where they arrived." However, the Jews did not lose heart from the blow they had suffered; Warsaw was a place for them had an attractive force. They gathered during the Sejms, when the law imposed them they were allowed to stay, and they tried to stay after the Sejms under the guise of visitors, paying off the police with bribes, as is the case everywhere now. In 1784, as a result Due to the magistrate's insistent demands, they were evicted again by Marshal Mnishek. But during

During the four-year Diet, several thousand of them gathered and populated Mareville, today's Potseyev, - so that finally the townspeople and artisans lost patience.
Despite the presence of the king and the meeting of the Sejm on May 16 and 17, 1790, the people rushed on the Jews trading in Potseyev and Golubskoye, destroyed houses, looted goods, partly throwing into wells, he smashed things, tore up feather beds, releasing fluff into the air, which All the Jewish streets were covered. The marshal's guards were unable to stop riot, and Mniszech, the king's marshal, had to call up the troops. Later several weeks later the Marshal's Court sentenced the perpetrators to severe punishment, but hatred of Jews did not disappear. After this, they were allowed to stay and trade in the capital only during the Sejm; but until the end of the four-year Sejm, during
At the penultimate session, the Warsaw Committee issued very strict orders the expulsion of the Jews, threatening that those of them who remain in the city without proper permits, will be subject to confiscation of property and 30 lashes, after which The dug were solemnly led out beyond the city rampart (This order was dated February 8 1792 Sahega Mago4do\ma).

In the city of Kremenets, Jews were also driven out of the city squares, little by little appropriated. Despite the patronage of the headman Sangushka, the townspeople won case in 1781 and, having received a court decision, destroyed and robbed Jewish homes, and among the armed men there were about 400 Russian rangers and a people's lieutenant cavalry with six comrades.

The Poznań Merchants' Assembly, in a petition submitted to the four-year Sejm, complained about the Jews that they do not pay their debts abroad and thereby undermine credit to Christian merchants; that they carry ready-made clothes and all sorts of other goods purchased at foreign fairs, which cause considerable losses to the treasury and local artisans; that they are also engaged in the retail sale of cloth, that prevents the emergence of cloth factories and workshops; that they buy bread before city gates; as a result of all this, the merchant assembly demanded that "Jewry was tamed and limited." In practice, the significance of such threats was reduced to zero, since in Warsaw the Jews always found their way through their cunning patronage of the marshal's jurisdiction, and in other cities they were protected against The powerful elders, of course, took bribes to exasperate the townspeople. In Warsaw, the Jews organized even "public meetings" on Leshnya. The Jews are against all public uprisings always found noble patrons and constantly multiplied in Warsaw, until finally achieved the goal of completely conquering Warsaw.

In 1766, the total amount of Jewish debts in Poland amounted to 359,109 gold coins. Polish; by decision of the State Treasury Commission it was ordered to pay off these shares by establishing a special new reduced tax per head in the amount of three gold. But the Jews did not make this arrangement and did not pay off their debts until 1785, in addition all requirements of the government.

This is the benefit the Polish government received from the Jews. Meanwhile, the Jews in Poland was greatly harmed - the people's strength was exhausted, they were exploited and corrupted the people, ultimately contributed to the destruction and brought Poland to extreme decline, and on the ruins of the former Polish power, as if with irony call themselves "Poles of the Mosaic Law." But meanwhile, all the aspirations of the Jews with with soul and heart leans towards Palestine, which they dream about during the day and see in their dreams at night their messiah coming to them, at whose head they will take revenge on all the goyim - and, having robbed all their wealth, after the enslavement of everyone, will leave in triumph for Jerusalem, which will become the only capital city of the entire world.

Chapter 9

Jewish trade

Jewish merchants are often bold in their undertakings; but excessive desire to make a fortune for themselves takes them beyond the bounds of prudence and honor, as a result why there are incomprehensible cases of both rapid enrichment and equally a quick fall. No matter how difficult it is to suddenly become an insignificant merchant a millionaire without credit or education, but a Jew overcomes all obstacles on this path and, using his innate ability, does not hesitate in choosing the means and complete freedom of commercial conscience and finally achieves the desired wealth Or, conversely, extreme bankruptcy. For a Jew, life is money, and without it, death.

Jews do not pay attention to public opinion, and in the event of their brothers success only amazes his wisdom and falls prostrate before his money power.

Freedom of conscience and unscrupulousness in the means of achieving wealth indicated Jews have a very easy way to get money without much effort. This method consists of counterfeiting and selling counterfeit credit notes. Over the past 15 years, entire societies of banknote counterfeiters were discovered, scattered throughout the Western provinces and having their own agencies abroad.

The Jewish burghers and artisans constitute, so to speak, a direct continuation ignorant merchants. Low moral standards, lack of material resources means, lack of proper activity, strong tendency to idleness or to light work presents a sad and mundane picture of their unsightly life. Not distinguished by taste, art and integrity in the works they produce, they only care about how to sell the goods as quickly as possible and at the best possible profit, however, they are cheaper than Christian artisans; but the cheapness of their goods is explained by their lower strength of work and lesser quality of material. They are engaged in all kinds of crafts; but from the natural Western Jews one can find only skilled ones tailors and butchers; the rest of the crafts are of a very low rank among them.

Despite this, Christian artisans, caring about the dignity of the goods, did not can withstand competition with Jews and are forced to spend on more valuable reward the material with a price premium. And besides, under the word competition, when it comes to competition with the Jews, one should not understand competition in the sense political and economic. Competition with Jews is impossible because they not by the merit and cheapness of the works, but by intrigues that block the way to Christian artisans - for the sale of their goods, and unanimously they shake hands to another to destroy a non-Jewish rival.

Many attribute the predominance of Jews in crafts and trade to the inability local residents; but this still requires proof, because in crafts, as well as and in trade, the Jews, forming a corporation, oppose the establishment industry between the indigenous people. Unfortunately, this industrial monopoly, having killed competition and being in the hands of the Jews for many years, not only did not improved, but stopped the proper development of trade and manufacturing industry.

Chapter 10

All Jews are traders

The Jewish bourgeoisie, without exception, are engaged in trade in the most petty forms.

In cities and towns they 1) run shops; 2) are engaged in resale raw products; 3) trade in vodka, cattle, meat, etc., and 4) in places closest to the border, are engaged in smuggling. A Jew with a few rubles capital, goes into trade, which provides him with daily food; this meager the source of the means of living forces the merchant to turn his capital to the possible speed, since the goods have been lying around a little longer than he expected, deprives a Jew of the means to support himself and his family, and therefore is distinctive the characteristic features of a small trader are fussiness, obsession and an irresistible desire tendency to deception in trade.

Testing the buyer, he asks for a huge price and then quickly lowers it to a certain norm, content with moderate profits, just so long as he doesn't get stuck product; whispers in the buyer's ear, nudges, winks, spins around like on springs, and what titles he doesn't give to the buyer, he swears, he swears that he is with sells at a loss. With unforgivable shamelessness they take advantage of the inclination people to drunkenness and in this case they are truly brilliant corrupters folk morality. When drunk, a peasant becomes a pitiful victim a dishonest merchant who distributes credit in his area in the spring and in the fall taking away from the farmer almost all of his meager income, in addition to interest various other obligations are imposed on the debtor. In this way, the peasants, more prone to drunkenness, never get out of debt with the tavern keepers and are always working for them. As a result of these abuses, Jews were once forbidden to trade vodka in the villages and towns; but this measure, having somewhat restricted their activities, did not stopped the evil. Since strict implementation of this decree would deprive them the surest means of livelihood, then they would hire a vodka seller from Christians, and they themselves kept a tavern under him and, under the guise of tavern keepers, continued to collected tribute from the surrounding residents. And what does this tribute represent in its final form?
the results are very large sums, one cannot but agree with this, if one takes into account, that in the western region of Russia about 20,500 Jewish families were engaged solely in beverage trade.

The crowding of Jews in the cities, their habit of getting by easy means daily bread - created a special class of people known as factors.

A factor is a person typically found only in the Jewish population! serves as an intermediary between the buyer and the seller and is ready to provide the services of the former oncoming; but they mostly like to deal with visitors, and therefore all hotels and guest houses have their own permanent factors waiting the arrival of guests. Their experienced gaze, unaware of the existence of Gall and Lavater's theory, penetrates into the depths of the visitor's soul and guesses his character from his face. In accordance with the concept of a new person, he offers his services, declares his honesty and knowledge of the matter, without skimping on titles. Bending over, tiptoeing, with flattery on his lips, he crosses the threshold of the master who has chosen him; but through after some time, having learned the inclinations of the newcomer, he gradually becomes his advisor and indispensable intermediary in all his domestic affairs. Serving, Apparently, for a very reasonable fee, he does not miss the opportunity to make any purchase get his percentage for factoring. All day long he fusses, bustles, runs, gossips and tries to draw the visitor's attention to something every day new items. This fussiness, completely feigned, is calculated for effect, since he has absolutely no need to exhaust himself, because he has been a member for a long time already on the payroll of many merchants, who were at the first request and recommends to his client, diligently helping them to deceive the buyer. It is necessary be present at a purchase made through a factor in order to form an opinion the concept of these rogues who resort to oaths, spells, assurances and whispersniam, and all this because of a few extra kopecks and, in rare cases, rubles.

In addition to these factors, ready to provide any services, there are specialist factors, those engaged in delivering servants, borrowing money, and finding buyers on all sorts of objects, the device of love affairs. Factor specialist is, however, completely dependent on the hotel factor.

In the summer, when there are fewer visitors, the factor rests, but out of habit always sits at the gate of the house or wanders around the market, waiting for prey. At that time of year, when the farmer, by the sweat of his brow, provides for himself for the winter, with general complaints about lack of labor, idleness of a healthy and strong person, laziness walking the streets, arouses involuntary disgust towards himself, quite portraying him as a parasitic plant, capable of using only someone else's heavy to grab profits on the fly from items that are not produced by labor and deception Not only he, but also all his brothers did not make any effort.

Chapter 11

Jewish factoring

The power of the talisman in the hands of skilled Jewish people has performed and continues to perform great miracles. factors: with this force the Jews always removed all the obstacles that local laws and the authorities tried to protect the native population from final exhaustion under the oppression of the social proletariat, besieging him from all sides, and in spite of everything the constraints they encountered everywhere. In a short time they managed to win for oneself the happiest economic position, to take possession of a living capital and the fruits of the productive labor of the native population. This force and activity close supervision of the factor guards over the activities of administrative, Jews owe their victories in the fight against police and other institutions non-Jewish opponents in every public matter. Factoring art

Jews use it in more than just trade. A legion of factors that know how to catch, so to say, every movement of life, to extract from it significant benefit for oneself, while directing it towards a common Jewish goal, it is divided into different classes, and each the class has its own specialists. The latter, each in their own specialty, stand on guardian of public life. With the improvement of the well-being of Jews in Russia and Despite strengthening their citizenship rights, they still remained the same greedy people any illegal acquisition, by the same fanatics and fanatics that he knows their previous history, and in addition they have now formed a strong, impenetrable for us society or, in the words of Schiller, a state within a state, which has everywhere its members, agents in all corners of our homeland, who diligently serve Jewry.

The tendency to petty trading, factoring and laziness are innate a peculiarity of the Jewish nation. Fathers of large families who do not have permanent and reliable sources of existence and entrusted their fate to chance- to those who are prepared to endure poverty rather than turn to agriculture, this a sure means of living, albeit a modest one. Not accustomed to being shy since childhood conscience, armed with hypocrisy, servility, the ability to flatter and connect deep ignorance with an equally deep conviction that cheating and deception are signs of intelligence, a Jew throws himself into the whirlpool of life with a beloved dream of saving money in what no matter what. On this path, avoiding work, guided by a passion for acquisition, he often becomes a victim of his own brothers and becomes a criminal. According to Kirkor's research, there are 338 Jewish people there is one criminal convicted mainly of theft or fraud, which is 10 times higher than the crime rate, committed by the rest of the population. But despite all the moral insignificance of the Jew proud, vain and ambitious: a simple peasant, in his opinion, a creature unworthy of attention.

Due to the huge influx of Jews in recent years, St. Petersburg has become increasingly naturally and profiteering, which constitutes the whole essence of the characteristic of this tribe. The huckstering and thirst for easy money that are characteristic of the Jews found themselves in St. Petersburg also made a very abundant sacrifice. The Jews immediately pushed aside the St. Petersburg local profiteers. Thus, at auctions in the loan treasury, buyers jewelry is now almost exclusively Jewish, acting under This is often done jointly, by the whole kahal. It is now very difficult for an outsider to buy at this auction, you can buy something without the risk of overpaying for it.
It wouldn't hurt to tell about a special trick that Jews often resort to in order to the possibility of a profitable and convenient sale of their valuables at auctions in the loan treasury and in pawnshops. The swindler, having teamed up with his friends, pawns his thing and, having certainly missed the deadline for its redemption, it is allowed to be sold at auction. At the auction he, together with his company, begins to vigorously raise the price for this goal and thus, it inevitably draws a completely unrelated buyer into the bargaining process, who gets the thing with profit for the swindler.

As for the new Aleksandrovsky Market in St. Petersburg, there are Jews here they have definitely won first place for themselves, and the native traders have completely given it up Jews. Now the rows of this market are called Jewish. Consequently, Petersburg and Moscow has already been taken over by the Jews; the stock exchanges of these capitals are already being openly adjusted accordingly
Jewish tuning fork, which they had borrowed from England.

Taking into account the moderation of the Jews in food and their abstinent life
In general, it is easy to see that no merchant class in the world is able to compete in trade with Jewish merchants, especially since the Jews of the western regions of Russia are constant communication and correspondence with Jews living in other regions, and even before the invention of electric telegraphs was recognized almost as quickly as Now they will find out: where and what goods are needed and can be sold at a profit; where what You can buy similar ones at cheap prices.

With incredible speed and before the local residents, they learn about everything remarkable world events that may have an impact on trade turnover; about new government institutions, regulations and assumptions governments, and, applying this information, arrange their affairs, especially in trade.

The merchant trade of Jews is also greatly facilitated by the right of every Jew, engaged in trade, to maintain agents who will find out all the circumstances of those persons with whom they deal, and especially those on whom the success of trade depends operations. In any country where at least one Jew manages to penetrate, he will be followed immediately hundreds of his like-minded people appear under the pretext of being close to him kinship or trade relations with him."

It would seem that having the opportunity to successfully carry out trade, the Jews would become to do it honestly, avoiding cheating and base means of enrichment.

Chapter 12

Greed of the Jews

But insatiable greed, especially the rules and instructions of the Talmud, instilled in Jews from childhood by charlatans and fanatics, encourage them to use for their own enrichment, the most vile tricks, cunning and undermining to the detriment of Christians.
A Jew who zealously follows the teachings of the Talmud should definitely not lead his to act honestly and observe justice in dealings with people of other faiths
Thus, everyone knows the Jews' ardent passion for trading contraband goods.
For the safe transportation of goods and for protection from border guards at the borders In Austria and Prussia, the Jews maintain large armed gangs which, in the event of If a convoy with contraband goods were attacked by patrolmen, they would repel them weapons, and almost always murders are committed."

1 Little Russians compare Jews in this respect with bedbugs. “Jews, they They say, like bedbugs, where one appears, in a day there will be a thousand of them."

2 One of such incidents is indicated in the “Northern Bee” of 1862, No. 68.

Contraband goods brought in in this or that way are decorated customs stamps and sealed as legally transported, and After this, they are openly sold in shops. If such goods are brought in, import from abroad is strictly prohibited and, therefore, selling them openly is prohibited if it is not possible, then they are stored for some time, partly in dens set up in Lithuanian and Belarusian forests, and partly in huge ancient cellars, impenetrable for the most keen eye of the outsider. One of the aforementioned dens, filled smuggled goods, was discovered by the zemstvo police several years ago near the town of Lyadov, Mogilev province, Orsha district. On this occasion The investigation lasted for several months. Who would dare after this assertion that Jewish trade is not carried out to undermine the state income and not to the detriment of honest Russian merchants who transport foreign goods legally, paying the duties required by the tariff for them? Everyone also knows that the heaviest chervonets, having been in Jewish hands for no more than an hour, loses its weight and its normal price. Many Jews are engaged in the counterfeit credit card business.

tickets and mint counterfeit coins. So, several years ago, near Several Jews engaged in printing were seized in the provincial city of Mogilev counterfeit banknotes, and one was cast in a mold he had created counterfeit rubles similar to silver ones made from a metallic mixture he composed.

In 1862, five Jews were caught in England at the very time when they were preparing to smuggle into Russia millions of counterfeit credit notes not only fifty-, but in ten- and five-ruble denominations. It was reported that in almost all of Kalisz counterfeit banknotes are distributed in huge quantities in the provinces, mainly 10 and 25 rubles. The sellers and distributors of these counterfeit The papers are Jews, as always. The efforts of the police and judicial authorities powerless to counteract this common evil; nevertheless, the newspaper says, in In Konin district, police managed to detain a Jew at the scene of the crime when he sold counterfeit 10-ruble notes. The newspaper goes on to say: recently the sotsky one of the communes of the Kalisz province arrived in Kalisz; the Jews surrounded him and asked exchange money for them, promising to pay him 30 kopecks for every 25 rubles.
Sotsky, in his simplicity, agreed and gave the Jews small money in exchange for what he had received from them.
papers that turned out to be counterfeit at the treasury. All these Jewish tricks are so They scared the local residents so much that no one wants to take any papers anymore.

It is obvious that this undertaking was intended, on the one hand, to undermine state credit, and on the other hand, to rob the poor peasants by buying their grain and working cattle for counterfeit credit notes, which, having found themselves everywhere fake, would have no value.

The head of the zemstvo guard of the Vengrow district of the Siedlce province reported in the newspaper "Voice" about the purchase of cattle from peasants using counterfeit credit notes. "In an unknown Jew arrived in the village of Toncha in the Vengrovsky district and bought it from the peasants four oxen, for which he paid ten 25-ruble banknotes dignity. I was informed about this immediately, and searches were sent out hot on the trail, and on the night of the same day all four oxen were found in the city of Warsaw.

But the buyer of the oxen did not show up to receive them and, as it turned out later, fled.
abroad; the oxen were returned to the peasants. Simultaneously with the purchase of the oxen,
There were several counterfeit 25-ruble notes in circulation among the peasants credit notes. Five Jewish people were found guilty of selling counterfeit credit notes.
tickets, I have arrested and handed over to the appropriate judicial authority; since two of they (the main distributors of counterfeit tickets) are wealthy people, then on their property,
"quite sufficient to compensate the victims, a ban has been imposed."

It was reported from Zwoleń in the Radom province that the police had confiscated a lot counterfeit twenty-five ruble banknotes that appeared in appeal in a row at three fairs, which are held there every Thursday. The culprits
The distribution of these tickets among the masses of people—the Jews—has long been in the hands of justice.
It was believed that all those involved in the distribution of counterfeit credit cards had already been arrested.
tickets, fabricated, as they say, in Galicia. Meanwhile, on September 14th again ten-ruble notes of the same fabrication ended up at the peasants' fair dignity, but the culprits did not manage to escape the hands of the police. Apparently, the number
There are quite a lot of distributors.

On the distribution of counterfeit banknotes by Jews in Russia during the former
There has been a lot written about the Turkish war. In Novominsk, Warsaw province, in the town
In Kalushin, Novominsky district, two foreigners (Russian Jews) were trading in horned cattle, they bought oxen from peasants at a very favorable price, without bargaining at all.
It later turned out that the money paid by the supposed foreigners for the oxen was fake. The same newspaper reports that the same thing has now happened in Kalushin.
a trick - the Jews, which they or their brothers recently committed in the Vengrovsky district;
The newspaper further reports that the zemstvo guards of Novominsky district managed to catch clever Jewish financiers who secretly founded their own state in Russia and founded their own mint for Russian credit notes.

The authorities ordered the expulsion of Jews to a distance of 50 miles from The borders hope to rid the fatherland of: 1) the import of counterfeit banknotes; 2) smuggling, which makes it impossible for Christians to compete with Jews; 3) secret transportation of Russian gold and silver coins; 4) escape of those hiding from conscription of Jews; 5) sale of stolen valuables, horses, oxen and etc., the theft and transportation of which abroad ruins agriculture and causes enormous harm to Russia economically.

Abroad, they treat Jews less ceremoniously than we do. According to reports received from Gross-Surany (in Upper Hungary), during the turmoil caused by the great fire, the population incited to violence by several persons suspected in systematic hatred of the Jews, rushed at the latter. Shouts of "in "the fire of the Jews", and only thanks to the energetic efforts of Count Tnerek some of Local Jews were saved from the fury of the mob. One of the Jews received fatal injuries.
bruises; the Jewish teacher and the heads of the Jewish community were torn from his hands with difficulty crowds. One Jew's hand was cut off.

In undermining state revenues, Jews try their best to hide their number, in order to pay less taxes. And even then, they don't contribute the entire amount to the treasury.
the amount of taxes that is due to them. In Jewish communities everywhere there are significant arrears, which the Jews stubbornly refuse to pay, exposing their poverty and imaginary failure, although they possess with huge capital.

Chapter 13

Jews as exploiters

What is most astonishing is the speed with which the Jews organize strikes between by itself. So, a well-known product, sold the day before at a certain price price, the next day, in the morning, throughout the entire space where Jews trade, is sold at twice the price. Money, which in the morning had such and such a value, in the evening in one, so to speak, moment either falls in price or rises incredibly.
The Jewish interest that they literally rip off their debtors has entered into proverb. But as a precaution, it is useful to know how skillfully they can borrow money from Christians without paying back. Here is an example of such art: having found out that someone has significant capital in hand, a Jew, usually with flattery and with some empty services he will beg the capitalist for a small loan the sum with the promise to pay good interest, which he pays regularly the appointed terms. The lender, having made sure that the Jew was paying the interest regularly and that he is ready to return the borrowed amount at any time, he offers to the Jew use the money under the same conditions for as long as you like. This is what happens Jew for several years; finally, noticing that he had acquired the trust of the lender, and Having found out in detail what the largest capital could be extorted from him, he chooses a favorable time, comes to the lender with a made-up story, as if he is presented with an extremely profitable trading operation, for the production of which such and such capital is needed, namely the entire amount that the lender has in cash; that he does not need to use the required amount for the whole year, but will return it in full in a few months, etc., etc. Having thus lured the Jew calmly divides his entire capital between his creditor and his sons and sons-in-law, who apparently trade independently, as they live separately, and he himself solemnly declares himself bankrupt. Thus, the capital the creditor disappears forever, irrevocably; and the sons and sons-in-law of the Jew will become claim that they have no idea about their father's operations.

There are also such cases: Christians, not having cash, sometimes forced to take goods for their daily needs from Jewish shops under receipts, with obligation to pay them on time.

When paying money to a Jew, it is necessary to keep track of the goods taken according to the receipts he had, and not according to his debt book, or at least pay money in front of witnesses, no matter how much the Jew flatters, no matter how much he swears that lost the receipt; otherwise, the Jew, a few months after the calculation and to pay his debt he will find receipts and with cynical shamelessness will again become to demand money from the former debtor. Naturally, the debtor refuses.
pay the second money; then the Jew starts a case in court with the debtor, and it happens that If the latter makes a mistake, the Jew receives payment for the same goods a second time.

Did the Jew enter into a contract with the owner for the right to cut down trees in his forest, let's say two hundred timber trees, he will certainly cut down four hundred or more of them and will be transported by different routes to a designated warehouse location. For this purpose, he appeases the men engaged in logging, gives them vodka every day; and in order to to hide his tricks, sometimes requiring the owner to testify on the spot the number of trees cut down. When witnessing, the owner, in particular inexperienced, easily succumbs to deception and becomes convinced that the Jew did not knock out the conditional contract for the number of trees. Then the Jew asks for the right to cut down the forest and during another winter. If the owner, having become convinced of the Jew's cheating, at the end

If, within the term of the contract, he enters into an agreement for the same operation with another person, then the Jew will bring the most slanderous lawsuit against the owner, claiming that the owner has ruined him, not allowing the agreed number of trees to be cut down; as if he had undertaken to deliver this amount of forest in such and such a city, unable to fulfill the contract; what from this he loses so much of his sure profit and is also subject to penalties under the laws for failure to fulfill the terms of a contract concluded with such a person or a public place. To see the full burden of our dependence landowners from Jewish trade, one only has to pay attention to what in this way the Jews buy from the peasants the goods they have acquired through hard work, such as bread in grain and flour, hay, cows, oxen, horses, birds, eggs, flax, hemp, canvas, etc. For Jews purchase these products at their own prices in an approximately correct manner statistics of grain harvests and, according to their own considerations, when the grain is still on the ground, nude, not compressed and not collected, they evaluate it, and at the end of July or the beginning of August
They are already announcing prices for all bread products. For the most convenient bread transaction Jews share trade and the elimination of all rivalries and disputes among themselves entire provinces into small districts consisting of villages closest to that city or a small town where Jews go to buy supplies. If a Jew such a district would dare to enter villages not located near its city for trading purposes or a small town, then he is subjected to cruel persecution. Now this, however, happens very rarely.

But for purchases of this kind, Jews go to the villages with only a few barrels of the strongest, most intoxicating grain wine and, driving from the hut to hut, first they greet the owners flatteringly and assure them that they haven't been there for so long we saw each other so much that we even missed each other and now we came to see each other on purpose; then They take vodka out of their pockets and begin to treat the hosts. The poor have a premonition peasants, what is this feasting leading to? But since the Jews, on the one hand, are whole centuries they tried to accustom them to drunkenness, and on the other hand, in trade transactions with them until they know how to flatter them, awaken their pride, convince them that they are very important owners, as if they cannot help but love and respect them, and little by little they achieve your goal.

The peasants decide to have a great time and show themselves off to others, accept the offered vodka and drink until they become intoxicated. Then the Jew begins negotiate with the peasant about the price and quantity of goods purchased from him products, offering the most paltry price for them. The poor owner is aware of this, but he is already drunk and, moreover, knows that when he needs money, for example, for something if you give something, there will be no one to borrow it from, even at the most onerous interest rates, except for the Jew, and therefore agrees to give up the purchased product for the offered The Jew asks for the price and demands money. The Jew objects that the purchase has not yet been delivered to him; that when it is delivered, he will pay the peasant fairly and in full will pay him what is due. Upon delivery of the traded products, the peasant demands payment; but the Jew will not settle accounts with the peasant until he gives him drink again he gets drunk. Then, taking the chalk, he begins to settle accounts with him, bringing to his memory, how much vodka he drank at different times in his tavern or how much he took home.
Among the Jewish memories there are also those such as, for example: “Then, dear-
"You sent your daughter to me so that I could lend you a bottle of vodka!" - "Yes,
"I sent it," the peasant repeats. "And I didn't give it to you?" "That's right," the peasant confirms, "I didn't "gave." "So, one decanter?" "Yes, one," the peasant answers. "Look, my dear, “I’ll write one,” says the Jew and draws a line on the table. Then he adds lines written in chalk and announces to the peasant how much he owes for the taken or vodka drunk on credit, deducts this debt and pays it off according to a shameless calculation bread with salt or dried fish at a price higher than normal, and rarely in cash;
The peasant, intoxicated by wine, agrees to everything. However, the Jews treat peasants are flattered only when they go to the villages to shop or trade vodka. The purpose of their flattery in the first case is to more easily achieve their desires, and in the second - to avoid being attacked by the peasants for being offensive and a daring treatment. But when a Jew sees that a man can be pressed, offended and even to nail, then he does it with all the impudence. It happens, for example, that a peasant forced to sell something from his farm to buy something on the proceeds of salt or something else extremely necessary are taken out cherry or egg market, but not on a market day, but on weekdays, when Christians are completely there is no market; in this case, the Jews, as soon as the peasant appears at the market, suddenly They surround him in a crowd, asking what he is selling, and under the pretext of trying it, whether it is fresh products, - everyone grabs something from the cart and disappears. And since the peasant is in such a in the confusion he cannot notice any of the predators, then, having reasoned that if he became complain, he would not have received satisfaction, he goes back to his place with sorrow village. The peasants are not safe from Jewish tricks even on market days. However, the Jews so inventive in their methods of deceiving and oppressing peasants that all kinds Their tricks are impossible to recount. The most unfortunate thing is that those living between The peasants, being dependent on the Jews, are quietly losing morality and even respect for the demands of the Christian faith and the Church.

TRACTAT UI KAHALY V POLSHE

Chapter 1

The meaning of kahals

The Jewish corporation is, so to speak, its own special state within the state. The Kahal is an immeasurable force in the system of Jewish public self-government. primary, district kahals, to which many small ones adjoined communities over a significant area around. There were also medium-sized kahals, which had with its jurisdiction a larger or smaller group of surrounding towns and villages. There were also small kahals, or kahalniks, who, taking advantage of their independence in in charge of their internal affairs, but officially they were considered one from the neighboring large kahals and were obliged to obey him in everything that concerned payment of taxes and similar obligations.

In addition to these local corporations, there were also central bodies Jewish self-government. Of these, we still know the "Synod of Four" regions" and "Seimas (or Synod) of Lithuanian Communities". The first one for two centuries

From the middle of the 16th century until 1764, it played the role of the highest Kahal-rabbinical authority mainly in the Kingdom of Poland, in Galicia with Podolia and Volyn, in Lithuania its actions extended only partially; the second was the same for Lithuania from 1623 to 1761. At first, deputies from three districts took part in the Lithuanian Seimas:
Brest, Grodno and Pinsk; in 1652 the Vilnius district joined them, and with 1691 and Slutsk. Belarus, - today's Mogilev and Vitebsk provinces - stood apart; but it also had its own kahal-rabbinical center.

We have only defined the nature of the lower and higher authorities in the system Jewish self-government. Before us, on the one hand, are the local kahals, and on the the other is the supreme general synods in Poland and Lithuania. But between them lies a vast and still unexplored central zone.

Chapter 2

Regional Kahal Seimas

Between the catechumenate units and the general synods they occupy a place central institutions of the middle type, namely: regional kahal congresses or Sejms. Each of the regions that sent its delegates to the General Synod had at the same time, their own kahal sejms.

Such sejmiks in the Polish style existed in Poland: Greater Poland, or Poznan region, Lesser Poland, or Krakow region, Podolia and Volyn;
In Lithuania, each of the five districts mentioned above had them; in Belarus, the whole the totality of the local kahals. These sejms, which met periodically in one From the points of this region, deputies from various kahals of this region gathered.
Their main activities were: a) the distribution of various payments to all Jewish communities of this area, and representatives of each community had the opportunity to defend their interests; 6) the establishment of mutual relations between the kahals and the solution contentious cases between them, as well as litigation between them and private individuals; c) elections representatives to the nearest general synod ("four regions" or Lithuanian) and providing them with proper instructions. In addition to these main points, the management Apparently, many other public matters were also subject to the regional sejms, related to the interests of the entire Jewish population of a given region or its various parts.

We have the right to draw these general conclusions on the basis of documents related to two such "regional sejms", one of which operated in the Volyn Voivodeship from the middle of the 17th century until 1764, and the other one - in Belarus, in the first half of the 18th century century. Documents regarding the Volyn Sejm, taken from Polish archives, partly have already been published (archives of South-West Russia, parts 5, volume 1; acts on the cities of South-Western Russia, Kyiv, 1869).

Under the name of the “Synagogue of the Volyn Voivodeship” in Polish documents it is usually This refers to the entire union of Jewish kahals of Volyn.

The same name is also used for the central body of this union - the regional the Kahal Sejm, whose deputies are called "elected members of the Volyn synagogue."

In the published acts this institution was first mentioned in 1666. It is here in the form of a preliminary sejmik, similar to the noble elections "sejmiks", which preceded the state sejms of the Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth.

Chapter 3

Volyn Synagogue

Volyn, as is known, was one of the four regions that sent their deputies to the General Jewish Synod. And in 1666, the "Volyn synagogue" elects two representatives from among its ranks, Itska Evuzarovich from Kremenets and Aron Zeilika from Ostrog, and sends them as deputies to the upcoming "Jewish Diet" (Synod of the Four Regions), which is to meet in Przeworsk in Galicia. About this the Vladimir kahal, on behalf of the entire "synagogue of the Volyn Voivodeship," makes a decision an official statement before the local elder and for greater certainty asks enter this statement into the city elders' books. This is the act, which, in view of Its importance is given in full (in translation):

“1666, August 27th.

In the city court, in the castle of His Royal Grace Vladimir, betrayed Stefan Vyshpolsky, burgrave of Vladimir Castle, and city books The infidels Bayer Abramovich, Iovel Leizerovich, and Leiba appeared personally as Starostinskys Ioskovich, Maer Ioskovich, Iosko Moshkovich, elders of the Vladimir Kahal, - and from themselves and the entire synagogue of the Volyn Voivodeship clearly and voluntarily declared: that they, having a sejm, or assembly, in Prevorsk, or wherever they will decide elders, to consult on all their public affairs, - they are all at this Sejm unanimously elected from their cities as patrons and representatives of their infidels: Itsku Evuzarovich from the city of His Royal Grace Kremenets and Aron Zailika from the city of the princes of their Grace Zaslavsky, from Ostrog. To these patrons and they unanimously and peacefully give authority to their defenders at the said Sejm of theirs, wherever it takes place this year, to protect their interests, together with others elders to decide everything that can serve their benefit. Everything that will be decided at that Sejm by the said representatives whom they send there, They (the voters) undertake to accept with gratitude. Those who made this statement

"They asked to include it in the documents for greater accuracy, to which they received consent." (Taken from the magazine "Voskhod" by Dubnov).

Based on this act it is clear that the Jews in Poland had their own a state that is firmly organized is better and more magnificent than it was in its time independence in Palestine. This is where the strength and persistent energy continues to come from.
Polish Jews resist government laws and public order of the Christian country.

The Volyn Synagogue was heavily involved in distributing the materials under its jurisdiction.
tax districts between the main kahals. Each of the city kahals had its own a district (parish) consisting of a greater or lesser number of villages and hamlets.

The entire burden of taxes fell on these villages, while the cities served their time.
duty only to what they managed. Other cities, thanks to those assigned to them to the villages, collected so much income that after paying taxes they still had some left over significant sums. Therefore, each kahal zealously took care of expanding its district, and the entire "Volyn synagogue" is about increasing the number of tax units in its voivodeship. These efforts, driven by greed and self-interest, often led to abuses and sharp clashes. In 1750, the following story happened:
by decree of the Radom Tribunal, the vast Ovruchevsky district, which previously belonged to the Minsk catal district, was assigned to the department of Volyn synagogue and had to pay half the tax not to Lithuania, but to Poland, i.e.

"the senior Volyn kahal." As the document explains, the Ovruch residents have such a prospect

I didn't like it, but the Volyn synagogue was happy about the increase in its territory.
The new district had to be accepted into its jurisdiction. A congress was called for 1750.
deputies of the Volyn synagogue in Ovruch to distribute taxes throughout Ovruch district, which consisted of several kahals, near-kahals and many villages.
Among the kahals of this district was the Chernobyl one. The acts preserved the address to A letter from the elected elders of the voivodeship to the Chernobyl kahal Volynsky, in which the latter, greeting their Chernobyl colleagues, inform they are informed about the congress to be held in Ovruch and they are assigned a day for sending them there their deputies.

Chapter 4

Volyn Kahal Sejm

The Volyn kahal sejm, or synagogue, like all sejms and sejmiks of the Rzecz
The Polish-Lithuanian Commonwealth also had its own "marshal" (leader). In general, he had an official significance.
social institution, which the government had to take into account institutions, entire societies, and individuals.

Belarus stood aside from the union of kahal districts in Poland and Lithuania.
was not part of the "synod of the four regions" or of the districts that sent their deputies to the Lithuanian Kahal Sejm. Remote from the center of Poland, Belarus was a special province; the Belarusian Jewish communities also stood apart societies. Without joining any external center, they created their own central organ of self-government. It was the Belarusian Regional Sejm, or Be-Lorussian synagogue.

The following are the smaller sized rolling districts. Thus Belarusian kahals, as a special tax unit, were placed after those five district kahals, which had their central organ in the “Lithuanian Congress”.
Further, in contrast to the latter, referred to in the singular, “Brest kahal”, -
They are called in the plural: "Belarusian kahals", from which it is clear that this is there was a whole aggregate of kahals or even kahal districts united in a tax relation. Finally, the amount of the per capita tax for Belarusian Jews is 9800 zlotys, amounts to almost half of the amount due from all five major Lithuanian districts combined. The area of activity of the Belarusian Kahal Sejm is the said period was mainly within the boundaries of present-day Mogilev provinces. The Sejm met periodically, as needed, in various cities.
So, in 1715 we see it in Dubna, in 1720 - in Kopys, then in Shklov and in others points. You can get an idea of the subjects of his studies from the following examples.

In 1715, at the meetings of the Sejm in Dubrovno, an agreement was reached on property dispute between a private individual and representatives of Mstislavsky kahal, and the private individual was given back the rights of residence and trade in the city of Mstislav.

Chapter 5

Kagalny Seym in Shklov

In 1817, at the Sejm in Shklov, a dispute was decided between the Mstislavl and Shumyachsky kahals, which disputed jurisdiction over certain villages.
Villages and settlements, as we have already found out above, were a real cash cow for kahals; taxes were collected from the village Jews, mostly wealthy ones, on a much larger scale than with the city dwellers, who somehow managed to defend themselves their interests. The more villages were listed under a given kahal, the better off they were. there was a taxable state and the position of its rulers was even more advantageous. The dispute between Because of this, Mstislavl and Shumyach were allowed by the Sejm until the congress the case of tax distribution in this way: those villagers who have their own houses in both disputing cities are assigned to the Mstislavl kahal; the same ones, those who do not have them in Shumyach are included in the kahal of the latter only when their villages are located at a distance of one and a half miles; the villages located beyond this line, belong to Mstislav. The tax accounts of the disputants are then settled general, etc. This permission was signed by the rabbi of the Belarusian region, Saul Ginzburg.

Another agreement between the Mstislavl and Shumyach kahals took place three years later, in relation to new settlements, at the regional Sejm in Kopys (in 1720 in (February). This act was signed by Aron Iofe, secretary and judge of the regional Sejm, and approved three years later by the aforementioned Rabbi Saul Ginzburg.

Sometimes the Sejm gives its sanction to the decisions of local kahals. Thus, in 1716, it confirms the resolution of the Mstislavl kahal, prohibiting ordinary people to build houses on the market square, on royal land, because this could harm to the whole society will occur. At the same time, the Sejm instills in the Mstislavl Jews, so that none of them would dare to undertake any business like the above, without the knowledge of the kahal, which should be recorded in the kahal register for eternal memory.

Chapter 6

Belarusian Kahal Sejm

Although the Belarusian Kahal Sejm was convened only on certain infrequent occasions terms, however, he had his own permanent staff in the person of the above-mentioned - rabbi of the Belarusian kahals, "leader of the region" and secretary. We will talk about the rabbi we have information about an official who received a large salary at that time salary. Thus, according to the estimate of 1732, a salary of 500 zlotys from the box was assigned gathering of one community. The regional rabbi between 1715 and 1725 was the aforementioned Saul Ginzburg, who signed various acts in different localities: in Kopys, Dubrovna, Gorki, Shklov, where the kahal sejm met.

In 1737, a complaint about the taxes of the Belarusian kahals was preserved and unfair extortions by the Chief Rabbi to the detriment of the interests public. In this complaint, received by the highest Lithuanian administration from an unknown landowner, it is said that the "Belarusian synagogue", i.e. the kahal Sejm, instead of the per capita tax of 9,800 zlotys appointed by the constitution of 1717, it is collected from Belarusian Jews 25,000 zlotys, and the rabbi of all synagogues, without convening representatives of all kahals, he himself decides what he wants and what coincides with his personal interests. Whenever any kahal protests against excessive taxation, then the rabbinical authorities with their followers, wanting to insist on in their own, they do not issue tax sheets for the head tax to the deputies of this kahal until they send soldiers and force the Protestants to sign the agreement. with their layout. The complainant asks that attention be paid to this harassment, made especially to Jews living on landowners' lands and subject to regional catalan administration.

This complaint and others of a similar kind are about violence on the part of the central kahal-rabbinical authority, followed in the same year (June 17, 1837) by a universal to to the Belarusian synagogues from the Vilnius voivode and Lithuanian hetman Mikhail Vishnevetsky. The hetman states that he received requests from some landowners complaints about excessive taxation of the landowners located on their estates.

In view of this, and also in view of the increase in arrears in the payment of amounts for maintenance hetman he orders that all Belarusian synagogues and kahals, in the person of the supreme the rabbi and elders, presented to the Grodno commission all their tax assessments and abacus for exposing the illegal actions of those kahal elders who due to self-interest, they collect taxes from the Jews in amounts significantly exceeding the amount established by the constitution.

Chapter 7

Regional kahal administrations

The regional kahal administrations greatly abused their power, which is why there were frequent clashes and discord. In 1746, the Lithuanian Treasury
The tribunal heard a dispute between the "Belarusian synagogue" and the Shklov kahal.
The synagogue accused the Shklov kahal of wanting to get out from under the supreme
The authorities of the Belarusian synagogue accused it of unprecedented crimes.
The Shklov Jews, relying on the patronage of their master, demanded that henceforth rabbis of the Belarusian synagogue, together with rabbis of other kahals and adjacent kahals, by their relatives, elevated by them to the rank of rabbi, so that all these the rabbis remembered that they should only be in charge of religious affairs, not Jewish ones taxes, and would not try to collect arrears and distribute taxes.
Decisions on these subjects, according to “ancient custom,” must be made on congresses from each community, wealthy people, not the poor. At these same congresses Elections of elders and, in general, all officials must be held.
An agreement on this dispute apparently did not take place under the Belarusian authorities.
Kahal Seimas. Thus, by the decision of the Main Lithuanian Treasury Tribunal of 21
March 1747, it was decided to collect in favor of one private individual (captain Yanovitsky) 600 thalers from all Belarusian Jews, with the proviso, however, that from Jews from Shklov County were exempted from the obligation to participate in this payment.
and Kopyssky, as having separated from the authority of the Belarusian rabbi and elders.

Chapter 8: The Belarusian Synagogue

It is extremely curious to find out the question of the relationship of the Belarusian synagogue to the central "Seimas of Lithuanian Communities." The mere fact that Belarus in terms of taxes it was included in the Grand Duchy of Lithuania, proves, that there had to be some kind of communication between the central authority kahals in Belarus and the same in Lithuania. When in 1717 all Lithuanian Jews a head tax of 60,000 zlotys was imposed, under the "tariffs" of the act

The Warsaw Constitution was signed on behalf of Lithuanians (including Belarusians) Jews were only deputies of the five district communities that were part of the Lithuanian kahal Sejm. The latter, therefore, took upon itself the responsibility for correcting the delivery of all taxes from Lithuanian Jews, including Belarusian ones; and this has already given rise to the need for a certain amount of control by the Lithuanian Seimas over the relevant institution in Belarus.

In 1743, the Mstislav kahal filed a lawsuit against the leaders of the entire Belarusian kahal region in the amount of 12,000 zlotys, which the said leaders took a loan from the Mstislavl kahal to cover expenses “for general needs” region" (meaning they used it for bribery?). The plaintiffs appeared with their complaint to the Brest rabbis and other representatives of the Lithuanian Seimas and presented them debt obligations signed by the "famous rabbi of all Belarus" Itskah-Aizik Ginzburg. Due to the indisputable nature of the claim, Lithuanian rabbis decided to collect the said amount from the leaders under various conditions Belarusian region. The sentence contains the following expression: “We, the undersigned have decreed and with our power we bind you, the leaders areas, pay”, etc. In case of disobedience, a court sentence is threatened leaders with herems and persecutions through a foreign court. Signed under by this decision the Brest district rabbi Nachman, two representatives of the Brest kahal and seven other people, whose signatures are illegible due to their dilapidated condition.

Chapter 9

A. Higher institutions of Jewish self-government
1) In Krakow - the "Synod of the Four Lands".
2) In Lithuania - "The Seimas of the Main Lithuanian Communities".

B. Regional secondary institutions:

1. In Corona: regional kahal congresses.

1) Malopolska, or Krakow,

2) Greater Poland, or Poznan,

3) Podolsk-Galician, or Lviv,

4) Volynsky (union of 4 district kahals).

2. In Lithuania:

1) Belarusian Regional Congress;

2) Congresses of representatives of communities that were part of each kahal district (Brest, Grodno, Pinsk, Vilnius, etc.) on the affairs of this district.

Thus, little by little, a picture unfolds before our eyes. former Jewish self-government, until finally all this appears before us a complex social hierarchy as a whole, from its lowest to its highest levels.

“Each of the regions sent its delegates to the General Synod of the four lands, and at the same time had its own kahal seimas”, where they periodically gathered authorized representatives from different kahals of this region to discuss their communities and important matters.

“Such sejms were in the Crown: Great Poland, or the Poznan region, Little Poland, Poland, or the Krakow region, Podolia and Volyn...” This general position was confirmed only with respect to the last of the four crown regions - regarding Volyn (Belarus is not included in the Crown but in the Lithuanian kagal union).

I. Lesser Poland, or the Krakow region. In this crown region of Poland, where The synod of the four lands usually had its meetings, they had existed for a long time periodic kahal congresses.

The first information about them in rabbinical sources dates back to the middle of the 17th century; but There is no doubt that these congresses arose much earlier.

Lesser Poland included three main voivodeships: Krakow; Lublin and Sandomierz, which had many outstanding Jewish communities. These communities formed a regional Catholic union under the leadership of Krakow kahal and rabbinate.

Union deputies met at certain times to discuss general their affairs in one of the locations in the Malopolska region.

P. Greater Poland, or the Poznan region. This region consisted of four katal districts: Poznan, Kalisz, Lesznowo and Krotoszyn Union These kahals had their central organ in the “Poznan Regional Congress”.

The Poznan rabbi was considered the highest spiritual figure in the entire region and usually presided over the congresses. Centralization was apparently stronger here than in other provinces. The meetings of the kahals and rabbis usually took place in one of the cities closest to Poznan.

Sh. Podolia, or the Galician-Russian land. The metropolis of this region, called in In rabbinical sources, "Rus" was the city of Lvov, which stood on the border of Galicia and Podolia. That is why the entire Podolian-Galician rolling district is called ordinarynovno "Lviv". Even at the beginning of the 17th century we learn about the existence "leaders of the kahal districts of the Russian land." Initially, these leaders gathered in Lviv itself during local fairs. Subsequently, the congress sites served various central points of the Galician-Russian land.

State University of Volyn. We use essential information regarding the union. Volyn kahals. The four main communities left the Volyn kahal union; Vladimir, Ostroh, Lutsk and Kremenets. Elected representatives of the kahals of these cities, together with the rabbis gathered at certain times to discuss the affairs of the entire region, and their decisions were sometimes submitted for confirmation to a higher authority - the Synod four lands." The Volyn Kahal Congress, serving as the central body of the union Volyn communities, is at the same time a lower authority in relation to the congress four lands. Provincial congresses related to the synod in approximately the same way as Cantonal councils in Switzerland - to the Federal Council, sitting in Bern.

Chapter 10

On the unlimited freedom of Jews in Poland

The unlimited freedom given in Poland especially to the Jews subsequently turned to their own detriment. In the West, persecution contributed to the fact that the Jews there have become culturally equal to the local population and can finally enjoy equality. In Poland, they were never persecuted, and for crimes private individuals have never been persecuted by the entire nation. The Jews themselves are to blame for this.

aroused the anger of the people in the Ukrainian regions of Poland. On the one hand,
On the other hand, they were accomplices of the Polish lords in the matter of religious oppression peasants, and on the other, the economic vampires of the region. In addition to the extensive organization
In addition to the administration and courts, Polish Jews also had a nationwide organization.
The supreme body of Jewish self-government was the synod, which met twice a year gathered in Lublin and Yaroslavl. The broader Jewish rights became in In Poland, the more freely their spiritual and material freedom developed, the they themselves were already becoming and the more exceptional their inclination towards Talmudic pedantry. This is where blind fanaticism took root. Polish Jews in the features were famous for their Talmudic casuistry and complete dullness moral sense. Many local writers portray Jews superbly in their works, even characterizing them in satirical poems. All these sad The conclusions are fully justified only in the former Polish provinces. Polish Jews they reached such infancy that they even considered it a virtue to deceive a fellow believer, and not only goy. In the 15th century, Jewish urban communities already existed, i.e. kahals in Vladimir, Lutsk, Kremenets, Ostroh, Kovel. And in Kyiv, the Jews organized
Back in the 15th century, Polish lords were already leasing entire populated estates to Jews.
Numerous contracts of various large landowners have been preserved: the Lysakovskys, the princes Pronsky, princes Sangushkov and others. The estates were given to the Jews for hereditary rent with all profits and income, with the boyars and their duties, with churches and with everything that was given to them for maintenance, with all the hard labor and not taxable, with buildings, work carts, rents, with monetary penalties, with taverns and the sale of all kinds of drinks, etc. Jewish tenants and their descendants could to peacefully own and use such estates and even judge peasants and to punish the guilty and criminals with death. But what happened a hundred years later was are already berries in comparison with what it was a hundred years ago, when they began only flowers. In confirmation of this, a book by a Jewish writer is cited Nathan Hanover: “The Russians who lived in Little Russia were burdened with all sorts of hard work and were subjected to terrible torture, and they were very depressed that the Jews, who stood at a lower level of development, dominated them." The Kabbalistic book "Zohar" was very popular among the Jews at that time. respect, and she predicted the coming of the Messiah in 1648. But instead of the Messiah Bohdan Khmelnytsky arrived. Khmelnytsky's first victories gave the signal for the extermination of Jews. Several were killed in what is now Poltava province.

thousands. Hundreds of Jews renounced their faith, many were captured by the Tatars. Four Jewish communities prevented the massacre by surrendering to the Tatars. The Tatars did not They killed prisoners because they took ransom for them; the Jews, however, eventually ransomed them. Their own—the calculation was direct. On the right bank of the Dnieper, the massacre began in Nemirov. Nemirov was a fortress, and six thousand Jews took refuge behind its walls. A handful of Cossacks 600 people besieged Nemirov and took it thanks to the sympathy of the local population. The Cossacks stormed the city and began to exterminate the Jews. As everywhere else, they spared the young. girls, baptized them and often married them. The massacre in Nemirov was so severe that Jews still remember this day in their prayers. Another detachment of Cossacks attacked Tulchan, where there were two thousand Jews. The Poles themselves handed over the Jews; but the Cossacks did oversight: they promised the Poles that they would be spared if they handed over the Jews, but in between they broke their word and exterminated not only the Jews, but also the Poles. “If the Cossack's word was more honest, the Poles said later, we would have helped ourselves, “They would have exterminated the Jews everywhere, and there would have been no name left for them in Poland.”

Many Poles shared the Cossacks' hatred of Jews. Thus, the hero of the Cossack troops Charnetsky mercilessly exterminated the Jews himself, considering them the main cause of the Cossack uprisings. Tulchin Jews were locked in a garden and offered a choice die or be baptized. They refused baptism - they were killed, the women too They killed everyone except the beauties. Three hundred Jews were saved, hiding among the corpses. Finally, The Cossacks sent out a call for the living to rise up, no longer fearing anything. Jews They actually let them go and even provided them with assistance - popular passions quickly settled down.

Chapter 11

On the extermination and massacre of Jews in Chernigov and Starodub

At the same time, Jews were exterminated in the cities of Chernigov, Starodub and others.

At the same time, one and a half thousand Jews were massacred in Gomel, they did not even spare children. A month later, ten thousand Jews were exterminated in the city of Polonne. Jews
They did not resist, and there were Cossacks who killed two or three hundred of them.
Only a few were saved by receiving baptism.

The Jews fled the country wherever their eyes looked, taking with them valuables, but also They often had to throw things in the middle of the road. They wandered in the open heaven, although they often found protection among the Orthodox themselves. Rising in the morning alive, they read the prayer: "O blessed art Thou, O Lord, who raiseth the dead."
However, the massacre of Jews in the cities continued. Many, after painful wandering through forests and steppes, they returned to the cities, and were killed there. In Zaslav there was Two hundred souls were killed, six hundred in Ostrog. Vyshnevetsky threw the Jews into Starokonstantinov, so as not to burden the troops with them, especially since the Jews were carriers of infection and fatal diseases due to their uncleanliness. Cossacks attacked the abandoned ones and exterminated about three thousand of them. They exterminated especially ferociously Jews after the shameful flight of the Polish army from Pilavitsi; near Dubna More than a thousand Jews were massacred. The Poles did not consider it possible to let them in. city. The strong fortress of Bar fell, and then two thousand Jews perished, and earlier from more than a thousand of them died of plague or typhus. The Lviv community, one of the four most important communities in Poland lost up to ten thousand Jews from hunger and disease during the siege and all the property given to Khmelnitsky as ransom. In addition to the mass Jews were killed one by one on farmsteads and in taverns; they were hunted special units. As soon as the Jews returned to Ostrog, they were massacred there again, and three hundred people died there. The Zboriv Treaty stipulated that Jews did not buy or rent land in Cossack territory. To other places the Little Russian region Jews could return and immediately took advantage of their by law, and the king allowed those who converted to Orthodoxy to re-accept Judaism.

The Jews enjoyed a year and a half of rest, but as soon as a new war began, they They began to exterminate them again. They were exterminated by the hundreds, thousands, and tens of thousands.

However, they had already gained courage, even armed themselves and formed a military squads. The Second Cossack War was unsuccessful, and the peace expanded the rights of the Jews: they were allowed to settle anywhere and rent estates as before. But the war flared up again, and neither in Belarus, nor in Lithuania, nor in Lesser Poland, nor in Greater Poland -

There was no refuge for the Jews anywhere. The Poles themselves began to hate them; the Polish military-
The bosses hanged them without mercy, taking out their anger on them. Particularly relentless was Charnetsky came to them. Some suggest that during the Cossack wars there was Up to 600,000 Jewish families were destroyed.

Chapter 12

The Kahal's struggle with the government

“It is deeply regrettable that until the very last neither our legislation nor administrative practice have adopted this proper view of Jewry as a harmful community and treated him or with "liberal" tolerance, as a religious sect that has the right to freedom of religion and worship, or with some kind of police tendency is questionable-dignity, concentrating all disciplinary power in the hands of state rabbis power over their fellow tribesmen... Thus, by patronizing the "freedom" of the Jewish the doctrine was abandoned by the Jewish heders with their fanatical teachers, the melameds, the old model (and the faith of Moses was mixed, through ignorance, with misanthropic dogmas of the Talmud). Instead of completely to destroy the harmful community, which only covers its own with a religious cloak purely worldly, and at the same time predatory interests and desires, are ours the government, with a zeal that deserves admiration, tried in every possible way to seal Jewry in its outdated medieval shell and to exacerbate those within it it is precisely the harmful qualities with which it declares its presence in all countries peace."

“The preservation – for some unknown good purpose – of the kahals in Riga and in the cities Courland province, despite their formal destruction in all other areas of Jewish settlement, led only to the fact that in the ill-fated Baltic in the provinces, the very same “Jewish culture” that had long ago been
The neighboring Northwestern region has been groaning for a long time.

How many times after that, no matter how many times they were accepted in the highest administrative spheres for reform, every time some magical brake delayed the completion of the matter” (!!).

It is not difficult to guess that there are also positive indications about the force that controlled the “magic brake” and delayed the correct progress of reforms. Derzhavin's note and the formation of the committee immediately raised great alarm in Jewish world. From the published kahal documents of the Minsk Jewish society it turns out that the kahals and “city leaders” gathered in extraordinary meetings every three days and decided to send a delegation to St. Petersburg with the aim of asking the sovereign not to introduce any innovations into Jewish life. And so since this matter “required a lot of expenses” ($1c) then the entire Jewish population was taxed there were in this case very significant fees, the non-payment of which entailed "excommunication from the people" (kherem). From a private note delivered to Derzhavin by one Belarusian landowner, it became known that the Jews also imposed sanctions on the Prosecutor General his herem, combined with a curse on all the kahals in the world, “as on a persecutor.” In addition, they collected a tidy sum of one million for “gifts” for this case. rubles and sent to St. Petersburg, asking “to make efforts to replace him, Derzhavin, with positions, and if that is not possible, then at least make an attempt on his life” (Notes Derzhavina. Moscow, 1860, p. 794). After this grand attempt by the Jewish bribery and intimidation with death are not surprising and other attempts of that same kind, stretching throughout the times of the emergence and activity of various Jewish committees and commissions. Some were paid for a "vote" favorable to the Jews, others for silence at the rate of the servants of the golden calf. Meanwhile, there was an intensified falsification of Jewish dogmatic books, with the aim of distracting the eyes of Christians from the true meaning of the Talmudic code...

A draft was also attached to the note by G. R. Derzhavin, submitted to the committee in 1802. reforms, which, among other things, proposed to destroy the kahals in all in the provinces populated by Jews, abolish all kahal taxes and limit the influx Jews in a known percentage relation to the Christian population, and the rest mass - to allocate lands in the Astrakhan and Novorossiysk provinces, appointing resettlement of the poorest; finally allow the Jews who do not want to to submit to these restrictions, to freely go abroad (which is what they are offered and now with the help of the Zionists). These measures indicated by Derzhavin were not approved by the government, probably thanks to the same “magic brake”, o which is stated in the official report of the commission under the Ministry of Internal Affairs. On the contrary, the regulation on Jews, developed in 1804, continues to develop the separateness of Jewish communities on Russian soil, i.e. to strengthen the kahals with their independence, fiscal, judicial, police and educational. However, the idea of expelling Jews from the western region continued to occupy the government and the outcome of the 1804 situation. The consequence of this was the establishment in the Novorossiysk region (since 1808) Jewish colonies, in which the government hoped - but in vain! - to re-educate the Jews and, having accustomed them to productive agricultural work, change in this way the entire parasitic structure of their community. Nevertheless, even in these communities In the Raztsov colonies, the kahal-rabbinical administration retained its former a harmful meaning, and new settlements again became isolated from Christian societies, without thinking of merging with them either nationally or culturally sense. The government not only did not oppose the isolation of the Jews, but even came up with the idea of establishing one for the so-called “Israeli Christians” (i.e. (Talmudists converting to Orthodoxy) a special committee that existed from 1817 until 1833

Since the 20s of the current century, legislative acts on the Jewish question become more and more shy, and the Jews are gradually brought under administrative control and police supervision, but kahal management continues to serve as an intermediary in government relations with the Jewish community. This management even expands the scope of its actions, taking control of even more not only the Ilebei-Alshgares, but also the traitorous Moreine (Jewish aristocrats). Thus, for example, in 1827, when the Jews were subjected to general conscription, the choice and the supply of recruits is provided to the societies themselves, which, in order to fulfill their orders on this subject may elect attorneys (Polit. Sobr. Zak, No. 1.330, $27); in practice, however, the kahal bigwigs and they have seized a new terrible right - to give away "under the red cap" as a set-off subsequent recruitments, each member of his society who broke allegiance Jewish conspiracy or apostasy from the ritual of Talmudic orthodoxy. In 1835 a new regulation on Jews appears, in which the kahal-public isolation is already at the highest stage of its development. According to this position, the kahals are directly called a “department”, to which the “class of Jews” is assigned, and their duty is to carry out all the instructions exactly authorities related to this class, as well as the entire financial part for collecting and spending the kahal funds collected from the Jews. The office of rabbi, performed under an agreement with the kahal, it covers a very wide range of activities: it oversees the purity of the rites of worship (what tender care for the Jewish faith!), instructs the Jews in the true sense of their law (a rabbi always has this duty) performed conscientiously in the spirit of the misanthropic Shulchan Aruch), directs them "to the observance of moral duties (i.e. immorality requirements of the Talmud) and to “obedience to general state laws and established authorities" (to this obedience the rabbis, and even more so the tzaddikim - priests the most fanatical Jewish sect of the Hasidim - never bowed their co-religious flock, for this would contradict the fundamental requirements of the Jewish law). Finally, the rabbi, by virtue of this "regulation," keeps special registers of births Jews, which again led in practice to many different abuses in in the form of omission of census souls and incorrect designation of years and names. "Regulations", True, it was stipulated that the rabbi could exercise his authority over his fellow tribesmen to use only by means of "persuasion and exhortation" that he has no right to punish the Jews subject to his admonition with "penalties, curses and expulsion from society (herem)", but these good-natured reservations remained empty words.

mi, and "herem" was very recently pronounced against the editor of one Russian-Jewish newspaper for his treacherous departure from the sanctity of Talmudism.

Chapter 13

Destruction of the kahals

In 1841, the kahals were destroyed everywhere except Riga and the Courland province, and the Jews are subject to city and district administrations in their places of residence general basis. The highest approved regulation on this subject states, that "no special Jewish administration should exist," and boxed collections have been transferred to city councils and town halls. At the same time, the responsibilities of the kahals
The responsibility for box collection is assigned to Jewish (certainly "Jewish"!) collectors taxes; the correct collection of this tax is placed under the supervision of the police and public authorities (observation is purely fictitious).

It would seem, finally, that our government, having parted with the idea of Jewish self-government, i.e., more precisely, Jewish arbitrariness, having destroyed, at least, only 4 Age, the evil kahals, were freed forever from the heavy shackles. But it was not so on in fact, even in this favorable outcome, the commission of the 70s itself disappoints us years, to whose works we have the opportunity to refer.

"Despite the destruction of the kahals," the report of this commission asserts, " Jews still have plenty of resources for national isolation. Even in
In the legislative acts that followed 1844, there is no particular insistence on 'elimination of this isolation... 1845 the existing special collection from Sabbath candles for the maintenance of Jewish schools; established under The Ministry of Internal Affairs has established a "rabbinical commission" to resolve opinions and questions related to the rules of the Jewish faith (again, unnecessary concern for purity Talmudic orthodoxy!). In 1852, Jews were allowed to have their own special workshops; They bear state taxes and duties separately from Christians, for which They consist of assemblies, the center of which are synagogues; boxed a collection that partly ensures the receipt of state taxes from Jewish societies, remains in the hands of Jewish elected officials; the arbitration court (beth din) continues to act on Talmudic grounds. The actual name of the kahals was destroyed, but the appointment of the college of elders is hardly (again this modest "hardly"! - I. L) not remains the same."

What is the significance of the kahal when leaving the box collection in the hands of the “Jewish tax collectors”, and the registers of births - in the hands of the rabbis continues not “hardly”, but probably remain the same, - he categorically testified to this in the 70s the then Kiev Governor-General Prince A. M. Dondukov-Korsakov, and therefore proposed: either to completely abolish the box tax, replacing it with another tax, or at least to snatch it from the hands of the all-powerful synagogue.

“Jewishness - Judaism - is not only a religious belief; it is a special legislation (that's absolutely true!), which accompanies the Jew throughout his life, concerns his family, property and social rights and duties; it does not impose any moral obligations on its followers duties; it frees Jews from obedience to general state laws… (again, that's right! - I. L.). Not a single Jew voluntarily, morally conviction of the need to fulfill a civic duty will not pay any taxes or duty imposed by general laws, if he can, under any pretext, not pay… A Jew, convicted of a misdemeanor and crime, does not see the punishment deserved punishment and is subject to this punishment only as inevitable a misfortune that one must try to avert or mitigate by all means, at least and illegal. With such an attitude of the Jews towards the society in which they live, and it is impossible to provide them with the protection of the state the right to manage one's own finances, set fees and enjoy one's abundant resources funds for purposes not consistent with the types of government, and probably even those completely hostile to national and governmental interests.

Between serious statesmen of Russia who love their Fatherland and familiar firsthand with Jewish customs, economic and the moral evil of Talmudism has long been beyond any dispute, and only Jewish "gifts" and "petitions" could interfere with the proper distribution and application of this view. But in the 60s, Jewish gifts were joined by and the no less pernicious influence of “Jewish liberalism”, which is what distinguishes it from Russian liberalism, which chooses as the object of its sympathies an illegitimate (economic, social and moral) freedom of the Russian people, and special kind of "freedom"... - Jewish exploitation, Jewish parasitism and prowling... Under the influence of this “liberalism”, which half sincerely (out of ignorance) ours in the Jewish faith), and half selfishly, for Jewish handouts, took over some areas of our society and a significant part of the press, - for all kinds of benefits and condescensions in favor of the supposedly persecuted tribe were opened a wide and meaningless expanse. And indeed, at this time, "benefits" and "rights" rained down on the Jews like from a cornucopia, and Derzhavin's wise warnings, his far-sighted advice - to open wide the foreign gates to the Jews (advice repeated later by Count N. P. Ignatiev) were unceremoniously attributed to obscurantism and the stupidity of the "singer Felitsa", who in this case turned out to be insightful statesman.

During the 10-15 years of the reign of Alexander II, new laws were given to the Jews rights: for the production of trade, crafts, for the acquisition of real estate property, by establishing banking offices, by occupying positions in the state donation service, and not only to the native Jews, who still turned out to be not enough to benefit Russia with Jewish culture, but also "foreign nationals, bankers and heads of well-known companies visiting from abroad significant (?) trading houses." Jewish merchants of the 1st guild who stayed in this Guild members for at least 5 years can be registered in our merchant class in all cities empire and in the Transcaucasian region together with members of their families; all Jews receive the right to appear “for a time” (and this time lasted for years!) in the interests of trade to the inner cities of Russia; Jewish farmers “satisfactorily arranged their own farm”, are awarded the right to “enroll in guilds and produce trade and crafts according to established certificates"; Jews with diplomas for academic degrees, "are admitted to service in all departments"; those who have completed the course Gymnasium students with medals are included in the personal honorary citizenship. Merchants 1st Talmudic guilds are seeking the right to keep almost hundreds of them Jewish "clerks" (Mr. Lazar Polyakov used this right in Moscow in the most unlimited limits); "learned Jews" with a diploma in their pocket continue to engage in the most ordinary business dealings, and the police authorities are already looking turn a blind eye to this "scientific" activity. Land ownership in Crimea, - in the best part of Russia in terms of climate - was given over to the Jews for plunder in 1861. Finally a series of these permissive and permissive measures culminated in 1865 with permission — “to Jewish mechanics, distillers, brewers and generally craftsmen and artisans to live throughout the empire." Everyone knows what the result was. broad permission, which de {asyu almost completely abolished the Jewish line settled and flooded, for example, Moscow with such a mass of Jewish “masters” (according to parts of usury), "mechanics" (in the department of cunning mechanics) and pseudo-shoemakers, watchmakers, tailors, etc., that they had to be subsequently collected in droves to evict from the white-stone capital… At the same time, it will not be superfluous to add that if the operation of checking craft occupations should be applied with the same rigor to Petersburg, which has been teeming with Jewish signs lately, is undoubtedly also the local Berdichev and Shklov newcomers would have to do the same in exactly the same energetic way. But even all these benefits seemed insufficient to the zealous advocates. to the promoters of “Jewish culture,” and in the depths of the Jewish commission itself in 1872, there were sounds votes (Mr. Turner and Myagkov) in favor of Jews “engaged in trade {without distinction of guild), trades and crafts" (those same "crafts", which they were engaged in in Moscow!) were allowed to settle in all areas empires.

TREATISE UP ON THE BEHAVIOR OF THE JEWS IN FOREIGN STATES

Chapter 1

Jews in France

Jews play an important role in financial affairs in France. Many of them The previous positions of managers and treasurers were combined with banking, which as a result, they became very profitable official positions. More than once The Ministry of Finance was in the hands of converted Jews (Fulda, Baroha). Jews do not seek other positions, although there has been open space for Jews there for about a century. access to government positions.

The great period of "colour" in the sixties that ended in "crash" was first of all, the work of the Jews Pereira, Mires, Fould, Rothschild, Salmon, Gal-Fen, Sieber, Bischofsheim, Goldschmidt, Konigswarter, Schnapper, Baroch, Stern, Bamberger, Grininger, Cremieux, Günzburg, Offenheim, Rodrigue, Salvador, Erlanger, Eichtel, Thurneysen, Salamanca, etc. We know most of these names we currently find ourselves at the head and management of all significant joint-stock companies societies. The Northern Trading Company was controlled by Rothschild, and besides Three other Rothschilds sat on the board of directors. On the board of directors of "Western and The Paris-Lyon Railway Company again contains many of them. And so three of the six large railway companies owning millions ardami, are in the hands of those families whose members also participate in a whole series joint-stock companies. It is believed that Rothschild during the famous period of collapses various joint-stock companies founded such companies for the amount of 1800 millions. The affairs of almost all of these societies were going badly, but they brought their founders up to 700 million.

The most luxurious castle Eegpege$ ever to exist in France, former the main residence of Emperor Wilhelm, now belongs to a Jew Rothschild, who could spend 50 or 60 million on it. In addition, Rothschild is looking to acquire famous vineyards and some of them are already bought. Complaints are already being made about Jews who seized vineyards in France in his own hands. Of course, it will end with him setting the price of wine according to his own at your discretion.

The attitude of Alsace and Lorraine towards Jews is best seen from the fact that after every political upheaval, people's hatred turned against them and required special protective measures. Lichva makes Jews hateful for people. Thus, there are many cities and factory settlements where Jews tried to confuse and stop the trade of every Christian merchant, which to this day they do it with great success. Hundreds and thousands of Alsatians moved into the interior France because in their own country, thanks to the intervention of the Jews, they could not establish a single trading business.

Most of the financial affairs in Paris are in the hands of 30,421 Jews who Here they are exclusively engaged in monetary transactions and trade. Jewish the charity committee gives loans to the poorest of its fellow believers for petty and peddling trade, which often later become large traders. The recently deceased bookseller Michel-Levy, who started out with petty trade, made several million. Countless palaces in Paris belong to Jews. Jews who made millions in Russia (such as Polyakov, Varshavsky, Ginzburgs and others) during the construction of railways, all live in Paris with extraordinary luxury. Paris and France, wanting to be first in Europe with an exalted humanity, they compared the Jews with full citizenship rights.

Jews were even allowed to serve as officers in the military. What happened?
The sad story of Captain Dreyfus. It's good that this was all done in advance.

it was revealed and everything was stopped, otherwise a worse misfortune could have followed seventies. A Talmudic Jew cannot be faithful and devoted Christian state. He is an enemy of Christians in his religious teachings, his the goal is to arrange and facilitate that Christians are cut down, exterminated, so that there were fewer Christians, but only so that the Jews remained safe and the money went to the Christians captured. The Jew breathes only malice towards the Christians, this cannot be believed, that He speaks and proves that it's all a pretense for the time being. A Jew has an innate Fiscalism and treason, for him it all happens like an auction, to see who can pay the most.

The Jew considers all Christian states to be temporary, and that according to them
According to the prophecy, the time will come when the Jews will be the rulers of all states.

What kind of Jewish commander can there be in a Christian state under such circumstances?
confidence in his religious teachings. The Jew is a conspirator against all Christians states.

Chapter 2

In Austria, the main kahal corporation of Jews

The Austrian Emperor, as is known, between various honorary He also bears the title of "King of Jerusalem." He hardly ever been proud of it, and probably didn't even attach any real significance to it.
teachings... until one of the ceremonial visits to Krakow I saw in front of a whole surging sea of curled sidelocks and long-skirted lapels Jewish tribe. "Yes, now I understand why they call me king.
"Jerusalem!" - the venerable monarch allegedly said, looking willy-nilly at numerous crowds of their Semitic subjects. After the overthrow of the Slavic Badeni's ministry, which was formed from a fairly strong coalition of Polish and Czech deputies, the emperor could also remember his Palestinian title and admit that he wears it for a reason. There is no doubt that the German the party in the Viennese Reichsrat, in its fierce hatred of the Slavs, pushed back background even the anti-Semitism of some of its members and, without shame, extended a hand "Jerusalem nobles" who have long felt themselves to be "masters of the situation" in Austro-Hungarian dualism and already received the right to mixed marriages with Christians — to baptize or circumcise children at the will of the parents. Obviously, the most Catholic The Austrian monarch, the "eldest son" of the Roman Church, had already become intimidated by the king Jerusalem, proclaiming in his state the equality of the Gospel with Shulchan Arukh, and the commandments of love for humanity - with the dark medieval covenants misanthropy. However, this is not even equality, but obvious hegemony, which is always arranged by the “chosen tribe” under the cover of their political and civil rights: Viennese Germans and Jews raged within the very walls legislative assembly until they achieved their goal, i.e., non-eruption Polish Prime Minister; but when the Czechs decided to repeat in Prague only a small part Jewish-German opposition against the newly appointed ministry anti-Slavic character, - then Baron Gautsch immediately rolled out a stern rebuke to the Czechs lesson first a small siege, and then "martial law", {(, s arbitrary arrests and military field commissions instead of peacetime courts time.

It is impossible not to notice that not a single political regime, of all known never in history has it been exploited by Jews so cleverly and so seemingly “correctly” as it is precisely the notorious parliamentary form of government that indicates some the organic vice of parliamentarism with its theory of "arithmetic majority". One extra vote when voting on a bill decides the fate of the law, and very often not in favor of justice and impartiality. Several obvious and principled opponents of the new law did not appear for one reason or another meeting; but, on the contrary, his selfish or unselfish ones came in full force. defenders: opposite - in their aspirations - parties, wanting to annoy common enemy, they arranged a friendly camouflage against him, so that in his place to continue the old discords - and so the country is obliged for many and for many years to bow her head under the yoke prepared for her by the supposedly “people’s "elected ones." We say: "supposedly" popular, because the so-called "elected ones" "costs", always connected with overt or covert bribery of voters, give it is absolutely right to say that it is not the “salt of the earth” that ends up in the country’s favorite people, and often - scum, only with thick pockets and a docile soul… Where is the bribery, there is a Jew; where there is a Jew, bribery is certainly practiced. What is correct the country of England in terms of maintaining the prestige of parliamentarism, but also in this palladium of political freedom John Stuart Mill, having tasted only once the charm of the "election costs" generously assumed by his rich fans, did not want to run for re-election, despite all the requests and appeals to his civic sense. All the main arteries of parliamentary government: banks, stock exchange and press, quite “free”... in shameless falsification public opinion - all of them have long been at the disposal of Jewish kahal, whose seat is everywhere and nowhere, i.e. the kahal is omnipresent, but so that he can never be caught red-handed, although the kahal smell can be heard in all the scoundrelism, in all the most unceremonious dealings, in every demoralization - private, political or commercial. The world, according to the prediction of the Shulhan-Arukh, repeated in the statute "AShapse 12taeShe", - must belong to the Jews, and for the convenience of possessing this world, they can put on any masks they want, if only to remain in their souls the sons of the Israelite tribe. The property of the goyim (i.e. all non-Jews) belongs to them only temporarily, until the legal transition to Jewish hands. In the zoological ladder created by Jewish naturalists, the goy occupies the very last step - below the dog and the donkey. If the goyim are given human form, it is only so that the orthodox Talmudists would not be disgusted accept slavish services from them! Not yet knowing any of this, but naively believing in universal "natural morality", the French revolutionaries of the 18th century mistook a hawk for a cuckoo, granting the inhabitants of the Parisian ghetto all the rights of the French citizenship and by no means foreseeing that an insignificant - in number and significance - bunch of others fledgling Jews, having gained momentum over time, will play out in life countries even more dangerous role than the legitimate nobility of the old regime, so mercilessly exterminated by the convention... Blood still flowed in the veins of this nobility the French people; it has rendered serious services to its nation in the field of war, diplomacy, science and literature; and the visiting Jew always looked to France, - as well as to all the countries where fate brought him - as an object of no importance restrained exploitation, like a lemon, after squeezing which, all that remains is throw away its crust... The later French did not repeat this mistake and, while expelling, for example, the Jesuits from their territory, they did not allow themselves to be averted the ghosts of "freedom" and "religious tolerance", did not mix purely religious teachings with a socially harmful community that has set a goal, incomcontaining the most essential foundations of civil society. Rochefort He rightly says that where even one Jew has infiltrated, he will bring with him a whole a hundred of his relatives, and they, together, under the pressure of a close conspiratorial colidarity, will begin to exploit everything around them until their last resources are exhausted juices...

The history of "Jewish equality" in France only confirmed fears all sincere patriots, from clerics to moderate republicans and ending with the most stubborn "intransigents." By the end of the "century of Jewish equality" it turned out that in France a third of the prefect's seats belong to Jews; the state bank together with large private banking houses is kept in check by Rothschild; the Chamber of Deputies is full of Jews and their creatures; the best hotels and the richest shops fell into Jewish hands. The seal became a servant of the Jewish kahal, despite the strong protest rising - by by the recognition of Francis Sarsay - from all the most intelligent strata of the French society. Jews have already begun to be called "I s 1Ƒisis", approaching in this in the case of Professor Dühring's theory of "harmful races" in humanity, similar to that How harmful breeds exist in the world of animals and insects...

One of the most striking manifestations of the catholic force in France (and of all Jews in this Not long ago, the country had between 200 and 300 people, i.e. thirty times less than in Russia!) serves the recent arousal of the question of the innocence of a Jew Dreyfus, who sold secret plans to the German embassy for money French Ministry of War. If this misfortune had not befallen a pure-blooded Jew, he would quietly live out his shameful life on Devil's Island, where he hid it unanimous verdict of seven military judges, according to the testimony of three dozen officers ditch; but the French court touched upon the "honor of the kahal," and it spoke up, three years later after the verdict, - having found a person to fall in love with instead of Dreyfus (namely: Major Esterhazy), and having gathered a whole syndicate of Jewish bankers for equipment of this matter in parliament and the press... Newspapers that do not print anything for free, - rochg [e5 Beaih whoever it was, - began to fill with pathetic lamentations about to the address of the innocent victim Dreyfus and furious diatribes against French Ministry of War; a pious old senator was also found (Scherer-Kestner), although undoubtedly of Jewish origin, but with “impeccably clean reputation", who swore by Aaron's beard to clear the dirt-stained his worthy fellow tribesman. So that this choir cannot do without an outstanding fiction soloist, was invited to participate in the court funeral service for "unjustly murdered" and the notorious novelist Emile Zola, who went to kiss the papal slipper, and now worshiping... the golden calf of the Jewish-Parisian bankers. Zola knows "rich, powerful Jews, and without a fatherland (51c), who will begin underground work with the help of their millions to tear Dreyfus out of of this matter, bribing the conscience, creating a terrible conspiracy in France, so that only restore the honor of the guilty, at least by replacing him with an innocent one." Zola knows all this and even has the courage to quote the truthful talk of honest people in France; but he, - If you please, I am personally convinced of Dreyfus's innocence and categorically denies his involvement in this matter.

Chapter 3

Kagal action in Galicia and Hungary

The Lviv Statistical Bureau published a report which revealed the plight of the Galician peasant class. This report shows that In Galicia, 2,600 peasant families lose their land every year property through auction sale and are thus subjected to deepest poverty. In 1891, the number of auctions of peasant land plots extended to 2170, but since then this number has been constantly increasing and finally in in the last reporting year reaches 2806. The value of annually sold peasant property extends to 4Y› million guilders, but this is only assessed value; for a peasant farmer, his plot has, of course, much greater value. From the statistics it is clear that the majority peasants lost their property due to the most insignificant debt claims, sometimes not exceeding 25 guilders. These figures hide a truly astonishing a social tragedy. Thousands of peasant families in Galicia are unable to pay off insignificant debts and are therefore deprived of their father's inheritance. Most of the debts consist of those double and triple bills that the Jews present for payment for the products taken from them on credit, mainly vodka, bread, tea and sugar. The main reason for the ruin of the Galician peasantry is Jewish moneylenders who carry out their systematic work very diligently exploitation with the assistance of their kahals, despite strict laws against usury. Kahals protect all kinds of criminal cases, free prisoners, criminals and every crime are justified.

Persons involved in resolving various issues that are the inevitable result of the settled life of Jews, should become familiar with how This situation is not only here in Russia, but also in other countries. Hungary is in this respect a completely special country, different even from its neighbors with her Galicia. Of course, in Galicia the manager is also a Jew; the illustrious gentleman the Pole gives his Russian peasants there to be eaten by the Jew, who himself is under the ferula, but still this true Jewish commander is hidden behind the scenes and external decency is observed.

It's not like that in Hungary. There are a million Jews there - the masters, recognized as such and officially, and officially. The Magyars, in themselves, are too weak to to dominate Hungary, called upon the Jews for help and not only gave them
Slavs head, in full exploitation, but even of all the peoples inhabiting Hungary, only Jews were granted equal rights under the sole on the condition that they adopt Magyar names and speak Magyar.

“The result came quickly: the money was concentrated in Jewish hands.
The peasants are ruined. Castles and farms by the thousands have passed into Jewish hands," and the Magyars found themselves completely dependent on the Jews. In 1862, according to Dr. Gorsky, Jews did not own a single inch of land in Hungary, but now they own more than a third of all land belongs to them. In the country of the Slovaks, which was once the center of the Slavs, where the glorious Svyatopolk after Samo laid the foundation of the Great Slavic Kingdom,
The Nitra Committee is now located here. This place should be considered a shrine for everyone.
Slavs from the White to the Adriatic Sea. Meanwhile, says Gorsky, at present At the time, the Nitra committee was entirely Jewish. Three Jews owned 100,000 there.
hectares. Of the 3,192 large landholdings in Hungary, 1,031 belong to Jews.
The Magyars fought with the Germans and Slavs for the primacy of language and political influence, but the Jew wormed his way between them and took everything into his own hands."

Hungarian aristocrat consoles himself by marrying the daughter of a Jewish man the moneylender and that this moneylender is an even more bitter hater of the Slavs, than himself. He knows that in Thessaloniki a Jew is leading the Turks in the extermination Slavs, and in Hungary the same Jew will help put a Slav in prison, having previously ruined it.

Although most of the socialist organs are run by Jews, nevertheless at least one of them, "He Rei rIe ie Sepeue", was found valiant enough to do so, to expose Jewish atrocities in Hungary. From its issue of April 11, we learn that the Slavic laborer, male and female, receives daily wages of 25 to 30 kopecks a day and that such a beggarly salary and various other oppressions force Slavs are migrating en masse to the United States.

This courageous protest is all the more remarkable because it comes from an environment in which which is dominated by Russian Jewry. According to the Count's peculiar interpretation of his teachings

Tolstoy about patriotism, there Russian patriotism is subject to contempt spitting, but the attack on Jewish patriotism is unthinkable insolence.

However, protests against Jewish terror in Hungary are beginning to move forward.
a little bit everywhere, even where the Jews enjoy the most complete favor.
This is the harbinger of a storm that threatens the kingdom of St. Stephen and especially Croatia.

In Croatia, the Croatian ban Kun-Gedervari - a baptized Jew - is already beginning to lose his head, for courage, like that of every true Jew, is not his main virtue. The reaction against the Jews is even more clearly outlined than against the Magyars. “If there were no Jews,” one of the great patriots in Zagreb told me, “I I think we could still come to an agreement with the Magyars."

The Croats cannot forgive the Jews for inciting them in the past. year against their brothers the Serbs. The Serbo-Croatian strife was inflamed by the Jews, and not
It will not be surprising if the Serbs unite with Croats against their common enemies and exploiters of the Jews.

The official report of the Hungarian government has appeared in Pest Commissioner Egan on the situation of the Russian population in northern Hungary. Egan depicts in the darkest colours the agricultural conditions in northern Hungary and expresses regret that the fragmentation of land plots has created agricultural proletariat, which is not even able to extract from the earth necessary food products. In such an agricultural state as Hungary exists, unfortunately, an agricultural population to such an extent impoverished, that it feeds year after year on oatmeal and potatoes and never sees no meat, no milk, no eggs; rye or wheat bread appears only in annuals holidays. This population eats up its meager reserves by the New Year, and then forced to buy food. The situation of the Russian peasantry in the northern Hungary is becoming even more unbearable due to the vile Jewish exploitation. It is easy for the Jews to deal with this population through their economic superiority and suck the last juices out of it; in the northern
There are areas in Hungary where Jews have taken over 50% of the land from the peasants. property. Having large capital at their disposal, Jews literally dominate life, annual earnings and the entire future of the rural population. The peasant-
The landowner is in complete serfdom with the Jews. Usury is practiced on a colossal scale: the loan is arranged in such a way that 30% per annum represent the lowest percentage level; if the peasant is very if he needs it, the loan reaches 60 and even 100%. Jews are willing to give money under the future harvest, but at the same time, of course, they set the lowest price for bread. They terrorize local officials and priests and have set fire to them and threatened them on more than one occasion them with murder if they reported to the higher authorities on the moneylenders. Egan says in in his report that lower-ranking officials not only do not support the people, but are in strike with Jewish moneylenders and help them get rich at the expense of the Russian population. He ends his report by stating that if the government does not provide timely assistance to the Russian population of northern Hungary, then it is inevitable will die.

Chapter 4
Kahal action of Jews in Germany

Spiritual, especially political, dominance of Jews in Berlin marked itself by the fact that the Christian population was more than twenty times larger the city's "intelligentsia" population tolerates them, or, more correctly, desires them; half Berlin officials from the Jews, and the representative of the city bureaucracy, Dr. Shtrosman is a Jew.

Cases of rapid rise of Jews, similar to the rise of the bookseller Levi, about whom we learn from the Paris letter, is not uncommon. He recently arrived in Berlin.
one Poznan Jew, for whom several thalers constituted capital. In
At present he owns several millions and lives in the best part of the city; but several joint-stock companies, of which he was the founder, were completely ruined, millions of the urban middle class perished in this society.

If, based on such particular cases, we look at the social situation Jewry in general, we will see that Jewish wealth, luxury and lust grow infinitely, and the fact that "ssishs Is" wrote for fourteen years
What was said about Jews in Prussia and especially in Berlin is still true today.

“In Prussia there is one Jew for every 100 people (and according to the 1871 census, for every 76).
There are no Jews among the day laborers and workers. This work is too hard for them.
in the artisan class, sometimes Jews are found as factory managers, that is, forcing others to work for them. Let's count the stores with large display windows, bankers, homeowners in Tigacepgazze and Oshcheg yep Glidep, doctors, lawyers, and We will find many Jews. The former Jewish houses in Berlin are populated by Germans; Jews
On the contrary, they live in palaces and castles.

Count the dressed-up loafers, stock market players, visitors public places, public festivities, newspaper readers, speakers in the Verein, visitors to balls, theaters, mineral waters, and for every hundred Jews you rarely come across one German, whereas in comparison with the population the ratio should be the opposite.
Wherever you turn, you will see a Jew, while the German sits at home, working hard faces so that the gentlemen Jews could have fun.

In Germany, there has been a constant and unceasing problem in recent times. agitation against Jews. Until recently, no one could point to any fact there, unfavorable for the Jews without causing a whole storm against themselves in seals; the latter, without the slightest embarrassment, branded such a daredevil with a shameful nickname barbarian, religious fanatic, informer; it was allowed to destroy as much as one wanted the national shortcomings of the French, the English, the Russians, even the Germans themselves can be was subjected to the most vicious and unjust ridicule with impunity - and by this The half-Jewish and Jewish press of Germany widely used this right. But to say a bold word of truth, unpleasant to a Jew, was considered such until recently an unforgivable crime, with which nothing could compare. And suddenly - or by at least apparently suddenly - in the same Germany there is a complete change of scenery: in in the press and in life there is protest after protest against the Jews; they are growing hourly in anti-Jewish societies in cities and villages; bookstore exhibitions are constantly being decorated with new brochures related to the Ji - and, to my shame, Jews, many anti-Jewish brochures belong to the Jews themselves, who could not resist against the temptation of business in this matter. In short, the Jewish question arose with all its accessories, appeared and develops in all its instructive nakedness.
It comes to the point that the Breslau voters - at least the majority of them - they swear to each other under no circumstances to elect a Jew as a deputy. In the dispute people of science intervene, and the strict, impartial, weighty word of these people finally pesters the proud German Jewry: for one article they object with fury in 10 articles, and this way, by the way, is the best way to help achieving the goal that anti-Jewish agitation in Germany is striving for. Jews in their impotent anger they become immeasurably heated, and that's when those sides of Jewish nature that gave rise to and justify mainly real agitation: boundless self-confidence and conceit, pride, intolerance and hatred towards all non-Jews and boundless pretension towards all rights, not excluding the rights of a soulless, usurious, strictly considered exploitation of the local non-Jewish population.

The greatest anger was caused among German Jews by the articles of the Berlin scientist and professor Heinrich von Treitschke (N. u. Treitschke), placed by him in his interesting magazine "sish Jhh", which were then published as a separate edition and contributed greatly to establishing the correct view of the significance of Judaism in Germany. They provoked a mass of response articles and pamphlets in which words and thoughts Treichke, of course, was distorted and perverted in the most unceremonious way in a way, despite the fact - or perhaps precisely because Treitschke was setting out his thoughts with imperturbable calm and confirmed them impartially with selected, overwhelming facts. However, Treitschke, in essence, only developed what he had outlined in his earlier works, and what remained then just as much little noticed, how, on the contrary, his current articles have aroused enormous interest, which arose at a moment when general consciousness had already awakened in Germany the danger threatening the development of Germany from Jewry.

German Jews are particularly displeased with the assurance of such an authoritative figure, as Treichke, that he has been observing the emergence and growth of the image for a long time, more than 20 years thoughts, which has now resulted in anti-Jewish agitation, which the Jews, with their sides are trying to shift the blame onto the shoulders of German conservatives and clerics, hoping in this way to win over progressives and liberals to their side. But in the point is that in the consciousness of the ever-increasing danger threatening Germany from the Jewish side, all parties come together, everyone is united by concerns about that, How to eliminate this danger.

However, it is unlikely that Treitschke is entirely right in placing the blame mainly on Polish Jews. German Jews could always argue with Polish Jews, which is proven already with the hatred that the population of Alsace felt towards German Jews back in the end of the last century. This hatred was so great that it was taken into account Constituent Assembly in France: it respected the statement of the Alsatian representatives Lei Mori and Ravbel, who protested against granting the Jews of Alsace the same On December 24, 1789, the Christian assembly decided to postpone the decision on the issue. about the rights of the Jews. A month later, on January 26, 1790, it was decided to grant rights citizenship to Jews of southern origin, the so-called Spanish Jews (Ge5 i s 50$ l s 1$ |5 ï 11$). were extended to German Jews only a year and a half later, in September 1791 g., and it seems that at that time, more than ever, the ideas of equality and brotherhood... However, even in ancient times, as Pliny testifies, Quintilian, Tacitus, Juvenal and others, Jews enjoyed only sincere hatred non-Jewish peoples; Tacitus, for example, speaking about the Jews, says that this tribe is - oisht repegis hshtapi.

Germany today has granted civil rights to its Jewish population.
rights, and, of course, says Treyche, no one will demand or even hint from us the need to return to the old order in this regard. But at the same time It is impossible not to point out that the German Jews responded to the Germans not with gratitude, but arrogance and demanding demands, which reveal desire to limit the rights of the Christian majority in their favor. It is extremely characteristic, for example, that such demands are extended by Jews even to the very beliefs Christians. Treitsche gives the following example: in Linz, on the Rhine, there is a Catholic public school attended by several Jewish boys.

It is clear that the latter are exempt from attending the lessons of the Law of God, taught by Catholic priests, who, by the way, use it for these lessons by the leadership, where, according to the Holy Scripture, it is said that the Jews crucified innocent Christ. Upon learning of this, the local synagogue council appealed to the government petition to remove this book from the list of manuals as inciting hatred towards Jews! The Jews, i.e. the minority, are thus declaring their rights in the name of tolerance their own interference in the affairs of the Christian faith, while at the same time demanding complete freedom for themselves. Many such examples could be given, and Treichke quite rightly notes that now is the time to resist such demands; that we cannot wait for the moment when the German heads are the terror of such a sensitive minority, nurtured by boundless cowardly German patience.

The excessively sensitive touchiness of the Jews draws attention to itself special attention. They are so painfully impressionable, says Treitschke, that they you can't figure out what to call them when you talk about them. Semite - it seems extremely offensive; Israeli also sounds offensive; they, finally, equally dislike both Jew and Yid.

Meanwhile, these touchy Jews, who claim the right even to censor spiritual Christian books to cleanse them of expressions that incite hatred among Christians against the Jews, - they are not at all embarrassed to denigrate Christianity in every possible way. Preaching tolerance, but they persecute Jews who convert to Christianity,
"going over to the enemy camp," etc. Christianity, say representatives the Jewish intelligentsia in the press, “dug a chasm between themselves and reason”; "Christianity does not preach love and brotherhood at all," which are also, must be a privilege of Jewry. As a lesson to the Germans themselves, Treitschke gives some flattering reviews of his compatriots from one of the touchy ones Jews, who assert, for example, that “the Germans were the first to establish slavery and serfdom”; that the feeling of humanity was awakened in the Germans by the Jews, that without Börne and Heine, the language Lessing and Goethe would continue to be a rough language, etc. All this is sprinkled constantly with the most vile, malicious abuse against the Germans. Speaking about the persecution Jews in Copenhagen in 1819, the Jews claim that “the rabble of the Danish capital was enraged and incited by German merchants"; the case of the defense of Jews Heidelberg professor Thibault and several students from the furious mob is explained by the fact that the contact of these defenders with the French made them more humane." And it turns out that if you don’t turn around, they beat you; if you turn over, they beat you.

Poor Germans!

Chapter 5

The well-being of Jews in Germany

In Germany, Jews, like us, enjoy a large average income. prosperity than Christians; this is already proven by the fact that in Berlin at that time, Just as there is 1 Jew for every 20 people in the population, there is 1 Jew for every 10 students.
If we add to this that in Germany, as with us, Jews settle mainly in cities, where the pulse of the state beats predominantly life, then it becomes easy to understand the fear that arouses in the Germans the enormous influence of the Jewish element on this life. There is no dispute that among the Jews there are, says Treitschke, people who are quite respectable, devoted to Germany, but next to these individual personalities there is a crowd of international scribblers, people who are not finally, there are a lot of international rich people who recognize no homeland dark personalities who fill the ranks of antisocial elements, which is already proven by the wealth of Hebrew words in the language of the swindlers in Germany. “The influence of Jews in the German press is enormous, and if anyone points it out to me, writes Treitschke, - on newspapers and magazines published by Christians, then I must remind that, according to the consciousness of the defenders of Jewry themselves, among the employees and The majority of our newspaper correspondents are Jews. Moreover, anyone who knows the behind-the-scenes side of our newspaper business knows very well that editors and publishers our newspapers and magazines are not at all as independent from their employees as they might seem seem. Therefore, in this matter, one should take into account equally calculation and what is exposed by the newspapers, and what is covered by them with the silence of fear for the sake of... Many editorial offices do not have the slightest opportunity to take risks the location of its London and Paris correspondents. The question of subscribers also plays a big role. The Silesian Newspaper, for example, immediately lost 600 Jewish subscribers who conspired not to subscribe to the newspaper for it is only that she spoke out extremely conscientiously, with restraint and independently on the Jewish question. In addition, German newspapers with low subscription prices exist solely through advertisements, but one can imagine the losses would suffer a newspaper in which Jews stopped publishing their advertisements. “Finally, - adds Treitschke, - the best proof that fully revealed to me the power Jewry in Germany is that I received a lot of letters about my articles, which expresses warm sympathy for my way of thinking, but at the same time Most of my correspondents ask to keep their names secret for fear revenge or at least trouble from the Jews in one way or another form." And this is understandable if you remember how strong the Jewish community is in the German press - not really outstanding first-class talents, but rather third-rate figures. There are such a mass of the latter among the Jews that one can say that they, taking in quantity, and not by quality, they almost completely converted the German press into a Jewish one. This They owe their predominance, however, not exclusively to their quantity, but also to that close communication, that strong support that exists in their environment. "Thanks to this support,

- says Treitschke, - it means nothing to the most insignificant rhymer of the Jews achieve newspaper immortality... for a day." But here, as in everything, it seemed Now the other side of the coin. If Jewish pens managed to do- for decades, to create German public opinion, which, of course, served not to the benefit of the Liberal Party and, on the contrary, was one of the reasons for its loss influence, - now the German press is suffering the punishment it deserves: the mass of the public is not does not believe her one bit, in the belief that the newspapers are compiled by Jews. “Our newspaper business, says Treitschke,

- owes a lot to the Jews; Jewish resourcefulness and flexibility had an opportunity to unfold here on an extremely fertile field of action. But the results turned out to be double-edged. Berne was one of the first to introduce into our journalism that a particularly shameless style in which the Jews began to speak in Germany, which gave them shelter and protection of laws, trampled Germany into the mud, as if it could not and should not have offended every German to the depths of his soul. Let us add to this that Thanks to the innate ability of Jews to interfere in everything, we in Germany soon we lived to see the intervention of the Jews in the affairs of our church, about which the Jews They began to talk with the abandon of people who had studied the issue closely.

They forgot, immediately after they were granted equality, that they were still constitute a minority among the Germans; they have forgotten that we Germans are, after all, Christians, and They went so far as to demand the removal of icons and the observance of the Sabbath in our Christian in the anthological schools, while at the same time not skimping on the most vile, outrageous ridicule against Christianity, the ridicule that is presented to us in the form of the last words "German" civilization."

All this must end, says a talented German writer. With the equalization of civil rights of Jews with the rights of Christians, Jews can still continue to consider themselves the chosen people, but only in the religious sense. In our the century of the formation of national states, in these states there can be no place political tribal characteristics. Jews in different European countries can appear as peaceful, non-anti-state elements only if they will decide to sincerely merge with those peoples whose language is their native language language; to merge as much as their faith, their traditions, their tribal characteristics.

In Germany, everyone is ready to admit that some part of the Jews came to conviction of the necessity of such an outcome in Germany as well; here and there there arise Jewish societies with the aim of bringing Jews closer to Christians. But a large and influential the bulk of our Jews think differently. In the end, even these latter,

Of course, they will have to surrender, says Treitschke. We need to realize once and for all that It is certainly impossible to completely Judaize strong German heads - it remains, therefore, the Jews must turn into Germans. This task can never be the gap that existed between the Jewish and the rest of the world was finally resolved even in those times, when Tacitus complained about i is hi, for a long time. But the discord that currently exists can be significantly reduced if the Jews, so those who put a lot of emphasis on tolerance will themselves become more tolerant of others and become to treat with respect the faith, rights and feelings of the German people, which long ago atoned for all the evil he had ever done to the Jews and gave them rights free citizens. But the Jews must finally realize that with these rights they can use only if they give up all dreams of their own isolation into a special nationality - the dreams are pretentious and funny.

Chapter 6

German protest

There can be no room for two nationalities in Germany. Jews right up to the recently have not contributed to the great work of creating German states. Those three great eras that determined the character of the German culture, - the heyday of medieval poetry, the age of the Reformation and the years of development classical literature - also did not see any outstanding Jewish figures. Jews, having now pressed on the Germans, they thus began to build their building on the ready-made foundation laid by non-Jewish hands. It is up to the Germans to prevent this from happening.
The centuries-old German culture was not followed by a century of mixed German-Jewish culture. The Germans are already too guilty of the growth of Jewish influence... Loud and pitiful cries of tolerance, liberation and enlightenment led the Germans into many mistakes in the matter of upbringing and education of the German youth in the Christian spirit. Tolerance comes at a high price; but it presupposes, that he who is imbued with it is also firmly and deeply imbued with his own religious beliefs. In a good primary school, subjects should taught in the same spirit, and therefore mixed lower schools - for Christians and Jews are undesirable and should be viewed as an unavoidable necessity.

The state is obliged to supervise so that these schools do not admit children under the guise of tolerance.
indifference to religion has permeated. However, government measures alone it can't be fixed; society itself must take a stand to fight back the spread of Jewish influence. "Our carelessness and our immobility
We could, says Treitschke, learn a lot from the Jews, but we preferred to treat to be condescending to them and even to adopt their shortcomings. Instead of resistance, they met an ally in our cosmopolitanism; our passion for self-mockery found nourishment in the daring and vulgar antics of the pro-Jewish press. But they found better support for themselves Jews in the absence of a strong, united church, in a mocking attitude towards the faith of many Christians and the materialism that has taken root in our society.
In circles of frivolous, unbelieving Jews, there is a belief that there is a huge
The majority of the German intelligentsia had long ago put an end to their Christianity. But the time is near when need will again teach us to pray, when humble piety and the proud consciousness of national development will again come into its own. Everyone the social question ultimately comes down to the religious question. Jewish the issue in Germany will only be resolved when our Jews
“We will be convinced that we are Christians and want to remain Christians.”

We have cited above the reasoning of a Berlin professor, whose opinions on The Jewish question was met with such sympathy in Germany, not only in order to to introduce readers to the attitude of our enlightened neighbors to their the Jewish question. It seems to us that his reasoning can and should provoke comparison with the situation here. We are in an even worse position, than Germany, both in terms of the quantity and quality of Jews inhabiting Russia empire. We are kinder, gentler, more tolerant a hundred times more than the Germans; our
The intelligentsia will compete in materialism and cosmopolitanism with the most developed Swabian.
Our press is not yet in such a state of serfdom as German, but the silence about Jewish virtues is already equally commonplace phenomenon, and vice versa - an independent attitude towards them is as rare as in Germany; moreover, the Jews, pure and disguised in Russian surnames, successfully they get into the newspaper and magazine press, and the mutual support that they they prove themselves in this field as friendly and strong as in all others fields. Our Jews, perhaps even more than other countries, are separating themselves in the most the privileged people in the state, more than others, cry out about their oppressed rights and shirk their responsibilities. Their attitude towards the dominant the Christian religion is just as arrogant and just as guilty of disrespect in our country as in Germany, and when a Jew or Jewess converts to Christianity, then it rises such a hubbub about religious intolerance that can only be compared Orthodox complacency, not even outraged by the fact that the Jews are unpunished and openly trade in vestments, crosses, icons, etc. Our education is threatened by the same danger from the Jews, as well as from the Germans; we already have, they say, Jews - Trustees of Christian schools, Jews - instructing Christian youth.

Finally, statistics, as we have already indicated, establishes the fact that our Jews are 4, 5 and 6 times more guilty of fraud than other tribes inhabiting Russia. crimes against state administration, forgery and crimes against state administration, i.e., they evade payment of excise taxes and various fees, in other words, they hit the pocket and here the Christian population and are, therefore, a corrupting element in the state.
Let us remember that over 35% of Jews evade military conscription.

Chapter 7
Golden Rats

“The question is, is power still in the hands of the state’s rulers? We dare not answer this significant question either yes or no. Since time In the Middle Ages, a financial system was formed, which, although it changed its form, but, in in essence, made states and their financial needs dependent on Jewish commissioning. This system has now reached its highest point points.

If in the Middle Ages the Jews were "tax collectors for the state", to whom they lent money and who gave them taxes as collateral, then in modern In society, the state became a tax collector so that Jewish capitalists and merchants did not become emaciated under the loan system. Today, Israel still more convenient than in the Middle Ages.

Let's see for ourselves: the war between France and Austria. Parisian Rothschild places French war loan; Viennese Semitic Croesus - Austrian loan. The French and Austrians cut each other for a while, then they make peace, the national debt increases on both sides, the stock exchange clique receives new paper for the game, and the "commission" fee remains in the family The Rothschilds and company. These are the delightful conditions created by the gold rats. Governments have lost the courage to demand from their subjects in the hour of need directly less than these subjects indirectly have to pay Semitic factor genius! Thus, for example, almost the insane wealth of the Rothschild family in Europe. We will rely only on official Austrian sources and statements made in Paris. Pereira, a former confidant of the Parisian Rothschild.

In 1874, the head of the Viennese banking house of Rothschild died. Heirs claimed about 400 million for payment of Austrian inheritance tax guilders and noticed that this does not include the state that the deceased had outside of Austria. It is known, however, that the Viennese Rothschild was given nicknamed "poor" Rothschild because he was the less wealthy of his sons.
The richest of the family is the London Rothschild. The second richest is the Parisian one.
Rothschild. Already in 1850, his confidant, Mr. Pereira, left the company, to get settled on his own, he said that his boss's condition was reaching approximately up to 3 billion francs.

We will not take into account any financial transactions made since then.
pores, - and no matter how frivolous this may seem in the eyes of every statistician, we will even dwell on the founding era and the deals involved in paying French five billion indemnity. We will modestly estimate that the aforementioned 3 billion brings in 5 percent per year. In 20 years, at this rate, the capital doubles and thus, with the most modest calculation of 30 years, 3 billion will increase to 7 : billion, in other words, to 75,500 million francs, or 2 billion = 2,000 million thalers = 6 million marks.

Let's be above the Rothschilds themselves and throw out a whole bunch of these two billion billion. In short, we will say that the 3 billion francs that the poor fellow had in In 1850, within 50 years they increased to only 3,750,000,000 francs. Let us assume that therefore, the current fortune of the Parisian Rothschild is only one billion thalers.

This will amount to 5 percent per year - 50,000,000 tala; per month - 4,166,666 tala; per day
138,888 tal. (considering a month of 30 days); per hour - 5,787 tal.; per minute - 96 tal. 15
Silbergr.; per second - 1 tal. 18 silb.

Interest on interest from a fortune reduced by more than half, would amount to 2,500,000 thalers. Interest on interest on interest - 125,000 thalers. Etc.

d. If the Parisian Rothschild subscribed for the sum of 150,000 francs in favor of flood victims in Turkey - and, of course, all the Jewish newspapers with they trumpeted this to the whole world with pathos, but it turns out that he donated to these Spanish Silesians that his condition allows him to live for 7 hours.

Who wouldn't think, with such "generosity", of "poor widow" evangelical? Yes, there are glaring arithmetic errors in human society dissonances, and the best governments are slaves to these dissonances!

Of the golden rats, we only indicated the fattest ones. Of course, in comparison with To them, the great Bleichroeder may seem like a small trader. But let's take the rest little Rothschilds - Erlangers, Todescos, Mendelssohns, in a word, all the golden ones Semitic candidates for Rothschild power, and let's figure out what This rat's nest, the commissions and interest of which have terrible power are paid for with the sweat and blood of nations.

Emperors and kings are chained in these golden chains of the golden international, and popes, and statesmen - I repeat your words, Mr. Adolphe Cremieux:

"The new kingdom of the Messiah, the new Jerusalem, must arise on the site emperors and popes."

Continue, Mr. President of "AShapse [5gaeShe], continue, Mr. Adolphe Cremieux! "AShapse [ztaeShe] is a numerous and powerful community, it extends to all points of the globe." Now your final word, Mr. Adolphe Cremieux! "How quickly we move forward, O sons of Israel! We take giant steps!" Let's go further. Judging by the facts presented from the golden rat's nest, the power over the circulation of many billions of thalers is in the hands of a very small number people. This small circle only needs to want it, and the entire social order will collapse.

For many years now, billions of dollars have been withdrawn from circulation. All this is due to the mercy of Jewish management with the help of the Manchester theory. But these numerous Billions haven't disappeared from the face of the earth. They've just "moved," as they say. Manchester slang, and fell into the hands of the golden international. Long live "Freedom"! Poor Madame Roland! How right you were when you cried out, going to the scaffold:
"Holy freedom! How many (unpunished) crimes are committed because of your name!"

Freedom! My God! It is nailed to the coffin of our modern laws, which we owe to the golden rat's nest of Semitism and "liberalism". Our emperors and kings, our statesmen are also not free, just as enslaved, like all of us, and on the part of the red mice it was the greatest madness, what can one imagine when they came out against the kingdom, when they became internationals, these monkeys of the golden international.

Finally, Prince Bismarck, - never have German governments expressed themselves so clearly of their good intentions towards the fourth estate, as without suppressing the force of workers' strikes. The red mice had free rein to roam, but it was reasonable

They were unable to take advantage of this space. They were making noise and chatting almost in such a in the same international spirit as the Jew Cremieux. Governments have long been different should have realized the terrible danger that threatened them from the gold Rats! The red mice were not abused, as the party spirit says. No, they were recognized screamers, when they, like the "golden rats", became internationals and.

The true socio-political password of the time was, is and will be read: emancipation of the "Christian-German" state from the Jewish major capitalists. Emancipation of society from the "gold rats"; from the innate "peculiarity!"
Mr. Semitic. To instill in the government the socio-political courage for such a emancipation is more important than all our squabbles between parties. Until the state cannot rely on German tribal consciousness, until then it will remain powerless to break their golden chains, and as long as they suffer in their midst "Jewish peculiarity", every party will be demoralized and corroded by it.

We have now reached a phenomenon that also requires clarification. This is participation nobility in the founding fraud. Not having the habit of flattering the greats of the world Therefore, we will not try to exonerate the nobility from their grave sins against society and against its own dignity. We will only explain this phenomenon.
The nobility, just like us, became infected with modern abstractions. Exactly just like us, it has become "free from prejudice." Therefore, it, like us, is not saw in the Semites any difference from the Germans, or at least forced itself to to believe in this abstraction, which, in spite of all science, destroyed the theory of tribal differences. The nobility, therefore, also became "Jewishized." (I hope I have made myself clear.) QUITE strongly.)

"Behind abstract theory, practice itself appears." Nobility, therefore, he believed in the financial phantasmagorias that were performed before him
Mr. Semites, just as we believed in the political phantasmagorias of Mr. Semites.
The nobility, participating in the foundations, was not a hair worse or better than the political and philosophical world in its political and socio-political foundations. His noble pride was as broken as our German civic pride. We wonder how it could have been otherwise? Decline knightly name, which was carried out gradually for several decades, reached the point where that this name became a simple sign. Thus, alliances arose between the "great" and "funny," a harmonious chord of salon tone and Jewish jargon. This jargon, Thanks to our distractions, I received the right of citizenship in the salons! Without-Literacy was no longer an obstacle in either political or social life field. The Semitic member of the faction in parliaments that decided the fate of the people became along with the nobleman and could sharpen his wit to exploit the nobleman, just like he exploited us. You can't demand more from a nobleman. philosophy than from a PhD. Outwardly, it may make more noise, when a peer of the empire falls into the nets of the founders, rather than when this happens to some- either Schulz or Meyer. In essence, it's one and the same.

All this proves that the Jewish spirit had the power to attract into its power and the nobility - "this support of the throne." Forty years ago in Germany they simply raised I would laugh at the very thought of the possibility of a union between "MNºoss" and "", between "great" and "funny." And now the Jewish press shamelessly calls everyone a nobleman who frees himself from the shackles of Judaism - a descendant of the "medieval "robber knights." Take a look at world history, sir. Mr. Sim, or study Goethe's "Götz von Berlichingen"! What was "robber knighthood" at a time when Germany was disintegrating into thousands independent possessions? "The right of revenge." The robber knight came to a clash with one city or another. And so it began to harm trade and according to the reports of that city. He robbed trade caravans. In miniature, it's the same thing, what is now being done in times of civilization is at a stage when in wartime the courts merchants on the open sea are subject to robbery - sorry, I meant to say - privateering. The system of "letters of marque" was abolished not so long ago. Let's We condemn robbery, but we will neither embellish nor besmirch history. That's what This was the medieval robber knighthood. Modern "robber "plutocracy" is too cowardly to kill the people it itself wants to rob. So he would, of course, risk his life or be in danger end up in a house of correction. After all, suicide exists for something! It exists for those who have been robbed. The modern robber-capitalist robs in droves, and a robber-knight of small things. We wouldn't trade the conscience of a hundred medieval robber-knights on the conscience of famous commercial advisers, general consuls, etc., if such people can have any conscience at all.

As a result, the nobility became as stupid and distracted as the rest of us. influence of the Jewish spirit. It must be assumed that the appeal to a better understanding time is not a disgrace either for the nobility or for the citizen, and we express the hope that that the nobility learned from the era of Judaization the necessity - again appropriate isolate the Semites in this way. After all, it is known that the Semites are spreading their tentacles their rascality and shamelessness to the very steps of the throne. Os and - that's them battle order.

You want us to defend the Fatherland from the red mice? Cover us.
rear from the "golden rats." We won't fight for them, we can't even die for them.
with honor. In the days of robber knights, "self-help" was truly permitted in a liberal manner. There was no justice system in which every scoundrel could cheat and defraud without fear of consequences. Any kind of scum can cheat you these days, and If you don't have enough money for a long litigation, then you have to endure it. The concept of "deception" is a very vague term in our judicial statutes and the most shameful of crimes.
breach of trust is one of the "unpunished crimes".
Liberal Jewish "klyauznichestvo" brought into great honor the saying "s js"
"s ij" and the robber plutocracy without the particle "" it gives in the present time is a hundred times more than it ever gave to the robber knight with particle "von". The sword of the modern capitalist robber is a yardstick and a feather; his shield is " jis". But this does not prevent us from being a "Christian state" where everyone an unpunished rogue can say: "I thank You, Lord, that I am not like ancient robber knights who studied neither philosophy nor snitching! And still, out of 12 people destroyed by modern capitalist robbers, 8-10 of those who went bankrupt due to their mercy always go over to the red mice camp! Yes
"Long live progress!"

Chapter 8

Red mice

"Leaving aside all sound criticism, the red mice population - if we consider world history in broad strokes, a phenomenon that in our the moment at hand should be looked at as boldly as they now look at the "mad" our 1904." This crazy year shook and woke people up. It is an alarm clock not only for revolutionaries, but even more so for conservatives. Any alarm clock that It must drive away sleep and oblivion, it makes noise. Without shocks, history cannot move forward.
forward. There is little doubt that, if the "mad year" had not given way, the bureaucratic Routine would have rotted the state long ago. We will not reduce great people to personalities.
periods; faith in Providence, faith in natural laws makes us see in these periods of manifestation of a force that stands high above individual personalities. "Mad year" covered both external and internal errors, and if we give an example, then what what would happen to our present military organization, to our disciplinary people's militia, no matter what the "mad year" in its consequences gave rise to iron men who would fearlessly look straight into the face of both the inner and external shortcomings of the Fatherland?

This is how red mice multiplied from year to year out of economic necessity.
as a result of the socio-economic management generated by liberalism, and they will continue to multiply in defiance of all laws, especially since they cost now on a very convenient ground of discontent, and they only have to deny it. In place

The Social Democratic Party was joined by a huge economic party dissatisfied in general. Nowadays they vote for Bebel and Hasenclever just as much as In pre-March times, votes were cast for the republican Friedrich Hecker: from non-contentment in general! Only economic or, say, socio-political discontent is a little more dangerous than political discontent, which can be cheaply resolved get rid of it, essentially. You can be politically dissatisfied while drinking champagne, - how many beautiful speeches and phrases were said over champagne pre-March times! But with economic discontent, it's not just one who's talking abstract language, but it rumbles in the gross-material stomach, and the social gentlemen
The Democrats are not entirely wrong in cynically calling the bailiff who comes describe the last crumbs, an agitator in favor of socialist ideas.

Let us now consider what provides red mice with the necessary warmth for their reproduction? Let's consider the socio-political combustible material. The state system gift finance, thanks to the method of placing loans, fell into Jewish hands Hands. Stock market trading is in the hands of the Jews.

The telegraph with its lies and baseness for the sake of hype is also in the hands of the Jews.

The press in the hands of the Jews or, thanks to the system of freedom of announcement, - depends on Jewry.

Manchester policy turned industry into destructive anarchy, and its theories were brought to their highest point by Judaism. A tribe of merchants and traders in in all classes forms the socio-political core of society. Without Jewry there would be no and social democracy. For the German is generally too simple and clumsy, to be able to bring something to the last point. A hero in war, when he is commanded by a good commander, he is a patient sheep in peacetime. And how is he the government has been a driving force in political crises, as well as a united

Judaism became the driving force that led him to socio-political disaster.

The red mice committed atrocities that could have been pacified by law. Against the socio-political outrage that the Jewish Union has committed and continues to commit with the Manchester theory, while there are no laws yet. Exchanges have the opportunity with to stir up the whole of Germany with the help of false telegrams in the interests of the stock market speculations and destroy hundreds of existences at one blow; they have the power through banking to prevent capital and credit from being used to the detriment of labor, not to mention the "wrong" foundations. In all of Germany we don't have a single one. one bank in which we could put at least ten groschen at state guarantee that these pennies will not be stolen from us. The Empire, not presenting guarantees, I must also give my honest name to this so-called the imperial bank, which has long been condemned by all patriots for its Rotated Manchester principle.

We will despise the red mice, but we should not be surprised at their ability to reproduction. Why is Jewry liberal in general?

Have you asked yourself this question?

Because it could practically exploit abstract theories liberalism, which is difficult to do under stagnant conservatism. Israel caught Liberalism on the phrase "freedom!" Liberalism has become the advocate of Jewry, it is good for it they paid, he helped the cause, and so they worked in the “spirit of freedom” until it came to collapse. and under these ruins of society red mice made nests for themselves and multiplied. The enraged golden calf trampled underfoot more and more independent existences. If a person no longer exists independently, then the question arises, how can he think independently!... "The people" should have become the prey of utopians and agitators. This was completely inevitable and "Unpunished crimes" fought against the punishable ones for dominance over society.

The state is without money, society sees that its money is accumulating in a few places, at the disposal of very few people - and without money you can’t do anything.

These are the products of the so-called "liberalism" of legislation. A free rein for Jews and their companies. And formalism, the dead letter of the law must to patronize such management, which is frivolous and shameless fraudulently pushes the entire fourth estate into opposition! That same fourth a class that has a truly more natural interest in well-being state, rather than in the welfare of Jewish financial bigwigs and their liberal accomplices, but which the law prohibits from keeping these gentlemen and which therefore - only because it is going to war against the state! This is precisely why the state, having fallen into networks of Jewish and liberal plutocracy - short-sighted red mice dumped responsibility. It was pure stupidity.

It is a hundred times greater misfortune for peoples than for kings that they do not
They want to hear the truth! But they must listen to it.

Red mice, who borrow liberal phrases from golden rats, are not deserve nothing less than to have their food snatched from under their noses.
Governments in the 20th century have no interest in the people becoming poor and unemployed.
able to pay taxes, since the law set the highest tax rate only for financial aristocracy! Governments have no interest in the workers in large industrial institutions he became physically weakened and became unfit for military service. No branch of government benefits under such conditions.

The only one who has an interest in them is the anarchy of large-scale industrial and money aristocracy, and if the red mice were not so infinitely stupid, - the government's interest would have forced the liberalizer to shout long ago to Jewry: "Stop, not one step further."

Well, the "members of the management" of social democracy have settled in quite well under this endless stupidity of the "autocratic people." These members are settling in everywhere Wonderful.

You stupid, stupid red mice! Your "cat" - the state - took it from you the opportunity to dance on tables and chairs, and gold rats, as before, and now they are devouring your food. But the state, naturally, reluctantly, is becoming obedient servant of the rats! But no! Better to starve, better to starve, better to allow exploit yourself rather than throw overboard the baggage of ringing liberal phrases! There are dif-
The difference between red mice and golden rats is only in phraseology.

To ridicule religion and Christianity, and I џ! It's convenient for both. And we
This was once done when people still believed in abstractions. Since then, as we - come to Help, Heinrich Heine! - people began to recognize atheism by the smell of not only beer and cheese, but and also garlic, then we saw that Christianity does not at all command to skin neighbor, and we humbly believe that Christianity has not yet outlived itself.

We remember the saying: "You will be like gods, knowing good and evil." Humanity consists not only of Virchows and Darwins, and not even of third-rate ones scientists like us. And we feel disgusted to hear how some newspaper Jew chatters about Christian-church issues, while this same young man is furious rages and rages when Semitism is touched upon objectively and critically. "Science must "to embark on a new path!" A man of Jewish-Semitic origin said This is a catchphrase. Yes! Science must make a turn in the sense that it should not to pose as all-saving, so as not to be afraid to apply one's discoveries to practice and not to throw 1$ Is and is ïisis into one kennel. But also Christian The state must also embark on a new path. Is that why Jesus of Nazareth gave himself up to be crucified so that the Rothschilds, Blechroeders, etc. could hold the shield on earth Christian state?

Chapter 9

Golden rats and red mice

“So, from both sides they are working to destroy society, from the side internationals of gold and red. There - from the point of view of the most notorious individualism, here - more or less consciously from the point of view communist.

Jewry took over the leadership of the golden international, and with such virtuosity that even non-Jewish large capitalists from year to year more and more sucked out by the Jews. "Liberal" legislation has made us almost unarmed, and society presents a picture of big fish eating little ones, and no "justice" can help these little fish.

There is no stopping. A tribe of natural traders, the Jews, created among us aristocracy - a money aristocracy that oppresses us from above, but at the same time created the dominion of the mercantile mob, which, through mercantile activities and usury corrodes and gnaws at society from the bottom up. Between the Semitic the oligarchy and the same ochlocracy grind society like grain between two millstones.

If you don't get excited and observe the situation objectively and calmly, so as not to
If we take a donkey in a lion's skin for a lion, and a lion in a donkey's skin for a donkey, then we will discard Let's put aside all the chatter about the "right cause" and from the dry numbers we will derive the following conviction. Neither social reform from above, nor social revolution from below - neither one nor the other other. So, it doesn't seem like there is a force "from above" for rational social reform, whatever the desire for it, and since our modern the situation should promote the reproduction of red mice, then society there is a prospect of debilitation, which should be expressed in evictions masses, or we will experience a social revolution before which all previous revolutions will seem as thin as used tea.

Don't be fooled into thinking that you will only be dealing with the fourth estate.
Because of the fourth estate, which almost always consists of honest poor people, already Now the fifth estate is raising its head! All the scoundrels, vagabonds and criminals who find refuge in our modern humane prisons - hŕ[s , - consider themselves as victims of society and demand that they be paid a pension (otherwise it can't be called (It's impossible). And if in revolutions power almost always goes to the worst, then be are confident that the fifth estate will be able to supply a contingent of leaders and "virtuous
The Robespierres of the social revolution will be overthrown by scoundrels like Tallien, Billot-Varenna, etc.

And then what? Of course, the social revolution will finally collapse into dust.
But in our calculating times we should ask ourselves: "What is such a victory worth?" is worth the welfare and life of the current generation.

And after victory? Progressives and liberals will be ready with an answer: the military.
despotism. But you may be mistaken. The current army is not a rude crowd. mercenaries. It is not alienated from society, as in the times of Napoleon I. There is something else Another thing that could happen. Johann Scherr calls it the Black International.
I don't dare contradict this cultural historian. The social revolution that threatens us, there is a revolution of social suicide that will take away from society's last strength and in its agony will teach it to pray. Black

The International may have the mission of liberating us from the Semitic golden international. But the price of this liberation will not be domination by blood and with the iron of the exterminated red international. At what price?.. Usually it is set Winner! We are not debating our future in broad terms here.

- And what about the "German burgher", the middle class, the best classes of society? All These are phrases.

An innate characteristic of the German people - after all, we Germans also have its own peculiarities, which should not be hushed up, is the lack of initiative in serious world-historical actions. Yes! When it comes to sit on the chair in parliament - then hearts, mouths and wallets open wide. Then The German is reborn for three days. Rhetorical chatter, this amusement of the greats philistines, no matter how it may cloud the political, practical mind, - fires us up. We are heroes and take the initiative in all meetings, wherever We can combine business with pleasure. These are our dark sides. Justice requires pointing out the bright side. We are the first people in the world - since we command from above, this is evident both in 1813 and in 1870. This proves one thing, that we are in in the social question, or, what is the same, in the Jewish one, we can only count on for reform or - let them not quibble over the word - for a revolution from above. This, Of course, it's a long wait. For where will there be courage and strength from above, when we are from above we see only laziness, composure, or phrases. Monarchs and statesmen can take into account only the factors, and the factor that presents itself to them at the present time minute, is the displacement of Germanism by Jewry all the way to America.

Moreover, first of all we need people who are not afraid of Jews. And since our socio-political dependence is so great that the fear of Jews and lack of initiative has become an undeniable fact in the so-called "best classes" "sah" of society, then history with merciless logic goes its way forward to destruction society. The golden rat's nest of Semitic worldviews is natural and formally "by right" (Shylock) sits on the neck, and the red mice, naturally, must destroy the ground under our feet.

It's very convenient and very harmless to talk about fidelity over glasses of beer or wine. To the Emperor and the Fatherland! But to take the initiative to defend the Emperor and the Empire from golden rats and red mice, there is no point in even thinking about it."

Chapter 10

Jewish Behavior in England

More than 350 years have passed since the expulsion of the Jews from England under Edward I in 1290, before they made another attempt to settle in this country. After the death of Charles I and the fall of royal power in the Cromwellian era, negotiations on allowing the Jews to settle again in England met with great resistance from all the locals population. Cromwell and a small party of representatives were on the side of the Jews the question of allowing them to live in England, but the rest of the masses were against the Jews.
Under Cromwell, the question of allowing Jews to settle in England was discussed several times.
question, but to no avail. It was finally resolved only by Charles II.
Jews in England, and this was mainly taken advantage of by Jews living in Holland, descended from Spanish and Portuguese Jews. The structure the beginning of a properly organized community in London must be attributed to 1664, when the number the number of Jews increased slightly. The first settlers of London were in the majority cases are known to Karl P. There is even an indication that while still in Amsterdam, Charles II received 1,000,000 guilders from the Jews for his upcoming expenses.

return to England, that he then issued them a charter permitting their settlement in England. They even claim that a copy of this charter is still in the possession of Amsterdam Jews.

This is the price at which the Jews bought themselves a homeland in London. Now, according to the statistics former, almost half of the capital passed into Jewish hands through private banking operations. Despite such great patronage under Charles II, the Jews had to go through difficult times. The people rebelled against the Jews, as well everywhere, all because of business. Jews have always and everywhere been engaged in trade and interest. In During the reign of James II in 1685, 37 Jewish merchants were suddenly seized on the stock exchange. and arrested by virtue of the Statute of Elizabeth. The enemies of the ministry joined forces with the enemies of the Eu-Reev. Thus, they argued that this freedom of trade for Jews would cause great harm losses to native traders. The Jewish Naturalization Bill is repugnant to the British constitution and the Christian religion; it is contrary to the will of the Eternal, who through the prophets announced to the Jews that they would be scattered until they returned to the true faith and at the same time to the country of their ancestors. “Our country will be filled with Jews,” rich Jews will take over absolutely everything: houses, land, trade, industry, high positions; the poor will pounce like locusts and

They will devour everything. The Jews will grow more and more in number and strength, and will introduce their customs and will eventually make their religion the most fashionable in England, they they will treacherously betray all our secrets to the European courts; they will involve England in enmity with Spain and Portugal, the countries that expelled them from their borders; they will bring upon the country all those curses that haunt them in all lands and in over the course of many centuries, etc."

One can praise the prophetic foresight of the London English, as is true They characterized the future of the Jews. In 1753, a strong excitement in the spirit The whole people of London also had an effect on literature - poets wrote verses:

Thus, step by step, the nation perishes.

And what the fathers acquired is squandered.

Jew, Turk or devil, come boldly to us,

You will become a full-fledged citizen for a low price.

This was not a very cheap price for those times. Charles II took 1,000 from the Jews. 000 guilders. But at the present time, London Jews will have millions pounds sterling, and how much power, - might, - Montefiore controlled the world Jewish affairs. At present, the Jews are all-powerful throughout Europe, although they a handful of patriots are opposing it, but their forces are small and they are unable to stop it Jewish pressure. Recently, 15-20 thousand families have appeared in London "Jews who came from Russia," and already "Ra! Ma| Saheye," known for its impartiality of his judgments, calls them "an ulcer and a thunderstorm" for the poor population in the eastern end of London. "They," says the newspaper, "are driving the inhabitants out of all decent houses and have a very harmful effect on the general standard of living and on morality." If the British stubborn race of world exploiters is inferior to the Jewish onslaught, what a sad fate from the same evil, but in much greater sizes, the good-natured Russian people expect.

Chapter 11

The opinion of world thinkers

The famous philosopher Dühring says the following about Judaism: “Little a people who were not distinguished by anything other than cruelty and selfishness in their ancient history history, after the fall of his state, he entered the bodies of others as a parasite peoples and spread his spirit throughout the earth. Little by little, in all the newest In cultural states, Jews began to play a role in trade and finance.
In addition, they, as owners of magazines, editors, correspondents and etc. dominate the periodical press; this unfortunate fact is heard complaints not only in Germany and Austria, but also in France and in Europe in general mainland. The penetration of the Jewish element into the medical profession imposes all more and more the seal of commercial business, not to say systematic exploitation.
In some legislations there is still a lack of complete freedom of the legal profession, so that in
In this area the fruits of Judaism and the way of thinking that goes with it have ripened.
Likewise, some parts of science which are especially beloved by the Jews are already are beginning to show signs that they are becoming instruments of profit.
A writer who would not want to praise as something highly benevolent detailed, their racial characteristics, must be prepared for the most unpleasant tricks on their part. Thus, emancipation from Jews and from harmful influences, which they contribute to society is an extremely social task."

During the time of imperial Rome, there were already so many Jews that, according to According to Strabo, in almost every city they had a community, i.e. a kahal. During the time
Caligula's Jews were in Egypt, Phoenicia, Syria, Coele-Syria, Pamphylia, Cilicia, a large part of Asia to Bithynia and the shores of the Black Sea, in Thessaly, Boeotia, Macedonia, Aetolia, Atiha, Argos, Corinth, Peloponnese, on the island of Euboea, Cyprus, Crete, the countries lying on the other side of the Euphrates and Libya. There are especially many of them was in Egypt, mainly in Alexandria, where the Jews constituted an eighth part of the entire population, and according to Apion and others, almost half of the wealth of the entire Alexandria passed into Jewish hands. What a miracle - in Egypt the pharaohs oppressed Jews, they tortured and tormented them, so that they wanted to destroy the entire Jewish tribe, and They barely escaped from such a barbaric country. Despite all this, time, and the predatory instinct of the Jews again pulled them to Egypt - probably the Jews appeared there a second time under a false name, just as they do everywhere else, invading society.
The Jews, when they fled from Egypt from the pharaohs, managed to seize everything by deception national wealth: silver, gold, precious stones and so on. Their hearts beat, that over the course of many centuries, much of what was beloved by the Jews had again accumulated in Egypt metal. The passion for profit again, like a magnetic force, attracted them there. So, in

In Egyptian cities, aliens appeared under a different name and found out that they were the same the very Jews who were with them before. The Jews who appeared individually as beggars in AlekSandria eventually transformed back into arrogant barons and rich people, than outraged the noble native inhabitants of the city of Alexandria. The writers became satires and pamphlets to bring out the Jews, presenting the Jews in exactly the same way as we do in all times; when the Jews did not calm down, did not curb their speculations, then the thing It was clear that a bloody massacre by the people was to be expected. And Then the Jews accuse Apion of being to blame for inciting the people. Nobody here It's not my fault, but the Jews themselves are to blame. They set things up in such a way that in some countries Everyone is afraid of a Jew, like a predatory beast.

The writer Renan says almost the same thing about the Jews: “Religions are absolute, What Islamism and Judaism are like, they cannot stand complicity. If they do not rule themselves, then consider themselves persecuted; if they are not protected, they become annoying and strive to make life easier for people of other cults unbearable. This is evident in our time in Algeria, where Jews, finding support against Muslims, have become unbearable for them and force the authorities to suppress the incessant uprising of Muslims... The antipathy of ancient peoples towards the Jews was universal. If all peoples and in all centuries felt antipathy towards them and persecuted them them, then there must be some reason for it. Jews everywhere demand equality and rights, but in reality they always strive to maintain their their own institutions. They demand advantages from the peoples for themselves, without participating in the heavy guests imposed by the life of a nation: no people can tolerate this. A foreigner can be tolerated in a country, but under one condition - not to flood the country. itself. It is absurd, indeed, to lay claim to a house in the construction of which You did not take part." Let us cite the opinions of several enlightened sages. new times. Kant says: “The majority of Palestinians living among us, thanks to their usury has earned them a reputation as swindlers, not without reason. Although It seems strange to imagine a whole nation of scammers, but all the same a country and a nation consisting exclusively of merchants, the majority of whom bound by an old superstition, striving not to achieve civic honor, but to loss of it, by deceitfully obtaining profit from the people among whom he finds himself patronage, wanting to take his place. But it cannot be otherwise the existence of an exclusive nation of traders, as unproductive members societies, - that is why their social structure, sanctioned by the old law, Despite the established saying, "buyer beware," -maybe remain the highest moral law in the matter of their mutual relations, without risking be abolished." Fichte says: "Almost all over the European lands spread- there is an influential hostile state waging a constant war with others states and the heavy oppression that falls on citizens is Judaism. The state it is dangerous not because of its peculiarity and close cohesion, but because it is based and built on the deepest hatred for all humanity. From the people continuing to see in people only the descendants of the people who drove him out of his homeland; from the people who have given themselves over to trade and usury, which weakens the body and killing every noble feeling in the bud; from the people, not only who keeps away from all of us, but also removes us from the love of the Creator, is it possible I ask, should we expect anything other than what we see from such a people? every day: in a state where the most autocratic tsar has no right to deprive me father's hut, - in a state where there is a law that protects me from the most powerful minister, - every Jew, if he pleases, can plunder me with impunity. Before giving civil rights to Jews, it is necessary, having cut off their heads at night, put up new ones in which there would not be a single Jewish ideas; and the only way to protect oneself from them is to reconquer the Promised Land land, send them there."

“God's chosen people are parasitic plants, vegetating on the trunks other nations, is a breed of cunning mediators, scattered throughout the earth and not striving to create a homeland for itself nowhere. We consider Jews here only as a parasitic plant that clings to almost all European nations and more or less sucking the juice out of them. After the fall of old Rome there were still comparatively few in Europe; during the persecution of the Arabs they began to arrive in droves. That they brought leprosy to our part of the world is perhaps incredible; the more malignant leprosy was that in all ages of barbarism they were money changers, middlemen, vile usury agencies, abusive “Bleeding ignorantly arrogant Europeans with their ignorance of trade matters.”

H. Lutostansky.

BOOK SIX.
THIRD EDITION
corrected and significantly supplemented.

PUBLISHER
AN Pershin.

St. Petersburg
Printing house of T-va "SVZT", Nevekiy, 136, 1907.

Yes

hmm 8 1964

Presented Political Plan in the image of a snake, very ancient, was invented by Jewish sages in theories, according to historical events 29 ti we develop and supplement the space-followers involved in this.
^ These wise men decided to conquer peacefully world for Oion, with the cunning of symbols-+ Czech snake. The head of the snake depicts ` " the wise men of Zion, and the body of the people Jewish. Weeding in business nfdra, undermine this serpent or It’s not Jewish business that’s burning forces, according to the ibr of their growth at different other continents, but especially in Europe rop that he should dflat and in the bur-next, if you follow exactly the previous the outline of the plan, until the cycle is completed their path will not close with the return of the head of the serpent to i, i ђ ђ his circle all of Europe, and through it the whole world. First

i - venities, taking advantage of all the economic gains

IY

by force, in order to attract the rest into the sphere of its cycle. continents. Since the return of the head of the serpent could make sew only on the smoothed-out ruins of the state the power of all European countries, through the fall of this power, from economic disorder and ruin, bringing everywhere in mago S1onom through moral decline. Decay, introduced with the help of Jewish women posing as French scarlet women and Italian women, who even fictitiously accept they have to go through baptism, then they become the wives of important people, like the biblical Esther, and with them always so-Mordecai goes and carries out his policy in in favor of Judaism. These imaginary French and Italian women Yankees are the best bearers of debauchery
These women serve for tvkh, who, thanks to them, always need a day-gah, and therefore they willingly trade in sovfetya in order to get money at any cost. Money is only are lent to such merchants that they quickly rise turn into the hands that tape them, because with the help of the power of women is quickly wasted.
their receipts. The addresses of the ii - yah “goyim” and the cycle of the serpent advances in the twentieth century speed of courier movement to the appointed point of its own direction.

A complete summary of the secret protocols
Oion Jewish mullets, the whole plan of conquest the whole world will be included in the next volume
"The Talmud and the Jews." To the effects of the secret Zion serpent This also applies to brazen slander leveled against a respected person. throughout Russia about. Archpriest John of Kronstadt. All
i ,
i i - rodov, respect for the sanctity of the church and devotion to the Tsar and the fatherland. The newspapers, print and book trade are located
The child is already in Jewish hands, what more do they need?
The entire State Duma was already under Jewish command. Now all that remains is to shake it and then overturn the christian at

Stanislavsky Church. If they succeed through revolution-
It was necessary to achieve so much in a few lifts, then what?
it means to overthrow the Russian and Christian Church, they will soon be destroyed in the eyes of the senseless crowd γ , i i - to complete its full cycle. Continuation of the slander® on o.
John of Kronstadt will be in books, in special chapters.”

REVELATION OF THE AUTHOR.

7 For the venerable God-chosen Jewish people of Russia this seems like a biblical paradise, not only current milk and honey, but even silver and gold. The whole point is the fact that the main gates of this paradise are closed is allowed only entrance for certified Jews, only through side gate.

Many l 1 i - melt in the Parisian secret cabal on how to rather, smash and destroy their entrance gates deep into the depths Russia. The Jews have collected more than a billion dollars for this purpose. and much of it, in anticipation of success, has already been spent. the daily bloody riot in Moscow, there were world-wide Zionist wise men in St. Petersburg, with the help of millions of rubles, under the guise of charity, allegedly i iө, i pogroms. At this same turbulent time in St. Petersburg the Sion Mulrites, under the leadership of the Talmudic philo-
- , i i
Jewish and secret, only kahal members gathered—all-World representatives. When discussing Russian politics the movement was approaching its end, then suddenly a casus belli occurred, about which there even followed a sorrowful message in the Jews- in the current newspapers, that the police raided them at night, -0pe-

UT

I read all their books and papers. After which, these wise men
i 0
own. |

The revolutionaries of the Jewish Bund who govern
, —
almost general initial success, suffered a fiasco, only deceptively attracted to the rebellion of the military, —0-that is why all their hopes of triumphant enslavement collapsed.
ni . -
i Petersburg were already namfcheny candidates-dates as president of the Russian republic, one of the princes
i . -i,
another of the newly appointed counts, Count Witte, also sweetens-to the Jewish faith. About this important event in the genus the appearance of new two shining planets, liquids in Petersburg at all the bazaars and markets they whispered with faces beaming with pleasure, but not without this joyful whisper did not reach our knowledge about that great event. But the unexpected defeat of Mos-the plans of the wicked fighting squad were overturned, everything collapsed and, just as smoke disappears, so the wisdom of Zion disappeared in an instant.
the leaders and presidents of the Russian republic, inspired by them.

From the Russian police department they are named in Russia 90% of revolutionaries are Jews, and only 10% are other nationalities involved in the deception of the Jews Bunda.

All transports carrying contraband, bombs and firestrflnago oruzhiya, all were Jews, even themselves they boast vainly of their daring, that they have always been masters of drivers in anarchy and revolution, as usual, always stood behind and hid from danger.

The Jewish revolutionaries led the entire strike railways. On the Kharkov-Nikolaevskaya railway, no.
the movement was led by a Jew, under the pseudonym “Vladimir” ov issued orders and circulars, thought to order the arrest-to fight the entire railway administration, even to resist

Y

The persons involved were supposed to be sentenced to death.
The Jewish students in Odessa acted so bravely, that they managed to mutiny almost the entire fleet with lieutenants nantom Schmidtom.

The Jewish Bund in Moscow carried out an armed uprising.
camp, but on the barricades not one of the brave Bundis tov did not appear, but limited themselves to stupid laborers
, -
I'm drinking liquids.

In the Baltic army, the main leader
"Maxim" turned out to be the victim of a riot and barbaric murders JEW.

In the Caucasus in Oukhum the main leader was a Jew
Hoffman.—All the cities in Russia are Jewish: Odessa, Warsaw, Kiev, Vilna, Minok, Grodna and others, where the revolution initially began, and these cities were re-full of murders and countless bomb throwing. All this was put into action by Judaism, just to achieve equality, and then all other benefits, power and state subordination over the Russians.

„i ii “ -
siyu na cantony or plots na kongress 1 - Zelf, the entire Russian State was torn apart by the Jews 8 precincts and each of these precincts is entrusted to the Vfa day of special support from society. In Kovenskaya, Vi-Lensk and Grodno provinces were appointed Jewish generals ral-governor "Leibu Paperin", in Vitebsk, Min-Skaya and Mogilevskaya - Shmul Rubenchik, to Poltavskaya, Kharkiv and Kherson - . . - living in European Russia, the Jews also did not forget the Caucasus, Turkestan and Siberia, which were entrusted to (a-Muila Shpiro and Movsha Goldenberg. According to the Moscow
"skikh Vdomosti", Jewish revolutionary organization for-already spent about 60 million rubles on unrest alone central district of Russia. Strengthened revolutionary
The Jews want to wrest it from the government with their activity

Y

power and rights that are needed to 5 Ө Russia.

According to our mnnig, the Rueokiy people are the masters of the land.
his own, that is, in the forefront of the Russian Empire; and therefore he inherent rights of the ruling people, in the alignment with other nationalities that are part of the Russian states. Gudei, in view of the proof of their harmlessness
ii ,
the desire to destroy the original principles of any nation
,
the Orthodox Church, the Tsar and the Russian people should not life of the Russian kingdom. For this they must be declared foreigners and not immigrants, thus, the right to be neither electors, not elected to the State Duma, but also cannot hold any positions in the government services, in zemstvos, in city public administration

, etc.

i i , - vki are deprived of the transition to citizenship of the Russian Empireɵi.

Jew, iude and zhid.

In all of Europe the Jews have never succeeded in imposing a new one on them.
nickname, instead of Tuded or Zhida—Jew; they only achieved success
i. γ
the word Jew, precisely only once a year, when the priests
They read the 12 Gospels on Maundy Thursday during the all-night vigil, under called "The Lord's Passion." At this time, a hundredfold pronunciation: zhid, zhidy, zhidov, —these sounds electrify the heart Christians to shame and disgust, and probably the Jews had to to experience unpleasantness from Christians during the Passion week.

` Zatm, at all costs, the Jews tried to change,
i i - .
They achieved success precisely due to the fact that
i, i from Slavic, - took everything and everyone into his granary, for the greater literary beauty. And so the Russian language was adorned with all sorts of scraps of words from different living and dead languages." Such In this way the word Jew also received the common osfdlnost in Russian literary

Ask us, even the most learned committee, what does it mean?
the word Jew, —, , .
If we derive the word Jew from Abraham, it still doesn't come out Jew, and Hebrew Abraham migrated across the Jordan to Canaan-the Iberian deserts, that is why the story is called by the nomads in mockery of the Jews. But the grandson of Abraham, was officially named Israel (happy), and therefore it was called there was the kingdom of Israel. The kingdom of Israel was divided between two sons of Solomon—in iə, consisting of two ko-flax, and the Israeli one, consisting of ten kolfn, but the latter is , as many prove, since its inhabitants are Christians foxes. Only the two tribes of the Jewish people remained. kingdoms, memorable worshippers of the idols of Dubrava and Modoh, who who now drag out their miserable fate, like the scourge of God, for us vazanija narod, v genus epidemi or contagious ulcer —for bi .

In Russian literature one must adhere to the correct names, as they were and are invariably in the Slavic languages, i, , , , which means all are also i, „and“.
This is what they are called in all Slavic languages, understanding only one thing the name "zhyd" - and there the zhyds are not offended; 800 years in Poland to understand the same single name, zhid, as in conversation%, and in literature. In German, Latin, Greek, French, English - Jew or Jew. Even the Jews themselves
They don't call themselves either Jews or Jews, but rather Jews. When a Jew swears in an argument with another Jew, he says: “Ikh-vir-bin-a "I go", which means: "I am a Jew." If he spoke, 60-zhas „i“, then it would mean i, and he pronounces „“, that means a Jew. Nowhere in the whole world are Jews called Jews—only in Russia, for the sake of the Jewish people, and introduced, through the machinations of Judaism, with the cloak of disguising its true nature name for the ennoblement of one's own disgraced name. Soon Jews

X

they will even decide to change the name of the Jew, because this nickname has already become disgusting to the people; as they order their hirelings-
,
we will soon be in Russia because soon in Russia everyone considers it an honor to please the Jews in everything,

No matter how hard the Jews try to change their name, surnames and their nationality, nothing will help them until they will not overcome their predatory instinct, their evil-fascinatically directed! I am against Christians, my predatory habits, until then they will be alien and hated everywhere, intolerant and despised. For four thousand years the Jews traveled go around the whole globe and never buy anything from anyone people of love and brotherly coexistence. Imphli their state and could not conclude an alliance with anyone, with neighboring peoples.
from the very beginning of their nomadic life they everywhere distinguished themselves with barbarism and predation, betrayal, which we see to this day, what they show danger in political intrigues, constantly thirsting for martyrdom of Christians out of hatred and malice in general to Christians.

I. Lyutostanskiy.

Thanks for the king's offering."

DRORA -
His Imperial Highness
Speaking to the Lord
Heir to the Tsarevich
under the leadership of Hoffmarschel.

O pi GOVERNMENT HERITAGE CESARE-

", accepted, graciously escorted-and 150026 dated when writing in the name of HIS IMPE-
No. 51. OF THE RATORIAN HIGHNESS of the 26th St. Petersburg. Last March, published by Your Composition under the title: „The question of use-neither Jews (sectarians) of Christian blood for religious purposes, in connection with the Question Rosom on the relations of Judaism to Christianity
"to the village in general", he deigned to command to convey to you for the mentioned offering, gratitude of HIS HIGHNESS.

About such will HIS EMPEROR-Your Highness, I have the honor of being

γ.

To Ippolit Lyutostansky.

Hofmarshal Zinoviev.
I.D. Office Manager
adjutant of HIS HIGHNESS colonel Vasilkovekiy.

Marshal of the Kotya Court.
His Imperial Highness
Dear Sir
Heir to the Tsarevich.
== Ippolit Tosifovich.
21 aprlya 1870 .
No. 777. THE SOVEREIGN HEIR - TSAR-
St. Petersburg. The Church received the presentation favorably.

nya you at the request of the 14th of this
i
books entitled "On the use of Jews of Christian blood" and i Your "Talmud and the Jews", I deigned to
I order you to convey this to me, My Gracious One

HP

Your Majesty, the gratitude of HIS IMPERIAL HIGHNESS, for
i.

Ispolnaya I ask you to accept the
i i i

His Excellency Your humble servant V. Zinoviev.
I. I. Lyutostansky.
Marshal of the Court of Koviy.
His Imperial Highness
Sovereign

The Heir to the Tsarevich. Dear Sir

August 29, 1870

No. 1500. THE SOVEREIGN HEIR TO THE TSAR
St. Petersburg. VICH, accepted the presentation favorably. addressed to you at the request of HIS IMPERIAL RATORIAN HIGHNESS from the 21st this August, the third volume of Va-his "Galmud and the Jews" deigned to proclaim I have something to convey to you, Gracious Lord.
sir, His Highness's gratitude for
i.

In fulfilling this will of HIS EMPEROR-TORSKY HIGHNESS most humbly
I ask you to accept the view in perfect

my respect and devotion.

Ippolit Tosifovich.

Your humble servant, V. Zinoviev."

HER MAJESTY Kotya.
Empresses
Marie @zodorovny

SECRETARY. To the nobleman
March 6, 1903 to Ippolit Lyutostansky.
No. 1183.

I have the honor to inform you that it is enough
, i -
TO THE HONOR OF THE EMPRESS ѲЂЂ
i Talmud, presented by me according to the High appointment.

St. Petersburg.

Her Majesty's Secretary No.

4181

Consisting of | Copy.
His Imperial Highnesses:
Gosudar NasVdnik®
And

GRAND PRINCE, Dear Sir
Mikhail Alexandrovich%.
2-0 Ippolit Gosifovich.
November 7, 1902:

No. 1443. HIS IMPERIAL HIGHNESS

E IS THE GREAT HERITAGE AND THE GREAT
And I am Prince Mikhail Alexander-VI Ch deigned to accept graciously the work you presented, “The Talmud and the Jews,” and it is pleasing to HIS HIGHNESS
I was instructed to convey it to you sincere gratitude for your support carried!

Please accept my personal deep gratitude for the sent \ myth copy of your book.

His Excellency, I ask you to accept the assurance of To I. G. Lyutostansky. My sincere respect and respect devotion.

Always ready to serve D. Dagikov.

SECRETARY Copy.
HIS HIGHNESS
PRINCE
Alexander Petrovich
Oldenburg.

To the master teacher

riva e Suwalki Gymnasium Lutostansky.

His Highness Prince Alexander
Petrovich Oldenburgsky deigned to order-
I would like to express my gratitude to you.
i volumes of your composition “Talmud and Jews”.

Secretary to HIS HIGHNESS

to the rank of chamberlain of the HIGHEST court of MIND.

COURTIARY

hu

Kitty.

Her Imperial Highness

GRAND DUCHESS
Alexandra Iosifovna OFFICE
in St. Petersburg.

April 8, 1903
No. 39.

Imperial Orthodox Palestine
SOCIETY.

May 12, 1903
St. Petersburg.

His Highness

I. I. Lyutostansky.

To the teacher

Suwalki Gymnasium I. Lutostansky.

Courtier of HER IMPERIAL HIGHNESS Grand Duchess ALEK-
-
,
TO HIS IMPERIAL HIGHNESS
Grand Duke CONSTANTINE KON-STANTINOVICH book of HIS EMPEROR-TORSKIY HIGHNESS received | and accepted.

Manager of the MM office.

Secretary of the Court LL.

Kitty.

Dear Sir

Ippolit Gosifovich.

HIS IMPERIAL HIGHNESS
ѳi -
VICH, August Chairman of the Imper-Roman Orthodox Palestinian society, having favorably accepted the presentation work performed through the secretary of the society
Your "Talmud and the Jews", I instructed
I would like to convey my gratitude to you for this
i.

Please accept my assurance to you respect and devotion

M. Samsonov.

hu

.
Telegram.
In Suwalki
teacher of the Suvalk men's gymnasium Lyutostansky.
1902 10y., January 18. No. 670.

Great Prince Alexander Mikhailovich wishes to thank Thank you for sending me the first volume of your work “Talmud and Jews."

Adjutant-Lieutenant Shateden.

Office of the yard Copy.
His Imperial Highness

GRAND PRINCE
Alexander Mikhailovich.

NY Lord
February 10, 1905+.

No. 244. To I. Lyutostansky.

St. Petersburg.
Office of the court of Grand Duke ALE-

to report that HIS IMPERIAL Your Highness thanks you very much.
3, 4 5 i
"The Talmud and the Jews".

Regarding your request for supplying everyone with the said work libraries of military educational institutions, then, by order of His Imperial Majesty

Your Highnesses, the court office informs you You, that the resolution of this issue is subject to live in freedom of His Imperial HIGHNESS Grand Duke CONSTANT-
, -
step of the Chief of Military Education
i.

ID of the manager of an MLM office.

For the secretary of the ML office.

HU!

SECRETARY Copy.
Her Imperial Highness
PRINCESSES
Evgenin Maximilianovny
Oldenburg.

To the teacher
i
St. Petersburg,

To Ippolit Lyutostansky.

HER IMPERIAL HIGHNESS
Princess Eugenia Maximilianovna of Olden Burgskaya is sincerely grateful to you for your help.
Your interesting work has been presented
The title is “Galmud and the Jews”.

I have the honor to inform you about this i á .

Secretary to HER IMPERIAL HIGHNESS Chamber-cadet MM.

Ministry of Military Affairs. Horse.

Main control!
Military training institution.
Distant 2.

Table 3.
E To the Lord
April 25, 1906 +. I I T
And to Ppoli Sifovich: . A
No. 10403. Olita Iosifovich Lyutostansky and you O: t The books 1-5 compiled by you "Tal-

i " ", ! ,

mental libraries, to: acquisition in a nin library
i - i,
following this it will be announced in the circculars on these establishments, with instructions it is because this work of yours can be at the address: St. Petersburg, Angliyskiy prospect, 19-55, apt. 56.

Assistant to the Chief of Staff

Lieutenant General M. No.

For the Head of the Department, Major General Sutinsky.

Handwritten letter
from
His Excellency
General of the Infantry

D. Ghana.

St. Petersburg.
November 10, 1904

Y

.

Dear Sir

Ippolit Tosifovich.

I sincerely regret that you didn't make it me yesterday, and even more so because I myself already I've been meaning to visit you for two weeks, to personally thank you for the transfer You produce and bring you my deepest gratitude, as it means
i
i.

So let me express at least for I express my sincere gratitude, taking advantage of the this is a worthy occasion to wish that Go-May God help you to maintain strength and vigor growth of spirit to bring your work to the desired result.
Mago end. ? |

With sincere respect and complete with fierce devotion

_ Your humble servant
D. Gan."

From the boss

State excise
| fees

dfystvit.

Al. Levitsky.

St. Petersburg."
1905 April 8 days.

Dear Sir

Ippolit Iosifovich.

Please accept my sincere gratitude.
Thank you for kindly sending yours the work "Talmud n Jews", which, already from the first pages I read,
I was very interested.

Once again bringing my deepest appreciation-
i,
with my utmost respect for you and devotion

Al. Levitsky.

Y

@t St. Petersburg governor general

Trepova.
No. 2047. St. Petersburg Governor-General, 1905, 8 days ago. Testifying to his completely" respected

To Mr. Ippolit) Iosifovich Lyutostan-
,
Thanks for the kindly sent copy
a copy of the work under the title "Tahmud" and the Jews."
His Highness
I. I. Lyutostansky.

MINISTRY OF KOLIA.
People's Enlightenment.

Trustee of the Former Teacher
Warsaw educational district.
OFFICE. , Mariampolsky men's gymnasium

i .
ESEN to Ippolit Lutostansky.

January 3, 1905

No. 26901 Having received the letters sent to me on December 13th
In 1904, volumes 3, 4 and 5 of your work were published.
Warsaw. "GTalmud and the Jews," I humbly ask

You, Dear Sir, accept the claim sincere thanks for sending the notice

Ө .

I would like to add that regarding-
i special notice.

District Trustee A. Schwartz.

Ruler of the Chancellery A. Evgrav.

Separate first

RITUAL.

---

i i .

Font of the ocean of the Jerusalem temple (bronze).

Treatise 1.
THING 0 TALMUDAH N I DAY'S RITES.
CHAPTER 1.

0 origin of the Mishnah and Talmuds.

58 ON THE DEATH OF R. Simon ben Gamliel
K*%® (163) the rank of patriarch passed to his son › his, known under the names: r. J-· ga- Nasi-ga- Nadosh% or Rabba. R. [uda ro\ happened on the day of the death of R. Akiva (185 BC).
7 um. 220). He moved the Sanhedrin and his school from Shefarim to Betg-` Pearimə, and then in (Oelpforis and in $ ŕ i,

7 caused by the circumstances of that time.
% Possessing wealth, a broad mind,
| 7 Let us respect and fully support the people,
r. Judas got the idea to publish
i, i
i ,
the rites were not violated between the Jews.
scattered across vast territories
i i, -
it, as the property of a few people, is not were damaged or deliberately used
He decided to break the decree:
"Do not copy the laws that exist according to tradition",

9 liters

jeopardize all laws. To enforce nenenie this thought r. Iuda did not regret any labors or zaspend and collect the materials needed for this, often already prepared by their predecessors - R. Hillel, R. Akiba, his father R. Simon and others, and partly distributed among different people in different countries.
He finished his work around the year 190 and gave him
Language of the New Testament (i).
(close to the biblical), mixed with some two Chaldean, Greek, and Latin words for expressions of greater clarity and life. The composition is dBleno into six main sections (Sedarim), of which which each is divided into treatises (Masikhtot, veBkh 68), each treatment lasts for chapters (Perakim, vskh 524), and each chapter is divided into paragraphs (Mishniot).

A brief summary of the main sections is as follows:

1) Seder Zeraim (department posfvov, 10 tractstov), which talks about prayers upon receiving different foods, about bread growing on the edges of fields, like about the belonging of the poor, about offerings and tithes, about the laws during the seventh or sabbatical year and about forbidden $,   i.

2) Seder Moet (Separate Holidays, 12 tracts). In it speaks about Saturdays, about Easter, about New Years, about the Divine
i , , ,
about fasts, about work prohibited on these days,
rituals, sacrifices. |

3) Seder Nashim (department of women, 7 tract.), in which the rum talks about conspiracies, marriages, divorces, and court cases pruzheskoy ne$rnosti i prikazi chet
ELYATV. |

4) Seder Nezekim (separate damage, 10 tract), which deals with civil and criminal rights, about discoveries, about purchases and sales, also about idols worship, about witnesses, about oaths, punishments and about Sanhedrin®. At the end of this department, moral-
i-i i ( ).

5) Seder Kodoshim (Department of Holiness, 11 tract.), which talks about sacrifices, about slaughtering of cattle, about forbidden food and the assessment of things dedicated to temple.

E bi >

6) Seder Tagarot (department of purification, tract 12), in which deals with various hygienic laws, about the plagues that befall people, promises, houses, etc., about baptismal fonts, etc.

With the conclusion of the Mishnah the period of the Tanaim ends and from that time on the teachers are called Amoratsms. Mishnah subsequently often commented on in modern times translated into Latin (, i language Slave and G.M. 106tomyo. Tractate Berachot (blessed Slovenia) translated into Russian by Volemg and Voganom.

Talmud Babylonian (363-500).

While the schools in Pumbadita were coming already in decline, the schools in Suro received a new shine
i - Simats (852-427). R. Ashi, delighted with complete auto-
, i i
material of traditions and interpretations accumulated to the Mishn® in Babylonian schools. When all the material was collected and processed within 30 years, p. Ashi submit it to review and expanded it with some changes additions and additions. But the death that befell R. Ashi (427), did not allow him to finish this work. His successors—
r. Tose (500), Marg-beng-Ashi (401 – 4671) and the main Zom Rabbina (d. 499), for 30 years of cultivation they erected and published this enormous monument in the 500th year under the name of Talmud Babli (Babylonian). He co-consists of 12 large folios, divided into six divisions (shisha sedarim).

The language of the Babylonian Talmud is Rabbinic-Jewish, see mixed with Chaldean, Greek and Latin. Form explanations in the Talmud are competitive. H%koti trak-Talmud verses have already been translated into German, such as:
-- , - i — , -
hotg - Girshfeld, Aboda-Zora - Evaldom; in French
Some treatises have recently been translated into Chinese.
by Rabinovich. French full translation of the tale-muda in 10 volumes, edited by M. Schwab, to go out per second edition:

Talmud of Jerusalem (370).

Amorais of that time, engaged in studying and pre-
i i %, -

e U

to imagine, to compare some positions with others and to understand . Ə i ,

based on the law of Moses, increased from the day for a day, so that the Amoraim subsequently recognized the need dimost write them. Chapter of the Tiberias school r. /0-Nanyo-beng-Napha (216,279) began collecting these materials,
i i scientists were published in the 4th century under the name mara (conclusion, decision). Subsequently, it is possible for for greater convenience, they began to publish the gemara with the mish-Noah and called this common work Talmud5 (teaching), and unlike a similar work compiled
i, #s (Jerusalem). However, the Palestinian Talmud exists to exist completely only for three or four separate individuals
"Mishna", and even the Babylonian one is not enough for some separate treatises of the "mishnah". Until now, there are still pre-the question arises whether they existed at all missing treatises, or they were lost from the What time? The language of this Talmud is Chaldean with a many languages: Hebrew, Syriac, Latin and Greek Czech. · 5

Disputes between two Talmudic academies and different sages.

"Tractate of "eduiot" (testimony). Shamai - to say:
For all women it is enough to consider impurity, starting from
i i, -
to read: to the last, even for many days;

the writers say: neither according to these words, nor in accordance with according to these words, but the interval from the moment of discovery
i gets smaller and smaller
, -
volume of discovery before the last date. For each a woman who menstruates at regular periods, it is enough to consider impurity from the moment of detection; if soyiv is accomplished with “ddim (iddim actually menstruation),
. then this is considered research and reduces the time of non-
, -
$ i.

“Shamai says: starting with one kab (kab—there is.
volume of m%ry). hundred subject to hal (i.e. separation tithes to the priests), and Hillel says: starting from ny: V. =

two kab; the wise men say: neither by these words, nor by <to the catch of this, but that's one and a half kabah of water, i.e. tithes, and when the moras became larger, they decided:
five quarters of the kaba are subject to hal%, meaning the tithe of the sacred-nikam. R. [to say: five quarters are not yet under-reap, and five quarters and more are subject to half."

Hillel says: a full hin (a mVra of liquid substances) scooped up water dflaet unsuitable font mikvah, oa clean pool, since a person is obliged to speak speak with the language of his teacher, and Shammai says: nine cabs; the wise men say: neither by the words of this, nor by in the words of another; until two Jewish weavers came from Na-the Gate of Jerusalem, and not a testimony-Vali on behalf of Shamai and Autolion: three logs drawn waters bless the unsuitable font, and the wise men (including Hillel and Shamai) confirmed their words and agreed in one opinion."

"The bride's chair, from which the tires have been taken away, school Shamaia recognizes as susceptible (to desecration, i.e., to the club), and the Hillel school insists on the contrary - not receptive;
: i
i".

"The chair inserted into the trough, the school of Shammai to know is unclean, but the school of Hillel is pure; Shammai says-even made together with a trough (Kel.

, 4)".

A woman came from a foreign country and said:
"my husband died": she can enter into marriage: "my
"The husband died (without a trace)": she can enter into leviratemarriage; - the words of the school of Shammai, and the school of Hillel say-to read: we have heard (this rule) only in relation to women-the harvest that came in. The school of Shammai objected to them:
it doesn't matter whether she came from the harvest, from the olive harvest or came from a foreign country. Hillel's school became teach according to the words of the school of Shammai."

“The school of Shammai says: she will marry and receive-to have one's ketubah (divorce sheet), and the Hillel school says: she will get married, but will not receive her ketubas: (with ketubB, a dowry is included). School of Shammai told them, if you solved 2p6, which is 20-measures, how can you not allow the money that makes up ə? The school of Hillel answered them: we find that the brothers do not enter into inheritance on the basis of her certificate. The school of Shammai objected to them: after all, from the text itself, we deduce this from the tubes, as he writes to her: “if If you marry another, you will take what is written down for you you." Then the school of Hillel began to teach according to the words school of Shammai (tractate Iebamot 15, 2-8).

= 967

The high priest at that time was Simeon the righteous. son of Osh P, he built the Jerusalem walls and ukrBlil and decorated the temple. He was one of the the last members of the Great Council and the first of the Tannaimov (teachers of oral traditions), who tried to education of the people.

Let us give a brief explanation of some rituals Talmudic terms, in ancient Jewish language, one hundred of the following books used in ours:

„-i“, - about those who received cleansing ablution before the sun sets, he is considered unclean.

"Teruma" - gifts for the benefit of priests, appointed from the laity.

"Kadesh" is sacrificial meat for offering.

“Khulin” is profane food, not having been cleansed. telvago ablution.

“Maaser-sheni” is the tithe that was given to the owner.
nom and his guests to Jerusalem%.

„“, derivative infection, i.e. desecration.

"Khatat" is the purifying ash of burnt red te-FACES.

“Shemita”, forgiveness of 7-year debts.

—@ >

CHAPTER 2.
Jewish rituals according to the Talmud.

i ,
in general, sins can be destroyed by strict execution
We do not comply with all the requirements of the ritual law. Kak and slfto expect, this is a theological thesis in Talmudist-sky explanations are brought to such detail and little things that not only appear distorted, but also reduced to positive absurdity. For example, The Talmud commands: “The son of Israel, rising in the morning, must immediately begin washing his hands. But when

e RE

do not wash your hands at once, but with great care pour water from a jug, first on one side, then on the other hand, strictly watching that the water does not splash back into jug; in the latter case one should perform it again
i. i () - ·
are washed with soap, because this is a club, after which you need notbe sure to brush with sand; they never joke of the head, which is why they often have tangled hair and scabies; never kill the bugs, but calmly, Having caught it, they throw it to the ground. Every pious Jew, in the morning, getting out of bed, you should not touch your mouth, so as not to become dumb, neither eyes, so as not to become blind slfpym, no ears, so as not to become deaf, no nose, to avoid getting a runny nose, or any other illness at all no revenge on TBLB, not even the water that came placed for washing, because it will be unclean!

Such preventive care for the most insignificant
γi
that an unclean force flutters over the sleeping person and a Jew, therefore, having risen from sleep, should not move away from spread the bed 4 arshins until it washes three times hands and not cleanse oneself from "ruach atum", i.e.
from the spirit of darkness °).
Secondly, during sleep the soul leaves the body while sleeping:
, i
the soul returns, and the evil spirit almost disappears, remaining hanging on the fingertips of the awakened °). Drive out this spirit can be completely realized only through a threefold washed his hands, as we said above. The rabbis consider they say that although it is enough to pour only the tips of the fingers, but it is better to pour the flu on the hand. Gudeisky women-
' ,
to diligently perform the ritual of hand washing, otherwise onf, touching food supplies with unwashed hands - kami, to transfer the unclean thing that is in their hands the power of food, which is thereby rendered very harmful.
If, however, we are "unclean", i.e. unclean (Christians), we are ordered to if they come to the SSB Jewish supplies, then this is not harmful, because evil spirits are predominantly human

R) Talmud, tract. Brokhes, leaf 60.
See the statute on Jewish rites.
3) Book. "Zohar" and in particular Vaioishev.

And

nest only in clean vessels, i.e. in the body a pure Israelite, and moreover, sleeping, from whom-the soul separates during sleep!). Small children (ii), even if they do not touch food supplies washing your hands, you will not suffer any harm because the soul in the Jewish (men) dflatsya only then perfect, when he reaches 13 years and one day, and the woman

12 years old*). Who should do the morning ablutions before rooms B four aha, that is subject to the death penalty, because the evil spirit remaining in his hands was offended reveals the holiness of God who reigns in him 3).

“Besides, he must wash his hands also in front of others. in other circumstances, such as: due to natural causes nykh needs, after leaving the bathhouse, for nail treatment, after cutting your hair, after taking off your shoes, after leaving cemeteries, after bloodletting and even after beatings naked, without washing his hands afterwards, if he is “talmid hochem” (a learned Talmudist), then go crazy *).
. i -

“It is not permitted for a Jew to go more than four hours before ablution.

“ex steps, and also to sit with an open head” 5).

the rule is motivated by the following: “The Holy Ones of Israel-people perform this as a sign of piety: follow-teach and teach children to cover their heads so that they feel take on the fear of God."

Jewish rabbis claim that Adam sneezed in the first time Eve gave him an apple. Therefore, Adam took it as a bad omen and a sign approaching death. This is how it was until [that. Ə one day sneezed and, not wanting to die, turned to God with a request to change this order of things, and the request was heard. From then on, according to the book-Those present always wish happiness to the sneezer and health.

From these quotations the reader will see that, with such regulation of every movement, it was easy for the decedent to reach

---

1) From this it is clear that evil spirits do not touch Christians. and from the process of resettlement of the soul during sleep, Christians are also freed days of the Talmud.

1) Book of Oirakh Chaim, ch. 4. l. 15.

3) Book of Oirakh Chaim, ch. 1. l. 7.

4) Oirakh Chaim, ch. 4, p. 18.

>) Talmud, Shabos, l, 118.

e lo

to the conviction that sins are destroyed by strict execution-
ni ,
exclusively rituals, so, in the words of one ï , « i ,
but there is only ritual law."

Talmud considers the highest fulfillment of formal sides of their orders.

“Hezekiah is being exterminated,” it says, “not for sincerity.”
the prayer, but for the fact that he read two prayers in a row.
Lithuania, continuously one after another" '). i $-
i
,Y »).

And to what oddities and funny little things Whose law does not reach in its innumerable prescriptions! So, for example, on the basis of the Commandment God: “You shall not do any good on the Sabbath day.”
niy" (Ex. 20, 10), the Talmudists decreed 949 rules, which forbid a Jew even to spit into the air Saturday, because this looks like i - "(sweet rye" °).

The ancient Jewish interpreters constantly distorted they read the law of Moses, and became so confused in the labyrinth rint and contrasts, that sects arose, embittered by one against others who were beaten and fought in [e-even the temple B in Rusalim, shedding streams of blood, perishing in masses because of some stupid, ignorant thing a sensitive ritual or even a simple formula. For understanding Let's give an example. A man touched a sword or to some other instrument with which to kill a person inBk, that under the continuous conditions that prevailed at that time wars were, of course, a common occurrence. According to the law

For Moses, this man was considered defiled by one daytime cleansing epithet; if he touches to a vessel with some food substances, he the vessel and food substances will be considered completely unclean. In the evening, if he washes, i.e. immerses himself into the water, it will be completely cleansed from the former defilement.
nenya! For those who adhere to the rule of "the sword is defiled-

—_-.

1} Tract. Verakhot, p. 10. 2.
2) Tract. Berakhot, p. 3, 2.
h) Khme Adam Avraham 'Danizhga, Vilnius 1825 "On the resolution-“Niyah Saturday”, page 815.

to be like a dead person”, this is a person, just like so-the court he touched must be considered producers of impurity (Abga-tumag) with a seven-day cleansing penance, and the vessel in turn communicates shield containing food substances first degree defilement (Rishon-le
). %i, , -
gosya in such a state of "rabbinical" impurity, holy
The Hasidic puppies would shun the vavfrnoe, avoiding every communication and contact with him; but people are not obliged every accidental impurity should be announced to everyone and such thus one Jew had to free another. Although it happened that there was evil spirits, but he, according to his method interpreted! I recognized the correctness of the law of Moses,
$, $.
This is a lack of confidence in the rituals of impurity of one part of the the family must be attributed to the interpretation of the ancient halakha, according to which people's dresses, even quite diligently observed-those who possess ritual purity are considered sources of non-purity for persons consuming sacrificial food.
interpreter Tosif Tseredei, who spoke out against the rule “to desecrate a sword like one killed.”
The Mishna has preserved for us a tradition with the following content:

"Gosif ben- [Oezer was one of the Hasidim priests-of a noble class, and his dresses were considered sources impurity (medrass) for those who use the sacrificial
I will let you in" (Mishna tr. Chagiga P.) Then the fragmentation of the Jews
i developed into a fraction with various degrees of twisting puleznosti v observiii zakonnoj purity: - (--) black laborer, was the source-no one is unclean (medrass) defiled for the Pharisees fanatics; the dress of the Pharisees—+medrass" for the Zdyushchiy sacred bread (teruma—and hala); the dress of the Vigilant saints ђ — "" for those who eat sacrificial meat, etc. So the members of one category were alienated from the members of the other goy, from the brink of intimacy between you. A that is why already in the most ancient times the priestly corporation, out of excessive zeal for the Mosaic Law, destroyed in an unnoticed manner one of the sublime-our principles of the same Mosaic law: “one

= AND =.

let the law and the uniform right be for you all and for “the stranger who dwells among you” (Numbers 10:16).

In “Voskhod” Pereferkovich is certified by the Jewish rab-
to blame for far from favorable svBt%. |

Vesyakiy understands that the rabbinical profession is in that the form in which it exists at present, one sadness. The Talmud would not have hesitated at all to include to cast her into the "robber professions". A person receives general salary for dBlo low-productivity, if not entirely useless, because it is impossible to classify regions
i i . - bridges to productive activities. If it is still possible to put up with the salary he receives, God bless him him, because he, in the expression of the law, is “the guardian and "interpreter of the Jewish faith"—that is absolutely impossible put up with the fees charged by him for individual needs;
and for no one is it a secret that for ispolpeniya · - no matter what rabbis we need, we are all a “priestly people” kov", and rabbinical rubles for "receipts" amount to

i , —   ,
that it coincides precisely with the era of greatest ma-
i i : i ,
wedding, funeral.

Governments of the Russian Federation if the Jews, led astray, believed and they believe that spiritual rites of education and marriage
1 , i i-anskimi religija, iudeiskim clergy. These rites, undoubtedly, for the Jews the importance of spiritual rites is nyh, but their implementation does not constitute a monopoly of the EU-Reich clergy: according to the law of the Jewish Church, executed
It is not the responsibility of these sacred rites to each private, secular street. That's how it works -- surgerygic and requiring skill operating— is performed "mo-Gelim" by educators, special specialists, laymen.
The wedding ceremony is performed according to the law by the bride personally.
 i established prayer and transmission the groom does not have rings, and, again, without any participation of the clergy (divorce is drawn up at the request of the husband bet-din, a civil court, and by no means a clerical one.
(stvo). Dalfa funerals among the Jews do not constitute spiritual rite, as in Christians. The clergy, according to according to the law of Moses, one has no right to touch corpses even close relatives. Burial in every Jewish

The private society "Khabura-Ka-" is engaged in the management of the community.
"Disha", consisting of only the most holy persons.

Thus, the analogy of the Jewish religious societies rows with Christians— at the desire of inovfrcheskago governments, for statistical purposes, to standardize
ii ,   i -
i.

Resolutely web legislation on strange and not the misconception explained so far is considered equal wine by a cleric among the Jews, among others, a rabbi ("rabbi") means a teacher, a person of the Holy Scriptures and in the Jewish community, which is a learned Talmudist of the law-in the house and, in the quality of laws, the presFlatelem of the Jews-

, -.

From here it is self-evident that the assignment to the equal guilt of the duty of correct maintenance of registers of births is an ifra that always bears the most miserable fruits.

Of course, for national purposes, state rabbis,
as true people's leaders, they never refused from the false mission imposed on them by the infidels by law. They willingly kept and continue to keep the required lists, but as much as it is beneficial to the interests of the Jewish community.

With the fall of the temple, which can be according to the law only in Jerusalem, on Mount Mora, did the Jews lose their fight public service (with victims, staff of the clergy, etc.).
Due to this order of things, Judaism does not have a divine services, i, . . i the Pentateuch and established prayers, but in their place the temple imparts a huge mass of private prayer houses languages and not a small number of places of public worship—
. , -
i i i groups, as a dangerous phenomenon for the unity of religions of Izraand, should have attracted the attention of the representative leaders and leaders of the Jewish movement. To counter this, fragmentation, in the days of Rosh Hashanah (New Year) and Tom Ki-pur (day of liberation), national holidays, pro-lasting 10 days, holidays that are celebrated with singing to remind the Jews of the former greatness of the kingdoms of Israel and

rv

the throne of David, on the days of the holidays held in the east the solemn reading of the most patriotic hymns and mo-Lithuanians who inflame Jewish political passions masses, on holidays ending in a militant with a trumpet call and shouts from all the people: “Lemana ha-baa birushelaim! (next year - to Jerusalem), - these days the Kagal strictly obliges everyone to close the prayer house with a beggarly setting, to appear to the public synagogue for a solemnly furnished

i-i i .

(1086 . I, . Y . .) i rituals of formation and naming, marriage,
water and burial are the sole responsibility of the applicant.
government of the rabbi, and according to the Jewish laws and developed by the VZKs of the worldview, the fulfillment of these rituals dov is not the monopoly of one rabbi alone. Each
, i i , -
it is necessary to provide such a service to a responsible and experienced person, to whom one has confidence or respect.

With the introduction of metric books for Jews in Russia in 1535, entrusting the management of these books to the rabbis
But the legislator believed that by providing them exclusive right to perform all rituals and we do not allow any other person to do this, under threat of being punished.
catch punishment, it fully ensures the correct keep registers of births, but he completely missed it it should be noted that the Jews perform rituals individually exclusively by a rabbi, in addition to special difficulties niy, as in education or burial, just physically
It is impossible for many reasons, deeply rooted in those who have taken up public life, whose letter of citizenship the law cannot be ignored in any way or eliminate.

The consequence of this disagreement is that the rules:
Pose rituals are still performed by specialists very often besides the rabbi and thus they nowhere are not registered, and if the rabbi's house is a sanction, then in violation of the established order of the law, which is why it occurs omissions or deliberately admitted errors with the text concealment of newborns.

—<=

CHAPTER 3.
Schools and academies of Shammai and Hillel.

Rabbinical schools with their confused, materialistic, superficial teaching system based on word-spouting and literalists, - they came up with a lot peculiar subtleties for explaining the Mosaic Law.
By the way, he applied all the pettiness of his
i ,
vBsa and mBry vsZkh taken vmVstV and poroden zapVZdey ritual and moral law. Thus, they came to a very strange conclusion that in the commandment
This law contains 248 affirmative rules vil, i.e., supposedly according to the number of members in the human TBL, and 865 negative - according to the number of arteries and veins or days in a year; the total sum of them will be 613, or the number of letters of the ten-word scripture. Since according to the law of Moses-Every Jew was obliged to wear a talisman on the corners of his head.
tassels (tsitsys), stitched with blue thread, then, - countedhaving that each tassel should consist of eight threads current and five knots, and the letters in the word tsysysg are 600, then the total number will again be 613, i.e. equal to the total the number of letters of the commandments. However, some rabbis there were 620 rules for the sum of the word caferg (vBnets);
The sages of the Great Synagogue reduced it to eleven, so-Okay, Psalm 15, and they said that Ismi has only six, Micah has three, Avvakum has one rule.
It goes without saying that out of such a multitude of rules, not all could have the same dignity: therefore n$kotosome of them were called kal (sv.), and others kobgedg (weight). Now the question is: which of them is the most the main commandment? According to the teachings of which guilty, the most important was the one who spoke about tefi-
. Who carefully observes it, that - to be considered as observing the whole law. Hillet, indicates calling to one proselyte—a pagan in verse 18 of chapter 10, book Levit said that the whole essence of the law is in it, and the os-
There is only a complete interpretation of it. Rav. Joseph Ben-Rabba (1 11,88) , -
His father told him to save him, he said: “the law on acidity” tyakh. Walking away from the napkin stand one day, my father caught hold of something.

a 5. s

with his brush and tore it off; he did not want to move with m$- hundred until the tassel was sewn back on.”
% ӣ, i i as criminal as a person (obvious) only a Jew); others believed that the rules of the Mishnah were all—
"heaviness", and from the rules of the law some are "svvt", others are "weight". There were also those who considered the greatest the third commandment. But not one of the Jewish crowds the blacksmiths did not realize the truth that arbitrary the violation of one of the commandments is the violation of the whole
, —i .
question proposed by the scribe to Joseph, between sham-
There was a difference between the Maiites and the Hillelites, and the school, as usual, i, . — ђ -
the performance of simple external rites, regardless of the spirit in which they were committed and the principle which they explained dBystviem: the Hillelites thought that the internal
i $ - there is no importance in it. These latter forgot and did not want to see that the greater principles are essential are necessary for the proper execution of the smallest obligation duties.

i i ')
The Talmudists established 265 rules, one of which say: "What if 10,000 Jews on the day of Passover were-I write in water drawn from one well, in in which soon after that a barley grain was found, then all they have to do is prepare the food together with the dishes to burn or throw into the river". „ Gilkhes · shabes”, i.e.
e. the charter concerning the rules of the Sabbath, there are 166 chapters, 949 articles. Regarding only the prohibited ones
There are over 8,000 different recipes for dishes
Notes: about the above, the ritual of washing hands up to 100
i; i 200; 200;
with all the details regarding the form of leg circumcision-tey. Rabbi Simla expressed that all Jews are married in 365 prohibitions, according to the number of days of the solar year, and 248 led by the number of members of the human body. He led also dogmatic disputes with Christian spirits-
i. Simla was big

1) Exod. 12:20.

specialization in the invention of various rituals for
i. Ancient writers were surprised by this pettiness, and Cicero said directly: “Every nation has its own he has rituals, like us, but the religion of the Jews so contrary to the greatness of the empire, the glory of our possession and the laws of the republic, that it inspires disgust in us” '!).

i-
ev. For their part, these latter, pursued by all-general contempt, did not try to find a reasonable way to to labe unpleasant impressions produced by their rituals women and religious oddities, but, on the contrary, in in their writings and secret meetings were called great what empire that gave them shelter, “cruel kings” the kingdom of Edom; Caesar's capital was compared to ancient Basilica Vilonom, and the people and emperors - with the Edomites and the living
"the invaders of Sodom and Gomorrah."

The teaching of the Talmud so distorted the New Jewish religion giyu, that in it there is not the slightest resemblance to the ancient Israeli religion of the Mosaic law. Suev8 rya, reached their highest development, clothed themselves in a sacred form-

According to the teaching of the school of Shammai, on holidays one should first read
You pray, bless the holiday of "Kiddush" sanctifiednot a holiday, but then a "broches" over wine; according to the teaching Hillel's school on the contrary.

According to the teaching of Shammai, first wash your hands, and then they pour wine, and according to the teachings of Hillel, before pouring They drink wine and then wash their hands.

According to the teachings of Shammai, after wiping your hands, put down the wiper or a napkin directly on the table, but according to Hillel's teaching it should be to put on a chair or armchair.

i , i room, and then wash their hands, and according to Hillel it should be everything is the other way around.

According to the teaching of Shammai: The prayer is read before “saved”, over the food, over the “schmecker” and "avdoloy". According to the teachings of Hillel: according to prayers over the lamps-who will sing a prayer over the “schmecker” °), then over
i °). i ,

1) This year 28.

2) Shmeker i rodz snuffboxes.

h) A candle woven from several thin colored waxes.

HER

over the lamp, i.e. above the saint, it is read:... „Oozdavshiy fiery light", and according to Hillel... "The Creator of fiery "svta".

If sometimes someone forgot to read the last prayer, then he must, according to the teachings of the school of Shammai, return to the same to the mfst himself, namely the gdf kushal, and read a prayer;
the teachings of the Hillel school, he can read and on that topic, on which he remembered.

i i,
in one glass, then according to the teaching of Shammai, it should first read a prayer over wine, and then read a prayer
i, i - turnover.

Omen, answer, when I read the prayer of this Jew; if the Samaritan read, then you must first listen
i,
in the deliberate perversion of the meaning of prayer ( Berakhot).

Before eating salted and bread, you should read prayer only over salty things, since bread is here is only a seasoning. Before eating figs, wine-hail and grenades, must, according to Rabbon Gamaliel, tat three prayers, and according to the wisdom of the wise, one common thing prayer. R. Akiba believes that three prayers should be read.
i, i ,
if it is the main dish.

For women, slaves and small children it is not allowed ritual prayer "zimmun". What quantity of the Blessed does it require zimmun? Food the size of an olive. According to the teaching R. Iudy - in the egg. When , i the zimmun prayer is said: “Blessed,” and four times rum, - "Bless*. If there are 10 people at the table, like a complete minin, then say: “Let us bless “Your Jehovah!” etc. (Tractate Berakhot).

You can't pronounce prayers over something that's been dissolved with wine, teach R. Elezer; talmid chochem, talmudistskie sages teach that it is possible.

There is a rule regarding planting grapesnika: for five vines planted in a row and released along a fence 10 palms high or a ditch · deep 10 palms and 4 palms wide, take away the service area of 4 cubits. According to the school of Shammai, it should be measured out these four elbows in the direction of the field from the foundation vines, and according to the school of Hillel, - from the fence. R. Tuann ben Muri say: both TV and other people are mistaken; what if there are 4 cubits between the fence and the base of the vines, then the “aris” is given the usual area of 6 palms, and the rest of the space can be sown. How big is the paradise? should it be a grape tree? - 6 palms with veBh sides; R. Akiba teaches that there are only three. Rabbi Ha-

I t.—2,

Maliil and his court established that it should be left a distance of 4 cubits between the space of the vines and the barrier doy (DetBl Zeraim. Treatise Kilaim).

One of the writers described the rabbi as follows: russian philosophy. „Only one rabbinism reigns around us, arouses protest and indignation in him.

Satan is pushing these rabbis to study only those parts of our sacred scriptures, on which which they can show their wit, but he holds back they live from all the writings that would increase piety and fear of God."

fe

CHAPTER 4.

The rabbis turned all the Mosaic rites inside out.

ii i ,
and prophets, the rabbis in their reformist endeavors-
i turned inside out or destroyed;
They created countless oddities, which
i i .
Basing new rites on a false interpretation of words law, on traditions, often ridiculous and devoid of all
i, - their already false vfrovaniyas! Just a little-
i i i
biblical life; others represent a mixture of suevfriya, Introduction to astrology, cabalism and other mysteries science. But the Jews consider these rituals to be so necessary.
we who think that even prayer itself cannot have strength if it is not accompanied by them.

As soon as the ii starts babbling, he is persistently told about the unconditional fulfillment of the ritual and this conviction is so deeply rooted in him, that he is ready to sacrifice everything just to fulfill rites at a certain time and in the form prescribed the rabbis are busy. From early morning until late at night.

nights, at home, going to bed and getting up, he is obliged
It is imperative to observe the rituals, no matter how long you have they didn't take him away. His religious life is in every way growth, with a few exceptions, consists only of
i — -
new. We already know that these teachers tell us to lie to them, if they call the left hand the right, and the right left; therefore it is not difficult to estimate the meaning by which the Jews use rabbis as guardians and overseers
. γ%,
what degree of late teachers of the i - capable of their dogmatic arbitrariness and influence on a feeble-minded and ignorant mass of simple, ignorant people.)

Moses, wanting to eradicate all pagan customs, i i during Egyptian slavery, - til, by the way, -
, i, a similar dish was brought pagans as a sacrifice to idols. The Talmudists, not understanding the true meaning of the Mosaic prohibition, or not wanting it understand, they came to the ugly conclusion that Moses generally prohibits mixing dairy and meat.

Once we had reached such a conclusion, all that was left was to legitimize it, and indeed, the rabbis were not slow to create to give a large, extensive charter, under the name "Gilches"
"arb-kholov" with comments, where Jews are forbidden to:
1) to cook any meat in milk; 2) to to consume utensils in which meat food is prepared, for preparing food with milk;) take milk
i ,
and the meat after the milk ranfe hour, which is supposed to be
i .

i Talmud appointed signs, for example, on wooden spoons, belonging to dairy food%, on the handles should There should be four notches on the bottom of the dish; other dishes should have there may be signs of a similar nature. If the milk tree

The dried dishes will touch by accident or mistake to meat dishes or food", then 06% of the dishes are treff-

e unfit for consumption. Wooden utensils the tin one should be thrown out, and the tin or silver one the brown one is re-poured, the cast iron one is burned out ognf to red, and then only according to the Talmud she can be fit for consumption by a Jew.

Commentators of the Talmud all the scholars have gone to the scholastic school
i , -
the main point of his research, the well-known utterance of the slave.
, , "Moisey was given 613 -
"Their busy, mechanical work, which consisted in calculating biblical decrees, I found myself a worthy appraisal by Ibn Ezra (1098-1167), who said about them that they look like a person, who counts how many drugs are indicated in the medical Talmud, as
It is also known that the question of the name is quite rarely asked.
the purpose of medicines, i.e. about the purpose of religious prescriptions. The most exciting thing about this issue is that he considers seems reprehensible. So in the treatise Berahot (Y, 3) is found: "If someone says in prayers:
Your mercy extends to the birds of the air, etc., then—you stop him." Gemara in explanation of the given Mishnah (Talmud) rushes (ibid. 23 p.) "for he indicated-
I called for God's mercy, among you as commandments God's must be fulfilled simply as a law without regard in relation to their foundations." "Why?", one asks Sanhedrin treatise (21 years): "the motives are hidden from us
?
from the great ones of this world (Solomon), for it is said (Deuteronomy 17:17): Take yourself many wives, lest your heart. Solomon said: I will take many wives, but the heart mine will not turn away. Meanwhile it is said (Book of Kings 11:4):
And when Solomon was old, his wives turned away his heart."

Among all the Tanaites, Si-my son Iochai, who not only sought the foundations
i , , practical significance. This scholastic direction is called, as we know, a fierce protest on the part of Anan (about half of the 8th century) and his followers, formed shikh sect of Karaites.

i - vaniya, in whose name they declared war on the rabbi I his child, his talmud.

The defenders of the Talmud realized that they needed to to dig with the heresy that arose with its own weapon, and here they are try to give their teachings a philosophical justification.
Then another turn took place: the philosophers let everything go it is a thick fog, like the Egyptian one, from which one can
, i -
Egyptian darkness. The first such philosopher was Gaon.
Osadya al-fayumi, but the greatest representative of the new Maimonides is considered to be of philosophical orientation.
, , i instructions for "laws", the benefits of which are clear to everyone, and on decisions, the appropriateness of which is not immediately is obvious, but it may open after the study is completed.
i, i .

This difference is purely conditional, subjective. As Maimonides notes, both laws and i equally ,
religious prescription, which constitutes the "law" for a sage capable of rising to the understanding of his goals, may be a simple regulation for people little educated. Maimonides, imthya in the mind of Moses legislation, stops before the question of cђ-the lyakh of human life in general. The highest of the spiritual human abilities, he says, are ability thinking or reason; with the help of reason we priobr knowledge and distinguish good from evil. The effectiveness of reason is divided into theoretical or speculative and practical tical. The first is aimed at studying external precepts the world in its full form, in which they exist in

: , ,
the fruit of it is science. The second is aimed at steps and striving for a person, partly on his creativity,
i i ;
in short, it means what should be.

Initially, the mind represents only one force, and only turns into an acquisitive mind, etc.

syye AE

CHAPTER 5.

i .

Any new utensil, according to the teachings of the Talmud, must be immersed in a living source and blessed by the famous short prayer; otherwise it is prohibited for use. Dishes such as pots, glasses, etc. should not to descend into the water with the edges down, because, according to the Talmud, water to enter inside. And the execution of all such trifles not given to the free will of each. N%t+, Talmud vs raises rituals to dogma and demands the most precise execution of related regulations and rules.
,

The word "keli" in the Jewish language means usually “vessel”, i.e. an object adapted for preservation the absence of food substances and drinks in it. But this the same word is also quite often used in the sense
i , i ,
in general, in the sense of any household item. Now, if the law says: “every thing of the cell, on which-which sits festering, becomes unclean; clay so-the court of the cell, which the festering one touches, let it be break, every wooden vessel (keli) shall be destroyed wash with water" 1); or if the law says that all things (kelis), located in the tent where the human being is located i , °), then the question arises, how to understand in in each of these and similar laws the word "cells" in the sense of "vessel", or in the sense of household utensils at all.

The said phenomenon, however, is not unique to one only to ancient Jewish legislation; it is found also in the history of Roman law, where later juristhe saints had to interpret the laws of the 12 tables, vavshiesya religioznoy sankshey; it is also found in nBsome modern peoples, who, out of a sense of pacificism does not abolish its ancient laws, but only interpret them.

There are two possible ways to interpret the ancient law:

1) Heb. XU, 4, 12.
2) Hishem XX, 14, 18.

historical method and ordinary method. The first method strives to restore the meaning of the words of the law, which the legislator himself gave them. This is achieved either by by means of philological research, which determines, what is the meaning of this word in the era of legislation ; or the meaning of the word is determined from the very cone through the disclosure of its inner meaning and the cult he pursued. The second, usual way, does not care at all about historical truth when interpreting vanii drevnyago zakon: this historical truth he propresents the obvious truth.

The word “cells” should be understood in the sense of household utensils in general. It is clear that the legislator took care that the infectious discharge of pus miasma or mizma spreading from the corpse of the deceased, from leprosy or from the plague, - so that these visible or volatile which harmful particles are attached to household items of no use, were not transmitted through them to healthy people tsam. It is obvious that from this point of view the form of the object is seen, its purpose and the material from which it is made depend on has absolutely nothing to do with it. The material from which it is taken the draft is prepared and is accepted, however, by the legislator with attention, but only to the extent that it influences on the ability of an object to free itself from adhering him harmful material. Metallic and wooden pre- the marks are freed from it by means of washing, gly- the same dishes that were not covered in ancient times glaze, due to its porosity and light impregnation availability, is not freed from the earnings attached to it

i.

, A suppurative disease, due to the established among 1of the Jewish people, the strict principles of family life became in general an extremely rare phenomenon; except for one thing national "Hatpz" scab, regarding the plague, devastation-cultures, only one cholera exterminates more than others 1Jews.

Between the tBm, the initial goal of these burdens the existence of harmful and unprofitable laws has long ceased exist. Is it possible to assume that the legislator Do you mean to aimlessly stifle people? Of course not! But the law, existing and, as divine, not canceled subject to. It only remains to narrow the scope as much as possible. its application, limiting the volume of the object to a minimum inconvenient law, which was achieved by introducing lectical method.

2A =

It follows that only clay, wooden and leather items are susceptible to desecration, which i, ; all sorts of household items that do not have the appearance of a style, —

i i.

The concept of a vessel is associated with the idea of an object a metre, not attached to the ground and easily movable the naval transport vehicle with its contents from place to place. More chests, cabinets, tables, etc., as non-movable items, not susceptible to desecration 1).

The concept of “the vessel” includes only objects serving man and his needs; the objects used for pets: dishes, harness, etc. are not acceptable 2).

By the word “cells”, in the sense of the thing in general, I understand usually have any product of human hands, while it is completely finished; before that it is called a piece of wood, an ingot of metal, but not a thing, does not perceive ritual desecration. Subject is called a "vessel" only until it is satisfied fulfills its original purpose; if he to receive damage, ceases to respond to its former ney ts$li.

When he stopped answering his first goal, although the vessel was suitable for other needs, it was already loses the ability to be susceptible to new desecration neniyu or trefu, but is freed from that desecration, which he had previously received ). About clay dishes the law says that it must be broken, it means read: it must be broken and through this it will become clean, unlike other vessels that can be cleansed in another way too). The law says to write, if the stoves and hearths are “refracted”, then they should be destroyed, this means that damage must be inflicted on them

3) M. Kelim Kh-, 1 and chomontariy to Lev. XI, 32.
3 Sifra M. Kelim

Tosefta Kelim, Bova Metsiya P, 10.
4) M. Kelim I, 1. Sifra k Lev. XI, 33.

damage, and through this they will become kosher, i.e.
clean.

The oven for baking bread among the ancient Jews was simple - in its form it represented a clay, hardened cat nus, the wide edge of which was covered with cement to earth, and through the upper narrow opening
-
lago cone. So to the Caucasus in Tiflis to the market in Tatars bake flatbreads, i.e. flatbreads, in boilers, covering boiler with a casing. The stove for cooking with the only difference being that instead conical shape of the last impfla shape of a hollow cylinder, on the top opening of which a pot of food was placed.
And here's about the law: "the oven (into which something has fallen-“anything unclean) must be destroyed,” the halakha de-it turns out that to destroy a stove means to bring it into a state unfit for consumption, and for this purpose it is sufficient to dissolve divide it into three longitudinal parts or draw several transverse sections, so that the height of each ring was less than the width of 4 palms. Separate stripes or the rings are freed from the former infection, i.e. desecrated niya and connecting them with cement, we will get again clean stove. On the basis of this halakhah it was invented Several types of dismountable ovens that can be easily removed from infection or completely immune to it. For example, potters prepared ovens, which were made of n$- how many longitudinal parts, tightly adjacent to one another to the other and connected by iron hoops.
As soon as such an oven becomes unclean, the hoops are removed,
and the infection evaporates, after which it is folded again, and the clean oven is ready (M. Kelim). Patriarch r.
Simon ben Gamliel invented a special kind of oven, immune to infection: it consists of two concentric reinforced cones; the outer one is solid , and the internal one is cut into rings. In order to the rings held tightly on their places, and for that,
to reduce the thermal conductivity of the furnace, space between both cones is filled with sand (Tosefta Ke-lim, Baba Kamma IV, 15). “In such an oven, clean and un-Pure women can bake their own bread at the same time.
The Mishnah describes other types of ovens: modifications an Arab stove, bearing the name of its invention

„-” -, i $.
Akhina.

As is known, the following have cleansing power: a spring, stream or pond, even a pool with a capacity of three cubic cubits, not paying attention to a benign property of water. In it, water can be dirty, smelly and painted in some color. According to the law of Moses, every collection of water remains clean and the shadow retains its cleansing power, even after how the corpse of an animal or a person got into it (Leviticus XI, 36). The Pharisees taught on this basis: if a person is filled with a vessel that is apparently clean, but in religious rules are not pure water, then he can make water fit for consumption by dipping the vessel into the upper edge into the purification pool, so that the upper surface of the water in the vessel touched, or expression, "pocflovala" with the surface of the water into the pool, and now you need to take out the vessel so that no dirty water from the pool got into it.

After this act, the water in the vessel is considered as would have been scooped from the pool').

The interpretation in the mission% allows this fiction only for water, but not for other drinks: milk, wine, butter, sharp differing in color and other properties from water, not can be cleaned in this way.

i
for purifying these liquids, such as milk, wine, etc.
They used a vessel in the form of a bottle, with a narrow neck.
lump, and filling this vessel with tref liquid, they loaded it into the pool upside down, plugged with a finger
i, - a hole and, again plugging it with a finger, they took it out of the water and The liquid in the vessel became kosher.
nov. An inclined column of liquid is carried to the target the title of “nitsuk” stream, served among the ancient Pharisees in the usual way for koshering trefnykh zhid-bones.

The Mishnah cites this method of kosherization on behalf of R. Joshua; but then he says that other sages rejected this is the method of koshering and they taught that neither the “stream” nor

1) M. Makhshirin 1\, 8. Betsa P, 3.

. 17
the inclined stream cannot serve for reflection,
i .

“The Sadducees say: we protest against you, fa-Riseev, that you cleanse the descending stream, and the Pharisees object: we protest against you, the Sadducees, that you are on a clean stream, going from a (M.
1 IY, 1

0 ii
uncleanliness. ђ (- ), believing that they stand on the basis of the biblical-of the text, have moved much further away from it than ancient Pharisees.

The Karaites reject, of course, the relief of waters of the Siberian Peninsula, including the principle of “desirability”, although they admit that rain does not favor vegetation products to the perception of infection. However, in addition liquids, which, according to them, have a “predisposing” power
i, , , i, . -
, i. i (. %,
burnt ears), cut, salted or canned items lotye (e.g. cereals, pea flour, etc.) i to the sewage and in a dry state. It is clear that in these burdens of the law do not imply any minor grounds in the text and are not justified by any sanitary advice.
images. On the other hand, the Karaites unexpectedly deny the ability of water to accept infection. Water, in their opinion, only food predisposes
ii i, -,

means, cannot become unclean. And if it is written: all-which drink that becomes unclean, that is applies to all other drinks except water.
Just as water is impervious to infection, so is flour.
rye or wheat, although it is obtained by means of crushed: this, they say, is dust; earth, not food-substance. We know quite well about water, that the Sadducees were of a different opinion. In M. Todaipe Sadducees protest against the Pharisees for what they admitted a stream of clean water. Whatever the meaning of this dispute, but the talk is in any case about the waters and the Sadducees they knew her to be unclean. The same follows from the report Evangelist about the Bethlehem of Tissus Christ with the Samaritan Woman (J 1\, 9). $, i

; ; i,
who considered water to be always clean, even in the hands pagans, she would not have been surprised by this; why should she to think that the person who asked for water from her is certainly a Pharisee, and ? i $hй' -
, that the book Ji was written during the time of the Maccabees, then from Chapter X, 5 we can conclude that in ancient times flour was recognized as capable of infection.

To fully understand this, one must pay attention to what, according to the Talmud, God gave to Moses except the verses written in the Pentateuch, and many others some unwritten ones that serve to replenish and separate
i . , - 613 actions: 248 of them are positive and 865 are negative.
nykh. The last 365 are given according to the number of solar days year, and the first 248 by the number of joints of the human tBla. Moses, receiving commandments from God, also received full a new explanation of each of them. Commandments: Keep these and theirs
i, i ,
prophets and teachers, and in complete purity and immutability news reached the last time. Since micro (the Bible) did not always give answers to various questions and requirements, and teachers, thanks to tradition and comparison words, nothing was left unanswered, then the first

The Talmud began to acquire greater significance in the eyes of the people, and mikra faded into the background. Hence the authority became Talmudists, who in all cases of life indicated they called the meaning of the law and the people preferred them to Moses, because he did not find what they pointed out to him teachers. Based on the letters of the law, the Talmudists created their casuistry, but left the spirit of the law aside. The Talmud, with all scrupulousness, lists all the possible possible life situations, and for each of them give a definitive dilation, based on writing or legend. For example, the words of the prophet Ezekiel, that among the animals he The appearance of Fl in a dream, the legs were straight, - give reason to i :); words of the psalm. „The Lord raises up the pa-“giving” show, on the one hand, that it does not follow to bow when pronouncing the name of God, and with another goy, that having bowed to God before His pronunciation

r) Talmud, trak. Berakhot, l. 10, art. 2.

name, you need to stand up straight!). This kind of definition
i, —
law, imphut, according to their teaching, the character of holiness, inexchangeability and divinity. The construction of the law on the form-small bases and the belief that with the implementation of this law is associated with public awards and i, i - clearly in the ritual law. Thanks to this, practically
, i i
to the external side of life. That is why the Talmudic The righteousness of the Jews is a purely formal righteousness.

As for the spirit of the law, in relation to
i .

In order to satisfy his sensuality, he did so and treats the law and rituals with the same cunning as Our Jews in everyday speculations and business deals. For example, the law prohibits committing acts of violence during the day: a resourceful Jew will make a night out of the day, closing into the house shutters, or go into a dark room.

In this way, 1 uday, remaining in the fringe of the letters behind-horse, can always freely satisfy the feeling of self-greed and tyranny; he will find an excuse in it and justification in all your actions and methods
i, , i ,
from Jehovah himself.

i - nykh and material. Taking into their own hands, the Jews invisibly began to ruin the Russian people, developing a sense of luxury, accustoming him to drunkenness, and from there to theft and other crimes.

There, a large number of Jews settle, very public morality is greatly reduced and the number of crimes is increasing steadily.

Such a influence of i is significant is reinforced by the tempting example of the crime of the self-MICHAEL THE JEW.

, , ,
predominantly Jews, according to statistics, in 10% of the i Warsaw judicial district, for 1876 — 86 years, out of a thousand criminals there were Jews: according to

1) Talm., tract. Broheiyet, l. 12, art. 1.

i —587,
armed theft—652, forgery and fraud—
989; purchase of stolen property - 797, open () 111, i — 824, falsity and false oath denunciation - 62, malicious bankruptcy - 921, public temptation—98(and counterfeiting of money—946 Jews.

These figures are very krasno
The Jewish element for every society is not only in direct meaning%, i.e. by the number of acts committed by the Jews

i, ii
on the local population, by means of persuasion, bribery pov and temptations.

The harm caused to the villages by Jewish corruption with it and the drinking of peasants, already in the [Catherine was striking to our unbribed dignitaries Judean silver coins, and therefore Governor-General P. B. Pas-sec even insisted on the expulsion of Jews from the towns in the cities for the purpose of convenient supervision over them.

More than once the Jews have caused significant harm to everything to our State, especially in times of difficult wars.
It is known that during the Crimean War and the Turkish Kam-Pasha 77-78 Jewish contractors supplied for our armies of rotten crackers, and at that time, when the fatherland tea number of hundreds of thousands of their best sons in the fields battles, the Jews blessed their fate for the war and became rich.
It is the same during the current war with Japan.
Jews, instead of a hundred felt boots, for our troops they put a soggy moss mass, and the famous Ginz-
, i squadrons, not embarrassed by the clever manner of getting caught with their transports to the Japanese in order to receive money for them from the Russian people's treasury huge insurance premiums.
Besides, which of the Russian people during the past war, I did not hear the constant jubilation of the Jews during the failures of Russia in the war; strikes, riots, murders-the state brought the Jews into extraordinary delight, which which they did not hesitate to express even in the presence of Russians.
SKIKH.

Lauder, a true Englishman, says: “The intrigues
England against Russia and all the hatred of the English towards the Russians
The Jews descended primarily from London Jews, who are conducting full-scale agitation against Russia and, fortunately,

2 V a giving their monetary power, extremely harmful influence in English."

Living in Russia itself, the Jews do not think at all about protecting to establish “their fatherland,” as they call it.
It is shown that by the time of the military conscription of 84°, the Jewish young people go abroad or hide in their own places in all sorts of ways. Even after the Jews to get into active military service, he first tries to kill everything, and the mass of them kills; and the rest being in the regiment, he is for the most part a seducer lem and incitement of soldiers to circumvent the law, teach-a lie to his superiors, he himself finally becomes among them a small moneylender. E. I. Martynov gives such conclusions regarding the Jewish soldiers who were in the troops during the Russo-Japanese War. “Having got to theater of war, the Jews usually tried to get a job all sorts of non-combat positions; if є - it happened, then they pretended to be sick, deliberately committed pre-i, deserted and even simply transferred to non-friend. In one division since April 1, 1904.
by May 1, 1905, 256 Jews fled; soldier of others
There were only 8 nationalities during that time.

The Jews in the ranks had a very bad influence on their comrades.
due to their nature, they were the main disseminators
.

With"

CHAPTER 6.
Blasphemy of the Christian shrine.

Our current fanatical zhidovstvo is ancient the laws of the Talmud were literally adopted by Christians (goyim).
"Do not mention the names of other gods"... (or do not force-let it be mentioned); let it not be heard because of you '). "Names “Do not mention other gods”: do not give him revenge
i: , ? — „
such and such avoydi zary": i.e. near such and such a church (not chistop abyss), don't say: wait for me near some avoydi zar. Rabbi says: “Do not mention the names of other gods.” in praise, but only in reproach and abuse, as

1) Megilta mishpatim 20, k Pekh. 23, 13.

It is said: "Dbless her disgusting." Avoyde zara nazy-is filled with humiliating names: kherem (cursed), shekets (disgusting), tozva (vileness), nesel, masekha, Elilim, Teraphim, Atsabim, Gilulim, Shikutzim, Hamahim"; such despicable names are called Christians stianskiya shrines, temples, chapels, displayed images on streets, gates, etc. In Russia, especially in capital cities, due to the large influx Judaism, out of respect for its sacredness, must be reduced to decorate so many images of the streets, alleys and abundant trading gates, which are decorated with a multitude of large, gilded, expensive icons.
The book Orach Chaim teaches: akims should not be considered for the people. When an akim (Christian) comes across with a cross, then the Jew is strictly forbidden to bow his head. catch, at least at this moment I prayed. Further, passing past the ruined temple of the akims, everyone is obliged to produce to carry "Glory to Thee, O Lord, that Thou hast uprooted from here “This is the house of idols.” Passing by the still untouched temple, he must say: “Glory to Thee, O Lord, that Thou “You continue to punish the villains.” Every Jew becomes it is the duty of every Christian temple to desecrate and
i ').

“When a Jew is forced to bow his head against the temple catch, for example, he dropped money on the ground, then in this in case he must turn his back to the temple.” °).

„A Jew is strictly forbidden to save Christians from death.
Nina, with whom he lives in peace."

“According to this, it is forbidden for a Jew to treat a Christian even for money, but it is allowed to test the effect on him medicines - is it useful or harmful °).

“When a Jew is present at the death of a Christian, he must women to rejoice at such an event" *).

Before the Christian cemetery, the Jew must say

"Your mother who bore you will be ashamed."
“The Lord will destroy the houses of the akims” 5).

“Any person who wants to denounce against a Jew, it is considered good to kill him; and that will be

1) Tract. [oreda, 1+6, 11 and 15.
2) Tr. jure—dev 150.

3) "cancer. Grief-dea 158.

4) Tract. Iore-dea 340, 5.

5) Book. Orach Chaim 224.

003} vle unet UK" p) TEA LES Set m OLA SAUNA PL Uu o O ov Il

RIVVIN ZALMAN BORUTOVIU ME FALSE

||

== 7987 sha.

Blessed is the child who turns the death penalty on him before others "nose blow" ').

Blasphemy.

In the village of Korzhevo, Tiraspol district, in the house of the christian Styanina Lavrentiya Borzhak imfl place such a case blasphemy. It is unknown why it was found there there a Jewish reveler shot from a revolver at the top The peasant has an icon of the Dormition of the Virgin Mary on his wall. This is terribly excited, according to the "Friend", all the peasants Korzheva and surrounding villages. The pierced icon of the Cross

The villagers solemnly carried it out into the middle of the village and announced about what happened to the authorities. The state of the peasants in view of the prothe blasphemy that has taken place over the church's holy place is terrible excited, which is especially suitable for the provocative the conduct of Jews who do not miss the opportunity to be stupid in every possible way pray over Christians.

Simferopol, April 27. The Odessa prosecutor arrived.
chambers for explaining the causes of disorder caused by
i i ,
was cut into pieces and thrown away.

If you collect everything systematically, all the cases will be
i i , ... -.)
hundreds of court cases to present. How many Jews were there?
convicted of blasphemy against Christian shrines.
Many facts are given in the 1st and 2nd volumes of our books "Talmud and Jews".

Unfortunately and to the feeble-mindedness of Russian traders in St. Petersburg in the Alexandrovsky market and other rows
Yes, under these shining icons they trade and stand
, i ,
with every glance at the icon, slander with the given words you in the Jewish language, spit and, if possible only, then they are obliged, according to the teachings of the Talmud, to throw feces or damage them.
to break off, to tear off a piece, to tear off or to smash glass and other.

Now the Jews are armed and revolutionary by the proclaimers, they achieve this by threats against the government.
the idea of equality, and God forbid they would achieve something good, then now we would start in the same way-

1) Tr. Khoshen ha-mishpat 388, 10.

to demand the destruction and removal of these rights Orthodox icons, chapels and even crosses in public public streets and public houses, as they already are We succeeded in achieving all this in France. We have the good fortune temporarily the Jews were offered as former builders railways, so that there would be railway stations in Russia
These holy chapels and images were destroyed.
and already from the top management follow a written project, which was published in newspapers, but then everything became quiet and silent, therefore, even in advance
All this was started by the Jews.

In the Talmud, the section “Shulchan Aruch”, defines the the migration of Jews to the goyim, i.e. to Christians. In prayer
The Shefoh Jews ask God to pour out his wrath on the goyim, and destroy them from under the heaven of the Lord. In the first ʞ „ “
THIS PRAYER.

The prayer "simun" should not be performed or read.
into the house of the akim or goy, so that they, the goys, would not take advantage
i, i 10- i
„MINIYA“. |

· The prayer “Kaddish”, i.e. blessing, can be pronounced sits, if 10 Jews gather in the Navy and in the house of a goy, just so that there is nothing unclean between them, i.e.
no animal, dog, cat, or presence of goys!).

« , i ,
then they can add provisions or cereals to the pot still for feeding dogs, but add provissh, so
"To feed a goy is strictly forbidden." - "On the same holiday-no one is allowed to give the goy money at interest, so that 1the Jew did not lose his profit» °).

“It is strictly forbidden for a Jew to hit his neighbor, but i — only 1; — not at all sin. In other m$fetas they even advise killing and to exterminate the goyim, "enemies of God and enemies of God's kind" (ibid.). Gudey is strictly forbidden to praise good-the qualities of the goyim, saying: what a good person, smart, learned, kind, kind, affectionate, etc. This fan-

1 : — -

1) Book “Orach Chaim”, 193, 3; 55, 20.
2) “Orakh Chaim”, 512, 539. b a dog's, a dog's caress, a dog's mind, a dog's instinct, but: not human he a 09 ro

The science of the Talmud is clearly visible: enmity, hatred, death
i,:
for Christians living between Judaism in the Southwestern in the Western and North-Western regions. As you can see... NI-chfi' insatiable vengeful hatred towards the goy, i.e. k a Christian, whom a Jew is even obliged to try to convert to rob, to dishonor, and even to beat, to kill, by all means
, , , , , ...
them under the heavens of the Lord." (Orakh Chaim, 690, 16).
These barbaric rules are not instilled in an individual person.
catch, and the singing nation, the whole nationality, studied these rules even the Jewish youth are not able to cope with it, finishing gymnasium, seventh and eighth grades, they hire parents the teachers of the Talmudists, and they work, they work hard over science; I myself am a personal witness, as a former teacher-
. .
,
for Russian money in Russian gymnasiums. This is a talmustudents, Jewish students, agents of the revolution, all this at the mill-lions of Jewish money and built bombs, proclamations, revolvers and deceived their Russian comrades, allegedly all this is for their, the Russians', good. These simpletons went due to the treachery of the Jews, they were equipped with the stupidest weapon Jews and for the benefit of the Jews. The entire composition of the extreme in G.D.
found himself under the command of the Jews. Those who became members of the State Duma 1The Jews are the main Talmudists, admirers of the Talmud and operating according to hidden rules of prescription and drawing Tanya of the Elders of Zion under the auspices of the conquest of Christ stian world, under the guise of creeping symbolic a snake whose head is already in St. Petersburg.

We know that the Jews always mock and blaspheme.
control the Christian religion. From the judicial slfd-It turned out that the Kishinev unrest to Kishinev for Easter, in April 1908, earlier than the outbreak of the pogrom, the Jews mocked the custom of Verb-Saturday, they smashed icons in stores with stones, they beat the prosphora from their hands and trampled it with their feet; they doused it
Those who went to church were attacked with European acid. Such actions
They are trying to undermine the people's respect for
. 6

A

22086772

they systematically, at every opportunity, become they are trying to undermine the authority of the clergy and humiliate it in the eyes of the people. The new example presents itself to us in
i Archpriest John Sergiev (Kronstadt). Zhidovskaya money to achieve everything, especially since in "Petersburg-» employees are fat and fierce Jews and still typical porridge, exactly the same as if from personally participated at Calvary during the crucifixion of Christ.
How can one not work on Father John of Kronstadt?
skim, who earned such fame and authority in all of Russia, no matter what the patriarchs in Russia. 0. John with his own hands he distributed many donations to those in need
i i , -
There may be more. From this envy arose not not only the Jews, but even the Orthodox clergy; hostile
i, ,
more spb. popy. O. [oan - walked as every priest should do according to one's duty.

The Jews, wanting to undermine and shake the faith of Christ, first of all, they try to humiliate in the eyes of believers Christian authority of the clergy. Then they try to demo to corrupt and corrupt Christians, which constantly practicks in provincial cities over the Christian servants in the service of the Jews. `

-

they exist precisely because religion, as well as its worship, residents, constitute the main connecting principle for Christians.
Stanskih people's masses. Having loosened them, I lie, shift love indifferent cosmopolitans, Jews, with their kaof common cohesion, then take away enormous force in.
to control the mood of disparate masses with their own hands.
In these same ways they try to influence the corrupting image and morality of Christians, using there are all sorts of ways to do this.

Regarding the general worship and respect of Fr. Ioanna, this did not happen due to any intrigues,
and this is an extraordinary phenomenon: it has penetrating tality, - he imparts the gift of clairvoyance - - in people to see everything hidden. The main thing is that many people have experienced
i .

=: Ps

tested, visually, by thousands of people, rich and poor, educated and simpletons were given life sentences, devoted admirers of Father John.

Of the thousands of facts of extraordinary coincidence, we have at least three facts in which we can immediately find out in St. Petersburg burg to anyone who wants to be killed. First fact: in epb. Moscow part, in the second section, serve as an tray supervisor Alexander Sergfevich Miga-Lovsky; his wife was seriously ill with typhus and was in bed in the hospital unconscious. The husband sent Fr. [Oanna, asking to pray for the sick woman. After which the wife went to the hospital woke up from a two-day faint and went into the sick room asked: “Has the priest who served here already passed away?”
We have a prayer service.” The patient replies that there is no bat-
There was no carcass. When the patient recovered completely, it was
It is known that in the city, Father Toan served in the church ob$dpyu, police officer Migalovsky led his wife to obdn%, where there were a lot of people and Migalovsky's wife, no seeing Fr. John, but, having heard his voice in the services, this an hour later I found out that this was the same one who served in Hospital prayer service during fainting.

In the city of Kovn%, on Green Mountain, a priest is a teacher of he raised a lot of Old Believers and collected them from the Bfdyaks pooled, but the treasury gave timber, built at the school, outside the city there is a church and it was without any formalities.
ties, but directly acted with common forces and the holiness himself puppy put all his meager state into this good deed invested. A new vicar bishop appeared in Kovno and seriously demanded from the builder the official priest-a report on the construction of this wooden church, sorrow of the chapel. When the official report and cord the book was not found, then the priest was brought to trial.
At this time, an old woman, a relative of the priest, sent Fr.
I , i ., -
WINE.

On the third day the bishop received an unexpected paper from the Holy Synod about transferring him somewhere into the depths of Rosai.

Third fact. In St. Petersburg. in the public library live S. 1. Baltroshaitis; his wife's sister, living in Vilno, was very ill with a nervous disorder, emaciated by illness so much that she was a living dead person and the doctor could not help. As a last resort, before death

I came to my sisters in Petersburg, and from there I went to Father John, asking him to pray for her, and he sent her to the church where he served the obfday. After the obfday again came to Father [Ann], asking for his prayers and blessings. loveniya, when she was leaving, Fr. Toann: offered her 10 rubles for the road, the patient became embarrassed and, thanking, seemed to take, saying that she did not need money, and only needs prayers for health: O. John offended-raise your voice loudly, saying: “So you are in money “Don’t you need it?” Then how about actually going on a trip?
She had nothing to go home to Vilna and she was forced
I had difficulties borrowing money from my sister for the trip.

three. It turned out that Fr. [oan] knew her difficulties well. the provision of money for the road. In addition, returning home to Vilnius, she recovered and is now completely healthy and full in the world, in what everyone can want be convinced.

Finally, it can be said directly in pure truth, that Father John of Kronstadt is not an ordinary priest and man. Serve as proof that he suffered! I am dying, our unforgettable Monarch, worldlover of Emperor Alexander III, when the head of the straDaltsa rested in the arms or in the arms of Fr. Joanna Kronstadt, then at this time the patient felt paingreat relief from suffering. |

The Jewish intrigue, through the Petersburg Leaflet, is not only it did not shake the devotion and respect for Fr. but on the contrary, it further strengthened love and respect for the spiritto my father in all of Russia, from one edge to the other. fans stand sadly and cry from such a a procession of Jews who are trying to overthrow the whole I lie to the Orthodox and the Russian state. Maybe to bring it to the point, under the sophistication of the Russians themselves, that The Jews will again take over the Russian churches, as they did before. under the rule of the Poles during the former uprising, that Jews ruled the Orthodox churches.

, In the city of Perm, the last session of the m$etnago district court and was especially rich in criminal cases: fights, murders, insults, and various scenes were so colorful that noyu i.

Of the numerous "bloody" dfl, it is necessary, without I doubt it, mark 2 dBla about the Jews who attracted the premises of the court, as ardent defenders, huge a motley crowd of "sons [of Jerusalem]."

This is torture by a vengeful fist - a Jew from Apelbaum of his servant—an elderly woman (Russian) from suspicions that she, supposedly, serves in his family, I acquired several things in an unseemly way bomb and, by the way, 5 rubles of money (and this is because of the 5 then to torture a man like a beast for rubles!..

According to the complaint of the injured woman, “Ierihonsky grazhDanin" was brought to the dock.
jurors, after a rather lengthy discussion
i (11 . ..), -
they brought the guilty verdict to the Jew, according to which ApelBaum was sentenced to deprivation of all rights and priority society and imprisonment for 1 year.

This was a matter of course for the Jews present in the ship.
a complete surprise, since they had been there for a long time Before this they were shouting everywhere and everywhere about perfect “safety-"ness" of his brother, - apparently relying on the accumulated with various deals and "handy" things, a huge state of the defendant and for the defense of such a juror
«», , i i 2
for this reason, the Kiev court Kat Kupernik.

For fun, let us present criticism of Jews against Jews.

In Kev, as is known, a new newspaper has begun to be published "Kiev responses". The appearance of a "new enlightened society" brother" was met by a company of Odessa and Kiev 1 Jewish newspapers almost with enthusiasm. And suddenly: - "What a passage!" Almost in the second issue of this "honest comrade" published the following feuilleton:

General mazurka.

If I were the Zhitomir capitalist Mordkoy
Zak, I would sing a song myself.

Mordko Zak, Mordko Zak,
You're not smart, you're... dum....

Tell me why you kept it.

Houses in Kasev capital?

And why are you early in the morning?

?
I said: take out the money,

Don't make noise throughout Volyn,

54 40 =

There is a budget in compact mass%.
How is your "callus"? Oh, whims Turned around and went straight down!
Rock wanted you to rise—
Took away 240,000!

Eh, dear Mordko Zaki
You acted wrongly, brother.
If you had capital%,

Everyone would respect you,

To the synagogue to the east

You would like a corner.

The message "you throw" with a light heart
I wish I could have a pike with pepper in the Shabbos,
And on the poor, without sleeping,
I would double two groats.

And now the ticket bundles
Dragged away by a robber in a mask.
The hooligan will be caught,

But... alas... already in your pocket
These will not return again
Petit-meti, peti-peti...

The Jewish newspapers are in amazement. “Petit-meti-meti-peti”!

this unexpected sortie against one's own, against Jewish money lender! Shocking!

"And the astonished Jews do not know what to begin": or to impose a curse, or to shout "gvalt" (outcry).

It is they who have a corrupting effect on Russian society, because it is morally humiliating to humiliate the "goy" and to corrupt it is their desire, their gloating, their zaservant.

The motto of the Jews is to corrupt everything that does not belong to them. nationality. For every evil done to a non-Jew, Talmud, general reward after death. - In view of this Only such facts as the one given below are possible.

The Jewish doctor Shatu- was arrested in Moscow. , a well-known teacher who instilled in his patients syphilis with selfish goals. One doctor Talmudist, regarding this telegram, in his lace Russian acquaintances, by the way, as if jokingly saying : « iγ i, which can respond to all reprisals with its own, especially of a good family, professional revenge. For example, doctors Jews, of whom there are many in the military, will begin to spread the word together during some war tsyls sense or inoculate soldiers with eye diseases, by means of personal towels, specially prepared, and this may help them use a gunshot weapons. But the joke turns serious when even through the filter of the telegraph agency proskakuyut' takiya potryai i,   … , among the numerous corporation of Jewish doctors, of whom especially a lot of venereal diseases, there will be no units, and dozens of Talmudists-faunists who consider it is one's duty to fulfill the requirements of the Talmud - to harm

a. 0025

"goyam". That's exactly what he spoke about in his R. Eiger in Prague: "The doctor is always available the most intimate family secrets... Life is in his hands our enemies" (Christians)...

According to the testimony of medical inspectors, Jews
i i -
specific pregnant women. - During the war with Japan, According to the officers, Jewish doctors were demoralized troops. - Such are the efforts of the Talmudists moral and even physical harm to the "goyim".

What can we say about what is happening inside Russia when in the very center of the capital of St. Petersburg, the Jews are leading the main revolutionary economy. All pharmacies in Petersburg are Jewish.
sky, all doctors, specialists in secret diseases, dentistry doctors, pharmacists, musicians, pharmacists in theaters and and so on and so forth, all Jews and Jews. At 51 Ofitserskaya St.
in pharmacies they found instead of $100 medicines advertising and revolvers.

On July 17, the security police managed to attack the following one of those who participated in the armed seizure of the Pografi Bussel. The detainee turned out to be a pharmacist.
assistant Shmul-Wolf-Leibovich Mazel-Ma-yellow, 17 years old, living on Nadezhdinskaya Street, in 11, in the family of nBkoego Kardon. At 8 o'clock. evenings on security officers and na- officers appeared at the Mazel-Mazhel apartment local police and carried out a search that lasted until late at night. The police found 12 thousand different
i i, -
wife of 4,000 appeals of former members of the State Duma. Besides
,
and various compositions of explosives. Common prowas tortured under the supervision of a local police chief.
At the end of the second hour of the night Mazel was sent to the guard-no separate!

It is often observed, for example, that the Christian servant, who is located at the i, — they corrupt, -

.

with her they worry about the Christian religion and especially lead to the death of the young people who serve them nannies, turning to the dark in a completely untrue manner and , i ,
religious indifference and corruption of morals.

We know, behind the scenes, the Jewish view of foreigners women: for him he is only a “commodity” that gives good means of profit. —- Today's trade in "live"
"goods" amazes with its impudence and cynicism.
brothels and public houses are run by Jews from hidden or secret. Catching young and inexperienced girls it is carried out systematically, deceptively, sometimes truncated= mothers and educators, for replenishing houses tolerance and harems of Asian and European Turkey.
In Lvov there is a special trading house "Unger", Goldeshteyn and K°, engaged in the export of beautiful girls to Alexandria, Port-Sail and even to Kalkuttu. The same export from the Vistula region was engaged in maintaining a patient care home in Buenos Aires bridges, Jewish woman Shaidlya S%radskaya, who came from Ar-
i .

Before Russia concluded the Kuchuk-Kainarzhiys peace taken to plfn from the south from the Russian population up to 5 millions of people, including purchasing and shipping
i ii -
The Jews were the most ruthless and engaged in this
.

As with trade in living goods, so also with .por-Jews can be proud of this nograph throughout the world.— Dispersed-

All kinds of porn are available in millions of copies.

the graphs on the postcards displayed everywhere are a matter their hands, it's their speculation. They also produce the mass drawings, stories and brochures with ambiguous vulgarities.

Palestine fortress of Gebron.

Tractate I.

ANCIENT INDIGENOUS RITUALS.

—_—_

CHAPTER 1

i á.

Ђ , i i-
i , -
with its complexity and strangeness. ak, when a boy is born, the Jews circle the pillars around Ў the ceiling of the room, where the woman in labor lies, so that
, '
214% seek to kill or spoil the baby. From day the birth of a boy, the operator 'to bring a ritual knife, like a razor, double-edged and put under the the mother of the child, and he must be there in the pro-eight days before the ritual of obrfzaniya. For little ones chika, as well as for the dfvochka, papers are used (amu-years), which are glued to the screens of the mother in labor, only other words of poetry, like for girls. Here's the sub-

The long words of the Talmud about this: “Avut mekatrik be-» etc., the evil spirit is trying to harm a person when he is in danger. And what can What greater danger could there be for a woman than during childbirth?
Another precaution and method for avoiding new born from all evil consists in the following: so as, in the words of the book of Etz ha-Chaim, over a newborn the child is strongly affected by the evil eye "ainyo-oro" and "Kyiv", i.e. witchcraft, then an outsider must take a child who was recently educated and touched with the reproductive organ to the lips of the newborn, then no evil will befall the last.

“This is a very good tool,” the book concludes, “and against witchcraft and against the evil eye').

If a little girl is born, a special ritual is performed:
written from the author's own words
», , -
are located near the bed of the woman in labor, above doors and above the windows to ward off evil spirits Lilita's wolves. Synagogue attendants take advantage of this an opportunity to collect indirect taxes from the people, and, as soon as someone is born, they impose already amulets prepared in advance on paper or talismans that save a woman in labor from evil spirits and charm The contents of these safety notices are as follows:
blowing: "Let no sorcerers, sorcerers, remain alive, among the living, among the living, sorcerers, sorcerers”, and on others it is written the other way around: “May the sorcerer not live in us,” and a few more similar poems.

When performing education they read: “Blessed... who gave us the commandment of education.” If circumcision is done
If the father says, then he reads: “Blessed are You, Lord our God, who commanded us to associate him with "The covenant of Abraham, our ancestor." Those present respond:
“Just as you brought him into the covenant, so

1) See the book Ә .

i   (i.e.) -
"Rim dVlam".

The act of performing the observance over the proselyte reads:
“Blessed art Thou, O Lord, Who commanded us to circumcise the Zelitov, let them bleed the leader, for the leader’s blood is sub-
"to support heaven and earth, as it is said."

The one performing the circumcision of slaves reads: „ Blessed…
i , $
etc."

Rabbi Judah says: Everyone is obligated to read daily.
three prayers: “Blessed are You, Lord, that You have not created me a goy”, and “that he did not create me a woman”, and “that He did not make me an ignoramus." Every Jew calls himself learned and holds himself proudly before a Christian, as the future ruler after the coming of the Messiah, like a prince in relation to his subjects.

The rite of baptism of a newborn baby is performed on the first Saturday after her birth. They return after prayers from the synagogue, go to the parents for the so-completion of the naming ceremony.

If a boy is born, then the rite of baptism takes place to have a cheerful life with cheers, laughter and dancing.

The rite of baptism of a girl is performed in sadness-in the mood of the spirit, without a smile and without laughter, just in the mournful mood of the entire meeting. Jews say if a boy is born, then all four corners of the house will be covered,
If a little girl is born, then all four corners of the world will cry.
The Jewish women gather in a separate room, and
The men go into the room where the woman is in labor and pray there separately.
Then the senior officer, usually a Russian soldier, takes the new the newborn baby in his arms and between her legs, bending down, huhaet three times and for each time, straightening up, pronounce-to call the name given to the newborn, "Chaya or Rivka", kawhich they will choose. The name is chosen from someone who has died: aunts or grandmothers. The ritual of huhaniya between the legs, in the dilator hole is produced precisely because i there «-
", to the evil spirit. Adults with disabilities are obligatory must always wear aprons, specifically for fencing to penetrate there "Dybek". Rich, dandy little Jews

1) Jeremiah 33:25,

under silk dresses, they should wear small headdresses carcasses and even sleep at night without taking them off, namely from caution so that Dybek does not lie in wait and take advantage of was called an oversight. Married Jews are not subject to dangers , .

In his daily prayer a Jew prays thus: “Let it be Blessed be the Lord our God, who did not create me as a woman."

A Jewish woman must say the following daily:
following words: “Blessed be the Lord God ours, the King of the whole world, for creating me according to the will
"your own."

‹«Kryas Shemakh» is a prayer that is said daily in the the week's deadlines are to read the following:
.

"Kibudim", honors of the first members on christenings. --

"Bris", a feast at a christening, with polysyllabic rituals according to the rules specified in the Talmud.

The cantor loudly proclaims the new-to the new son "Misha Beirakh", many years, then to the father of the newborn - "Mishe beirakh", and congratulate the father, - with future Talmudic sage and produce different ceremonies.

If a newborn baby smiles in a dream, and this especially the Jewish women will be there, and with great haste resort to various preventive measures.
ђi i i-
faces and tries to kill them.

Rabbi Shohanan explains that the birth of the lame, the mute, deaf, blind, etc. depend on inattention-calves of their mothers to the state of their own tBla during conception.

The Gudeans consider it a great misfortune if they have a birth give birth to a female child; and that is why the rabbis try to explain the reasons that determine the conception of the child !), and even the means of birth of such °). Son Saint Yehuda was greatly saddened by his birth daughters, and when the father began to console him, the rabbis

---

1) Tract. Borakhoty, 60, building 1.
2) Ibid., l. 5, page: 2.

2 FOR they told him that he was wrong to insist on such things circumstances, for it is said: blessed is the man who has dBtey male, and woe to him who has a female child floor '). p

In relation to the sex of children born, according to pre-according to the Talmudists, they can influence it themselves parents, especially the mother. So in the 5th century. Berakhotg 60:1, according to regarding the words of the Mishnah that in the event that the wife is pregnant,
At this time her husband will pray for her to give birth son, then such a prayer will be in vain, the age is given
i . I, , i . , 21
about Lia (and then Lia gave birth to a daughter), mainly on the basis of the words "" (), to say that i - gently changed the sex of the child who was in her i (), so as not to offend Rachel, who then would have brought Gakov only one son, i.e. less than each servants (and Iakov, according to Lii, should have 12 sons, no more, no less). And then the words of R. Isaac are quoted, son Ami: “If a husband first harasses me, then he is born daughter; if at first the wife is the one who brings out the son. On the floor
i -
, i , i marital status in the world. In Rera-Khocho, 5, 1; r. Aba Veviamin says: “during the entire
In my life I have been concerned about my prayer, so that it was performed before my bed (i.e. immediately after rising from sleep), and regarding one's bed, so that it would be located from the north to the south (in the image table and candlestick in the temple").

R. Hama, son of R. Hanin, said about this: “Who places his bed from north to south, that is, half-to have children of the male sex; and according to R. Nachman, the wife of such a never throws out.

,
i, i , -
to receive from God pure and must return also clean °).

i
human life, their dependence between themselves is wonderful

1) t? Sanhedrin, l. 100, page 2.
2) Shabbat, l. 152, p. 2.

2 A8 =

clarified in the Talmud, in the parable of the blind and the lame man, to whom the king entrusted the care of the fig garden and which, having conspired, they robbed him. The real earthly life of a person catch, according to the Talmudists, is prepared laziness to the future, eternal life. "This is in the future, to speak
r. Jacob is like a vestibule, compared to Vkom coming. Get ready in the vestibule so that you can you enter the triclinium ').

=efo=

CHAPTER 2.

ii
will be born.

Before the baby appears on the cross, the midwife grandmothers by what signs find out: is the boy destined to marry?
whether it will be a girl or a girl, will the child be able to learn

read the Talmud or not, whether he is a rabbi or not will be, etc. According to ancient Jewish customs, each This family, at the birth of a son, sat down in front of their a cedar tree in the house, in the joy of the birth of a daughter—pine. The trees grew here before the marriage of these daughters, then They were torn out and made into a bed for newlyweds.
The importance attached to this custom is evident from the the tale of the rabbis about the daughter of Adrian (although Adrian is not (the name of the daughters), who stopped in one of the crowded cities of Judea to repair their crew. Veld-
%, i - its builders dared to pull out one such cedar. The whole city the family was agitated at the sight of this lawless act and soon the Jews rebelled against Rome °*).

Let's turn again to the rituals. Under the birth pillow
They place a knife or spoon on the victim and a prayer book at their feet.
If a boy is born to Jews, then, during circumcision, the cantor and the servers of the synagogue, having blessed each one among those present, to receive payment. When the birth-
— , i i
all the temple (according to ancient custom), he through mђ-
i .

---

1) Pirke Abot, 18, 16.
2) See Basnage about this. Talmud, book. YI, ch. 9. History
Jews.

This ransom is accompanied by a specially arranged ceremony.
money, and one of the senior kagans or rez-Nikolai receives the ransom amount in cash.

In the evening, on the day of the birth of a male baby into the light, his future comrades and companions welcome him life, - to him is the Central School for Little Boys chikov and read a prayer to the new newcomer to the world sleep is coming. After reading, boys are usually treated
They are treated with a kind of marmalade made from boiled beans.
beans, peas, gingerbread, etc. Reading this prayer is ` dark boys happen every day until the very day
%i. i i ,
in the evening, after the Sabbath dinner, they gather for the and adult Jews on „ “ and - who read the same prayer for the food. On Saturday in the morning the father of the newborn goes to the synagogue or prayer, i i peat, and the cantor sings: “mishi beyrakh5”— “many years” to him, his spouse, baby, etc. i - the parents and invited persons go to the maternity hospital љ љ – і .

They are treated to vodka, gingerbread, and the rich ones to cake.
and jam. On the eve of the 8th birthday, it happens to be the night of the guard. Here we
(i, study of the Talmud) and spend the night at the roller vigils and readings of the Talmud.

i—
in Jewish heders for 8-year-old boys
we derive from the notorious Talmud of Reb Pereferkovich \'[t.
p. 584.

"If a woman has shed a fertile egg, full of water, full of blood or full of colored substances, then she has nothing to fear that it is a fruit, but if it is a hundredcano, then she should sit like after the boy and the little girl."
Parents of Jews after the death of their children sit on the floor of the tra-
γ, , i, ;
The mourning continues after the boy for 7 days after DB-3 days of pregnancy. And if the Jewess miscarried, it is not significant family, then she must observe mourning for the little onechika and DZvochkU.

The fetus and the pastor died in the belly of a cattle (zhid)
• I—4

stretched out his hand and touched it: is it unclean?
is this cattle or clean, he is clean, r. [osse Galilei
to say: in unclean cattle, he is unclean, and in clean cattle, clean".

“A Jewish woman’s child died in the womb, and the viva grandmother stretched out her hand and touched him; the midwife is unclean for seven days, and the woman is “pure until the birth of the child.” =

“If the fruit is removed in a torn or irregular state, i, that, only the majority came out his, he is considered born; if he came out right-
"VILNO, then, as soon as the greater part of his head came out,
She is the one who gives birth. What is the largest part of his head?
“As soon as the forehead came out.”

If she dropped the fetus and it is unknown what gender it is, then she sits like a boy and a girl. She is unclean.
14 days, she has nBt completely days of purity, to the synagogue gona v prav enter only after 80 days, as ro-
, i after 40 and 80 days from the abortion. If you dropped it on the 40th day, then she has nothing to fear that this is a fetus; if on the 41st day, then I should sit as after the boy and the girl and kak niddah (meaning uncleanness regul); r. Ishmael speaks to read: if she lost weight on the 41st day, then she should sit (mourning) like the boy’s message and like niddah, and if on eighty-first day, then sit like a boy after and dBvochki and how niddah, for the boy ends on the 41st day, and the girl is on the 81st day.”

“How long is her labor considered? That is, how long is bleeding preceding childbirth is considered pro-outgoing in the field of childbirth and is not a sign impurity. Rabbi Meir says: even 40 and 50 days; Rabbi There it is said: it is enough to consider the last myth, i.e.
only bleeding! I am considered to be born on the ninth month, and not from the reviews; R. Iose and R. Simon say: births are not continue for more than two weeks."

If she has given birth to the child before the expiration of 80 days po
i , ,
they appear, pure, until the fruit comes out, and r. Əi-ezer are considered unclean. They told R. El!ezer: if there,
i,
i i ,

this, so that we can relieve the burden of blood Dov there, where the law does not apply strictly to blood
i? : i
as a basis; the relief is in what? - in the fact that she is recognized as pure from the impurity of ziva (i.e., births), but it remains the impure impurity of niddah, i.e. regul.

It is assumed to be 11 days (i.e. all the days of the month) clean (neniddah); if she sits on the days of niddah and does not
, i &,
by force or deliberately, then she is clean, but if she
$ i time, then she is unclean; R. Meir says: if she was in a secret room and did not exhaust herself reaching the time, then it is pure, for fear holds back blood; but ziv during the counting of clean days or ziv in these days, or waiting day after day, if not
"They were examined and are considered unclean."

“Five kinds of blood are impure in a woman: red naya, black, bright saffron, like water (infusion) of earth and like diluted wine (the school of Shammai says: also, like an infusion of camel grass and like an infusion of fried meat, and the school of Hillel is considered pure): yellow blood - Akaviya ben Magalalei recognizes it as unclean, and the sages know clean. R. Meir said: if she is not defiled-to become a ketem, then to defile (food—available-(minerals) as a liquid; R. I says:
neither this way nor that way. What is red, like the blood of a wound; and black? - like heret; if it is darker than this, then it is unclean, and if paler than this, pure; "as bright as saffron" means: as refined in saffron; "like an infusion of earth" means:
from the Bet-Kerem valley, if you pour water on it from above; how diluted wine means: "one part to two parts water"
"Sarons".

The woman noticed a blood stain on the body in your own: if against the shameful place, then not pure, but if you are not against shameful conduct, then you are clean; if on heel or on the tip of the big toe (on the toe), then no-clean; if on the shin or on the foot, then, with internal on the outside, it is unclean, but on the outside it is clean, if sides on this side or that, then it is clean. It is exposed — a blood stain on shirts: if below waist, then she is unclean, but if above the waist, she is clean. She is exposed

*

ay Vkh Shchi E

I found a stain on my shirt sleeve: if this is going to happen before the shameful vengeance, then she is unclean, but if she is unclean, she is clean; but if She took off her shirt and covered herself with it at night, then where would no stain was found, she is unclean, because the shirt moves."

